HELP ARRIVES BY AIR — Helicopter carrying bloodhounds and trainer hovers near car in which body of Mrs. Dorothy L. McKenzie, inset, was found behind diner yesterday in Howell Township.

Hounds, Scuba Divers Airlifted to Scene Howell Slaying Clues Sought

By PETER J. OLIVOLA and WILLIAM J. ZAORSKI HOWELL TOWNSHIP — A pair of airlifted bloodhounds and a team of scuba divers failed yesterday to uncover clues in the fatal shooting of a Toms River mother whose body was found in her parked car here in the early morning. Mrs. Dorothy L. McKenzie, 44, the fifth woman whose body has been found murdered in Monmouth and Ocean counties in the last year, was shot in the head twice and left to die in the front seat of her car at the rear of the Regent Diner, Rt. 9, a few hundred feet north of the Monmouth-Ocean line. Her body was fully clothed and showed no signs of sex assault. Police said the killing was not similar in any way to the other unsolved central Jersey deaths, all of which had an obvious sex motive. Scuba divers, a State Police team, searched a stream of the Metedeconk River near the highway hoping to recover the murder weapon, but without success. The hounds, owned and trained by the State Police, were flown in by Navy helicopter from the state conservation center at Hackettstown. Took Off Promptly The aircraft put down on a sandy area behind the McKenzie car. The dogs, given a sampling of the scent, took off promptly but police said later that their movements did not indicate a confident pursuit. At the end of a long, wandering run on both sides of Rt. 9, and in an area near the river stream, they came to a halt on the east side of Rt. 9 at a point about 500 feet from where the McKenzie car was parked. Police believe the killer may have boarded a bus or entered a car at that spot. Heading the investigation are State Police Lt. Mario Paterra of Princeton Barracks and County Detective Albert V. McCormick. Early today, investigators said they still were unable to determine a motive. Mrs. McKenzie was known to have visited a Toms River tavern Tuesday night and to have planned to pick up her husband, Robert A. McKenzie, Jr., 38, at about 2 a.m. at the King's Grant Inn, Rt. 70, Point Pleasant, where he is a bartender. The diner is about 10 miles from the McKenzie home and almost as far from the King's Grant Inn. A dishwasher, Jerolome Gomez, 26, of Lakewood, discovered the body at about 4 a.m., wedged between the front seat and dashboard and partially covered by a bedspread or blanket. He had noticed the car at about 2 a.m. but did not go to it then. A service station attendant nearby told police he had seen the car enter the diner parking lot at about 1 a.m., make a complete turn around the lot and (See SLAYING, Page 3)

Army Signal School Expansion Started With $1.2 Million Pact

FORT MONMOUTH — Expansion of the Army Signal School here is getting underway with award of a $1.2 million contract for construction of three additional classroom buildings and renovation of 64 World War II barracks. The $1.2 million contract award (See Editorial Page 6.) Department of Command Communications, one will be in the radar school area and the third will be in the photography school area. For Troop Use All 64 barracks will be used for troop accommodations, the school spokesman said. Most of the two-story wooden barracks scheduled for renovation haven't been in use at all, he said. Apparently, the 64 barracks buildings don't include the seven Monmouth U.S. Army Reserve Center has been asked to vacate by Oct. 5. They will be used for administrative offices, according to a fort spokesman, and don't require renovation. The building program announced by Rep. Howard heralds the announced build-up of the Signal School here. Decision to step up the school's program at this installation was made public two months ago when the Department of the Army rejected a high-level Army recommendation to move the Fort Monmouth Signal School to Fort Gordon, Ga. for consolidation with the Southeastern Signal School. The student body at the school here has increased from 3,000 last year to 6,013 last week. Rep. Howard said there will be more than 8,000 students in residence next July. About 18,000 students are expected to attend the school next year. 2d Man Surrenders In Lakewood Murder

NEWARK (AP) — Two husky brothers-in-law were in custody today as the prime suspects in the abduction-murder of a youthful Lakewood gas station attendant. One was captured and the other surrendered. Charles Holland, 19, of Newark, walked up to a policeman here last night and told him he was wanted in connection with the slaying. His brother-in-law, Reginald McKnight, 29, of Manchester Township, was arrested by police yesterday morning one block from a bus terminal in Asbury Park. McKnight, who is married to Holland's sister, was arraigned on charges of homicide and armed robbery and is in the Ocean County Jail. Holland is scheduled to be arraigned here on the same charges later today, police said. The battered body of Ronald Sandlin was discovered Tuesday morning in a shallow grave at the edge of a housing development in Manchester Township. He was working at the gas station to earn money for his college tuition. His body was buried beneath two feet of soft earth near Kent Rd., about 300 yards from McKnight's home. McKnight's green and white sedan was parked nearby. Sandlin was working the midnight-to-8 a.m. shift alone Sunday when he mysteriously disappeared. A trail of blood led from a lubrication bay to the station's parking area. Lakewood police said the suspects were traced through McKnight's car. A patrolman re-

Embattled Marines Chase Foe

Yanks Blast Own Ship

SAIGON (AP) — An American plane attacked the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Point Welcome by mistake before dawn today, killing two coastguardsmen and wounding five others, including a British correspondent. The attack off South Viet Nam's northern coast occurred less than 36 hours after American jets bombed and strafed a friendly Mekong Delta village, killing 15 Vietnamese and wounding 182. Meanwhile, a battalion of U.S. Marines, although almost surrounded, battled a large North Vietnamese force in drenching rain last night until the Communists fled. The Leathernecks counted at least 114 Communists dead and reported their own casualties as moderate. The 750 Marines fought for seven hours at such close quarters with the North Vietnamese that the Americans were unable to use their artillery. "Everything we had was engaged with the enemy," said Lt. Col. Harold I. Coffman, commander of the 1st battalion, 5th Marine Regiment. "We were virtually surrounded." The battleground was a tiny Vietnamese hamlet in the coastal flatlands 35 miles south of Da Nang and 25 miles northwest of the Marine base at Chu Lai. Associated Press Correspondent Bob Gassaway reported from the scene that the bodies of khaki-clad Communist soldiers lay strewn in heaps among the rubble of the village, some still clutching their weapons. With a break in the weather, a flight of U. S. jets caught about 60 fleeing enemy troops three miles from the hamlet today and strafed them with their 20mm cannon. Coffman, 39, of Huntingdon, Pa., said it was the first time (See VIET NAM, Page 3)

Mayor Werner Distressed

Sees Breakdown in Morals

EATONTOWN — An indignant voice crying in a seeming wilderness of public apathy was Mayor Herbert E. Werner at last night's meeting of Borough Council. Obviously distressed, the mayor supplemented the report of Councilman Edward O. Clark, police committee chairman, in the following words: "As mayor of the community, I have certain observations in the light of recent happenings in our county, in our borough, and throughout the country generally. "The wanton slaying of three persons within the last week in communities near Eatontown and the major problem (robbery of the Eatontown National Bank) in Eatontown last week points that up. "The breakdown in moral and spiritual fiber of our land is brought home to us by the events of this weekend, and I have been waiting patiently for someone in high places—either in government or in our society, whose voice would be listened to and respected—to speak out against these happenings, but little of this has been forthcoming, even from our clergy, who should be especially sensitive to this situation. Tonight's Keansburg School Board Problem

Expect Wrangle at Currie Confab

By JAMES M. NEILLAND KEANSBURG — Another barrage of verbal fireworks is promised here tonight as the Board of Education once again opens discussion on fired teacher Robert T. Currie. The item was added to the agenda of tonight's special meeting at the insistence of board minority members Mrs. Elizabeth Connelly, George W. Preston, Jr., and John J. Ryan. The fourth member of the quartet which supports Mr. Currie, Jeremiah T. Wilson, is away. At stake — if action has not been taken already — is the board's reply to a petition filed with the state Commissioner of Education by Mr. Currie and his attorney Benjamin Gruber, Highlands. The teacher's petition contends issuance of his fourth contract, completion of three full years as an instructor, failure of the board to serve him notice of intent to rescind his contract before July 11 and failure of the board to serve notice that the contract had been rescinded all constitute the granting of tenure. It goes on to contend that, as a tenure teacher, he cannot be dismissed without formal charges being served upon him and a public hearing held. He further charges that the board failed to adhere to the grievance procedure. (See CURRIE, Page 3)

Legislative Mills Grind Again

Trips Congress Airline Snare

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress groped through the wreckage today after airlines strike negotiators exploded its "last" hope to duck back-to-work legislation. Union and management chiefs blamed each other for the latest collapse of negotiations in the five-week strike of 35,000 mechanics against five airlines. But the legislative mills continued creaking slowly on the year's hottest home-grown political potato confronting election-minded congressmen. "Do not pass legislation that you will regret the rest of your lives," warned AFL-CIO President George Meany in behalf of 17 million union members. Chairman Harley O. Staggers of the House Commerce Committee, who raised faint hopes by briefly cajoling negotiators into trying arbitration, hinted no strike-stopping bill will reach the House floor until next week. The West Virginia Democrat said his arbitration suggestion was "the last thing we could possibly do" short of legislation. Plan Shows Up But the plan blew up a few hours later in a sharp exchange of statements between chief airlines negotiator William J. Curtin and President P. L. (Roy) Siemiller of the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists. Siemiller predicted that any arbitration plan without prior agreement on major contract demands would suffer the same fate as the White House proposal the strikers overwhelmingly voted down July 31. "Prejudging the vote by the international president clearly indicates that the union does not desire to end this dispute by voluntary arbitration," Curtin said in accusing Siemiller of undermining Staggers' plan. "These airlines are more concerned with protecting their fabulous profits than they are with getting their planes back into service," Siemiller shot back. "As usual, the carriers have misstated the facts," Siemiller said. "They know the mood of their employees just as well as I do. They know the hostility and suspicion that exists and they know the reason for it." It was the bitterest exchange to date between the two heretofore unusually polite and cordial antagonists. As the strike dragged on, estimated financial losses of the five grounded airlines — United, National, Northwest, Eastern and Trans World — and their more than 65,000 idled employees mounted near the $300 million mark. Some $250 million of it was lost airlines revenues and about $50 million lost wages. (See AIRLINES, Page 3)

Agents Threaten Boycott

By JOANNE FISHMAN RED BANK — Travel agents from Atlantic City to Newark threatened to boycott domestic airlines last night in an attempt to force an end to the national airlines strike. This marks the first united action by travel agents against the strike, which they claim is precipitating financial disaster. The agents voted to levy a $3 service charge on all domestic bookings under $75, while some agents went one step further and decided not to handle domestic bookings at all. Morton Kaufman of New York City, a management consultant to the travel trade, told the 64 agents representing 26 firms that their most powerful ally now is the Small Business Administration, because "the Civil Aeronautics Board and the airlines are afraid of it." "Mr. (Charles S.) Murphy of the CAB will be in for the biggest blast of his life if he's called in for a Congressional hearing," said the consultant, "and you have a Congressional committee that definitely is going to conduct a hearing." Mr. Kaufman, executive secretary of Associated Retail Travel Agents, said agents are victims of a cartel created by the Air Traffic Conference of American, Washington, and the International Air Transport Association, New York City. "Your fight is with the cartel, not the carriers," he told the agents. "You are the victims of dual distribution. This was knocked out of the rubber and gasoline businesses, and travel is next." The meeting was sponsored by the state ARTA which is headed by Allen Petersen of Petersen's Travel Service, Harding Rd. The national organization, which has a membership of 400 agencies, seeks to establish a power base for agencies through establishing one large network which would control bookings. "The 6,000 agencies across the nation control 80 per cent of the foreign travel out of this country," Mr. Kaufman noted. "You can tell customers which airlines to use, which ships to take. The airlines are scared stiff you will get together and use the power you have. If you have ordinary courage, you can take this power." "You all realize the strike is beyond your and my small realm," he continued. "The thing we must settle is that because of the strike most of you are in serious trouble financially." Sign of Unity Mr. Kaufman said after the meeting he hoped this first sign of unity among agents will be the stimulant needed to lift up a "damn sick" travel business. Mr. Petersen explained that in reviewing his sales for the past (See BOYCOTT, Page 3)

N. J. Education Association Joins Red Bank Sanctions

RED BANK — The New Jersey Education Association has announced from Trenton that it has joined the Red Bank Teachers' Association in its sanctions against the Board of Education. Seymour Siegler, president of the local teachers' group, said New Jersey is the third state to take that action; Maine and Maryland did so previously, he said. NJEA said it would inform its members throughout the state that this district is "an unfit place to teach." Said executive secretary Frederick L. Hipp: "Teachers should have an effective voice in decisions affecting curriculum, educational policy and teacher welfare—all of which affect their daily conditions of service. A school board which will not negotiate in good faith with its teachers is not serving the interest of its constituents." The teachers' sanctions were invoked in the spring. One of them involved notification of education associations in all the northeastern states of the Red Bank sanctions. Another caused cancellation of the teachers' non-paid extra-curricular activities. Some of the issues having been resolved, the joint talks between the board and the association hit a snarl two weeks ago over the question of whether teachers would be allowed to retain the right to invoke sanctions in the future. The association offered to accept the decision of arbitrators on that point, but as of last night, Mr. Siegler said, the board had not responded to the offer. No joint meetings are scheduled at this point, but Mr. Siegler said he might be in a position to request a resumption of negotiations shortly.

Likens Silent Fireworks To Bagel Without Cheese

EATONTOWN — "Now all my traditions are shattered," Councilman Melvin J. Kohn declared at last night's meeting of Borough Council. "First," Mr. Kohn went on, "I'm having fireworks on a day other than the Fourth of July, and now I'm having noiseless fireworks. "It's like a bagel without the cream cheese," he quipped. Then Mr. Kohn voted to grant a fireworks display permit to Monmouth Shopping Center for Saturday, Aug. 27. When the application was turned down at the July 27 council meeting because of woods fire danger, Mr. Kohn remarked he also voted against it because "fireworks ought to be reserved for the Fourth of July." Councilman Bruce J. Mangan agreed. The application, revised to push the fireworks display date back a week and to move the firing site so that sparks cannot fall on wooded areas, was approved — with the suggestion that the shopping center use mostly silent fireworks. Councilman Edward O. Clark, police committee chairman, reported seeing a display which used only three salutes to attract attention and then displayed only visual fireworks. "I enjoyed it and it was very effective," he said. Excessive noise, more than sparks, has been the basis of complaints about fireworks received by police in the past, the councilman added. "The police got nine complaints within 15 minutes after the last fireworks display (at Monmouth Shopping Center)," he said. "All of them complained of excessive noise." Police Sgt. Lawrence DeVito has received a letter of commendation and two days off for quick action June 9 in making arrests when the Main St. laundromat was broken into, Mr. Clark reported. He also told council the state Highway Department will recycle the traffic light at Broad and Main Sts. to provide more (See FIREWORKS, Page 3)

MCAP Reports 27 Red Bank Families in Substandard Houses

RED BANK — At least 27 low-income families are renting housing the county anti-poverty agency classifies as substandard. The housing conditions will be detailed in a written report to Red Bank's Acting Mayor Daniel J. O'Hern, Joseph E. Taylor, executive director of Monmouth Community Action Program, Inc. (MCAP), the anti-poverty group, told The Register last night. Mr. Taylor said he will telephone Mr. O'Hern this morning to give the acting mayor a run-down on the MCAP findings and to arrange a meeting with him. Mr. Taylor said some of the 27 families are receiving public assistance funds. All have poverty-level incomes, he said. MCAP staff members made an on-the-spot survey of housing here following complaints by two women attending a block group meeting last week. Block groups are being organized by MCAP to improve impoverished families in community action projects. In a letter to Mr. Taylor on Friday, Mr. O'Hern asked for the addresses of the substandard dwellings, said he would inspect them with the building inspector and health officer, and promised prosecution for violations. The Red Bank Area Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) also is interested in the housing conditions here, Mr. Taylor said. He said he will meet with NAACP representatives.

Gas Company Dividend Up 25 Percent

ASBURY PARK — The Board of Directors of New Jersey Natural Gas Company voted yesterday to increase the annual cash dividend from 80 cents to $1 a share and to declare a one percent common stock dividend, subject to approval of the state Board of Public Utilities Commissioners.

The board announced it plans to discontinue the stock dividend in the future. It has been declared for the past 10 years. The record date for the stock dividend will be 10 business days after it is approved by the PUC and the pay date will be 15 business days after the record date.

The quarterly cash dividend of 25 cents will be paid Oct. 15 to stockholders of record Oct. 1. The increase of 20 cents annually was the eighth cash dividend increase in the past 11 years. The last time was a year ago when it was raised to the annual rate of 80 cents.

A third dividend also approved by the board is the regular quarterly payment of 1.18% a share to holders of preferred stock on Oct. 1 to stockholders of record as of Sept. 17.

SEA BRIGHT — Mrs. Minnie Harvey of Pluckemin was injured slightly in a two-car accident last night at the intersection of River St. and Ocean Ave.

