

SHREWSBURY FARM SOLD.

MRS. L. E. ATKINSON'S PLACE BOUGHT BY WALKER HUGHES.

Vanderburg Man who Recently Sold His Farm to Marlboro Hotel Proprietor Buys Property of 63 Acres Between Shrewsbury and Tinton Falls for $12,000—Mrs. Atkinson Buys Eatontown House.

Mrs. L. E. Atkinson has sold her farm near Shrewsbury to Walker Hughes of Vanderburg. The new owner will take possession next week. He recently sold his farm at Vanderburg to William Dugan, a hotel proprietor at Marlboro. Mr. Dugan expects to move on the property next March.

The farm which Mrs. Atkinson sold to Mr. Hughes is about a mile from Shrewsbury village on the south side of the road. It comprises about 63 acres. A house and the usual outbuildings are on the place and they are in good condition. Hawkins Bros. made the sale. The price was $12,000.

The property is frequently known as the Conover farm, it having been owned and occupied many years by a family of that name. Before it was sold by the Conovers it belonged to a man named Little. The Little family were among the earliest residents of Shrewsbury. The house is very old. It was probably built more than 100 years ago. It is constructed of oak timbers hewn and shaped with axes. In spite of its great age the house is still substantial.

Hope's road, a road running from the Tinton Falls road to the Eatontown road, forms the eastern boundary of the farm. On the west the property joins Jacob C. Shurtz's farm, which is owned by Arthur W. Shurtz. On the south it is bounded by the Drummond farm. The land on the Atkinson farm comprises some of the most fertile soil in Shrewsbury township.

HISTORICAL PLACE SOLD

AMORY HASKELL BUYS LUFBURROW MILL PROPERTY.

He will Add a Game Preserve of Fifteen Acres of Land on the Whipoorwill Valley Road to His Estate—Bought Place from Oscar Hesse.

The Lufburrow mill property on Whipoorwill road in Middletown township was bought last week by J. Amory Haskell from Oscar Hesse of Red Bank. The property comprises fifteen acres. Mr. Haskell will add it to his estate, which it adjoins. He will stock it with wild ducks, pheasants and fish and will use it as a game preserve. How much Mr. Hesse received for the property has not been made public, but it is said that the land sold for $250 an acre.

Four powder magazines and a house are on the place. The magazines will be torn down. Mr. Hesse had the agency for smokeless powder made by companies in England, Germany, Austria and Belgium, and he used the magazines as storage for these magazines. Powder from these magazines was sent to various parts of the United States, and Mr. Hesse did an enormous business till the outbreak of the big war. Since the war broke out shipments of powder from Europe have ceased, all of the ammunition on that continent being needed for the titanic conflict.

The sale of the property is of historical interest. The land is complete with natural and picturesque beauties, and it is one of the most captivating nooks in Monmouth county. More than 200 years it was owned by the Lufburrow family, it having been granted in 1628 by Governor Carter to a member of that family. Through the property flows a brook which has been dammed for an ice pond. In the early days of Monmouth county this brook was used to supply the power for operating a grist mill. It is on account of the mill having been on the property so many years and on account of the land having been owned for such a long period by the Lufburrows that the place is known as the Lufburrow mill property.

Many legends about colonial and revolutionary times are told in connection with this property. It is stated that during the revolutionary war the mill on the property was turned by a raiding party of English soldiers and that the miller who owned the property was killed. The pond is fringed with birch trees, and on the shore of the pond is a one bench, the seat of which was used as a wheel to grind grain in revolutionary days. This bench is often used by picnickers. The pond is in the famous Whipoorwill valley, and in account of the depth of the hollow in which it is located the ice is always two or three inches thicker than it is in other ponds. From the pond the water falls over a dam twelve feet high.

Leonard Street House Sold.

Louis Gettis has bought a house and lot on Leonard street from Mrs. John McNeil of Red Bank and Mrs. Thomas McCormick of Shrewsbury as an investment. Mrs. McNeil and Mrs. McCormick are sisters. The lot is 10x100 feet and extends to Earl street. The house has six rooms. The sale of the property was made by Hawkins Bros.

New Fair Haven House.

Theodore Morson of New York is building a house on Pearl street in Fair Haven for the use of his mother, Mrs. Florence Morson. It will be of the semi-bungalow type and will cost $1,800. Mr. Morson, who is a contractor, is doing the work himself.

Grange Fair.

Raritan grange will hold a fair and upper September 30th and October 1st, on the yacht club grounds, Keyport. Supper for the town people, range members and friends, Thursday evening from 6:30 to 7:30. Friday evening supper for the Keyport remen. No supper served outside grounds. Chairman.

MOVING A HOUSE.

Harry Watts Making Changes on His Shrewsbury Avenue Land.

Harry Watts is moving his house on the eastern side of Shrewsbury avenue to another part of his property, and he will build another house in its place. The house which is being moved will face Sunset avenue. This street east of Shrewsbury avenue has been staked out, but has never been built. The last occupant of the house was John Feeney. Thompson & Matthews are doing the moving. The contract for the new house has not yet been awarded.

RAZOR DRILL AT PARTY.

FIFTY GENTLEMEN AND FOUR LADIES IN A BATTLE.

Louis Harget, One of the Fighters, Was Badly Cut—Ollie Wilkerson Arrested for Selling Beer and Whiskey.

Fifty or more colored gentlemen and four colored ladies fought each other with razors and other weapons Friday night at a pig roast at Mrs. Margaret Ball's at Nutswamp. As a result of the battle, Louis Harget is laid up with cuts on his throat, shoulders and face. A warrant is out for the arrest of John Wilkerson, who is alleged, did the cutting. Wilkerson skipped at the fight. In addition to the pig roast, dancing, music and singing were part of the festivities. Most of the guests made frequent trips to Ollie Wilkerson's beer and whiskey stand, and as the evening wore on the party became more and more hilarious.

John Wilkerson was not at the pig roast when it started. When he put in appearance the festivities were well under way. Wilkerson announced in a loud tone that he could lick anybody in the crowd and that he wanted a fight. He said he didn't care who fought against him, but that he was bound and determined to get in a scrap with some one. Failing to get an antagonist by making remarks of this character, Wilkerson then became abusive and called the other guests bad names. This started a free-for-all fight. Some of the guests at the pig roast were adherents of Wilkerson and some were against him. Wilkerson had Harget for his opponent.

William H. Layton, a Red Bank lawyer, and an observer of the fight. Some Red Bank colored people had hired a team of horses and a farm wagon from him to go to the festivities, and Mr. Layton was the driver. He says that the fight looked to him like pictures of a European battlefield. He says that five different groups were engaged in battle. Razors flashed in the moonlight before his eyes, and groans and shouts of victory added to the warlike aspect of the scene. In addition to razors, beer bottles were used as weapons. One man pulled a fence post out of the ground and cracked other men over their heads with the post. Mr. Layton says that four ladies were in the battle. He says that the ladies were as adept in the use of razors and fists as the men. He says that he saw one lady strike a gentleman on the point of his chin and knock him insensible. The fighters stopped from sheer exhaustion. The battle began on the porch of the house and gradually moved toward the road. When it finished most of the fighters were in the road.

Blood was streaming from many faces, but Harget was the only man who was seriously hurt. For a time it was thought that he would die. John Wilkerson skipped out immediately after the fight. Ollie Wilkerson was arrested by Detective John Smith. Ollie had a hearing before Justice Badeau and was held in $500 bail to await the action of the grand jury. He tried to get Mrs. Ball, his mother-in-law, to become his bondsman, but Mrs. Ball said that if his bail was only two cents she would not go bail. She said that Ollie had a beer and whiskey on the grounds without her permission and that he was responsible for all the trouble which had ensued. Ollie, being unable to get any one to go his bail, was sent to the county jail.

HOUSE TO COST $12,000

IT IS BEING BUILT ON THE COPELAND PROPERTY.

Sherwood E. Ray of Danbury, Connecticut, is the Owner and He is Building the House as an Investment—Alterations to Old House.

Sherwood E. Ray of Danbury, Conn., is building a house as an investment on the Copeland property on Riverside Drive, which he bought a short time ago. This property is frequently known as the Allen place, it having been owned and occupied a number of years by the late Charles Allen. Part of the original Allen property is now occupied by Mr. Allen's son, Charles Allen. The latter sold it to Charles C. Copeland, and he in turn disposed of it last spring to Mr. Ray.

The property comprises 7 1/4 acres of land and is on the north side of Riverside Drive. It extends to the river. Many changes have been made to an old house on the property, and Mr. Ray will use this house for a summer residence. He has rebuilt the bulkhead along the river and has put up a boat house.

Ground was broken for the new house last week. It will have eleven rooms and will be provided with all modern improvements. Mr. Ray is a contractor and he is doing the work himself.

BIG REAL ESTATE DEAL.

Campbell Estate at Long Branch Traded for Florida Farm.

One of the biggest real estate deals that has taken place at Long Branch recently is the exchange of the former home of the late James Campbell for a farm of 107 acres at Ormond, Florida. The Campbell place is said to be the highest point in Long Branch. It contains five acres of ground, a three story house and stables. The new owner is James M. Craig, who is connected with the Metropolitan life insurance company.

New Westside House.

William A. Clayton is building a house as an investment on Westside avenue at a cost of $9,500. The house will be 22x26 feet and will have six rooms and a bathroom. It will be provided with modern improvements. The house will be completed about the first of November. William White is the builder.

Samuel Sabath's New House.

The work of rebuilding and enlarging the J. Alvin Throckmorton homestead on the river bank at East Red Bank was completed last week. The house is owned by Mrs. Thomas S. Hubbard. Next month it will be occupied by Samuel Sabath, who now lives in another of Mrs. Hubbard's houses on East Front street.

Two New Houses.

William O'Brien is building two houses, one on the corner of Westside avenue and Clifford place and the other on Clifford place. Each will be 16x36 feet and will cost $2,000. Each will have six rooms. Scott & Scott are the builders, and the houses will be ready for use by the middle of October.

Luke Longhead says there are mighty few wants that he can't satisfy.—Advertisement.

COMING RACING EVENTS.

BIG MEET TO BE HELD AT RUMSON COUNTRY CLUB.

Force of Thirty Men Putting Finishing Touches on Two Race Courses—First Meet Will Be Held Saturday—Old Days Recalled.

One of the biggest racing meets held hereabouts since the time when Monmouth Park was enjoying its palmier days will take place Saturday on the grounds of the Rumson country club on the Rumson road, near Oceanic and Little Silver. A force of thirty men is constructing two courses under the supervision of experts in this line of work. A grandstand capable of seating 300 persons is being built by Charles V. Shropshire of Seabright. It will have twelve boxes, and all of these have already been sold.

The meet will be held by the Rumson hunt and steeplechase association, which was incorporated under the laws of New Jersey a few days ago with Howard S. Borden, Charles D. Halsey and G. Jason Waters as the incorporators. The officers of the association are:

President—Lewis S. Thompson.
Vice president—Howard S. Borden.
Secretary and treasurer—G. Jason Waters.

The racing meet will be in charge of six stewards, they being Mr. Borden, Mr. Waters, Mr. Halsey, Charles Hurl, H. L. Herbert and W. Strother Jones. It will be the nearest approach to the old Monmouth Park days that this county has ever experienced. Forty-nine horses owned by 25 men have been entered. Some of the owners live in New Jersey, but most of them are residents of Long Island and Pennsylvania. There will be six running races, two steeplechase events and two contests on a quarter mile track. The steeplechase course has a circumference of one mile and a quarter and the flat track covers a distance of half a mile. The topography of the land lends itself to the construction of the two race courses, and there will not be nearly so much work necessary as is ordinarily the case in making race tracks. The cost of holding the meet will be $4,000. A request from the association for guarantors has met with a ready response, seventy persons having pledged themselves to make up whatever deficit is incurred. From present indications, however, the members of the association do not anticipate any deficit. They have made the price of admission lower than is charged at any race meet in the country, and a large attendance from all parts of the county and also from places outside of the county is looked for. A large area of land is being put in condition for automobile parking space.

Of the $4,000 to be expended in holding the meet, $1,700 will be used for prizes for the owners of the winning horses. The races will not be ridden by regular jockeys, but will be guided by men whose technical title is "gentlemen jockeys." Among turfmen this title is generally understood to denote amateur jockeys who ride simply for the pleasure which they derive from the races. They receive no pay for their services, although some of them are rated as being equally as capable as regular jockeys. The races will be under the sanction of the hunts committee of the national steeplechase and hunt association. The stakes on all the leading tracks of this country are under the auspices of this association. George W. Gall of New York, who is probably the leading turf authority in the United States, will be the racing secretary.

The grounds will be policed by Red Bank cavalry troop. The troop performed similar work at the recent two-day entertainment on the fair grounds in Middletown township, and under the leadership of Capt. R. V. R. H. Stout it performed very creditable service. The sale and giving of tickets on the grounds will be managed by M. Louis Brown, an officer of the troop.

The racing meet will be run off in picturesque surroundings. Near the courses is a clubhouse costing upwards of a million dollars. The grounds are dotted with picturesque valleys and lakes and with hundreds of acres of green sward which are used by golfers. As a setting for this picture the South Shrewsbury forms a semi-circle around the club property. The racing association plans to make the races a permanent country fixture with at least two meets a year.

Plays Written at Red Bank.
The vaudeville act, "Back to Montreal," which was written by Clifford B. Red Bank, began its second season at Red Bank, and was played at York, Pa., and Reading, Pa. "The Plot That Failed," another play written by Mr. Ivins, began its third season at the Lincoln theater at Chicago a few days ago.

Norway Maple, the Peer of Shade Trees.

The hardy Norway Maple is peculiarly adapted for decorative purposes, naturally symmetrical in shape, with its rich green foliage, it is eagerly sought for by landscape gardeners and those wishing to beautify their grounds as the most acceptable adjunct to the lawn beautiful.

When properly grown, these trees are prolific in fiber roots, are easily transplanted, and practically require no attention after being set out.

Trees that have been grown in native soil, being fully acclimated, are the most desirable for transplanting as the development and growth is less liable to be retarded and the first season brings out the foliage in all its luxuriant beauty.

A. W. Chappell has made a study of the Norway Maple and has probably the finest grove in Monmouth county. It has now become necessary to thin out his grove and for this reason Mr. Chappell will dispose of a limited number of these beautiful shade trees, rich in fiber roots, of hardy growth and symmetrical appearance, at prices ranging from $3.50 to $7.00 each, which is about one-half their value.

This is an exceptional opportunity for anyone wishing trees for decorative purposes. November is the month to transplant, but those wishing trees should make their selection as early as possible so that the beautiful foliage may be seen.

For particulars address Mr. A. W. Chappell, 14 Broad street, Red Bank.—Advertisement.

Biker Hurt in Collision.

Donald Johnson of Shrewsbury was riding his bicycle Thursday night when he was struck by an automobile owned by Edwin P. Thompson of Maple avenue. Mr. Johnson was knocked off his wheel and his head was cut open. It required two stitches to close the wound. The accident occurred at the corner of Broad street and Bergen place.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONVENTION.

Record Breaking Attendance at the Presbyterian Church.

