Address of the Democratic Members of Congress.

To the People of the United States:

Dangers threaten the Constitution—the citadel of our liberties is directly assailed! The future is dark unless the people will come to the rescue. In this hour of peril national union should be the watchword of every true man. As essential to national union we must maintain unimpaired the rights, the dignity and the equality of the States, including the right of representation in Congress, on the exclusive right of each State to control its own domestic concerns, subject to the Constitution of the United States. After an uniform construction of the Constitution for more than half a century, the assumption of new and arbitrary powers in the federal government is subversive of our system, and destructive of liberty.

A free interchange of opinion and kind feeling between the citizens of all the States is necessary to the perpetuity of the Union. At present eleven States are excluded from the national council. For long months the present Congress has persistently denied to my right of representation in the people of those States. Laws, affecting her highest and dearest interests, have been passed without their consent, and in disregard of the fundamental principle of free government. The denial of representation has been made to all the members from a State, although the State, in language of the President, presents itself not only in an attitude of loyalty and harmony but in the persons of Representatives whose loyalty cannot be questioned under any existing legal test. The Representatives of nearly one-third of the States have not been consulted with reference to the great questions of the day. There has been no unanimity surrounding the present Congress. There has been no intercourse between the representatives of the two sections, producing mutual confidence and respect. In the interregnum of the Commander of Lieutenant-General. It is to be regretted that at this time there cannot be greater commingling between the citizens of the two sections, and particularly of those entrusted with the law-making power. This state of things should be removed at once and forever. The time has come for the national union to vindicate the sufficiency of our Constitution, to guard the States from future attempts to deprive them of their true position in the Union, and to bring together those that are unnaturally severed, and for these great national purposes only, we cordially approve the call for a National Union Convention to be held at the City of Philadelphia, on the second Tuesday, fourteenth of August next, and honors the principles contained fourth.

We, therefore, respectfully, but earnestly urge upon our fellow citizens in each State, and Territory, and Congressional District in the United States, in the interest of union and in spirit of fraternity, and with direct reference to the principles contained in said call, to act promptly in the selection of wise, moderate and conservative men to represent them in said convention, to the end that all the States shall at once be restored to their practical relations to the Union, the Constitution be maintained, and peace secured.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

BEDFORD, THE IRON KEEPER.

Jonathan Bradford kept an inn in Oxfordshire on the London road to Oxford. He being a respectable tavern-keeper, Mr. Hayes, a gentleman of fortune, lived his way to Oxford on a visit to relatives at an hour at Bradford's. He there passed company with two gentlemen, with whom he conversed and in conversation, ascertained to his satisfaction that he had then about him a considerable sum of money. In due time they retired to their respective chambers; the gentlemen to a bedroom, leaving Mr. Hayes, customary, with money, a needle burning in the chimney corner. There was no other light in the room. [illegible]

The Methodists are thus divided in the United States:

1. The Methodist Episcopal Church. 2. The Methodist Episcopal Church South. 3. The Wesleyan Methodist Church. 4. The Methodist Protestant Church. 5. The Methodist Free Churches. 6. The "Primitive Methodist Church. 7. The Independent (or Congregational) Methodist Church. 8. The African M. E. Church. 9. The African M. E. Zion Church. 10. The Evangelical Association (Albright). The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, may have its name changed to that of "The Episcopal Methodist Church," upon a three-fourths vote of the Annual Conferences, but as yet the name can not be said to have been adopted. The Methodist Episcopal Church consists of twelve bodies, the Methodist Protestant Church of the Northern and Western States. The head quarters of the former are at Springfield, Ohio; the headquarters of the latter, at Baltimore, Md. The headquarters of the American Wesleyans are at Syracuse, N. Y.; those of the Free Methodists, at Buffalo.

The Methodist bodies in Canada consist of:

1. The Wesleyan Methodist Church. 2. The New Connection Wesleyan Methodist Church. 3. The Primitive Methodist Church. 4. The Methodist Episcopal Church of Canada.

The beneficial effects of President Johnson's administration are apparent from the following item, taken from the Richmond Examiner:

"Andrew Johnson will live in history as the man who vetoed every unconstitutional measure that was presented to him, no matter what kind of threats frowned over his disapproval, and no matter what bribing gifts of power and greatness were held out to the specious proposal or. "A man who can resist fear and equally above flattery, and corruption. A man who scorned to accept a bribe and favoritism—the pure genius of American liberty embodied in the flesh. We indulge in no hyperbole in speaking thus of Andrew Johnson. Nor are we moved to speak in his praise by a hope of reward, or a fear of displeasure. He is the one distinct, separate, greatly solitary figure in the whole range of time, who, produced no effect on character, of the slightest kind.

Besides the graver lessons to be drawn from this extraordinary case, in which we behold the simple selection of crime so squarely and wonderful provided, these events furnish a striking warning against the carelessness and it may be, wastefulness of money or other property in strange places. To headlessness on his side the unfortunate Mr. Hayes fell a victim. The temptation, we have seen proved too strong for two persons out of a few who heard his illtimed discourse.

A Yankee Trick.

Talking of Yankee tricks, listen to this clever one, from the German:

A well-dressed traveller one bright Sunday afternoon, entered a well-frequented tavern and called for Schiedam Schnapps and a bottle of the best wine. The table was soon spread but no sooner had the hungry man taken the first mouthful than he dropped his knife to his fork and showed the signs of the greatest pain. "Oh, oh, oh!" exclaimed he, "I have had this toothache now for a fortnight, and I can get no relief."

The company of the tavern all sympathized with him, some recommending this remedy and some another. [illegible]

"I've had three out, but it's no use. Oh, dear!"

Just at this junction in came a tall, shabby-genteel fellow, and sat down, called for a glass of rye and a couple of sausages. Perceiving some commotion, and catching a glimpse of the careful face of the sufferer, he inquired what was the matter. "An awful toothache," replied some one, that has been tormenting him for a fortnight."

"Why, sir, I'm all right and have been troubling in my pocket—produce your purse! If assumed by this time the sufferer and said, "Here, sir, I'm ready." Opening one, he appeared the sufferer and said, "Here good sir, put the tip of your finger and touch it to the powder, then rub it on your tooth." The poor fellow looked astonished, but willing to try anything, he presently followed the advice. Every one looked on for the result.

"How's this?" exclaimed the sufferer, "the pain's gone completely—this is marvellous! I never saw the like! Will not return, sir?—begging your pardon, but I've been so humbugged with quacks."

"There's no call for you to be humbugged," returned the first; "just tried and put up his papers rather offhand.

"Oh, a cure!" replied the gentleman—"I feel as free from toothache as I ever did in my life. You must give me your name, that I may be grateful—I be grateful enough!"

"No, indeed, sir, it's my trade to relieve suffering humanity. I can cure other aches as easily as that;" and drawing up to the table, he made a merry meal. When he was ready, the operator handed a package of his marvellous powder, and before he left he had dispose of a hundred at ten cents each. Who would begrudge ten cents for such a miraculous cure?

But strange to say, when any one affected with the toothache came to make trial of the powders, they were not what better.

The secret came out, that the two fellows were accomplices. The white powder was only chalk, and when one played the suffering traveler, the other opportunely made his cure. But one of the victims caught them in the act, followed to a neighboring village, and had them both arrested and shut up to answer for their roguery.

A remarkably horse was stopped in Boston a few days since by a young traveling blower on the back and telling the horse's ear in his mouth, causing it so much pain that it stopped almost immediately.
