PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 13. 1888. PRICE TWO CENTS.

THE PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS, THE NEWSPAPER OF PLAINFIELD AND VICINITY, IS PUBLISHED AT 4:30 O'CLOCK EVERY AFTERNOON, AT NO. 11 SOMERSET STREET, E. W. MORRISON, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

IT IS DELIVERED BY CARRIERS TO ALL PARTS OF THE CITY FOR TEN CENTS PER WEEK, OR, IF PAID IN ADVANCE, AT $5.00 PER YEAR.

Proclamation by the Governor.

I, Robert S. Green, Governor of the State of New Jersey, do hereby designate Thursday, the 29th day of November, instant, as a day of thanksgiving and praise to Almighty God for all His blessings to us as a people, during the year now drawing to a close. The soil has yielded its produce bountifully; prosperity has attended the labors of industry, and to His mercy we have been spared from the ravages of disease.

I recommend that on that day the people of this State, abstaining from all unnecessary secular employment, meet in their accustomed places of worship, and give thanks to God for all His goodness in the past, with prayer that He will bless us and all others with a continuance of His bounty, and the material State and people with peace, prosperity and happiness.

Given under my hand and privy seal, in the city of Trenton, this fifth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and thirteenth.

By the Governor:

ROBERT S. GREEN, Jr., Private Secretary.

J OTTINGS.

—If you want to make a friend advise your neighbor to use Tulip soap, say the manufacturers.

—The Dunellen Republican League invite Plainfield Republicans to parade with them in Dunellen this evening.

—The M. E. church Chautauqua Circle held an interesting meeting last evening. Several new members were elected.

—A meeting for prayer will be held at the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-night and Thursday and Friday evenings at 7:30 o'clock.

—The mechanical drawing class will be held at the Y. M. C. A. rooms this evening immediately at the close of the evangelistic meeting.

—The Plainfield Camera Club is to give it a first exhibition of amateur photographs at No. 12 Park avenue from Nov. 19th to Nov. 24th, inclusive.

—The seats are selling well for "Rip Van Winkle", to be presented at Music Hall tonight. Joseph Jefferson will impersonate that delightful vagabond, "Rip".

—The reason that the residences on Eighth street were not decorated last night to welcome the Republican parade is because the passing through that thoroughfare was a change of programme not announced.

—The Central Railroad of New Jersey is putting the profits from its business for several months past into road improvements instead of calling on the bonds which might have been utilized for that purpose.

—Inasmuch as the certificates of the electoral votes will not be opened in Congress till Wednesday, Feb. 13th, 1889, and the official declaration of election will not be made till then, Mr. Harry Werner will not award his Presidential prize until that time.

—Sixty years ago the returns of the election were not late on the 24th of November, more than a month after the election, but now the people are not satisfied to await the result as announced in the papers of the next day, but must remain up to hear it before they sleep.

—Mr. James C. Adams, of Brooklyn, the young Quaker evangelist—who will be remembered by all who were so fortunate as to hear him speak at a recent meeting of the Association—will conduct the meeting at the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-night at 8 o'clock. The singing will be led by a male chorus.

—A horse owned by Mrs. H. S. Phillips, of Park avenue, ran away this afternoon and smashed the top of the buggy to which it was attached. It started at the corner of Fourth and New streets and ran down Fourth street and Park avenue to Front, where it was caught in the midst of other vehicles.

—"Harrison is elected,"—says The Flemington Democrat—"but all the same every tobacco shop in the State continues to sell a two cent cigar at five cents, and we hear that the hotels are asking the same old price for their fluids. We reckon the Democratic howl about free whiskey and tobacco was merely a canard, after all."

—Boys who aspire to the Presidency ought to remember that both President Cleveland and President-elect Harrison worked their own way in life by industry, honesty and constant plodding. Mr. Harrison began house keeping in a one-story building with two rooms and a kitchen, and will now live four years in the White House. Our boys who commence in the big house and come down to the one-story house very seldom become Presidents.

EDWARD MILLER'S FUNERAL.

The Murdered Man's Remains Given Christian Burial.

The Rev. Dr. Potter, of South River, conducted funeral services at the Plainfield M. E. church and at Evergreen Cemetery, Saturday, over the remains of Edward L. Miller, the drivers' strikers, who was murdered at Westfield last Spring and who had been unceremoniously buried in the Potter's field. The re-interment was made in the midst of a driving rain.

Members of the Alpha Omega, Philomathean and Calliphian Societies of Pennington Seminary were present. Several of the students made short addresses.

Resolutions of condolence were tendered the bereaved sister of the murdered man, who lives at South River. Chief of Police Kevan, of Elizabeth, was present at the graveside in Evergreen Cemetery for the purpose, it is said, of having a special interview with some of the students in relation to the habits of the deceased.

WANTS HER HUSBAND'S MONEY.

Insane Dr. Armstrong's Wife Suing for His Income.

Counsellor Willard Pick and Dr. W. W. Varick, as Lunacy Commissioners, have been inquiring into the mental condition of Dr. Henry A. Armstrong, formerly of Clinton avenue, Evons, now in the Morris Plains Asylum. The inquiry was held in the Hudson county Court House. Dr. Armstrong was a surgeon in the war, and was severely wounded. He received a pension. It is alleged that he became afflicted with an insane desire to kill his wife, in consequence of which he was taken to the asylum. Two men claimed that he was sane and was illegally detained. They had obtained a writ of habeas corpus from Judge Magie, of Elizabeth, and were about securing Armstrong's release when it was shown that perjured testimony was submitted to the Court, the intention being to get Armstrong out and get possession of his pension and other property. The Judge at once withdrew the writ. This happened about two years ago.

Since then Mrs. Armstrong has not been able to draw the pension and has supported her husband in his retreat from her own means. The proceedings have been made to show Gen. Beach, Commissioner of Pensions, that Armstrong is insane and that his wife is his lawful heir.

Mrs. Armstrong testified that her husband had several times tried to take her life. In 1885 he became so violent that she could not control him and had him taken to the asylum. His income, aside from the pension, was $300 a year from an English estate.

No defense was offered. Armstrong was declared to have been demented since 1884. The decision will be reported to the Chancellor. If it be confirmed Mrs. Armstrong will be able to draw the pension and the English income.

THE BOY FIRE-BUG FOUND GUILTY.

12-Year Old Willie VanNest Convicted of Arson.

Thirteen-year-old Willie VanNest, the boy incendiary of Plainfield, who was indicted last month for having set fire to the laundry of Henry C. Drake, was convicted of the crime in Court of General Sessions at Elizabeth yesterday. The boy lived with Drake and was a brother of Horace and Luis VanNest, who with John M. Jackson were convicted of a series of arsons in Plainfield about a year ago. Part of Drake's laundry had been saturated with kerosene. The boy at first confessed to Chief of Police Carey that he had committed the offense, and a bottle which had contained the kerosene was identified by him. Willie afterward denied the confession. Assemblyman Foster M. Voorhees, of Elizabeth, and Mr. Frech, of Somerville, appeared as counsel for the boy. The defence was a denial and an attempt to show that Willie's confession was made under a hope of reward or release. The case was given to the jury at 2 p. m. and they were out only five minutes, when they returned with a verdict of guilty.

Judge McCormick remanded the youthful fire-bug for sentence and discharged the jurors for the term with the thanks of the Court.

THE Y. M. C. A. BUILDING PROJECT.

The Rev. W. R. Richards Preaches a Timely Sermon.

The following words in regard to the Y. M. C. A. building enterprise are taken from a sermon preached by the Rev. Wm. R. Richards at the Crescent avenue Presbyterian church last Sunday morning:

"Our special prayers are asked to-day and through this week for the work that our churches have undertaken in their behalf through the Y. M. C. A.

