MATAWAN INFERNO — Flames rage out of control, destroying Bell's Foodtown Supermarket, Main St., Matawan, early this morning as firefighters pour water onto blaze. Ten companies from the borough, Matawan Township, Keyport and Morganville responded to general alarm bringing 19 pieces of equipment and more than 200 firemen.

Fire Destroys Supermarket In Matawan Business Area

By JAMES M. NEILLAND
MATAWAN — Fire early this morning destroyed Bell's Foodtown Supermarket, Main St., threatened the adjoining Matawan Wines and Liquors Store and downed seven firemen, a first aid man and a teenage boy.

Foodtown owners Calvin M. Bell and Martin F. Bell, brothers, were unable to estimate immediately dollar loss on the structure, but they said inventory in the store was at its peak, ready for weekend shoppers.

Sound Alarm
The fire was first seen by three youths driving by in a car. One of the trio ran to a nearby alarm box and sounded the first alarm at 1:16 a.m.

Minutes later, as the first men and equipment reached the scene, the structure was a roaring inferno. A general alarm was sounded.

Four companies from this borough's department, Fireman Independent, both Matawan Township companies, two companies from Keyport and one from Morganville responded. From Keyport came that borough's aerial ladder truck which was credited with containing the blaze to the food store.

Insufficient water pressure hampered efforts to quell the flames, necessitating water being pumped from Matawan and Lefters Lakes and from the Matawan Lake dam.

Matawan Fire Chief Patrick Longo directed operations of the 10 companies, consisting of 19 pieces of equipment and some 200 firefighters. Seven ambulances from the borough, township and Keyport stood by, manned by 35 aid men and three doctors who treated the injured, identified as Robert Ziegler, Russell Bucko of Haley Hose Co. and Richard Hackman of Washington Engine Co. were treated in Riverview Hospital, Red Bank. They suffered severe smoke inhalation. All others were treated at the scene. They were

Financial Woes Plague Keansburg

KEANSBURG — The borough's financial woes continued to plague the governing body last night as it was forced to adopt a $2,900 emergency appropriation to meet current expenses.

Several weeks ago Mayor Leonard S. Bellezza let it be known that the borough's financial condition was poor because, he said, the current operating budget was kept slim by the previous administration.

Last night it was announced that emergency funds would be needed to cover cost of a salary for the dump caretaker, civil defense incidental expenses and election costs.

Specifically, $1,200 has been appropriated in the emergency measure for the dump custodian, $500 for civil defense and $1,200 for elections.

Two weeks ago, James A. McCarthy, Jr., borough auditor, said that the main problem was the need for an increase in the rate of tax collections. He said one or two accounts were close to being expended up but that he would not be able to give a clear picture until later in the year.

In other business at the brief session, Mrs. Genevieve Boden was reappointed tax collector and Mrs. Mae Strauch, treasurer.

Named to a Port of Authority were John Conlon, Franklin Jackson, Anthony Auer, Wallace E. Schaab and Kenneth Robinson.

A three-man traffic study committee was also appointed. William Bowman, Dominick Melevo and Lawrence McDermott will make up the group.

Mayor Bellezza said the committee would study the traffic situation in the borough and make recommendations on the need for traffic lights, stop streets and other regulatory devices.

U.S. Planes in Viet Strike Near Red Chinese Border

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. war planes flew closer today to the Red Chinese border than ever before on an air strike over North Viet Nam, a U.S. military spokesman said.

Three Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs bombed a highway bridge only 41 miles from the Chinese frontier, the spokesman said. The raiders destroyed the bridge 105 miles northwest of Hanoi and also cratered the Yen Bay railroad yards 80 miles northwest of the Communist capital.

Heavy Groundfire
The pilots reported heavy Communist groundfire, but the spokesman said all planes returned safely.

In raids last week, U.S. bombers hit targets 43 miles from Communist China.

In the only other raid on North Viet Nam reported today, eight F4 Starfighters destroyed 20 buildings and damaged numerous others at the Dong Cao Then barracks 60 miles inside Communist territory, the spokesman said.

He also reported heavy air action against the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam and scattered clashes on the ground.

The Viet Cong kept up pressure on troops of the U.S. 1st Division Wednesday night for the fourth consecutive night. American casualties again were reported light and the infiltrators were repulsed.

Casualties Light
Beginning about 9 p.m. guerrillas fired mortars and small arms at 1st Division positions east of the big Bien Hoa air base 12 miles north of Saigon.

"It didn't last very long and American casualties were very light," a U.S. spokesman said.

Through most of the night, a newsman with the troops reported, guerrillas tried unsuccessfully to slip through a sector held by the 2nd Battalion of the division's 18th Regiment. The unit, which has seen much of this week's action, was well dug in and this enabled it to drive off the infiltrators, he said. Although the number of American casualties was not disclosed, two men were wounded when a grenade, thrown at the Viet Cong, hit a bunker, bounced back and exploded.

The 1st Division troops landed in Viet Nam last week. There was no damage assessment yet from Wednesday's raid by 30 B52 bombers of the Strategic Air Command on the D zone jungle area 30 miles north of Saigon.

Washington (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says it is "anticipated on our side" that the war in Viet Nam may continue for 10 years — while the Communist side talks of 20.

Top level White House talks resume today, with military emphasis, on what the Montana senator called "an ordeal of indefinite duration and increasing sacrifice which will persist until the problem can be resolved at the conference table."

Mansfield spoke in the Senate Wednesday night at the end of a long day during which the highest officials of government reviewed the word Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara brought back at dawn from Viet Nam. The White House said no announcement on these deliberations will be made until after the strategy talks are concluded.

But it was plain from the little McNamara did say publicly that he is urging the dispatch of many more U.S. troops to the embattled Asian country. The Viet Cong strength of 165,000, swollen by the infiltration of regular troops from North Viet Nam, compares with South Viet Nam government forces of about 500,000, he said, and that is a "totally unacceptable ratio" for guerrilla war.

There was unofficial talk of sending 100,000 more U.S. troops to bolster the 75,000 already there.

The White House talks

Raritan Selects Site for School

By FRANK W. HARBOUR
RARITAN TOWNSHIP — The Board of Education has selected a site for the township's 10th school—but it may have to go to court to take title.

Planned is a 34-classroom intermediate building—a new concept for this district, fourth largest in Monmouth County. The building will house all township public school children in grades six, seven and eight. It will be the first departure ever in Raritan from the "neighborhood" school concept.

The site selected by the board is on the east side of Poole Ave., 600 feet south of Rt. 36.

Board attorney Arthur D. Loring will start negotiations today for 17 acres of the 34-acre parcel.

The Planning Board has been consulted on suitability of the site. Indications are, the board will approve the site, members report, for school use, in preference to housing construction.

Seek to Build Houses
According to board members, the 34 acres have recently been purchased by a builder who will seek to subdivide the property.

George Reseter, vice president of the school board, confirmed this last night.

He said the board may have to take court action — specifically condemnation proceedings — to obtain the property.

In this eventuality, it was learned, the board would have the support of the Township Committee which, for several years, has attempted to slow the pace of residential building here to assist in getting the school system off double sessions.

The committee last year wound up a 4½-year $40,000 legal fight in the "Raritan Valley USA" case which although it did not stop that residential project provided the school board with a time span to get several hundred students on full sessions.

Of the Poole Ave. site, Mr. Reseter commented:

Termed Ideal
"For an intermediate school, it is ideal. It is centrally located and will keep bus transportation to a minimum. The board is agreed on this."

He said, however, that if in the end the property cannot be acquired the board will consider other sites, including the grape farm, on Poole Ave. off Rt. 35, and the Brennan tract, Union Ave.

The grape farm is less than 17 acres, he reported, and the Brennan tract is to some extent marshland.

The board estimates that condemnation might take from two to six months or longer if there were appeals. The time factor and difficulty in acquiring the site will be the key to the board's moves during the next 30 days.

If Mr. Loring reports that legal action will be necessary and may be protracted, forcing a lengthy delay of construction plans, the board could switch sites.

Urges Middletown Speed Reorganization of Police

MIDDLETOWN — Township Committee Edward J. Roth insisted last night that reorganization of the police department be completed.

After some discussion on the question, the governing body agreed that steps will be taken to speed the process.

Mr. Roth and Committee member Martin V. Lawlor were ready to introduce a motion to formalize the issue but, for the time being, just hasn't been set up," replied Mr. Lawlor.

June 8 Code
Under an ordinance which was adopted June 8, the department has three divisions, uniform, which includes a patrol and traffic section; criminal investigation, and service.

Mr. Roth reported last night that Capt. Joseph McCarthy has been designated to head the criminal division, Capt. Kenneth Luker, the traffic section and that Capt. William W. Woodward is heading the patrol section.

He noted that the service division is not functioning at all, and that the department's fourth captain, William Schanck, has no official assignment, although he is attached to the patrol section.

The service division, once it is started, will be in charge of all police records and the training of policemen, particularly probationary patrolmen.

Reorganization of the department was a controversy here for two years prior to adoption of the new ordinance.

Association Survey
Reorganization was recommended in a survey compiled by the International Association of Police Chiefs.

The basic question to be decided is whether Capt. Woodward, who has seniority, or Capt. Schanck will head the patrol section.

Mr. Roth said last night that the delay in making this decision is holding back the completion of departmental reorganization.

A new records system is to be instituted once the service division is set up.

In other business, new bids for the Willett Acres sewer extension project will be received by the Township committee Aug. 10.

Probe Is Slated On Middletown Radio Problem

MIDDLETOWN — The Township Committee last night took the matter of police and township radios into its own hands and by unanimous vote agreed to conduct a full committee investigation.

The action was recommended by Committee member Martin V. Lawlor who said, "The administrator (Richard W. Seuffert) has had ample time to report to us on this but he has not seen fit to do so."

Mr. Seuffert did not attend the meeting.

Mr. Lawlor noted that the administrator had been ordered to investigate the entire issue more than a week ago.

In the resolution last night, the committee stipulated that the investigation will include these questions:

—What radio frequency the police department is to use.

—The status of the Federal Communications Commission application for high-band frequency.

—What stipulations the present 10-year radio lease contains.

FCC Delay
—Why FCC action on the high-band request has been delayed more than two months.

—A listing of all township radios and what vehicles they are in, private and public.

—An exact cost breakdown for radio leasing and services, under the present contract.

As to the addition to this contract, for 13 new high-band radios, approved by Mr. Seuffert without committee authorization and without competitive bidding, the governing body was unanimous last night in its opinion that bids must be taken for any new radios.

The 13 high-band radios ordered by Mr. Seuffert, along with a new radio base station, have been stored in town hall basement for more than two months.

Matawan Regional Meeting Wednesday

MATAWAN — The Regional Board of Education will confer next Wednesday night on plans for construction of the new Lloyd Rd., K-8 school instead of last night, as appeared in a story yesterday in The Register. The board is expected to give final approval of the plans and ship them to the state Department of Education for its approval.

Construction of the 34-room building is part of phase one of the board's long-range building program.

Medicare — Questions and Answers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are questions and answers on the two big new government health programs for the elderly in the Social Security-health care bill agreed on Wednesday by Senate-House conferees:

Q. I will soon be 65. What are the health programs in the bill which will affect me?

A. It contains a basic plan covering chiefly hospitalization and a voluntary supplemental plan paying mostly doctors' bills. You will be eligible for benefits under both when you become 65.

Q. How do I qualify under these plans?

A. You will be covered under the basic plan whether you have Social Security status or not. For the supplemental plan, you will be given the opportunity to enroll.

Q. What are the benefits of the hospital plan?

A. The basic plan pays for 90 days of hospitalization during each spell of illness. It also offers up to 100 days of nursing home care after the hospital stay, outpatient hospital diagnostic services, and up to 100 home health visits after hospitalization.

Q. Is hospital treatment for mental illness included?

A. Yes, but with a lifetime limit of 180 days.

Q. How about the supplemental medical plan?

A. This pays for doctors' bills in the home, at the doctor's office, and in the hospital. In addition, it covers a range of services not paid for by the basic plan, including diagnostic X-ray and laboratory services outside the hospital, radium therapy, ambulance services, casts, braces, prosthetic devices, rental of iron lungs and oxygen tents. Treatment outside of the hospital for mental or personality disorders would be limited in a year to $250 or 50 per cent of the expenses, whichever is smaller.

Q. What would I have to pay under these plans?

A. Under the basic plan, you would pay the first $40 cost of a hospital stay in each spell of illness. In addition, if your stay lasted longer than 60 days, you would pay $10 of the cost of hospitalization for each day beyond 60 up to a maximum of 30 additional days. For the outpatient hospital diagnostic services, you would pay the first $20 charge for tests during a 20-day period. You also would pay 20 per cent of the cost above the $20.

Q. And the supplemental plan?

A. If you decide to enroll in this, you would pay $3 a month in premiums, to be matched by the federal government. It would be $6 a month for a couple. In addition, you would pay a $50 annual deductible on the total of bills covered by the plan and you would pay 20 percent of the total charges above the $50.

Q. Are these figures permanent?

A. Not necessarily. The deductibles in the basic plan and the premiums in the voluntary plan could be raised in the future if medical costs increase.

Q. When do the plans take effect?

A. All of the benefits under the basic plan would begin July 1, 1968, except for nursing home care, which would start Jan. 1, 1967. The supplemental plan would begin July 1, 1966.

Q. What are the principal health costs which will not be covered by the health plans?

A. Drugs used outside the hospital, dental expenses including dentures, routine physicals, eyeglasses, and hearing aids. Despite these exclusions, however, the sponsors say the plans should cover about 60 per cent

Two Named To Summer Festival Unit

LONG BRANCH — Two persons were named to the Summer Festival Committee yesterday, but a third failed to receive the appointment when it was learned that he already belonged to the committee.

City Manager James F. Roosevelt appointed Howard K. Hayden and Mrs. Joseph Fisher to the committee. Both are members of the special events committee.

Ralph J. Damiano, chairman of the three-man special events committee, was also expected to be named to the Summer Festival Committee, it was learned earlier this week, but Mr. Roosevelt yesterday admitted that Mr. Damiano already belonged to the summer festival unit.

The appointments were to replace former chairman Harry Levin and two vice chairmen, Frank J. Fasano, Jr., and Bruce Robinson, who resigned last week charging confusion within the committee and lack of co-operation on the part of Mr. Roosevelt and city council.

A county newspaper had earlier this week reported that Mr. Damiano was to be named to the committee, and yesterday had editorially endorsed the choice.

The Summer Festival Committee is charged with planning and designing summer activities in the city. Among its accomplishments are the beauty pageants, fireworks and band concerts.

It was learned yesterday from sources close to the Summer Festival Committee that in 1964, when the committee was but a pilot project with a $1,500 appropriation, both Mrs. Fisher and Mr. Hayden were offered seats on the unit. Both turned them down.

This year the committee's appropriation is $8,000.

tract, Philip N. Cook, Fair Lawn, said last month that they were delivered here in error and should have been delivered to the company storage room in Fair Lawn. He said they had been left in Middletown because at the time of delivery it was thought that FCC approval was imminent.

Mayor Ernest G. Kavalek was advised of this after the meeting. He said if he had had the information before the meeting he would have voted to immediately return the radios to the contractor.

During the session, Mr. Lawlor moved that the radios be returned. He and Committeeman Edward J. Roth voted for the motion. The mayor and Committeeman Harold H. Foulks voted against it "pending further study." Committeeman Douglas R. Burke, who is on vacation, was absent. The motion lost by the tie vote.

But the mayor said after the session that at next Tuesday's meeting he will vote to return the radios.

Entry was gained by breaking a storm window on an enclosed front porch and prying open a living room window, police said.

Petrolman John Valentine and Lester Hauck head the local investigating team. They are being assisted by State Police from the Colts Neck barracks.

Mandia Suit Is Postponed One Week

FREEHOLD — There will be a one-week postponement in the case filed by Coast Cigarette Sales, Inc., Red Bank, in Superior Court against defendants Nathan E. Becker, president of Coast Cigarette, Inc., Asbury Park, his wife, Hattie, and their sons, Howard and Richard S. Becker, and Service Enterprises, Inc.

The case was to have come up for full argument today before Superior Court Judge Gene R. Mariano, but the parties now will have opportunity to settle the case.

Fort Review To Honor 12

FORT MONMOUTH — The First U.S. Army Band will participate in Saturday's garrison review on Greely Field. The review will honor three officers and nine enlisted men who are retiring at the end of this month.

Files Suit Against Head Of CORE

NEWARK (AP)—James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, was handed a warrant accusing him of libel conspiracy shortly before he addressed a civil rights rally Wednesday in Military Park.

The suit against Farmer and 11 other defendants was filed by Newark Patrolman Henry Martinez, who was suspended for 11 days last month after he shot and killed an alleged knife-wielding Negro youth.

