FOR THE PUPILS' HEALTH.

Principal Maxson Dismisses the Scholars Because of Cold Rooms.

Pupils of the Stillman High School, who went to the building to-day prepared to go on with their routine studies, were compelled to wend their way home again, because Principal Maxson, always looking after the scholars' welfare, decided that the rooms were too cold and damp for them to study in.

The temperature of the building was below sixty degrees, and to sit in those rooms would endanger the pupils' health.

Janitor Clarkson, when spoken to about the matter, said that it was the first time in eight years that the school had to be dismissed on that account. He says the boiler is not large enough to do the work required of it—to heat both the Stillman and the Franklin schools. It has always been customary to bank the fire in the furnace over Sunday, he says, and leave the building without heat until Monday morning. This causes the building to get very cold, and in weather like this, also very damp. It is impossible to get a warm temperature in the rooms by nine o'clock Monday morning, if the fire isn't started until early o'clock.

Hereafter, Principal Maxson says, the fire is to be started up Sunday afternoon and steam turned on until the building is thoroughly heated, and the fire banked until the next morning. The Principal says he thinks the Board will uphold him in authorizing the janitor to burn a little more coal to save the pupils from being sick.

It is very important that the rooms should be warm enough, and Principal Maxson is to be commended for his quick action this morning, as it no doubt saved several from sickness.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Frederick Moon of West Sixth street is visiting friends in Flemington.

Miss Bertha Fisher of Jackson avenue has been confined to her home, for the past week, by illness.

Miss Florence Kent of Brooklyn spent Sunday as the guest of Miss May MacLaughlin of Somerset street.

Miss Delano, teacher of the Junior Class in the High School, was taken sick Friday and is now confined to her home with a low fever. Miss Agnes Morton has taken her place until she is able to get back to her duties.

The Y. M. C. A. has secured, as teacher of a men's singing class, Mr. E. A. Embury of Washington avenue. Mr. Embury was formerly a pupil of Dr. Messiter, of Trinity church, New York, and is a teacher of over seven years' experience in training of male voices.

Mrs. Frances Gibby, widow of Judge William Gibby, died at her home, in Rahway, on Thursday evening. She was born near Belfast, Ireland, in April, 1815, came to America when a girl and was married to Judge Gibby in 1838, and from that time made her home in Rahway. Mrs. Gibby had been confined to her bed since the death of her husband in 1883. Five of her children survive, four daughters and one son. One of the daughters is Mrs. H. Newton Spencer of Somerset street, North Plainfield.

The death occurred yesterday of Mrs. Elmbeth D. Vail, widow of the late Joseph W. Vail, in the seventieth year of her age. She had only been ill a few days with acute pneumonia. Mrs. Vail was a very active old lady, having been on to witness the installation services of the Rev. Charles E. Herring as pastor of the First Presbyterian church, last Tuesday evening. She was formerly a Miss Shotwell, the daughter of Mr. Daniel C. Shotwell, and was born in Somerset county, back of Dunellen, on March 26, 1823. Only two children survive her, Mr. J. T. Vail, the real estate agent, and Mr. Daniel Vail of Locust Valley, L. I.

FARMER AXT ROBBED.

He Went to Newark to Spend Thanksgiving and Had Hard Luck.

Joseph Axt, an old farmer residing in Washington Valley, had rather a rough Thanksgiving Day experience last Thursday.

He was found late at night, wandering through the streets of Elizabeth, with a team and carriage. To a policeman, who stopped him, he stated that he had been drugged and robbed of $65 in a roadhouse between Springfield and Millburn. One of his horses was sick. Axt said he was a well-to-do farmer and had been celebrating Thanksgiving in Newark with his son, who had started for home early in the afternoon. He got on the wrong road and drove into Elizabeth. He did not know where he was when picked up.

Before he started from Elizabeth one of his horses was taken sick and died, and this doubly unfortunate farmer, had to journey homeward with one horse.

BREVITIES

—MUGGS' Landing at Music Hall tonight.

—City election one week from tomorrow.

—Borough Council meeting next Friday night.

—Marshal Pangborn this morning locked up another tramp.

—Mrs. A. W. Rand's show windows have taken on a holiday appearance.

—A shark with a tin cuspidor in his stomach has been caught off Barnegat.

—November has always been known as the month for meteors, but this year it has beaten the record.

—The burglar taken to Somerville Saturday morning, by Marshal Pangborn, gave his name as "Paterson Joe."

—Two tramps were gathered in by Policeman Lynch, yesterday. For look-suspicious they got a night's lodging.

—The Boards of Registry will meet tomorrow, at the polling places, from one to nine p. m., to revise and correct the registry lists.

—And now a Rahway man comes to the front with predictions. He claims to have had no less than three visions and says that President-elect Cleveland will die before the day of inauguration.

—State Dairy Commissioner McGuire warns all bakers and confectioners against the use of aniline colors in their goods. The law subjects the user to a heavy fine, where used as a substitute for eggs.

—Mr. Charles Hankins of Rahway while out hunting near Short Hills on Thanksgiving day, shot a raccoon weighing 21 pounds. This is said to be the biggest one of its species killed in Union county for over twenty years.

—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has already erected a good part of the trestle on which its tracks are to be run through Elizabeth. Two tracks are to be elevated as soon as the trestle is finished, which will be in about a month.

—The committee, appointed in regard to the widening and extension of Peace street, met at the residence of Mr. William C. Ayers, on West Second street, Friday evening. Nothing definite was decided, and the committee adjourned subject to the call of the chair.

—A $2.00 membership in the Y. M. C. A. entitles young men to enroll in the class, under Mr. Embury, for the training of voices. Young men who are interested are requested to enroll their names at once as members of this class. A class for boys under the same leadership will it is hoped soon be organized.

—A recent number of Lippincott's contained a very entertaining story of the trials of a small boy in a district school, and how his grandfather took his part, and paralyzed the teacher by asking her to spell "syzygy." It is a word that few ever heard of, but it is in Webster's, and signifies the point of an orbit, though mostly used in the plural. A spelling bee got hold of the word, and now everybody wants to know about "syzygy."

—This is the season of the year when excited hunters mistake their fellow hunters for deer and partridges with fatal results, when they blow into the gun barrel to see if it is loaded; when they march single file and the rear one stumbles and falls and perforates his companion with a few No. 6 shot; when they sit on an old fence and the top rail breaks down, and one will do his hunting hereafter in the "happy hunting grounds above."

—In the matter of sewer pipes and drains no one ought to be permitted to lay them, except by the direction of the Board of Health, whose business it is to cause their removal if laid improperly. It is not likely that persons knowingly lay them improperly, as it must be to their own injury as well as their neighbors, the case referred to Saturday being a case in point, the drain the Health Inspector discovered having been laid undoubtedly through ignorance of the consequence, and possibly without the knowledge of the occupants upon whose premises it was found, if laid by a previous occupant. Mr. Greendyke says that when he bought the property it was represented that it was properly sewered, and that he was not aware of any nuisance.