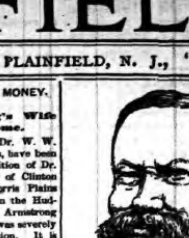
"I am sure that we shall not forget to offer such prayer fervently, and I do hope that our prayers for that cause and our faith in it will evidence their sincerity by our works. When we think of the hundreds of young men in our own families, that Christian Association may seem a sort of luxury, desirable but by no means indispensible, a good place for them to go in the evening. But why should it be necessary for them to go anywhere? They might be safe and happy at home. And I can understand how any father might hesitate whether it is wise for him to spend much *money in fitting up attractively a sort of re*ligious club house for his sons to compete with the attractions of his own home circle. But as Christis s we have no right to think of only the young men in our own families. There are many strangers in our own city, young men who have not, and never will have, some of them, an attractive home; young men in comfortless lodging-houses; so many of them that I feel pretty sure that if Moses—the man who could hardly write out a statute on any subject without inserting a clause about the stranger—were laying down the law for us to-day in this city of many homes and also of many homeless young men, he would say 'Let not another house be built in this town—not one—until you have provided liberally for these young men who are strangers among you, until the foundations are laid and the walls rising above them as fast as money and exertion can raise them for your Association Hall'. I do hope, and pray, my friends, that we and all the Christian people of this place will listen to such a command as if it were God's own law to us and that we shall obey it speedily and ungrudgingly."

Elizabeth's Press Club.

The newspaper men of Elizabeth are about to make a determined effort to re-organize the Press Club, which expired two years ago. This time it will be a city club, and, if possible, instead of a county organization as formerly. Editor McBride will probably be tendered the Presidency of the Club.

Plainfield Leads the State.

There are in New Jersey 305 Baptist churches, valued at $2,600,000. Of these the First Baptist of Plainfield has the largest membership, 539, and ranks second in value, being worth over $80,000 when built and considerably more to-day.



A TRIUMPHAL MARCH.

IN HONOR OF THE ELECTION OF GEN. BEN. HARRISON PRESIDENT.

Great Rejoicing, Beautiful Illuminations, Clubs and Citizens, Old and Young, Democrats with Republicans, in the Grand Parade.

The pent up joy of the populace of this vicinity burst forth last evening in a Grand Jubilee Parade in honor of the election of Gen. Benjamin Harrison to the Presidency of the United States by an overwhelming majority.

It was a clear moonlight evening, and the starry lanterns lit up the heavens as it contributing to the general illumination of the occasion. The weather was mild, and though there were a few perhaps of the opposite faith who felt too sore over their defeat to join in the general rejoicing, they were not noticeable.

The streets were filled with people, which was of course natural to expect under the circumstances. Every house along the line of march seemed to be illuminated and the illuminations were magnificent. Such a display from the humblest cottage to the most stately mansion was probably never surpassed here before.

Most interesting of all, however, was the great enthusiasm manifested by the people generally for him whom we so delight to honor.

The paraders comprised the uniformed clubs with torches as published yesterday and citizens on foot, in stages and carriages.

The editor of THE NEWS had been drawn into a wager with the leader of the Democratic parade, Major Flower, and Col. Julian Scott, another prominent Democrat. They bet a dinner, on terms of this wager were that the losers were to march in the parade of the victors. We understood that had we lost, the postmaster and his cronies intended to make our task as humiliating as possible, thus misrepresenting the more manly Democrats, of whom, let all rejoice, there is a majority in the party. As we won, however, we concluded to spare our vanquished friends all possible humiliation over their galling defeat. To this end we had that sturdy veteran Republican, Uncle Daniel Roberts, furnish a four-horse landau for our vanquished friends. He not only insisted on contributing the landau and horses, but himself held the reins. We also had in the landau, as our guests, Mayor Male, of Plainfield, now over 91 years of age, Mr. Mayor Cooley, of North Plainfield, Chief Consul of the New Jersey Division of the League of American Wheelmen. We also had a guard of honor, led by the editor himself a foot, for those in the landau. It consisted of two banner bearers and two torch bearers. The banner bearers were furnished by the U. S. Grant Guards, and the banners we had made for the occasion. One was a banner inscribed with the words of Mr. Flower, as first below, and the other, our reply, side by side:

We Are All AMERICAN CITIZENS Nevertheless.	Blest Be THE TIE That Binds Us.

The torch bearers were furnished by the Tippecanoe Club, which "Gep: Old 49'er", who voted for Grandfather Harrison in 1840, claims was the first club organized in Plainfield this evening, and that he organized it. In acknowledgment of the honor the club was given the right of the line, with Mr. Frazee (Gep) in the lead.

As an additional guard of honor there were two bicyclers on bicycles in unique uniforms, made up of blue helmets with white plumes, and coats formed of the stars and stripes. Belts of sleigh bells attached to the handles and the pedals of the bicycles made a merry jingle, while City Treasurer Titsworth in the landau, brightened up the company with red fire. Certainly there could be nothing in such an arrangement in any degree humiliating to our vanquished adversaries and the whole was intended to show the spirit which characterizes Republicans and we hope the better element of the Democracy. We had intended going further and have a detachment from a Democratic uniformed club, to form part of the guard of honor and march side by side with the Republicans. Some were willing, but others were not, and so it was thought best to omit this part of the well-matured programme. The Langston Guards of colored men were also to send a contingent, but failed for accident to arrive.

Twenty-six gray-beards, representing by their aggregate ages over twenty centuries, constitute Plainfield's "Tippecanoe Old-Timers". These are:

Name.	Age.	Name.	Age.
Peter Wooden	89	John P. Brokaw	72
T. H. Morse	88	David Gardner	71
Henry L. Yale	86	H. H. Baker	71
Dr. H. Kimball	85	Simeon Harris	71
M. H. Dunham	85	Dr. J. Drake	71
David C. Smith	84	T. J. Gillies	71
N. Randolph	81	Wm. T. S. Edgar	71
Wm. Male	81	Wm. Cory	71
Wm. Hall	80	Wm. McCorkell	71
J. L. Mann	79	Wm. Dunham	71
Wm. C. Ayres	79	F. F. Dumont	71
Richard Corbett	78	A. C. Dunham	71
Harry Couch	72	M. M. Thorn	71

All of the are those whose names are marked with stars turned out in the parade last night, most of them occupying a stage. Those who found it impossible to join sent regrets, but in their hearts rejoiced, as openly rejoiced the others, in the election of Benjamin Harrison, their candidate, to the Presidency. The combined ages of these two baker's dozen is 2,068 years. They all, save Mr. Smith, voted for Wm. Henry Harrison in 1840; and Mr. Smith was so sorry that he didn't cast his ballot for the same man that he attempted some amusement by voting for old Tippecanoe's grandson. Mr. Morse is the oldest Mason in New Jersey, and was born in 1800. Mr. Wooden was born in 1799 and cast his first ballot in 1820.

The Fourth Ward Guards, which presented their usual handsome appearance, stood and heartily cheered in passing the most beautifully illuminated Potter mansion, and later on at the Democratic banner on West Front street, as a tribute to Grover Cleveland as President of the United States, showing a magnanimous spirit highly commendable.

THE NEWS building was decorated with over 150 lanterns and flags festooned all over the front of the building and over the street. These illuminations were done for us and themselves by Messrs. Carney Bros., Democrats. The effect was highened by beautiful illuminations of several other buildings in the vicinity, including French's carriage factory, Blimms' hotel and Giese's restaurant, and red fire. Cheer after cheer lustily went up in front of THE NEWS office as each uniformed company, or body of citizens went by. Messrs. Carney Brothers had in their illuminated show window on a large American flag inscribed "Our President, Too," which was especially cheered by the Cavalry Corps. The Grant Guards, led by Capt. Smith, cheered all around. Their fine marching was especially praised.

At Mr. Truell's on Central avenue, besides a profusion of fireworks, lanterns and flags, there was a live rooster, which one lady held up and seemed now managed to make it do quite some crowing. But it would require this whole page to tell of all the grand displays, and we must therefore leave something to the imagination. There was enthusiasm everywhere in city and borough, and at about eleven o'clock the paraders were dismissed by the able Marshal, Capt. Hand, and brought to a close the Presidential campaign of 1888, the most hotly contested, in the opinion of some, since Grandfather Harrison ran for President in 1840, with a like result—an overwhelming victory.