Martinez, since exonerated, claimed in the suit that he continues to suffer mental anguish and character defamation because of adverse publicity surrounding his suspension.

He accused Farmer of conspiring in a plot to "maliciously and illegally" demand his suspension and in the publication of shooting as murder.

Farmer, under heavy police guard because of a reported threat against his life, addressed a crowd of about 700 persons at a CORE-sponsored rally aimed at dramatizing demands for the creation of a civilian police review board.

The rally was preceded by a march along Broad Street through the heart of the downtown district. Some 200 uniformed and plainclothed policemen were detailed to protect Farmer and prevent any disturbances.

Farmer told the rally: "It is not sufficient to rely on the county prosecutor to investigate complaints of police brutality. A policeman should not investigate a policeman."

"What is needed is a distinguished review board of citizens who understand the problem and who are not bigoted. We do not want anyone who believes white is right and if you are black get back."

It was Martinez's shooting off 22-year-old Lester Long Jr. on June 12 which touched off the police review board controversy. Martinez claimed he shot Long after the young Negro slashed the officer's partner with a knife and then tried to flee.

of the average medical costs of elderly persons.

Q. Will it be possible to buy private insurance to pay for the items not included in the two government plans?

A. Health insurance industry officials say that almost certainly private firms will offer supplementary policies. These, they say, could cover the extra cost of private rooms, private nurses, additional days in the hospital, dentist bills, and out-of-hospital drugs. Meanwhile, of course, any elderly person holding a private health policy should continue it until the effective dates for the government program. He should consult with his insurance agent about the wisdom of continuing his policy or perhaps switching to a supplementary one after the federal benefits begin.

Q. Now that the conferees have agreed, what happens to the bill?

A. It goes back to the Senate and House. Both chambers are expected to vote final approval next week.

It is likely that this decision on this possibility will be made at an executive session Tuesday, Mr. Reseter said.

He reiterated that all board executive sessions are open to the public, as a matter of written policy.

The total proposed bond issue will be $1.5 million. It will include an addition to the high school cafeteria.

Target date for a referendum is October.

Mr. Reseter said the board will apply to the state Department of Education Aug. 10 for preliminary approval of construction plans.

Architect Frederic Fessler, Hazlet, has completed schematic drawings, including tentative floor plans.

In addition to the classrooms, the school is to contain an all-purpose room, library, and eight-room administrative suite. There will be no cafeteria, art room or music room. The board has trimmed some facilities to cut costs.

Target date for school opening is September, 1967.

The building is designed to house 1,200 pupils.

The school will contain grades six, seven and eight through 1969 and only grades seven and eight after that.

Seeks Action

On Hudson

Regional Teacher

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS — Accompanied by five other parents, Mrs. Arthur J. Gatti appeared at last night's Henry Hudson Regional Board of Education meeting to see if any action had been taken on her complaints against a high school Spanish teacher.

At the last board meeting, Mrs. Gatti questioned both the teaching methods and the qualifications of Miss Dorothy Rowland, teacher of the school's first year Spanish course.

Answers to her questions were contained in a letter sent to Mrs. Gatti by Superintendent Harold C. Schaible.

But, terming the letter a "thinly-veiled threat" against both her son, who had received a failure notice from Miss Rowland, and her own position as a substitute teacher at the school, Mrs. Gatti stated that she would request the school board to thoroughly investigate the matter.

The other parents appearing last night backed up Mrs. Gatti. One of the other mothers present, Mrs. John Noonan, said that her son had shown a great interest in the class at the beginning of the term but that by the end of the year his Spanish classes had been reduced to mere study periods.

Board member Viola Lynch asked whether Mrs. Gatti had received a letter of apology from Miss Rowland.

The apology, directed by the board, concerned statements that had passed between the two teachers and has no reflection on the board's opinion of Miss Rowland's teaching practices, it was noted. As of last night, Mrs. Gatti had not received a letter.

Martin Mortenson, a board member, said that the group would have to hear from Miss Rowland before it could make any decision on the matter.

Miss Rowland has been invited to appear at the next board meeting July 28. Also present will be Dr. Margaret Olinger, head of the language department.

In other business, the board approved the hiring of Raymond C. Pelaschier, Westville, to teach English. His salary will be $5,350.

Bids on light bulbs were referred to the building and grounds committee for study, and will be awarded at next week's meeting.

Mr. Schaible announced that of the 121 students who graduated this year, 44 or 37 per cent have been accepted for study in schools or colleges. This is a gain of four per cent over the class of 1964, he said.

Fifteen students dropped out of school during the 1964-65 school year. This number amounts to 1.9 per cent of the total registration for the year and, Mr. Schaible noted, is well under the state's average dropout rate.

Two Held For Grand Jury

KEANSBURG — Two youths were ordered held for the Grand Jury last night by Magistrate William Lloyd in connection with the assault of a 16-year-old girl here July 9.

Donald Norman, 22, of 8 Willis Ave., this place, was held for the Grand Jury on a charge of assault with intent to commit rape.

Gregory Butler, 18, of 123 Ocean Ave., East Keansburg, was held on a charge of aiding and abetting.

A preliminary hearing on an assault charge lodged against Raymond Werner, 20, of 86 Washington Ave., Long Branch, was postponed one week.

The three youths, along with a 17-year-old juvenile, were arrested in connection with the assault.

They face hearings also next week in Union Beach.

Authorization for advertisement was voted unanimously.

On Thursday, County Court Judge Clarkson S. Fisher upheld the right of the governing body to expand the system, but ruled that a $441,292 contract for the work, with A. Campo Construction Co., was void because of faulty bid specifications.

The committee reported that it will have its engineer draw plans for repairs to a section of Whippen Rd., near Cooper Rd., and Bowne Rd., near Locust Rd. The sections were washed out during heavy rains Sunday.

The committee will also study plans for a new municipal garage. The garage probably will be constructed next year.

Township Attorney Vincent C. DeMaio reported that he has received the land option for the 14-acre Belford sewer plant site. The option was signed this week by Charles M. Cabbage, president of J. Howard Smith Inc. The committee agreed to make immediate application for additional federal funds for sewer engineering as the first step in getting the sewer program reactivated.

Mr. Roth announced that a sewer committee meeting will be held Wednesday night. Tonight's planned meeting has been cancelled, he said, because of inability to get a quorum.

MAJOR LOSS — Three hours after its start firemen continue to pour water into ruins of Bell's Foodtown Supermarket, Matawan. Fire Chief Patrick Longo ordered water pumped from Lake Lefferts and two locations on Matawan Lake. Maneuver required stretching hose 2,000 feet in two directions and 4,000 feet in another but was a factor in keeping blaze confined to supermarket. Matawan Wines and Liquors store, in background, was heavily damaged by smoke and water but flames were kept away.

Fire

Walker, 14, of 12 Maiden La. All were treated for smoke inhalation. Suffering a cut shoulder was John Mocci, Oak Shades. Mr. Bucko and Mr. Hackman were released after treatment.

Police and fire officials placed together these facts:

Gregory Munning, Sunset Ave., sounded the initial alarm when he, with Robert Brown, Broad St., and John Costello, Freneau Ave., noticed the flames and smoke inside the store.

Two other youths, Theodore Wilson, 23, of 32 Middlesex St., and Vincent Macchia, 20, of Madison Township, had been sitting in a parked car a few doors away from the store. They had noticed nothing.

Flames Raging
Patrolman Irving Nussbaum and special Officer Robert Kerek had driven by the store minutes before the alarm. They too, had seen nothing.

However, within minutes, flames were raging through the roof of the building reaching more than 125 feet into the air.

Chief Longo reported that, although the fire burned out of control for an hour and a half, it was apparent from the start that the building could not be saved. While firemen poured thousands of gallons of water into Foodtown, other hoses were utilized to wet down the liquor store building on one side and Sanford's Drug Store on the other.

The liquor store and an apartment over it were heavily damaged by smoke and water but the wetting down action prevented fire from spreading to it.

Felled by Smoke

Hoses were strung 2,000 feet north to Lake Lefferts, 2,000 feet south to Lake Matawan, and 4,000 feet east to Lake Matawan dam. Police said the Walker boy helped to remove valuables from his home which is behind the store. He was helping to clear out the apartment over the liquor store when he was felled by smoke.

Three local physicians, Dr. Aram Capitanian, Dr. Alfred Casagrandi and Dr. Michael Friedman treated the boy and the injured men.

The Bell brothers stated that the store was insured but would not comment on whether the full loss is covered. They did not answer any questions on estimated value of the store or its contents.

The family originally started the business in 1916 in what is now the liquor store. The destroyed building's first section was constructed in 1949 and, periodically, additions were built. The most recent section, a two-story rear, was completed only last year.

The building, 100 feet long and 80 feet deep, had a brick exterior which withstood heat of the flames for hours but finally began to show cracks.

The owners were advised by fire officials to have damages appraised quickly so that the walls could be razed.

More than 200 residents flocked to the fire scene. Women and girls from nearby homes brewed gallons of coffee for firemen, police and aid men.

The fire was not declared officially out until more than three hours after its start but firemen remained at the scene several more hours to clean up debris and rewind hose.

BATON ROUGE, La., (AP) — Gov. John J. McKeithen and Louisiana leaders are backing formation of a 40-man biracial committee today to nip racial tensions in the bud.

The council for a Better Louisiana recommended a state biracial advisory committee be formed at Bogalusa and Jonesboro to halt racial fires from spreading. Meanwhile, Robert Shelton the imperial wizard of the United Klans of America, has urged his followers to ignore civil rights demonstrators.

Dumont Target Of Governor

JAMESBURG (AP) — Gov. Richard J. Hughes departed from a prepared speech last night to accuse his Republican opponent in the gubernatorial race of ignoring the needs of the people of New Jersey.

The governor made the charge before an estimated 2,500 persons at the Middlesex County Democratic Organization's annual Governor's Day outing at the Forsgate Country Club.

He said state Sen. Wayne Dumont, his GOP opponent, desired to seize power without consideration for "what is good for the people of New Jersey."

Dumont's campaign, he declared, is reminiscent of "Custer's last stand." Hughes had prepared a speech praising the Democratic administration for bringing new industry to the state, but diverged from his planned remarks to fire the blast at Dumont.

Also addressing the gathering were former Democratic Gov.

Robert B. Meyner, U.S. Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-NJ, and Middlesex County Democratic Leader David T. Wilentz.

Wilentz estimated the Democrats collected $60,000 from ticket sales.

Beach Protection Experiment Set With Artificial Seaweed

POINT PLEASANT, (AP) — apart on the grid, which will be planted Aug. 5 about 800 feet off shore, parallel to the coastline and in 15 feet of water. Each cluster of seaweed will be six feet high, allowing for nine feet of clearance for passing boats. About 12 tons of lead weights will be required to keep the grid from floating away.

The state of New Jersey is going to try and find out next month. In co-operation with a Philadelphia plastics manufacturer, Avison Corp., it plans to "plant" a grid of artificial seaweed 90 by 900 feet in the ocean off lookout tower at Island Beach State Park on Long Beach Island.

"If this experiment proves successful, it will constitute a major breakthrough in beach protection," said Francis B. Cogan, assistant chief engineer of the New Jersey State Bureau of Navigation.

"There are no natural seaweed beds in New Jersey coastal waters. While we don't know yet how well the plastic beds will hold up under storm conditions, we do know that natural seaweed beds seem to work wonders in countries that have them."

The project, announced yesterday, is similar to tests recently carried out in Denmark and England, which also have problems with eroding ocean coastlines.

Erik Schou, of Frederikshavn, Denmark, is credited with the original idea, having noted that during storms veteran fishing boat skippers frequently steer into beds of seaweed on the theory the beds dissipate the effect of the violent seas.

Schou is an Avison distributor. The company is one of the producers.

In proposing the New Jersey tests, Avison agreed to donate all materials. The New Jersey Navigation bureau built the grid and will conduct a two-year study of its effects.

Clusters of the artificial seaweed will be spaced three feet apart on the grid, which will be planted Aug. 5 about 800 feet off shore, parallel to the coastline and in 15 feet of water. Each cluster of seaweed will be six feet high, allowing for nine feet of clearance for passing boats. About 12 tons of lead weights will be required to keep the grid from floating away.

The State and Game Division also is interested in the experiment. Director Lester G. MacNamara said there is a possibility the artificial seaweed will be a natural home for fish, improving the fishing possibilities in the area.

Woman First to Sail Alone From California to Hawaii

HONOLULU (AP) — With the applause of old salts ringing in her ears, petite Sharon Sites rested today after her gale-raked, 40-day sail from California to Hawaii. She became the first woman to sail the 2,300 miles alone.

In a snug harbor Wednesday night from her courageous trans-Pacific odyssey — done without a radio or fuel for her 25-foot sloop Sea Sharp — the 34-year-old Los Angeles widow counted two casualties:

Her right wrist was broken in last weekend in a way she was "too embarrassed" to say, and her pet turtle died 12 days out of Los Angeles.

The blonde dental secretary — a sailing beginner — undertook the voyage alone for the same reason men climb mountains: It was a challenge, she told newsmen before she was taken to a hospital for treatment of her wrist.

On shore at Keelhi Marina a few miles from downtown Honolulu, Mrs. Sites' sailing in of 65 mile an hour winds, her most frightening experience.

"I had to latch everything down, hang on for dear life, and pray, she said.

"Maybe it was foolish," the exhausted woman said, groggy with drugs she had taken to kill the pain of the fracture. "Some-times out there I wondered. But I didn't do it as a stunt."

Her voyage, which began June 12, ended Wednesday afternoon 25 miles north of Honolulu when the sport fishing boat Catherine S. spotted her sloop and radioed the Coast Guard.

The cutter Cape Corwin took the brown-and-white sloop in tow. In port at last, Mrs. Sites had swiftly changed into white slacks and a black-and-white sweater, was welcomed with applause.

The doughty sailor, who has only six months of sailing experience, vowed she would never attempt such a feat again, and she added she wouldn't advise anyone — man or woman — to do it alone.

"She's the greatest," bubbled an excited Al Adams of Los Angeles. "Mrs. Sites' sailing instructor, who boarded the $9,000 Sea Sharp as it was being towed to harbor.

Red 'Tide' Bothers Bathers

By ROBERT M. BURNETT
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The gonyaulax are proliferating again.

In other words, the red tide is in.

And California bathers are finding the sea stained dirty red. The ocean breeze is tainted with the odor of decay. Fish flee the stain or die.

But at night, the waters are a luminescent wonderland.

The gonyaulax are microscopic plants which, come summer, have a population explosion. Scientists don't know why. But they're planning to find out.

One theory is that deep ocean currents come to the surface, bringing up nutrients on which the plant life flourishes. Another is that the hot summer sun lures the plantlets to the surface and wind and currents concentrate them into small areas where they are more apparent.

From the air the red masses are strikingly visible. There's a sharp dividing line between the water stained red and the water that's a normal blue-green — as though two cans of paint were being swirled. Streaks and patches of red sometimes extend miles seaward from the shore.

When it appears along a beach it can change a pleasant strand overnight into something which looks like a Mississippi backwater. Only the least fastidious swimmers venture in. There's nothing dangerous to man in the red tide. But it looks and smells so bad that most bathers prefer to stay out.

It harms marine life by using up oxygen in the water and driving the fish away or suffocating them.

The red tide's nighttime glow is caused by a chemical reaction similar to the one that makes a firefly shine.

Archbishop Boland Is Cited by Pope

NEWARK (AP) — Archbishop Thomas A. Boland has received the personal praise of Pope Paul VI on celebrating the 25th anniversary of his consecration as a bishop, the Newark Roman Catholic archdiocese announced Wednesday.

In what the archdiocese called a rare autographed letter, the Pope commended Archbishop Boland as having "diligently promoted the interests of your flock and the benefit and glory of your Church, with an ardent zeal for religion, an unshaken steadfastness of purpose and the keen perceptiveness of your decisions, so ably conceived and promptly carried out."

The letter, sent from the Vatican Palace June 30, cited the Bishop's work as an example for others to follow and called on

'Dial-A-Politician'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "dial-a-politician" service has been thrown open to the public.

Call any hour of the day or night, and you may hear President Johnson's voice at the other end. Or if you dial the Republicans, you'll get the views of three or four GOP members of Congress or party leaders.

But there's no talking back. It's all done by tape recording.

The initial purpose of the service operated separately by both parties was to provide radio and television stations with comment to record and play back on news broadcasts.

At first, only the stations were given the phone numbers.

But now anyone may dial. Here are the telephone numbers:

Republicans — area code 202, telephone 544-7272.

The Register's Opinion

Goldberg — Outstanding Choice

Those who have watched Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg over the years know that he has demonstrated great talent both as a lawyer, labor secretary, and as a high court member. And along with his ability are the qualities of being socially conscious and possessing a high sense of duty.