Police said Mrs. Harvey was a passenger in an automobile driven by her husband, Walter H. Harvey, which was struck in the rear by a vehicle operated by John Kaswell of Norwalk, Calif.

Mrs. Harvey complained of neck pains, police said, and was taken to Riverview Hospital, Red Bank, where she was treated and released.

Capt. Gerald Cramer and Sgt. John Carmody investigated.

Nursing Staff And MCOSS Affiliated

RED BANK — The borough's public health nursing staff has been affiliated with the Monmouth County Organization for Social Service, Health Officer Vincent P. Horan announced yesterday.

The purpose of the move, Mr. Horan said, is to expand its activities and to be accredited as a home health agency so Medicare patients can be served.

Red Bank's two nurses will continue to operate in this borough and will stay on the borough payroll but will be under MCOSS. "This move," he said, "coincides with State Commissioner of Health Dr. Roscoe Kandle's statement that the day of the small staff agency is past."

Special home health services will be provided through the county-wide agency, including physical therapy, diet counseling, home help services under the Family and Children's Service, and special consultation service for nurses.

An initial six-month agreement with MCOSS was approved by Acting Mayor Daniel J. O'Hern, Councilman John P. Arnone and the Board of Health.

Courtlandt White, president of the health board, signed the letter of intent to affiliate with MCOSS, Mr. Horan said.

Luncheon Today at Fort

FORT MONMOUTH — A score of prominent members and officials of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce have accepted the invitation of Brig. Gen. William B. Latta, commanding the U.S. Army Electronics Command, to a luncheon meeting and briefing at the post today.

Also invited are members of the Fort Monmouth Advisory Committee, a group of eight leading Monmouth County citizens working for the mutual interests of the fort and the county.

Today's meeting is designed to effect a closer liaison and better mutual understanding between New Jersey business and Fort Monmouth. George L. Bielitz of Little Silver, chairman of the advisory committee, assisted Gen. Latta in setting up today's meeting.

Fight Brush Fire

MADISON TOWNSHIP — A brush fire covering a 70-acre area was brought under control early today by township firemen. The fire was first reported at 11:41 p.m. at the wooded tract on Oak St. A general alarm was sounded at 12:20 a.m. and Spotswood firemen were called in at 2:30 a.m.

BIRD'S NEST, TELEPHONE GUEST — John Ransley, splicer for New Jersey Bell, checks the line at East End and Seventh Aves., Middletown Township, and says hello to four little sparrows under the terminal box. On an assignment, Ransley, of Little Silver, found the birds' nest blocking the terminal box. With company approval, he put in new terminal box on other side of the pole, leaving undisturbed the home of the baby birds.

Terminal Box Birds Now Utility's Guests

MIDDLETOWN TOWNSHIP — John Ransley, 37, a splicer for New Jersey Bell Telephone Co., climbed a pole at East End and Seventh Aves., here recently and found a family of birds nesting near a telephone terminal box.

"There were three or four little sparrows in this nest, which had been wound around the wires by the terminal," Ransley said. "I knew if I opened the box that was the end of the nest."

"I didn't know what to do. I couldn't move the nest the way it was made and yet I had a job to do."

"I called the office and told them about the birds. I also told them about 20 people had gathered around the pole now and were asking me what was going to happen to the birds."

"I asked permission to put in another terminal box on the other side of the pole. The office told me to go ahead."

The 14-year telephone company veteran who lives at 45 Salem La., Little Silver, paused for a moment and then said, "Maybe I'm a little tenderhearted, but put yourself in my place. Could you have evicted those little birds?"

Starts a Blaze To Test Alarm

RED BANK — Firemen pulled a box of burning debris from the smoke-filled home of Leroy Johnson, 256 Leighton Ave., yesterday afternoon.

Deputy Fire Chief Frank Mazza said a little boy admitted setting the fire in the box in the basement to test the newly installed fire alarm system in the Johnson house.

Included in the box, Chief Mazza said, was a pair of smokers that caused smoke so thick firemen had to use masks to locate the fire.

Grace Period Given Long Branch Parkers

LONG BRANCH — Shoppers in the city will have 20 minutes of grace, starting today, to escape a parking ticket.

Mayor Paul Nastasio said last night the 20-minute warning system for all parking meters is intended to take the sting out of the $1 parking tickets and encourage leisurely shopping.

Police will issue warning tickets once the red flag shows in the meter, said the mayor. If the policeman walks by more than 20 minutes later, he will write out a ticket.

"This will help stimulate business because the housewife will not have to worry about being over on the meter," said Mayor Nastasio, who requested the council approve the warning system two weeks ago.

The council then referred it to City Attorney Julius Golden who recently gave his approval, and yesterday the new tickets were ready to be used.

"Instead of being surprised to see a ticket on the windshield, the driver will be elated with the warning," predicted the mayor.

For those who like the new system, the bottom of the ticket offers this invitation: "Please come back to see us again."

Pick Blake to Assist School Superintendent

RUMSON — Edgar B. Blake, Mr. Blake, who will receive an annual $1,000, will be helpful in areas of orienting new teachers, giving frank suggestions about curriculum content, and aiding eighth grade graduates seeking placement in private secondary schools.

"The first is most important", Mr. Hockey said.

Mr. Blake was associated with Country Day School 40 years before his retirement July 31. He is a former councilman and Juvenile Conference Committee member.

The school board last night also appointed Mrs. Joanne E. Hamilton, Mrs. Florence Blumberg and Mrs. Diane Whitmore to fill out the teaching staff for the coming year. Of 57 teachers, 14 will be new ones in September.

Mrs. Josephine Stoll was appointed department chairman for middle grades, and Mrs. Ruth Lawrence, for upper grades.

House Fire Is Termed 'Suspicious'

MIDDLETOWN — A fire which last night caused an estimated $4,000 in damage to a vacant East Keansburg home was termed "suspicious" by fire Chief Alvin Maxson.

The home, at 51 Neptune Pl., has been boarded up for about a year, the chief said, adding that evidence was found that someone had forcibly gained entry to it.

The building is owned by Mrs. Patricia McLaughlin who moved to New York City after the death of her husband last year, Chief Maxson said.

One bedroom and the furniture in it received the heaviest fire damage but this extended into the living room. Much of the home sustained smoke and water damage, the chief said.

An earlier East Keansburg fire, at 8 Monmouth Ave., a home owned by Lawrence Policastro, caused damage estimated at $175. This one, reported at 9:07 a.m., was caused by a cigarette dropped on a bedroom rug, the chief ruled. The blazing rug ignited a box spring mattress and scorched the mattress above it.

East Keansburg and Port Monmouth Fire Companies responded to both alarms.

Two Injured In Accident

LONG BRANCH — Two persons were injured in a one-car accident on Second Ave. at noon yesterday.

Police said Delia Restaino of Newark was making a left turn into Second from Morris Ave. when she lost control of the vehicle she was driving and struck a tree on the east side of the roadway.

A passenger in the car, Michael Restaino, Newark, received a laceration of the right knee. He and the driver, who received a laceration of the left arm, were taken to Monmouth Medical Center where they were treated and released.

Legislature to Act On Redistrict Law

TRENTON (AP) — The task of adjusting New Jersey's congressional redistricting law to fit court standards has been assigned to the state Legislature.

Gov. Richard J. Hughes told a news conference yesterday Democrats had no plans for a new court defense of the law which the state Supreme Court said appeared in part to be unconstitutional.

Hughes said he would urge the Democratic — controlled Legislature to correct what he called "the defects" in the law which were cited by the state's highest court last month.

The court questioned whether the reapportionment plan meets the U.S. Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote standard. But it left the door open for further defense while stopping short of declaring the law unconstitutional.

Under the one-man, one-vote decisions, the courts have held that districts must be drawn as equal in population as possible. In New Jersey, the ideal for the state's congressional districts would be 404,000 voters each.

The state Supreme Court ruled that congressional elections this fall could be held under the reapportionment law on grounds that time was too short before the election filing deadline to draw a new law.

But the court ruled that population deviations in three districts appeared too great in as much as the districts crossed the natural political boundaries of county lines. The court said the Legislature and the Hughes administration failed to give an accounting for the population deviations.

The court said it did not have jurisdiction to rule on the Republican contention that the plan was a gerrymander designed to limit GOP voting strength to as few districts as possible.

Republicans bitterly attacked the plan as a political weapon designed specifically to increase the prospects for re-election of three Democratic freshmen congressmen who were elected in 1964 when President Johnson scored a landslide victory.

They are Reps. Henry Helstoski, who is running for re-election in the 9th District in Bergen County; James J. Howard, who is running in the 3rd District composed primarily of Monmouth County and a part of Middlesex, and Thomas C. McGrath, who is running in the 2nd District which includes Atlantic, Cape May, Cumberland and Salem Counties.

The primary for the November congressional election is scheduled Sept. 13. The filing deadline for candidates was passed last Thursday.

Agents receive a five per cent commission on domestic bookings, and ten per cent on the international flights, which are more costly. The low commission on domestic flights coupled with the cost of telephone calls to airlines means that agents are lucky to break even, said Mr. Petersen.

With additional paper work and calls for cancellations and rescheduling, the agencies are likely to be losing money.

MURDER INVESTIGATION — Two state troopers follow bloodhounds in attempt to track killer of Mrs. Dorothy L. McKenzie of Toms River, whose body was found behind a diner in Howell Township yesterday.

park a distance from the diner. He said a man who had been driving got out and walked back toward the diner. The car later was seen to have bogged down in thick soft sand.

Mrs. McKenzie's body was identified by her husband who was contacted after daybreak at their home. Police said he was in a state of shock.

The woman's first husband, Ernest A. Reid, who has remarried and lives at the Acme Trailer Park, Pleasantville. He was questioned by police during the day.

Dr. C. Malcolm B. Gilman, Monmouth County physician, said an autopsy showed Mrs. McKenzie had been shot with a .32 caliber pistol. One bullet pierced her right temple and the other went through her head over the right eye. Both were fired at very close range.

The woman's nose was fractured, Dr. Gilman added, when her body was jammed and wedged between the dash and the front seat of her sedan.

State Police Sgt. Gordon Hector, in charge of public relations, said the car apparently became mired in the sand while being driven toward a woods beyond, where it could have been hidden.

The five-foot, four-inch woman was fully clothed. She was wearing a white blouse and black and white block slacks. Her purse was found in the car, Sgt. Hector said, and an undisclosed amount of money apparently was not touched.

State troopers roped off the lot to preserve a workable scene. The two dogs, the only ones the state has, arrived at about 12:30 p.m.

Curious passersby flocked in the parking lot as two coopers, one flying escort, passed over the area and dropped a red flare to determine wind direction before landing.

Both two-year-olds, joined the state police service last year. Their trainer and handler is Trooper Norman Bedel of Newton.

At first, Peter Gunn led police in a northern direction toward an Esso service station adjacent to the diner. But on his second try he and Sam went south and police concluded this was the likely path the killer followed.

The dogs crossed a wooded section south of the diner, past the Brook Hill Motel, across Rt. 9, along the river, and back across the highway, where they stopped.

Mrs. McKenzie's body was removed to the C.H.T. Clayton Funeral Home, Adelphia.

Surviving besides her husband, are her children, Barry Reid, 22, who is married and lives in California, and three daughters, Linda, 19, and Judy and Jill, 16-year-old twins, at home; a brother, Joseph Ruggiero of Newark and a sister, Mrs. Catherine Bartoscek, of Newark.

A native of Newark, she had lived at the shore area many years. She was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Toms River.

Arrangements will be announced by the Anderson and Campbell Funeral Home, Toms River.

Board Buys School Van, Lets Pacts

OCEANPORT — The Board of Education last night approved the purchase of a van-type vehicle from Kison Chevrolet, Eatontown, for $2,022.

The board approved a contract with Deane Fuel Oil Co., Fanwood, to supply about 10,000 gallons of fuel oil at 7.36 cents per gallon.

Milk supplies will be purchased from Shrewsbury Dairies for 5.96 cents per half-pint. Bakery supplies are to be purchased from the Fisher Baking Co., Newark.

Bids from three firms to black-top the Wolf Hill Ave. school's playground area were rejected as being too high. The board will study the problem before re-advertising.

It was announced the local schools will open Sept. 8. Registration for new students will be held during the week of Aug. 22.

Police Seeking Missing Man

KEANSBURG — A 19-state alarm has been issued for a local man, reported by his wife as a missing person yesterday but last seen early Friday morning.

A note to his wife said he has problems which make him ashamed to face her, Police Chief Robert J. Kronenberger reported.

The chief identified the man as Stellanio F. Bonanno, 41, of 58 Church St.

Mr. Bonanno is described as Caucasian, five feet, seven inches tall, weighing 170 pounds, with brown eyes and black hair, graying in spots.

He is believed to be driving his own car, a 1965 green Rambler with New Jersey registration JDR134.

Fire Scrambles Eggs In Plant at Howell

HOWELL TOWNSHIP — Hundreds of eggs were scrambled and cooked yesterday as 50 firemen from nine companies fought a blaze for eight hours at the Alexander Lewis, Inc., Rt. 9, egg processing plant.

Dense smoke from smoldering egg cartons hampered firemen from entering the brick faced building. The blaze began about 7:25 a.m. and kept firemen busy until 3:30 p.m.

The plant supplies eggs to Acme markets.

Fire Chief Stanley Roe of the Adelphia Fire Company said the blaze began in the center of the building. After holes were punched into the concrete roof by an air hammer borrowed from Freehold Borough, firemen were able to flood the interior with hundreds of gallons of water.

Entrances to the building were partially blocked, Chief Roe continued, and made it difficult for firemen to gain entrance.

Three pumps, from Freehold, Squankum and Adelphia fire companies, kept fire units supplied with water from a nearby brook.

Eggs, on assembly lines to be washed or packed in cartons, were crushed and tossed about by powerful hoses and added a pungent odor to the smoke filled air.

Although the building interior appeared heavily damaged, Chief Roe said, damages were only moderate. The processing area received the most damage and offices only water and smoke damages, he added.

When firemen thought they had the blaze under control, it broke out in another section, he said.

"Our biggest trouble," Chief Roe said, "was getting into the building."

Alexander Lewis, plant owner, declined to estimate damages. He was more interested, he said, in setting up emergency power to preserve eggs in refrigerators.

The fire was reported by Sam Testa, a barbershop operator in Freehold Acres, said State Police at Howell Barracks, when he was going to work. Mr. Testa later

Nab 2 Men On Charge By Girl

WALL TOWNSHIP — Two men were arrested yesterday on charges of attempted rape of a 17-year-old girl in the Allaire State Park near where a 19-year-old was found dead last Thursday. Police said there was no connection between the two crimes.

Henry Brandimarte, 21, of Glen and L Sts., Wall Township, and Leon Truex, 20, of 802 Fourth Ave., West Belmar, were released on $10,000 bail each for a hearing Saturday.

The young woman who made the complaint with her parents' consent said she knew Truex and accepted a ride from him and the other young man in Asbury Park.

Police said that after the alleged attack the victim was driven back to Spring Lake, where she lives, and let out of the car near her home. She summoned police soon afterward and arrests were made yesterday afternoon.

Brandimarte is a truck driver, Truex, a carpenter's helper.

"The police cannot even question suspected criminals. . . The preponderance of protection seems to be on the side of the suspected criminal."

The mayor strongly urged citizens to rise in a public crusade against lawlessness and against Supreme Court decisions forbidding prayer and restricting zoning of suspected criminals.

"I have written to (Chief Justice) Earl Warren of the Supreme Court," the mayor declared. He urged others to do likewise.

"Unless we do," he added, "we will have a terrific breakdown in the moral fiber of our country."

Asks Cop Probe

LONG BRANCH — Edgar N. Dinkelspiel last night called for an investigation of all local police departments to make certain police officers are able to cope with the "increasing catastrophic conditions" as reflected in the "recent wave of murders and unsolved crimes in Monmouth and Ocean Counties."

Mr. Dinkelspiel, in a letter to State Atty. Gen. Arthur J. Silis, declared that the wave of murders "has reached alarming proportions" and the time has come for the attorney general to "flex his muscles and crack down without further delay."

He noted the murder of Ronald Sandlin, 18, who was abducted from a Lakewood service station and murdered, happened after police had passed the station in the early morning hours and observed two men there.

"With a proper state indoctrination course for all police officers," Mr. Dinkelspiel declared, "such a crime might well have been nipped in the bud."

McKnight, a 6-foot-2, 240-pound laborer, offered no resistance. Holland, 6-foot, 190-pounds, told the patrolman he wanted to turn himself in.

Sandlin, whose father is a retired Navy chief petty officer, graduated from Lakewood High School. He had worked at the station for seven weeks and was to enter Ocean County Junior College in the fall to study liberal arts.

He lived at 193 New Egypt Road, Lakewood.

Apartment Complainant Leaves, All Seems Well

EATONTOWN — Building Inspector Robert C. Hayes answered the complaints of John W. Dupree of 19-A Stoney Hill Rd. only too well, it appeared at last night's Borough Council meeting.