And now, that the campaign is over, let all bitterness end, business be resumed as formerly, and let each do his utmost to contribute to the prosperity and happiness of the people generally, in which THE NEWS will try to do its part faithfully and true as ever, and we are sure all will say with us, Amen. (So be it.) And agree that "Of all glad words of tongue or pen, The gladdest are these: "We've elected Ben."

Voters Thank the Women.

The ladies of the Women's Relief Corps (No. 10) on election day, Nov. 6th, furnished to the voters of the Borough and Township of North Plainfield eight barrels and thirteen cups of coffee besides other refreshments. In consideration of the above facts the U. S. Grant Guards last evening passed the following resolution unanimously:

Resolved, That the sincere thanks of the U. S. Grant Guards be tendered to the Women's Relief Corps (No. 10) for their kindness in furnishing refreshments to the voters of the Borough and township of North Plainfield on election day, Nov. 6th, 1888.

WM. C. SMITH, Capt.

New Jersey State Canvassers.

Governor Green yesterday appointed Senators Wertz, of Morris; Edwards, of Hudson; Baker, of Cumberland; Nevius, of Monmouth; and Roe, of Gloucester; as the State Board of Canvassers. They will meet in the Executive Chamber at the State House Tuesday, Nov. 27th, to canvass the Electoral and Congressional returns.

That's So.

As Pierpont did not elect a Republican state senator in Passaic and Sewell did do only in his county for Harrison and the state ticket, Sewell ought to be Harrison's member of the Cabinet from New Jersey.—Elizabeth Herald, (Dem.)

NEW JERSEY NUGGETS

Live News from Various Parts of the State.

The new bridge across the Delaware river at Milford is to be finished by February next. The bridge will cost $125,000.

Several thousand Republicans celebrated the Presidential victory last night in New Egypt. The streets were crowded, and people of all the towns along the route, both those of Democrats and Republicans, were beautifully decorated and illuminated.

There has been a wholesale murdering of chickens at Bridgeton by minks, during the past four weeks. A few nights ago, at Union Grove, Jacob Crossman, jr., had his loss of every chicken he had. A half-dozen minks got into his henhouse and soon made it disinte. There are reports from all over the county of wholesale slaughtering done by the pesky creatures.

The identity of the woman who was found dead in the Secaucus swamps two or three weeks ago has finally been established. Her husband identified the finder as that of Mary Reilly, age sixty-five, of No. 42 Camden street, Newark, and he received permission yesterday to take it home. Mr. Reilly says that she was partially demented and disappeared from home four weeks ago.

John L. Mason, of Vineland, whose name has become familiar to the public throughout the cause of his invention of the Mason fruit jar, has just begun a suit for $75,000 against the Consolidated Fruit Jar Company, who have been using his twenty-one patents over six years and have never paid him a cent. The case will shortly be tried in the United States District Court. There will be a brilliant array of legal talent on both sides.

Selina Shettler, of No. 49 West Park street, Newark, and her child are being protected by the constable of Justice Otto's Court until her husband is arrested on a charge of cruelty. He was compelled to marry her when she was only sixteen years of age, and is her uncle by blood. The laws of New Jersey, however, do not recognize such a marriage. Mrs. Shettler has to work to support herself and pay the insurance premiums on her husband's life.

Austin A. Myatt and James Cavanaugh, rollers, employed in the Trenton China Works, have had a standing quarrel two years over the right of possession of a rowboat. They have threatened several times about the boat, and last Saturday night is reported Myatt stabbed Cavanaugh in the shoulder with a clasp knife. This morning the men renewed the hostilities at the china works, when Manis whipped out a revolver and shot Cavanaugh three times, one ball penetrating his left lung. Myatt ran out of the shop with the smoking revolver in his hand and was brought back by John Brown, the foreman. Later a police officer appeared on the scene and Myatt was taken to the police station. At noon Cavanaugh was believed to be in a dying condition. His ante-mortem statement was taken and a prize was announced. Cavanaugh has the reputation of being a quiet, peaceable citizen. Both men are married and have families.

Jane Hussy, who died at her son's home on Park Terrace, West Orange, Saturday night, would have been 100 years old the thirteenth day of next month. She was a native of Old Castle, County Meath, Ireland. She had lived over two hundred years, three of the sisters died at the age of 101 years and another at 100. Her brothers were killed in battle in the Crimean war. Mrs. Hussy came to this country with her husband twenty-six years ago and settled in Newark. Four years later her husband died. For the last fifteen years she had resided at West Orange in the home where she died. Her children were seven in number, four daughters and three sons. Two of the sons went to Australia many years ago and are supposed to have died there. For six or seven years the aged woman had been weak-minded and had to be tenderly cared for by her two daughters. An old family Bible in possession of the son contains the record of her birth. The funeral will be held from St. John's church, Orange, to-morrow with a solemn High Mass of Requiem. The remains will be interred in the Cemetery of the Holy Sepulchre.

The residence of J. C. Graham on Highland avenue, Bloomfield, was visited last night by a man who gained an entrance by climbing to the second-story window, and began to tap on the window of a room in which Mrs. Graham was lying to retire. She was so frightened that she fainted. As soon as she recovered she went out in search of her husband but were unable to get the slightest clue to the fellow. A little later W. S. Rowland, of Ashland avenue, was startled by the noise reading a paper, when he heard his bloodhound growling. He went into the kitchen where the dog was tied, but before letting him out asked who was there. He received no response, and let the dog out. Two minutes later Mr. Rowland heard a man yell. He called the dog back, and it came back with a piece of cloth in its mouth. Mr. Rowland thinks that the man may have been the "peeper" who has so alarmed Newarkers recently. Who shot at Mr. Rowland, of Rockwood avenue, near the Orange line, was visited later, but the man was chased away by Mr. Yorkton, who heard a ladder fall against the house.

ELECTION AFTERMATH.

Gen. Harrison's Mail Arrives by the Wagon Load.

CONGRATULATING MR. MORTON.

The President-Elect Has Done Nothing Toward Forming His Cabinet Yet—News from the Doubtful States—Indications That the House Will Be Very Close.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 13.—The president-elect passed the day very quietly at his residence, receiving a goodly number of neighbors and home friends who called, and reading his letters and eastern papers. Since the day of his election Gen. Harrison's mail has steadily increased, until it has now reached mammoth proportions. Yesterday morning he required an express wagon to haul the bundles of letters and bales of newspapers that had arrived since Saturday. About 1,500 letters and several bags of newspapers comprised the mail.

Somewhat like eighty telegrams were also received, mostly of a congratulatory character, as were also his letters. Heretofore Gen. Harrison has aimed to reply to every letter, if only to acknowledge its receipt, but with such an extraordinary increase it now finds that the task of replying to each letter will be too great for him to undertake, as it would more than occupy his entire time.

One or two callers were near political men, and old associates, with whom he talked about political matters somewhat, but was himself very reticent, expressing no opinions, but saying that he was now listening to all that could be said, and was anxious to hear the voice of the country upon matters connected with the administration he was to form and control. The great mass of his correspondence of course consists of congratulatory, but there is a large share of it devoted to politics, and this he will study and read for himself or have gentlemen who are now surrounding him and who are the usual equipage of manner.

The strain of the campaign has been very great upon him, and it is not unlikely that he may take a brief vacation before his inauguration, though where or when is not yet outlined even in his own mind. The general is frequently in receipt of letters, and has appointed Mr. E. F. Tibbotts of this city as his stenographer. He spends all his time at home, taking his recreation in the shape of walks, which he enjoys very much, and to which it is he always been accustomed. The absolute routine of the home is, of course, greatly interrupted, for left there by the "house" with his accustomed courtesy and good nature.

CONGRATULATIONS TO MR. MORTON.

Telegrams From Prominent Republicans Expressing Satisfaction.

RHINEBECK, N. Y., Nov. 13.—Hon. Levi P. Morton and family have left their country residence for New York.