The largest Sunday-school convention ever held in Monmouth county took place Thursday at the Presbyterian church at Red Bank. It was attended by 453 delegates and 76 visitors. In the county are 144 Sunday-schools, and 65 were represented. The program as printed in a previous issue of The Register was carried out. Luncheon and supper was served by a committee of women of the Presbyterian church. Next year's convention will be held at St. Luke's Methodist church at Long Branch.

TRUCK THROUGH BRIDGE

AUTO AND SIX TONS OF BEER DANGLED NEAR WATER.

Truck Broke Through Planking of Hubbard's Bridge, and "Prohibition" Asbury Park Had to Wait to Have Its Thirst Relieved.

A big automobile truck weighing seven tons and loaded with six tons of beer broke through the planks of Hubbard's bridge Thursday night. An iron girder beneath the bridge flooring was all that kept the truck and its burden of beer from going into the river. The rear wheels of the truck rested on the girder, and the front wheels rested on the bridge.

The truck belonged to E. D. McAllister & Co. of New York. It left New York Thursday morning for Asbury Park. Asbury Park is supposed to be a dry town, but it is only dry in name. It is the thirstiest town in the county, and the narrow escape which the beer had from being dumped in the river is said to have caused no end of anxiety to a considerable portion of the inhabitants of the "prohibition" seshore resort.

Before the truck went through the bridge, it was stuck from one till three o'clock on the Tramp Hollow road. Owing to the fact that Cooper's bridge was being repaired the truck had to go over the Tramp Hollow road. Quigley's bridge on this road was damaged by the truck, one of the girders of the bridge being broken. This bridge and Hubbard's bridge were built before the advent of automobile trucks and they were not constructed to carry such a heavy weight.

Mr. McAllister was driving and he had a companion. When the truck got on the bridge the structure creaked and swayed and gave other evidences of being unable to sustain the weight. Mr. McAllister turned on all the power in an effort to get across the bridge before it gave way. When the planks broke he and his companion jumped out of the car. It was fortunate that the bridge gave way at a place where it was supported by an iron girder. Only a few of these girders are under the bridge, and they are at intervals of forty feet apart. If the truck had gone through the bridge at any other place, many above one of these girders nothing would have saved it from going into the river.

The truck was placed back on the bridge late Friday afternoon by Thompson & Matthews. Men in the employ of this firm worked at the job all day. Two heavy planks were chained to the rear wheels of the automobile and heavy worm jacks were placed on the bridge under the planks. The jacks were operated by hand and they gradually raised the planks and the truck. It was a dangerous job to perform, but it was done without mishap. The bottom and rear of the truck were damaged so badly that the car would not run on its own power. The automobile was taken to a garage to be repaired. The beer was loaded on another truck and taken to Asbury Park, where it is said that it received an enthusiastic welcome.

Twenty-eight planks and 24 beams which were used to support the planks were broken. Matthews Bros. are repairing the damage. They expect to have the job completed the first of next week. The repairs to Cooper's bridge have been finished and the bridge was reopened on Friday.

WON RACE WITH DEATH.

Percy Straus's Son Rushed on Special Train for Operation in Denver.

Percy Straus, Jr., was rushed by his father to Denver on a special train from Albuquerque, New Mexico, last Wednesday night and arrived in time to undergo an operation for an abscess on his neck, which is believed to have saved his life. The special covered 528 miles in less than twelve hours.

Mr. Straus, who has a country residence in Middletown township, was on a pleasure trip with his son when the boy was taken suddenly ill. He was believed to have been suffering from spinal trouble, and doctors said his life could not be saved without an immediate operation. On arrival at Denver the boy was taken to a hospital and the abscess was removed from his neck. The boy began to improve immediately after the operation.

Lost Three Horses in a Week.

Patrick Carton of Everett lost two horses and a mule last week. One horse died of spinal meningitis, and the other died from injuries which it received while it was being extricated from a bog hole. The mule stumbled and fell in a heap of potato vines and broke its neck.

Bought Eight Cars of Cattle.

Frank Marx of Shrewsbury returned last week from Canada, where he bought several hundred cattle, enough to fill eight freight cars. Some of the cattle will be butchered, but most of them will be driven through the country in herds and sold to farmers.

Stole Meat, Cream and Rum.

A thief broke into the kitchen of T. Elwood Snyder's hotel at Eatontown on Saturday night by cutting out the wire part of a screen door. The intruder got two roast beefs, two bottles of cream and two bottles of rum from the ice box.

WATCH RED BANK GROW!

Above is shown a picture of a house which has just been completed on Hudson avenue for Jacob C. Delatash at a cost of $5,000. The house is occupied by Paul R. Radcliffe, the new superintendent of the Red Bank public schools, who moved into it in July, before it was completed, his work as superintendent making it necessary for him to be at Red Bank before school opened. The house has stucco enclosures and a roof of red asbestos shingles. It has six rooms and a bath room. A large sun porch, enclosed in glass, is on the south side of the house. Mr. Delatash, who is an architect, drew the plans and had charge of the construction of the house.

NEVER WAS A DEMOCRAT.

Capt. Irwin Says He's Never Been Guilty of That Offense.

Capt. Charles P. Irwin, who is a candidate for councilman on the Republican ticket, says there is no truth in the report that he was once a Democrat. The captain says he is not a rock-ribbed Republican; that he has at times voted for Democrats; but that he has never done anything to deserve the reputation of being a Democrat. Henry de la Motte, who is Mr. Irwin's running mate, was until very recently a Democrat and was a member of the Democratic executive committee.

AUTO SMASHES WINDOW.

WOMAN BACKS CAR INTO DICK-OPF'S STORE.

The Car Was Driven by Mrs. F. E. Larsen of Seabright—It Struck Dickopf's Store and Scraped the Front of Moody's Shop.

One of the show windows of Joseph Dickopf's store was smashed Monday morning when an automobile driven by Mrs. F. E. Larsen of Seabright backed over the curb and ran into the building. The car backed on up in front of George A. Moody's store before it was stopped. One of the awning rods on Mr. Moody's store was broken and the woodwork under the window was scraped. One mud-guard on the automobile was bent and the top was torn. This was the only damage done to the auto.

Mrs. Larsen was backing her car into the curb in front of Dickopf's when the accident occurred. Her foot was on the foot pedal which controls the flow of gasoline into the engine. When the wheels of the automobile struck the curb the shock forced Mrs. Larsen's foot down on the foot pedal and this sent an increased supply of gasoline into the engine, causing the car to shoot backward rapidly. Before the brakes could be applied the car had struck the window. Mrs. Larsen had two children with her, but she and the children escaped injury. Mr. Moody was in the window of his store when the crash came and he scraped some skin off his arm in his haste to get out of the window.

ROYAL ARCANUM RALLY.

Social Time Enjoyed by Red Bank Lodge Last Thursday.

About 45 patrons were present at the annual fall rally of the Royal Arcanum lodge Thursday night in the lodge rooms. A fine musical program was carried out. The orchestra consisted of Professor Harold K. Allstrom, Daniel Applegate, Harold Nicman, Charles E. Nieman and Frank C. Storck. Vocal solos were given by Eugene Magee, Mr. Storck gave a violin solo and Mr. Applegate rendered a cello solo. George L. Lovett, principal of the Mechanic street school, gave an interesting address on "The Flag." William H. Elliott spoke on the parcels post, and E. Traver of the local post office, Mass., also gave an address. A luncheon consisting of steamed clams, sandwiches, coffee and cigars were served after the entertainment. A rehearsal for "Pinafore," a play to be given by the lodge, was held last night.

DISCOVERY SAVES HIS LIFE.

Former Atlantic Highlands Doctor Saved by New Serum.

Dr. Fred Hammond of Trenton, a former Atlantic Highlands man, was cured of spinal meningitis with a serum which he discovered recently. The first use of the serum was on a young girl at Philadelphia after all hopes of her recovery had been given up. Dr. Hammond tried his new discovery as a last resource, and it worked. As a result of working over the girl, Dr. Hammond contracted the disease. Before becoming seriously sick he left orders for the doctors to use his serum to cure him.

ASPHYXIATED BY GAS.

EATONTOWN MAN FOUND DEAD THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

Andrew Olmstead Had Gone to Bed with Gas Turned-on—The Death is Believed to Have Been Accidental—He was 81 Years Old.

Andrew J. Olmstead, an aged resident of Eatontown who lived alone, was found dead Thursday afternoon in a room in his home which was filled with gas fumes. The last time that any one had seen Mr. Olmstead alive was on Wednesday night when he was entering his house. On Thursday afternoon Mrs. Darius Vandemark of Eatontown, who is a daughter of Mr. Olmstead, went to her father's house with some ice cream and other delicacies. She noticed the smell of gas when near the house, and Dr. J. C. Rush was at once sent for. It was some time before entrance to the house could be gained as the doors were locked on the inside with bolts. The gas jet was turned on, and the fumes were so strong that every one who entered the house was made sick. The doctor said that Mr. Olmstead had been dead twelve to fourteen hours.

He was 81 years old and his hand was very shaky. It is generally believed that in turning off the gas his hand shook so much that he unintentionally turned it on again after he had put out the light. He had suffered from a cancer on his head for a number of years. His children wanted him to live with them, but he preferred to live alone, although he spent most of his time during the daytime with his children. Besides the daughter mentioned, he leaves two sons, Nelson Olmstead of Long Branch, and William Olmstead of Brooklyn.

Mr. Olmstead had lived at Eatontown about 35 years. Most of that time he was engaged in the shoemaking business. He retired three years ago. His wife died in 1913. He was a member of the Eatontown Advent church and was very active in church work. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon, and the sermon was preached by Elder L. B. Giles.

ART METAL CEILINGS.

A Number Have Been Put Up Recently in Houses Hereabouts.

A contract for art metal side walls and ceilings in the Reformed church was awarded last week to Daniel H. Cook.

A ceiling of similar material has been put in the living room of Mrs. Frank L. Blaisdell's house on Borden street, occupied by William Duncan.

Art metal side walls and ceilings have been installed by Mr. Cook in the kitchen of the Bowdoin Hazard house at Shrewsbury. This house is on Sycamore avenue and is owned by A. M. Beadleston of Seabright. It will be occupied after October 15th by Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Green, who were married a short time ago.

Miss Florence Wyckoff of Keyport has had a metal ceiling installed in the dining room of her house on Elizabeth street. This ceiling has an elaborate design of fleur de lis, with styling and grape vine frieze.

Fred L. Boaten.

The match race between Fred L. Boaten, owned by Luther & Stapleton of Red Bank, and Maxine Payne, owned by Steward Rogers of Asbury Park and driven by Henry Mulhenbrink of Long Branch, which was held at Freehold last Wednesday, was won by Maxine Payne in three straight heats. Fred L. was driven by Theodore Pope. In a match between the same horses held at Red Bank last July Fred L. was victorious.

Change on a Holmdel Farm.

The Ely place on the Keyport turnpike at Holmdel will be farmed next season by Howard Wagner. The farm is now occupied by John Grant, who will retire. Mr. Wagner the past few years has farmed John L. Ely's place on the Marlboro road at Holmdel.

Bicycle Stolen.

An Iver-Johnson bicycle belonging to Joseph Stet, an agent for the Prudential insurance company, was stolen last Thursday. Mr. Stet left the wheel in front of the Second national bank building, and when he went to get it, it was gone.

"Grippe left me in a weakened, run-down condition. I took three bottles of Vinol and am better and stronger in every way than I have been for years. I gladly recommend Vinol to sufferers from Grippe who need strength. It is the best tonic for run-down condition that I know."

(Name given on request.)
Vinol builds you up because it combines all the strengthening cod liver elements and tonic iron as well. It strengthens weak, run-down people, feeble old people and delicate children. Easy to take. Children love it. Your money will be returned if you are not satisfied that Vinol helped you.

FREEHOLD GIRL WEDS.

Miss Ethel G. Simonson Wedded to Manasquan Man Last Wednesday.

Miss Ethel G. Simonson, daughter of Edward Simonson of Freehold, was married last Wednesday to Lester J. Greville of Manasquan. The marriage took place in the Freehold Episcopal church, the ceremony being performed by Rev. John F. Millbank. Mrs. Frederick Hartman, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Edward J. Simonson, brother of the bride, was groomsmen. After the ceremony a reception was held at the Monmouth house, and the bride and groom then left for a short wedding trip. They will live at Freehold.

AN EXCITING CRUISE.

Three Men Thrown into Ocean at Asbury Park Friday Night.

Three employees of the Thanhauser film corporation, makers of moving picture films, were thrown into the sea at Asbury Park Friday night when a small boat in which they were seeking to land was upset. The men had made a thrilling night cruise from New Rochelle and thought they were landing on some Long Island beach. They mistook the point of Sandy Hook for the lower end of Manhattan Island. In the party were M. V. Norton, James Meyers and Oscar Stromberg. All three swam ashore.

Lands a Big Fish.

Jacob Wertheim of Long Branch caught a big tuna while fishing off Seabright last Friday. The fish weighed 286 pounds and was over 7 feet long. Mr. Wertheim used a rod and reel in catching the fish. Before he landed this fish Mr. Wertheim had a strike from a monster tuna, which probably weighed over 500 pounds. It carried away his tackle soon after striking.

SENT TO REFORM SCHOOL.

Eleven-Year-Old Boy Goes to Jamesburg at Mother's Request.

David Diamond, an eleven-year-old boy, was sent to the reform school at Jamesburg last week by Judge Lawrence. The commitment was ordered by the court with the sanction of the boy's mother, Mrs. Lena Fritz, who declared that kindness had failed to turn the boy from his wayward ways. The boy admitted having broken into a store and stealing $5.30 in cash. He also admitted having been arrested three times for theft, and he said that in each instance he was guilty of the charge. It was a pathetic scene when the boy's mother, with tears in her eyes, kissed him goodby as he was led away by an officer.

TRIED FOR DESERTION.

FORMER ASBURY PARK MAN ON TRIAL LAST WEEK.

Lewis Paduano, a Long Branch junk dealer, convicted of receiving stolen wire from boys—Gets Six Months for Carrying Weapons. William Colgan of Newark, formerly of Asbury Park, was tried at Freehold last Wednesday on a charge of deserting his wife. Mrs. Colgan said that in May, 1912, after having some trouble with her husband, she left him and went to the home of her mother, Mary A. Leming, in Ocean county. She said her husband had failed to contribute toward the support of herself and child. Charles E. Cook of Asbury Park, Colgan's lawyer, asked for a dismissal of the case on the ground that neither of the parties in the case was a resident of Monmouth county. Judge Lawrence allowed the case to go over until this week to give the prosecutor time to prepare an argument.

John Fowler of Asbury Park was sentenced to six months in the county jail after pleading guilty to carrying concealed weapons. Mrs. Jones pleaded guilty to stealing some articles of clothing from a room mate and she was paroled in custody of Probation Officer Houghton for six months. The woman had been in the county jail for several weeks.

Lewis Paduano, a Long Branch junk dealer, was twice convicted on charges of buying stolen copper wire from boys under sixteen years of age. The grand jury had handed up three indictments against him and two of these were tried separately, a conviction resulting in each case. Paduano will be arraigned for sentence later.