Mr. Dupree, who complained to council July 27 that among other defects, his apartment dwelling is ready to collapse, apparently has beaten a retreat.

He did not show up, Mayor Herbert E. Werner reported, when the mayor, councilmen, and the building inspector waited for him from 9 a.m. until noon Saturday morning at Borough Hall, where he had asked to meet them. Last night, Mr. Dupree, present at the beginning of the council meeting, disappeared without explanation after a letter from Mr. Hayes was read. The letter stated the building inspector found no sign of "sinkage or collapse" at Stoney Hill Gardens and explained six alleged defects either as already having been remedied or to be expected in an unfinished project.

Such complaints as Mr. Dupree's, Mr. Hayes' letter added, ought to be brought to the building inspector in the first place.

Anonymous complaints to borough officials or bodies are ineffective, Councilman Edward O. Clark, police committee chairman declared. He made his remark after Councilman Melvin J. Kohn, public works chairman, reported receiving an anonymous letter.

The letter, Mr. Kohn said, praised the borough's junk car removal campaign, but complained of one particular junk car which remains an eyesore.

No Need to Fear

"We'll take care of the junk car," Mr. Kohn said, "but I only wish the writer had signed his name. No one has anything to fear; this is America — this is Eatontown."

Mr. Clark agreed. The police have received several anonymous cards and letters in recent weeks, he added.

Councilman Theodore Zebrowski, fire committee chairman, urged continued caution with fires and cigarettes. Recent skimping rains, he said, have done nothing to alleviate dry conditions that have been a fire hazard all summer.

Councilman Bruce J. Mangan, buildings and grounds committee chairman, urged borough residents to take a good look at the new borough hall. "It's becoming a beautiful building," he commented.

A contract for wooden furniture for the new structure was awarded to Business Furniture, Inc., of Elizabeth on a low bid of $2,583. A contract for other office furniture and equipment went to D. H. Young's, Inc., of Springfield on a low bid of $19,961.

dure adopted by it June 23. He therefore petitions the commissioner to conduct a hearing on the board's actions to rescind his 1966-67 tenure contract. He asks that this action be set aside because of his tenure and that he be permitted to commence teaching on the first day of the upcoming academic year.

An alternate request is that the board action be set aside because of its failure to comply with the grievance procedure.

15-Day Notice

Eric Groezinger, director of disputes and controversies, state Department of Education, notified the board July 28 that he is granting it 15 days to answer the petition and to serve a copy of this answer upon Mr. Gruber.

The 15-day period ends tomorrow but, until the board minority requested that the item be added to the agenda tonight, there was no indication that the board, as a board, intended to discuss its response.

According to Mr. Ryan, the situation is similar to the early July instance when the majority, without a board meeting, directed board attorney William E. Russell to seek to lift Superior Court restraints placed against the board and two of its members.

The minority contends that any response to the petition should be made at the direction of the board, determined at a public meeting — not at the direction of the majority behind closed doors.

The likelihood that Mr. Russell has not been so directed already is extremely slim, Mr. Ryan said last night. Since the board reply is due in Trenton tomorrow he questions whether it could be completed overnight and delivered on time if the attorney receives instructions at this late date.

Meanwhile, petitions bearing an estimated 2,500 residents' signatures are awaiting hand delivery to the education commissioner. A definite date for this delivery has not been set, apparently, but indications are that a group of citizens will journey to Trenton early next week, if not tomorrow.

Mr. Ryan took time to hurl sharp criticism at the local Teachers Association for its failure to take a stand on Mr. Currie's ouster.

He pointed out that the issue concerns three members of the KTA, Mr. Currie, Superintendent of Schools Thomas C. Garrison and Principal William DiMaio.

"It would appear that the KTA has abandoned all three. Its officers have identified themselves to either being in fear of their positions or disinterested."

The board member took heat except to KTA President Mrs. Amelia Hazelwood, who said that she is not obliged to call a special meeting of the association unless a majority of its paid members request such a meeting.

Mr. Ryan charged that the association's by-laws clearly state that the president shall call a special meeting upon the request of a single member.

Indicating support for prevailing opinions that the KTA officers were handicapped by Mr. DiMaio, Mr. Ryan asks: "Why wasn't the election of officers conducted in May this year? This is when the election is supposed to be held according to the association's constitution."

DiMaio Not Ready?

"Were the elections held in June because Mr. DiMaio, in May, did not have his slate selected yet?"

The present officers defeated a slate headed by Mr. Currie. His ouster as a teacher was recommended shortly after by the administrators.

Mr. Currie contends that the reason for his dismissal is his opposition to the administrators "within the Teachers Association, not because of my performance as a teacher."

In earlier interviews Mr. Currie traced a history of progress during his three years as an instructor in the local school. He stressed that he had been commended during the past year by Mr. DiMaio.

The administrators contend that issuance of his tenure contract "was a mistake."

Rumson Board, State Aide Mull School Site

RUMSON — A preliminary discussion of expansion plans between school board members and Edward A. Spare, school planning consultant to the State Department of Education, won qualified approval last night.

Mr. Spare said the board's choice of 15 acres of the 27-acre Lovett tract on Ridge Rd. "would satisfactorily meet most all the criteria established for school sites."

Mr. Spare recommended the board restrict any further building at the Forrestdale site. He suggested that careful consideration be given toward acquiring the entire Lovett tract, "to provide greater flexibility for expansion and development of the school system in future years."

William Q. Meeker, board president, commented that the board entertains no such plan at this time, although it is hoping that the borough will consider acquiring the remaining 12 acres with Green Acres aid, for recreational purposes.

Mr. Spare outlined new state recommendations for pupil-teacher ratios for new building. They had not been made known to the board previously. The state department now recommends 20 acres plus one acre for each 100 pupils in future maximum enrollment for elementary schools, providing a HIGHLANDS — Thomas Thompson, vice chairman of the Planning Board, resigned last night for business reasons.

His letter of resignation was read "with regret" and forwarded to Borough Council. The board directed a letter to Mr. Thompson thanking him for his service.

Mayor John A. Bahrs, a board member, reported he had received a letter from Board Chairman George O. Dinkelacker, but is not sure whether the letter means Mr. Dinkelacker is resigning as chairman or as a member.

The mayor did not have the letter with him. He said later he would call Mr. Dinkelacker for a clarification.

Albert Emery and Carl Higgins were named temporary chairman and vice chairman.

Staggers indicated his House committee might vote out a bill different from the Senate-passed measure for Congress to order the strikers back to work, which would require more time for the two chambers to reach compromise.

The House committee yesterday approved the main feature of the Senate bill for Congress to take the onus of ordering the strike halted for 30 days.

But it is still to vote on whether to authorize President Johnson to keep the union members on the job for 150 more days if no contract settlement is reached.

And Staggers' committee is considering an amendment to permit federal seizure of the five airlines.

Meany, who was refused permission to testify by both House and Senate committees, warned at a news conference that legislation to halt the strike could be the first step toward socialism leading to later nationalization of major industries.

Board at Highlands Votes Roof Repairs

HIGHLANDS — Two problems which have been nagging the Board of Education for some time — a leaking roof and a damaged cafeteria ceiling — moved a step closer to solution last night.

By a unanimous vote, the board moved to hire F. Earl Dempsey, local roofing contractor, on a bid of $911 to patch the school roof, repair leaders, gutters and the cupola.

Mr. Dempsey also had submitted an estimate to repair the cafeteria ceiling by installing metal flashing over the damaged ceiling blocks at a cost of $200.

But after first-hand cafeteria inspection, suggested by member Mrs. Florence Adair, the board moved to seek other estimates for repairing the existing ceiling and cost figures on installation of a new dropped ceiling.

On another cafeteria matter — purchase for $36 of graduated size containers for storing leftover foods — Mr. Adair voted "no."

"Anything left over should be thrown away, not fed to the children," she declared.

Board members Mrs. Sivert M. Walstrom and Mrs. Margaret Schmidt disagreed with Mrs. Adair on the subject of leftovers.

They said leftover fruits, spaghetti sauces and gravies can be frozen and used later cutting down "shameful" waste in the cafeteria.

Mrs. Adair said, "I think it's a shame that we charge 35 cents for lunch in a grade school — in a regional, yes, but not in a grade school."

When board members said 30 cents is charged, Mrs. Adair replied, "It should be 25 cents. I don't think it's a shame to have a deficit in the cafeteria account when we're feeding children."

Member John Sciortino told her the board has raised the lunch price "with reluctance" but was forced to because the cafeteria program had cost the taxpayers almost $1,400 in the last budget.

Mrs. Adair suggested an investigation of the operation of the cafeteria to determine whether it is being run efficiently, rather than raising the price of lunches.

There was no further comment from other board members.

Faces Charge On Language

LONG BRANCH — A 34-year-old woman was arrested by police early this morning for using offensive language after she allegedly became abusive when police were called to investigate a loud television set being played in her apartment.

Police said Margaret Hogan of Hallmark Ranch Apartments was released in $100 bail pending a court appearance here Tuesday.

Planners Withhold Ruling On Apartment Proposal

HIGHLANDS — The Planning Board last night withheld judgment on a proposal to build a 20-unit apartment project on Portland Rd. opposite Alpine Manor.

Board Attorney Benjamin Gruber was requested to submit a ruling at a special meeting Wednesday, Aug. 24, on whether the project is considered a business and whether it can be located in the proposed zone under present zoning laws.

Mr. Gruber last night informally ruled that the proposed apartment house is not a business but would require a variance.

Robert Schaab, representing Codan Construction Corp., Portland Rd., last month presented plans to the board for 20 two-bedroom apartment units and 20 parking spaces at an estimated cost of $180,000.

He indicated no variance was required but that his firm would like the board's opinion of the project.

The project is proposed for Zone 6 permitting residential and business uses, such as apartments, hotels, and motels, now located and in operation there, according to board members.

Though objections to the proposal were low key, they were objections, nevertheless.

Mayor John A. Bahrs favored some two-bedroom units, larger parking area, and parking accommodations for 1½ cars per unit. Councilwoman Ellen M. Lynch, a member, agreed.

Mr. Schaab stated that the margin of profit would be only 8 per cent under the two-bedroom proposal, thus financially prohibiting one-bedroom units.

He cited high land costs as one of the factors.

Mrs. Kathleen Mendes, Portland Rd., former president of the Henry Hudson Regional Board, expressing concern that one-bedroom units would adversely affect the school system, told the board that it now costs $614 a year to educate Highlands students in the regional school.

Councilman Frank J. Hall, at the request of board member Albert Emery, made a quick calculation, reporting that the $180,000 project would net about $8,000 a year in taxes, but at school costs quoted by Mrs. Mendes, the 20-unit project would cost the borough $12,000 annually based on one child per unit.

Mr. Schaab said the builders would limit the number of persons per unit since "we don't intend to have people raising families in these apartments."

"But suppose you don't rent them that way?" inquired Mayor Bahrs.

Mr. Schaab made no reply.

School Board Gives Belton A Promotion

OCEANPORT — Lloyd Belton, administrative principal of the local school system, was named borough school superintendent by the Board of Education last night.

Mr. Belton's salary will remain the same, it was said, and no additional personnel will be hired.

The new school superintendent was authorized to furnish the health room in the new Maple Pl. School at a cost not to exceed $1,200. He was also authorized to purchase maintenance supplies for not more than $1,500.

Mr. Belton reports that local parents will be advised by mail of pending changes in school bus routes and bus schedules.

Parking Meter, Post Recovered in City

LONG BRANCH — A parking meter and post stolen sometime Tuesday night from in front of the old USO Club on Ocean Ave. were recovered at 10:30 a.m. yesterday on the beach near the clubhouse.

Police have been investigating a similar theft of a meter that occurred this week.

Assessment Board Named For Sewer Plant Project

MIDDLETOWN — The Township Committee has appointed a three-man assessment board for Willett Acres sewer plant assessments.

The unit will start its work later this month.

Named were local realtor Sterling Thompson, Bell Labs, Holmdel, executive James Coggins, River Plaza, and Peter Bell, Iler Dr.

Some 600 housing units will be hooked into the $500,000 Willett sewer extension.

Committeeman Joseph M. Malavet reported that the sewer project is completed and is now being inspected. He said house hook-ups will be permitted "in the near future," giving no specific date.

The committee adopted ordinances, a salary ordinance, pay scales as reported previously in The Register; a dog license ordinance, with the fee hiked from $3 to $4, and an ordinance appropriating $130,000 for reconstruction of Tindall Rd.

Some $45,000 of the Tindall Rd. project will be paid for with state aid.

The committee, by unanimous vote, rejected an application for transfer of liquor license from the Highway Market, Rt. 36, to Shop-Rite, Rt. 35. It was the ruling of the governing body that there is no public need for the limited distribution (warm beer) license at the Rt. 35 site.

Appointed to the township Safety Council were Mrs. Lee Cook, 14 Danemar Dr., and Abraham Pleasant, Powell Ave., replacing Arthur M. O'Neill and Charles A. Krauss, who resigned.

Dr. Wylie G. Pate, former school superintendent, and retired Major General James Dreyfus, 85 Fish Hawk Dr., were appointed to make recommendations for a code of ethics ordinance. They will be assisted by Township Attorney Whitney Crowell.

Hope for the Arts

1006 Florence Ave.
Union Beach

To The Editor:

Both Governor Hughes and Eleanor Marko deserve to be congratulated! I congratulate Governor Hughes for signing the new bill on the arts and I congratulate Eleanor Marko for bringing this exciting news to the people in your "Palette Talk" of August 4.

The fact that New Jersey will now have a State Council on The Arts has been a long-awaited action. In this way, and only in this way, I feel New Jersey people will become aware and appreciate both nature and good design. Therefore, it is needless to say I heartily agree with the commission that The Arts need greater recognition, economic assistance, space and facilities, and educational resources for all New Jersey citizens and future citizens.

Many cognitive persons have stressed the fact that the greatest asset today's youngsters can have is a creative mind. John F. Kennedy stated that "more and more in our democracy, there is a recognition that the vitality of the arts help to determine the vitality of our civilization and of our way of life." Paul E. Torrence, in his research on creativity, has stressed the importance of the nurturing of creative talent from the child's birth onward. Nothing, he feels, contributes more to mental health, general welfare, and satisfaction in living than raising the level of creativity, and that the elementary years are critical in the development of creative talent.

Yet, in January, 1965, Carl Swanson of the New Jersey State Department of Education, reported that art education holds an extremely insignificant position in the schools of New Jersey. Many have inadequate or no space and facilities provided for the basic activities required for a quality art program. Many schools have inadequately trained, or no art instructors. There are youngsters, with special art capabilities, who have no opportunity to study art in the secondary school. The low esteem which art education holds in the schools is an indication, therefore, of the great need existing in our state. There are many people who are lacking in an understanding of the values and purposes of art education in the schools, and The Arts in everyday life.

As a doctoral candidate, working vigorously on a thesis involving the improvement of The Arts and art education, along the lines of your comments, I appreciated Eleanor Marko's column. There is no doubt that the bill she discussed shows promise in that it will bring new life into the state as well as to the many people involved in The Arts.

With renewed hope for The Arts,

Sincerely,
Lois E. Eben

An Oblique Message?

Box 92
Rumson, N. J.

To The Editor:

Last night I made my annual trip to the movies. There I saw our great Revolutionary hero and secret agent — Paul Revere — lampooned as an unshaven alcoholic riding a saddleless, spavined horse (from which he kept slipping) as he warned the villagers: "Wake up, the Russians are coming."

Then I saw a crowd of native Americans from a Massachusetts island — bumbling, stupid, fantastically homely, sloppily dressed — break into a bar on Sunday morning and drink excessively while brandishing guns and other weapons (the film being released, no doubt, for the week when Congress would be considering new legislation tightening the civilian ownership of firearms) while the villagers prepared to search out the Russians.

Many of the men wore American Legion caps with "Masa." In letters on the side. Their leader — an asinine, paunchy fellow who kept falling over his sword — cried in the immortal words of Col. Prescott at Bunker Hill: "Don't shoot until you see the whites of their eyes." This is funny? A little later, their leader cried: "Don't fire unless fired upon; but if they mean to have a war, let it begin here." These are the words of Captain Parker just before he was killed on Lexington Green. (We just laughed and laughed!)

Meanwhile a most handsome Russian — a member of the Russian submarine crew stranded on a nearby shoal — was making instant love to a young summer resident who had stringy, ironed hair. Later the heroic Russian climbed a precarious church roof and rescued a little child while the native American men braced him with their shoulders. ("Co-existence," kid.) No explanation was made of why the men did not go inside the church and walk up to the tower as the child had done, before falling out on the roof!

But, alas, the handsome Russian had to rejoin his submarine, now in the harbor. He promised to come back for his inamorata. How? As a spy in the Russian Mission to the UN?

Then two Air Force jets streamed low over the submarine, but the admiring Americans escorted it in their own pleasure boats safely out to the harbor where it could sink out of sight. No wonder this picture began with the Hammer and Sickle superimposed upon the field of stars of the American flag whose red stripes blended together to form the Red Flag! What proud American would write such a film?