The First League Game.

The first game in the Journal Trophy League will be bowled between the Crescent League team and a team from the C. Y. M. L., to-morrow night. The Crescent team is composed of H. Van Emburg, G. Wood, C. Lyman, P. Alstyne, H. Haven, C. Teel, G. MacIntyre, C. Vail, J. Davis, captain; C. R. VanWinkle.

FUN AT THE "BI" CLUB.

A "STAGGARAQUETTE" THAT WAS ENJOYED SATURDAY EVENING.

Famed Banjoists, Story-teller and Soloists, Music and Boxing While Away the Time.

The following amusing advertisement, from the pen of the Bicycle Club patriarch, Mr. T. S. Barr, in THE NEWS columns last week, called attention to the fact that a good time was on hand for Saturday evening.

WANTED—Married men and single men, dyspeptics and anti-vaccinatorpes, associate members and idiots, democrats and republicans, high and low tariff men, thin men, fat men and bow-legged men, (curved in the line of beauty.) Every good citizen who enjoys a hearty laugh, is wanted at the Bicycle Club house next Saturday night. (Bring a quarter with you.) Note: Prohibitionists will enjoy the Ballantyne on tap that night.

The talent secured for the entertainment were Messrs. Brooks and Denton, banjoists, and J. Alex. Silberberg accompanist, Mr. Carey, the comic singer and Mr. Ballantyne the well-known story-teller.

One of Mr. Ballantyne's stories was of an inveterate drunkard, an Irishman.

The parish priest exhorted him to reform, and, as a last resort, worked upon his superstition and threatened to turn the offending Irishman into a rat, if he did not keep sober.

This portentous threat kept the Irishman straight for a week. Then he went on a drunk. When he went home, he had, what is vulgarly termed, "a sorrowful jag." The awful threat of the priest was oppressing him.

He held himself in shaky uprightness, by a tables help, and looked mournfully at his wife.

"Zh Bridget!" he remarked dolefully. "Zh—Bridget!" hic—"y'no whazzzz priest sed?—hic—y'no? Zha! Bridget! sezze'll turn me nto rat fy' get drunk. Zha Bridget!—hic—when y' see th' fur—hic—growin' on m' han, 'n' eyes gittin small, Oh Lor! Zha Bridget! 'f y' see—hic!—'f see skin gittin soft en slick en hair—hic!—en hair growin' wheresho'dn't—Zha' Bridget! when y' see tail—hic!—when y' see tail growin', Watch th' cat!!!

Mr. Ballantyne told many other interesting tales.

Mr. Will Runyon of Plainfield also entertained by singing college songs.

Different members of the club then put on the large and fairly soft boxing gloves, with each other, and carried on what looked like an animated conversation in the sign language, to the great amusement of the spectators.

THEIR ANNUAL ENTERTAINMENT.

"Young Mrs. Winthrop" to be Given by the Country Club.

Members of the Union County Country Club are completing arrangements for their annual dramatic entertainment, to be held in the Casino, on Saturday evening, December 10th. Besides the ladies and gentlemen composing the cast a large number of the members of the club are actively interested in the artistic and financial success of the entertainment, which is to be given with the same careful attention to detail that characterized the club's presentations of "Esmeralda" last season.

"Young Mrs. Winthrop" is the play to be given, and it will be under the direction of Mr. Henry S. Blake. The following is the cast:

Constance Winthrop, a woman of society.....Mrs. J. Parker Mason
Aunt Ruth, whose heart is still young.....Mrs. Medina Edith, a blind girl.....Mrs. Wm. L. Saunders
Mrs. "Dick" Chetwynd, a bubble of society.....Mrs. Chas. E. Brooks
Jennette, a maid.....Miss Massett
Douglass Winthrop, a man of business.....John R. Blake
Buxton Scott, his family lawyer.....Wm. H. Cock
Dr. Meltness, his family physician.....Chas. E. Brooks
Herbert Winthrop, a graduate from Yale.....Harry Sargent
John, a butler.....Roger Ericson

A Small Fire.

An alarm of fire was sounded from box 25, about one o'clock yesterday afternoon, and Gazelle Engine Company, Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company and Alert Hose Company responded. The fire proved to be in the bath room of the residence of Mr. Frederick E. Wills on LaGrande avenue. Three lines of hose were laid, but by the time they were down the fire was out, as the members of the household extinguished the blaze with water from a garden hose. Beyond the burning of some clothing in a closet, adjoining the bath room, no damage resulted.

No one seems to know how the fire originated. About a year ago there was a fire in the same room, but not much damage resulted.

Tried to Commit Suicide.

A hostler employed at Boyce's hotel, North Plainfield, started on the warpath last Wednesday. After filling up with fire water, he went into a butcher shop on Somerset street and grasped a knife, saying he was going to commit suicide. Several men in the shop seized him before he could accomplish his purpose, and threw him to the floor after a hard tussle.

Marshal Pangborn was sent for and he put the nippers on the would-be suicide and took him to Somerville, where he is now ruticating.

—The following five-men teams will compete on the Crescent League alleys to-night: Team No. 1—Haynes, Woolston, Woodruff, Chas. Dunham, Leggett. Team No. 2—Keaney, Petrie, Buckle, Suthpen, G. A. Hallock.

FORTUNATELY THE HORSE STOPPED

Narrow Escape of Three Persons from Death Yesterday.

Another accident, caused by the electric street cars, occurred yesterday, and again it was more by good luck than good management that it did not prove fatal.

About half-past four o'clock yesterday afternoon, as a gentlemen and two ladies, seated in a carriage, were riding along West Front street, near Washington avenue, the horse they were driving, became frightened at an approaching electric street car, and started to run away.

The driver had the horse under good control when it suddenly dashed around the corner of Washington avenue. The corner was turned so short that the rear wheel of the vehicle struck the curb, completely wrecking the wheel, and throwing the occupants of the carriage out on the sidewalk.

Only the quick presence of mind of the man saved it from being a fatal accident. In falling he managed to give a hard tug on the reins and call "whoa" to the horse, which stopped it, otherwise the driver might have been dragged along the street, and probably killed. As it was no one was injured beyond a few bruises.

UNION COUNTY CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORS.

They will Hold a Meeting at Springfield on Dec. 16.

The Union County Christian Endeavor Union will hold a conference at Springfield on Friday evening, Dec. 16. An interesting programme is being arranged and delegations from all the C. E. societies in the country will attend. The session will be held in the old Presbyterian church at Springfield. Robert P. Spear will probably be the speaker, and his subject will be "Missions." A paper will be read and the pastors in the country will be asked to give their impressions on Christian Endeavor work. The conference will close with a consecration service and it is hoped to have Miss Alice B. Spangenberg of Netherwood as the leader.