Thus, the surprise selection by President Johnson of Justice Goldberg to be U.S. ambassador to the United Nations has brought forth warm applause.

Justice Goldberg possesses the ability to negotiate and conciliate. He has shown this in many ways in the past. This talent will be put to good use in the United Nations.

While Justice Goldberg is not widely experienced in foreign affairs, we have no doubt that his great knowledge of the subject will make him an able successor to the late Adlai Stevenson.

But in the background, one can feel pride in knowing that this man, the son of poor immigrants, has achieved such a high position. And, in this connection, we must recall the memorable phrase of Justice Goldberg's when he was informed by the President of the appointment:

"When a Southerner (Johnson) can sit in the White House, and a Negro (Thurgood Marshall) as solicitor general can argue the government's cases before the Supreme Court, and a Jew can sit in the United Nations and represent the United States before the world—that's what America is."

Political Seafood for Thought

Oysters and clams are epicurean delights—but in this, a gubernatorial election year, they have aroused new interest.

There was a time when New Jersey was a leading producer of shellfish and other seafoods. But river, bay, and stream pollution has helped to wreck that industry.

And Republican gubernatorial candidate Sen. Wayne Dumont made note of this at a recent Monmouth County clambake when he discovered most of the clams served were from out of the state. Naturally, he laid the blame directly on his opponent, Democratic Gov. Richard J. Hughes.

Now, despite the fact that the problem has been a serious one for years, Gov. Hughes has come up with a neat little political coup. He and U.S. Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall have signed a contract for a $200,000 co-operative effort to restore the state's oyster industry. The problem there has been a shellfish disease — and it has been instrumental in wrecking this industry which once had an annual output valued at more than $10 million. There is one good thing about a hot political year—it moves candidates to get action on problems that seemingly defied solution in the past. And who knows—at future clambakes there may be New Jersey seafood galore.

Robert S. Allen, Paul Scott: Inside Washington

Senate Reform Moves Shelved

WASHINGTON—Two major Senate reforms growing out of the sensational Bobby Baker investigation have been quietly interred. The Senate Democratic Policy Committee, at an undisclosed meeting, voted to shelve the following measures recommended by the bipartisan Senate Rules Committee in its recent final report on the headline-making Baker probe:

—Requiring all senators and employees of that chamber earning more than $10,000 to "list annually with the comptroller general all corporations, companies, firms or other business enterprises with which they were employed or in which they held financial interests."

—Barring any Senate employee from engaging in "outside employment unless such activity is not inconsistent with the conscientious performance of his official duties, and he has reported such activity to the senator charged with his supervision."

Both proposals—S. Res. 122 and S. Res. 123—are pending on the Senate calendar awaiting consideration by the full chamber.

THE SECRET decision of the nine-member Democratic Policy Committee virtually extinguishes the likelihood of the two much-touted reform measures being acted on in this session—and possibly the next one. Headed by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., the Policy Committee operates like a legislative traffic cop, determining which measures are placed before the Senate and when. Its decrees are not final; they can be overruled by a majority of the Senate. But usually that takes considerable doing.

This is exactly what Sen. John Williams, R-Del., who sparkplugged the Baker expose, intends to attempt. Apprised of the Democratic Policy Committee's unannounced pigeonholing of the two reform proposals, the militant "one-man investigating committee" is preparing to wage an open fight to force them to a Senate vote. How far Williams will get is conjectural. But he is determined to make a public issue of the undercover scuttling.

HOW IT WAS DONE—Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the powerful Armed Services Committee as well as a member of the Policy Committee, took the lead in calling for ditching the two reform measures recommended by the bipartisan Policy Committee. Principal Russell argument was that Senate consideration of the proposals would reopen the whole Bobby Baker case and lead to legislation no one really wants.

Some of the nine committeemen demurred from that view. But, on a vote, Russell had a solid majority, and the two reform resolutions, in effect, were axed. Members of this strategic committee, in addition to Mansfield and Russell, are: Sen. Lister Hill, Ala.; Carl Hayden, Ariz.; Warren Magnuson, Wash.; John Pastore, R-I.; Russell Long, La.; George Smathers, Fla.

The bipartisan Rules Committee, headed by Sen. B. Everett Jordan (D-NC) in its report urging adoption of the two reforms, declared:

"The absence of a rule of conduct or code of ethics has created an atmosphere in which members, officers and employees of the Senate have been forced to grope their way through a myriad of complexities of government dependent solely upon individual conscience as a guide. . . . To provide guidelines which will assist public officials in avoiding breaches of ethics or conflict-of-interest, the committee urges adoption of S. Res. 122 and S. Res. 123."

So far this session, 11 members of Congress have voluntarily disclosed their financial status and private holdings.

They are Sens. Clifford P. Case (R-NJ), Joseph Clark (D-Pa.), Paul Douglas (D-Ill.), Jacob Javits (R-NY), Frank Moss (D-Utah), William Proxmire (D-Wis.), and Rep. Donald Fraser (D-Minn.), Richard Ottinger (D-NY), John Rarce (D-Wis.), Henry Reuss (D-Wis.), and Stanley Tupper (R-Maine).

Two federal grand juries—one in Washington and one in Baltimore—have been taking testimony for months on Baker's taxes and activities.

LEAKING THE NEWS—Vice President Hubert Humphrey is the latest addition to the Johnson administration's select corps of high-level news planters.

The Minnesota was the source of that flurry of stories late last week that he is cementing an alliance of big-city and farm-belt congressmen to put over the hotly controversial agricultural bill and repeal of Taft-Hartley's Section 14(b), and that British left-wing Laborite Harold Davies had returned from his "unofficial" mission to Hanoi convinced that the only way to bring the Communists to a negotiating table is through "punishing them militarily."

Both leaks were personally dished out by Humphrey to a small group of handpicked newsmen at what was labeled an "off-the-record background briefing."

The reporters were told Humphrey's name could be used in stories about the farm-labor alliance on the agricultural and Section 14(b) measures, but without attributing them to him. In other words, he could be credited as spearheading this strategy, but not tagged as revealing it.

SMALL END OF THE STICK

Sylvia Porter: Your Money's Worth

Breakdown of Bread Costs

Of the average 20.7 cents you pay for a one-pound loaf of bread today, only 3.2 cents goes for all the ingredients in it, including 2.5 cents for the wheat. The overwhelming balance of 17.5 cents represents the cost of baking, milling, transporting and selling the loaf to you.

You probably are well aware that the total price of bread has been rising at a pace about twice as fast as over-all food costs in recent years. Your awareness is understandable: we consume 16 billion pounds of bread each year, 82.4 pounds per person.

But are you aware of who gets what share of the 20.7 cents average bread price? Or of what factors are responsible for bread's high price? Or of what is being done to put a ceiling on the price of this key staple? Almost surely you are not aware; so here goes.

This source gets This part of the 20.7c Baker-wholesaler 11.4 cents Retailer 3.7 cents Farmer 3.2 cents Transportation-handling 1.5 cents Miller 0.9 cents

Just this simple breakdown underlines the major force behind rising bread prices, the fact that more than half of the total cost is absorbed by processes ranging from preparing ingredients to wrapping.

But why is this so, and what other factors are there? From Albert S. Schmidt, chairman of the American Bakers Association in Chicago, and from the Department of Agriculture come these answers:

—Unlike other foods, including many perishables, virtually all bread must be sold the same day it is delivered. What doesn't end up on the quick sale counter is returned to the wholesaler. One industry estimate puts "stale returns" at a whopping 7 per cent of bread delivered to the store.

—The process of making bread is, says Schmidt, "the most complicated of any food product"—involving at least two dozen separate steps. First, the wheat is grown and harvested on farms and delivered to a grain elevator for storage until it is sent to a flour mill. At the bakery there are 10 to 15 more major steps before the slicing and wrapping operations and transportation to the stores. Other basic ingredients of bread—milk, shortening, sugar—also are put through a series of processes before the final products emerge.

By contrast, milk is delivered from farm to plant where it is pasteurized, packaged and dispatched to the consumer. Meat goes from farm to feedlot to packing plant, where it is slaughtered, dressed, cut and made ready for the store butcher.

—The tremendous competition bread faces—directly at the point of purchase—has forced bakers into a vast expansion of their product lines. A casual glance at the assortments in the bakery section of your supermarket easily illustrates this.

Admittedly, the average price bakers receive for a pound of bread has climbed 55 per cent since 1947-49, but hourly earnings of inside bakery workers have jumped 103 per cent in the same period. Bakers' profits are down to 2.5 per cent of sales against 6 per cent of sales in 1947-49. Flour-millers too are in a squeeze: per capita consumption of flour has fallen from 137 pounds a year in 1947-49 to 116 pounds today, while the number of flour mills in operation has shrunk from 412 to about 200. The farmer isn't the only one struggling.

What, then, is being done by bakers to put a ceiling on bread prices and ease the pinch on themselves? Of course, they are automating their processing equipment. But the newest and most important developments are "freezing operations" to slash the high cost of perishability.

Frozen baked goods are among the fastest growing segments of the whole frozen food industry. Freezing well may be the key solution for the bread maker, bread seller and bread consumer.

Meanwhile, this breakdown suggests we may be thankful bread is still as "cheap" as it is.

John Chamberlain: These Days

Formosa, Island Worth Helping

Our economic aid to Nationalist China has come to an end after 15 years, and the headline hailing it read "U.S. Economic Aid Has Made Formosa Self-Supporting." But the headline tells only part of the story.

The island of Formosa—or Taiwan—had no better start than many other countries which have received American aid and done little with it. It has become self-supporting (a) because its people were willing to work and (b) because it nourished no grudges against the idea of letting productive individuals start things without an interminable wait for bureaucratic permission.

The 1.5 billion dollars in economic aid which went from the United States to Taiwan at a rate roughly of a $100 million a year for 15 years was not, of course, to be sneezed at. But more fundamental to the Republic of China's success in floating itself free from American support has been its unique formula for helping the poor without robbing the well-to-do of the capital that is needed to build new industries. Free China is the world's most spectacular example of what can be done if you can discover a way of carrying through a revolution without fighting a class war.

The Great Leap Forward—and the phrase is no joke when applied to Taiwan—began with land reform. In 1954 the Chiang Kai-shek government started to divide the limited amount of acreage on Taiwan among the peasants who tilled it. Absentee landlords were cut back to maximum holdings of 7.5 acres. Everything in excess of this was sold to tenant farmers at a price equal to 2.5 times the value of the annual crop yield, payable over a 10-year period.

This, in almost any other country in the world, would have touched off a class struggle that required the liquidation of the old landlords. But the Republic of China government neatly dodged the class war by compensating the landlords with stock shares in government-owned enterprises. The landlords' imply became the new industrialists. A classic example of the transformation is Chen-Fu Koo, who is now president of the Taiwan Cement Company. He didn't want to be an industrialist, for he had inherited his family's 7,000 acres of good farmland. The 1954 program took practically all of it away from him and bestowed it on the 2,000 tenants who had been working it. Chen-Fu Koo grumbled at first, but then dug in to become head of the industry whose shares he had received in exchange for his land. "It's the best thing that could have happened to Taiwan," says Chen-Fu Koo, who, incidentally, was one of the founders of the Taipei Stock Exchange in 1962.

Since agriculture employs some 50 per cent of Taiwan's 12 million people as compared to 12 per cent who work in industry, the island couldn't very well have been started on the road to self-sufficiency without solving the land problem. But the rise in the Formosan standard of living is closely geared to the development of new industries by the old landlord class. In 1945, when the Japanese were thrown out and Taiwan reverted to China, the population of the island was 5,800,000. The doubling of the population in 20 years means that Taiwan now supports more people than Australia, which is 200 times its size.

Somehow, in reviewing the Taiwan story on the day when it was announced that U.S. economic aid to the island had ended, I couldn't help thinking of the birth of the United States. Back in 1787 the 13 states of the American Confederation were largely agrarian. The debt of the Confederation and the states which composed it was held by a few well-to-do citizens. The agrarians wanted to repudiate the debt. But Alexander Hamilton said no. So, after the Constitution was ratified, the debt was funded—and the U.S. was thereby assured of a few solvent capitalists who could afford to start industries to help raise the standard of living for everybody.

In its own way the Republic of China has followed the Hamiltonian formula. Now if only the Dominican Republic could do likewise. Why doesn't the OAS send a study group to Taiwan?

The Fight Business

The champ sat low on his spine, the big dark hands behind his head. "You don't retire," he said to Willy Pastrano. "You've only been down once. Look at Patterson. Look how many times he's been down. The man who lost the light-heavyweight championship has a stepped-on face. 'I'm not washed up physically, Cassius,' he said. 'I'm washed up mentally.'"

Gold bars of late sun fashioned exclamation points on the red rug. "I know I can beat Torres," Willie said. "It isn't that. I'm reborn, Cass. I don't think I'll ever fight again."

He sat facing Clay. The champ was trying to keep Willie Pastrano from quitting. "One day I'd train and look good," Willie said in that soft unassuming tone. "The next day I'm like a wet rag." Cassius Clay sat up. He is handsome dark mountain, seeping energy. "You're like me," he shouted. "You're like Sugar Ray. One day up, one day down. Me, I fight right through those downs."

BISHOP "You got style, man. You stay on your toes and pop-pop, pop-pop. I call you Woody the Woodpecker. Take it from me, Willy, don't quit." Pastrano, who has a wife and five children, shook his head. "In this game, you have the championship or you have nothing. I have nothing. Cass. That Torres hit me so hard it didn't even hurt. Suddenly I couldn't breathe and I got gray spots in front of my eyes."

The champ looked behind the couch. "Get the films of the fight," he said. "Study them. If you kept moving, Willy. . . . 'The trouble is,' Willy said, 'I should have been outside the man, not against the ropes.'"

Clay shook his head sadly. "You got to make a man like Torres hit at you. Not hit you. Make him throw those arms for maybe five rounds. Then he's not so fast anymore. You start hitting him."

They talked fighters awhile. Willy said: "Jack Johnson was before my time, but he gave the Negroes a bad name. Liquor and white women. Cass, you give everybody a good name. You live clean." The champ became serious. He clasped and unclasped his big hands. "I don't know why people say I belong to the Black Muslims. I belong to the religion of Islam. Nothing black about it. We believe in Mohammed and Allah."

"How do you feel about Liston?" Willy said. Clay looked at the ceiling of his little house. "It's a do-or-die thing, Willy. So much bragging that I got to live up to. I can hear them saying: 'You're not the greatest anymore, Big Mouth!' Even now, people on the street yell: 'I'm just praying that Sonny Liston takes you apart. Just praying.'"

"How will it go?" Willie Pastrano had said.

"Well," Clay said. "I got to admit that Sonny had an off-night the last time. It ain't going to be like that this time. I won't even predict a round this time. I'm going to tell the reporters: 'I have a surprise.' Then, if it ends in the first or the seventh or anywhere, I'll say: 'That's the surprise.'"

Willy heard the plates, and stood. "Don't go, man," Cassius said. "We got a lot to talk about. Willy, you need strength. Eat lots of okras and tomatoes and squash. Wear heavy boots when you train. Makes the legs strong. Carry four pounds of lead in each fist all day. Makes the arms strong. Squeeze the juice out of five carrots. It goes right to the system."

Pastrano was beyond coaxing. "If I can make three or four hundred a week, I'm quitting for sure. Look, Cass. That's the first time a doctor ever hopped in the ring and said: 'Who are you? Where are you?' and I said: 'Willy Pastrano. Madison Square Garden and somebody is knocking the hell out of me.'"

"You save any money, Willy?" Pastrano nodded. "Me," Clay said. "I'm the biggest draw in history. My fights grossed something like six million. Out of that, the other fighter gets paid. Then the promoters, the managers, the men who got 50 per cent of me, the closed circuit theaters — you know. So out of six million, I got one million and then Uncle Sam comes along. I'm saving a little at a time."

The champ walked the ex-champ to the door. "You like to fight?" Cassius said. Pastrano shook hands farwell. "There's the difference," he said. "I didn't enjoy fighting five years ago. Except for the money, it's not for me. You like to fight?"

The champ backed up toward the steak. "No," he said glumly. "No. When you're a kid, it's fun. You get to see your picture in the paper. Later, it's a business. Every time you get in the ring, you risk your whole future. No, Willy. I don't like to fight."

An automobile rolled in a leisurely fashion down Broadway in Long Branch for a distance of about 150 feet. Patrolman William Kaplan, investigating, found the car doors locked and no one inside.

John Kahn, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Kahn of Matawan, was New Jersey's youngest publisher. He completed the fourth issue of the Matawan Trumpet, a six-page mimeographed newspaper with editorials, a society page, general news, and advertisements.

Bridge Column

Most experienced bridge players estimate the value of a hand by counting 4 points for each ace, 3 for each king, 2 for each queen, and 1 for each jack. This point count is especially useful for notrump bids.