Have we already forgotten "Tinker" Dorn and the other boys who have died in Viet Nam where these kind-hearted Russians supply our enemy with weapons? I suggest you assign a reporter to write a series of six articles on the motion picture industry as propaganda. Why do they expend such artistry on our sworn enemies? Who wrote the script? Who directed it? Who produced it? What are their previous records? Who distributed it — and why? This film will be seen by millions of Americans many of whom will not know how to recognize the "oblique message." And by millions in Africa and in Asia.

No, I am not and never have been a member of the John Birch Society.

Sincerely,
Marian M. Strack

Ho-Hum Birch Editorial

1710 Pascal Pl.,
Wall Township, N.J.

To The Editor:

Your editorial attack on the John Birch Society was of the ho-hum variety and hardly worth comment. Intelligent Americans know by now that deceit and "news-media" are synonymous, and I doubt seriously that your readers will swallow your explanation as to why you ran the series of articles on the society.

Your attempt to attribute your motives to an outgrowth of concern for the citizens of your community is rather ludicrous considering that the same information as was made available to your reporter could have been easily obtained by any person with enough initiative to ask for it. With our billboards and radio program carrying the addresses where information about the society may be obtained, you can hardly be serious when you claim that we are devious.

I do wonder why you felt the necessity for the editorial. Were you afraid to let the citizens you purport to be so concerned about decide the merits of the Birch Society for themselves? And why didn't you run the editorial before you did the articles? Was that lack of foresight or a dereliction of duty? After all, think of all those persons who could have been alerted to read about the menace in their midst!

It seems that "Birch-Baiting" season is again upon us. I think that in all fairness to the society, you should make a generous financial contribution to some of our projects. Who else is so readily available as a whipping-boy when the news-media needs help in selling its wares? And who else provides diversion when newspapers want to pretend to readers that they are printing the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth?

Sincerely,
Mrs. James K. Draper

Rt. 35 Death Trap

3 Hutchinson Dr.
Port Monmouth, N. J.

To the Editor:

My three children and I have passed the innocent looking "death-trap" on Rt. 35 at Apple Brook Rd. many times this summer on our way to Asbury Park.

The day following the carnage involving the priest and the truck driver I found myself once again driving to the beach. As I came to the intersection, I couldn't help but wonder how so bad an accident could have happened with the supposed protection of the traffic signals.

Going south it isn't too bad, although the rise in the road isn't good. It was going home northbound that afternoon that I got a jolt! You cannot see the light until you are on top of it! The overpass almost completely blocks the light and it is too easy to miss the little warning sign.

A beautiful summer evening—the young priest and his passengers on their way to a delicious dinner—the tired truck driver hurrying to get through for the day—fate and an unfortunately placed traffic light put them at the right place at the wrong moment.

We can't bring back the four who lost their precious lives,

Army Scientists Developing Device to See Through Fog

FORT MONMOUTH — Blinding masses of fog—a plague of travelers by land, sea and air—may eventually be handily seen through as the result of promising experiments being made here by scientists of the Army Electronics Command.

The researchers, Dr. Harold Jacobs of West Long Branch; Lt. Ronald C. Hofer, Eatontown; and George Morris, New Monmouth, are working toward development of a simple, inexpensive system with a picture screen that military truck drivers and pilots of small aircraft could use in foggy weather to see a thousand feet ahead.

Dr. Jacobs, a senior scientist in the Electronic Components Laboratory of the E-Command, says the experimental device also should work in smoke, smog, snow, and heavy rain. But he's interested mostly in cutting through fog.

The scientists are currently making feasibility demonstrations of the equipment they are using, which is still in the research stage.

In explaining how the device is designed to work, Dr. Jacobs first points out that ordinary light is not very effective against fog inasmuch as even the strongest beams are quickly scattered and absorbed.

Waves Can Penetrate
On the other hand, even the densest blanket of fog can be penetrated by radio waves, including the extremely short millimeter-range waves that are being employed in the new device.

However, no one up to now had come up with a simple scheme to use millimeter waves to produce images similar to those on a TV screen. The closest approach is millimeter radar. But, for the purposes the Army scientists have in mind, even the smaller sets are too bulky and costly, and frequently require a skilled operator to interpret detected objects.

The new device is being designed so that its use would require no training. It has a small dish-shaped illuminator—like a searchlight with an invisible beam—which transmits the millimeter-wave signals. Upon striking a fog-hidden object, part of the wave energy—or echoes—is reflected to the device's collection lens, which focuses on a panel gridded with germanium semiconductors and backed by a fine wire mesh.

(As their name suggests, semiconductors have special properties that lie between metals and non-metals—that is, they are good or poor electrical conductors, depending upon the way they are employed in an electronic system.)

The panel, which is a key feature of the device is based on a recent electronic finding. This was the discovery that if such an arrangement of semi-conductors with the desired conductive properties is cut to a precise thickness for handling a certain wavelength, nearly all of the millimeter-wave energy feeding into it will be absorbed. However, if the conductivity is increased by a small amount of light, the waves are shunted out of the panel.

Thus, in the new device, the signals reflected from objects are at first absorbed by the panel. However, a closely synchronized rotating light sweeps the back of the panel. This increases the conductivity of the semiconductors and literally kicks out the image-bearing impulses.

After further processing, including amplification, the signals are patterned on the television-like viewing screen. The Army scientists have not yet obtained the quality they are aiming for in the screen displays, but are confident that with further research they will be able to produce distinct images of fog-shrouded objects.

Trade Groups' Fort Liaison Unit Meets

FORT MONMOUTH — The regional military affairs committee of Fort Monmouth area Chambers of Commerce and Bureau of Commerce and Trade held its first meeting in the Gibbs Hall Officers Club here yesterday.

Luncheon guests of Brig. Gen. William B. Latta, commanding the U.S. Army Electronics Command and Fort Monmouth, were: Ralph Damiano, Greater Long Branch Chamber of Commerce; Edward H. Conway, Red Bank Community Chamber of Commerce; Michael A. Slovak, Asbury Park Area Chamber of Commerce.

Frank G. Graf, executive vice president, Middletown Area Chamber of Commerce; Fulton Arnold, executive director, Greater Freehold Chamber of Commerce; Harry R. Schlossbach, manager, Bradley Beach Chamber of Commerce; John W.

Henderson, executive secretary, Belmar Chamber of Commerce, and Charles F. Kitson, president, Eatontown Bureau of Commerce and Trade.

The regional military affairs committee was established largely through the efforts of Robert B. King, executive director of the Greater Long Branch Chamber, as a key element in Gen. Latta's program to strengthen communications between Fort Monmouth and surrounding communities.

Mr. King, in asking local chambers to participate, noted that Fort Monmouth has a peculiar problem in maintaining effective civilian liaison because it is surrounded by and has mutual interests with a number of communities. Other Army posts, he said, usually have to deal only with one or two communities.

Summer Business Slump No So Bad, End Is Seen

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The summer slump for business is proving slighter than usual and it may be over quicker than usual. Layoffs are giving way to starts. And dragging sectors of the economy are being offset by expanding ones.

The steel price hike could be a tipoff to business thinking. Steel executives are betting that the price increase will stick because business will be brisk. Their thinking on this is quite independent from the challenge of the government price guidelines.

It made a price hike stick with the government on the sidelines—there must be a rising demand for steel, meaning that customers will pay the higher price. And one reason they will do so is that they in turn are betting on increasing sales of their own products—and maybe higher prices.

Steel companies report that orders are rising again. Production of the mills increased sharply last week, after six weeks of declines. A further advance in output this week easily could mark a definite end to the traditional summer slump.

Autos on Scene

One of steel's big customers, the auto industry, is coming back into the picture. The news for weeks now has been of declining car production and closing down of 1966 model production lines. From now on the news will be of 1967 model lines opening up.

Even with auto buying of steel in a slump, the other customers of the mills have been unusually active for the normally slow period.

Purchases Fords Firm

FORDS — The board of directors of Fords Foundry Co., Inc., has announced that Kenneth H. Kirgin, of Holmdel, has purchased that firm and will take over the presidency immediately.

Mr. Kirgin was formerly manager of foundry industry sales with the International Nickel Company, Inc. in its New York City offices. Prior to that he was in charge of INCO's ductile iron licensee system. He is also foundry superintendent at Motor Castings Company in Milwaukee and foundry foreman with American Brake Shoe Company (ABEX Corp.).

Mr. Kirgin holds a BSME degree from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., graduate studies in the fields of law and metallurgy. He is a member of the Society of Automobile Engineers and chairman of the quality control committee, ductile iron division, American Foundrymen's Society. He and his wife, the former Genevieve MacDonald of Nova Scotia, have five children.

The Fords Foundry Company, a producer of high quality gray iron castings since 1921, will also soon produce ductile iron and Ni Resist iron, in addition to all classes of gray cast irons.

Pierce, eastern regional sales manager. Mr. Donlon studied at the Academy of Advanced Traffic, Jersey City. A member of the board of governors of the Newark Traffic Club, he is a Navy veteran of World War II.

Successful Investing

Q "Still working, though of retirement age, I'm tired and worried. I have $5,000 to put into a good dividend payer, selling around 50. What should I add to my list enclosed?" W. S.

A) I see nothing to worry you in the stocks you now hold, which in this limited space cannot be listed. They are well chosen for your purpose and your dividend income appears secure. Were I to question anything, it would be the relative amount of capital you have invested in American Telephone. However, as you appear content with this, I do not urge switching part of this holding, even though you might thereby increase your total income.

The investment of your $5,000 in a good dividend payer might well be postponed until the market has settled down again from its recent reaction to the world's money problems and domestic military budgets. It seems to me that your peace of mind will be improved by keeping this money in the bank a while longer as part of your cash reserve.

Then, when a new purchase is to be made, I recommend that you consider Norfolk & Western, although out of your proposed price range, Atchison or Southern Ry. These three now yield between five per cent and six per cent and latest earnings estimates for 1966 are comfortably above last year's figures and indicated dividend requirements.

Q "Is it a sign of weakness for a company to pay part or all of its dividend in stock instead of cash?" G. C.

A) No indeed. Some very reputable corporations pay part of their dividends in stock. It's just good business for a company to conserve cash for expansion or working capital. The investor benefits, too, because his ownership in the company grows almost automatically.

Well-known companies paying stock dividends in recent years include Crowell-Collier and Macmillan, Howard Johnson, Georgia-Pacific, Monsanto Company, and Sun Oil.

3d Decline in Row Sustained on Market

By ED MORSE
NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market yesterday took its third straight loss amid early encouragement and later disappointment about the airline labor situation. Trading was moderate.

Volume was 5.3 million shares. The Dow Jones industrial average fell 6.29 to 838.53.

Airlines put on a vigorous rally soon after the opening. They were sparked by news that union and management representatives had agreed to try to settle the strike by voluntary arbitration, thus avoiding a legislated solution by Congress.

Later, a statement by the union president dimmed hopes for acceptance of arbitration by the union members. Ten days ago they rejected a proposed settlement worked out through the help of President Johnson.

Some of the airlines were up 1 or 2 points when optimism was at its greatest. Although some airline stocks emerged from the session with modest gains, most of their best gains were chopped away. Losses were taken by some.

With the rest of the market after it failed to follow along with the early strength of airlines, it was a matter of slow erosion. This held true for most blue chips and for many of the glamor issues, but not all. A highly selective group of high flyers were bought avidly and reflected a strong speculative flavor under the over-all drabness which depressed most of the market.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 2.1 to 303.2 with industrials off 3.3, rails off 1.6 and utilities off .3.

Of 1,365 issues traded, 761 fell and 337 rose. New highs for the year totaled ten and new lows 132.

Standard and Poors 500-stock index fell .88 to 83.11.

Raytheon was the most active stock, up 3 1/2 at 47 1/2 on 108,500 shares.

Seven of the 15 most active stocks rose, six fell and two were unchanged.

Raytheon's big upsurge was linked with an upward revision of its earnings expectations by some of the influential Wall Street analysts, and by write ups of the stock both in market advisories and a financial magazine.

Middle South Utilities, off 1/4 at 22 1/4, was second most active stock mainly because of a single block of 100,000 shares.

Sperry Rand, most active Monday and Tuesday, slipped to third place and lost 1/4 at 31 1/2.

Among volume leaders, Itek climbed 3/4 to 95, Magnavox 1 to 50 1/2 and EG&G Inc. 1 1/4 to 32.

SCM Corp. fell 2 points, Fair-

Pan American World Airways lost 1 1/2. Fractional gains were shown by American and United Airlines each ex-dividend and by Eastern Airlines.

Some copper producers were weak following news of a price cut by a big African producer. Calumet & Hecla lost 4%, Anaconda 1 1/2 and International Nickel 1 1/2.

Prices declined on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was 1.8 million shares. The Exchange's index fell $.04 to $14.90.

Scurry Rainbow Oil was active and down 2 1/2 at 27 1/2. Flying Tiger gained 2 and National Video 2 1/2.

Corporate and U.S. Treasury bonds were mixed.

Why do some people traditionally choose August to buy their new Chevrolet?

Malibu Sport Coupe and Malibu 4-Door Station Wagon. Both with 8 standard safety features.

To save money and, quite often, lots of it.

They know that prices will never be better at their Chevrolet dealer's than they are in August. They know their present cars will never be worth more in trade than they are right now. And they know a good value when they see one, like a Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe—the most popular model of America's most popular mid-size car. It comes with thick foam-cushioned seats, deep-twist carpeting, vinyl up one door and down the other, padded instrument panel and sun visors for added safety. And all those Body by Fisher niceties sit solidly over some of the surest handling features a car can have: Ball-Race steering. Full Coil suspension. Wide-stance wheel design for steady cornering. So you see, "Chevrolet in August" makes a lot of sense. Fine cars. Exceptionally good buys and all those beautiful driving days left. Real Malibu weather. Act, my friend.

Rising Bonds' Interest Hits Schools Financing

FREEHOLD TOWNSHIP — The last bond issue, for the original section of the school, years interest of only 3.375 per cent.

Mr. Hulsart said that among his board clients, a total of about $9 million worth of construction is being planned.

If they all decide to float their bond issues at the same time it would have quite an impact on the interest rate, he suggested.

The auditor said he hoped none of the schools were planning to issue their bonds immediately, although he agreed that things might get worse rather than better.

"The bond market is completely unpredictable," Mr. Hulsart explained.

The rising rate will not be too much of a problem here because the Board of Education has only a $418,000 bond issue for the Clifton T. Barkalow school addition to float in the near future.

For schools, such as Freehold Regional High School, which is planning a $3 million building program, the rising interest rate means a big cost increase, the auditor said.

At present the Board of Education here has financed the initial costs of the addition with temporary notes at a rate of 3 1/2 per cent for a total of about $20,000, Mrs. Barbara Brown, board secretary said.

Mr. Hulsart estimated that the board would have to pay an interest rate of 4-4/10 per cent if it decided to float its bonds at this time.

Rooming House Propriety Ruled, Landlord Is Fined

RED BANK — Rooming houses in Red Bank will be run properly, Magistrate Francis X. Kennelly declared Tuesday night as he fined an elderly landlord $210.

Daniel Teremetzky, 83, of 82 Shrewsbury Ave., was charged with allowing a disturbance to occur there in the early morning of July 29.

Police were called and, according to last night's testimony, found a noisy party involving unclothed and partly clothed men and women. Eventually, five arrests were made.

Mr. Teremetzky testified that he was ill, that he was asleep throughout the incident, and that he was unaware of what was going on, but Magistrate Kennelly said he still was responsible.

Also fined $210, and placed on probation for a year, was Stanley

History Galore At County Seat

By MARGOT SMITH
 FREEHOLD — The scene between the county seat and Englishtown is one of orchard, striped hillsides, green fields and a few marshy lowlands. A modest white church spire breaks through the foliage. With a bit of advance brush-up on historical facts, these few miles, the stage for the longest battle of the Revolution, will come alive with a vividness that challenges the 188-year time span. The scenery is little changed; many props remain to buttress the imagination. The events of the Battle of Monmouth, fought June 28, 1778, may be followed today with a drive that begins in Freehold. At the corner of West Main St. and Rt. 33 is a house built in 1755, the oldest in Freehold. It is Sir Henry Clinton, British commanding general, met with his officers on the eve of the battle, doubtless pooling their thoughts on how to sneak a 12-mile line of troops, horses and equipment through to New York without encountering the gathering forces of General George Washington. The house, recently presented to the Freehold Historical Association by the Moreau family, is closed to the public until it has been fully restored. Now to Throckmorton St., near West Main St., to St. Peter's Church, originally established in 1702 on another site. Timbers from the "old" church are said to have been used to build this one some time between 1736 and 1738.