The following are among the large number of telegrams of congratulation received by Mr. Morton:

James Mormsey, Richmond, Va.: "Accept the congratulations of the Irish-American National Republican Tariff league."

Hon. Thomas Cornell, Rondout, N. Y.: "The result clearly gives evidence that Americans are for America."

J. S. Duncan, Indianapolis, Indiana: "Indiana has redeemed her pledge. The gratitude of the Irishman has been well shown in this election."

H. W. Beecher, Brooklyn, City: "Congratulate you over the greatest victory the American people have had or will have in the history of parties."

John H. Starin: "Protection being settled in the American mind for a generation or more, I congratulate you."

Gen. Lucius Fairchild, Indianapolis: "Congratulations from the friends of Indiana Democrats like myself, who voted for you openly."

Senator Allison: "Accept my sincere and hearty congratulations. The victory is great."

Joel A. Errhardt: "Before you have finished your term the policy of the Republican party will have placed a mill on every stream in every industry. Hail, and all who have the right to vote will be able to do so without let or hindrance."

West Virginia Still in Doubt.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 13.—The election returns are very meager. The Republicans claim Goff's election as governor, and two congressmen, but the contested returns from Lincoln county give Jackson (Dem.) for congress, 300 majority, which will elect him by a small majority. Fleming (Dem.) for governor, through his attorney, claims the Democrats have the canvassers of Kanawha county that he desires a account. The Republican vote increased large still in this county, while the Democrats polled a slight increase over two years ago. Senator Kenna expresses the belief that the legislature will be Democratic by two or three majority on joint ballot, and feels sanguine of his return to the United States senate. Governor Wilson will contest the honors with him.

Georgia Invites Gen. Harrison.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 13.—Twenty thousand people visited the exposition yesterday. The military parade exceeded all expectations. The state troops, with Governor Gordon, Governor Gordon, of Georgia, and Beau or Wade Hampton, of South Carolina, reviewed the troops. The exposition board of managers have decided to send a committee of prominent citizens of Georgia to invite President-elect Harrison to visit the exposition, and to extend an invitation to Governor Hill, of New York. A committee was appointed to carry the resolutions to Gen. Harrison and to urge his acceptance. The most conservative Democrats, who have always been secretly hope that Gen. Harrison will accept.

A Feast of Oratory.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—A banquet will be given at Delmonico's to-morrow evening, in which the participants will be the Republican speakers and leaders in this late presidential campaign. Chauncey M. Depew is to preside, and Col. W. W. Dudley, President Foraker, Ex-President Chandler, Senator Whitelaw Reid and others are on the reception committee. Among the speakers announced are Col. R. G. Ingersoll, Col. Ellis H. Sargent, Robert P. Porter, Hon. Geo. Ecoff, A. Sheridan and Rev. R. S. McArthur, Hon. L. P. Morton and Hon. Warner Miller are expected to be present.

Disagreeing Congressional Proxies.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The indications point to a Republican majority of from five to seven in the next house of representatives. There is still doubt about West Virginia and California. The Democrats may have elected Thompson in the First district of California. This would reduce the majority, otherwise appearing to be seven, to five. The Democrats claim from three to four in West Virginia. Mr. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, figures out a Republican majority of from one to three. There seems to be no room for doubt that the Republicans will organize the house.

Gen. Harrison's Opportunity.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 13.—A furious paper is circulating here. It is addressed to Mr. Harrison, reciting that he now has an opportunity of making a national administration that will break all sectional lines and result in a united country. He is urged to appoint good officials in the south and to give to the south liberal and enlightened treatment. It is signed by prominent business men irrespective of party.

Parade in Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The Republicans of Brooklyn had a big parade last night in honor of the recent national victory. It is claimed that 25,000 men were in line. Among those who took part in the parade were ex-United States District Attorney A. W. Tenney and Hon. Warner Miller. There was a fine display of fireworks and much enthusiasm.

Mudd Claims a Majority.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 13.—Sidney E. Mudd, the Republican candidate for congress in the Fifth district, asserts that he has been elected by a majority of six. He will apply to the courts for a mandamus to compel Governor Jackson to issue to him a certificate of election.

Preparing for Inauguration.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Col. Quay, chairman of the Republican national committee, has appointed Mr. A. T. Britton, of Washington, chairman of the committee on arrangements for the inauguration of President-elect Harrison.

RUNNING DOWN THE ROBBERS.

Two Arrests and the Principal Will Soon Be in Custody.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13.—J. Leon Pounds, arrested Saturday for mail robbery, was arraigned and committed in default of bail. Letters were found on him that were stolen at the Northern railway train robbery Nov. 3. Cora Ellis, passing as Mrs. Girard, of Tyler, Tex., who had arrived here on her way from Covington, La., the place where Pounds was arrested, to Texas, was arrested, and $300 of the stolen money was found sewed in her clothing. She has been living with Mr. F. Burch, who committed the train robbery. The woman confessed that Bunch gave her the money.

The detectives expect to capture Bunch within two days. He escaped $10,300 cash from the express car. He is 45 years old, was born in Noxubee county, Miss., is six feet two inches tall, has black hair and whiskers, was once school teacher at Amite, La., and later clerk of Cook county, Tex.; resided at Gainesville, but was indicted for forgery, and for the past two years again was with the Burrows boys in the Texas Narrow Gauge train robbery near Texarkana; was arrested, turned state's evidence, was bailed out by the Southern Express company, disappeared and was not heard of again until the robbery ten days ago.

Among the papers found in "Mrs. Girard's" trunk was a package containing eight dynamite cartridges. She also had two heavy revolvers which, she stated, she always carried, and slept with them under her pillow.

Many other novel features will be introduced. The run is to be made in sixty hours—leaving Council Bluffs every Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock and arriving in San Francisco every Saturday at 8 p. m. The fare between Council Bluffs and San Francisco, including everything—railroad ticket, sleeping berth, meals en route and service—will be $100.

Jachne's Last Hope Gone.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The United States supreme court held that the consolidation act of the state of New York, under which the alleged murder of Jachne, in 1882, was convicted, is not retroactive, and that there is no reason for the discharge of Jachne, and says: "A general law for the punishment of offenses which should thereafter be made by its retroactive operation acts before committed, as well as to prescribe a rule of conduct for the citizen in future, would be void so far as it was retrospective, but such invalidity would not affect the operation of the law in regard to the cases which were within the legislative control. The order of the circuit court refusing the writs was right, and it is affirmed."

He Cut His Throat.

BOSTON, Nov. 13.—Patrick Monahan, aged 55, has been found lying dead in his house at the corner of Dudley and Bolton streets, Cambridge. He committed suicide some time between Saturday and Sunday night by cutting his throat with a razor. Monahan was a laborer by day and a night watchman for some years, and three weeks ago, after an unusually violent brawl, she left him, and refused to live with him longer. He had been an industrious laboring man, and in his good times found $912.02 in money.

ALL LONDON DELIGHTED.

A Long Desired Change in the Chief of Police.

WHY SIR CHARLES RESIGNED.

He Anticipated Removal at a Coming Meeting—Scotland Yard Joins in the Rejoicing—A Socialist Outbreak Feared in Consequence.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Sir Charles Warren, chief of the Metropolitan police, has resigned.

It transpires that Sir Charles Warren had not intended to resign, despite the popular clamor for his removal, until in a letter part of last week he heard, from what seemed to him excellent authority, that the government had decided to make of him a vicarious sacrifice in the interest of one or two of his superiors in official life. Knowing that the cabinet would hold a meeting on Saturday, presumably with the object of making his SIR CHARLES WARREN. case the subject of discussion, Gen. Warren wrote a letter to Home Secretary Matthews on Friday evening, tendering his resignation, ostensibly because the home secretary, a week previous, had mildly censured him for having written a magazine article defending the administration of Scotland Yard, the writing of which was a violation of the civil service rules. It is undeniably a fact that until the receipt of Mr. Matthews's letter Mr. Matthews was not aware that the former had written the article mentioned, but being fully aware that he was the principal person for whose shortcomings the chief commissioner of metropolitan police was to be made a scapegoat the home secretary made haste to accept the resignation and secure its acceptance the acquiescence of his colleagues.