He Says it Was a $5,000 Poem.

At the time of the naval engagement between the Monitor and the rebel ram Merrimac, in which the latter was defeated, nearly thirty years ago, said Mr. John H. French, recently, before a group of friends, "the Herald offered $5,000 as a prize for the tersest poem in honor of the victory, and paid it for a poem which it was considered told the whole story in these four lines:

"The June bug hath a gauzy wing,
The lightning bug hath flame;
The bed bug hath no friends at all,
But he gets there just the same."

It is difficult to understand in this day what the poem has to do with the fight, but it is explained that the old style war vessels were very showy, (of gaudy wing) though of little account alongside the ram Merrimac which could move about comparatively like lightning and belch forth most destructive flame, while the Monitor was so insignificant-looking that it was spoken of most derisively by the naval officers when it arrived on the scene of conflict after several of our best war vessels had been sunk, and the whole fleet at Hampton Roads threatened with destruction. It was referred to as "a cheese box on a bed bug's back," the turret being dubbed the cheese-box. It had no friends to speak of in the navy, until after its first engagement, when it "got there," as the poem tells.

In Mr. French's opinion Mr. Ericsson, the inventor of the Monitor, was never honored by this government as he deserved to be for his great services, for if it had not been for the Monitor's victory there was nothing to prevent the Merrimac going right on to New York, destroying it and every Northern port, and turning the tide of battle against us.

The Results of Carelessness.

In the Sub-Treasury in New York city, according to the Philadelphia Press, there is on deposit to-day more than $8,000,000, representing outstanding money-orders, and of this amount more than $2,000,000 represents money-orders which are overdue, and which may never be presented for payment. Ten years ago, in a spasm of virtue, Congress appropriated the money to pay the salaries of ten clerks, who should check up the books of the money-order office, and prepare a list of money-orders which had not been presented for payment.

It was estimated then that if this list was prepared, the owners of two-thirds of this money could be traced, and the money could be restored to them. To-day one solitary clerk sits in a little office on the top floor of the Postoffice Department annex, checking up the unpaid money orders. He is working now on orders issued in 1871; at this rate he will not catch up with his work within twenty years, and by that time most of the owners of the money will be dead, and their heirs or executors will be hard to find.

AN AWFUL MURDER.

Carved to Pieces with a Razor and Fed to the Hogs.

CLARKSVILLE, Ark., Nov. 28.—Henry Banks, a colored farmer, returned home yesterday and found his wife talking to Joseph Perry, a neighbor.

He pulled out a razor and literally carved the pair to pieces. He cut the limbs of the victims from their bodies and threw them in the hogpen.

A posse is in pursuit of the murderer.

Gen. Grubb Sued.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. 28, (Special.)—Gen. E. Burd Grubb, ex-Minister to Spain and candidate for Governor of New Jersey against Leon Abbett, has been sued in Burlington County Court by John G. Bordman, an American artist in Paris, for $2,356, the price of several portraits painted for the ex-Minister while he was abroad.

Of Interest to Corporation Lawyers.

Chancellor McGill has adopted a new rule which is of interest to corporation lawyers. It will be known as No. 256 of Chancery practice and reads as follows:

In every suit brought by a stockholder of a corporation, in behalf of himself and other stockholders, for relief to which the corporation is entitled, the complainant shall immediately on filing the bill of complaint, and issuing a subpoena to answer, give such notice of the pendency and object of the suit to the other stockholders of said corporation of as the Chancellor shall in each case by order direct.

Want a Coffee Cart.

The Rahway firemen feel the need of a coffee brigade, similar to Plainfield's, according to the following clipping from the Rahway Record:

Mr Editor: Chief T. O. Doane, of the Plainfield Fire Department, in an article in the Firemans Herald, says the coffee brigade is one of the valuable auxiliaries to his department. We feel the need of it this morning at the fire on Union street. Are our ladies behind their sisters in Plainfield in looking after the firemen? ACTIVE.

Rahway, Nov. 22, 1892.

To Demolish Another Landmark.

The Central Railroad Company to-day will begin to demolish the building at the intersection of Broad street, Elizabeth, and the railroad tracks, which for some years has been used by the United States Express Company for headquarters. The express company will move into the Central Railroad building on East Broad street. The doomed building is one of the oldest landmarks on Broad street.

—A provincial newspaper calls attention to a feeding-bottle (i. e., nursing bottle) advertisement which concludes with the words:

> When the baby is done drinking it must be unscrewed and laid in a cool place under a tap. If the baby does not thrive on fresh milk, it should be boiled.

This, it is remarked, is a trifle hard on the baby.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Eurasian.

A strange race of mongrels are the people described by Sara Jeanette Duncan in The Popular Science Monthly under the head of "Eurasia." A Eurasian is a cross between a European and a native of India. The race is something like the mulatto of the American republic in social standing, and not unlike the mulatto cross in other respects. It has been said that the mulatto inherits the vices and defects of both the white and black races, rather than their best characteristics and traits. The same is true of the Eurasian. These mixtures of races so much unlike are somehow a bad thing for humanity.

The Eurasian is a poor creature among men, Mrs. Duncan says. He is weak physically, and indolent and shiftless. His inheritance of Hindoo blood enables him to walk abroad in the sun in India and endure the climate which kills a European children. The Eurasians marry and multiply at a rate that reminds us again of the negro race in America, yet the death rate among them is very high. Poverty and crowded living make these half bloods an easy prey to disease, yet they nevertheless multiply at such a rate that they now constitute a distinct race, and their own blood need no further admixture of European blood to continue them.

They form the slum population of the Anglo-Indian cities. In Calcutta alone there are 20,000 of these people, and what to do with them is as disturbing to the government authorities as the negro problem is to some of the states of this Union. Physically they are narrow shouldered and stooping. They have thin straight hair, black eyes, flat cheekbones, full, curved lips and soft dark eye that bespeak their Indian ancestry, with almost none of the steady resolutness of the European. There is no prospect for them socially, except by could increase in numbers and energy till they could drive out the native Indian and take his place, or rise and demand equality with their white companions and cousins. But of this there is no hope either way. They are good natured, lazy and thriftless, and the most inveterate and artistic liars alive. Drunkenness and brutality, however, are not common among them. The reading of Mrs. Duncan's paper confirms one who stops to think about it in his conclusion that, such as they are, there are too many people in the world.

The Naval Parade Next Spring.

About the time of the opening of the World's fair next spring the finest naval review ever witnessed in America will be given in New York bay and Hampton Roads. The most interesting point about it will be that all the vessels of our navy, new and old, that can be spared from active duty will take part. Along with the splendid ships of the white squadron will come, like grizzled war veterans beside the handsome young national guard, the old Kearsarge and Portsmouth.