After the battle, the retreating Clinton left many of his wounded here with a letter to Washington saying, "I confine them to your Christian mercy." Continuing west on Throckmorton (Rt. 522), you travel the road that witnessed the battle. The state has acquired 1,000 acres of this landscape which is reputed to look more like what Washington actually saw than any other Revolutionary battle site. In time, strategic locations will be marked appropriately. It was here, between Freehold and the Rt. 3 junction, that General Washington, advancing to support Maj. Gen. Charles Lee, met him, apparently in retreat. It was here that Washington, after serving Lee with a fiery tongue lashing, took control of the tired, hot, dejected troops and rallied them to fight on to night fall.

The day was blistering hot, some 103 degrees. Men were falling from heat prostration as often as from bullet wounds. They hung their shirts and jackets on nearby tree limbs and prayed that the lady with the water bucket would come their way. The lady, of course, was Molly Pitcher. Her real name was Mary Hays and she happened to be on the battlefield because her husband, a gunner assigned to one of the artillery pieces, was there. She made herself indispensable, and unforgettable, by carrying water from a nearby spring. Turn left on Wemrock Rd., go under the railroad bridge, and you will see Molly's spring on the left. Watch out for poison ivy. John Hays was seriously wounded. His gun was ordered withdrawn, lest the British capture it. Molly volunteered to help keep it active and fought with silver, and a myriad of rare bits of history are displayed, including a British flag captured in the battle. A large painting by Leutze (of Washington Crossing the Delaware fame) shows General Washington pop-talking his tired men, turning a retreat into a stand-fest that, some say, gave the Americans the victory. The third floor of the museum is a collection of exhibits of special interest to children. Old toys, doll houses, samplers, Indian axes and arrowheads, looms, ship models and lot-cased furniture are some of the attractions.

Property Values in County Topped Only by 3 Others

TRENTON — Monmouth County showed the biggest one-year gain percentage-wise in property values this year of any of the state's large counties, a study by the New Jersey Taxpayers Association reports.

With ratables totaling $2.2 billion, the association says, Monmouth stands fourth in the list which aggregates $28.4 billion. It is topped only by Bergen ($6.1 billion), Essex ($4.5 billion), and Passaic ($2.5 billion).

But with an increase of $120.8 million over 1965, Monmouth's rate of gain is 5.4 per cent compared to 4.4 per cent for Bergen's increase of $274.7 million; 2.7 for Essex' $126.2 million, and 3.5 for Passaic's $92 million.

The statewide total increase of $1.05 billion represents a gain of 3.6 per cent.

The association also reported on exempt properties which reached $5 billion in 1966, or 9.5 per cent higher than the prior year.

Exemptions in Monmouth totaled $274.6 million, about 11 per cent of gross ratables. Monmouth stands eighth in total exemptions behind Essex ($91.9 million), Bergen, Passaic, Hudson, Mercer, Middlesex and Union.

MATAWAN TOWNSHIP — The actions of courageous Jews who lived in Nazi Germany under Adolf Hitler will be commemorated in Temple Shalom, scheduled for construction this fall.

An unusual feature of the new temple will be the ark, resting place for the Reform Jewish congregation's Torah (scrolls of law).

The doors of the ark will contain charred pieces of scrolls retrieved by Jews from Nazi bonfires that Hitler ordered to destroy temples and Jewish religious articles and books.

The remnants were hidden away during the war and retrieved by the West German government after Hitler's death and Germany's defeat.

The sacred scrolls were given to Washington Hebrew Congregation, Washington, D. C., and charred portions were made available to Temple Shalom architect Abraham Goodman, Linden. The parchments will be laminated and imbedded in transparent doors of the ark.

plans and construction financing. The board of trustees was authorized to borrow as much as $100,000 for the project.

The sanctuary-religious school-social hall complex is to be erected at Church St. and Ayrmont La. It will include the kitchen facilities and storage space.

The architectural plans permit second-stage construction designed to blend with the original building.

Completion of financing arrangements for the work is expected shortly. Bids will be sought immediately thereafter.

FORT MONMOUTH — John A. Wankel received official recommendation from Col. Robert E. Warren, deputy commander of the U. S. Army Satellite Communications (SATCOM) Agency for outstanding performance of duty as an administrative assistant in the agency's Administrative Services Office.

Mr. Wankel served in the U.S. Army 21 years, retiring in 1939 as a first sergeant.

TEMPLE SHALOM — Architectural rendering of proposed Temple Shalom of Matawan is displayed by Linden architect Abraham Goodman, right, and Reform Jewish congregation's building committee chairman, Bartram Morachnick, during meeting last night in Strathmore Lanes, Rt. 34, Matawan Township. More than 100 members of congregation were told construction should start this fall on Church St. and Ayrmont La. site.

Zero Defects Drive Kickoff Ceremony Set

FORT MONMOUTH — Plans were being completed this week for next Thursday's kickoff of the U.S. Army Signal School's Zero Defects campaign. Guest of honor and keynote speaker at the ceremonies beginning at 10 a.m. will be Lt. Gen. William F. Train, commanding general of the First U.S. Army.

The ceremonies, to be held in the outdoor amphitheater of Myer Hall, will be attended by most of the faculty and staff, and will be telecast to others in the 400-odd classrooms, auditoriums, and other places into which the Signal School's closed-circuit television system reaches.

Brig. Gen. Thomas Matthew Renzi, commanding general of the Signal School, will conduct the ceremonies. In addition to Gen. Train, speakers will include Brig. Gen. William B. Latta, commanding general of the U.S. Army Electronics Command, and Charles Christiansen, president of Fort Monmouth Lodge, American Federation of Government Employees. Other guests of honor will include visitors from the U.S. Continental Army Command, of which the Signal School is a subordinate element.

After the kickoff ceremonies, Gen. Renzi will be host to the speakers and guests at a luncheon at Gibbs Hall, the Fort Monmouth officers' club.

Zero Defects began at Redstone Arsenal in 1962 as a joint venture of the U.S. Army Missile Command and a major equipment manufacturer. The objective then was to deliver to the test site Pershing missiles totally free of defects.

In June, 1964, Missile Command held a series of seminars and workshops on Zero Defects (ZD) education. Since then more than 1,000 manufacturing concerns with two million employees have adopted ZD, along with some hundreds of Army activities, and a keen interest in the program has been expressed by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, the Federal Aviation Agency, and a still increasing number of manufacturers, in the United States, Canada, England, Germany, Italy and Japan.

2 Regional Schools Open Sept. 7, 8

FREEHOLD — The Freehold Regional District High Schools—Freehold Regional and Southern Freehold Regional — will open Wed., Sept. 7 for ninth graders and on Thursday, Sept. 8 for all other students.

Presentation of transfer card, report card, and birth certificate will facilitate the enrollment. Evidence of immunization against poliomyelitis, diphtheria and smallpox is required by the Board of Education for admission to school.

New students will be given bus information at the time of registration.

By CHARLES A. JOHNSTON

FREEHOLD — Six fiendish murders within a year have left Monmouth and Ocean County police authorities spellbound but methodically pressing forward to bring the killers to justice.

Detectives think some of the six victims, four young women, a twice married 44-year-old mother of four, and a five-year-old boy, may have been slain by the same assailant. But they are agreed that not all of the crimes were committed by the same person.

Only the latest victim, Mrs. Dorothy L. McKenzie, the lone married person in the group, was killed with a gun. Four of the girls were bludgeoned about the head.

The single boy, Paul Benda, died of stab wounds in the heart, near his home at Union Beach, his body molested and burned with cigarette butts.

At Wall Township, where police are probing last week's vicious killing of Miss Donna DeRier, a Montclair State College student, a team of police tracking dogs which had been on the scene since Friday completed their work and have been taken home.

The dogs, owned by Tom McGinn, Rochester, N.Y., included two that had gained wide attention helping pin down a Shade Gap, Pa., mountain sniper after he had kidnapped a teenage girl.

Friday and Saturday, Mr. McGinn said, they picked up a clear scent and followed it over the path he believes Miss DeRier's killer walked after the murder.

The scent, which started at the murder scene near a bride path off Atlantic Ave., in an Allaire State Park woods, and led to a spot on Atlantic Ave. between Rts. 34 and 35, came from a combination of the blood of the young girl mixed with the murderer's perspiration.

Since the weekend, the dogs have followed many leads which police have received in hopes of confirming or eliminating them. To this extent police say they have been very helpful.

Mr. McGinn contends that within a reasonable period of time the dogs may be able to pick out a suspect as the killer if they are exposed to him in a police lineup.

Three of the victims were red or auburn haired. All five of the women were killed under such circumstances that might indicate they knew their assailants and were taken by surprise.

Here is a brief summary of each murder:
MARY ANN KLINSKY, 17, of 60 Seventh St., West Keansburg, Raritan Twp. High School senior, ravished body found nude alongside the Garden State Parkway in Holmdel Twp. Sept. 16, 1965. An autopsy revealed she had died of a fractured skull after being beaten 15 times with a blunt instrument.

Mary Ann was last seen about 10 p.m., Sept. 15. Her brother, Henry, with whom she lived, reported her missing to Raritan Twp. police the next morning. A parkway maintenance crew spotted her body on a grassy incline just off the south bound lane in Telegraph Hill Park.

JOANNE FANTAZIER, 17, Perth Amboy, a high school drop-out, found on the frozen surface of Yellow Brook, off Mühlenbrink Rd., Colts Neck, Feb. 11. County Physician C. M. B. Gilman reported she had been struck on the back of the head with a blunt instrument, and dropped alive on the ice.

Joanne was last seen alive in Perth Amboy. Her body was found fully clothed, except for shoes.

CATHERINE BAKER, 16, Edison Twp., found May 15 by three boys fishing in the south branch of the Metedeconk River in Jackson Twp. An autopsy revealed that she died of multiple fractures and lacerations of the skull, and although her badly decomposed body was nude from the waist down, doctors were unable to say if she had been molested.

Catherine disappeared March 17 while on a shopping trip for her parents.

DONNA DE RIER, 19, Hawthorne, summer resident at Manasquan, found nude on a bridge path near Allaire State Park, Wall Twp., one week ago. An autopsy showed she had died from a fractured skull and massive hemorrhaging after being badly beaten with a board found near her body. She had been abused but not raped.

Donna was reported missing by her parents at midnight when she failed to return home from her checker's job at a supermarket in the Circle Plaza Shopping Center. Forty-five minutes later police found her body in a routine check of the area. She had not been to work and was killed in daylight Aug. 3.

PAUL BENDA, 5, of 727 Prospect Ave., Union Beach, found nude, stabbed and cigarette-burned in a marshy area on Brook Ave. near his home June 21. Dr. Gilman believed the boy was killed with a marlin spike, a narrow, round, pointed tool used to splice steel cable, punctured his heart. There were also several other stab wounds in the chest and abdomen.

Paul was found during a search by 200 volunteers who were combing the bay area after his mother, Mrs. Shirley Benda, reported him missing about 8 p.m. June 20.

See Red Bank Linking Sewer In Middletown

MIDDLETOWN — The possibility of a regional sewer system is looking up. The Sewer Authority reported

Lt. Steven Palmer

Wounded In Viet Action

HAZLET — Marine Second Lt. Steven Palmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erdman Palmer, 45 Brookside Ct., was wounded recently in action in Viet Nam.

He is recovering in a field hospital in Japan.

Lt. Palmer has won the National Defense ribbon, the Viet Nam Service ribbon and the Purple Heart. The latter was presented to him at the hospital by the secretary of the Navy.

In a recent letter to his parents, the lieutenant wrote: "They are taking excellent care of me here . . . The Red Cross has been very good to me . . . I was very lucky . . ."

Lt. Palmer is a 1960 graduate of Red Bank High School. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees in metallurgy from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

last night that Red Bank may join with Middletown rather than hook into the planned Northeast Monmouth County Regional Sewer Authority system.

The Northeast unit includes Little Silver, Monmouth Beach, West Long Branch, Shrewsbury, Fair Haven and Oceanport.

Red Bank has asked the authority for cost estimates, based on 1.5 million gallons per day, up to 1985, and 2 million as a 40-year maximum.

Red Bank borough engineer Wilbert H. Schlimmeyer reported that if the borough joins Middletown, the tie-in would be at the north end of Cooper's bridge.

Cost Estimates

As to the upland towns, the regional cost figure for Highlands is currently estimated at $435,000 and for Atlantic Highlands, $350,000, based on daily gallonage figures of 400,000 and 900,000 respectively.

Both towns are expected to join the regional system.

The authority also reported last night that the Board of Health is expected to adopt an ordinance which will make local hook-ups into the sewer system mandatory.

The authority has decided to purchase, through revenue bonds, three package sewer plants, Middletown Greens, off Middletown-Lincolntown Rd.; the Shorecrest plant, off Navesink River Rd., and the Willett Acres plant, Countryside.

Middletown Greens will be taken over for a token $1. The cost estimate for Shorecrest is $130,000, and for Willett Acres, more than $500,000.

The firm of Ballard, Spar, Andrews and Ingersoll, Philadelphia, was appointed as bonding counsel. The counsel fee is expected to be slightly more or less than one-half of one percent of the total bond issue, according to authority attorney William J. O'Hagan, Jr.

Highlands Board Votes Master Plan Changes

HIGHLANDS — After a more than 40-minute public hearing attended by 23 persons, the Planning Board last night unanimously adopted two revisions to the borough's 1959 master plan.

The revised master plan designates a 25-acre section of town between Bay Ave. and the base of the hill, and Miller St. to Waterwitch Ave., an urban renewal project area. The 1959 master plan calls for urban renewal between Bay Ave. and the waterfront.

The second revision eliminates the possibility of establishing a road on the former railroad bed between Waterwitch Ave. and Bay Ave. A portion of the former railroad right-of-way has been paved from the Atlantic Highlands line to Waterwitch Ave. and named Shore Dr.

The existing 1959 master plan calls for continuing the road to Bay Ave.

Purpose of the revisions was to change the existing master plan to conform with the proposed General Neighborhood Renewal Program now under study here.

But some members of the audience were under the impression that last night's hearing was called to discuss the borough's urban renewal study.

When it developed that most questions involved the renewal study, Planning Board members called on Edward A. Finlay, urban renewal director, to provide the answers.

In response to queries from the audience, he made these comments:

—The first section of the project area to be renewed would include a 12½-acre section from Waterwitch Ave., halfway to Miller St.

—If a home is in good condition, the federal government would appropriate funds for relocating it on another site.

—The west side of Miller St. was placed in the renewal project area, rather than the east side because it has the highest concentration of substandard buildings.

—Bay Ave. would be 60 feet wide with sloping terraces.

—The area between Bay Ave. and the waterfront is not being considered for urban renewal because the federal government would not appropriate funds involving the property due to the flooding conditions.

—Public hearings will be conducted on each phase of the proposed urban renewal project.

One resident objected to the master plan revision dissolving all plans for using the entire railroad bed for a road.

PINPOINTING UNSOLVED MURDERS — Map shows six locations where bodies of homicide victims were found. They are: (1) Holmdel, where the body of Mary Ann Klinsky was found last Sept. 16; (2) Colts Neck, Joanne Fantazier, Feb. 11; (3) Jackson Twp., (Ocean County) Catherine Baker, May 15; (4) Wall Twp., Donna DeRier, Aug. 4; (5) Howell Twp., Mrs. Dorothy L. McKenzie, Aug. 10, and (X) Union Beach, Paul Benda, June 21.

Grandview Developer Ready UR Project Start Due

KEANSBURG — After repeated delays, the Grandview urban renewal project is expected to start by the end of this month.

The developer said last night he is ready to close on the property "within a few days and break ground the following day."

Peter Bonafede, president of Bonafede Construction Associates, Inc., Manhasset, N.Y., furnished the Local Public Agency with written proof that he has obtained a $350,000 mortgage commitment for construction of the proposed motel and restaurant.

He told The Register that he had just received a construction loan commitment yesterday, the final step necessary to guarantee financial backing for the project.

An earlier report from LPA attorney Seymour Kleinberg disclosed that the developer's attorney has taken ill and this has delayed the title closing session. Mr. Kleinberg said he has an appointment to meet with the attorney Tuesday but he conditioned this by adding he does not believe closing will take place at that time.

Closing Due

The night's developments indicate that while closing will not be "within a few days" it is not in the distant future.

LPA Director C. Bernard Blum intended to confirm that construction quickly will follow the title closing. He said Mr. Bonafede was ready to move in construction equipment on Aug. 1 but that he (Mr. Blum) had barred this pending the closing.

The director, Mr. Kleinberg and the developer assured former Mayor Louis T. Collichio, Sr., that the motel and restaurant will be the first to be constructed, stressing that if this is not spelled out in the renewal contract it has been stipulated in subsequent agreements.

Mr. Collichio was concerned that the developer might take title to the land and decide to build the apartment project first.

Mr. Bonafede injected only one disturbing comment which was erased quickly by Mr. Blum. The developer cautioned that if the motel and restaurant do not prove profitable he might seek to alter their uses. The director reminded him that the contract spells out that the planned usage must be maintained for several years after completion.

The developer had suggested that the restaurant might be used for catering purposes and the motel units might be converted to serve as year-round studio apartments.

This newspaper first spotlighted the latter possibility when plans for the project were unveiled several months ago.