The police as well as the general public are delighted at the retirement of Gen. Warren, whose arbitrary administration has rendered life miserable to them, but all fear that the sudden change in the head of the police department will involve temporary trouble with the Socialists, who are conspicuously jubilant over Warren's departure from Scotland Yard, and already discussing plans for a demonstration in celebration of the event. Every Socialist, and, to his sorrow, almost every shopkeeper in the vicinity, remembers that to-day is the anniversary of the bloody outrage of a mob, led by Commoner Graham, to force its way into Trafalgar square in defiance of Gen. Warren's prohibitory order issued throughout London two days before, and many persons express fear that the retirement of the man whose prompt action averted a terrible and prolonged riot on that occasion will embolden the lawless element to violence.

Since the announcement of Gen. Warren's resignation it has leaked out that he carried his habitual manliness to the length of signalling about the terms of hiring the blood-hounds which were brought into requisition in the attempt to run down the Whitechapel murderer. This so disgusted the owner of the dogs that he removed them to the country a fortnight ago, and no hounds have been employed since, the assertions of the police officials to the contrary notwithstanding. It is probable that either Assistant Commissioner Monro, Chief Constable Wood, of Manchester, or Mr. C. E. Howard Vincent, member of parliament for Central Sheffield, will succeed Gen. Warren, though Home Secretary Matthews favors Chief Constable Farndale, of Birmingham, for the position.

At the inquest on the body of the Kelly woman a witness testified that he saw the woman enter the house with the woman's sister in fore the killing. He noticed that the man's face had a curiously blotched appearance.

The prices obtained were in some cases good, but in other cases far below their value. The highest amount paid for any of the animals was $2,300 for W. E. D. Stokes' celebrated team of high steppers, Erebus and Wheeler. A pair of cream colored ponies belonging to Frederick Hall was sold for $1,750, and W. E. D. Stokes' roan mare Barbara sold for $1,150. The others were sold for an average of about $300.

Protested by a Squaw.

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—The mounted police department has been officially notified of the murder, north of Calgary, of an American murderer and horse thief named Godin. After the proper delay the desperado will be hanged over to the British authorities. Godin and three other murderers made their escape from jail a few days before the date fixed for their execution. The desperadoes were traced north from Calgary, was easily separated. Godin has managed to avoid arrest for many weeks, owing to the faithful devotion of a squaw, whose tribe kept her secret, regarding the mountains of the plains.

Digging Out the Victims.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 13.—Four more of the victims of the late fire have been identified as James H. Forbes, R. Ranchie, Charles Richstaede and Jacob Maurer. Work was continued on the ruins all day, and two more bodies were found. They are unrecognizable. The site of the lantern company was taken out and its contents collected, which, with the material for rebuilding has only been reduced by the number of new bodies found.

WIFE MURDER IN CONNECTICUT.

A Discharged and Drunken Workman Imitates Jack the Ripper.

PORTLAND, Conn., Nov. 13.—Mrs. Ellen Cooper, aged 32, wife of a harness maker, who has been working in Meriden, was found dead in bed, her body frightfully hacked and mutilated. Her husband returned from Meriden two weeks ago, and said he was on a strike, but she doubted it, and on investigation learned he had been discharged for not attending to business.

Cooper was drunk Friday and Saturday, but was sober Sunday. He had been reading the accounts of the Whitechapel murder, and was greatly excited. He told some of his acquaintances that he would fix his wife before Monday, so that she should trouble him no more. A light was seen in his house late Sunday night, but no noise was heard by any person on side or by the children in the house.

Mrs. Cooper received a letter Saturday night, and went to the postoffice and declared it had been opened there. The postmaster told her the letter had been delivered to her son all right a few minutes before. She created a scene and drew quite a crowd around her. Before she left she made an insulting remark to the postmaster.

Cooper was arrested in Middletown. He asserts that the letter which his wife received came from an East Hampton business man, and proved that his wife was unfaithful, which justified his killing her. Cooper said he was sober when he went to bed, and had the ax at hand to use when his wife went to sleep. The coupe came here from Hartford last April.

AXWORTHY'S EXPLANATION.

He Claims To Be the Victim of a Conspiracy—Making Restitution.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 13.—Mayor Babcock gave to the press the following letter received from Thomas Axworthy, writ-n prior to the former's hasty departure for Montreal, where the mayor was unprovided for in attempting to secure an interview with the defaulting city treasurer. The letter bears date Oct. 28, and in it the writer says that his downfall was caused by leaning on call, at the suggestion of prominent Cleveland parties, large sums of money on which he received the interest regularly. Greatly to his surprise, however, when the principal was demanded it was not forthcoming, and investigation proved that the men, whom he supposed to be worth millions, could not pay paid the loans within four months after they were made.

There was a combination to ruin him, the writer says, and it succeeded admirably. Mr. Axworthy then gives a list of his entire belongings, estimated by him to be worth $579,000, and authorizes the mayor to act as his attorney in the transfer of his property to the city, to make good, as far as possible, the loss sustained. His wife, he says, will give up all claim to the same for a nominal consideration. The list of his assets includes stocks, bonds, notes, etc., many of which are pronounced by bankers to be worthless or of trifling value. Mayor Babcock left Cleveland by make another trip to Montreal in the hope of having a personal interview with the defaulter.

Rough Weather on the Lakes.

Before she could be brought into the wind her small sail her boats were smashed, and almost every movable thing was swept away. One seaman had his leg broken. It imported from Rimouski that seven boats belonging to the parish of Gaspe are missing from the gulf fishing fleet, belonging in Gaspe and the lower part of Quebec. They may have been disabled and have put into Green bay for repairs.

As she did not return that evening Mr. King visited the cathedral and found that she had not been there and no trace of her has yet been obtained. The lady had been heiress to an extensive property in France, which has recently been lost in some way. It is feared that this loss and ill health has left her to commit suicide.

A Texas Court House Blown Up.

HEBRONN, Tex., Nov. 13.—At 10 o'clock in the morning the city was aroused by a terrific explosion, but as it was supposed that the Republicans were still celebrating, no investigation was made at the time. An hour later it was discovered that a portion of the court house had been blown down. An examination disclosed the fact that dynamite had been placed in the wall of the building, and almost totally destroyed it. Buildings adjoining on the public square were also damaged. It is believed that a desire to destroy the records was at the bottom of the affair.

HORROR UPON HORROR.

A Crazed Wife Incinerates Herself and Children.

SEQUEL TO THE MINE DISASTER.

Marie Berthune Looks Upon the Charred Remains of Her Husband, Goes Home and Saturates Herself and Sleeping Little Ones with Oil and Lights It.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Nov. 13.—Marie Berthune, wife of one of the victims of the mine disaster, set fire to herself and five children, and all but the eldest daughter were burned to death. Among the bodies recovered from the fatal shaft was that of Louis Berthune, and when his wife recognized the mangled remains a shriek was heard and the grief stricken woman fell to the ground. When she recovered she refused to speak or notice any one, and it was evident that her reason had gone. As she evinced no disposition to become violent little attention was paid to her, and all day long she sat at her door, regardless of the cries of her five children, the youngest a babe of 5 months old.

Late in the evening she apparently roused from her stupor, and took her children to the improvised morgue, where lay the body of her husband. She knelt down and prayed fervently for some, and still with that awful silence which had marked her from the beginning of her bereavement, led them away to the little hut which had sheltered them in the past.

No attention was paid to her by those who were busy with the dead and dying, but about midnight a cry of fire from the village of Frontenac gathered a crowd of workers from the mine to the streets. It was soon that the Berthune cabin was in flames, and neighbors who attempted to enter found the inmates. The oldest child, a girl of 9 years, succeeded in escaping from the fire, which devoured the rest of her family, and the story was one that sent a thrill of horror through her hearers. She said that her mother sent each of the children to bed with a kiss, then sat down and poured oil on them.