Bradley Beach House Wrecked.

The furnishings in a four-room house at Bradley Beach owned by Mrs. J. M. Gardner were found to be completely wrecked last Wednesday by Policeman Charles Poland. No one was in the building and the neighbors could not account for the condition of the place. Windows were broken and the doors had been cut down with an axe. All the furniture was destroyed. Even the stove was knocked to pieces.

Cubans Have New Catcher.

Paul Johnson of Lakewood has been signed as catcher for the Long Branch Cubans for next season and is now playing with that team. Johnson caught on the Lakewood high school team a few years ago and was considered one of the best catchers the East Jersey high school league had ever produced. He has worked with Acosta, the star twirler of the Cubans, in several games recently.

Dog Show at Asbury Park.

The first annual show of the Asbury Park kennel club was held at the beach casino at that place last Wednesday and Thursday. The success of the affair exceeded the expectations of those in charge. Dog fanciers from all over New Jersey and from other states as well exhibited their pets. The affair was managed by Harry Rushton, proprietor of the Wonderdick kennels at Asbury Park.

Changes to Station.

Several changes are under way at the railroad station at Matawan which will make the handling of traffic at that station easier. The track over which the through trains to Freehold are switched is being removed and the track between that and the station will be connected with the main southbound line. The baggage room will be moved further north.

Guards Want Inquiry.

The life savers of the Shark River station at Avon have asked a full inquiry into the accident in which Dr. George F. LaMont of Newark was drowned last week. The life savers have been severely criticised by some because of their alleged delay in launching the life boat. The life savers claim they did all they could to save the man.

Allentown Couple Wed.

Miss Jennie H. Gordon, daughter of James H. Gordon of Allentown, was married last Wednesday at her home to Run Livingstone, Allentown's postmaster. Rev. C. K. Newell performed the ceremony in the presence of several relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone have sailed on a wedding tour that will take them to Florida.

Speeds Away After Collision.

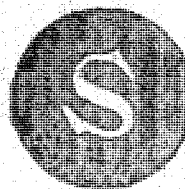

Automobiles owned by Morris Katz of Long Branch and Mrs. Elsie K. Penna collided at Bradley Beach Tuesday of last week. Katz claims that Mrs. Penna speeded away immediately after the collision without waiting to see what damage had been done. No one was hurt.

KEEP AWAY THOSE GRAY HAIRS WITH SAGE TEA

With Sulphur, it Restores Natural Dark Shade. Guaranteed.

Sage Tea, combined with Sulphur, has been the favorite remedy for generations for darkening gray hair. Instead of trying to make the mixture yourself, simply get a one bottle of Sulphur-Sage. Truists say it contains all of the virtues of the good old-fashioned preparation plus other valuable ingredients. No matter how long you have been gray, Sulphur-Sage will bring back the rich, dark shade evenly and perfectly, leaving it glossy, lustrous and youthful looking. Entirely unlike dyes; no one will know you are using Sulphur-Sage. It removes dandruff and keeps new gray hairs from showing. Guaranteed, or E. E. Vanderwey, 1212 Broadway, Newark, N. J., who sells Sulphur-Sage in Red Bank, will return your money. Clifton Chemical Co., Newark, N. J. Out of town orders filled by Parcel Post.

"Blind Faith" Versus Facts and the Paige

The overwhelming success and the acknowledged leadership of the Paige seven-passenger "Six-46" are the results of demonstrated facts.

The Paige triumph has been won through achievements of manufacture—proved out in the bitter battle of competition and on the hard field of practical service.

The faith of the motor-buying public in the Paige Six is not a "blind faith." It is a faith founded on the solid rock of facts—of promises more than fulfilled, of goods delivered.

Buyers of the Paige "Six-46" found that they had secured so much in value and quality that a new standard was set. There was no longer any question of "price class." The Paige became the standard of comparison regardless of price.

Paige "Six" Owners Say—

Owners of the Paige "Six-46" will tell you that they have found in it a degree of luxury, ease of riding and comfort they have never before experienced in any car at any price.

They will tell you this is due to Paige design and construction and to the generous Paige policy in values. They will specifically mention—

Abundance of power; flexibility and simplicity of control; and such features as the genuine Pantasote top, the body finish of Richelieu Blue which takes 24 days to complete, and the French glaze, hand-buffed leather.

Remember—you get all these great values in the Paige seven-passenger Six for $1295. Come in and see also the remarkable values of the new Paige five-passenger Six at $1095.

NEWS FROM KEANSBURG.

TWO NEW BUNGALOWS TO BE BUILT ON CENTER AVENUE.

Al. VanMater, the Baggage Master, Proves Himself a Hero—Firemen's Auxiliary to Give a Chicken Supper Next Saturday.

Mrs. Thomas Murphy of Center avenue has given the contract for two bungalows to S. F. Sikor. The bungalow will be frame construction and will have five rooms each. They will be built on what is known as "Weeona" point, at the corner of Center and Fox avenues. The bungalows will cost about $600 each and will be ready for use by next spring.

Al. VanMater, who is employed as baggage master at the railroad station, made a hero of himself Friday afternoon as the five o'clock train was pulling into the station. The fireman's auxiliary of Keansburg was on the tracks and he did not hear the train. VanMater ran out from the station and grabbed the boy from the track just as the train rushed by.

A door prize of a ton of coal will be given at the chicken supper of the ladies' auxiliary of the Keansburg fire company on Saturday night, at McDonald's auditorium. The coal was donated by Collins Brothers of this place.

Rev. and Mrs. Charles G. Book and daughter Eleanor of Church street returned home Saturday by automobile from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Cawley of Pointville, New Jersey. Mr. and Mrs. Cawley celebrated their wedding anniversary last week, they having been married by Rev. Mr. Book five years ago.

A big automobile moving van owned by Gietter & Son of Jersey City was mired in sand up to the rear wheels near the Palmer avenue trolley crossing Saturday afternoon. The van was loaded with furniture, and the men on the truck had to unload it on a vacant lot to get the truck out of the sand.

Errol Zorn and Miss Evelyn Zorn of New York, who are spending a few weeks at Beacon Beach, had as guests on Saturday and Sunday Misses Fitzpatrick and Fox of Brooklyn, and Miss Day and Mr. Patterson of New York. Oliver A. Brown of Atlantic Highlands and Charles W. Morrissey of Keansburg.

Prince, a terrier owned by Miss Ethel F. Bennett of Commodore avenue, was run over by a cycle car owned by Grandin V. Johnson of Highlands on Friday. Two wheels passed over the dog's body, but no bones were broken and the dog was not much hurt.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nightingale of East Shore street entertained about a score of friends from Newark and New York at an informal dance in Mr. Nightingale's Cider Stube on Carr avenue Saturday night.

Roscoe P. Paynter, Clinton B. Lohsen and George W. Oberlander represented the Keansburg fire company at the convention of the firemen's relief association at Atlantic City last Wednesday.

Despite the deserted appearance of the town during last week, a good-sized Saturday and Sunday crowd was brought by the four o'clock boat and the late Saturday afternoon train.

Leslie Wathen, who has been employed as cartoonist on the Beacon has given up his job. He will stay at his cottage on Ideal Beach a few weeks before returning to the city.

The women's temperance union met last night at Henry Paynter's on Palmer avenue for their annual meeting. Addresses were made by members of the association and the guests.

E. A. Morris has closed his bathing pavilion and pulled out the stakes marking the bathing grounds. The ice cream and candy pavilion has also been closed for the season.

A spaniel owned by Miss Katherine Stack of Main street was bitten by a bull terrier last Thursday while Miss Stack had her dog on a leash on the boardwalk.

Sunday morning Rev. C. G. Book will speak on "Two Striking Facts About Christianity," and at night his topic will be "The Midnight Struggle."

Mrs. E. N. Wilson and Mrs. Cecil Lediard of Main street and Mrs. Charles K. Hopping of Red Bank spent last Tuesday at Asbury Park.

Leslie Tompkins of Beacon Beach, who was employed as life-guard during the summer, is now a member of Edward A. Morris's fishing crew.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Ryan of New York have returned home after spending the summer at the Francis cottage on Sea Breeze Way.

James Delaney and family have closed their summer home, the Winifred, on the Beachway. They are now living at New York.

George Shellgrove and family of Main street have closed their house for the season and have returned to their Jersey City home.

David Casey, who has been employed by the Greenfield dairy company, is now working for Sigmund Eisner of Red Bank.

Mrs. Mary Marquardt closed her dry goods store on Main street last Wednesday and moved to Newark for the winter.

Misses Viola Uhrig and Ethel Frick of Keyport spent Wednesday with Miss Jennie Roske of Palmer avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Riley of New York are spending two weeks at their home on Woodland avenue.

Benjamin W. Covert has built a frame garage, 14x18 feet, on the rear of his property on Carr avenue.

Miss Alice Crear of Main street motored to New York last Thursday with a party of friends.

Arthur Hack of New York spent the week-end at the Melrose house on Highland avenue.

Mrs. Josephine Hay has closed her stationery and candy store on Church street.

Miss Eleanor Book of Church street has been laid up with a heavy cold.

Samuel D. Walker spent Thursday and Friday at Newark on business.

A son was born to Mrs. Samuel Thorne last week.

Fire at Long Branch.

Fire destroyed the upper story of a building at Long Branch owned by R. H. Hughes Saturday afternoon. The fire had gained considerable headway before an alarm was turned in. The building was occupied by R. E. Reiss as a garage and trimming shop. Mr. Reiss was at dinner when the fire broke out. The damage amounted to $1,500.

Ripe Strawberries in September.

Charles Krainz, who has been called the Luther Burbank of Asbury Park because of his success in raising fruit and flowers, has been picking ripe strawberries from his patch the past few days. The berries are as fine as those which ripen in June. Mr. Krainz also has blackberry vines which are yielding ripe fruit.

HOLMDEL NEWS.

Rally Day to be Observed by the Baptists Next Sunday.

Rally day services will be held at the Baptist church Sunday. Mrs. E. M. Whittemore, founder of the Door of Hope settlement, will speak at the Sunday-school service in the morning and at the church services in the evening and at night.

Rev. W. F. Chase will deliver a sermon at a union service at Marlboro tonight.

Mrs. James Patterson is recovering from sickness.

Miss Emma Ely will hold her annual sale of fancy and useful articles today and tomorrow at Mrs. Chriney-oence S. Holmes's. The articles were made by Miss Ely herself.

Last week William C. Ely sold a team of horses to the Cheeseborough manufacturing company and single horses to E. T. Tillingham and John C. Swade of Staten Island, Harry S. Davis of South Amboy, Edmund Whorles of Wayside, J. W. Boyce of Matawan and Mrs. Peter O'Neil of Asbury Park.

Mrs. Margaret Ely spent Wednesday with Mrs. F. N. Baeder of Peapack, formerly of this place.

Mrs. Daniel S. Ely and her two children are visiting at Manchester, Conn.

Miss Emma Polhemus, principal of the public school, spent Saturday and Sunday at her home at Freehold.

Enormous shipments of potatoes are being made from the Bradewell station. The farmers have been holding back shipments on account of the heat and the low price, but the work of taking the crops to the cars is now under way in full swing. The atmosphere in this section is hazy with smoke arising from the dead potato vines which are burned in the fields. Only a little more than half the potato crop has been harvested. The farmers say they will consider themselves fortunate if they clear expenses on their crops this year. Potatoes are the principal crop of this section, and this is the first time in ten years that the farmers have experienced a poor season. Usually the wind-up of the potato harvesting is followed by the purchase of automobiles, but it is not likely that there will be many new automobiles sold hereabouts this fall.

Miss Ella Conover of Red Bank spent Sunday with her grandmother, Mrs. T. Conover Taylor.

Mrs. Ruth Gibbs has moved to Red Bank, where she formerly lived.

Harold Holmes, son of Chriney-oence S. Holmes, is sick with malacia.

Rev. Wilmer MacNair of Stony Point, New York, spent Saturday and Sunday here. His family is expected to arrive here this week. Mr. MacNair will preach his first sermon as pastor of the Reformed church on Sunday.

Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Dakon of Freehold and Henry Dakon of New York spent part of last week with Mr. and Mrs. Alex L. McClees.

Miss Jane Davis, county school attendance officer, was here last week. The township board of education, in conjunction with Miss Davis, has taken steps to provide for a more thorough enforcement of the school attendance law in the township.

The Boss Fisherman.

Harry W. Metz is the boss fisherman at Asbury Park. He recently fished for 24 hours, taking only an hour's rest in that time. He landed five channel bass, averaging thirty pounds each in weight. The fish were caught at Deal.

LINCROFT NEWS.

Henry A. Fenton Buys Half an Acre from His Father.

Henry A. Fenton last week bought half an acre of land from his father on the Middletown road. The land adjoins the northern boundary of Henry Fenton's property.

Lewis Thompson, Jr., who has been very sick at Brookdale farm with pneumonia and mumps, has improved greatly during the past week. He is under the care of two doctors and two trained nurses.

William Thompson, son of Lewis S. Thompson, has resumed his studies at Yale college. William and John Preston, sons of R. J. Preston, have gone back to Harvard college.

Robert Mouser has moved from Mrs. Isabella Sanborn's house to the house on the Swimming River road which was for many years occupied by the late G. W. Lorenzen.

The ladies' aid society met Thursday night at the chapel and made further arrangements for a supper to be held Thursday, October 21st.

Mrs. John Riddle spent part of last week at New York.

Another coating of oil has been put on the county road.

Joseph W. Thompson has a new horse.

Henry A. Conover is repainting his barn.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Brumagen of South Amboy were recent guests of Mrs. William H. Thompson.

SCOBENVILLE NEWS.

Rabbit Proof Fence Being Built Around Big Orchard.

A rabbit proof fence is being built around an orchard of 85 acres on the Lerch farm. The fence is of small mesh wire and is guaranteed to keep out rabbits. During last winter while snow was on the ground much damage was done by rabbits which ate the bark off the trees.

J. H. Vining was the first farmer in this neighborhood to harvest his corn crop.

The farmers are winding up the work of shipping away their potatoes.

Miss Bertha Polhemus has had a number of improvements made to her outbuildings.

The work of harvesting the peach crop on the Lerch farm has been completed. At one time during the summer more than fifty persons were employed at gathering fruit.

Mrs. John F. Scobey has moved to Sayreville to live with her niece.

TOWN TALK.

This state, and probably other states where the woman suffrage question is up for election this fall, has been flooded with circulars opposing woman suffrage. These circulars have been sent out under the "frank" of James E. Martine, who is one of the United States senators from New Jersey. A "frank" is a stamp, which is a facsimile of a name. When a rubber stamp, bearing the name of a senator or congressman, in imitation of his own handwriting, is put on a letter or circular or package, the United States mail carries that letter or circular or package or whatever it may be free of cost to the senator or congressman.

This letter or package is not carried free of cost to the people of the United States, however. It costs just as much to carry through the mails a letter or circular or package sent out by a senator as it does to carry a letter or a circular or a package sent out by a private citizen of the United States. The only difference is that when a letter or circular or package is sent out by a private individual, he pays the cost of mailing; but when a circular or letter or package is sent out by a senator, the cost of mailing falls on the whole people of the United States, and the senator does not pay one cent of the cost of postage.