Convertible

The motel is to be constructed in such a way that a one-bedroom unit adjoins each efficiency unit and will be connected by a door, making it possible for the two units to be rented as a single apartment.

Michael Motchka, Planning Board and Citizens Advisory Committee member, raised the only voice of protest against the "firing" of Patrick R. Collum as LPA assistant director and Mrs. Helen V. Hill as LPA secretary. Commenting that he does not feel it is good business practice to "change horses in midstream," he urged the LPA to forward a letter of recommendation for the two ousted employees to federal urban renewal officials in Philadelphia, Pa.

By unanimous vote, the LPA agreed to do this.

Zoners OK Two Signs

SHREWSBURY — The Zoning Board of Adjustment last night granted permits for signs requested by two local businesses.

Naylor's Inc., auto parts dealer, was granted a single sign on the front of a remodeled building at 459 Shrewsbury Ave. Also approved was one sign for a building owned by Bailly Bros., automobile dealers on Newman Springs Rd.

In other business, the board requested Robert M. Rooke, building inspector, to investigate the premises of Hy and Jeff Auto Body Works, 193 Newman Springs Rd., in connection with reports of wrecked automobiles parked in front of the business.

The zoners also requested the building inspector to inspect LoPresti's car repair service at Newman Springs Rd. and Shrewsbury Ave. because the business allegedly is not a permitted use in the zone.

Frank J. Lane and John Keaveney were appointed delegates to a zoning and planning convention to be held in Atlantic City Nov. 13-15.

Red Bank's Zoners Again Vote Okay Of Apartment Plans

RED BANK — For the third time in four years, the Zoning Board of Adjustment last night approved a variance for an apartment house at the corner of Munson Pl. and Newman Springs Rd.

Twice before Borough Council has rejected the idea, and now it's up to council again.

The new request was made by Dr. William Wood of Rumson who wants to build a 20-unit building on land owned by his organization, the Blackstone River Co.

Protests from the neighborhood were similar to and just as vigorous as these made in the two previous cases.

But the board forwarded a favorable recommendation to council by a 3-2 vote. George Doherty and John Iilmensee cast the dissenting votes. Chairman Maxwell Klarin, Joseph Falvo and Frank Loversidge voted for the application, subject to a list of six conditions.

Dr. Wood's proposal was for a building slightly smaller than those proposed earlier.

Rivers Edge Apartments in 1963, Munson Hill Apartments in 1964, presented by a group from Clifton, were both plans for a 23-unit apartment building.

Council turned them both down, as well as a request to rezone the area for garden apartment construction.

Former Mayor Benedict R. Nicosia, representing Dr. Wood, explained the popularity of the tract between Munson Pl. and the Navesink River.

The tract measures 133 by 250 feet, of which a 100-by-200-foot corner is zoned for business use. A gas station planned for the spot never materialized. The rest of the tract is in a B-residential zone.

The non-garden apartments would be allowed in the business part of the tract, but not in the residential section, Mr. Nicosia said.

Dr. Wood's plans showed a 2½-story structure with one- and two-bedroom units on three floors with parking spaces for 25 cars and a driveway to Munson Pl. The 15-foot side yard would not meet the 20-foot requirement but, if the board insisted, the building could be cut down to 15 units to meet that regulation, the attorney said.

Approximately 20 residents were present to oppose the plan, and 10 of them spoke.

Gustav R. Ornberg of 67 Chapin Ave. summed up the protests of the neighborhood.

He said the lot actually fronts only 235 feet on Newman Springs Rd., and only 150 feet of the depth of the lot is usable. The balance lies at the foot of a steep bank next to the river, he said.

The proposed widening of Newman Springs Rd. by the county could take as much as 13 feet of the tract, and that would eliminate an entire row of parking spaces, he said.

Mr. Ornberg and his neighbors, also mentioned low water pressure, inadequate sewer mains and a traffic problem.

After a recess, the board came back with six stipulations and a favorable resolution.

It said the developer would have to pay for any needed extensions of water or sewer facilities; curbing and sidewalks would have to be installed subject to approval by the building inspector; if Newman Springs Rd. is widened the parking area would have to be located at least 18 feet away from that street; the parking area would have to be hard-surfaced; the developer would have to provide a sewer lift; and the developer would have to obtain a letter from the borough engineer indicating the structure would not interfere with water pressure, drainage or sewer service in the neighborhood.

See Government Integrity As GOP Primary Issue

FREEHOLD TOWNSHIP — Integrity in government will be an issue in the Republican primary battle here to nominate candidates for the Township Committee.

In a letter to fellow Republicans, Township Committeemen Charles E. Blatchley and Daniel Schwartz have spelled out this issue and announced their support for Franklin Marzulli and Charles C. Worthington, who also are backed by the Young Republican Club.

Mr. Marzulli and Mr. Worthington will face Mayor Albert V. McCormick and newly appointed Committeeman Ralph R. Beck, both backed by the senior GOP Club, in the Sept. 13 primary.

The letter from Mr. Blatchley and Mr. Schwartz accuses members of Township Committee of violating basic standards which require that "the best interests of the township and its residents must be the only criterion for any official decisions."

The letter suggests that residents reject those who have violated these standards and withhold support from the McCormick-Beck ticket.

'Can Remove'

"We can remove those responsible from office, and elect men of integrity and ability who can and will place our interests first," the committeemen asserted.

Rejecting a possible compromise, the letter states: "We do not believe that integrity in government can be compromised."

The committeemen urge their fellow party members to put the Republican house in order.

In a further statement released today, the two committeemen take Mayor McCormick to task for failing to act to end the recent deadlock over the interim appointment to the committee.

Mr. Blatchley and Mr.

Schwartz find it embarrassing for the township that the deadlock on the committee resulted in appointment being made by the superior court.

Judge Andrew A. Salvest appointed Mr. Beck to the vacancy last week.

Praising Mr. Worthington and Mr. Marzulli for their offer to withdraw as candidates for the interim appointment, Mr. Schwartz said that he said he feels the mayor should have asked Mr. Beck to withdraw.

The statement said that Mr. Beck's withdrawal would have left the way clear for the committeemen to make a non-political appointment.

"It became obvious that Mr. Marzulli's and Mr. Worthington's efforts to resolve this deadlock were in vain. Mr. McCormick informed us that he felt Mr. Beck had a good chance to receive the appointment from the court. . . the door was obviously closed and padlocked. . ." the statement claimed.

The committeemen commended Mr. Marzulli and Mr. Worthington "for placing the welfare of the township and its residents ahead of their personal ambitions."

"For Mr. Russell's information, Mayor Peter Dusinberre served his full term and declined to seek re-election. I was not appointed to the Mayor's seat as Mr. Russell stated, but ran in the general election for that office.

"As a matter of fact, the general procedure when a mayor resigns is to appoint a member of council to that position. Since first taking office in 1953, I never have been appointed to fill an unexpired term.

"The Democratic press release demonstrates an utter lack of knowledge of the workings of municipal government and of community affairs in general.

"Until last Monday, the Democratic opposition has not appeared at a council meeting since last January but, during the next three months, they will surely become experts on the affairs of local government and will so present themselves to the electorate. Their recent statement is further proof that there is no substitute for experience and sincere interest in our community. I am sure the voters in November will decide this also."

Mr. Russell charged that Mr. Magee was appointed to fill the unexpired term of a mayor who resigned.

Into 'Wild Blue'
Mr. Magee continued: "The opposition has again sailed off into the wild blue yonder without first getting facts straight. In the November, 1964, general election, a mayor, three councilmen and an assessor ran on the Republican ticket without Democratic opposition.

Many Parents Visit Scout Reservation

FORESTBURG, N. Y. — More parents of Scouts will see the Forestburg Scout Reservation this summer than in any previous camping season, according to Scout Executive J. Fred Billett of the Monmouth Council, which owns and operates the 1,100-acre campsite north of Port Jervis for Monmouth County Scout troops.

Before the summer camping season ends, Aug. 21, Mr. Billett estimates that between 1,200 and 1,400 parents and families will have made the trip to the mountain camp. The camp is celebrating its 10th season.

Mr. Billett said he is frequently asked, "Why is the camp so far away from the shore?" His answer is, "That is where the mountains are." The camp, about 125 miles from Monmouth County, is at 2,900 feet elevation, with its highest point 2,800 feet above sea level. There are many miles of hiking trails and mountain streams. The camp has a 50-acre natural lake at the top of the mountain, where most of the activities take place. The camp is almost five miles long.

During the two-month summer camp season, motels and campsites in the immediate area of the reservation are used week-ends by the parents of the shore scouts. The camp is open Saturday at noon for visitors. A pine cone derby and swimming meets are featured, but the most popular activity for parents and scouts is the ceremonial Indian campfire, held Saturday evenings.

Families may participate in the Saturday evening cookout. This is usually followed with a tour of the campsite and a visit to Darlington Falls, a deep ravine and 70-foot waterfall on the property. The campfire areas are beneath high rocky cliffs that provide a picturesque setting for the Indian ceremonies. After the campfire activities, parents are invited to coffee and cake in the Housman Memorial Lodge in the Central Camps and the Todd Lodge in the Dan Beard Camps.

Subcontractors Seen Hurt By Contractor's Default

FREEHOLD TOWNSHIP — Forked River, was declared to be in default on the contract last February. All financial arrangements and the completion of the work on the school now depends on action by the bonding company, the Hartford Indemnity Co. of New York.

Letters to the bonding company go unanswered Mrs. Brown said. A representative of the bonders is expected here today to discuss the lack of progress on the building, Superintendent Marshall Erickson said.

The Board of Education had about $54,000 in cash for construction expenses at the time of the default.

Board members voted last night to authorize payment, up to

Parked Car Damaged Two Women Are Injured

MIDDLETOWN — Roy C. Elm, 42 Leonard Ave., Leonardo, was charged early yesterday with careless driving and leaving the scene of an accident after a parked car on Leonard Ave. had been damaged, police said.

Police said the parked car belonged to Joseph Shanks, Jr., 60 Tappen St., Avenel.

The man was picked up by Raritan police. Patrolman Robert J. McNair of the Middletown Police Department issued the summons.

90 per cent, to some of the hard-hit sub contractors who have completed the work. Payments will be subject to the approval of the bonding company and also to the approval of the school architect, Norman Coates of Somerville.

No summonses were issued by Patrolman Robert Hoffman, pending further investigation.

he will appear at the Airport Plaza on Rt. 36, Raritan. The next week, Aug. 27, he will bring his mobile office to Bradley Beach and will meet constituents at the Memorial Park on Main St. The congressman will appear in Jackson at the Brook Plaza Shopping Center on Sept. 10. There is no appearance scheduled for the mobile district office Sept. 3.

Mr. Howard has urged constituents to visit and speak with him personally when the mobile district office is in their neighborhood. He began this service several months ago because some persons found it difficult to visit either of his two district offices in the Asbury Park post office and at 26 Main St. Toms River. His practice is to visit a different municipality in Ocean and Monmouth Counties each Saturday. The mobile office is open from 10 a.m. to noon.

"The favorable response to the mobile district office has been overwhelming since its inception," Mr. Howard said. "Some persons who are reluctant to make an appointment to meet with me in my Asbury Park or Toms River offices feel much more comfortable just walking into the mobile office where no appointment is necessary and presenting their problems to me," he added.

The Outdoor World

By WILLIAM F. SANDFORD

Our quick trip to the vicinity of the 46th parallel last week provided something of a preview of autumn—a peak about eight weeks into the future.

Saturday morning the thermometer outside our camp read 50 degrees. That was at latitude 45 degrees 17 minutes, and elevation 1,218 feet. A white-throated sparrow, a bird we hadn't seen since they left the shore scene in May, sang from a low limb a few feet away. Kinglets "talked" all around us in high-pitched, ventriloquial voices, and Canada and bay-breasted warblers worked at the business of picking up a living among the foliage.

We can expect the same picture, in a little different setting, here at home late next month.

There were many birds in the woods of Piscataquis County, Maine, which we can expect to see here in a month or two—hermit, Swainson's and grey-cheeked thrushes, a half-dozen warblers which to us are just transients, winter wrens, rose-breasted and evening grosbeaks, purple finches and juncos, among others. Some others, like the Philadelphia vireos which are fairly common in these northern woods but are inclined to avoid the shore area in their southward trek, we may or may not see.

A FEW of the birds we found in the North we are not likely to see, ever, here at home. They include the sedentary (non-migratory) species which never move far from their breeding grounds—the spruce grouse that sprang from virtually under our feet as we made a sharp turn in the trail, displaying its distinctive gold-rimmed black tail in a fan; the dark, scraggly-looking young gray (Canada) jays at the feeding stations of Mrs. Ivan Sherman on Big Lyford Pond.

Others, like the raven that sat croaking atop a tree beside the Great Northern Paper Company's road to Ripogonous Dam, might show up here at home, but only as extreme rarities.

Largest area of all in the comparison of bird life of the extreme northeastern United States and our home scene is the broad overlap of species common to both climates—the robins, the red-wings, the grackles, the common local woodpeckers, including the flicker, the blue jays, the chickadees (up there they're all black-capped, a species we may see at home although the Carolina is the more common chickadee south of our Middlesex County line.)

The commonest bird I found in the woods we walked last week was the cedar waxwing, an erratic migrant which we often find common in Monmouth County. This year I have not been able to find one, as yet, at home. Neither has George M. Seeley, a Long Branch birder who spends many hours afield in the county. Maybe we found the reason—they're all congregated up there in the North.

NORTH WOODS COLOR — An Atlantic fritillary (Speyeria atlantis) butterfly, orange-brown with black markings, on purple-flowering joe-pye weed at Lily Bay, Maine.

IF ONE SWALLOW doesn't make a summer, certainly one pot-hole—or a dozen—doesn't make a duck population. If what we saw is any indication, however, the ducks of the northeastern breeding grounds have had a good nesting season. Every pond deep in the woods had its families of golden-eyes. On the Piscataquis River just above Guilford we surprised a red-breasted merganser and her brood—17 ducklings. Unable to fly, the flock went skittering downstream, wings flapping and legs running, and the 18 of them set up a commotion that probably sent every fish in the river dashing to cover.

NORTHERN NEW ENGLAND is a botanist's Bonanza. Not only does it have a greater variety of floral display than we have, it is also compressed into a shorter growing season. The spring flowers bloom later, the fall flowers earlier, and the whole season's spectacle is crammed into the space between.

There were turtlehead and joe-pye weed, both autumn flowering plants, in bloom last week. The flowers list, if we'd had time to make one, would have been too long for this space. Prominent, however, were the hawk-weeds, star violets, cone flowers, wild rose, blueets and goldenrods. The ponds were dotted with white and yellow pond lilies and lavender pickerel-weed. One of the most colorful displays of all is one that is causing some apprehension. The willow loosestrife, a showy purple flower which is an escape from Europe, has spread as a pernicious weed along many river and pond banks, choking out native plants. In places we found it growing in broad seas of purple fronds—pretty, but a little frightening.

As colorful as the blooms in many places are the fruits of plants that bloomed earlier. Everywhere, in the cool of the woods, we found the showy red clusters of bunchberry. Several of the large, broad-leaved orchids are now sporting seed pods of red, white, or brilliant blue.

New England's color isn't as obvious from a moving car as it will be in October, but it's there.

McCreath's Stoneware Al Fresco

By ELEANOR MARKO
Meet William McCreath.

He was born in Girvan, Scotland and received his education through college in that country. In a few weeks he will be joining the faculty of Montclair State College as an assistant professor in the fine arts department.

Far from sitting on his hands this summer, Mr. McCreath has been creating a remarkable collection of one-of-a-kind ceramics in his garage workshop-studio where anyone is welcome to watch him work at 288 Middle Rd., Holmdel Township, just off Palmer Ave. The exhibition area for his stoneware is outdoors where their spontaneity and artificiality are brought into accord with nature.

There is a sign "Studio Ceramics" at the entrance of the driveway, but don't look for startling hues of turquoise, orange, red or yellow in the collection just beyond that. In fact, that is one of the experiences one will have visually as you begin to realize that the varied shapes of the vessels, mostly utilitarian with many of them sculptural, seem to suggest their own subdued colors and design. I couldn't help think what a flower arranger's paradise of accessories this seemed to be.

The young teacher who is married to Ethel Crossley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Crossley, with whom they reside, began building a 12 cubic-foot outdoor kiln a summer ago. It is propane gas fired of down draft design and burners adopted from that of the nationally-known West Coast ceramist Paul Soldner. The ability to control the amount of oxygen in the oven, coupled with his knowledge of chemicals and their reaction to heat and controlled atmosphere, makes Mr. McCreath a master at experimentation.

His studio is no storehouse of molds. He prefers to "throw" each piece on the potter's wheel spun by foot not by electrical power. A McCreath prized possession, the Clopentein Wheel of Crestline, Ohio, which he brought here from the Midwest, has a 75 to 80-pound flywheel which, needless to say, is heavy enough to keep it stationary.