The outgoing Republican secretary of the navy is anxious that the naval vessels planned and built entirely during the present administration shall be finished as far as possible before he takes leave of office. It was expected that No. 6, the 5,500-ton protected cruiser now building at San Francisco, would be finished by the spring of 1893, but delays in getting material made this out of the question. No. 6 will not be done till next fall. She is 340 feet long at the water line and was modeled after the fine Spanish cruiser Reina Regenta. She is a three decker, and will carry 1,200 tons coal supply and travel at a sustained speed of twenty miles an hour, it is expected.

It is hoped that the New York and Indiana will be finished in time to assist in the splendid naval parade between Hampton Roads and New York. The New York is the largest cruiser yet launched for the new navy. The Indiana is the largest battleship. It is not certain, however, that the Indiana will be near enough completion to enable her to steam along with the parade. The other vessels will probably be the following:

Cruisers New York (flagship), Baltimore, San Francisco, Charleston, Philadelphia, Newark, Chicago, Atlanta, Concord, Bennington, Yorktown, Detroit and Montgomery, dynamite cruiser Vesuvius, double turreted monitor Miantonomoh, dispatch steamer Dolphin, gunboat Machias, practice ship Bancroft, torpedo boat Cushing and the old Kearsarge and Portsmouth.

Whoever else was disappointed in the fall elections, there is one candidate who is not. That is Miss Eliza L. Knowles, the pretty and plucky girl attorney general of Montana. The People's party nominated her, and she led the rest. Miss Knowles is a college graduate—a master of arts from her alma mater, Bates college, Lewiston, Me. She is a New Hampshire girl, and studied law in that state first and afterward in Helena, Mon.

A Paris paper has a daily fashion chronicle printed in English for the benefit of its English and American lady readers who do not understand French. We clip the following as an item of news from a late issue: "The fashion bears a crisis which is wonderful and was never seen before. In fact never such a indecision had obscured the minds."

THREE PEOPLE INSANE FROM FEAR.

There Was Great Anxiety in Philadelphia and Other Cities as the Hour Approached When the Earth Crossed the Path of the Big Holmes Comet.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—Great interest was manifested in the city Sunday night on account of the promised appearance of the comet, and as the shades of evening began to gather hundreds of men, women and children gathered on the streets for the purpose of witnessing the expected heavenly wonders. The crowds maintained their positions until long after the hour fixed by the astronomers for the collision, when they were driven home by a drizzling rain.

There were many who were afraid to venture from their homes, and preferred to die by their own fireside if the expected death was to come. Three cases of insanity through fear of the destruction of the world are reported by the police, and prominent physicians who were seen predicted that many cases of nervous prostration and possibly death would result from the intense strain upon the nervous systems of the weak and superstitious.

Jamie Hurlford, twenty-two years old, of 925 West street, became violently insane, and by the advice of her physician was sent to the insane department of the Philadelphia hospital to be cared for.

Alarm at Elizabeth.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. 28.—Alarm in this city over the comet grew at the approach of the hour named for the possible collision. Many people who have not attended church for years came before for many years were on their knees. In many churches the services were continued until after midnight. This was particularly the case in the Catholic churches and places of worship for the colored people. The latter gathered in large numbers and participated in prolonged prayer meetings. Silent prayer meetings were held from quarter past 10 o'clock to 11 o'clock, when a praise meeting was started to give thanks for the escape of the world from annihilation.

Thought It Was the Comet.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 28.—"It's the comet, sure" was the exclamation on all sides Sunday night when the fire bells sounded. It having been previously announced that the bells would ring in case of the appearance of the comet or a meteoric display. People covered on the street to see the heavens in the moonlight, and many were frightened and thought the city was doomed to destruction. The alarm was occasioned by the grass on Stratford beach being in flames.

Not in Sight at New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Thousands of New Yorkers who spent the hour from 8 to 9 Sunday evening abroad looking for the comet and awaiting the shock were compelled to go home disappointed. Instead of the comet there were acres of clouds covering the skies solidly in every direction. Neptune could be seen. At Columbia college Professor Rees had everything ready, but as science could not penetrate the veil he made no observation.

Few Meteors Fell.

BOSTON, Nov. 28.—Thick clouds prevailed over this region, so that any large shower of meteors, if there was such a shower, could not have been seen. The astronomers at Harvard think from the fact that when the cloud did thin out a bit no shooting stars were seen, it is improbable that any unusual number were present in our atmosphere.

Not Biela's Comet.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 28.—Although clouds have somewhat hindered observation at Lowell observatory, what Drs. Payne and Wilson have seen of the comet has convinced them that it is not Biela's. They think that it is a new comet or one whose orbit has changed.

Yale Observers Disappointed

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 28.—At the Yale College observatory the astronomers were on the watch for a shower of meteors. They were disappointed, for no meteoric display took place.

Editor Bagnall's Fiancee to Sue.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 28.—Miss Eva Frear will sue the New York Central railroad for $50,000 damages for the death of her alleged betrothed, Editor John H. Bagnall, of The Evening Star, this city, in the wreck at Hastings, N. Y., Dec. 24, 1891.

The Ohio Gas Supply Failing.

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 28.—Ohio people are much concerned because the natural gas supply is slowly failing. All manufacturers have been cut off, and nothing larger than a hotel is now supplied with the convenient fuel.

Kosiich's Murderer Will Escape.

HARTFORD, Nov. 28.—Matthew Kosiich, who was murdered in cold blood two weeks ago in West Hartford, died of his injuries without telling his story, and it is now doubtful if his murderer is ever caught.

Two Men Killed by Robbers.

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 28.—The gang of highwaymen at Wenatchee held up and killed Joseph Cooper and John McVicar. A vigilance committee will be organized.

The Fortune Teller Dead.

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 28.—Mrs. Breiter, the aged fortune teller who was found in her house here with her clothing on fire, died in great agony.

His Ear Troubles Him Again.

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—The emperor's ear is again troubling and paining him intensely. The trouble is not considered dangerous.

WHAT THE POLITICIANS ARE DOING.

Senator Gorman Denies That Prominent Democrats Are to Confer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The alleged conference of Democrats, expected to exchange views on the best policy for the party to pursue in and out of congress was promoted by Senator Gorman and Richard Croker. It is said. Among those invited to the conference are Senator Faulkner, of West Virginia, and Senator Call, of Florida. Senator Faulkner said that he knew nothing about the conference, except that one was to be held. He understood that the object of it was an informal talk about the course to be pursued in congress. Senator Call said that he did not believe in such a conference, and added: "It seems absurd for ten or twelve men to fix any definite policy for their party on the tariff or any other question of national importance. The president-elect is capable, I think, of shaping the policy of his party. He should not be embarrassed by concerted opinion."