The girl could not sleep and lay watching her mother, who, after sitting for some time, took the oil can from the table and poured it over her clothes and the bed clothes of the children. The grief stricken woman then set fire to some paper and scattered it about the room, and her clothes caught fire. The eldest daughter struggled a short time with her mother in an endeavor to get away, but the burning oil on her mother's clothes caused such intense heat that she soon relaxed her grasp. The girl finally managed to get out of the door, where she fell exhausted and frightfully burned. The cabin burned like tinder, and soon nothing was left but the glowing embers from which were raked the charred bodies of the insane mother and her four children.

CONCERNING ALASKA.

Its Population and Its Possibilities As an Agricultural District.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Governor Swineford, of Alaska, in his annual report says the white population has greatly increased during the past year owing to the extension of mining operations and the development of the salmon canning industry. He says that the number of the native population has been greatly underestimated, and estimates that there are 23,000 natives. The total population is 49,850, and of this number there are 6,500 whites, 1,900 creoles and 2,900 aliens.

The governor says but little has been accomplished in the way of agricultural development. The only obstacle in the way of agriculture, in the opinion of the governor, is that the lands are not available for settlement. He says that the climate is favorable and the soil rich, and he sees no reason why Alaska may not ultimately rival Montana and Wyoming as a cattle country.

STORIES OF THE STAGE.

One of the Late Lester Wallack's Interesting "Memories."

After Garrick had brought in a great deal of wise reform in the way of dress there was a lull again, and no one dared to do anything new. Many generations later my father was cast for the part of Tressel in Cibber's version of "Richard III." Tressel is the youthful messenger who conveys to King Henry VI this news of the murder of his son after the battle of Tewkesbury.

My father, a young, ambitious actor, came on with the feather hanging from his cap, all wet, his hair dishevelled, one boot torn nearly off, one spur broken, the other gone entirely, his gauntlet stained with blood and his sword snapped in twain, at which old Wrewitzer, who was the manager, and had been a manager before my father was born, was perfectly shocked. It was too late to do anything then, but the next morning Wrewitzer sent for him to come to his office, and addressed him thus: "Young man, how do you ever hope to get on in your profession by deliberately breaking all precedent? What will become of the profession if mere boys are allowed to take these liberties? Why, sir, you should have entered in a suit of decent black, with silk stockings on and with a white handkerchief in your hand." "What! after defeat and flight from battle?" interrupted my father. "That had nothing at all to do with it," was the reply. "The proprieties, sir, the proprieties!"—Scribner's Magazine.

A Harmless Comedy of Errors.

Morris E. Ward, formerly of the press of this city, but now agent of a paper car wheel concern on the Hudson, is charitable, gallant and about a mile wide.

He has a poor relative up the country to whom he sends all his old clothes. There are many ladies in the city to whom he sends invitations for the theatre.

The other day he wrote to his poor relation: "I send you my last pair of pants but one; they may be a trifle small, but you can let them out in the waistband. If they are too long you can turn 'em up. Don't mind the patch."

The same day he wrote to a lady: "Since you were kind enough to accept my invitation to the theatre, leaving it to me to select the play and evening, permit me to say the Columbia, this evening."

In an hour Mr. Ward received the following from his lady acquaintance: "As you did not send the pants by the messenger who delivered your note, I am, of course, unable to do anything to them. However, this need not interfere with our engagement for the theatre."

Mr. Ward went to the theatre, but he was very uneasy.—Chicago Mail.

The Parrot and the Owl.

The Question having arisen: "Why Do We Eat?" the Parrot Philosopher has Owl to a Discussion and left the Decision to the Serpent. The Parrot went back several Thousand years to Prove that Man Ate and was Obliged to Eat, and that all Men who came after him had been Obliged to Eat, and used up the best part of two hours in drawing comparisons, Making Deductions and Climbing his Points. When he finally sat down wet with Perspiration, but Flattered by his own Arguments; the Serpent asked the Owl to begin. Particulars of "Gentlemen," said the Bird, as he slowly arose, "I have only a word to say. It is my opinion that we Eat because we were built that way."

The Serpent promptly Decided that the Owl had the best of it, and when the Parrot raised a howl over it the Fox chucked him under the wing and said;

"Blab is a good thing, but Brevity and Common Sense most always hit a Jury."

Sam's Poetical Effort.

Sam's teacher, upon dismissing school Friday afternoon, requested each one of her pupils to bring Monday morning one or more verses of original poetry as a composition. Now, Sam could easily have cut up a cord of wood or ridden an unbroken colt, but to compose poetry was beyond him. He tried unsuccessfully all day Saturday and Sunday. Late Sunday afternoon, worn and miserable, he strolled down to the river side, seeking inspiration. There he saw a half sunken flatboat. The divine afflatus came and Monday morning he appeared at school and triumphantly presented his teacher the following couplet:

A boat went down into the water;
It went down deeper than it oughter.
—Exchange.

Hard Luck.

"O I had such a lovely dream!" said Minnie to her little brother one morning as they were going down stairs to breakfast. "Did you? What did you dream about?" asked Bob, stopping on the landing and eyeing his sister suspiciously. He was an only son among five daughters, and never had dreams. "Well, I dreamed that I was in a candy store, and that I was eating caramels and taffy." "And I—what was I eating?" cried Bob, getting red in the face at the thought of it. "You?" "Yes, I." "Why, you weren't there at all." "I wasn't there at all, and you went and dreamed that you were there doing that without me!" and he burst into tears and went down yelling to his father."—Boston True Flag.

An Observant Youngster.

On a summer's morning our little Lillie was walking with her aunt, and discovered a spider's web. She was delighted and exclaimed: "Oh, see! here is a hammock for bugs"—Christian Advocate.

His Antiquity Established.

Census Taker—How old is your father?

"Just passed his hundredth birthday."

"Impossible!"

"Quite true."

"Can you prove it?"

"Yes. He sent some poetry to the magazines and lived to see it published."

A WELL-KNOWN JOURNALIST DEAD.

Napoleon L. Thieblin, Whose Signature Was "Rigolo."

Napoleon L. Thieblin, who died in New York city the other day, was a man with an eventful history. He was a soldier, author, war correspondent and editor, and he passed his life in many lands.

He was born in 1834. His family was French, and one of the oldest royalist families of Lorraine. His family was driven from France during the first revolution, and settled first at Bologna, Italy. When he was a boy his father was appointed court architect at St. Petersburg. Young Thieblin was sent to a Russian military school, and finally entered the Russian army as sub-lieutenant of artillery. He had just completed his education at the outbreak of the Crimean war, in which he distinguished himself. Between 16 and 20 years old, he commanded forty men, and at the fall of the city was decorated and transferred to the Imperial guards. He withdrew from the service in 1857, and set about the study of philosophy and literature. He eventually went to England, and found a warm friend in the great Thackeray. He was also intimate with Herbert Spencer, and many other of the famous literary men of the day. He was given charge of the foreign department of The Pall Mall Gazette, on which journal he did some admirable work, especially during the Franco-Prussian war, when he wrote some strong and picturesque letters from the seat of war. These letters stamped him as an acute observer, a bold forager for news, and a clear historian. After the war and downfall of the commune, Mr. Thieblin increased his reputation by contributing to The Pall Mall Gazette a series of letters over the signature "Aramet Baink," which were afterward published by the editors of Punch under the title of "A Little Book About Great Britain." He also contributed to several magazines. He translated and edited in the Russian language all the works of Macaulay, Buckle, Darwin, Huxley, Gumot, and several of the works of the German philosophers. He visited Spain and wrote two volumes about Spain and the Spaniards, which were published both in England and the United States. He became the Paris correspondent of The New York Herald, and was subsequently the Madrid correspondent of the same journal. He was afterwards sent to join the army of Don Carlos, the Spanish pretender, as war correspondent.

NAPOLEON L. THIEBLIN.