James E. Martine is bitterly opposed to woman suffrage. He has a right to be opposed to it if he wants to. Last February he had printed in the "Congressional Record" an article from the District of Columbia Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage. Under the United States postal and printing laws, when an article or a speech has been printed in the "Congressional Record," the government printing office will print that article in any number required at the bare cost of paper and printing. Then it can be franked with the senator's signature or rubber stamp, and sent free of postage to any part of the United States.

A few days ago there was an article printed in the Newark News in which it was stated that 500,000 of these "Articles Against Woman Suffrage" had been sent through the mails in this state alone, not counting what had been sent in Senator Martine's frank in other states. The article was probably sent in equal numbers into every other state where there was a movement toward woman suffrage.

It costs a cent each to carry one of these circulars through the mail. That is what the private individual has to pay for sending one of these circulars through the mail, and the cost is just as great, whether the circular is mailed by an individual or by a United States senator. In one case the private individual pays the bill for sending the circular in the other case where the senator sends these articles through the mails by the hundreds of thousands, the people pay the bill.

This circular which James E. Martine had sent through the mail at the expense of the people of the United States, was not even of his own composition. It was an article prepared by persons in the District of Columbia, who didn't want women to vote. But it cost the people of the United States $5,000 to send this circular to 500,000 persons in this state alone, and it probably cost as much in proportion in New York and in every other state where woman suffrage was a live question.

The European war has caused a great reduction in revenue in this country. The greater part of the country's revenue comes from the duties which are collected on articles sent into this country from other countries. As most of the European nations are just now engaged in cutting each other's throats, they have no time to manufacture goods and no opportunity to send goods to this country even if they had them. Consequently very few goods are being imported and very little money is received in this country on import duties. In order to make up this loss of revenue, the United States has had to put a war tax in effect, in order to get money to run the country.

While this condition is prevailing, and while every effort is being made to pull the country through the calamity caused by the war, along comes Senator James E. Martine, and permits the use of his frank on circulars against woman suffrage to the number of 500,000 or 1,000,000 or whatever the number may have been, and then he complacently says: "Let the people of the United States pay the postage bill!" And the people of the United States must pay the bill, whether they are interested in woman suffrage or not, and they must pay their share of the cost of sending these circulars around, even if they are on the opposite side of the question.

What do the people of New Jersey think of a senator like that! Don't make any mistake about one thing, however! James E. Martine had the lawful right to permit his frank to be used for sending these hundreds of thousands of circulars against woman suffrage all over the United States, if he wanted to. In the same way a man who comes to Red Bank with his week's wages on Saturday night has the legal right to spend the money for whiskey for himself and his friends, leaving his family to go without enough to eat for the coming week. But what do ordinary people think of the common sense of a man who will leave his family unprotected in order that he may enjoy a few hours of carousing! And what do people think of a United States senator, who, in national financial times like the present, will make the people of the United States pay $5,000, $10,000, or whatever the sum may be, for carrying an anti-woman suffrage article which he did not write or compose into hundreds of thousands of homes? Senator Martine had the legal right to do this, and he is not the only senator who uses his franking privilege in this way; but what do the people who must pay the bill think of a United States senator who would do a thing like this in times like this!

James E. Martine will run again for United States senator next summer, it is said. To win out he must first run in the Democratic primary against other men who also want to be senator; and if he wins there he must then run in the election. Every Democrat who disapproves of this method of spending the people's money should vote against him in the Democratic primary; and if he should win there, every citizen in the state who disapproves of such expenditures of public money in times like these should vote against him, no matter what party that voter may belong to.

The whole present system of franking documents by senators and congressmen should be abolished and a new system set up, where public documents desired and asked for by citizens could be sent to them free of postage. This would end the great cost to the people of sending millions of political documents through the mails every year. If senators, congressmen and other politicians want to do this, they should pay the postage bills for their political documents themselves and not make the people pay these political bills. Until such a change is made in the law, however, senators and congressmen should be chosen who have some regard for the welfare of the common people of the United States, who must pay all these political postage bills in the end.

A philosopher from one of the inland townships of the county stopped in the Register office to see me a few days ago and the talk turned on taxes. The philosopher is getting along toward sixty-five years of age, but he is hale and hearty. He has been a Republican since the times of the civil war, though like everybody else who gets along in years he has mellowed down from the political ferocity of the days of uniformed clubs and torchlight parades in 1870 to 1880 and thereabouts. He's a man who likes pretty much everybody, and certainly everybody who knows him likes him mighty well.

As said above, the talk turned on taxes. "When is this increase of taxes going to stop?" he asked; and then he answered the question himself by saying, "Never. I can remember and you can remember," he said, when the taxes in country districts were $7 or $8 or $9 on $1,000, and it's more than twice that now. Besides that, it's increasing all the time. Every little while the officials jack up assessments in order to keep the tax rate low, but it's only a short time before the tax rate creeps up to where it was before. The rate is allowed to increase a few years, and then the assessment is put up higher again and the tax rate kept down for a short time; but the tax rate again creeps up until the assessments are again increased, and this see-saw movement goes continually on, with the result that each individual constantly pays more and more tax.

"Now, why is this increase in assessments and this increase in the tax rate necessary?" he went on. "The answer is easy," he said. "The people are demanding more and more things all the time. These things cost money. Each year the county builds a lot of county roads, and there is not only an increase in the number of miles of public roads to keep up, but the roads cost more per mile each year to keep up, for the roads have to be made better and better each year in order to stand the wear and tear of the heavier and swifter automobiles that are constantly turned out. Bridges have to be rebuilt and made stronger, because the old-style bridges will not carry the heavy motor trucks which are put on the roads now."

"The people who ask for these new county roads, and for better and better up-keep of the county roads, know that what they are asking for will increase the county taxes, but they do not care anything about the taxes when they are asking for the things. Their interest in the taxes comes later, when the tax bills come in. The freeholders don't like to refuse to build new roads or to improve old roads when the people of a locality want this done, for two reasons. One reason is that they like to do things for the improvement of the county, and the other reason is that the people who live in the neighborhoods where the roads lie would most likely be up against them on election day, and a freeholder don't like to be defeated."

"Then there's all the other things which the county does now which it never thought of doing in the old days. Bridges are lighted, for instance; consumptives are cared for at public expense; appropriations are made for the extermination of mosquitoes; salaries have increased; there are more lunatics to be cared for than in the old times and they get better care, and the same is true of the feeble minded; many new offices are created by the legislature, whose salaries have to be paid; the farmers have secured a farm demonstrator at a cost of $2,000 a year; the new widows' pension law will cost the people $15,000 next year, and there are many other new items in the bill for taxes which were never thought of twenty years ago."

This philosopher was right so far as he went, but he did not go the whole way. Everything he said about the constant increase of county expenses was right, but the same thing is true of borough and township expenses. Twenty-five years ago there were very few boroughs, and $50 to $75 was considered to be sufficient money in most townships and towns to spend on sanitary or board of health work. Now, ten times that amount is usually spent, and in some cases it runs even above ten times the amounts of early days.

Twenty-five years ago there were few county roads in Monmouth, for it was about that time that the people began to demand that toll roads be wiped out of existence and made into free roads. Toll roads were a good many toll roads in the county then. Taking the roads around Red Bank for a sample, the road from Red Bank to Shrewsbury and Col's Neck was a toll road and another toll road went from Col's Neck to Freehold. Front street and Broad street in Red Bank were both toll roads, and for many years the toll road on Front street was kept by Thomas J. Wise and was stationed near where Bridge avenue crosses Front street. The toll road to Middletown was a toll road, and so were almost all the important roads of the county. Every few miles a traveler had to hand out a few pennies to pay for driving over the road. Gradually the toll roads were bought up and were made county roads, but they were kept up in the same style as in the toll-gate days. Then the people began to demand better and better roads, until this year the freeholders have appropriated over $200,000 for roads, and I suppose applications for $50,000 to $100,000 of road improvements were turned down. The cost of bridge work this year is over $100,000, and a number of localities which wanted bridges improved did not get them. Here's over $300,000 of public money spent for roads and bridges this year, with a lot of applications laid over. Next year the expense for maintaining roads will be more than it was this year, because all the new roads built this year must be maintained, and because the heavier and faster travel of each succeeding year requires better roads than the year before.

Every borough and every township has to do a lot more things than were done ten or fifteen years ago. All these things cost money. The public schools are the same way. The public schools cost probably twice as much per pupil as they did fifteen or twenty years ago. New laws have been passed by the state which compelled many changes in school-house construction and many changes in school teaching. The school districts have to conform to these laws whether they want to or not. The law also requires the appointment of many new officials by school boards, boroughs, townships and counties, and the salaries of all these men have to be paid from the taxes raised.

Each year sees some new laws passed by the legislature which increase the cost of conducting municipalities and which add to the tax rate. Each year sees some new additions to the general work done by each municipality, and this also adds to the tax rate. Many of these new undertakings are needed by the municipalities, and it is a good thing that they should be made a part of the general public work of a municipality, but they all help swell the tax rate.

This demand for additional activities by the town, county, state and national governments will increase each year. Each year will see some of these demands granted and the expense will be found in the tax bill. Every present form of taxation will be continued, and many new forms will be devised. The income tax will be increased and it will be made applicable to smaller incomes than at present. The inheritance tax will be increased, and new kinds of special taxes will be enforced in order to raise money to pay for what the people demand. Assessments on real estate will go higher and higher, until they equal the entire value of the property.

And with all this will come a queer political condition. Already it is made manifest in some degree, and as time goes on it will be made more and more manifest. In every borough, town, township, city and state in this country there are a lot of people who are demanding that certain things be done by the government. When these people ask why the government does not do these things they do not ask the correlative question: Why does not the government put its hand in my pocket and take out the money to do these things? For there is where the money comes from in the first place. If the things demanded are not done, then the people who demand these additions to the activities of the government get mad and go out on election day and oppose the men who did not do them. If the things are done, then a lot of other people go out and oppose the men who did do these things on the ground that they have increased the taxes. In many cases the very men who urge the officials to make improvements, or to add special activities to the former list of duties, oppose the officials when they run again for office because the tax rate was raised through doing what these persons asked to have done.

But no matter what party is in power, whether it is the Republicans, or the Democrats, or the Progressives, or the Prohibitionists, or the Socialists, one thing is certain. Taxes will go higher and higher. A party on getting newly in office may sometimes reduce expenses the first year by chopping off the ends of things, but the people won't stand for that very long. The people are demanding more and more things every year and they are going to have them. They are going to keep all the things they have got and they are going to get more. If one party does not give them the things they want some other party will be put in office who will do it.

The Verdict

A Trick of Fate That Sent a Man to His Doom

By CLARENCE JAMES FLEMING
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

The white haired judge paused. For an instant the courtroom was hushed, breathless, like an ominous calm before an electric storm, a stillness so intense and oppressive that it tried the overwrought sensibilities of the principals and even had its effect on the curious mass of worldly human-ity which completely filled the historic old courtroom and overflowed into the broad corridor beyond. Then the silence was broken:

"May God direct and control your verdict."

With these low, solemn words the judge flushed his charge to the jury and left the fate of James Stanley Black in their hands.

The jurors silently filed into the jury room, and a court attendant touched the prisoner on the arm.

Without a parting glance at the array of lawyers who had been laboring in his defense and apparently uncon-scious of the spectators who stood up in their places and stared in his direction, Black arose and followed the officer from the room.

When he reached his cell he threw himself down on the hard wooden bench and sat staring at the door.

His appearance now was a marked contrast to that shown in the court-room.

During the many weeks of the trial he had appeared day after day a calm, confident, aggressive business man, and the legal proceedings seemed to be mere detail.

But here in the dimly lighted, vault-like room, beyond the gaze of the curious public, he was off his guard, and the guilty pallor of his cheeks and the deep black circles under his eyes showed the effect of the daily grilling he had gone through.

For a long time he sat in a deep, dejected study. He was worried, desper-ately worried, for he realized that his only hope for freedom lay with the jury, which was even now deciding his fate.

If they found him innocent he was free, but if they decided against him he was doomed—doomed to serve a long term in state prison.

Heretofore he had laughed at the law, for he had learned from experience that money could whitewash most misdeeds, but now it was different.

He had been caught juggling with the funds of a national bank, and the federal authorities were determined to make an example of him.

He was awakened from his morbid thoughts by the entry of Colonel Baker, his lifelong friend and chief counsel.

After a few minutes' conversation the colonel prepared to leave.

"Better lie down and try to get a little rest," he advised, "for we expect a verdict before midnight."

"Will you be allowed to see me again tonight?" queried the imprisoned financier.

"Not unless a verdict is reached."

"It's going to be mighty hard sitting here all evening without some word of show the jury stands," protested Black.

The colonel looked enigmatically at his client.

"There are always rumors," continued the prisoner, "and I want to be kept informed."

"Impossible."

"Not if you follow a plan I have thought out," explained the financier as he motioned for the attorney to come over to the iron barred window.

"See that alley," pointing out of the window toward a small alleyway leading from the rear of the jail to a main thoroughfare beyond.

The colonel nodded his head.

"Isn't that directly in back of your cell?"

"Yes, that second doorway leads into our building."

"Good. Arrange to have a lantern placed there tonight; a white light if the jury is favorable and a red light if otherwise."

"Good scheme," acknowledged the attorney. "I'll arrange with the watchmen to look after the lights, and I sincerely hope he will need but one lantern—the white."

For a long time after the attorney's departure Black carefully thought over the case, searching his mind for the weak spots in his defense and going over the strong, damaging points his prosecutor had made.

Again he reached for the fatal glass. Back, back, warned the soul, but its feeble suggestion was drowned out by the mad waves of thought that surged through the weakened mind, crying:

"End it all! End it all! End it all!"

Slowly the glass was raised to the quivering lips.

The soul again peered into the black cloud of uncertainty, only to encounter a monstrous, quivering thing, shrouded in the battlements of the grave, a body and yet not a body, a phantom and yet not a phantom, an apparition and not an apparition, and with a low, moaning sigh surrendered to the arch enemy of all mankind, the cloven footed angel of the bottomless pit—despair.

With an encouraging chuckle Despair reached out its sable clad arm and motioned the wretch to drink.

The man still hesitated.

With a savage, impatient gesture Despair rent asunder the curtain of what might be.

Instantly the interior of the court-room appeared before the prisoner's eyes, the judge on the bench, the jury filing into their places and himself in the prisoner's box.

Then came the judge's question:

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you reached a verdict?"

"We have, your honor," announced the foreman, rising in his place.

"What say you, guilty or not guilty?"

The poor wretch's fingers tightened around the tumbler as he stared at the picture of the foreman's stern features. He knew the worst had happened.

With a low, terror stricken groan he tilted the glass and drained the poison to the dregs.

The fiery liquid gurgled down his throat. He felt back.

The slow, measured tread in the corridor without was joined by another, quicker and lighter.

Both stopped in front of the cell door, the key was turned and Colonel Baker hurried into the cell.