A dispatch from Washington says that Senator Gorman declares that no such conference has been arranged. "The story is a fake," he said.

How the Congressmen Stand.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The Herald has sent to the members-elect of the house of representatives of the Fifty-third congress the following questions:

First—Are you in favor of an extra session, and if so, why? If not, why not?

Second—Do you believe in the repeal of the McKinley bill or simply a modification of it—a modification that would insure a tariff for revenue only?

One hundred and ninety-nine of the 356 congressmen have replied to The Herald's inquiries as follows:

In favor of extra session	79
Opposed to extra session	61
Noncommittal	39
Favor repeal of McKinley bill	81
Favor modification of bill	40
Opposed to any change in bill	61
Noncommittal	17

Answers come from congressmen in every state but two. The southern states speak strongly for an early extra session and the prompt repeal of the McKinley law.

What the Republicans Concede.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The Republican congressional campaign committee claims the election of 218 Democrats, 128 Republicans and 8 Populists—a Democratic majority of 82. Clerk Kerr, of the house, recently claimed a Democratic majority of 90, with Rhode Island to hear from.

Harrity Is to Settle It.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The fight between the factions of the District Democracy as to which wing shall manage the arrangements for the inauguration of President Cleveland will probably be referred to Chairman Harrity for settlement.

Would Rule the Coal Trade.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 28.—Agents of Maryland and West Virginia coal companies say that the bituminous coal industry will be ruined if the duty is removed.

Where Is Julia Hall?

NEW CANAAN, Conn., Nov. 28.—Miss Julia Hall, aged thirty, left home Thanksgiving evening and has not been seen since. She was traced as far as New Rochelle. She is the daughter of R. C. Hall, president of the First National bank, of New Canaan, and was a highly respected young lady. It is feared illness caused her to leave home and perhaps to commit suicide.

Mrs. Cleveland at Church.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Nov. 28.—Every seat in the Presbyterian church here was filled at the morning services, as it was known that Mrs. Cleveland intended to be present. She wore a dark navy blue dress, over which was a loose fitting, light colored jacket. A minks boa encircled her neck, while a pretty round hat, trimmed with black ostrich feathers, finished the costume.

Bald Knobbers in Control Again.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 28.—At the recent election the Bald Knobbers, who have been keeping quiet since five of their ringleaders were hanged, carried Taney county and are again in control of affairs. They have served notice on several officers who helped to prosecute them that they must leave the country.

A Big Gusher Struck in Ohio.

ST. MARY'S, Nov. 28.—The big oil gusher struck on the Hollister farm in Portage township, Hancock county, began to flow at the rate of about 1,000 barrels an hour. The entire surrounding country is being flooded with oil, owing to the company's inability to construct sufficient tanks.

Rev. John Dowd Dead.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 28.—The Rev. John Dowd, chaplain of St. Michael's hospital, is dead. He deceased was about forty, and was vice president of Seton Hall college at one time, and for several years was attached to St. James' church in Newark.

To Sue Margaret Mather.

DENVER, Nov. 28.—Margaret Mather, the actress, who recently married Gustav Palst, the brewer's son, and announced her retirement from the stage Dec. 10, will be sued every week for six months by theatrical managers.

He Shot Two Men Dead.

EAGLE PASS, Tex., Nov. 28.—At Villa Musquiz, Mexico, Jesui Galan, who had engaged Miss Beatrice Fuentes for all the dances at a ball, shot and killed one of her suitors and another innocent bystander during a quarrel.

Swallowed Iodine by Mistake.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 28.—Maggie Williams, aged twenty-five, living alone at 371 Fifteenth avenue, swallowed some tincture of iodine, thinking the bottle contained cholera drops. She may recover.

Rev. Father Leonard Dead.

JERSEY CITY, Nov. 28.—Rev. Father Leonard, noted throughout New Jersey and Pennsylvania for his eloquence as a preacher and missionary, is dead.

General Crawford's Death.

NORWALK, Conn., Nov. 28.—General Robert B. Crawford, commander of the brigade of the Connecticut national guard from 1871 to 1875, is dead.

Sought Death Under the Wheels.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Jacob Sinsheimer was ground to death under the wheels of an elevated railroad locomotive. He leaped in front of a train.

Two New Cardinals.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Dr. Kopp, prince bishop of Breslau, and Dr. Krementz, arch bishop of Cologne, have been created cardinals.

Minister Patenotre Arrives.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—M. Patenotre, minister plenipotentiary of France to Washington, arrived here on La Gascogne.

UNDAUNTED BY DEFEAT.

The President Says His Tariff Views Are Unchanged.

MR. MILLS AND TARIFF REFORM.

He Says the Reduction Should Be Made All Round—Free Raw Material and a Revenue Tax on Manufactured Goods Is the Platform He Stands On.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—President Harrison has followed a new method of work in preparing his annual message this year, says a gentleman who saw him at work on it. This message is of particular interest, because it will be the last annual message which he will send to congress. It has been the custom of the president in past years to write his message on a pad of memorandum paper, writing when the fancy seized him or when some idea was suggested to his mind, "but this year," he says, "I am doing something I have never done before. I am dictating my message to a stenographer this year. I find that the physical effort of writing on this pad of paper is exhausting."

The president looked weary as he spoke. There is not an unhealthy look in his face, but there lies in it the expression of deep sorrow. It is sustained with wrinkles. The great strain of the long days of Mrs. Harrison's last illness has told upon him. Before they came he was a man of tireless energy.

No Backdown on the Tariff.

"The newspapers of the United States are taking a great interest in what you may say on the tariff question," said the visitor. "It looks as though it were McKinleyism that has defeated the Republican party, and they are anxious to know whether you will modify your views on the subject of protection in this message."

The president had thrown himself into his chair prepared to take up his work again. He leaned back, and looking his visitor squarely in the face he said: "The newspapers of the United States ought to know me well enough to believe that when I adhere to a system I am not going to change my views merely because of a defeat in election."

Chinese Defy the Law.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The latest Chinese restriction act has fallen a dead letter. The law was passed on May 5 last, and required that within one year all Chinese laborers within the United States should take out registration papers before the collector of internal revenue of their respective districts, and furnish photographs of themselves for purposes of identification. Thus far but five Chinamen in the whole United States have complied with the law, and they were residents of far off Oregon. According to census figures there were 107,475 Chinese in the United States June 1, 1890.

Wong Ching Foo, secretary of the Chinese Reform Bureau, stated today that there are not fewer than 150,000 Chinese in this country possessing qualifications which he contends should entitle them to the suffrage. This would make the total Chinese population double that number, or at least 250,000. The only penalty provided in the law is deportation back to China.

What Deportation Will Cost.

Taking the lowest estimate—that given by the census people, 107,500—and the average cost of shipping each Chinaman from his present place of residence in the United States to some port in the Flowery Kingdom at $100, the enforcement of the law would involve an expenditure of $10,750,000.