South's jump to two notrump shows 19 or 20 points. If he held 16 to 18 points he would open with one notrump; if he had 22 to 24 points, he would open with two notrump. With the in-between values he opens with one of a suit and makes a jump bid in notrump at his second turn.

North adds his own 8 points to (19 or 20) and sees that the total is more than the 26 points usually needed for game. North therefore has no hesitation in raising to game in notrump.

Easy Play

The play is as easy as the bidding to an experienced player. South needs three diamond tricks and must postpone taking dummy's ace of diamonds as long as possible.

South would go down if he took the ace of diamonds early and gave up a diamond. The opponents would lead a spade to remove dummy's ace, and South might set up the diamonds but would never get back to dummy to cash them.

Declarer deliberately starts the diamonds by playing a low card from each hand. Back comes a spade to dummy's ace, and declarer returns a low diamond from dummy.

South wins the third spade trick and leads his last diamond to dummy's ace. By this time the last two diamonds are good, and dummy is in the lead to cash them. With three diamonds South has no trouble in taking nine tricks for the game contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 2 NT (22 to 24 points), and the next player passes. You have: Spades—9 8 6 4 2, Hearts—Q 7 3, Diamonds—Q 10 9, Clubs—J 8. What do you say?

Answer: Bid three spades. Since you have 5 points you know that the combined count is 27 to 29 points, which should be enough for game. There is no harm in showing the 5-card major suit as an alternative to notrump.

Club Tours Gardens Of Membership

HAZLET — A tour of members' gardens, a feature of the Root and Branch Garden Club each July, has been held.

The club visited Mrs. Lawrence Saccone's garden first, the day lilies being her special feature at this season. Mrs. Stephen Potosky's home was the next stop. Her new rock garden received many compliments. Finally, the club visited the home of Mrs. Loretta Schaeffer, an Early American cottage set off with hollyhocks, sunflowers and hydrangeas.

The members then adjourned to the Harris Gardens fire house, Union Beach, for their regular meeting. Mrs. Marie R. Strother, Matawan, was a guest.

Members expressed a desire to repeat the recent excursion to Sandy Hook Park.

The fall flower show will be held Saturday, Sept. 18, at the fire house. A committee meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Harold Bottger, president, to discuss arrangements for the show.

Willard Aumack will give a program of slides at the August meeting. The arrangement for that evening is "Lazy Days," an arrangement in a sea shell.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Charles Hopper, Mrs. Richard Spencer and Harold Bottger.

Middletown's Library

78 Kings Highway,
Middletown, N.J.

To the Editor:

Your support of the Middletown Township Library, as shown by your editorial of July 12, is most welcome and warmly appreciated. Library users too often fail to make their wishes known in the most effective way, and I believe that you speak for many readers in Middletown. The editorial is, for the most part, an accurate and balanced view of the library's circumstances, and presents a fair picture of the board's thinking.

Reference to the board brings up another matter. The policy making body of the library is a Board of Trustees, not a commission. If I were asked to distinguish between the two, I would be hard pressed, but there is some difference. Municipal libraries are governed by a Board of Trustees, county libraries by a commission. There are significant differences in composition and authority as specified in state law. The County Library Commission consists of five appointed members. The Board of Trustees numbers seven members, five appointed and two ex-officio, namely, the mayor of the municipality and the superintendent of schools.

I must take issue with the article which appeared on page 17 of the July 14 Register, wherein the proposed building is described as a "million dollar library." Perhaps large figures make good copy, but they can often be misleading. The total request for capital improvement funds, as reported in the Register Dec. 8, 1964, came to $717,000. Where the estimate of $400,000 to $600,000 for equipment, furnishings, contingencies and books" came from, I have no idea.

Your comment that "the Township Committee has no authority over the Library Commission (sic) — except for the purse strings," was probably intended as irony, but it is an oversimplification. In addition to this extremely potent deterrent to ill-considered activity, the Township Committee also has the power of appointment and re-appointment. The fact that the mayor is also a board member permits him to influence the board's plans and deliberations to a considerable extent.

I know that you pride yourself on accuracy and fairness and that any misleading impressions readers may derive from this article are not intentional on your part. Your editorials regarding this library and others in the county reflect a real appreciation of, and concern for, library services. This is an enlightened viewpoint that stands in distinct contrast to the idea prevalent not so many years ago, that libraries were for children and women who didn't like television.

After too many years of neglect, public library service in general seems to be gaining some recognition as a vital asset to the community. Newspapers such as The Red Bank Register deserve a large part of the credit for their efforts to increase this recognition.

Very truly yours,
William J. Le Kernec,
Director

Library Director's View

Matawan Free Public Library
Matawan, N.J.

To the Editor:

After having read the editorial "Matawan Library Impasse" in your issue of July 15, the director of the Free Public Library of Matawan feels that in the interests of all concerned, some points concerning the library program should be clarified.

What is termed the "original proposals" to erect the 21,000 square foot building in Terhune Park at a cost approximating $800,000, was the recommendation of Rothines Associates, library consultants. The library board accepted this report, but this by no means indicates that the board "proposed" to the public that this report was to be presented as the recommendation of the board. The board has been using the report as a guideline to plan a library program that will give to the people of Matawan borough and township adequate library service which has been sorely lacking for many, many years.

The library board members have been giving generously many extra hours of service during the past years. They have visited other newly-built libraries in the state, they have met with two civic associations and have invited all civic associations to set up study groups, and meet with the board. Not to have done so, they would have been remiss in their duties.

As in all planning, various alternate plans are discussed but at all meetings of the board which the library director has attended, no plan has yet been adopted, and when it has, the plan and the financial requirements to implement the plan will be presented to both governing bodies as required by law.

Every citizen knows that all board meetings are open to the public if they wish to attend. It is true that during the winter two meetings were held at a board member's house, because the library was so cold that to sit three hours without physically moving about would numb a person. However, this board member would gladly have opened her house to anyone interested in attending.

Formal notices of board meetings have never been sent to the press. Any interested reporter by this time knows that the regular meetings of the board are held the second Thursday of the month. Reporters are free to contact any board member at any time to ask if special meetings are to be held. No written notices will be sent to the press, however.

In closing, the director wishes to state that this letter was not instigated at the request of any board member or members; they are totally unaware that it is even being written. But no library director "worth his salt" will sit complacently on the sideline and see a hard-working compatible group of board members unjustly scourged by the press.

Very truly yours,

Jeannette Herrman
Director

Stevenson Eulogized

70 Campbell Ave.,
Port Monmouth, N. J.

To the Editor:

You have my permission to print the enclosed, if you find it good taste to do so.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Curtis R. Bradford

To the immediate family of Adlai E. Stevenson and to his fellow associates at the United Nations:

Please accept these heartfelt utterances, in-the spirit of a personal loss, from my family and me.

I had the pleasant experience of observing Mr. Stevenson as he represented us in the United Nations General Assembly during the Israeli-Jordan crisis in March, 1962. He was also our governor when we were residents of Illinois.

On the day I attended the General Assembly, I made the acquaintance of a New York lady who had just returned from a long world tour which included the above mentioned area of the world. In her anxiety to learn of the developing situation, she had come directly to that meeting of the Assembly. From this experience, I formed the impression this was perhaps an established pattern of many other whose concern was immediate, during that and other sessions and, too, while being present, contributed to Mr. Stevenson's confident contribution there in our behalf. Because of this particular opportunity, my life was made richer.

I feel my life would be richer still if the contribution this God fearing man offered to assist in the making of a more stable world, would but inspire many of our young people to become active for our nation, as ambassadors of good will, as the opportunity may present, within and without our nation. What a tribute this could be.

Fortunate, indeed, we were to have such a man as a guiding light to you, his sons and to many in high and low places, as it behooved Mr. Stevenson to be, formally and informally, as he traveled through this nation and through the world. When so doing, he added a semblance of sanity and stability as he passed through.

Without a doubt, the one that President Johnson appoints to fill "that vacant chair" will know that he has "big shoes" to fill. Would that those shoes bear a hole, or even two, in the soles, so that he may be reminded to walk humbly, as he previously did, because in these precarious days, such will continue to be required, for there remains unfinished discussions and decisions to attempt, and that so abruptly were left unfinished, to become another's task.

Please accept this one tribute and add it to the many from all over the world, so that it may form a bouquet of love for the memory of one deserving Adlai E. Stevenson.

Certainly in many nations and hearts, flags are flying at half mast . . . as ours is today.

In sympathy,
Mrs. Curtis R. Bradford

Appeals Conviction Of Drunk Driving

FRIEHOOLD — George Bajew, 12 West St., Red Bank, yesterday appealed Red Bank Magistrate Francis X. Kennelly's decision in county court here.

Judge Clarkson S. Fisher reserved decision.

Mr. Bajew was fined $200 June 11 by Magistrate Kennelly for driving while under the influence of alcohol May 2 in Red Bank. The appeal of Dominick J. Russo, 19 Old Mill Rd., New Shrewsbury, was postponed until next Wednesday.

Mr. Russo is appealing Ocean Township Magistrate David Resnikoff's June 2 decision which found Mr. Russo guilty of backing out on a highway. He was fined $20 for the May 23 incident at Rt. 35 near Talmadge Ave., Ocean Township.

Issues Charge On Television Antenna Business

DENVER (AP) — The president of the New Jersey Community Antenna Television Association has charged that the N. J. Bell Telephone Co. is seeking to take over the community antenna television business in his state.

J. Phil Franklin, operator of the South Jersey Television Cable Co. of Ocean City N.J., made the statement Tuesday at the 14th annual convention of the National Community Television Association.

Franklin said that Bell Telephone's application before the New Jersey Public Utility Commission to set rates for cable charges on community antenna television service to be provided by the telephone company "is a maneuver to get into the community television business through the back door of a lease back arrangement."

Approval of the application by the PUC "would set up an arrangement whereby Bell then would be in a position, through its control over the use of utility poles for the attachment of cable and amplifying equipment, to monopolize and control community television service as well as the manufacturing and installation of community antenna equipment," Franklin said.

Community television companies set up large antennas to receive signals from distant stations and then pipe the signal to individual set owners. New Jersey's shore area has many such companies.

Red Bank CAP Cadets Take Honors at Camp

MAGUIRE AIR FORCE BASE — Cadets from Red Bank Composite Squadron, Civil Air Patrol took top honors at last week's encampment sponsored by Air Force units here.

Cadet Barbara Banks of New Shrewsbury, daughter of Chief Warrant Officer William K. Banks, land rescue unit commander for the Red Bank squadron, was one of two cadets in the entire encampment chosen for an orientation flight in an Air Force T-33 jet trainer.

"We were given 45 minutes orientation and then were allowed to fly it ourselves," Miss Banks related. "I flew it for about ten minutes. It was great!" the pretty young cadet added.

The jet flight candidates were selected from cadets named outstanding by their own squadrons. Final choices were made by an officers' review board headed by Lt. Col. Margaret M. Dunn, CAP, encampment commander.

Miss Banks, along with Dennis Heidel of Middletown, also a Red Bank Squadron member was named a squadron commander.

Pay Hikes Favored For Gross, Profs

TRENTON (AP) — The State Board of Education Wednesday went on record in favor of a pay increase for Rutgers University President Dr. Mason W. Gross, three Rutgers vice presidents and teachers who hold the title of distinguished professor.

The Board also approved a study of the salaries of administrators and professors in all state supported colleges.

Gross would receive a $3,000 annual increase from $24,500 to $27,500.

The three vice presidents would get an increase from $22,900 to $25,000 a year.

Distinguished professors paid on a 10-month basis would receive from $16,050 to $21,890 and on a 12-month basis from $17,694 to $24,126. The current scale is about 25 per cent lower.

A spokesman for Rutgers said the university has only one distinguished professor now.

The higher salary scales would enable the state to qualify for a federal grant given to "centers of excellence." Before colleges can qualify for such grants, they must meet certain criteria, including salary minima.

an airman for a week," Miss Banks explained.

Activities included instruction in the use and care of parachutes; firing with sub-caliber arms on the firing range; regular Survival Air Force drill; and classes in survival. Cadets lived in Air Force barracks and ate Air Force chow.

"The chow was better than last year's," Miss Banks remarked.

The Lead Poisoning Peril

By JOHN KOLESAR
TRENTON (AP) — The New Jersey Health Department has opened a campaign to combat one of the less obvious perils of slum living—lead poisoning of little children.

Lead poisoning is one of those diseases that is easy to get and hard to diagnose. Its early symptoms are mild

Field Receives Lincoln Award

RED BANK—Thomas S. Field of English Motors, here, is one of three Lincoln-Mercury salesmen in the Philadelphia sales district who have earned the Lincoln Continental Executive Salesman Award.

His selling record places Mr. Field in the top 5 per cent of Lincoln Continental salesmen nationally. The distinction was recognized with a plaque.

and they are similar to the from's per 100,000 population in effects of many other common diseases.

Last year, the State Health Department made 902 tests for lead poisoning and got positive results in 267 cases. But there are reasons for suspecting that the actual number of cases was far larger than 267.

Few New Jersey cities concentrate on finding lead poisoning cases, but when they do look for them, the disease rate can multiply 20 times.

Jersey City was the first community to start a full-scale program against lead poisoning in 1938. Its rate of cases climbed from 1.7 in 1961 to 26.7 in 1964.

Rate Zooms
In Newark, a similar program raised the disease rate from 1.7 in 1961 to 5.1 in 1963. A special three-month drive was staged in 1964 and the Newark rate for the year zoomed to 37.3, giving an indication of the possibilities in a city with a large amount of old housing.

Lead poisoning is largely a result of eating dried paint which has lead in it.

The chief victims are children 1 to 4 years old who have "Pica"—an unusual appetite for eating the inedible, such as window sills, walls, and wooden furniture. The incidence of the disease is much higher among Negroes than whites, and it is higher in summer than winter.

Houses built before 1920 had a lot of lead in their interior paints. Thus, it is the little children in the older, dilapidated housing who are most likely to get lead poisoning.

This prompts the Health Department to refer to "Lead Belts" in the old, slum areas.

Symptoms

The opening symptoms of lead poisoning sound like they were taken from a commercial for some stomach remedy—irritability, drowsiness, vomiting, abdominal pain, constipation—but they can get very serious. Lead poisoning often leads to encephalitis, brain damage and death.

A child can chew up a lot of lead and store it in his system before any symptoms show up. Then an illness can release the lead into the blood system, bringing on a sudden, serious poisoning case.

The Health Department has urged local officials to organize anti-lead poison programs in their communities.

In general, the Department asks each community to set up a system for case-finding, reporting, investigation and prevention.

Screening

The first major step would be to locate the "Lead belts" by mass paint screening projects. Families with suspect children would be moved to lead-free housing. A mass urine screening project should be conducted among children in the 1-4 age group, as Newark did last year. Hospitals and doctors would be alerted to the problem and asked to report any suspected cases. Every case of lead poisoning would be investigated.

Thursday, July 22, 1965—13

Prevention would be accomplished largely through removal of the lead paint or moving families out of the housing. The Health Department also proposes publicity campaigns and local ordinances requiring removal of interior lead paint and banning its sale.

The Health Department is ready to provide a whole library of pamphlets to help doctors in Paterson, Newark, Jersey City, Trenton and Camden with kits to test for the disease. Doctors in other cities can get the kits direct from the Department's Accident Prevention Program in Trenton.

New York - Focal Point of the World of Fashion

FOR TRANSITIONAL WEAR, Spanish couturier Pedro Rodriguez designs a brown shantung coat with elbow sleeves, a high-around neck and bow closing.

NEW YORK — No longer does a designer have to have a Gallic name and a Parisian address to gain entree in fashion big time. Even a brief inspection of current offerings in New York can turn up a potpourri of original attractive clothes from all over the world.

Pedro Rodriguez, one of Spain's top couturiers, presented his latest collection here recently. The designs, all created expressly for the American market, were displayed on Spanish models flown here especially for the showing.

Rodriguez is among several Iberian fashion experts who are being sponsored by the Spanish embassy in this country. He has been famous for many years for his meticulously tailored suits and coats as well as for the exquisite embroidery used on cocktail and evening dresses.

This season he is fascinated by the colors in the canvases of famous artists of his native land. The shades are vibrant and emphasize rich purples, bright yellows, greens and browns.

Photographs of glamorous after-five fashions from the Republic of China are on display at the New York Worlds Fair. They are from a collection by Mrs. Nancy Chang, a popular Formosan designer whose creations are sought after by the younger society set in Taipei.

The ingenuity of the Far East is apparent in the beautiful fabrics which include rich satins, gossamer silk prints, velvets and laces. The costumes are fashioned with charming Oriental touches such as mandarin collars, side slit skirts, frog fastenings and embroidery in Chinese characters.

A direct contrast are the mod fashions designed by Frank Saunders, a young Englishman, for Montgomery Ward.