He saw the body stretched out on the bed, apparently asleep.

"Get up!" he called.

But the man on the bed did not hear. He was beyond the control of any human verdict or punishment!

Instantly the colonel surmised what had happened. He leaned down and put his hand over the financier's heart.

"Dead!" he said to the officer.

Then he looked out of the window and, without a word of explanation, rushed from the cell and out into the night.

There in the alleyway stood an automobile—Black's own touring car, which had been ordered to take him home.

The rear of the car was toward the prison window, and the red tail light glowed like a ball of fire!

Beyond, and completely hidden by the body of the machine, was the white lantern on the doorstep.

"The verdict from which there is no appeal," shuddered the attorney as he turned and walked slowly back to the courtroom.

The expression "fourth estate" was first used by Thomas Carlyle and was applied to the editors during the period of the French revolution.

Impudent.

Registrar—How old are you, madam? She—I've seen nineteen summers, sir Registrar—How long have you been blind?—Brooklyn Eagle.

It pays to advertise in The Register.

Again he reached for the fatal glass. Back, back, warned the soul, but its feeble suggestion was drowned out by the mad waves of thought that surged through the weakened mind, crying:

"End it all! End it all! End it all!"

Slowly the glass was raised to the quivering lips.

The soul again peered into the black cloud of uncertainty, only to encounter a monstrous, quivering thing, shrouded in the battlements of the grave, a body and yet not a body, a phantom and yet not a phantom, an apparition and not an apparition, and with a low, moaning sigh surrendered to the arch enemy of all mankind, the cloven footed angel of the bottomless pit—despair.

With an encouraging chuckle Despair reached out its sable clad arm and motioned the wretch to drink.

The man still hesitated.

With a savage, impatient gesture Despair rent asunder the curtain of what might be.

Instantly the interior of the court-room appeared before the prisoner's eyes, the judge on the bench, the jury filing into their places and himself in the prisoner's box.

Then came the judge's question:

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you reached a verdict?"

"We have, your honor," announced the foreman, rising in his place.

"What say you, guilty or not guilty?"

The poor wretch's fingers tightened around the tumbler as he stared at the picture of the foreman's stern features. He knew the worst had happened.

With a low, terror stricken groan he tilted the glass and drained the poison to the dregs.

The fiery liquid gurgled down his throat. He felt back.

The slow, measured tread in the corridor without was joined by another, quicker and lighter.

Both stopped in front of the cell door, the key was turned and Colonel Baker hurried into the cell.

He saw the body stretched out on the bed, apparently asleep.

"Get up!" he called.

But the man on the bed did not hear. He was beyond the control of any human verdict or punishment!

Instantly the colonel surmised what had happened. He leaned down and put his hand over the financier's heart.

"Dead!" he said to the officer.

Then he looked out of the window and, without a word of explanation, rushed from the cell and out into the night.

There in the alleyway stood an automobile—Black's own touring car, which had been ordered to take him home.

The rear of the car was toward the prison window, and the red tail light glowed like a ball of fire!

Beyond, and completely hidden by the body of the machine, was the white lantern on the doorstep.

"The verdict from which there is no appeal," shuddered the attorney as he turned and walked slowly back to the courtroom.

Good Advice.

A man advertised recently in a London paper to forward on receipt of postage stamps "sound practical advice that would be applicable at any time and to all persons and conditions of life."

On receipt of the stamps he sent his numerous victims the following:

"Never give a boy a penny to hold your shadow while you climb a tree to look into the middle of next week."

Repudiated.

"I am a self made man," said Mr. Cumorox.

"Didn't your wife have something to do with your career?"

"She used to say so. But after seeing how I behaved in society she refuses to take any of the blame."—Washington Star.

Questions and Answers.

"You are thoroughly familiar with public questions, of course?"

"I know 'em all by heart," replied Senator Sargium. "But I must admit that as time goes by I don't feel quite so certain about some of the answers."—Washington Star.

Of the Past.

Geologists say that several species of man have entirely disappeared from the earth. Doubtless these lost species include the nice old gentleman who used to pull off his boots on an evening with the help of the bootjack.—Chicago News.

Fruit Trees Versus Potatoes And Other Farm Crops.

If a careful ledger account is kept showing the net profit of peaches and apples in comparison with other farm products it will be found very much in favor of the fruit even in consideration of the very low prices this year.

The farmers of Monmouth county have some food for thought in this suggestion and the up-to-date growers will know at the end of the season just where they stand.

The Manalapan Nurseries at Englishtown, N. J., are prepared to furnish both peach and apple trees of the leading commercial varieties, including the J. H. Hale peach, to the planters in this state.

This stock has been carefully grown and great care has been given bud selection. In all cases where possible selection has been made from trees of record.

ALL WRONG

The Mistake is Made by Many Kid Bank Citizens.

Look for the cause of backache. To be cured you must know the cause.

If it's weak kidneys. You must set the kidneys working right.

A resident of this vicinity shows you how.

William Wright, Oceanic, N. J., says: "I had a weak back and disorders arising from sluggish kidneys. I have now a healthy back and no backache, and this is due to the fact that I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills. The kidneys were irregular in passage. Doan's Kidney Pills greatly helped me. Over a year later Mr. Wright said: 'The benefit Doan's Kidney Pills gave me has remained permanent. I recommend them as highly as ever.'"

WILLIAM TILTON'S WILL.

Most of the Estate Was Left to His Widow and After Her Death It is to Be Expended for Charitable Objects—Other Wills Probated.

William Tilton, who died at Oceanport a short time ago, disposed of a large estate in a will which was executed June 6th, 1911. Mr. Tilton appointed his wife, Sarah F. S. Tilton, and Frank L. Sherwood trustees and executors of the will. He bequeathed his house and lot and all his personal property to his wife, together with $5,000 in cash. Rasmus P. Miller of Oceanport was bequeathed $500 and a like amount was left to David Riddle of Red Bank. Mr. Tilton directed that the rest of his estate should be invested and that the income therefrom be paid to his wife as long as she lives. After her death $1,000 is to go to William T. Sherwood, $1,000 to Frank L. Sherwood, $500 to Louisa Howard and $500 to the Methodist home for the aged of the New Brunswick district. The rest of the estate is to be expended for such charitable or benevolent objects as Mr. Tilton's executors may select. The will was witnessed by Edm. M. Plewinski and John W. Slocum of Long Branch.

John Cowden of Middletown township left his entire estate to his wife, Amelia J. Cowden, in a will which was made last January. Mrs. Cowden was appointed executrix of the will.

Mrs. Agnes D. Herbert, who died at the home of her son at Wickatunk recently, left $1,000 to the Marlboro Reformed church in a will which was made fifteen years ago. Mrs. Herbert bequeathed $5,000 to her daughter, Kate Kelly; $5,000 to her daughter, Jean R. Herbert, and $4,000 to her son, Richard W. Herbert. The residue of the estate was left to create a trust fund, the income from which is to be paid Mrs. Herbert's grandchildren, Gertrude A. and John W. Herbert, Jr., of Helmetta; Agnes H. Paul, Catherine, Hazel, Mary and John W. Herbert of Omaha, Nebraska. Mrs. Herbert's sons, John W. and Richard W., were appointed executors and trustees of the will. The witnesses were J. Clarence Conover and Joseph McDermott of Freehold. Thomas S. Aumack of Raritan township bequeathed his entire estate to his daughter, Mary A. Aumack, in a will which he made a year ago last May. His son Jacob and his daughter Mary were named as executors of the will. The witnesses were Marcus B. Taylor and Elsie Bedle of Keyport.

Daniel McCarthy of Seabright made his will last August and appointed his sister, Mrs. Murphy, and James D. Carter of Asbury Park, executors. He left $100 to Mt. Olivet cemetery as a fund for the maintenance of his burial plot. Bequests of $100 each were made to the rector of Holy Cross church at Rumson, the rector of St. Catherine's church at Everett and to Bishop James A. McPaul of Trenton. The rest of the estate was left to Mr. McCarthy's sister for her use as long as she lives. After her death or four years, the residue is to go to Bishop McPaul and the remainder is to be divided among the children of Mr. McCarthy's sister and of his brother, the late Dennis McCarthy.

Cordelia Gulick of Long Branch left her entire estate to Edna L. Meyers in a will which was executed last June. George W. Huff was appointed executor of the will.

George D. Seymour, who died at his home at Long Branch several weeks ago, made his will March 23d, 1910. Mr. Seymour left $50 each to his children, Hugh D. Seymour, Mrs. Grace S. Zilly and Gertrude S. Seymour. The residue of the estate was left to Mr. Seymour's widow, Mary E. Seymour, who was appointed executrix of the will.

Peter Thomas of West Ocean Grove divided his estate between his daughter, Nanny Green, and his grandson, William H. Green, in a will which was made July 27th, 1912.

Mrs. Catherine E. Hendrickson of Upper Freehold township left a big estate, which was divided among several children. She left $1,000 to her son, Richard, to be held by him and invested for the benefit of her son Hires. All her real estate was left to her children, Richard, Edward, Norman, Elizabeth, Sarah and Clara, with the request that the estate be sold as soon as possible and that the proceeds from the sale be equally divided among the children. Mrs. Hendrickson appointed her four sons executors of the will. The witnesses were Frank G. and Reuben G. Strahan.

TEACHER DEMANDS HEARING.

Jonas Tumen Carries Dismissal to State School Commission.

Jonas Tumen, who taught the Union school in Raritan township for three years, has applied to the state school commission for a hearing because he was ousted as teacher by the Raritan board of education. On September 10th, last, Mr. Tumen received a letter from the district clerk of Raritan township, informing him that he had not been reappointed as teacher. Upon the advice of a lawyer Mr. Tumen reported at the school on the opening day, but he was not allowed to begin his duties as teacher. Mr. Tumen is in possession of a statement from the district clerk to the effect that no resolution was ever passed by the board of education discharging him as teacher, and that nothing appears on the minutes of the board about his dismissal. Mr. Tumen claims he is protected under the tenure of office act because he taught at Union for three consecutive years.

Jail Sentence for Wife Beater.

Robert Buzzie of Kennsburg was arrested last week by Constable Raymond Truax of that place on a charge of beating his wife and children. Buzzie was held under $500 bonds by Justice Walter A. Conroy to support his family, in default of which he was committed to the county jail. Mrs. Buzzie and children are being supported by the overseer of the poor of Middletown township.

Get Two More Newspapers.

Benjamin F. S. Brown of Matawan has added two more newspapers to his list and now controls five weekly papers. The new ones are The Seabright Sentinel and the Monmouth Press of Atlantic Highlands. The others there are The Kennsburg Beacon, The Monmouth Journal and The Keyport Weekly.

Employees Enjoy Outing.

Employees of Charles E. Brown, S. F. Leach and W. A. Brown, who are located at Long Branch, enjoyed an outing at Seidler's Beach Saturday. A shore dinner was a feature of the outing. About thirty men were on the trip.

FOOTBALL.

High School Team Defeated by a Pick-up Eleven.

The football season was opened Wednesday afternoon at the Red Bank high school when the school team was defeated by a pick-up team by a score of 24 to 0. Jacobus scored two touchdowns for the victors, Parsons made one and Capwell also made a goal. The high school gained considerable ground on open plays but lost on line plunges. Two of the goals of the winners were made on long runs. The players on the high school team were Thomas Morris, Irving Toombs, Theodore Murdoch, Clifford Brower, Robert and Hugh Brewer, Monroe Reeves, John L. Marche, Paul Stillman, Wallace Jeffrey and Robert Hayward. On the other team were Leon Gordon, Joseph Chamberlain, Clarence Boughton, Howard Capwell, Irving Harrison, James Hogan, Webster Linson, Theodore Parsons, Frank Dean, Arthur Jacobus and Kenneth Weyand.

Prickett—Johnes.

Miss Elizabeth C. Prickett, daughter of Joseph Prickett of Asbury Park, was married to Charles E. Johnes of that place Sunday night. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Francis J. McCloskey. A reception followed at the Montauk hotel. Mr. Johnes is proprietor of a moving picture theater at Belmar.

Riley—Sutphin.

Miss E. Grace Riley, daughter of A. E. Riley of Long Branch, and J. Woodward Sutphin of that place, were married last week. The engagement of the couple was announced some time ago but the wedding was a surprise to their friends. They went to Canada on their wedding trip.

THE EGG LAYING CONTEST.

Gamewell's Hens Still Lead—Egg Laying Contest at the Show.

J. A. Gamewell's hens are still in the lead in the egg laying contest being conducted by the Monmouth poultry club. The following is the average yield per hen for the thirty weeks the contest has been running:

J. A. Gamewell	136.79
J. C. Talence	106.40
F. E. Bussell	105.88
F. V. V. Kendrick	96.74
A. M. Foster	96.23
C. E. Hendrickson	84.27
Charles Dryer	80.29
John Yeomans	76.51
Howard Rogers	64.87

The club will hold an egg laying contest at its annual show at the armory in November. Each contestant will enter six hens. The hens will be placed in an exhibition cage which will be locked and not opened until the close of the show. A prize of $5 will be offered as first premium, $3 as second and $2 as third.

Troubles of Truant Officer.

Charles Conk, policeman and truant officer of Rumson, is kept busy giving automobile rides to the school children of Oceanic. The youngsters, instead of going to school, are employed as caddies on the Rumson country club grounds. Mr. Conk rides to the club and, after rounding up the boys, takes them back to school. He says he will be compelled to use sterner methods unless the boys attend school regularly.

W. C. Ely Home from Hospital.

William C. Ely of Holmdel returned Sunday from the German hospital at Philadelphia, where he was under treatment for heart and kidney trouble. He was much benefited by his stay at the hospital. He is able to go on automobile rides on pleasant days.

RUMSON NEWS.

Prizes in Borough Beautiful Contest to Be Distributed Monday.

The Rumson borough improvement association held its semi-annual meeting at the Rumson country club Saturday afternoon. Hugh Harts, home, president of the association, presided. Reports from the various committees were read, which showed the association to be in excellent condition. The organization now has 90 members, 21 new members having been added during the past year. The report of the committee on beautifying the borough created much interest. Judges have been secured from outside of the borough to render a decision on the work done by the contestants during the past summer. The judges have selected their work and the prizes will be awarded next Monday at a meeting to be held at the high school building. A band from Red Bank will give a concert in the street before the awarding of prizes takes place. Speeches will be made and stereopticon pictures of some of the homes in Rumson will be shown. The high school building will be decorated with flowers.

Next Sunday will be observed as Rally day at the Presbyterian church. There will be special services for the Sunday school at ten o'clock in the morning. The church service at eleven o'clock will be in the nature of a rally service. In the evening the Christian Endeavor society will meet. These meetings were discontinued during the summer.

During the week to follow, the work of all the Presbyterian church organizations will commence for the season. On Monday night the prize for the borough beautiful contest will be awarded. On Tuesday evening a young people's sociable will be held in the parish house. All the young people of the church have been invited. Other events during the week will include meetings of the ladies' aid society, the boys' club, the young men's club and the sewing school.

The annual rummage sale under the direction of the ladies' aid society will be held during the week commencing October 10th, in the parish house. The people of Oceanic and vicinity look forward to this sale with eagerness, as there are always great bargains for everyone.