The sum appropriated for this little programme is imposed by the statute upon the secretary of the treasury and the attorney general, and $50,000 is appropriated for the purpose. The additional $10,700,000 required for transportation purposes must be paid by the next congress if the law is to be enforced on May 5 next, for it is made evident that the Chinese have not the slightest intention of attempting to comply with its provisions.

Mr. Mills and Tariff Revision.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Senator Roger Q. Mills, of Texas, author of the famous Mills tariff bill of the Fifteenth congress, declines to talk about an extra session of congress, but expresses his views as to what should be done in the matter of reforming the tariff.

"I am now, as I have always been," he said, "in favor of putting all raw material on the free list, and putting only a revenue duty on the manufactured article. There should be a revision of the tariff on broad lines. It should be remodeled from top to bottom. Of course it will take time to do all this. The man who has a constituency that raises wool wants you to keep your hands off him. The steel rail man wants you to pass him and make up your revenue from the lumber district, and the lumber district representative urges the house to look to the coal district, and so to the end of the hundreds of articles that go to make up the list. To attempt to do the work by means of bills that operate in one direction will not bring about the reform the people demand. It must be systematic and include the whole scheme of taxation. When it is to be commenced is a matter in which I have no voice. That rests alone with the president, and I have no doubt he will do what is best for the country."

Holman Against an Extra Session.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Congressman Holman, of Indiana, chairman of the house committee on appropriations, has returned here. He does not favor an extra session. He says:

"Extra sessions are rare, and have only been called on occasions of great emergency. That condition does not seem to confront us now. I am not prepared to say that there will be a deficit that will demand such a session of congress. I see by the papers that there will be perhaps $25,000,000 in the treasury that will be available, outside of the $100,000,000 of reserve. If this coming session reduces expenditures as it ought to, that amount, together with the revenues, will run the government until the end of the fiscal year." Mr. Holman is of the opinion that the coming session will do little more than pass the appropriation bills.

The Calendars Ready for Congress.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The calendars of pending business of both senate and house for the second session have been printed ready for Monday next. The unfinished business of the senate is the antioption bill, which will remain the pending order every day until disposed of. There is no great measure before the house among its unfinished business.

THE EXHIBIT OF THE VATICAN.

Relics at Rome That Will Be Sent at the Chicago Fair.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Secretary of State Foster has designated Mr. J. C. Heywood as the agent of the United States to select from the Vatican museum and library relics appropriate to the discovery of America to be exhibited at the Columbian exposition. Mr. Heywood was selected on the suggestion of Cardinal Rampolla, the papal secretary of state. He is a resident of Rome and a former citizen of Philadelphia, where he was at one time a newspaper reporter.

The College of Cardinals will loan to the United States for exhibition at Chicago the originals of everything it may want out of the library and museum, except the records of the church. The colleges will, however, have facsimiles made of any documents desired. One of the most interesting documents in the exhibit will be the original bull of Pope Alexander VI dividing the new world between Spain and Portugal. This is known as the "bull of demarcation." Other exhibits of interest will be the letter from Ferdinand and Isabella to the pope announcing the discovery of the new world and a letter written by one of the cardinals on the divine right of kings to assume ownership of any countries they might discover.

MISS JULIA HALL FOUND.

She Was Captured at New Rochelle, N. Y., by a Search Party.

NEW CANAAN, Conn., Nov. 28.—Miss Julia Hall, who while insane wandered from home on Thanksgiving day, was found at New Rochelle, N. Y. A big posse of her fellow townsmen had scoured the neighborhood for her. She is thirty-three years old and the daughter of R. C. Hall, president of the New Canaan First National bank.

Proprietor Fowler, of the Huguenot hotel, in New Rochelle, recognized Miss Hall's photograph when it was shown to him.

She registered there on Thursday evening as Miss Jennie Harding, of Waterbury, Conn., and left early on Friday morning without taking breakfast.

When captured she was very tired and worn and simply said, "I've been visiting." That is about all that could be extracted from her.

She had been at Mount Vernon and surprise is expressed that the police of that place did not find her, though they had an accurate description of her. Members of the search party were probably close to her at times.

EX-SECRETARY BLAINE'S PLANS.

He Will Leave for Southern California About New Year's.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—James G. Blaine, Jr., said to a reporter for the United Press that his father was very much better, having been up, dressed and walking around his room during the day. He also said that his father will not leave the city much before New Year's day, when he will probably go to southern California, unless he changes his present plans. His exact destination is not yet fixed.

Dr. Scott Recovering.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Dr. Gardiner, the physician in attendance on the venerable Dr. Scott, President Harrison's father-in-law, said he thought that Dr. Scott would be up and moving around in three or four days. The patient, he says, displays a remarkable degree of vitality.

How Mr. Cleveland Passed Sunday.

EXMORE, Va., Nov. 28.—President-elect Cleveland arose at 5:30 a. m. Sunday, but did not attend services at the Rev. Mr. Sturgis' island church, as had been previously planned. About 2 p. m. Mr. Cleveland, accompanied by Messrs. Jefferson and Davis, took a drive along the beach in the clubhouse carryall for two hours.

The Brices in Webster's Old House.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Senator and Mrs. Brice, who leased the old Corcoran home on H street, have expended nearly $50,000 in refitting and redecorating. The house was originally owned by Daniel Webster, who transferred it to W. W. Corcoran, the banker. The Brices will entertain lavishly this winter.

She Says Salisbury Ruined Her.

PLAINFIELD, Conn., Nov. 28.—Miss Bertha Kinney, the daughter of the Rev. G. W. Kinney, pastor of the Baptist church, accuses E. E. Salisbury, of Moosup, of having effected her ruin. Mrs. Kinney was made insane by the news, and the heart broken father has tendered his resignation as pastor of the church.

CROUSE CASH IN COURT

Indications That a Widow May Contest the Will.

NONE KNEW HE HAD BEEN MARRIED

New York Lawyers Are Said to Represent a Woman Who Claims to Be the Syracuse Millionaire's Widow—His Fair Friend at Saratoga Called Him Edgar.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 28.—Whether or not Daniel Edgar Crouse was secretly married and a widow and son will claim his $10,000,000 is as much of a mystery as ever. It is known beyond all doubt that Mr. Crouse did keep company a few years ago with a beautiful lady. John Kennedy, a former coachman for the Crouse family, states that about six years ago he was taken by Edgar and his father John to Saratoga to drive their swell turnouts during the fashionable season.

The Crouses stopped at the Clarendon hotel and drove together nearly every pleasant afternoon. After taking the old gentleman back to the Clarendon the coachman was always directed to drive to the Windsor hotel, where a beautiful lady came out, accompanied by her maid, to the victoria and enjoyed a whirl over the avenues in Mr. Crouse's company. She called him Edgar, but he always avoided mentioning her name, so that the coachman never heard it.