The designer first was recognized in London for his deft hand at creating beautifully tailored separates. Now he has extended the field to include many colorful outfits, including daytime shifts, culottes, skirts, shirts and pants and jacket suits.

Giant-Sized Toppers In Rome Collections

By LOUISE HICKMAN
AP Fashion Writer

ROME (AP) — The hats ran away with the clothes in the Lancetti collection Tuesday night.

Huge domed berets and felts with floppy brims flapped back in front over a conical crown looked like somebody had slipped too much yeast in the mixture. They were as big as bushys and twice as wide.

Beneath them Lancetti showed a trim, square-shouldered silhouette with very close armholes and narrow sleeves. Seam details suggested a high waist.

Jackets covered the hip bone or were longer. Long, open-colored jackets over matching high-cut gabardine dresses were especially effective. Coats had back panel detail.

For evening he interpreted the rising line with crisscross halter bodices and with strapless tops that rose in an arc toward the collarbone, then dipped in back.

There were lots of fluttery feathers. The bride wore an oversize Daniel Boone cap in white ostrich with a yards-long feather tail floating out over her stiff brocade train.

Hemlines Heading for New Heights

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Skirts are going up — really going up. Even a royal dressmaker is hiking the hems.

In his showing for autumn and winter, Hardy Amies lifted hems a full inch above the knee cap. In recent years, Amies has designed some of Queen Elizabeth's most elegant clothes.

But, for another of the queen's dressmakers, Norman Hartnell, discretion was the keynot. He held the hem at the knee for day time clothes.

Commenting on the skirt's ascension, Jean Rook, fashion editor of The Sun, said:

"I predict, at the start of the world's great fashion fortnight, the shortest skirts women have worn since Eve."

Hold on, There's more to come. "The hemline," reported Miss Rook, "will be one, two, three, four inches above the knee."

London, Rome and Florence are having their big shows this week. Next week the couturiers of Paris unveil.

Will Paris join the great uplift of 1965?

"I say they (Paris couturiers) will give us the biggest leg show outside the Folies Bergere," said Miss Rook, who is often ahead of the pack and correct with her predictions.

London experts say Jacques

Esterel of Paris — who was the first to drape Brigitte Bardot in Gingham — will come out with two inches above the knee.

The Jet Age's flight of skirts started, of course, with Andre Courreges in France last year. In England his innovations have been copied and shortened.

Some London dollies already are wearing dresses three and four inches above their knees and causing more distraction than any street scene since Lady Godiva.

What are the Italians doing? Antonelli has shown hems about an inch above the knee. Galitzine and Forquet in Rome skimmed the knee. In Florence, Pucci and Fabiani exposed the knee. No Italian designer covered the knee completely. The Italian and the London shows continue the rest of the week.

Past Presidents Elect Officers

HIGHLANDS — Mrs. Ethel Kolimar was elected president of the Past Presidents Club of the Twilight American Legion Auxiliary at a recent meeting in the post home. Other officers elected were Mrs. Albert Adams, vice president; Mrs. Claudia France, treasurer; Mrs. Stephen H. Faller, secretary, and Mrs. Harry E. Beyer, historian.

The auxiliary's August meeting has been cancelled. Meetings will be resumed Sept. 27.

PARCHMENT FOR PAPILLOTE

It's not always easy to find the cooking parchment paper needed to prepare fish en papilote for which recipes are sometimes given. But you may be able to buy some sheets of the parchment from a bakery or fish store.

Birthdays of Mrs. Stella Jones and Mrs. Ellene Dempsey were celebrated and a Touch and Take Social was held. Mrs. Frank A. Wright and Mrs. Stephen H. Faller were co-hostesses.

OCEAN GROVE SERVICES

OCEAN GROVE — Dr. Harold A. Bosley, senior minister of Christ Church Methodist, New York, who has just returned from a four weeks' tour of South Vietnam, will preach Sunday morning and evening in the Ocean Grove Auditorium. Data Still Lacking On Proposed Motel

MIDDLETOWN — Ernest H. Hesterberg, chairman of the Economic Development Commission, said last night he would not deny reports that the commission will recommend construction of a motel off Rt. 35.

The reports have persisted since Monday night when the commission met on the question—then refused to release information about the meeting to newsmen.

The commission took the position that no news should be issued until the body's recommendations on the motel proposal had been made to the Zoning Board of Adjustment.

The commission is an advisory body, appointed by the Township Committee.

Members of the committee last night took the position that the commission's actions should be made public.

Valz Is Promoted To Major

Maj. Darwin K. Valz

FORT MONMOUTH — Maj. Darwin K. Valz, 35 Vaughan Ct., has been promoted from the rank of captain. It was announced at the U.S. Army Signal School. He is the S-4 (supply and services officer) of the Signal School's Troop Command.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Valz of Hawthorne, Maj. Valz attended Hawthorne High School and in 1934 took his degree at Rutgers College, New Brunswick. He came to the Signal School in February and since then has lived at the Vaughn Ct. address with his wife Betty Joan and their two daughters, Laura, 10, and Victoria, 8.

To Attend Youth Parley on Atom

Robert G. Klitz

RED BANK — Robert G. Klitz, physics teacher at Red Bank High School, will attend the National Youth Conference on the Atom in Chicago Dec. 7-12.

Mr. Klitz is one of two teachers whose attendance at the conference will be sponsored by Jersey Central Power & Light Company-New Jersey Power & Light Company. The other is Peter H. Schoonmaker, Kinnelon High School.

JCPL-NJPL are among more than 60 investor-owned electric utility companies in the country which are sponsoring the atom conference. Some 600 students and teachers are expected to attend.

Mr. Klitz, who lives at 69 Anchor Rd., West Keansburg, received his bachelor's degree in physics from Geneva College, Beaver Falls, Pa. He is studying for his master's degree at Newark College of Engineering.

Society to Meet

RED BANK — The first quarterly meeting of The Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the New Jersey Conference, Camden District, of the A.M.E. Zion Church will be held in St. James A.M.E. Zion Church, Matawan, Thursday, July 29, at 11 a.m.

Mrs. Mahala F. Atchison is president.

French trains are carrying 20 per cent more passengers and 70 per cent more freight than before World War II. Because of technical innovations, however, France's national railway is doing the job with 150,000 fewer men.

Mayor Ernest G. Kavalek said he was surprised that newsmen had been refused information and that he will confer with the chairman on the matter.

Oaks Property The commission formulated recommendations at its Monday meeting on a proposal by builder Harry Goldberg, Ventnor, to construct a motel, restaurant and cocktail lounge off Rt. 35, on the front section of The Oaks property.

A motel is not a permitted use under the zone code. For construction, a variance would have to be obtained from the Zoning Board.

A previous application for motel construction, from another applicant, was denied by the board in November. At that time public sentiment was against motel construction.

Attorney Francis X. Moore represented the builder at the Monday session. He has declined to comment on the results of the meeting.

Mr. Hesterberg said last night that the project cost estimate given to the commission is $800,000 to $1 million.

He said he takes exception to another published estimate which ranged from $800,000 to $1.5 million, but conceded that the commission does not know what the precise cost will be.

16—Thursday, July 22, 1965 THE DAILY REGISTER

The complex is proposed to be erected on a three-acre parcel south of the Naval Ammunition Depot railroad overpass, with a 100-foot setback from Rt. 35, according to original plans. The commission has made no public statement as to whether these plans have been revised. The builder has offered to construct a package sewer plant as not to create a septic tank problem in the area. The motel would contain 75 units and the restaurant a large meeting room to seat 250 persons.

READY FOR A DUNK — Linda Daum, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Daum of Englishtown, is trying out the dunking game equipment in preparation for the 4-H County Fair that started today. Watching from the target area are George W. Siver, Jr., county 4-H agent, and Marvin A. Clark, right, county agricultural agent. The object of this booth, operated by the 4-H Youth Council, is to hit the target with a baseball, which in turn releases a board to drop the victim into the water.

Girl Permitted to Enter Center in Narcotics Case

WEST LONG BRANCH — Magistrate Charles L. Morgan yesterday took advantage of Daytop Village, a newly opened self-help rehabilitation center for drug addicts, on Staten Island, by suspending a 90-day jail term for an 18-year-old local girl found guilty of using dangerous drugs, on the condition that she attend the center.

Remarking that he thought the girl, Betty McManigal, of 894 Broadway, "is deserving of an opportunity in life," and that "we are going to give it to her," Mr. Morgan accepted the suggestion of the girl's attorney, Irving M. Teicher of Oceanport, that she be permitted to enroll herself at Daytop.

The magistrate ruled that she must remain at the center for at least 90 days and placed her on probation to the local court for that period. He stipulated that he was to receive weekly reports of her progress from the center.

Unconscious

Miss McManigal was found unconscious June 22 in a car parked behind 868 Broadway. Police were called to the scene by a neighbor.

Mr. Teicher told the court that "Daytop Village is the ideal place for its individual to be placed. She needs help which her family cannot give her at this time."

He said he felt that "if given the opportunity, this girl would be helped immensely by this drug center. To give her a chance to take advantage of it would be in the best interests of the girl and the state."

He informed Mr. Morgan that he already had worked out arrangements with the Monmouth County Citizens Committee on Narcotics to arrange for the girl being accepted at Daytop. He noted that the committee had volunteered to raise any funds necessary for the girl to enroll at the drug center.

Miss McManigal told Mr. Morgan she had visited Daytop and would be willing to live there.

The magistrate pronounced his sentence with the hope that "you will be able to lead a good and useful life."

He praised Mr. Teicher for the time and effort he had put into the case, noting that his work was "in the highest type of tradition for a member of the bar."

Daytop Village is a 57-room mansion financed by donations but run mostly by personnel from the Daytop Lodge, set up in September, 1963 by the Kings County-Richmond County probation department as a pilot project. The lodge is financed by a $390,000 five-year grant from the National Institute of Mental Health.

Both the lodge and the village are in Tottenville and are modeled after Synanon houses on the West Coast and in Westport, Conn. They operate as one unit with 55 residents.

The entire village and lodge are run by ex-addicts who feel, as assistant director Bernard Koretsky does, that "It takes an addict to cure an addict."

Before admission a prospective member is interviewed by ex-addict administrators. The main thing these interviewers try to bring out is whether the person before them realizes the seriousness of the addiction problem and really wants to be cured.

Center Program

Once enrolled in the center the addict embarks on a program of work, daily seminars, and three-weekly gripe sessions designed to ease tensions.

Daytop's recovery plan consists of three phases: living and working at the center for a little over a year, working outside the center but living in, and living as well as working in the outside world but keeping in contact with Daytop.

Plans are now under way in Monmouth County to set up a similar type of program with the Citizens Committee on Narcotics and the sub-committee on narcotics leading the fight for such a rehabilitation center.

They are jointly seeking federal aid to establish an addict rehabilitation program which after two years would include treatment centers modeled after Daytop and staffed by ex-addicts.

Hope to Avoid Water Reduction to Industry

TRENTON (AP) — Gov. Richard J. Hughes said yesterday New Jersey would "do everything humanly possible" to avert cutting water supplies to industry.

Hughes told an organizational meeting of the newly formed Council of Economic Development in his office that the current water conservation measures are aimed at reducing consumption to permit continued full utilization by industry.

Hughes also told the 11-member council he would base his appointment of a director for the new Division of Economic Development in the state Conservation Department on the council's recommendation. The appointment will be subject to Senate confirmation.

Conservation Commissioner Robert A. Roe urged the council to undertake "an active talent search" for a person to fill the job.

The New Jersey Supreme Court swore in the new council, headed by Paul L. Troast, chairman of the board of the New Jersey Manufacturers Association.

Other members of the council are Dr. Mason W. Gross, president of Rutgers University; Lloyd F. Christianson of Rumson, president of Electronic Associates, Inc.; West Long Branch; Frederick H. Groel of Short Hills, president of the state Chamber of Commerce; Philip B. Hofmann, chairman of the board of Johnson & Johnson Pharmaceutical Corp. of New Brunswick; Donald C. Luce of Plainfield, president of Public Service Electric and Gas Co.

Also, Malcolm P. McLean of Short Hills, chairman of the board of McLean Industries, whose subsidiary Sea-Land, Inc., is headquartered at Port Elizabeth; Vincent J. Murphy of Spring Lake, president of the state AFL-CIO; R. Raymond Peterson, chairman of the board of the First National Bank of Passaic County; Paul J. Ritter of Bridgeton, president of P. J. Ritter Co.; and Mark D. Turner of Red Bank, manager of Molly Pitcher Inn and president of the New Jersey Hotel-Motel Association.

White House To Get Data On Drought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials worked Wednesday night to complete a report assessing the northeastern drought situation and what the federal government might do to help communities facing unprecedented water shortages.

Interior Department sources said the report of the Federal Water Resources Council, of which Secretary Stewart L. Udall is chairman, would be delivered to the White House during the night. President Johnson asked Udall last week to convene the council immediately to assess the situation and report to him by Wednesday.

Udall said after the council met last Friday that any disclosure of the contents would be up to the President. There was no indication when the White House might make anything public.

The Interior officials involved in the final drafting of the report would not discuss its contents other than to say a good portion would be devoted to presentation of the unprecedented drought situation and the threatened exhaustion of many urban water supplies.

SAFE DRIVERS — Red Bank branch drivers of P. Ballentine and Sons, Newark beer and ale brewers, were honored last night for finishing in first place in the brewery's annual branch safe driving contest. Frank Duer, second from left, who heads Ballentine's branch transportation operations, presents plaque to Ray Birchler, driver shop steward. In center is Red Bank branch manager Dan Neglia. At left is John Archibald, Metro-New York divisional sales manager. At right is James Glover, manager of wholesale and branch operations. The win for Red Bank was the fourth in the contest's 17-year history.

Consultants' Advice Sought On Matawan Library Site

MATAWAN TOWNSHIP — Eugene Oross Associates, township master plan consultants, have been asked to make recommendations for a library site for this municipality and Matawan borough.

Leonard A. Morizio, Planning Board chairman, and Jerome R. Kaye, board member, told Peter Tolischus, consultant representative, that they feel the Library Board is not giving consideration to residents of Cliffwood and Cliffwood Beach.

This was discussed at last night's Planning Board meeting. Mr. Tolischus, who had reported that his firm had planned to leave site selection to the Library Board and its consultants, agreed to present recommendations, possibly by the August meeting.

Facilities, Services

Report seven indicates that the final master plan will bring recommendations to expand most facilities and services. It mirrors the rapid population growth seen here since the construction of Strathmore.

Included among those items termed or indicated as inadequate are schools, police, fire fighting, township hall, water system and recreation facilities.

Walter H. Gehricke, board attorney, announced that he will meet next week with Mr. Morizio and Mayor Henry E. Traphagen in preparation for drafting a proposed zone code amendment covering hotel and motel construction.

In reporting on the outcome of the survey stakes suit, the attorney recommended that no appeal of the decision be made. The board agreed, informally, to consider joining an appeal if one is initiated by the Township Committee.

Levit and Sons, Inc., Strathmore developers, successfully argued against having to install the stakes in the 1,905-house development. Named as defendants with the board and the committee were Strathmore Civic Association and two former association presidents, Herbert J. Parker and Robert J. Chesternam.

Dining Room Use

Continuing to pose problems for the planner's is the question of dining room use as a bedroom in garden apartments.

A township ordinance specifies that only 20 per cent of such housing units may have two bedrooms. Board members, spearheaded by Mr. Kaye and joined last night by Hans Froehlich, Republican candidate for Township Council, are concerned that dining rooms in one-bedroom units are being recommended by rental agents as a second bedroom.

Mr. Gehricke commented that the solution might be to limit the number of occupants in apartments but added that he doubts this could be accomplished legally.

Central figures in these discussions have been agents for Strathmore Gardens, a project nearing completion. The corporation came under criticism on another score last night.

Frank Swan, board member, reported that fire hydrants, as called for in approved plans for the project, are not installed. He declared that, in driving through the area, he located only one hydrant. This, he asserted, is in the wrong place and is two feet underground with only six inches visible above the curb line.

Ask Investigation

The board directed that George Hausmann, zoning officer, investigate. If the charge is true he is to cease issuing certificates of occupancy until hydrants are installed.

Anthony P. DeAngelo, 241 Charles St., was given conditional approval of a minor subdivision.

He seeks to create two lots from seven existing lots. One however, measuring 75 feet by 100 feet, will be undersized.

The board conditioned its approval upon the applicant being granted a variance for the undersized lot by the Zoning Board of Adjustment. He must also submit new maps showing setback distances an existing building will have after subdivision of the property.

Portrait of a Magistrate

By BRUCE GORDON

OCEAN TOWNSHIP — Vincent J. Agresti is a man admired by friend and foe for his keen perceptiveness and sound judgment.

The new 41-year-old magistrate has pledged to "carry on the tradition of a just and honest court," a countywide reputation earned during former Magistrate David Resnikoff's 2½-year stay.

