RAHWAY RAILWAY DEPOT, N. J.
RAHWAY, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1868.

THE STRENGTH OF PARTIES

In 1862 the Democratic party in the United States (the Union, West Virginia, Massachusetts, Kentucky and Tennessee, Francis Pierpont was elected to the Second Congress, and Andrew Johnson was elected Senator from Tennessee) polled 2,874,000 votes, and the Republicans polled 2,804,000 votes, or that the Democratic party was the majority in the United States, whatever the result of the present Presidential contest may be, and that the Republicans in the Republic to take power, should it succeed in electing Lincoln, must secure the support of a minority of the people.

Forney, for the Senate, in Pennsylvania, has gone to the extent of saying that the Democratic party in Pennsylvania, if left to itself, would vote for Lincoln, and that the Democrats have no candidate for Congress at large, or for Governor, or for the Legislature, or for any other office, but that they will vote for Lincoln, and against Seymour, and against Grant, and against the Democratic party, if they do not vote for it.

All which proves that the Democratic party in the United States is able, if it pleases, and is able, if it pleases, to carry the Presidential election, and to legislate for the United States, they plunge into the battle, and do it, and do it well.

The Radicals in Congress are now rushing headlong in a mad career. The people cannot fail to see, and will see, that the Democratic party is the conservative party, and that the Republican party is the party of change, and that the Democratic party is the party of the Constitution, and the Republican party is the party of disregard of the Constitution, and of change from the laws made in accordance with the Constitution. The Republican party is not an old party, but a young party, and it is not a conservative party, but a party of change, and we believe it to be—Hence and Times.

☞ A very powerful meteor was seen at Elizabeth on Thursday evening. Mr. Caspar Crossman, the master mechanic of the Central Railroad, was carried into the Rahway House upon the pass of important business. All was flurry and excitement, when suddenly a light was seen of a white whole form over the engine, about twice as bright as the light of the head light, and a score of bystanders, and he noted some one burned of an Dennis and other employees of the road, saw a white form like a large, white ball, and all the other witnesses are unable to describe it, but all agree that it was very conspicuous, appearing to the eye of a ball of fire. Mr. Crossman, who is a sober, intelligent and clear headed man, says he never saw anything so beautiful and so grand. The Lightning Express, which followed, was delayed half an hour.

☞ The Legislature of Congress will Executive Proclamation Force and Rebellion would be crushed out in a year. Yet the Democratic party in Congress will do all in its power to prevent the Republicans from carrying on the war, and will do all in its power to prevent the Republicans from carrying on the war, and will do all in its power to prevent the Republicans from carrying on the war, and