Sent Her to Europe.

Information is gained from an authentic source that this lady, who is now believed to be preparing to contest the will, was sent by Mr. Crouse to Europe, and that documents exist to show that he sent her drafts to London as well as to New York. It is also said that Mr. Crouse agreed to marry her upon her father's death, and that she holds letters in his handwriting to this effect. She may be an adventuress, but appearances do not point that way.

Louis Marshall, the attorney who represented the New York attorneys when the will was read, will say nothing except that the New York lawyers are prominent in the profession and would not hazard their reputation by presenting a false case. It is reported that there will be another contestant to the will in the person of Mrs. Kate Crouse Leslie, of Utica. The latter lived for many years at the Crouse residence, and claims to have been legally adopted by John Crouse as his daughter. She married General Leslie. She would be the legal heir to the whole estate if she were legally adopted—that is, if Edgar Crouse did not leave a widow.

Shot the Editor Dead.

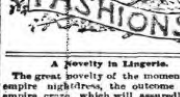
JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 28.—Charles H. Pratt, editor of The Daily Leader, was shot and instantly killed at Gainesville by Thornton B. Stringfellow, the alleged cause being Pratt's intimacy with Mrs. Stringfellow. It is supposed that in returning home the murderer found Pratt and his wife together and shot him through an open window. Stringfellow's statement was corroborated by his weeping and hysterical wife. He was placed under arrest, but is at large. Pratt leaves a young wife.

Death of Cardinal Lavigerie.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—Cardinal Lavigerie is dead. He gained worldwide fame not only as one of the most distinguished prelates of the Roman church, but more especially on account of his successful efforts to reconcile the papacy to the French republic. To his efforts are largely due the measures taken by civilized nations to suppress the slave trade in Africa.

Damages for a Ram's Work.

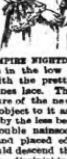
GREENFIELD HILL, Conn., Nov. 28.—Miss Adelia W. Hubbell, who was nearly butted to death by a ram belonging to eccentric Miss Agnes Murray in May, 1887, has secured judgment in the courts for $1,750 damages.



A Novelty in Lingerie.

The great novelty of the moment is the empire nightdress, the outcome of the empire craze, which will assuredly dominate the winter fashions. Here is an empire nightdress, a pretty and typical model. The gown is of nainsook, trimmed with valenciennes lace. The upper part is cut in empire bodice, which was in vogue at the time of Waterloo.

This little arrangement is carried out in nainsook bouillonnes, alternated with bands of valenciennes insertion, arranged in graceefully curved lines, and it is edged with narrow valenciennes lace.



EMPIRE NIGHTDRESS.

The pointed nainsook yoke, which fills in the low empire bodice, is covered with the pretty neck frill of deep valenciennes lace. The neck or Toby frill is a feature of the newer lingerie, but those who object to it as inconvenient can replace it by the less becoming arrangement of a double nainsook frill bordered with lace and placed edge upward. This frill would descend the yoke to the empire bodice, diminishing in a point, and lapping over itself below the neck.

Making a Good Living.

Doctor (to patient who has come two miles to the doctor's office in order to save an extra cent of a visiting fee)—Good gracious, man, you are not fit to be out of the house! Go home at once, and I will call in a couple of hours and prescribe for you.—Life.

Damaged in Transit.

A young shop assistant dropped his pen on some collars that he was making up in parcel for a country customer. Prospective complaints on the part of the said customer, and a wigging from his employer—what was to be done? A luminous idea germinated in the fertile brain of the counter man. He wrote as follows at the bottom of the delivery note:

"You will find some of the collars slightly soiled. This is no fault of ours—it was done on the journey."—Petit Parisien.

WOMAN AND HOME.

HAPPINESS AS WELL AS RESPONSIBILITIES OF MOTHERS.

The Unheard of Business Woman—A Home for Every Woman—Dust and Disease. Truth About Old Maids—Tossing Children—Household Economy.

To be the mother of rosy, rollicking children, what happier fate could one desire? And yet there do those who "out-Herod" Herod in their determination to evade the responsibility of child rearing. "How I envy you your children!" said a kind hearted Christian woman to me, "but, oh, I never could assume such a responsibility!"

Responsibility? Fiddlesticks! What a flimsy covering for selfishness, in most cases. There is plenty of responsibility, but the thought is made too great a burden—too great a bugbear. When a mother has done all she can for her children—by example, precept and prayer—may she not leave the result to an All Wise Father, who knoweth and doeth all things well?

Aged mothers will tell you that as no time did they enjoy life so well as when their children were about their knees. We who are enjoying that period, with all the labor it entails, are inclined to be skeptical.

May they not be right? Best they are in many respects. Best for influence; best for opportunities; best for planting of good seed for the reaping by and by. And we mothers have not far to look for the mission. The work is here. Then let Baxter Dale it with heartfelt earnestness, and with none of the feeling of I-can't-shoulder-the-responsibility.

For the first ten years of a child's life humanity is everything to it, and in those years must most of the so called training be done. For this I do not feel myself capable of giving any rules. My own shortcomings are manifest, but there is one thing I would like to say—send the children to bed happy. This may seem a small thing in itself, but its results for good are infinite.

At this hour the noisy play is hushed and they are ready to talk over the doings of the day reflectively; tender thoughts creep in unbidden and the plastic mind retains easily any impression. See to it then that no attendant fills their little heads with ghost stories or other like recitals. If possible attend them yourself, and if there are little ones, lie down beside them, and with their clingling arms about your neck tell them tender, loving stories until their eyes close in sleep; you will feel well repaid and can go about your work with a lighter heart.

There are mothers and mothers, loving, sympathetic, spiritual mothers, and others who are mere physical mothers, and outside the ranks are those who hold back from the responsibility.

A childless wife! Speak the word softly; they know not what they miss. To be one with the Creator in the God given power of motherhood, to feel that we are objects of his special care, is it not sufficient? Or are these furnishes the same that are [illegible] of those—[illegible] teacher, housekeeper or writer—for we can say in a general way, that we can always make it to your interest to buy your Dry and Fancy Goods, Carpets, Lace and Chenille Curtains, etc., at EDSALL'S.

When We Go Off and Die.

The road is rough and rocky,
The road that leads to fame,
And the way is strewn with skeletons
Of those who have gone lame
And have fallen by the wayside.
The world will pass you by,
Nor pause to read your manuscript
Till you go off and die.

Your friends of course will print your stuff,
And tell you it is good,
And will quote from it at "More Anon,"
They'll say, "I wish you would."
They just about appreciate,
And yet I know not why
They all forget you want to eat
Till you go off and die.