Mr. Agresti speaks highly of Mr. Resnikoff and the excellent job he did. He vows that he will "... treat everyone with courtesy and respect so that they in turn will respect the law."

This is the second post which he has held in the township. He was appointed township attorney in June of 1963 and served in that post until this appointment to the bench.

He feels that drug addicts should be treated as sick people with a "disease." "Unfortunately," notes Mr. Agresti, "they are most often treated as criminals."

He is in favor of giving convicted drug addicts a chance to try and cure their habit at state and private drug centers rather than sending them to prison, and speaks highly of these new centers, springing up around the country. Two of these centers very much in the news today are the New Jersey State Drug Center at Skillman and the privately financed Daytop Village on Staten Island.

NEW MAGISTRATE — Monmouth County Court Judge Clarkson S. Fisher, left, swears in Ocean Township Magistrate Vincent J. Agresti, center, as Mayor John J. Reilly holds the Bible. Mr. Agresti took the oath of office yesterday in Freehold. He was named magistrate Monday night, replacing David Resnikoff, who became township attorney.

"We can't give up on these people and toss them in a cell," he explains, "because they are not criminals — they are sick people and should be treated as such. I think that even second offenders and those who haven't been cured while in hospitals should be given a second chance to re-adjust to society."

The new magistrate will serve out Mr. Resnikoff's unexpired term until Jan. 1, 1966, when he is expected to be appointed to a full three-year term by the township council.

Born in Harrison April 25, 1924, the 5-foot-10-inch 178-pound lawyer had lived in Newark most of his life until he moved here in 1958. He resides at 500 Roselawn Ave. in West Deal, and maintains law offices in Newark and Asbury Park.

After serving in the Army from 1943 to 1946, he received a bachelor of arts degree from Seton Hall and in 1950 was awarded his law degree from Catholic University in Washington, D.C.

He refers to himself as an independent lawyer, but notes that he was a member of the firm Grasso, Agresti and Dineen in Newark from 1958-61.

Three Daughters

Vinnie, or Vince, as his close friends call him, married the former Sara Tarrant in 1952. They are the parents of three daughters, Marianne, 12; Grace, 10, and Sara Anne, 3.

The magistrate likes sports, and lists baseball and swimming as his favorites.

A former member of the Serra Club, a Catholic businessmen's union in Orange, he is actively involved in the St. Mary's Holy Name Society.

The silver haired attorney pledges that "I will do my best to serve the township in this new position."

Albany Man Is Fined $110 In Ocean Township Court

OCEAN TOWNSHIP — Conducting his initial court since his Township Council appointment Monday, Magistrate Vincent J. Agresti last night fined Thomas Barrett, 23, Albany, N. Y., $100 and $10 costs for operating and using a vehicle without the owner's permission.

Charles Frankel, Mr. Barrett's Asbury Park attorney, pleaded him guilty to this lesser charge. Mr. Barrett originally had been charged with stealing an automobile, a charge which must come before the grand jury.

Fined $38

Roy Lee Smith, Atkins Ave., Asbury Park, was fined $18 for speeding and $20 for driving on a permit without a licensed driver.

Joseph R. Beams, Rt. 33, Farmingdale, was fined $17 for speeding and received a $5 suspended fine for driving with an expired temporary license. Mr. Beams said the State Motor Vehicle Department had failed to promptly mail his license renewal.

William Clayton, West Bangs Ave., Neptune, was fined $19 for speeding.

Fined $10 each for careless driving were Louis Marchitelli, Jersey City, plus $5 for delinquent inspection; Salvatore Montalbano, Throckmorton Ave., Eatontown; Franklin Julian, East Columbus Pl., Long Branch; James Keese, Main St., Allenhurst; James Stull, Jersey City, plus $5 for delinquent inspection.

Fined $5 each for improper turns were Anna Bankoski, Plainfield; Madeline Dudas, Brick Township; Steven Rupp, Bendermere Ave., Interlaken.

Fined for other traffic violations were William Clayton, Polbus Parkway, Oakhurst, illegal passing, $10; William Dippold, 12th Ave., Belmar, unregistered vehicle, $10; Myrtle Moller, Lewis

St., Eatontown, failure to stay in marked lane, $5; Lois Layman, Reynolds Dr., Eatontown, delinquent inspection and delinquent appearance in court, $10.

Magistrate Agresti suspended a $5 fine given James Evans, Box 196, Freehold, for failure to have a driver's license.

In a special hearing July 16 before he became township attorney, Magistrate David Resnikoff suspended a $5 fine given Theodore Endodi, Raymere Ave., Wanamassa.

Postpone Hearings

Postponed were hearings for Johnny Ivory, Fisher Ave., Neptune, on a charge of having no driver's license, until Aug. 4; for Geoffrey Haupt, Majestic Dr., Lincroft, on a charge of delinquent inspection until July 28; for Joseph Madden, Jr., Lakeville, Mass., on a charge of delinquent inspection, until July 28.

Try Again On Clothing, Judge Says

OCEAN TOWNSHIP — Bathing attire is fine for the beach — but not for court.

Newly appointed Magistrate Vincent J. Agresti gave this reminder to Theodore Hirst, Jr., Parkview Ter., Lincroft, last night.

Mr. Hirst appeared for a hearing on a speeding charge clothed in his beach outfit.

Magistrate Agresti said he would adjourn the hearing until July 28, so Mr. Hirst could properly arrange his wardrobe.

118 Diapers Stolen

MIDDLETOWN — Police here are investigating the theft of 118 diapers. Lullaby Diaper Service, Avon, reported the diapers were stolen sometime between July 14 and 17 from the doorstep of 203 Hamiltonian Dr.

Pediatrics Unit Guide Is Offered

LONG BRANCH — George J. Bartel, administrator of Monmouth Medical Center, has announced the availability of a special guide for parents whose children are hospitalized in the pediatrics unit at the center.

"The purpose of the guide," Mr. Bartel stated, "is to inform parents and others concerned about the unit's operation so as to provide a co-ordinated effort in the care of the young patient."

The guide was developed after a review of the unit's procedures by the medical, nursing and administrative staffs at the medical center.

Miss Martha L. Sacchi, assistant administrator responsible for nursing services, co-ordinated the various groups formulating the basic policy included in the guide.

Television Highlights

1:35 - to conclusion (11) — Baseball. New York Yankees vs. Chicago White Sox, from Yankee Stadium.

7:30-8 (13) — Fables and Legends of India. (Premiere). First of a series on India today and the ancient legends and fables that color its thinking. Tonight, two extremely popular epics are dramatized with the help of Indian dancer Lalit and Jehanara Wasi.

8-9 (2) — Perry Mason. "The Case of the Red Riding Boots." (Repeat). A good, solid murder story, vintage 1960, involving the death of a girl on her wedding eve. Such a premise gets things moving quickly and Mason has a field day defending a sympathetic hired man. No stars in the cast, but it doesn't matter.

8:30-9:30 (4) — Dr. Kildare. "What's Different About Today?" Since many teenage girls claim to have crushes on Dick Chamberlain, they'll probably go for this one. Jim works as the doctor at a camp for diabetic children for a week, and one of the youngsters falls in love with him. It's a sensitive subject, but Kim Darby makes the girl believable.

8:30-9 (7) — My Three Sons. (Repeat). Bub upsets the apple cart as he goes off to Ireland to visit his relatives, leaving a family of nervous boys. For most of the show, father Douglas (Fred MacMurray), tries to be efficient in the kitchen, ruining the stove, the washing machine and the meals. Lots of sight gags here.

8:30-9 (13) — Aaron Copland: Music in the 20's. "Nationalism: European Style." Composer Aaron Copland illustrates his theme with the music of Hungary's Bela Bartok, a giant of the 20's, as violinist Toscy Spivakovsky and pianist Arthur Balsam play Bartok's "Second Sonata for Violin and Piano."

8:30-9 (7) — Bewitched. "It Takes One to Know One." (Repeat). Cute show. Samantha has a hard time convincing her mother there isn't a jealous bone in her body, particularly when husband Darrin has to judge a beauty contest.

9-10 (13) — Intertel. "Children of Revolution." Interesting study of the changing attitudes of the Czechoslovakian youngster of today. Militancy and political ideologies seem to have gone by the board in favor of beat music and an idealistic, a-political outlook on life.

10-11 (7) — "The Young Man From Boston." You'll be moved and touched by much of this photograph album record of John F. Kennedy's early years, particularly when the stills turn to rare filmed shots of a touch football game, luminous pictures of his wedding, and eloquent footage with John-John on the beach. Unfortunately, the musical background provides an off-key note to the hour which mars its enjoyment considerably. The sound and beat of the Kingston Trio is odd out of tune with our late President's elegant style and grace, and the mammoth sounds of the great Mormon Tabernacle Choir seem to overwhelm the memorable directness of his voice and manner.

11-12:30 (11) — Merv Griffin. Anthony Newley ("The Roar of the Greasepaint"), David Burns ("Hello Dolly"), Mitch Miller, comedienne Dody Goodman, comic Hank Garrett, and singer Bruce Scott add up to Merv Griffin's guests.

11-12:30 (7) — Nightlife. Les Crane's schedule includes Britain's Brian Epstein (he discovered the Beatles), rock 'n' rollers The Supremes, Professor Irwin Corey, Johnny Desmond (took over the Sydney Chaplin role in "Funny Girl"), and sports columnist Jimmy Cannon.

11:30-1 (4) — Tonight. Joey Bishop has Frank Fontaine (Gleason show's "Crazy"), country-singer Roy Clark and vocalist Kay Stevens along for the song and chatter. (Color).

Broad Boundaries in Media

By ELEANOR MARKO

A medium has its own qualities. It can repulse or attract, be static or vibrant, aid or restrain. Whatever — it is the vehicle an artist employs to best express his personal statement.

The recent Long Branch Art Festival remarkably mirrored this point and furnished a cross-section of techniques quantitatively if sometimes not qualitatively.

In the summer potpourri by local and out-of-state artists, there were found to be those who worked in one medium exclusively; others who had many on exhibit; and those who displayed only a phase of their omnifariousness.

For all the gayness of the event (before this rainfall), the subject of technique was the least relished subject of discussion. Understandably, in this current competitive surge for distinction, the artist would rather expound esthetically, avoid details and let the work speak for him.

Take the case of the velvet background.

Joseph D. Powell, who signs his work just "Powell", buys bolts of black velvet for use as his canvas and oil as his medium. The happy marriage of the two can only be predicted in the hands of an expert. Mr. Powell, a graduate of the University of Chicago, is this expert.

Although the Detroit artist exhibited only a small number of his paintings in this technique, he also has a collection of abstract oils in his summer studio at 163 Waverly Pl., New York. He said he comes to the East in April through October and exhibits in all main outdoor art shows.

Art is his life and livelihood. The group of paintings he selected to show at Long Branch had an academic approach which he felt was suitable to attract summer sales in this area. The nudes and stylized landscapes proved no magnet to the judges.

A 36x48-inch still life of apples carried curiosity. The adeptness with which he handled the structure of the red ripe apples with appealing drops of moisture has a sense of mystery about it. There is no table in the composition — yet one knows that the apples are solidly placed.

Mr. Powell agreed that the velvet resists the oil paints and he sometimes uses a razor in his application technique. He employs a vivid palette to counterbalance the strength of the bold black qualities of the velvet. One of his paintings is 3x6-feet tall. Melania is a gal who capitalizes on resistance.

Creator of semi-abstract compositions she labels as "Poetic Images," the Philadelphia artist works with oils and enamels. Her tool is a palette knife.

Another one signature artist, Melania (Naylor) uses primed Masonite, applies her colors and watches the natural separation that takes place between the oils and enamels. At this point she begins to compose and works swiftly to completion. Decorative and bright, her images suggest fanciful flights of birds, tropical foliage and flowers and fictitious landscapes and undersea adventures. The artist sold 55 of her paintings in the Village show in New York and has shown in Forest Hills, N.Y., and Cherry Hill show in Pennsylvania. Mrs. Naylor is a commercial artist, working for department stores in Philadelphia where she maintains a studio at 1527 West Cayuga St.

She was asked to explain her technique so often in Long Branch that she is concerned that her Poetic Images will be copied. The approach might be, but the control that she has developed over a period of so many years can't be taken lightly. Primarily self taught, Mrs. Naylor attended the Philadelphia College of Art in her early years as an artist.

Arturo L. Bassols, artist, teacher and consultant for the public school system of Milford, Del., let his Cuban father Luis A. Bassols speak for him at the Long Branch show.

Justly proud of his son's current accomplishments, Mr. Bassols came from Cuba 15 years ago and situated outside of Princeton where he is engaged in tutoring Spanish.

Arturo received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Madison College in Virginia and has swept up a collection of awards for his paintings and most recently his sculpture.

A 12-inch tall owl in welded steel complete with wooden base, was a popular choice in the Long Branch exhibit.

For three years in succession he has scored top prizes in sculpture at Virginia Beach. He also has shown in Texas, Florida, and Michigan. His paintings and ceramics were his main interests until three years ago when he became interested in steel as a medium. He has exhibited in New York and a special show was presented by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ballantine and Mr. and Mrs. H. Patton at Gallery 100 in Princeton. His work ranges in size from minute compositions to 10-feet tall.

These three artists did make their statements in New Jersey in this biggest of the four annual events directed by the City of Long Branch. As one artist has said, "It isn't how you paint that matters, but why." And that's enough fuel for any esthetic debate.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

BROOKLYN — Pratt Institute has announced the expansion of its graduate programs in the School of Art. Three programs of graduate art study are now available to students. The graduate program in art education leads to a master of science (art education) degree and is meant primarily for teachers or those who intend to teach. A student who wishes to enter must show evidence of ability in the chosen art field through showing a portfolio of his work, hold an undergraduate degree from an accredited institution of higher learning and have taken certain basic art courses particularly studio courses.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Arthur J. Goldberg, an abstract painter, says that recently "My art has been in meeting situations."

"And that is a form of Op art — it's a happening. I confront happenings," she adds.

The latest happening in her life is the call to her husband to leave the Supreme Court to become the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. He is to succeed his longtime friend, the late Adlai E. Stevenson.

"It isn't a celebration," she told reporters who gathered around her yesterday after her husband had finished his press conference at the State Department.

"You mourn for Adlai Stevenson; you mourn the loss," she said.

Mrs. Goldberg, a small, black-haired woman, her usual vitality showing some strain, expressed sorrow at her husband's leaving the court.

"The court in our family is holy; the law is," she said. "It's a quiet place; it's a sanctuary... we've been there three years and I still walk on tiptoes and talk in whispers."

She said she knew nothing about the diplomatic world but echoed her husband's words about duty to his country.

"He knows what he's called on to do — I don't know — but we'll do our best," she said.

The Goldbergs plan to keep their home in Washington for the time being, but will move to New York to the Waldorf Towers residence maintained for the U. N. ambassador when the appointment is confirmed.

As a member of the Supreme Court, Goldberg and his wife have not led a busy social life in Washington. However, they RED BANK — Art will hold an open house in its new larger quarters at 26 White St., tonight from 8 to 10 o'clock.

At this new location Art on White St. has been joined by Bud Natelson, Little Silver sculptor, in the three-member team venture. He works in various media — wood, stone, fiberglass, and welded steel.

Added work by guest artist Lucille Chayt of Wayside also will be on exhibit.

The Outdoor World

By WILLIAM F. SANDFORD

The term birdwatcher obviously was coined by somebody who wasn't one. It's the "watcher" part that's misleading. An average birder would be much less handicapped in his game by a blindfold than would, say, a golf ball-watcher, a fish-watcher or a target-watcher. Personally, if it weren't for the danger of falling into creeks and bumping into trees, I'd very often do it that way. A blindfold would permit me to concentrate on the sounds that tell me about 75 per cent of what I learn out birding, anyway.

Once in a while a birder will watch his quarry a while because it is unusual or because its behavior is of interest. But for every one he stops to study he'll record 15 by ear and five by sight—and go on about his business of finding more, without actually watching anything but his step. (Sometimes we don't even watch that, and I have scars to prove it.)

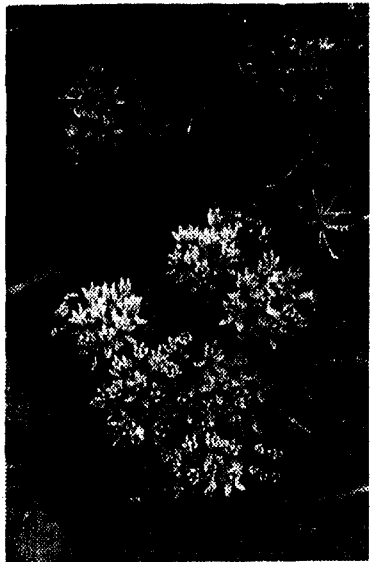

One of the tasks I have set for my spare time over the next 99 years is a complete cataloging of all the flora and fauna of the Burnt Fly Bog area—some 1,200 acres so lush with vegetation that in places you can't see five feet in any direction for the foliage. I'll probably never get it done. But two phases of it will be relatively easy—the birds and the frogs. The densest foliage won't hide their voices. They'll virtually come to me, and tell me who and where they are.