At the close of the war Mr. Thieblin determined to make a tour of the world, depending upon correspondence with English newspapers for the means with which to travel. When he arrived at New York he found his calculations at fault, and accepted a position on The New York Sun. This was in April, 1874. He made his first mark in a series of articles called "The Stranger's Note Book," in which he discussed American men, manners, customs, and events, from the foreigner's standpoint, and in the caustic picturesque style that was peculiarly his. In 1878 he began his famous financial "Bubbles" series under the name of "Rigolo," which he kept up until a year and a half ago.

A NEW WAR SHIP.

The Hero, Lately Added to the British Navy.

Rather a novel battleship was recently added to the English navy. The name of the vessel is the "Hero." She is built of steel and carries a single turret twenty-two feet in diameter. In this turret are mounted two forty-five ton breech loading guns. She has also four six inch guns, on sponsons, twelve quick firing and several machine guns. The armor plating is twelve inches on the sides and fourteen inches on the turret. The dimensions of the ship are: length, 270 feet; beam, 58 feet; displacement, 6,200 tons. She has engines of 6,000 horse power, which give her a speed of between fifteen and sixteen knots an hour. The bunkers will carry 620 tons of coal, which, at a ten knot speed, will carry her over 5,000 miles. She behaved admirably in the recent English naval maneuvers.

THE HERO.

Minister Alfred De Clapared.

The new representative of the Swiss government at Washington, Capt. Alfred de Clapared, is a diplomat of long standing, having been engaged in the service in Berlin and Vienna for twenty years. He is by descent a Huguenot, and in appearance he is distinguished looking man of about 45 years, and is eminently well fitted to represent his government. He is highly esteemed by his countrymen, and is noted for his philanthropy, which is widely reaching and effective. Besides having been engaged in MINISTER DE CLAPAREDE. great numbers of Swiss charities he is president of the Aid Union of Swiss societies in Bangor. When in Berlin he was honored by the degree of Doctor of Laws. He is a captain in the Swiss army. Capt. Clapared is a married man and the father of five children. His family, however, will not live in Washington, and his wife will not have an opportunity of entering Washington society during the coming season.

Making a Quick Trip.

The following conversation took place in Detroit one day:

"I would rather live in Paris than any place else in the world."

"Why don't you go to Paris, then?"

"Economy. If I had $2,000 I would be in Paris to-morrow."

How was that for rapid transit?—Detroit Free Press.

TROUBLE AT HAYTI.

IT HAS LED TO THE SEIZURE OF SOME AMERICAN VESSELS.

They Have Been Detected, So It Is Charged, with Conveying Arms and Munitions to the Insurgents, and the Kearsarge Goes to Look After Them.

When President Grant attempted to annex the San Domingo end of the Island of Hayti, and was vig rously opposed by Senators Schurz, Sumner and others, the American people were suddenly awakened to the fact that they had at their very doors, and walking to be seen, one of the richest and most interesting islands in the world. They were literally surfeited with information about it; for annexation was made an "administration measure," and fought over in the senate during all of 1869, and early in 1871 a commission sent to the island by vote of congress was accompanied by a corps of keen eyed correspondents. All agreed that the province was literally full of undeveloped wealth, but it was assumed that, "We really do not want the country if we have to take the people with it."

The excitement ceased as suddenly as it rose, and for seventeen years Americans ignored Hayti; then it was announced that they had had another revolution there and the two districts of the island were united under one government, and it appears that there is an insurrection, that the Haytian rulers have seized some American ships on the ground that they took arms to the "rebels," and that Secretary Bayard has sent thither a naval cruiser, the famous Kearsarge that destroyed the Alabama. So interest is revived in the black-and-tan republic.

Hayti is historically the most interesting of islands, for on the first islet off its coast was land in the New World sighted by Columbus. He landed there in December, 1492, and named it Hispaniola, meaning "Little Spain." The simple and amiable natives died off rapidly under Spanish rule, and were replaced by negroes to such an extent that the latter grew too strong to be kept down. In 1652-1697 the French obtained possession of the west half of the island, and developed it so rapidly that it long furnished all the cotton and sugar consumed by France, and a surplus was sold to the rest of Europe. The division between French and Spanish sections continued till this year, the former known as San Domingo and the latter as Hayti. The French revolution resulted in the emancipation of the negroes; Toussaint in 1801 attempted to restore slavery, and then rose the great Toussaint L'Ouverture, who maintained independence till he was betrayed and taken to France, where he died. The wars that followed were long and terrible, but in the end both sections of the island became independent.

MAP OF THE ISLAND OF HAYTI.

There has since been, on the average, a revolution once in seven years, and two or three short wars between the two governments. The island is 400 miles long, its area 28,000 square miles and its total population 750,000, of whom nearly 200,000 are whites or nominally so, the rest of all shades from pure black down through griffe, mustif, mulatto, quadroon and octoroon to melanoid and leucomelanoid, the last two known to have African blood only by their Caucasian features, as none but an expert could trace the tributaries.

No other tropical island can compare with Hayti for general healthfulness; the average of life is equal to that of the United States. Only once in ten years the mercury rose above 95 degs. on the central lands, but it has gone to 104 degs. at Port au Prince. The soil is of inexhaustible fertility, the forests abound in the most valuable hard woods, the mountains are rich in minerals of all kinds, and the gold mines were once so productive that from a single district the viceroy of the Spanish province sent home the annual tax of $500,000, and enough was retained to defray all local expenses. There is no deep mining now, and only a little washing of gold sands by the poorest class of people. The island is easily capable of supporting ten times its present population, and in great comfort, but there must be a more efficient government.

THE KEARSARGE.

The late difficulty appears to have grown out of the fact that the Haytian authorities declared a blockade of the ports held by the insurgents without giving other governments the notice required by international law. The British schooner Alta sailed from New York Oct. 19 with a cargo largely composed of arms and other munitions of war, which were supposed by the firm that furnished them to be designed for Venezuela. She was found cruising in Haytian waters, and was seized by the Haytian man-of-war Toussaint L'Ouverture. When the Haytians found that she had on board 196 boxes of rifles and a corresponding amount of fixed ammunition they at once began a vigorous hunt among other vessels from the United States and seized the Haytian Republic, a steamer owned in Boston. The offense charged against this vessel was that of carrying some armed insurgents from one port to another. Other American vessels were put under an energetic surveillance, lest the relations between the two republics became, as diplomatists would say, "strained." Hence the dispatch of the Kearsarge, ordered by Secretary Bayard.

The American steam sloop Kearsarge is the same that, under command of Capt. A. Winslow, won such renown by sinking the famed privateer Alabama, Capt. Raphael Semmes, near Cherbourg, France, on Sunday, June 19, 1864. Even for that time the Kearsarge was not a very formed of the first class, and Capt. Winslow had armor plated her middle section by the naval device of wrapping her with cable chains, which were planked over. Capt. Semmes afterwards complained bitterly of this "deceit," as it practically drew him into a fight with an armored vessel, yet he was having barn wooden sides. But it is not for a civilian writer twenty-four years afterwards to decide how far stratagem and deceit may honorably go in war. The public applauds the man who succeeds.

JUDGE WILLIAM K. MACALLISTER.

His Death Recently Occurred in the City of Chicago.

There is no man whose loss is of more importance to any community than that of a wise and conscientious judge. A common consensus of opinion makes the bench secure. Chicago, in Judge William K. MacAllister, senior judge of the appellate court, has lost a man and a jurist of whom she was justly proud.

The name Mac Allister seems to indicate Scotch or Scotch-Irish stock, and there is none better for physical and intellectual vigor, though Judge MacAllister's ancestors were born as far back as can be traced in America. Judge MacAllister, himself, was born in Salem, Washington county, N. Y., in 1818. He secured a collegiate education, studied law and was admitted to the bar when he was 23 years old. In 1854 he went to Chicago where he soon made a reputation as a lawyer. Two of Chicago's most prominent lawyers, Jno. N. Jewett and I. N. Stiles, became his partners. In 1859 he was elected to the recorder's court judgeship, and in 1870 was made one of the five circuit judges of Cook county, but he had meanwhile been elected to the supreme court of Illinois, and held that position till 1878. In that year he accepted an election to the circuit court of Cook county, Chicago, and resigned his office in the supreme court. On the establishment of the appellate court he was appointed by the supreme court one of the new judges.