The Presbytery of Monmouth met yesterday at Matawan. Rev. A. A. McKay attended the sessions.

A union prayer service of the Presbyterian and Methodist churches will be held tonight in the Methodist church. Rev. J. W. Rogan of Red Bank will preach the sermon.

A program is being arranged for a musicale to be held at the parish house Thursday night of next week for the benefit of the Methodist church. Many tickets have been sold and a large attendance is looked for.

Sunday-school will be held every Sunday morning after the services at Holy Cross chapel.

Rev. Burton J. K. Way of Eatontown was a visitor Monday at the Methodist parsonage.

Commodore William B. Potts's Elf won the Rumson country club's season cup in the final race Saturday for one design knockabouts sailed on the South Shrewsbury. A special prize was awarded to the Elf for winning the greatest number of points during each month. Samuel Riker, Jr.'s Frances finished a close second, Bertram H. Borden's Rumpus was third, J. A. Haskell's Margaret fourth, Bayard Dominick's Trouble fifth and Hugh Camp's Jr's Elscador sixth.

The Piping Rock Wanderers, who won the Monmouth polo cup last week, captured the Rumson country club cup Wednesday by defeating the Rumson Blackbirds by a score of 12½ goals to 1½. Howard S. Borden scored the only goals for the Rumson four. Harry East scored nine of the twelve goals for the Wanderers. The players on the Blackbirds were Leland H. Rosa, W. S. Jones, Jr., Howard S. Borden and B. K. Gatins. On the Wanderers were John O'Day, Harry East, George B. Gilder and A. Nother.

Advertised letters are at the Rumson postoffice for Augustus W. Kelly, Jr., Mrs. E. Adams and E. Cabana.

Advertised letters are at the Oceanic postoffice for A. Cure, George Davis, Anna Evans, Miller's bakery and Mrs. Eva Ruel.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Striker have returned from a trip to Jacksonville and Augustine, Florida.

It pays to advertise in The Register.—Advertisement.

The Surplus of Fall Crops.

Almost every farmer at this time of year has some surplus crops.

Even if he is a big shipper, and sends most of his crops in carload lots, he still has more or less small lots of various crops on hand.

Sell these odds and ends of crops through the Register's Want Column.

You can get real money for those pumpkins and apples and pears and potatoes and turnips and other things which ordinarily are allowed to go to waste.

An advertisement in The Register, telling about the things you have for sale and the price of the things, will be carried into 5,500 homes, and it will cost you only 25 cents.

No other advertising you can do is as cheap as this. No other advertising is as good as this for selling small lots of surplus crops.

LOST THEIR FIRST GAME.

Atlantic Highlands Opened Football Season with Asbury Park.

The football team of the Atlantic Highlands high school lost its first game of the season Saturday afternoon on the Navesink avenue field to the Asbury Park team by the score of 19 to 0. The Highlands boys played a good game, but were outweighed about fifteen pounds to the man. The Atlantic Highlands players were: Hauser, left half-back; Poughkeepsie, right half-back; Wells, quarter-back; West, full-back; Morin, center; Burns, left end; Burnett, left tackle; Halleran, left guard; Ahern, right guard; Scullthorp, right tackle; and Kruse, right end. Prof. J. W. Heim of Red Bank was the referee.

BOWLING.

Games Between Red Bank and Asbury Park Teams.

A large crowd attended a bowling match Thursday night on the Sheridan alleys between teams representing Asbury Park and Red Bank. In the individual match William White of Asbury Park defeated Robert Kennedy of this place three out of four games. In the two-man match, White and Day defeated Kennedy and William P. Hugg three out of five games. The Red Bank bowlers captured the three-man match, winning two of three games. Harold Husey was high man for the evening, with a score of 213.

GIANTS WIN FINAL GAME.

Colored Team Annexed the Borough Championship Sunday.

The Colored Giants baseball team won the borough championship Sunday when they defeated the Orioles by a score of 7 to 5. The Orioles started off with a two run lead. From the second to the seventh innings a steady rain fell and during that period the Giants made all their runs. Clinton Johnson pitched a fine game for the Orioles, striking out ten men and allowing the same number of hits. Edward Wilson twirled a good game for the Giants, striking out five batters and allowing ten hits. Both pitchers allowed three bases on balls.

Red Bank needs a night school. Last year a night school was held for a few weeks in the winter. The expense of which was paid for partly by the pupils and partly by contributions. A petition is being prepared that such a school be held this year and that it be conducted by the board of education. The fact that the young men ask for the school is a guarantee that it would fill a valuable place in the life of the town. When young men take enough interest in their education to ask for a night school it shows they would make good use of such a school if it existed.

A considerable number of young men in Red Bank were born in foreign lands and came to this country to better their conditions. Most of them will be citizens in a short time and a night school could do a great deal toward preparing them for their citizenship duties. It is a matter which the board of education should not only consider, but should put in operation. There are ample school rooms available in Red Bank for this purpose, and the community owes it to these young men to give them every opportunity for educational improvement.

The Fire Insurance Trust.

To the Editor of The Register:
The worst specimen of crooked legislation that has ever polluted our code of laws is, without doubt, the notorious Ramsay law. It threatens every agent and company with a fine of $500 if they write fire insurance for less than the rate demanded by the trust, and then provides a loophole for the trust in case it should be caught increasing a rate by the use of fraudulent charges in their schedules.

If they should be caught at a game of this kind they are merely notified by the commissioner of banking and insurance to remove the unjust charge. The Hotel Brunswick, at Asbury Park, was rated by the trust on a summer hotel schedule. The standard for a summer hotel is found on the first page of the rate book. Among the items we find the following: "Height—not to exceed three stories and basement."

In the schedule of charges we find these items: 4—Height: (a) four stories, 5 cents; (b) five stories, 25 cents; (c) six stories, 75 cents; (d) seven stories or over, $1. The height of the Brunswick is four stories and a basement. Their own schedule provides a charge of 5 cents for a hotel of this height.

The trust has made a charge of 25 cents for a five-story hotel. By means of this slick trick they have added 20 cents to the rate on this hotel. This one tricky charge of only 20 cents amounts to $100 per year on $50,000 insurance.

You can't do anything to the trust because the Ramsay anti-discrimination law virtually says that when the trust gets caught discriminating it must remove the discrimination. That is all. In other words, it must stop robbing the victim as soon as he squeals.

This law does not even provide for the return of that part of the premium that was procured through a trick. Mr. Voter, it is up to you to defeat every candidate for the legislature who upholds the Ramsay anti-discrimination law, which created, protects and upholds such an institution as the fire insurance trust and its creature, the schedule rating bureau at Newark.

THIEF NABBED AT RUMSON.

George H. Chatillon Caught Him and Tied Him Up.

Early last night a professional burglar broke into George H. Chatillon's house on the Rumson road, and before he could get away with some money and jewels which he had stolen he was caught by Mr. Chatillon. The thief's hands and legs were tied by the house owner, and the police were sent for. The thief had been waiting for the morning and he was held to await the action of the grand jury. He carried a sand bag and other articles such as professional burglars use, and the Rumson police believe that he has been guilty of a number of other robberies which have occurred recently in that neighborhood.

HOUSE MOVED ON WATER.

Seabright House Moved on Pontons to Riverside Drive.

A house belonging to John A. Rutherford was moved Saturday on boats or pontoons from Seabright to the Herbert McClees property on Riverside Drive, which Mr. Rutherford bought a short time ago. The moving was done without mishap and was witnessed by many spectators. The house is very large and its size will be increased by adding to it part of another house on the McClees property.

CHURCH NEWS.

Rally Day Held at Baptist Church Last Sunday.

About 200 persons were present at the "rally and promotion day" services held Sunday at the Baptist church. Sixteen scholars graduated from the primary to the junior department. The opening exercises consisted of singing, scripture reading and prayer. Selections were rendered by the orchestra. The primary department exercises consisted of singing and recitations, awarding of certificates to the primary department and singing by the junior choir. The junior exercises were the reading of passages from the bible and selections from the scripture by the fourth, fifth and sixth grades. The graduating class recited part of the Beatitudes. Diplomas were distributed to the junior graduates. Captain Charles B. Parsons gave an address.

Reception of members will be held next Sunday at the Methodist church. Several will be received by letter and a large group will be received into full membership. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated in the morning. In the afternoon Rev. Mr. Sloan, who is leading the men's club class, will talk on "The Sources of Knowledge about Jesus." In the evening Mr. Sloan's theme will be "The Crowning Wonder of an Age of Wonders."

At a meeting last week of the Christian Endeavor society of the Baptist church, Walter Harrison was elected president, Homer Motie vice president, Miss Florence Young secretary and Miss Helen Coleman treasurer.

Christian science services will be held at 137 River street on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The subject will be "Unreality."

The monthly meeting of the Junior Holy Name society of St. James's church was held at the clubhouse on Sunday. The society will hold a track and athletic meet on Columbus day with prizes in all events. Frank Brash is chairman of the athletic committee and others on the committee are Norman Griffin, Frank Riley, Elliott Sullivan and Walter Hogan. The quarterly meeting and communion of the Senior society will be held on Sunday, October 10th.

Douglas Leo Hickey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Hickey of Harrison avenue, was baptized Sunday at St. James's church. The sponsors were George E. Hickey and Marguerite Hickey.

A special meeting of St. James's dramatic society will be held tonight at the clubhouse to arrange for an entertainment on Thanksgiving day.

The ladies' aid society of the Baptist church will meet tomorrow afternoon at Mrs. John S. Applegate's on Riverside avenue. The Philathea society will meet next Tuesday night at Mrs. Augustus Layton's on Drummond place.

The sewing society of St. James's church will meet tonight. During the winter the society will meet every Wednesday night.

The subject of Grace church prayer meeting tonight will be "The Gift without the Giver is Bare." There will be a reading at the parsonage tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock. A general invitation has been extended to the women of the church to attend.

The ladies' aid society will meet Friday at Mrs. D. Clarence Walling's on Peters place. Beginning with Sunday the Sunday-school will meet in the afternoon at half-past two o'clock, instead of at 10:45 as heretofore. The morning subject will be "Christ as a Suffering Saviour," and the topic at night will be "A Romance and a Tragedy."

Richard A. Strong, M. V. B. Smock, Arthur P. Jacobus, E. Irving Oakley, Charles P. Robinson and Leon Pennington will act as ushers during October.

Afternoon sessions were resumed at the Presbyterian church Sunday when rally day was celebrated. The trustees and the Brotherhood held meetings Monday night.

The Guild of the Golden Rule of Trinity church will hold its annual meeting at Mrs. Charles A. Minton's on East Front street next Wednesday.

COLT'S NECK NEWS.

Annual Meeting of Women's Missionary Society Yesterday.

The annual meeting of the women's missionary society of the Reformed church was held in the chapel yesterday.

Mrs. Asher Crawford is confined to the bed with grip.

Thomas Collins has recovered from his injuries and has gone back to work. He was hurt two weeks ago when a wagon in which he was riding was struck by an automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacquelin Lawrence spent Monday at New York. Misses Minnie and Lizzie Soffel, Miss Annie Sherman and Rev. Octave VanBeverhout represented the Reformed Sunday-school at a county Sunday-school convention at Red Bank last week.

Robert Bush is rapidly recovering from his sickness and he expects to go back to work at Charles E. Sherman's store within a few days. It was not true as reported that Mr. Bush intended to retire.

Miss Martha Hunt is visiting at Trenton.

John H. Lawrence has recovered from a sickness of eight weeks.

GIRL DIES SUDDENLY.

MISS SUSIE CROSS HAD BEEN SICK WITH TYPHOID FEVER.

Vanderburg Girl Had Apparently Recovered from the Disease When She Contracted a Cold and Died Less Than 24 Hours Later.

Miss Susie Cross, daughter of Mrs. George Cross of Vanderburg, died Saturday night. The end was very unexpected. Miss Cross had been sick with typhoid fever, but had apparently recovered. She was out-doors Friday for the first time since she had been taken sick. She contracted a cold, and in less than 24 hours later she was dead. She was seventeen years old. She leaves a brother and a sister, John T. Cross and Miss Annie Cross, both of whom are recovering from typhoid fever. Miss Annie Cross is teacher of the primary department of the Lindecroft school. The funeral was held yesterday at St. Mary's church at Colt's Neck and the burial was at Freehold.

Miss Susie Cross was one of twenty residents of Atlantic township who were taken sick with typhoid fever during July and August. Most of them have recovered. A majority of the persons taken sick live at Vanderburg, but there were also cases at Seabrook, Colt's Neck and Montrose. All of the typhoid fever patients attended a picnic which was held in July on the grounds of St. Mary's church at Colt's Neck, and this gave ground to the belief that the disease was caused by drinking water from a well on the church property. A few weeks ago the well was cleaned out, after which a sample of the water was sent to the state health authorities at Trenton to be analyzed. They reported that the water was pure and that there was no disease germs in it.

VICTIM OF DROPSY.

Mrs. Carl Kahler of Little Silver Died After Long Sickness.

Mrs. Johanna Kahler, wife of Carl Kahler, died Sunday night at her home at Little Silver of dropsy and stomach trouble. She was 53 years old and had been in poor health over a year. Mrs. Kahler was born in Agram, Austria, and came to this country when a young woman. She had lived at Little Silver for eight years. Her husband is a prominent painter, his specialty being that of painting animals. Mrs. Kahler leaves no relatives besides her husband. The funeral was held yesterday morning at her late home in charge of Rev. Robert A. McKellar, rector of Trinity church of Red Bank, and the burial was in Fair View cemetery.

DIED AT HOSPITAL.

Mrs. Abram Bowles Succumbs After an Operation.

She was 43 years old and had been in poor health for a long time. Besides her husband she leaves a mother, Mrs. Albert Holmes of Mechanic street. The body was brought to Harry Fay's undertaking shop on Monmouth street and prepared for burial. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon and the burial will be at White Ridge cemetery at Eatontown.

DIED OF PARALYSIS.

Charles Rheinhold of Keyport was 77 Years of Age.

Charles Rheinhold of Keyport died yesterday morning of paralysis at the age of 77 years. Mr. Rheinhold was born in Germany. He moved to this country forty years ago, and engaged in the grocery business at Keyport. He leaves a widow, and three sons, Joseph and Paul Rheinhold of Keyport, and Augustus Rheinhold of New York. He also leaves a sister, Miss Emma Rheinhold of New York.

FORMER PASTOR DEAD.

Rev. J. C. Elliott, Who Married a Keyport Girl, Died at Newburg.

Rev. J. C. Elliott of Newburg, who married Miss Carrie Duncan of Keyport, died at his home Saturday after a sickness of a week from intestinal trouble. Mr. Elliott was 58 years old and besides his wife is survived by a daughter. He was pastor of an Episcopal church at Newburg at the time of his death. The funeral was held at Newburg, and the body was taken to Keyport for burial.

Barber Dropped Dead.

Andrew Verastio of New York, who had been employed as a barber at the East View hotel at Highlands by Frank Pedro, dropped dead of heart trouble on Friday as he was packing up his things preparatory to moving back to the city. Verastio was 39 years old. The body was sent to New York for burial in Calvary cemetery.