THE TOUGH ONES will be the silent ones: the snakes and the turtles and most of the mammals — and the curly grass and climbing ferns, the gentians and pyxie moss. Of a June morning, you can stand in one spot in such a place and record all the breeding bird species within a 100-yard circle as fast as you can write their names, as their voices come to you. To cover that same area's botanical content you have to go over every one of those 31,416 square yards physically, just because plants don't sing.

So much for the land birds, on which most birders spend the greater part of their time. The water birds—gulls and waterfowl and shore birds and the like—are not quite as easy. Some of them use their voices; most are silent a good part of the time. "Watching" here becomes a little less of a nightmare. At least you have to study them to pin them down specifically. Still they're seldom "watched" in the literal sense. Careful scanning, or scrutinizing, would be more accurate if also more awkward.

So call them birdwatchers, if you find it easier. But birders is shorter and more accurate and sometimes a lot safer. There are among us bird hobbyists a few sensitive souls who don't like that birdwatcher word. And they always seem to be the biggest, toughest and nastiest tempered ones.

ONE OF the difficulties of "watching" birds by ear is that of learning and distinguishing between all those voices. For one thing, the "memory" of the ear is shorter than that of the eye. Then, too, a large number of our birds are transients that are with us only fleetingly. We hear them so briefly during the spring flight that by the time they come back, a year later, we've forgot the voices. (During the return flight in fall few of them do much singing.) Brother C. Michael of Christian Brothers Academy, Lincoln, who is taking the intensive nature course at the Audubon Camp of Maine writes that a major advantage of the experience is the opportunity to hear all summer the voices that we get here only in brief bursts during the short period of the spring flight. The parula, blackburnian, black-throated green, myrtle and bay-breasted warblers are a few of the birds that nest in the area.

The CBA science teacher also reports the offshore trips from the camp have added some life birds to his list—elders, gullinots, Leach's petrel, arctic tern. The study program is concentrated, but effective, Brother Michael comments.

Mrs. Frederic N. Rolf of Colts Neck Township was birding "by ear" when she discovered an Acadian flycatcher near her home recently. The find is interesting because the only colony of this species was known of in northern Monmouth County was just below the old dam of Tintern Manor Reservoir and disappeared when the habitat was destroyed in construction of the new, enlarged impoundment. Mrs. Rolf's home is a short distance upstream from the old site, on the Hop Brook arm of the reservoir.

Most of the land birds are easier to spot by voice than by sight, and a few are almost impossible to separate otherwise. The Acadian is one of them. In physical appearance it is so much like the least and Traill's flycatchers that we depend on their voices—which are quite different—to tell them apart.

when contended and will fly silently into any room that you are in if the door is left open. Sometimes while we are eating at the breakfast table he will fly up to the window and watch us through the pane of glass with his beady eyes winking at us. He has a pair of robins that are nesting in a smoke bush in our yard worried to death. Whenever they see him flying across the enclosed porch they will fly up to the screen and scream at him. Once when we put Whooter out on the bird bath they took turns flying down on him their bills snapping and clicking the whole time. When Whooter is scared the little feather-like horns on his head go up like an antenna and he utters a low bellow-like sound. I believe if we had left Whooter alone the robins would try to kill him by pecking him to death. When we tried to get some pictures of Whooter my daughter had to keep a steady stream of water from our garden hose on them to keep them away.

Whooter loves water. We found this out when we left a glass of water on one of the tables and he tried to take a bath in it. When we replaced it with a larger bowl on the picnic table he all but drowned himself, he liked it so much.

We had heard that owls have a wonderful power of regurgitation. This we proved another time when we left the eyepopper out on the table overnight. The next day we searched high and low for the rubber stopper when only the glass portion remained. Kiddingly we said we bet the owl swallowed it. All that day Whooter refused to eat and we began to worry that he was sick. Finally at dinner that night we dangled a piece of liver in front of his beak and he took it over to the corner of the porch where he proceeded to tear it apart with his talons. When we checked to see if he had eaten it, sure enough he had, after first regurgitating the much sought after stopper. Another time we left a few kernels of corn on a cob and he had great fun picking them out and eating them. We found out the next day he wasn't a vegetarian when the corn, like the stopper, reappeared.

We could go on and on about the cute tricks and antics of Whooter, especially his escapade at night on the neighborhood rooftops and being mistaken for a bat.

It won't be too long before Whooter will have to leave our household as Brenda will be leaving for the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine to pursue her lifelong ambition. She just graduated from Rutgers College of Agriculture where she earned her BS in animal science. While at Rutgers, she never lost touch with the animals for she raised a Swiss Brown calf and won several prizes with it. (See Red Bank Register picture and article Thursday May 31, 1962) and also a Dorset Horn lamb. During the past three summers she gained valuable experience working as an assistant for Dr. Joseph Millar at his animal hospital in Deal. It was he who encouraged her to go on and try for veterinary school in spite of the very strong odds of a woman being accepted. We are happy to say she was one of the six women to be accepted at the University of Pennsylvania this fall. At the present time she is working at the Merck Research Institute in Rahway, gaining even more experience as a biological technician in the field of endocrinology.

Brenda plans to take her pet rat, Sachamo, to college with her, which will help to fill the void left by the departure of Whooter.

Deciding whether to release Whooter to his own natural habitat or assuring him of a safe home in a zoo for others to enjoy is one of the most difficult decisions for Brenda to make. She feels his kind should be perpetuated and yet she knows there are many enemies out there waiting for him. He has been offered a home at the Staten Island Zoo or take up residence at a friend's country estate in Colts Neck where he is promised a goodly supply of mice. Whatever the choice will be, one thing we do know is that Clancy, our seven-year-old Irish Setter, who has taken a back seat here of late, will be assured of being the "king of the roost" once more until Brenda returns home with a newly acquired pet.

Very truly yours,
Mrs. Fred Lewis

Whooter, the Owl

174 White St.
Shrewsbury, N.J.

To the Editor:

The following letter is an account of our pet owl, Whooter, which we thought you might be interested in after we read your very interesting article in the July 18 issue under the "Outdoor-World" about George the pet starling.

Our pet bird is a screech owl which we have been raising for nearly four months now. He or she, which ever the case may be, evidently fell out of one of the huge historical sycamore trees that stands in the middle of Sycamore Ave., Shrewsbury. My daughter seeing several cars pass over this fluttering object stopped and picked it up. Rescuing sick and injured wild pets and restoring them to health is not uncommon in our household. Some of the visitors at our house have been, Peepers, the sparrow, Frisky, the squirrel, Reddy, the cardinal, Thumper, the rabbit, Sam, the crow, several nests of rabbits, turtles, and you name it and we have had it. In fact even our friends and neighbors bring all their sick and ailing pets to Brenda for advice, for you see she is hoping to become a veterinarian.

Whooter is one of the most interesting pets we have had so far. In two days' time he had adopted our family so that he would try to nestle up to you in your hair, eat liver out of your hand, and drink water out of an eyedropper. He has taken over our screened porch completely which we have stripped of lampshades, vases, etc., and he uses the lampshade holders as perches. He sits and clucks like a chicken

3 Patents Granted

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Watson P. Czerwinski of Shrewsbury, N.J., is the recipient of a patent entitled "Antenna Mount."

Mr. Czerwinski has devised a novel shape of spring mount which is secured to a vehicle in such a manner as to reduce and substantially eliminate any undue side and lateral motions of the antenna as the vehicle is moving, regardless of its speed. The mount and the antenna attached to it are supported by a bracket secured to the rear platform of the jeep. The mount comprises a spring which, in contrast to conventional springs for the same purpose, is elliptical in shape.

Mr. Czerwinski has assigned this patent to the United States of America as represented by the Secretary of the Army.

A patent was issued to John V.S. Dahlgren of Fair Haven entitled "Timer Adjusted Oven Temperature Control." It deals with an improved method and apparatus for automatically controlling the operation of gas burners of electric heating elements in cooking ovens so as to provide regulation of the temperature of the oven in accordance with a predetermined series of desired temperature changes.

Another patent was issued to Charles Frendock of Red Bank in conjunction with Douglas T. King of Mountainside, N.J., entitled "Thermostatic Fuel Control And Flame Height Regulating Valve." It deals in general with an improved control valve assembly for regulating the supply of gas to cook stove burners.

The two patents were assigned to the Wilcolator Company, Elizabeth.

Steffen Quits Ad Agency To Work on Comic Strip

By HANK WALLACE

MATAWAN TOWNSHIP — Orkle may well be the only American comic strip character who is a building, and is more popular in Greece than in the U.S.

Created by Vernon Steffen, 45 Imperial Pl., Orkle comments on our times, just as the ancient Oracle told Delphians what's new. For example, Orkle weaves the myth that husband-wife jealousy lopped the arms off the statue of Venus de Milo; Piqued at her sculptor-husband's devotion to cute Venus, Mrs. Milo broke off Venus's arms.

Mr. Steffen hopes to publish several Orkle strips—he's drawn 50 already—in book form. From this stage, he hopes a newspaper comic strip syndicate will pick it up. Already an Athens, Greece, newspaper says it's interested!

To devote more time to Orkle, the 40-year-old artist recently resigned after a three-year stint with Ted Bates & Co., New York, advertising agency. There Mr. Steffen was art director for Colgate-Palmolive TV commercials. His accounts at ad agencies during the past 18 years read like a shopping list: Wheaties, Texaco, Maxwell House, Sylvan, Sealtest.

President Harry S. Truman's 1948 Democratic National Convention also was a Steffen client—Vern helped set up then-infant television production for the Philadelphia pow-wow while with Hile-Damroth Inc., New York.

Art and advertising have always been integral parts of Mr. Steffen's life. Even his birthplace is an ad-man's delight: New Ulm, Minn., ("Just paste 'NEW' stickers on a slow product and sales will pick up remarkably," remarked Mr. Steffen.)

In 1941 Mr. Steffen became the first freshman ever to be art editor of "Covered Wagon," the University of Oklahoma magazine.

After a year of college, however, Mr. Steffen enlisted in the U. S. Army. He served in artillery visual aids at Fort Sill, Okla., and the Photo Center, Astoria, N. Y., illustrating training booklets on hunting land mines and firing bazookas.

For the last eight months of World War II, Tech. Sgt. Steffen transferred to Rome, Italy, which is just across the Adriatic Sea from the Oracle's home town.

Mr. Steffen became art director for the "Italian Theatre" edition of "Stars and Stripes," the military daily newspaper.

"Stars and Stripes" printing presses were far superior to facilities back in the states, according to Mr. Steffen: It seems Mussolini had just built a modern, palatial newspaper plant in Rome, only to have the Allies capture it!

Although technically he was a technical sergeant, Mr. Steffen was not recognized as such at "Stars and Stripes." Military ranking here was subordinate to the newspaper chain of command. The whole staff lived together in a Rome hotel.

Dope for art director Steffen's full-page cartoons about back-home sports came by teletype from the wire services, which also kept "Stars and Stripes" on top of worldwide news.

Today on Mr. Steffen's living room wall hang "Stars and Stripes" printing plates of five Bill Mauldin cartoons.

Orkle talk is created by Bunker Jenkins, New York, with whom Mr. Steffen worked on the Colgate account at the Bates agency.

Vern and Bunker collaborate on ideas, Vern does all the drawings, and Bunker fills the dialogue bubbles. Bunker is also a gag-writer for NBC's Johnny Carson Show.

Mr. Steffen finds his main problem in marketing Orkle is that syndicates fear it is too esoteric. Although a reader familiar with Greek mythology might appreciate some extra subtleties, Mr. Steffen is confident all readers would dig the basic joke line.

However, Orkle is more sophisticated than, say, Ernie Bushmiller's Nancy. Therefore Mr. Steffen hopes to succeed on the blanket-tails of Charles M. Schulz's Peanuts, the psychological strip that he said became very popular only after getting support from college students.

Mr. Steffen India inks Orkle on two-foot paper ribbons. At the rate of one panel per hour, he draws a week of Orkle—five dailies and a weekend—in 21 hours. Most of his daily strips have two or three panels each.

What a cartoonist includes and excludes is very carefully determined, according to Mr. Steffen. Costumes aren't drawn arbitrarily. Rather, important characters wear solid clothes, while subordinate figures have simple lined-in clothing.

For weekend color comics, characters are assigned wardrobes of exciting colors like red in the order of their importance to the story.

Not touched are race, religion, nationality, politics and economic status. This is by edict of the syndicates, which are "very careful that they meet all people of the mass market," according to Mr. Steffen.

He recalled that some news papers whitened up a Negro in a recent Brenda Starr plate to avoid any snag with segregationist readers.

Mr. Steffen reads, converses, and observes his family for comic ideas. His wife Joan provided one episode of Bernadette's Troopers, another cartoon with which Mr. Steffen is experimenting.

Bernadette is a den mother who leads six Cub Scouts through all kinds of humdrum situations.

In this particular event, a courthouse—interior winds up looking like a forest after every local Cub Scout den gets the idea of planting a tree there in honor of Arbor Day.

In real-life, Matawan Borough officials last year advised the Regional Girl Scout Council, on which Mrs. Steffen served, that Memorial Park had no more room for Arbor Day contributions.

Like Bernadette, the Steffens also have six troopers, Susan, 11, Veronica, 9, Mark, 8, Frederick, 7, Christine, 4, and Brian, 3.

Mrs. Steffen is now Mark's den mother in Pack 74, whose headquarters is Strathmore School.

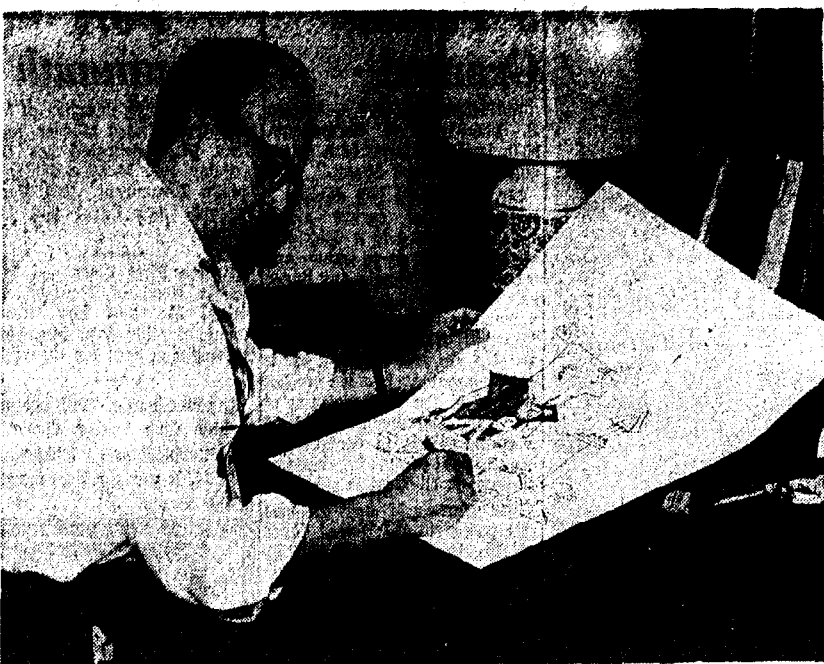

Mr. Steffen is setting himself up as an advertising art service while he waits and hopes for a book publisher, and then a newspaper syndicate, to accept Orkle.

Will Orkle eventually become a monthly comic book for a TV animated cartoon show like the Flintstones? Vern Steffen, the Orkle of Strathmore, can't see that far into the future.

Name Kaplan Vacation Club Co-director

WASHINGTON — Jack Kaplan, Auldwood La., Rumson, N.J., has been named co-director of the Central Jersey chapter of Club Internationale, a new, nationwide, non-profit vacation club. William Hooper, managing director, has announced.

The chapter, first to be chartered in the northeastern United States, will serve New Jersey's Monmouth, Middlesex and Somerset Counties.

Club Internationale offers its members an opportunity to save, through weekly deposits, for a grand tour of Europe and earn two free bonus vacations in the interim, Mr. Kaplan said.

According to Mr. Kaplan, members will pay an annual membership fee and will deposit a fixed sum in a leading bank each week for three years. At the end of that time, the member is entitled to an all-expense paid 20 to 30-day tour of Europe.

At the end of the first and second years in the club, members also are offered free, all-expense paid, 10-day bonus vacations to any one of dozens of vacation spots in the northern hemisphere, Mr. Kaplan said.

The club also will offer low-cost weekend trips and instruction in golf, tennis and foreign languages at reduced cost, Mr. Kaplan said.