The clay that the artist prefers is Jordan — a New Jersey clay which he knew about in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, where he taught art in the public schools for four years after leaving Scotland in 1959. He commented that he liked the clay for its plasticity and wheel throwing.

Mr. McCreath has three refrigerators of the home variety sans nourishment or refreshments. They provide the controlled temperature for the manipulated clay projects to dry slowly. He stated "I manipulate these works to the point where I have to let each re-adjust itself." He throws water on the inside walls of the refrigerators to provide humidity. He fires the pieces after a day or so. His colors are sometimes applied at the first firing. Added color and glazes (primarily matte) are applied after tooling and trimming. "Cooling off" of the oven takes from 24 to 27 hours after some six hours of firing of the stoneware — a term related to the temperature at which the ware is fired. All his stoneware is fired twice.

Mr. McCreath is looking forward to his new job at Montclair State College. His answer to the question of what he expects out of his students' first experience to the art medium is: "To get the feeling of the clay." He added, "Response to it — I would say is primary... how to push it... and what to do with it." Push it?

Mr. McCreath defined this as the creative problem of how thin one can manipulate the clay "to change the forms to meet the demands you put on it without weakening it structurally."

Although this is Mr. McCreath's personal interest — and his source of added income, ceramic sculptures are not his only accomplishments. His paintings and sculptures have been exhibited at the University of Manitoba, and the Yellow Door Gallery, both in Winnipeg; the Cranbrook Academy of Art in Michigan, the Detroit Artists Market in Detroit; Romaine Galerie, Birmingham, Mich., the Wichita National Ceramics Exhibition in Wichita, Kan., and Detroit Institute of Arts.

His works are in private and other collections, including a 3 by 4-foot oil painting of a prairie scene in the University of Manitoba. Mr. McCreath stated that the university has "Retained it for five years now — each year they congratulate me to have been chosen to be represented at the university." Not long ago he received this year's congratulations.

With a twinkle of his eye and bit of a brogue he repeats the sentiments of a sign he has hung on the wall over his potter's wheel: "This is a non-profit organization — we don't plan it that way — it just happened!"

In 1956 Mr. McCreath was graduated from Teachers College in Dundee with a diploma in industrial arts and general subjects with specialization in the teaching of art. He taught in Scotland for three years before continuing his career in teaching for four years in the public schools in Winnipeg. He directed a Saturday morning children's art program and taught in a Winnipeg art gallery's summer program "Painting in the Park." During this time and for the complete year 1963-64 he was enrolled in the School of Art at the University of Manitoba where he gained his bachelor of fine arts degree in June 1964.

During the two year period 1964-66, he attended Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills, Mich., where he was enrolled in the master's program. He received that degree two months ago. His major field of study at Cranbrook was ceramics, where he was appointed graduate assistant in 1965-66 and was recipient of a Carl Milles Scholarship for advanced study in ceramics.

You'll not find this teacher making any rash comparisons about students in the states, Scotland or Canada. The studio and residence he maintains here he considers temporary "but permanent as long as he might need it."

To a new resident there are many roads of sociability that reach out to make one feel welcome, but to an artist, his work also takes on a personal sense of inclusion. Yesterday The Niche at 90 Broad St., Red Bank, initially displayed a representative collection of Mr. McCreath's work to begin the widening rout of interest in the artist.

But for the man at work at the potter's wheel, the welcome mat is still out — especially for student groups at his outdoor-indoor workshop.

AT THE POTTER'S WHEEL — William McCreath, a new artist in the area, works on a form at his studio, 288 Middle Rd., Holmdel Township.

INDOOR-OUTDOOR STUDIO — Twice fired in kiln, finished sculptured works and vessels in stoneware by McCreath are exhibited outdoors.

Kilpatrick Works To Be Exhibited

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS — The watercolors and oils of Atlantic Highlands artist William Kilpatrick will go on exhibit Monday here at the Hear 'N' See Gallery, 80 First Ave. This is the fourth one-man show slated by the gallery.

A graduate of the Newark School of Fine and Industrial Arts, Mr. Kilpatrick, who lives with his wife Valerie and their two children on Hooper Ave., has exhibited throughout New Jersey and North Carolina. Recent awards include an honorable mention in the 1966 Festival of Fine Arts at Monmouth College, West Long Branch, and a first prize in a show in Nutley.

The exhibition will continue through Sept. 2. The gallery is open 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily. Closed Sundays.

Lenson Show Opens Sunday

TINTON FALLS — The Old Mill Gallery brightens the late summer exhibition scene with the presenting of works by teacher-artist-lecturer and columnist Michael Lenson of Nutley.

The Lenson exhibition of 24 paintings, mostly oils and some encaustics, opens with a reception Sunday from 4 to 6 p.m. The public is welcome to meet the artist at that time.

Some of the works in the show are massive compositions 40 by 50-inches, representational of the complex ideas and incredible craftsmanship with which Lenson has gained recognition. His newest works still reflect the years of academic study abroad.

The exhibition, which will extend through Sept. 10, represents a major show at the Mill — a distinguished interval between the presentation of works by new artists on the scene.

Mrs. Hughes Sits for Portrait At Request of Fem Democrats

TRENTON — New Jersey Democratic women have commissioned Peggy Peplow Gummere, New Jersey portrait artist, to paint a portrait of Mrs. Richard J. Hughes, New Jersey's first lady, Mrs. Alice Dolan, vice chairman of the Democratic State Committee, announced.

The portrait will hang at Morven, the governor's residence in Princeton, and is expected to be unveiled sometime in the fall.

In announcing the portrait commission, Mrs. Dolan said, "This will be the first portrait of a New Jersey first lady to hang at Morven. We are proud to have an official governor's residence in New Jersey and are privileged to commission this portrait."

"The New Jersey Democratic women are indebted to Betty Hughes for the help and interest she has shown over the years. This portrait symbolizes our affection for her."

Peggy Peplow Gummere graduated from the Convent of the Sacred Heart, Eden Hall, in 1930, where she studied art under Mother Elise Calahan and had supplementary work with Henry R. MacGinnis of the Trenton School of Industrial Arts.

She subsequently attended the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts and won a Cresson Scholarship for travel abroad in 1933.

Later she studied at the Grand Central Art School in New York in a competitive illustration class under Harvey Dunn.

She was given scholarships to the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Fontainebleau, France, where she studied portrait painting with Jean Despujals.

She is now teaching art at the Stuart Country Day School of the Sacred Heart in Princeton, and at St. Anthony High School, Trenton.

Mrs. Thomas L. Hendricks (The former Frances Librandy)

Frances Librandy Wed

PLAINFIELD — Miss Frances Librandy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Domenick Librandy, 906 West 3rd St., Plainfield, became the bride of Thomas L. Hendricks, 206 Wilson Ave., Port Monmouth, Saturday.

Rev. Carroll Mrowczk officiated at the double ring ceremony in St. Stanislaus Catholic Church here.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a silk organza gown with fitted bodice and bracelet sleeves. Appliques of Chantilly lace, re-embroidered with pearls, adorned the scoop neckline, controlled skirt and detachable chapel train. Her double-tiered veil was held by a Queen's crown of crystals and pearls.

Mrs. Robert Hendricks, Belford, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, was matron of honor.

Bridal attendants were Miss Patricia Shelley, Fair Lawn; Miss Claire Fantini, Scotch Plains, niece of the bride; Miss Jo Ann Cembrola, Plainfield, and Mrs. Ronald Alexander, Clark.

Mary Ann Fantini, Scotch Plains, was flower girl for her aunt.

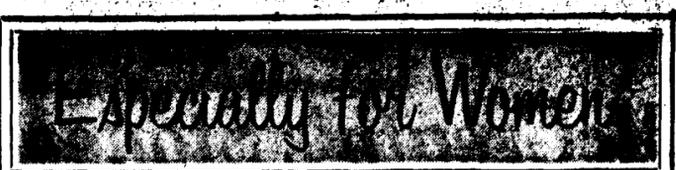

Robert Hendricks, Belford, was best man for his brother. Ushers were Gerald Vandalinda, East Paterson; Albert Price, and William Jennings, Plainfield, cousins of the bride, and Ronald Alexander, Clark. Frank Librandy, Scotch Plains, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

After a reception in the Arbor Inn, Plainfield, the couple left on a motor trip to Florida. When they return, they will reside in Belford.

The bride, an alumna of Plainfield High School and Plainfield Beauty School, owns and operates Le Coiffeur Beauty Salon, Shrewsbury.

The bridegroom was graduated from Middletown Township High School and Lincoln Technical Institute, Newark. He is a partner in Hendricks Bros. Service Center, Leonardville Rd., Belford.

Slightly beat an egg with a couple of tablespoons of cold water; dip chicken pieces in the egg mixture, then into fine dry bread crumbs. Fry the chicken in shallow fat (half butter and half shortening) and you'll have Maryland-style fried chicken.

WELL-SUITED to the busy life of a Monmouth County club-woman are these fall ensembles from Dainty Apparel, Asbury Park, shown yesterday at a luncheon given for members and guests in the Monmouth Beach Bath and Tennis Club.

The event was planned by Mrs. William Schooley, Monmouth Beach. Her committee included Mrs. Fred Strype, also of Monmouth Beach; Mrs. Richard Shanley and Mrs. John Quinn, both of Rumson, and Mrs. William Barnes, West Long Branch.

Other models were Mrs. Andrew Dedick and Miss Sheila Wolff, Rumson, and Mrs. William Kelly, Little Silver.

A broiled frosting takes no time at all. Just mix brown sugar with a little cream and a lot of shredded coconut and spread over the surface of a baked cake while the cake is still in the pan. Broil about 5 inches from heat for a couple of minutes or until lightly browned and bubbling.

Flake canned salmon and add to mashed potatoes; shape into patties; dip in slightly beaten egg and bread crumbs and fry until heated through and browned.

Fresh parsley in the house? Mince lots of it and add to bread stuffing for roast chicken or turkey. The parsley provides delightful flavor — if you add enough of it.

Four Longshots Triumph

FREEHOLD — Longshot bettors were a happy lot yesterday at Freehold Raceway as outside horses won four out of 10 races. Tampa, driven by Walter Gow, started the parade of the big money payoffs by coming from behind to capture the first race.

After pacing the mile in 2:09, the 4-year-old bay mare owned by Luis and Dorothy Hock of Allentown returned a whopping $60.80 for a $2 win ticket. The daughter of Scot Victor and Miami Hanover paid $20.60 for second and $5.60 for third.

Victory for the Track

Both organizations have been demanding higher purses from Freehold, the state's only harness track.

Victory for the Track

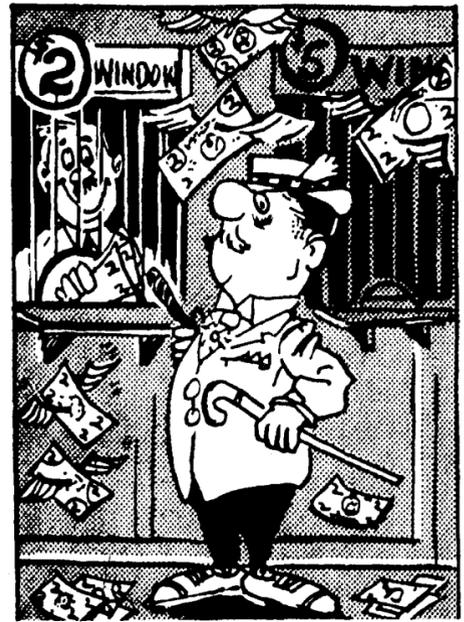

The raceway asked for the court order in filing a $15 million suit against the horsemen's associations. The groups were accused of curtailing competition in harness racing in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

Champ Freehold Victor in Playoffs

FREEHOLD — Defending post-season playoff champion and current divisional titlist Freehold made a successful debut in this year's Ed Carleton Memorial League Southern Division playoffs yesterday, whitewashing Eatontown, 8-0.

Manager Tom Brereton's club was the regular season fourth place finisher last year and then swept through the playoffs for the over-all loop crown.

OUT OF THE MONEY — A patron of the two-dollar window watches his favorite form of legal tender take flight—never to return. The Treasury Department, which says the number of $2 bills in demand seems to be proportional to the number of race tracks in an area, said yesterday it will stop printing the bill which has been a part of U. S. currency since 1776. Some tracks have already abandoned the two-dollar window in favor of one and five dollar rates. (AP Wirephoto Drawing)

Zapata made it three in a row by beating Intercepted by one-half length in the Duke Ellington Purse at Atlantic City yesterday.

The Irish-bred colt, ridden by Bill Zakoor, came out of the pack at the head of the stretch and outgamed Intercepted in the drive to the wire. He ran the mile on the grass course in 1:37.25 and paid $11.20, $4.60 and $2.60. Intercepted returned $5.20 and $3, with Carry Forward 2nd $2.40 to show.

The last two long priced triumphs were turned in by Flasher who returned $13 in the sixth, and Tarport John who copped the last race for a $14.20.

Pirates up Lead as L.A. Loses; Giants Rained Out

Home runs by Willie Stargell and Jim Pagliaroni paced Pittsburgh to a 10-4 rout of the New York Mets as the first place Pirates widened their lead in the National League last night.

Stargell's 25th homer climaxed the Pirates' four-run rally in the third inning. The blast drove in Roberto Clemente, whose single had brought home Gene Alley. Bill Mazeroski led off the inning with a single, was bunted to second and scored on Alley's single.

Baseball World Mourns Dressen's Death

DETROIT (AP) — Baseball today mourned the death of Detroit Tigers Manager Charlie Dressen, an always fiery competitor who was regarded as one of the most dedicated men in the game.

Dressen, who would have been 68 next month, died yesterday of a cardiac arrest, just four days after he had been admitted to the hospital for the third time in 17 months.

Dressen suffered a heart attack in spring training in 1965 and was sidelined by the same ailment last May 16. His last confinement was for a kidney infection.

"I lost a great friend and associate," said Tigers Vice President and General Manager James A. Campbell, who hired Dressen in June of 1964 to replace Bob Schefling.

"The contributions that Charlie Dressen made to the Detroit Tigers will be of great benefit to us in years to come, especially among our young players and the attitude of the whole organization," Campbell added.

"Few remain in baseball who can match his deep knowledge and sincere enthusiasm for the game," said Tigers owner John E. Fetzer.

A Requiem High Mass was to be sung at St. Aloysius Church in Detroit this morning after which Dressen's body was to be taken to Los Angeles.

Dressen's wife, Ruth, was expected to make final funeral arrangements later. Burial will be in Forest Lawn Cemetery in Glendale, Calif.

Tiger players are expected to attend a Memorial Mass next Tuesday.

The Tigers, who lost a 12-inning 6-3 decision at Washington last night, lined the top step of the dugout and joined the Senator players and fans in a silent tribute before the game. The Tigers will wear black arm-bands for the remainder of the season, starting with Monday night's game against the New York Yankees.

Campbell refused to replace Dressen when he suffered his second heart attack, saying he preferred to wait until a medical report in mid-August before making a decision on Dressen's future.

Dressen was scheduled to meet with his heart specialist Monday.

The peppery Dressen, who managed the Brooklyn Dodgers when they won National League pennants in 1952 and 1953, had moulded the Tigers into his finest team since the Dodgers.

News of Dressen's passing stunned the club's acting manager, Frank Skaff, and the Tiger players.

"It is a terrible, tragic thing," said Skaff. "We're extremely grieved and heartbroken."

"This is a real shock to me," said veteran outfielder Al Kaline. "He was the best manager I ever played under as far as knowing the game of baseball was concerned. I saw him only the other day and I thought he was coming along fine."

Fred Haney, general manager of the Milwaukee Braves when Dressen managed that club in 1960 and 1961, commented, "Baseball has lost a great friend, probably one of the most dedicated men we ever had in the game. He probably gave his life to the game because he realized his condition, and yet chose to stay with his club longer than he should have."

Haney now is general manager of the California Angels.

"This comes as a great shock to all of us," said Walter O'Malley, owner of the Los Angeles Dodgers. "We knew Charlie as a warm personal friend."

Brooklyn, after leading them to a second straight pennant in 1953, when O'Malley refused to give him a two-year contract.

Chicago Cubs Manager Leo Durocher, under whom Dressen served as coach in Brooklyn from the late 1930s until 1946, said, "It was certainly very sorry to hear about Charlie's death. He surely will be missed."

Washington Manager Gil Hodges, who played for Dressen at Brooklyn, said Dressen's death was a "terrible shock even though we knew he had been sick. The way he rebounded, I thought he would beat this too."

TRIBUTE TO DRESSEN — D. C. Stadium fans join Detroit Tigers' players in a moment of silent tribute to the memory of Detroit Manager Charlie Dressen, who died yesterday in a Detroit hospital. The observance preceded last night's Detroit-Washington game in Washington. Dressen had not actively managed the club since his second heart attack on May 16. (AP Wirephoto)

Problems Shelved, Thunderbird Opens

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer
CLIFTON — The touring pros shelved their differences with the parent "A" yesterday and prepared to tee off today in the $110,000 Thunderbird Classic with the big three - Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player - in an unusual subordinate role.