Death of an Infant.

Rachele Barberio, seven-months-old daughter of Louis Barberio of West Front street, died Monday of stomach trouble. The funeral was held today and the burial was at Mt. Olivet cemetery.

DIED AFTER LONG SICKNESS.

Mrs. Crato Had Been in Poor Health Over a Year.

Mrs. Johanna I. E. Crato, wife of Benjamin H. Crato of Bridge avenue, Red Bank, died Thursday noon of neuritis after a sickness of more than a year. She had been confined to the house since last May. Her maiden name was Lins and she was born at Brooklyn 47 years ago. She had lived at Red Bank the past fourteen years, having moved here from Atlantic Highlands. She leaves two children, Benjamin H. Crato, Jr., and Mrs. Allen Hesketh of Red Bank. She was the grandmother of three children, Mildred and Whanetta Crato and Jennie Hesketh. She also leaves six sisters and a brother, they being Mrs. Louise Cox, Mrs. Fred Simcox, Miss Alice Lins and Miss Fannie Lins of Newark; Mrs. Harriet Udell of Westfield, Mrs. Fred Jacobus of Elizabeth and Adolph Lins of Newark. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at the house and the sermon was preached by Rev. Harold P. Sloan. The burial was at Bay View cemetery at Atlantic Highlands.

DIED AT AGE OF 87 YEARS.

Lawrence Noonan of Middletown Passed Away Last Night.

Lawrence Noonan of Middletown township died last night at the home of his son-in-law, William Kane. Mr. Noonan was 87 years old. Death was due to old age. Mr. Noonan was born in Ireland and came to this country when a young man. He located in Middletown township and was a farmer until a few years ago. Mrs. Noonan died about 25 years ago and since then Mr. Noonan had made his home with Mr. Kane near Middletown. Besides his daughter he leaves twelve grandchildren and three great grandchildren. The funeral will be held Saturday morning at ten o'clock at St. James's church. The body will be buried at Mt. Olivet cemetery.

William McDermott died Wednesday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Charles Dennis of River street, of tuberculosis. He was 38 years old and had been in poor health for some time. Mr. McDermott was born at Red Bank and had lived here all his life. He leaves two sisters, Mrs. Dennis and Mrs. James Duncan of Eatontown, and a brother, Henry McDermott of Branch avenue. The funeral was held Friday morning at St. James's church and the burial was made in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

HALEY TO FIGHT THE MAYOR.

Storekeeper Will Try to Recover Chewing Gum Machine.

Edward M. Haley has engaged Lawyer A. J. C. Stokes of Freehold to represent him in an action which he intends to bring to recover a chewing gum machine which was taken from his store and concealed two weeks ago. The machine was removed by policemen acting under orders from Mayor George M. Sandt. It was confiscated on the claim that it was a gambling device. Mr. Haley says that it is not a gambling machine, and it will be on this contention that he will try to recover it.

Odd Fellows Active.

Three degree teams will be organized next Monday night at a meeting of Navesink Lodge of Odd Fellows of Red Bank. The teams will work under the direction of Prof. H. K. Allstrom. The lodge officials are making a special effort for a large attendance at the meeting, as considerable business is to be transacted in addition to the formation of the degree teams.

CANOE STOLEN.

Craft Owned by Stanley Danner Stolen from Boat House.

A canoe belonging to Stanley Danner of Hudson avenue was stolen Monday night from a boat house on the river bank owned by Dr. Edwin C. Field of West Front street. TIED HARD AND FAST

Thousands Are Bound to Their Beds By Rheumatism.

Rheumatism is one of the most crippling diseases known to medical science. It attacks old and young in all conditions of life, and if allowed to go on unchecked it works havoc almost indescribable.

How many people there are who know the terrible pains of this disease, who are deformed and twisted in limb, and to whom every little change in the weather means agony upon agony.

We wait every sufferer from rheumatism in any form to know there is sure help for them, and we are spending thousands of dollars to place before the public the merits of Kline's Rheumatic Remedy—nature's own remedy for rheumatism. It has cured more cases of rheumatism than all others combined. It offers sure and permanent relief. Get a bottle today, say "got it by rheumatism." Mere Man

Story of the Wooing of the Fair Miss Mae Pope.

By FANNIE HURST

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

With exquisite precision Miss Mae Pope—Mae, please—fastened a yellow silk scarf, fringe edged, over one corner of the parlor mantelpiece. A blonde shepherd fastened the drape in place and smiled down the length of his shelf at a blonde shepherdess who leaned across a blonde railing and returned the identical smile.

Between the two a gilt framed photograph of Miss Mae Pope, taken at the age of fifteen, held center place. Accurately posed in a white frock and contumacious veil, her figure was the exact result of a rigid vertebra and a photographer's brace.

Miss Pope took up the gilt frame, breathed upon its face, polished the glass protection and replaced it upon its lace mat.

"Maw," she called, "ain't you done with them supper dishes yet?"

Almost immediately Mrs. Pope appeared between the portieres, wiping her moist pink hands on a towel.

"Say, what do you think this here is, the Waldorf-Astoria? If you're in such a hurry why don't you come out and eat your own ham and slice your own bread?"

"For land's sake, maw, I ain't deaf!"

"The sandwiches is ready," she retorted irrelevantly enough, "and the glasses and root beer is on the tray. In my day girls didn't set up to their young men this way."

"When I keep company with a gentleman friend like Mr. Sarpy you ain't got no kick coming."

"I ain't sayin' nothin' 'll I've seen him. Men are a deceivin' lot. You can't tell nothin' about 'em."

"Ain't I told you three times, maw, that he's been in the gents' furnishing four months? Virginia Tompkins used to know him when he was in the white goods over at Tracy's. He's the goods all right."

"Huh!" said Mrs. Pope. "He ain't set up to another girl on the floor but me?"

"That fer all you know."

"If it wasn't that I was put over on the book sale, I never would have seen him. He's the smart kind, he is. There ain't a noon hour he don't come over to the books and read around."

"Then what's he settin' up to you fer?" Mrs. Pope sniffed suspiciously. "You ain't nothin' in the book line."

"I can't keep a fellow from getting stuck on me, can I?" Miss Pope lowered her eyes.

"Sixty-seven dollars ain't bad money," asserted the mother.

"Sixty-seven fifty," corrected her daughter.

"Just gimme one look at him an' I'll know more about him 'n you and Virginia Tompkins together."

"Per land's sake, maw, don't fergit what to say when I make you acquainted."

Mrs. Pope glanced at her daughter with intent to wither. "I knew man-plant fingers, and his knuckles rested against her palm.

"Maw! You're named after the fairest month in the year."

She giggled and turned her reddening face from him.

"Oh, Mr. Sarpy?"

His knuckles pressed her closer.

"Divinely tall and most divinely fair!" he quoted.

He could see the color creep higher into her face.

"Will you be mine, little one?" he whispered in a tone that qualified him for juvenile roles in a stock company.

For some inexplicable reason, known only to her sex and kind, Miss Pope's eyes were suddenly blurred with tears.

"I say, you ain't never met maw, have you?"

"No, no, I never had the pleasure."

Mr. Sarpy's neck darted unthinkingly again.

"Well, what-a you know about that, and I been talkin' about you ever since I got the book shift! I'll call her this minute."

Mr. Sarpy had raised himself from the divan.

"Please don't let me disturb," he began, but Miss Pope had propped, light as breeze, between the portieres that patterned like rain.

"Oh, maw!" Her voice came back to him like a bell. "Oh, maw, dear, would you stop readin' long enough to step into the parlor and meet Mr. Sarpy?"

Mrs. Pope laid aside a large woolen arrangement she was knitting and rose stiffly from her chair. Her spotted silk dress rustled.

In that brief moment Miss Pope straightened the maternal neckband, whispered a final admonition in her mother's very red ear and danced back into the parlor.

"Maw'll be here in just a minute," Mr. Sarpy. "She's always readin'!"

Presently Mrs. Pope hove in. She rattled when she walked, and after you had regarded her for a bit the large white spots on her black gown began to magnify and rotate until the gift of sight became a curse.

"Maw, I want to make you acquainted with my friend Mr. Sarpy."

"Pleased to meet you, maw," Mr. Sarpy bowed to a careful angle.

"Pleased to meet you, sir. Nice weather, ain't it?"

"It is that," carefully reseating himself.

"Maw says you work at the Biggest store too."

"Yes, maw; I'm in the aisle adjoining to the books."

"Well, well, so books is your special line."

"No'm," Mr. Sarpy spoke with some reluctance. "I'm in the gents' furnishing—next aisle to the books."

"So gents' furnishing is your particular line?"

"No, maw; I have been in the hardware and in the white goods."

"Maw, why don't you sing for your friend? She ain't got a bad singin' voice when she's in practice."

With her forefinger Mae traced a pattern on the brocade.

"Aw, maw," she remonstrated and glanced out of one eye at Mr. Sarpy.

"I'd be pleased to hear you sing, Miss Pope."

"And me with such a cold!" But she spread herself over the piano stool and cast her eyes in modest fashion at a remote angle of the ceiling.

After a long and fervent crescendo the performer swung lightly around on her stool.

"You play just grand," said Mr. Sarpy.

"Oh, you jollyer, and me with such a cold!"

"Maybe Mr. Sarpy would like some refreshments, Mae."

The root beer and sandwiches were served. Mr. Sarpy partook with dignity and reserve.

"Do have another sandwich, Mr. Sarpy."

"No, thank you." He placed his glass on the mantelpiece and flicked his lips with his handkerchief. Miss Pope coughed twice behind her hand, and her mother rose.

"I guess I'll be saying good night, Mr. Sarpy. Us old folks ain't so spry on our legs as you young ones."

Miss Pope blushed.

"Good night, Mrs. Pope. I'm pleased that I met you."

"Same to you," said Mrs. Pope, closing the folding doors behind her.

He bowed her out. Miss Pope remained at the center table, ruffling the leaves of a book idly through her fingers. Mr. Sarpy returned to her side.

"Your mother's a pleasant, intelligent lady."

"We think she's nice," she replied archly.

He took the book gently from her hand.

"What are you reading?" He held it sideways and read the title, his face brightening.

"Lucille." Oh, Miss Pope, are you fond of Lucille too?

"I just love it. She's my favorite."

They talked in subdued tones, and after awhile he wandered over to the hearth, took the gilt framed photograph from off the mantelpiece and regarded it thoughtfully.

"That old thing?" she objected.

"That old thing's six years old."

"It's just beautiful," he said softly.

"Now, you stop your jollyin'!"

Mr. Sarpy, in whose blood ran the corpuscles of philosophy, studied the picture with a thoughtful pucker between his eyes.

"From the child to the woman; from the communion veil to the wedding veil."

There was a crucial pause.

"You got such a poetical way about you!" she whispered.

He moved nearer, and their faces, startled and flushed, were reflected in the mirror.

"Guess what I'm thinking?" he asked.

"Oh, you!" she gasped, with a telepathy that would have roused asleep.

"You're just my style of a girl, Miss Pope. If I do say it myself, I'm not like most fellows, that want a girl to be pretty and nothing else. I like them to know about books and things. That's what I say."

"I've always been that a-way," she confessed.

"You aren't like other girls." The perennial phrase fell fresh from his lips.

"If I thought you meant it."

"I do." His hand worked open her

plant fingers, and his knuckles rested against her palm.

"Maw! You're named after the fairest month in the year."

She giggled and turned her reddening face from him.

"Oh, Mr. Sarpy?"

His knuckles pressed her closer.

"Good night, Mrs. Pope. I'm pleased that I met you."

"Same to you," said Mrs. Pope, closing the folding doors behind her.

He bowed her out. Miss Pope remained at the center table, ruffling the leaves of a book idly through her fingers. Mr. Sarpy returned to her side.

"Your mother's a pleasant, intelligent lady."

"We think she's nice," she replied archly.

He took the book gently from her hand.

"What are you reading?" He held it sideways and read the title, his face brightening.

"Lucille." Oh, Miss Pope, are you fond of Lucille too?

"I just love it. She's my favorite."

They talked in subdued tones, and after awhile he wandered over to the hearth, took the gilt framed photograph from off the mantelpiece and regarded it thoughtfully.

"That old thing?" she objected.

"That old thing's six years old."

"It's just beautiful," he said softly.

"Now, you stop your jollyin'!"

Mr. Sarpy, in whose blood ran the corpuscles of philosophy, studied the picture with a thoughtful pucker between his eyes.

"From the child to the woman; from the communion veil to the wedding veil."

There was a crucial pause.

"You got such a poetical way about you!" she whispered.

He moved nearer, and their faces, startled and flushed, were reflected in the mirror.

"Guess what I'm thinking?" he asked.

"Oh, you!" she gasped, with a telepathy that would have roused asleep.

"You're just my style of a girl, Miss Pope. If I do say it myself, I'm not like most fellows, that want a girl to be pretty and nothing else. I like them to know about books and things. That's what I say."

"I've always been that a-way," she confessed.

"You aren't like other girls." The perennial phrase fell fresh from his lips.

"If I thought you meant it."

"I do." His hand worked open her

Arkansaw Bill

How His Elimination Was Accomplished

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

Away back in the fifties when the town of Deadshot began to think of taking on the line of civilization the question was how to make a beginning. Men had gone elsewhere for wives, who had consented to marry them and go to Deadshot without being aware of what kind of place it was. Families had sprung up about these couples, and it is generally conceded that a place containing women and children requires different management from one in which there are only men and the only law is gun law. Nevertheless the shooting went on, and in due time there were a number of fatherless widows and children made fatherless.

For some time there was talk of stopping the gun play, but nothing was done till three little children, whose mother had died a natural death, were deprived of their father by an unnatural one. This came home to the citizens of Deadshot, inasmuch as they felt obliged to provide for the children. The grumblings were loud and long, and the desire to stop the gun play received a new impetus. A knot of men were standing on the only street in the town discussing the matter when Andrew Hunker, grinding his quid with a pair of jumbo jaws, said:

"Gents, so long as we was all men together the gun was a first rate article for our differences, bein' much more effective and less expensive than by a court of law. But with women and children among us it's different. It's unjust that a woman should be deprived of her husband and his support because he's suspected of holdin' two aces of clubs when there's only one in a regulation pack. And when a widower with children is put out o' business the care of his children falls on the town."

"Now, I recommend that we have an orphan asylum in Deadshot, to be paid for by them as gits the better of sich as differs with 'em. Supposin' we start a fund for the purpose in this way: Any man as bores a hole in another in Deadshot pays a thousand dollars for the privilege. When the first thousand turns up we'll begin the buildin' o' the asylum, and every thousand comin' in after that goes to carryin' on the good work."

"That's all very well," remarked Cy Atkins, "but who's goin' to levy on the man that bores the hole?"

Mr. Hunker ground his quid a trifle harder and answered:

"I take it for granted that the gentl'men of this yere town has turned again hole borin', particularly in the bodies of fathers o' kids. I offer myself as one to enforce the penalty, and I haven't any doubt that I kin git all the assistance I need."