Other activities, including dances, lectures and discussion groups, also are planned. Further information is available from the club's headquarters, 63 Pearl St., Metuchen.

Freehold, W.L.B. in First Carleton Tie Game of '65

WEST LONG BRANCH — Freehold and West Long Branch came up with the first tie of the season in the Ed Carleton Memorial Baseball League last night when they battled to a 7-7 deadlock.

Each team picked up one point as a result of the tie. Freehold's record is 8-5-1 and 17 points while West Long Branch has a 5-6-1 mark and 11 points.

Greg Walling put Freehold ahead, 2-0, in the first inning when he slammed a home run after Butch Evans' single.

West Long Branch's Paul Christopher quickly cut that deficit in half when he powered a lead off homer in the bottom of the first.

Freehold extended its margin to 5-1 with three runs in the top of the second, but West Long Branch came back with a pair of tallies in the home half of the same frame to make the count 5-3, Freehold's favor.

In the bottom of the third, West Long Branch went to the front, 7-5, with four markers on three errors, Bill Laufer's single and Christopher's two-run safety.

Freehold earned the tie in the top of the fourth with a pair of runs on a walk, John Brown's

COLTS SIGN MATTE

BALTIMORE (AP) — Halfback Tom Matte has signed his National Football League contract for 1965, the Baltimore Colts announced yesterday.

Blefary Gets Key Hit in Oriole Sweep

BALTIMORE — Curt Blefary supplied a key double to help the Baltimore Orioles win the first game of a doubleheader sweep over the Kansas City A's last night.

Blefary, of New Shrewsbury, N.J., hit a wind-blown fly to right in the fifth inning of the first game for a double and scored the only run in a 1-0 Oriole victory. His hit was the first of the game for Baltimore.

Baltimore's win in the second game came easier. The Orioles, who have now won 11 of their last 14, turned three Kansas City errors into a seven-run fourth inning in rolling to a 9-2 decision.

On the night, Blefary had two hits in six official trips to the plate, made one error in left field and stole one base.

Mrs. Erlanger's Colt Takes Yearling Show for 5 Straight

OCEANPORT — Members of the Thoroughbred Breeders' Association will soon be getting on the band wagon and start playing "break up the Eglar Woodside Stud, Inc." The reason: For the fifth consecutive year, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Erlanger of Oakhurst took top prize in the annual Yearling Show held at Monmouth Park yesterday.

A striking brown colt, full brother to Rambunctious, garnered top honors as champion of the 1965 show held in the English Walking Ring. The youthful titlist, by Rasper II—Danae II by The Solicitor, proudly walked the circle with the classy prancing of the swans in the infield lake area.

The colt's win kept the Erlanger victory streak alive in the show which is sponsored jointly by Monmouth Park Jockey Club and the Thoroughbred Breeders' Association of New Jersey. For Rasper II, sire of yesterday's winner, it was the fourth consecutive year that one of his sons or daughters have taken down the championship. The imported stallion died recently at the Erlanger farm.

The Woodside colt started the day by placing first in the class for colts foaled in New Jersey, defeating a field of 11 other entrants. Second place in the colt class went to a dark bay or brown colt by Fabricator, representing the stable of David O. Evans of Holmdel. In third position was a dark bay son of Cosmic Bomb, owned by George Buonocore and Julius Genova of Newark, while a bay by Supercolossal, entered by Mrs. Katherine C. Jones, 61 Springdale Ave New Shrewsbury, was fourth.

Evans' colt was named as reserve champion of the show by trainers Eddie Yowell, Ray Met-

76 by Toscano Wins Hospital Golf Tourney

MIDDLETOWN — Michael Toscano shot a four-over-par 76 to win the Riverview Trophy in the second annual Riverview Hospital golf tournament yesterday at Navesink Country Club.

Toscano received the Riverview Trophy, a silver bowl, for firing the individual low gross in the tournament at a dinner-dance at the club following the day's golfing activities.

Among the teams, low gross prizes went to the duos of Robert Lynn and Don McLaughlin, 72; Toscano and Lawrence Lassins, 74, and the teams of Dr. John Sinnott, Jr., and Don Sinnott, 3d, and Dr. William Ellis and Alan Duke. They finished with 78s.

Proceeds from the outing benefited the Red Bank hospital's development program.

CHECKING THE YEARLINGS — Harvey I. Wardell, assistant secretary and general manager of Monmouth Park Jockey Club, eyes the yearlings at the Yearling Show with Peter Cole, field secretary of the Thoroughbred Breeders' Association, at Monmouth Park yesterday. Mrs. Milton Erlanger's colt won top prize, making five straight wins for the Oakhurst fam.

YEARLING SHOW WINNER — This striking brown colt, full brother to Rambunctious, captured top honors as champion of the 1965 Yearling Show sponsored jointly by Monmouth Park Jockey Club and the Thoroughbred Breeders' Association of New Jersey yesterday at Monmouth Park. The colt's victory marked the fifth straight year that a Woodside Stud, Inc., entry won the crown. Woodside is owned by Mrs. Milton Erlanger of Oakhurst.

Ft. Monmouth's Member-Guest Slated Aug. 7-8

FORT MONMOUTH — The Fort Monmouth Officers' golf club will host its 12th annual member-guest golf tournament Aug. 7-8, and 70 teams are entered.

The tourney is to be one of match play against pair, with each player using 75 per cent of his registered handicap. A number of prizes will be awarded for each day's play, as well as for the over-all tournament. The tourney climax is to be a buffet dinner-dance at which prizes will be awarded.

Defending champions in the event are Maj. Clyde McClelland and guest William Parker, both of Wall Township, who finished eight up on par in capturing the 1964 title. Both are members of the Signal School faculty and staff.

Conigliaro Fined For 'Mistakes'

BOSTON (AP) — Tony Conigliaro, young outfielder for the Boston Red Sox, was fined an undisclosed amount by the club yesterday for violation of discipline rules.

A Red Sox spokesman said Conigliaro apologized to manager Billy Herman "for mistakes he had made in the past." The spokesman did not elaborate.

Herman told newsmen recently that he had ordered the outfielder not to use his record player in the Red Sox bus after the team had lost a game.

Conigliaro also publicly criticized Herman for "not helping me" when the outfielder was in a batting slump.

Lincroft All-Stars In Romp

LAKEWOOD — The Lincroft Little League All-Star team made its debut in the District 11 Little League Tournament a big one yesterday when it overpowered Beechwood, 21-1.

Lincroft will meet Manasquan-Brielle Friday at Belmar in its tournament game.

A nine-run third inning broke the game open for Lincroft. The winners sent 15 batters to the plate during the outburst with six walks and four hits getting the runs. Bill Marsella and Kevin Leahy collected two hits apiece to account for the safeties. One of Leahy's base knocks was a double while both of Marsella's were singles.

Lincroft's Bob Godard allowed only two hits during the six-inning affair. He fanned 10 and walked three.

CURVING IN THE N. J. FUTURITY — Crimson Rambler (1-A), jockey Paul Kallai in the irons, rounds the turn in first place as he heads for home in the New Jersey Futurity 5 1/2 furlong race at Monmouth Park yesterday. Behind Crimson Rambler on the left is Ill Wind, (No. 5) jockey John Choquette riding. The fifth horse, Simpleton, Phil Grimm in the saddle, was the victor. Simpleton returned $18.80, 14 and 2.60. The winner went the distance in 1:06.2. Crimson Rambler finished fourth in the seven-horse field.

Simpleton (8-1) Wins N.J. Futurity for Jersey-Breds

OCEANPORT — Simpleton, owned by Charles Mather's Avonwood Stable of Philadelphia, and ridden by Philip Grimm, broke the hold Mrs. Milton Erlanger's Woodside Farm had on the New Jersey Futurity feature at Monmouth Park yesterday.

Mrs. Erlanger's Oakhurst farm had won the last three runnings of the Futurity with Rambunctious, Redpoll and Rhodie. Her representatives yesterday were Rigorous and Crimson Rambler.

Simpleton went the 5 1/2 furlongs in 1:06.2 and returned neat across the board prices. The winner paid $18.80 to win, $14 for place and $2.60 for show.

Ill Wind, John Choquette in the irons, finished second for $8.20 and $2.40, while the 1-2 favorite, Rigorous, Jacinto Vasquez in the saddle, was third to return a $2.20 show price.

Simpleton, two-year-old colt Saggy-Picot by Picot, came out of the gate in sixth spot of the seven-horse field and moved up to fifth at the quarter pole where he stayed until moving to third by a length and a half in the top of the stretch. Crimson Rambler had held the lead in the early stretch run, but couldn't stay there.

The winner went under the wire by a length margin. Ill Wind was a length and a half ahead of Rigorous.

The race grossed $23,870 with the winner netting a check for $15,020. It was the first victory for Simpleton, who had only accumulated $940 in earnings. Simpleton was an 8-1 choice by the 21,838 in attendance.

The winner also picked up $750 in breeder's awards. Second was worth $425, third received $275 and Crimson Rambler of the Erlanger won $1,250 for fourth plus $150 for breeder's award.

Trainer G. M. Odom stated, "I think I'll keep him ready for the New Jersey-bred stakes for which he is eligible. He'll go back to New York tonight."

Jockey Grimm declared, "I never rode this horse before but I soon found out he didn't want to run behind horses. I eased him out and then my troubles were over."

Cathy-Terrie, ridden by Paul Kallai, and Phyllis D., Garth Patterson in the saddle, formed a (1-3) daily double that returned $185.20.

Milwaukee Wins, 6-4
 There's plenty of Giant left in Felipe Alou, who's been cashing Milwaukee Brave paychecks for two seasons now.

Alou, like any good Giant would, turned ferocious when he saw the Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday night and the result was 6-4 Milwaukee victory, the ninth straight triumph for the red-hot Braves.

Felipe's two brothers, Matty and Jesus, still wear San Francisco uniforms but the elder Alou was traded to the Braves after the 1963 season in a six-player trade that brought Bob Shaw to the Giants.

Injuries limited Alou last year but the 30-year-old outfielder first baseman was feeling no pain against the Dodgers Wednesday night. He stroked three singles and a double, drove in two runs and scored one in pacing Milwaukee's victory.

Hank Aaron chipped in with three hits including his 20th homer of the year and Billy O'Alou was traded to the Braves

Elsewhere in the National League, Al Jackson pitched a two-hitter as the New York Mets blanked Pittsburgh 1-0. San Francisco nipped Cincinnati 5-4 in 11 innings. Houston blanked St. Louis 2-0 on Bob Bruce's six-hitter and Chicago edged Philadelphia 8-7 in 10 innings.

Jackson pitched no-hit ball for 7 1/3 innings before Willie Star-gell broke the spell with a clean single to left. Pinch hitter Ossie Virgil got the other Pirate hit, a leadoff single in the ninth.

The Mets, who snapped a 10-game losing streak, got their only run in the fifth when Chuck Hiller scored all the way from second on Bill Mazeroski's error.

Bob Bruce pitched a six-hitter and Bob Lillis drove in both Houston runs with a fifth inning double as the Astros blanked the Cardinals. Jim Gentile opened the fifth with a walk and moved up on Bob Aspromonte's single. One out later, Lillis connected.

Rookie Bob Schroder delivered a bases-loaded pinch single in the 11th inning for San Francisco's victory over the Reds. Willie McCovey's 21st homer of the year sparked a three-run Giant rally in the ninth that erased a 4-1 Cincinnati lead.

Ernie Banks' 10th inning single beat Philadelphia for Chicago. Don Landrum had opened the Cubs' 10th with his fourth hit of the game and after Billy Williams walked, Banks' safety won it. Doug Clemens' fourth hit of the game had driven in Jim Stewart with the tying run in the ninth after Chicago twice blew three-run leads.

Spahn to Start
 SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Warren Spahn will make his first start as a San Francisco Giant pitcher today against the Cincinnati Reds.

Manager Herman Franks named the 44-year-old southpaw as the starter before he arrived yesterday.

The giants acquired Spahn Monday as a free agent after his release by the New York Mets.

California U. Rugby Streak Comes to End
 SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Sydney University ended the long unbeaten string of the University of California's rugby union team yesterday, scoring a 5-3 victory over the Americans in a heavy, chilling rain.

Sailing Crown to Held

FAIR HAVEN — Monmouth by three points over runner-up Boat Club skipper Alan Held and crew member Robert Howie won the North Jersey Yacht Racing Association's midjet sailing championship yesterday at the Fair Haven Sailing Club.

Held, who gained a narrow one-point lead in the first three races of the seven-race series Tuesday, fell behind when he was disqualified in the first race yesterday, but came back to finish third, second and first in the final three races of the day to win the title.

By virtue of his victory, Held now advances to the Atlantic Coast championships at the Chelsea, N.Y., Yacht Club, Aug. 25-28. Races there will be conducted in Blue Jays, the same class boat used in the series at Fair Haven.

 DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Lions picked up Jimmy Hill, 35, a 10-year national Football League veteran defensive back, on waivers from the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday.

Ram Rookie Heads Home—Homesick?

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — A rookie footballer who must be homesick left the Los Angeles Rams camp moments after Coach Harland Svare intercepted his car on a highway and pleaded with him to stick around.

Doug Woodlief, 21-year-old highly regarded linebacker candidate from Memphis State, had his car loaded with his clothing and possessions and was on the way out of camp when Svare chased and stopped him Tuesday.

"Look, Doug, you haven't given us a chance, stick around," the coach told Woodlief. He talked persuasively for some time and finally the lad said "Okay, coach."

Svare returned to camp headquarters, thinking Woodlief, was following, but the boy evidently kept right on going, away from camp, and hasn't been heard from since.

good news when the team surgeon, Dr. Joe Dorgan, allowed Tom Neville, a rookie tackle from Mississippi state and the Pats' No. 7 draft choice, to put on a uniform for yesterday's workout. Neville underwent a knee operation last January.

Cosmo in Action

At Peekskill, N.Y., rookie backs Cosmo Iacavazzi of Princeton and Bob Schweickert of Virginia Tech, noted for their offensive ability, practiced on protecting the passer in a workout by the New York Jets yesterday.

Iacavazzi was a fullback and Schweickert held the left half spot.

Coach Weeb Ewbank said the two probably would start at these positions in the rookie game with the Boston Patriots at Lowell, Mass., next Wednesday.

McNamara's Viet Journey -Outlook Is Sober, Gloomy

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — The ups and downs of an endless journey.

in recent years and their reports on how the war looked. Those reports varied from bright and optimistic to sober and gloomy. Right now they're in their sober, if not gloomy, period.

the dismal prospect, it took the United States a long time to do something which might truly turn the tide, if it isn't too late — bomb North Viet Nam.

September 1963 — He said "we are winning out there." (Just two months later the South Vietnamese deposed President Ngo Dinh Diem, and killed him. The war has been deteriorating pretty much ever since.)
December 1963 — McNamara was still "optimistic."
March 1964 — He said "the path to victory may be hard."
May 1964 — He said the war was going to be a "long, hard war."
While American aid was slowly increased, the United States seemed to dawdle along, not wanting to get too directly involved until the guerrillas last February attacked a U.S. air base in South Viet Nam.
Then Johnson ordered the bombing of North Viet Nam targets, a project which has been going on ever since. It was a vital military decision.

And after McNamara's return the Democratic leader of the Senate, Mike Mansfield of Montana, said the war may go on for four, five or ten years.
This prospect of a long struggle is not new. McNamara indicated it a couple of years ago. If it's been forgotten, perhaps that's because it got sandwiched in between sunnier statements.
Here are some of the McNamara views after trips to Viet Nam and Honolulu.
January 1962 — He said he felt encouraged.
May 1962 — He said he felt "tremendously encouraged."
July 1962 — He said the war might go on for "years rather than months."

the delayed decision about full-scale American participation just gave the guerrillas more time to batter the South Vietnamese and occupy more country.

Now the United States has about 75,000 troops in Viet Nam. After this latest report from McNamara the administration may decide to add 100,000 more troops.

Bill Action Due Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House appeared determined to pass the administration's $1.9-billion antipoverity bill today despite continuing Republican efforts to trim it.

The big Democratic majority showed impressive strength Wednesday in turning back one major GOP onslaught and Republican leaders had only faint hope that others would succeed.

The bill would continue a variety of education, Job Corps and other programs and double the authorization of funds.
Republicans are pushing hardest for an amendment that would again allow governors to veto antipoverity projects in their states. The House bill would give the federal antipoverity director authority to override such a veto.

On the first big test Wednesday, Democrats shouted down a proposal by Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., to give the states final say as to whether a community antipoverity project should be approved.

Under the existing program enacted last year, local community action groups deal directly with the federal Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) in getting plans approved and funded.

Also rejected by voice votes were amendments to require elections, wherever possible, for membership in community action planning boards, and to keep churches and other religious groups out of community action programs.