Judge MacAllister was not only liked and admired for his talents and his kindly qualities, but was pleasing in his personal appearance. He was of medium height. His forehead was large, and despite the intellect within. He did not wear any beard, and this exposed his brown features, which with his blue eyes gave a kindliness to his countenance. Few men have ever possessed a better combination of faculties for the bench. He was fearless, he was sincere, he combined the better qualities of a practicing attorney.

The criminal classes of Chicago so hated Judge MacAllister that on one occasion several men waylaid him to murder him. He went home by a different route from his usual one, and so escaped them, but they got into his house and into the cellar. The judge got up in the middle of the night, armed himself with two revolvers, and went in search of his would be murderers. He found two of them in the cellar and opened fire.

Judge MacAllister had no dread of death. He was 70 years old, but vigorous when he died.

THE KING OF WURTEMBURG.

He Is in Trouble, and All About an American Friend.

The old king of Wurtemburg is in trouble. A certain American journalist has for a number of years been the companion of the monarch, and Jackson was afterwards joined by his friends, the Rev. Charles B. Woodcock and Donald Hindry, both Americans, the former of whom is said to have formerly been assistant rector of a church in New York, and the latter a Scotch lad, with a handsome house in Stuttgart, where they live, and the king spends nearly all his time with them.

The monarch is very old and infirm, and it is supposed by his subjects that his mind is giving way. There is great jealousy of Jackson and his associates, who claim to be spiritualistic mediums, and the ministry have resigned because Jackson was not dismissed from his position as counselor. The newspapers of Wurtemburg have respectfully kept silence, but a paper in the neighboring kingdom of Bavaria, The Munich Neueste Nachrichten, has printed an account of the matter. For this the council of ministers at Wurtemburg have ordered proceedings against the Munich journal. The two kingdoms are distinct, but under the constitution of the German empire such proceedings may be instituted.

KING OF WURTEMBURG.

It is claimed that the king, by his munificence to his three friends, is impoverishing himself, that he is obliged to curtail his expenses when he goes to Nice, which he does every winter for his health, and that he has also been compelled to sell some of the horses from the royal stable.

The monarch being very old and infirm, and his nephew the heir apparent to the crown being of unsound mind, the people are alarmed for the succession. In case the king and his nephew are both incapacitated, the crown goes to another branch of the royal family who are Roman Catholics, while the bulk of the inhabitants of the kingdom are Protestants.

London's New Lord Mayor.

Alderman James Whitehead, the newly elected lord mayor of London, is an advanced Radical in politics. He has accumulated a large fortune as the proprietor of a famous fancy goods store in Kensington known as "Barker's," where, according to popular report, it is possible to purchase every imaginable article, from a bunch of peanuts to a horse and buggy.

LORD MAYOR WHITEHEAD.

He is 54 years of age, and is an active, energetic looking man. He was educated at the Appleby Grammar school. He has twice unsuccessfully contested a division in West-moreland against the Hon. W. Lowther. He was elected alderman of Cheap ward in 1882, and served as the office of sheriff of London in 1884-'85.

He is a follower of Gladstone and a believer in Irish home rule.

The inauguration of the lord mayor elect is an event of great state, splendor and general flourish of trumpets, and the same ceremonies have been observed for centuries.

Let Him Come Out.

Exert your talents and distinguish yourself, and don't think of retiring from the world until the world will be sorry that you retire. If hatred should follow you, calumnies, envy, detraction, drive into a corner, and who dare, when he is there but be orably go in war. With a public applauds the man who succeeds.

KING GEORGE OF GREECE.

He Has Recently Celebrated the Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of His Reign.

King George of Greece has announced his intention to abdicate as soon as his son reaches the age of twenty-one; and the Greeks appear so willing to let him go that they are making the closing months of his reign unusually splendid. There are good reasons for all this. King George himself is a Dane, but his wife, Queen Olga, is a Russian and a niece of the czar and very much beloved, not only because there is an affinity between Greek and Russian, which is lacking as to the Dane, but because she is a woman of rare ability, piety and charity. Add that her son, the Prince of Sparta, is a born Greek, and it is plain why the Hellenes should wish him to succeed his Danish father as soon as possible. And as they do not feel free to hurry up the old man's death, they are quite willing to see him abdicate. A few days ago the people and court celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of King George's accession. All classes joined heartily, and the wealthy Greeks of the neighboring countries contributed liberally. In the morning the king and crown prince rode in state to the cathedral where the Te Deum chant is, the hymn in the Greek church which corresponds to the Catholic Te Deum was performed in the presence of the royal family and many guests. At the palace the king spoke from the balcony to an immense crowd in the street, thanking the people for their loyalty. The day closed with a grand reception in the throne room of the palace of all the foreign representatives and distinguished guests. Among the rest Mr. Fearn, United States minister, presented a congratulatory telegram from President Cleveland.

The Palace of Athens, the royal residence, is among the most striking buildings in the renowned and half modernized capital. It is a magnificent three story dwelling of white stone, near Mount Lycabettus, and its architecture and general style are those of a pleasing compromise between the modern and the classical or antique. One of the interesting facts about the Greece of today is that while the kingdom itself contains but three hundred million people, of whom nearly half are non-Hellenic, the neighboring countries contain about six million pure Greeks, and they all look to Greece as the land of their patriotic pride. Thus Greeks (or, more properly, Hellenes) who have lived in Smyrna, Alexandria, Constantinople and other ports for several generations, still look on Hellas as the "the home of the soul," the fatherland. So it was, their oldest historians tell us, 2,500 years ago, when the Greeks of Gaul and Libya, Egypt and Asia Minor, and the ports of the Black sea, spoke of themselves collectively as "sporadic Hellas," and were proud of their privilege to contend in the Olympic games. Among these Greeks of neighboring countries are very many wealthy merchants, who contribute liberally to the institutions of race, and the result is that Athens is now more fully furnished with schools and libraries than any other eastern city of its size.

Shakespeare's Statue in Paris.

If the European traveler and lover of Shakespeare, when he stays over in Paris for the conventional night seeing, will take a walk down the Boulevard Haussman to where it is intersected by the Avenue de Messine, his eyes will now be greeted by a statue of the immortal bard. This statue of Shakespeare, which has been but recently erected, was presented to the city of Paris by Mr. William Knighton, and is the work of Paul Fournier. As is shown by the cut of the statue given herewith Mr. Fournier has represented the poet as he is commonly known to us. It is conventional. Shakespeare holds in his right hand an open book, and stands upright, with the mantle draped over his left arm. On the front of the statue are the words "William Shakespeare, 1564-1616." The sides are ornamented by four sickles, and a garland of different fruits entertwines a ribbon bearing the names of Shakespeare's chief plays. At the unveiling of the statue speeches were made by Mr. Knighton, Sir Henry Irving, M. Jules Claretie and M. Mesieres in the name of the Academie. M. Monnet-Sully, the actor, recited passages from the poet's works.

SHAKESPEARE IN PARIS.

Talmage's Pathway of Life.

The largest contract ever made by any book publishing house in the world has just been closed by the Historical Publishing company, of this city, with R. F. Johnson Co., of Richmond, Va., by which the latter purchases 250,000 copies of the "Pathway of Life," and with the purchase goes the exclusive right to sell the work by subscription in the United States. "The Pathway of Life" is from the pen of the world's most eloquent preacher, T. De Witt Talmage, D. D., all of whose works that are published in the next several years will be brought out by them, a contract having been signed a few days ago to that effect. The book is now in new in press, to be ready about Nov. 1. The magnitude of this purchase will be better understood when it is known that the book retails at from $3.50 to $5 per copy, according to the style of binding, so that the transaction represents nearly $500,000.—Philadelphia Telegram.