This clinched the argument, and the same evening a copy of the decree, signed by a self constituted committee, was posted throughout the town. Mr. Hunker's name, written in a style to remind one of John Hancock on the Declaration of American Independence, led the rest, and those who were disposed to succor at the document, on seeing his signature, desisted. The women approved, seeing in the edict a promise of being able to keep their husbands.

For several days after the posting of the notice the town of Deadshot was like the 5th of July. Not a pistol cracked. Some of the men were seen going about without their revolvers at their hips, indicating that they would rather get shot than be held for the thousand dollar penalty. But by and by the notices, moistened by the rain, did not look so formidable, and there were signs that they were forgotten or at least had lost their terror.

One morning two shots in quick succession rang out in a cabin where two men were playing cards. A third shot followed a few seconds later. The signers of the edict gathered at the scene of controversy and found Ben Rogers on the floor stone dead with two bullet holes in him. Jim Murphy was unhurt.

Mr. Hunker stepped up to Murphy and demanded his arms. Murphy, who still held his revolver, looked inquiringly into his face, then at six men backing him, all having cocked weapons in their hands, and surrendered.

The body being examined, it was found to contain two holes. The committee, after due consideration, decided that Murphy must pay $1,000 a hole.

The decision staggered the citizens of Deadshot. Some declared that Murphy, having fired in self defense, was not liable to the fine. Others declared that $2,000 for two holes, especially when one would have killed the man receiving it, was exorbitant. The committee gave out that the price of boring holes in human flesh was rising and they were thinking of making it 50 per cent higher. They had nothing to do with any other consideration than enforcing the payment due from hole borers at so much a hole.

Murphy was a gambler, and, since he never played to lose, he had plenty of funds with which to pay his fine. He added $500 as a voluntary subscription, making the nest egg for the orphan asylum $2,500. A hundred dollars was expended for a lot and material was bought for the building.

After this more men left their guns at home, and Deadshot was showing signs of much peacefulness when a new element of trouble came into the town in the person of a man from the south whose real name was not known, but who passed as Arkansaw Bill. He gave evidence of being a desperado. He knew nothing of the firmness of the committee in carrying out the edict against hole boring, and he held a law against gun play in contempt. He announced that any man who was disposed to interfere with him would get holed, and since hole boring was a right he did not intend to pay for exercising it.

Arkansaw Bill at once proceeded to make a nuisance of himself. He insisted on being admitted to games of chance, cheated and when taken to bank instead of showing his needier invited him to put a hole in him. Bill was doubtless ready to defend himself. What he wanted was to take advantage of his enemy's indisposition to pay $1,000 for shooting him to put the orphan asylum edict into disrepute. He insulted the women, choosing those who had no men whose duty it was to protect them.

It is very hard to make a law that will not on occasion work disadvantageously. Any man attempting to put Arkansaw Bill out of the way must pay $1,000 for the privilege, and for every additional hole that was necessary to do the job he must pay an additional thousand. And this was not the worst of it. Arkansaw Bill was known to be a marvellously quick shot, and any man backing him was likely to get holed instead of holing him.

A meeting of the committee was called to decide upon some way of getting rid of Arkansaw Bill. It was moved that in case any one put a hole in him the fine should be remitted. The motion was carried, but since any one bent on putting a hole in the desperado was liable to get a hole in himself the remission of the fine did not especially improve matters. No one seemed inclined to tackle him. Andrew Hunker proposed a simultaneous attack upon the enemy, agreeing to fire the first shot. But his proposition did not meet with favor; one or more lives of good citizens were liable to be paid for that of a villain. It was considered advisable that some stratagem should be devised by which he could be eliminated without fine.

In the first place no one was sufficiently inventive to produce such a stratagem, and in the second the consensus of opinion was in favor of a fair fight even if it was desirable to eliminate one of the combatants. It was finally proposed by Mr. Hunker that each man tackle Arkansaw Bill until some one of them downed him. This proposition meeting with favor, Mr. Hunker offered himself as the first victim. It is to the credit of the others that they declined to accept his offer, averring that lots should be drawn to determine who should be first, second, third, and so on till the six members of the committee each had a place in the proceedings.

Six numbers were written on as many bits of paper, from one to six inclusive, and placed in a hat. Then the men successively put a hand in the hat and drew a number. He who drew No. 1 was Abe Billings, a man with a wife and four children. Hunker begged to be permitted to change numbers with him, but Billings would not consent, and the meeting, each man having promised secrecy, broke up. Billings was to choose his own time for doing the job and was not required to give any notice to any one. In case he was killed in the attempt he was to make, the man who had drawn No. 2 was to make another, and so on till Arkansaw Bill or the six men should be eliminated.

Twenty-four hours passed, and both Abe and Bill still lived. During the second night after the lots had been drawn several shots in quick succession were heard coming from the direction of the quarters occupied by the desperado. Every man of the committee believed that Bill or Abe—perhaps both—had bitten the dust. Every one of them got out of bed and hurried to the scene of the fray. Abe's cabin was lighted. His children were running about in their nightgowns, but neither their father nor mother was visible.

One by one the committee as it passed Abe's quarters asked the children what had happened, but getting no coherent response hurried on toward Arkansaw Bill's cabin. They met Mrs. Billings coming away. Asked what had occasioned the firing, for reply she turned and led them to Bill's house. There in the doorway lay a body. Some one struck a match, held it to the dead man's face and lighted up Bill's ashen features.

"Who did it?" asked Hunker.

"I did it," replied Mrs. Billings calmly. "I called him to the door and shot him."

"Where's Abe?"

was held at the bridge store Friday night. Grandin V. Johnson, president of the company, was toastmaster, and the speakers were Mayor Harry N.
Johnson, Fred Bedle, L. M. Parker,
William Teaney, S. C. Brown and Rev.
Thomas H. Hicks. The guests of the company were Rev. Mr. Hicks, Mrs.
Mary Johnson, Mrs. C. Mell Johnson,
Miss Annie Chapman, C. Mell Johnson, Jr., Steward Fladger, George E.
Jenkinson, Jr., Dr. George Taylor,
Dr. J. L. Olfertman, Dr. George W. Samuel and Mayor Johnson. Members and employees of the company who were present were G. V. Johnson,
William Teaney, Edgar Patterson,
Ethel Johnson, Margaret Kieley, Ivy
Branson, Joseph Menzopane, George
Anderson, John Quinn, Mr. Manning,

ing, L. M. Parker, Eleanor Bedle, Sylvia Hagaman, Evelyn Foster, Marion Cottrell, Daphne Layton, Edith Johnson, John Garity, S. C. Brown and Peter Scalia.

Carl Wilson of Seabright, who was employed as engineer of a steam boiler used to run machinery used in building a new bulkhead between here and Normandie, was badly injured last week when the boiler exploded. Mr. Wilson was struck by flying pieces of iron and was badly cut and bruised. He also received a number of bad scalds from hot water and steam.

The Highlands lodge of Foresters will hold a reception and dance at Krusse's pavilion on Saturday night.
U. Grant Johnson is chairman of the committee in charge of the dance.
Saturday night of next week a shirt waist dance will be held at the pavilion for the benefit of Twilight Council of Daughters of Liberty.

The steamers Albertina of the Red Bank line and Thomas Patten of the Patten line were delayed about two hours off the Water Witch dock Monday afternoon as a result of the Albertina running aground. The Thomas Patten had to wait until the tide arose sufficiently to let the Albertina off the sand bar, as the channel at that point is too narrow to let two boats pass.

A "trip around the world" will start at the Methodist church on Friday at five o'clock in the afternoon.
The houses of five members of the church will be visited, and at each house a different course in a dinner will be served.

William L. Rowland represented the Highlands firemen at a convention of the firemen's relief association at Atlantic City last week. Mr. Rowland took a party from Atlantic Highlands to the convention in his auto.

Miss Viola Johannes, a summer resident of Shrewsbury avenue, is recovering from an injury to her hand caused by a fall.

Miss Edith Hunter of Navesink avenue has returned from a three-weeks' visit with her brother and sister at Melrose, Massachusetts.

Morris Rosenbaum of Bay avenue is a new auto owner. Mr. Rosenbaum bought an Overland touring car on Monday.

Paul S. Cutter of Spring Lake, a former employee of Antonides's pharmacy at Atlantic Highlands, was a visitor of friends in town Monday.

Harry Sculthorpe and family have returned from a motor trip to Delaware Water gap.

C. Mell Johnson, Jr., left here Monday to resume his studies at Bucknell university, where he is in the sophomore class.

Joseph Silverstein of Belmar was in town Monday canvassing for votes for the primary election.

The regular council meeting has been postponed from Monday night to next Monday night on account of the sickness of Mayor Johnson.

Water Witch.

The families of George French and Dr. Clarence E. Field held a clam bake at Sandy Hook Sunday.

A. Ernest Dennett of Barberville avenue has been suffering from "poison oak" as a result of picking some unknown foliage on Plum island last week. Poison oak is a poison similar to ivy poisoning, except there is no swelling.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Crawford of Newark, who are about to build a summer residence here, are spending a few weeks at the San Francisco fair.

Mrs. Mary Smith is occupying her place on Washington avenue for a few weeks. Mrs. Smith recently returned from a short stay with her mother in Ireland. Work will be started soon on a new house for Mrs.
Smith's occupancy on Water Witch avenue.

Dr. L. Inghis and family closed their summer home here Monday and moved to Paterson for the winter.

John Botner and family returned Sunday to their winter home at Jersey City.

Jacob May and family have closed their Barberville avenue home for the winter and moved to New York.

SHREWSBURY NEWS.

Killer of Many Chickens is Slain— Euchre Party.

A dog which had been making nightly raids on Louis V. Bell's chickens was killed Sunday night by one of the employees on the farm. The man lay in wait for the dog, and he had to be on watch till midnight before he got a shot at the animal. The dog had killed eighty chickens and a number of turkeys.

The firemen will hold a euchre party and dance next Wednesday night in the firehouse.

Mrs. A. Holmes Borden returned Sunday from a sojourn of six weeks in Canada.

William Hoffman has opened an automobile repairing business in Harry G. Borden's building, part of which is rented by E. W. Johnson as a blacksmith and wheelwright shop and by John Everham as a wagon painting shop.

A number of tree doctors are employed on Louis V. Bell's place.

Patrick Murray, who has been working for J. Wright Brown, will move next Monday to New York.

Monday was the biggest day this year for potato shipments. More than 1,000 barrels of potatoes were sent from the station.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Allen Hudson are home from a sojourn of two weeks in the New England states. They will go to Short Hills for the winter on October 15th.

Miss May Pierce returned on Sunday from a stay of two weeks at
New York.

Edward Lawes has closed his ice cream, candy and tobacco store for the winter.

The ladies' aid society of the Central Baptist church will meet tomorrow afternoon at the parsonage.

The second and third quarterly conference was held at the Methodist church after the service last Sunday night. Rev. James W. Marshall, district superintendent, presided at the meeting, and the pastor, Rev. Joseph C. Kulp, was unanimously invited to return for his third year. Forman A.
Cossboom led the Epworth league meeting Sunday night. Fred A.
White, musical director at the church, has added about half a dozen young men and women to the church choir.

The ushers' union will meet tomorrow night at the parsonage.

Rev. George H. Gardner of Highland avenue spent last Wednesday at South River.

Rally day will be observed at the Methodist church on Sunday, October 10th.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen A. Powell of Seventh avenue have returned from a visit of ten days with friends in Connecticut.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Erskine moved this week from their house on Third avenue to their winter home at
New York.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Franklin of Third avenue spent last week at Asbury Park. In Mr. Franklin's absence, Miss Margaret Kearns took charge of the borough office.

Miss Iona Curtis of Valley Drive is enjoying a vacation of two weeks from her duties as night operator at the telephone office.

Miss Maude Ewing of Highland avenue has gone to Wilmington,
North Carolina, to spend the winter with her sister, Mrs. Frank Hall.

Postmaster Thomas Hennessey of Port Hancock and Frank Chapman of this place have rented the store in the Ralph block on First avenue, formerly occupied as a feed store by Peter S. Conover. The men will remodel the store and will use it as a show room for automobiles. They will also deal in automobile supplies.
The store will be open for business in a few days.

Percy Falkenberg of Third and Washington avenues is recovering from a serious sickness caused by asthma and a heavy cold. Friday night Mr. Falkenberg's condition was critical and a physician was in attendance all night.

The election of officers of the senior class of the high school was held last week. Philip Dinkelberg, who was president of his class last year, was re-elected to the office for the senior term. Natalie Hall is vice president, Evelyn Foster secretary and Dorothy Sampson treasurer.

Belle Good Cross, an actress who has a summer home at Leonardo, underwent a serious operation at a New York hospital last week. While here during the summer she was under the care of Dr. J. H. VanMater.

Miss Lola Dunne, who graduated from Leonardo high school last June, is enrolled in a girls' college at New Pochelle, New York.

Miss Margaret R. Todd, who is employed as bookkeeper in J. G.
Brookes' grocery store, started on a two weeks' vacation Saturday.

At a business meeting at the close of the church service Sunday morning, Rev. George H. Gardner was appointed a delegate from the Central Baptist church to a meeting of the Monmouth association at Long Branch on October 6th and 7th. The boys' choir from St. Paul's colored church sang at the evening service on Sunday. Communion service will be observed next Sunday morning, and at night the pastor will give a "chuck talk." Corwin K. Linsion will draw pictures on a blackboard while Rev.

Mr. Gardner gives the address.

TINTON FALLS NEWS.

Edward Eagan Moves in Mrs. C. C.
Cooper's House.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Eagan, who have been living with Mr. Eagan's father, John Eagan, have moved into
Mrs. C. C. Cooper's house on Water street. This house was recently repainted and otherwise improved.

Crawford Bros., who are engaged in the wholesale butcher business, are buying large quantities of hogs from farmers in this neighborhood. One day last week they received eight carloads of swine which they had bought from farmers in the vicinity of Asbury Park.

George Coleman will open a meat market at Eatontown on Friday.

Mrs. William Gilmartin went to a New York hospital last week to undergo treatment for sickness. She was recently operated on at the hospital.

Dr. Herman Reiman will move next week to New York from his summer home on the Pine Brook road.

Miss Agnes Dean has been spending several days with her sister, Mrs.
Mary McGuire of Elberon.

Mrs. Lynch, president of the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, was here on a visit of inspection last week. She stopped a number of teamsters who were working on the Pine Brook road and she made them take the harness off their horses so that she could examine the animals. She found a great deal of fault with the manner in which the men are keeping their animals. The men say that her criticism was unjustified and that she could employ her time to better purpose than by annoying people who have to earn a living by the sweat of their brows.

Large shipments of potatoes are being made by the farmers of this section. Many of them held back harvesting their crops on account of the heat and the low prices, but the work of harvesting is now under way in full swing.

Minister's Family in Need.

Mrs. J. Milo Robinson, wife of the deposed pastor of the Asbury Park Congregational church, and her three small children were discovered to be in destitute circumstances by neighbors last week. A fund was started to raise money enough to send Mrs.
Robinson to the home of her parents in the West. Her children will be cared for there and Mrs. Robinson will resume teaching of music.