You'll find no outsiders here below
To help you bear your cross;
You'll have to eat your mutton plain,
Without your sauce of sass;
And when you read down to dessert
You'll find a dearth of pie.
And you'll wish you knew what pudding is
Till you go off and die.

But there's a consolation
In the thought that when we're dead,
If we have written something good
Our efforts will be read,
And friends will plant forget-me-nots,
And come and sit and sigh,
And irrigate our graves with tears
When we go off and die.

Dust, Upholstery and Disease.

Householders in furnishing would do well to remember that the ordinary practice of covering a floor with carpet is not without its disadvantages, even its dangers. The particles which give substance to the pure search light of a sunbeam as it penetrates the window pane are of the most varied character. Harmless as are very many of them, there are also many more possessed of true morbific energy and capable of almost unlimited multiplication. Any one can see, therefore, how, when sheltered in dusty woolen haughings, chair upholstery and carpets, they render these articles veritable harbors of disease. The less we have of such the better, especially in bedrooms.

Some practical deductions naturally suggest themselves. As to curtains and carpets, it is but rational that they should as a rule consist of the smoothest and harder fabrics which will bear thorough and frequent brushing. If thicker floor cloths and rugs be used they should be in such size and arrangement that they can be readily taken up and beaten. It is but part of the same argument to say that as much of the floor as possible should be either varnished or laid with oilcloth, so as to allow of frequent cleansing. Cane and leather, for a like reason, are incomparably superior to the richest upholstery when we come to speak of general furniture.

Some perhaps may imagine that in making these observations we treat this matter too much as a hobby. Only one circumstance, however, is required in order to convince any such of their real and practical significance, and that is the actual presence of infectious disease. When this appears all forms of cumbrous comfort in the apartment must give place not merely to a freer and simpler arrangement, but even to bare, sunlit and airy desolation.—Lancet.

The Truth About Old Maids.

There never was a greater mistake than the prevailing notion that because a woman passes the first flush of youth without joining hands at the altar with some lord of creation she must be inevitably an undesirable creature that from henceforth will be called an old maid and made the subject of silly jest and thoughtless ridicule. I am the last woman talking to women, and men as well, we give as our candid opinion a rather pronounced statement, but one nevertheless which we implicitly believe to—namely, that no woman lives to the age of thirty-five without at least having one offer of marriage; therefore the silly notion that is coupled with the term "old maid" is entirely wrong.

A woman has her own reason for remaining single. It isn't because no man wants her, but rather because she does not perhaps choose to ally herself with such ones as have done her the honor to ask her, or may be there has been in her life some great disappointment, or a finding out before it is too late how much better it is to be even called an old maid than an unhappy wife.

Charming, attractive women, many there are who are still classed among the sour visaged, vinegary, elderly maidens, whom we are accustomed to seeing on the comic valentines, yet who perhaps, instead of mourning over their fate because they are not matrons rather than maids, could unfold many a heart story of love and romance to the gushing youngsters who, just starting out in life, think that to be an old maid is to be on the human bargain counter waiting for any chance purchaser.—Philadelphia Times.

Tossing Children.

The other afternoon I got into a car of the Sixth Avenue elevated road going up town. At the next station above where I entered the car a father, mother and a boy about five or six years old got into the same car. A seat was given to the mother, who made room for the boy beside her; after a time the father got a seat and tried to persuade the boy to come over to him. The boy very irritably refused, and with pouting lips sat down close to his mother.

A few stations farther on a seat beside the mother was vacated, and then the father changed his seat to the vacant one beside his child. Each myself, and the small boy was persuaded to kneel between them and look out of the window. No sooner was he comfortably settled than the father began amusing the child by pulling the boy's ears, pinching his cheeks, shoving his elbows off the window sill and pulling his feet. At every manifestation of anger or impatience the father would throw his head back and laugh. At last he made the boy cry, and his enjoyment reached a climax as he now keep saying in an audible whisper, "Cry baby! cry baby!"

The poor little fellow was a painful object. He was very thin, had tiny bones, and was evidently worn out nervously, and without doubt his physical condition was due entirely to the thoughtless cruelty of his father, a big, healthy, careless, fun loving man and had almost written monster—selfish and dense to every finer emotion. The patient expression on the mother's face as she mechanically soothed the boy proved that the experience was too common to evoke a comment in her.—Christian Union.

Economical Household Purchases.

It is well understood, or it should be, that discretion in buying and skill in cooking are both vital to true economy. The woman who should go to a dry goods store, and, without specifying what particular kind of cloth she wanted, tell the salesman to give her enough of the best woolen goods for a dress, and who should then hand the material over to her dressmaker with the instruction to make it well and trim it beemingly, might or might not be well dressed. It is fairly certain that she would not be economically dressed. Yet thousands of women give orders after precisely this fashion to their butchers and cooks, and are then despondent because their bills are so large.

It is a primary duty of the housekeeper to understand the relative values of the goods, and to know how they should be cooked to preserve their virtues. If the most expensive viands are desired, all right. Let them be so prepared that they shall justify their cost. They do not necessarily traverse the principles of true economy. But the most expensive viands, while they are likely to be the best for their particular purposes, are entirely out of place in the preparation of other equally valuable and equally toothsome dishes. Their use then becomes gross extravagance. If the housekeeper knows the character of each article of food that is bought, and devotes each to its proper use, she has mastered the great principle of dietetic economy.—American Analyst.

How to Clean Delicate Goods.

When the embroidered flannel skirts and blankets belonging to the infants of the household become somewhat soiled by little spots scattered here and there, it is a good plan to wash out the spots without putting the entire garment into the water. As usually laundered the beautiful embroideries that have taken many hours are half ruined after their first contact with water, and if much soiled had best be sent for a dry cleaning. When only a little soiled, it is better to wash over a hook and pour boiling hot water over them until they disappear.

"Then you—" Oh, I'm in a great hurry!

PROCLAMATION COURT OF NEW JERSEY.

On the application of Elias R. Pope and John W. Harrison, administrators of Job Male, deceased, for sale of lands to pay debts. Order to show cause.

Elias R. Pope and John W. Harrison, administrators of Job Male, deceased, having exhibited to this Court, under oath, a just and true account of the personal estate and debts of said deceased, whereby it appears that the personal estate of said Job Male is insufficient to pay his debts, and requesting the aid of the Court on the premises: It is on this first day of October, eighteen hundred and ninety-two, ordered that all persons interested in the lands, tenements, hereditaments and real estate of said Job Male, deceased, appear before the Court at the Court House, in the city of Trenton, on the thirteenth day of December next, at ten o'clock a. m., to show cause why so much of the lands, tenements, hereditaments and real estate of the said Job Male, deceased, should not be sold as will be sufficient to pay his debts, or the residue thereof, as the case may require.

By the Court. ALEX. T. McGILL,
Ordinary.