The outstanding favorite is "Buffalo" Bill Casper, who has won the National Open and three other tournaments this year and zoomed into the official money winning lead with $97,915.90.

"The Big Three is a catch phrase coined for publicity and promotional purposes," said former National Open champion Ken Venturi, one of the 123 contenders. "In my book there is no Big Three this year, just a big one - that guy Casper."

Venturi's sentiments were echoed by other leading players such as Gay Brewer, Doug Sanders and Bruce Devlin.

Casper rallied from seven shots back with nine to play to tie Palmer for the National Open crown in mid-June at San Francisco, and then he beat the La-Trobe, Pa., capitalist by four strokes in the playoff.

"I think I can win in anything I do," said the mid-speaking Casper. "I don't lack for confidence."

The one-time 225-pound fat man from San Diego, Calif., who lost 50 pounds on an exotic diet of buffalo and bear meat, avocados and organically grown vegetables because of a strong list of allergies, said he had found no bothersome pollution in the New Jersey atmosphere.

"I'm taking a supply of portable oxygen in my bag just in case," he added. "You can't ever tell."

Casper is one of the golfers who has remained aloof from the current bid by a militant group of the tournament players to gain autonomy in the conduct of their $4 million tour.

The tourists want to set up a separate at-large section within the framework of the PGA - it would be the 35th section - which would give them the right to run the tour, set tournaments and do with the money as they please.

They have run into problems and a 12-hour session Tuesday ended without any agreement.

"We've decided to make no comment until the matter is settled," said Tommy Jacobs, chairman of the players' committee. Max Elbin, president of the PGA, also maintained a discreet silence.

The Thunderbird is being returned to Upper Montclair's 7,055 yard, par 72 course where it was first played in 1962 before being transferred to the Westchester Country Club in Harrison, N.Y. Gene Littler won the Inaugural and Jack Nicklaus, in his first year as pro, collected second money before winning the 1962 National Open.

Nicklaus, holder of the Masters and British Open crowns, is high in favor again but he has experienced only moderate success on the over-all tour, ranking sixth on the money list.

Palmer is second with $81,617 and Player, with a curtailed schedule, is 31st with $23,416.

"The term Big Three never scared us," said Brewer, who has won $66,520 for fourth place in the money list. "We figure there are 15 or 20 men who can win a tournament. Most of the guys don't overrate Palmer Nicklaus and Player - they don't underrate them either."

Field of 40 Due For 40-Kilo Walk

LONG BRANCH — Forty top U.S. race walkers will be on the starting line for Sunday's National AAU Senior and Junior 40-kilometer (24.8 mile) championship race through city streets.

This annual event, being held as part of the Long Branch Summer Festival Committee's sports program, will start at 10 a.m. in front of City Hall and will wind its way through town for its middle miles and should produce a winner approximately four hours later around the banks of Takanssee Lake.

Paul Schell of the North Medford, Mass., Club is the defending senior champion but will be hard-pressed to retain his title this time around against an all-star field.

Among the top rivals signed up for the event are U.S. Olympian Ron Laird of Pomona, Calif., U.S. 50-mile record-holder Shaul Ladany of the N.Y. Pioneer Club, teenage stars Dan Cafet of Chicago and Bob Kitchen of Baltimore. Bruce MacDonald and Ron Daniel, a pair of national champions from Long Island; Ron Kulik, the New Jersey champion from Nutley, and veteran long distance performer John Kelly of New York's Millrose AA.

Schell's North Medford team captured the senior team title a year ago but isn't picked to retain the crown. The N.Y. Pioneer club, N.Y. Athletic Club, University of Chicago Track Club, Philadelphia AC, Chesapeake Track Club of Baltimore and host Shore Athletic Club will be out to dethrone the North Medford squad.

In the junior division, individual choices are Kitchen and Cafet with the Chicago and Philadelphia teams, plus the Shore AC leading the junior teams.

Trophies, provided by the Summer Festival Committee, will be awarded to the top 25 finishers. This marks the fourth consecutive year that Long Branch has played host to a National AAU championship long distance walking event.

Leading entrants from the Shore area of New Jersey will be Elliott Denman of West Long Branch (who is doubling as meet director), Joe Meehan of Belmar, Don Johnson of Little Silver and Brendan Elliott of Oakhurst.

St. Mary's Is Champion

MIDDLETOWN — St. Mary's A.A. won the Middletown-VFV Teener League championship last Sunday for the second time in the last three years by outlasting the Berg Reds, 10-9.

John Vigliotti led the winners with a double and a triple, while Bruntz batted in a total of four runs on a single and two bases loaded walks.

Jim Hallgring hit a pinch-hit homer for the Reds, while Earle Jardin capped a four-run sixth inning with a four-bagger.

Speedster Henry Carr Finding More Satisfaction in Football

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer
FAIRFIELD, Conn. — Henry Carr is roaming the wide open range as free safety for the New York Giants, and the former champion sprinter is getting more satisfaction out of football than he got from the Olympics.

"I think football is even more of an achievement for me. I can do more concrete things for myself and use football as a stepping stone for the future, along with my Olympic connections." Carr was in New York when the AAU Nationals were run in June. He didn't even feel a slight tug pulling him toward the life he once lived.

"I was a champion and I quit as a champion," said the 23-year-old athlete from Detroit. "There was nothing more for me to accomplish in track. Then there was that problem between the NCAA and the AAU. It was getting so the runner couldn't choose where he wanted to run. I got out when the getting was good. I never have been sorry."

When Carr came to camp a year ago as a No. 4 draft pick by the Giants, there were doubts about his ability to make it in pro football. He had been a high school football whiz at Detroit but had played only one year — his sophomore year in 1962 — at Arizona State. An injury forced him to stay out of football in 1963. In 1964 he gave up the sport to concentrate on track in an Olympic year.

Coach Allie Sherman moved Carr into the left, or strong, safety position with the Giants last fall and kept him there all season. The strong safety's major responsibility is to cover the tight end, usually a sturdy muscle man like Mike Ditka.

SKIER IMPROVED
SANTIAGO, Chile — U.S. racer Walt Falk, 19, who suffered a severe brain concussion in a downhill world championship run Sunday, is eating solid food and talking, his doctor said yesterday.

Falk, of Boise, Idaho, is in the Catholic University Hospital here and probably will not be able to return to the United States for at least a month, Dr. Valdemar Badir said.

RACING PROBE
LANSING, Mich.—Gov. George Romney said yesterday he had ordered an investigation of reported widespread horse doping and illegal betting at two Detroit area race tracks because of a citizen's complaint.

An unidentified citizen supplied information two weeks ago indicating "wrongdoing" at the tracks, Romney said.

State Police are guarding Dr. Norman Stoner, the state veterinarian. Stoner is in charge of testing race horses for evidence of drugging. Police were called in without consultation with former Racing Commissioner Berry Beaman. Romney said this was "not unusual under all the circumstances."

ARRIGO ACHING
PITTSBURGH — Left-hander Gerry Arrigo of the New York Mets left the team yesterday to return to New York for examination of a back condition. Arrigo complained of pains in his lower back Tuesday. He will be examined by Dr. Peter La Motte, club physician.

Arrigo has a 3-3 record and 3.77 earned run average in 43 and 13 innings with the Mets, who bought him from Cincinnati shortly after the season started.

Yearby on Defense

Associated Press
PEEKSKILL, N. Y. — Bill Yearby, the New York Jets' No. 1 draft choice, will play defensive end and linebacker in the team's first exhibition game Saturday night against the Houston Oilers in Birmingham, Ala.

The rookie from Michigan figured to be a tight end for the American Football League club.

Webb Ewbank, Jets' coach, said he feels that Yearby is too far behind in offense and that this is the best way to get him into the line-up.

Adopt New Fishing Regulations

TRENTON — The State Conservation Department adopted new fishing regulations yesterday which include provisions to protect potential spawning runs of rainbow trout in the Spruce Run Reservoir watershed.

The State Fish and Game Council, an arm of the conservation department, said these provisions contained the most significant changes in the new code, which takes effect in 1967.

The reservoir and a stretch of the Spruce Run Creek will be closed to fishing from next Jan. 1 to April 8, the opening day of the trout season, the council said.

The council also announced that tip-up ice fishing will begin Jan. 1 and run through Feb. 19, nearly a week longer than this year.

No ice fishing will be permitted in December, 1967, except for carp and suckers, the council said. Use of a three-hook jig will be permitted from Feb. 19 until the spring thaw for all species, the council said.

NAME CLARIDGE

BLACK MOUNTAIN, N. C. — Coach Nobb Hecker announced yesterday that Dennis Claridge again will start for the Atlanta Falcons when they meet the New York Giants in Nashville, Tenn., Saturday night.

49er WALKOUT?

MORAGA, Calif. — Six National Football League veterans reportedly want to walk out of the San Francisco 49ers training camp because they feel management has been too slow in coming to contract terms for the coming season.

The San Francisco Examiner identified the players as offensive guard Howard Mudd, offensive center Bruce Bosley, offensive end Bernie Casey, quarterback Bill Kilmer and defensive backs Elbert Kimbrough and Jimmy Johnson. All are starters except Kilmer.

Midsummer Classic Tops Wall's Triple Race Card

WALL TOWNSHIP — The double point 50-lap Midsummer Classic for modified and sportsman division stock cars tops a triple-header combination racing card at Wall Stadium Saturday night.

Also on the agenda will be a 25-lap novice main event and a 15-lapper for foreign compacts.

The double point bonus for the 50-lapper is of chief concern to the leaders in the point races. Modified leader Jim Hoffman of Marlboro Township, trying for his first driving title, leads second-place Charlie Kremer of Lakehurst by 60 points, while sportsman leader Parker Bohn of Freehold, seeking his second straight crown, leads runner-up Dan McLaughlin by 34.

Hoffman will be seeking his sixth feature win of the season and also defending his title in the midsummer Classic. Eight other feature winners — Don Stives, Tommie Elliott, Dave Hulise, Richie Massing, Bill Chevalier, Bill McCarthy, Frank Myroncuck and Art Fillburn—will also be in the lineup.

The sensational novice driver, Ray Shea of Asbury Park, will be seeking his 10th main event win in the 25-lapper. Shea also has a winning streak of three and he will be out to cut point leader Ray Roberts' lead of 48 points.

OLD BRIDGE — Two 50-lap feature races will share the auto racing spotlight at Old Bridge Speedway this weekend.

An eight-event midsummer ARDC midget car program topped with a 50-lap championship main event on Friday and Sunday night's Eastern States Stock Car Classic will dominate the racing action in the season's biggest midget-stock car racing bill.

The long awaited return of the sportsman and modified stock car pilots on Sunday evening at 7:30 p.m. will find a stellar array of speed demons including favorites as Elton Hildreth, Pee Wee Griffin, Bill Brice, Tommie Elliott, Gil Hearne, Jim Hoffman, Bill Chevalier, Don Stives, Parker Bohn, Bill McCarthy and Dave Hulise in the better than 60-car field.

The leading New York and Long Island stock merchants will again be battling the Jerseyites for the better than $3,000 purse that has $650 going to the winner.

TV Highlights

7:30-8 (7) — Batman. "He Meets His Match — The Grisly Ghoul." (Repeat). The Joker (Cesar Romero) is still tempting high school students in his duel with the Batman, and even comes up with the dastardly plan of fixing a high school basketball game. The Joker's evil is so broad, it can only be fun for the youngsters, but the main laughs come from Robin pretending to be a dropout and trying to mix with the young hoodlums around. (Color).

7:30-8 (18) — New Orleans Jazz. "Red Light District and Gloryland." (Repeat). This series goes back to the late 1880s to recreate the atmosphere of Old New Orleans where the birth of jazz took place. Host Vernon F. Cook illustrates the effect of the city on the development of the rhythm of jazz.

8-8:30 conclusion (11) — Baseball. New York Yankees vs. Baltimore Orioles, from Yankee Stadium. (Color).

8:30-9 (2) — My Three Sons. (Repeat). Good episode for series fans. Uncle Charlie and the boys believe Father Douglas is about to bring home a wife. Such an event is not about to occur, but the story, based on a misunderstanding, develops nicely. (Color).

8:30-9:30 (18) — "Mata Hari." This BBC production tells the tale of the legendary World War I spy, Mata Hari, using material from the lady's own scrapbooks, recently unearthed, and rare old photographs as well. In this era of "Bondsmanship," so prevalent on the fictional front, a study of the real Mata Hari offers considerable appeal.

9-11 (2) — Thursday Night Movie. "The Interns." (1962). (Repeat) Soap-opera styled medical drama, interesting chiefly for its performances by a group of young players — Michael Callan, James MacArthur, Stefanie Powers, Nick Adams, and veterans Cliff Robertson and Telly Savalas. Its all about the first-year problems of assorted doctors serving their internship.

9:30-10 (13) — USA: Poetry. "Richard Wilbur and Robert Lowell." Two Pulitzer Prize poets are featured in this half hour, reading their poems in sequences filmed at their homes. Richard Wilbur in Portland, Connecticut, reads "On the Marginal Way," "Love Calls Us to the Things of This World," and "Advice to a Prophet." Robert Lowell in his New York studio reads "Water," "Soft Wood," "The Flaw," and "Fall 1961."

10-11 (4) — Dean Martin Summer Show. Comic Dom DeLuise is pretty funny playing a super-hero and a TV cue card boy who mix-up his cards. Laughman Pat Henry, back for a third time, and co-hosts Rowan and Martin hold their own with their short comedy bits, while Barbara McNair, Lainie Kazan and Judi Rolin vocalize to "The Lady is a Tramp," "Summertime," and "Love is a Simple Thing." In the finale, the Les Brown Band plays old Jimmy Dorsey hits. (Color).

10-11 (7) — The Avengers. "Too Many Christmas Trees." This may seem an odd time of the year for a Christmas tale, but on this show anything is bound to happen at any time and often does. John Steed is plagued by some weird nightmares which set a pattern for the strange events that follow.

10:15-11 (13) — Focus '66. Senator Clifford Case, Republican of New Jersey, will discuss the topic "Congressional Ethics," as a guest of the news show tonight.

Soviets Clamp Lid On Tsarist Mystery

By FRED COLEMAN
MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet authorities apparently have put the lid on the 140-year-old mystery of the grave of Tsar Alexander.

They rejected as legend the idea that Alexander faked death in 1825, then wandered for 40 years—most of them in Siberia—disguised as a monk.

The question of what actually happened to Alexander so intrigued Leo Tolstoy that he began a book on the case. Earlier Tolstoy had written of Alexander and Napoleon in "War and Peace."

An article in the current issue of the Soviet weekly magazine Ogonyok blames Tolstoy for perpetuating the idea that Alexander was not buried in the grave marked as his.

Last November a Soviet writer suggested that the mystery could be cleared up by opening Alexander's grave. The new article said nothing about opening the grave. It claimed instead that exhaustive evidence showed Alexander died when and where history says he did.

Tolstoy wrote that Feodor Kuzmich, an old monk, appeared in Siberia in 1836 and wandered there for 27 years amid rumors that he was the "dead" Tsar in disguise.

was the same height as the Tsar and had the same figure. When Kuzmich died, a letter found in his possession bore the initials "A.P." Alexander Pavlovich was the Tsar's name.

The Ogonyok article, written by V. Prokopenko and State Archivist A. Iliritskaya, concentrated on answering Tolstoy's points.

They said the letter found on Kuzmich was a forgery of the Tsar's handwriting and not a very good one at that, according to expert analysis.

They also claimed documents showed Alexander had suffered a long illness before his death and that his coffin was open and shown to the public on the way from Taganrog to the capital. They said a death mask made from the corpse showed that unquestionably it was the Tsar's.

They said state archives and testimony of all witnesses established beyond a shadow of a doubt that "The death of Emperor Alexander I on Nov. 19, 1825, in Taganrog is a historically documented fact."

The article did not exclude the possibility that the grave had been opened by officials and the findings had led the writers to their conviction that Alexander was buried there.

Bridge Advice

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD
Some bridge players don't care what they do as long as they have a name for the play. South called his a "calculated risk," but both the calculation and the risk were needless.

East won the first trick with the ace of diamonds and returned the five of hearts. South put on his best thoughtful manner and tried a finesse with the queen of hearts. He expected results from this play but he got consequences.

West won with the king of hearts and returned the king, forcing out the ace. When South eventually led diamonds the defenders defeated the contract with the rest of the hearts.

South didn't need the heart finesse and should have hoped to get through the hand without ever having to risk it. He should take the ace of hearts at the second trick and lead the queen of diamonds to knock out the king.

If West continues hearts, South gets a second heart trick. If West leads anything else, South has nine tricks with three spades, three clubs, two diamonds and one heart.

The need for a finesse in hearts would arise only if East had both top diamonds. When South takes the ace of hearts and returns a diamond, East might then win and lead a second heart. Even then South would still be able to put up the queen of hearts and hope for the best.

It doesn't pay to refuse all finesses just because an opponent leads the suit. It does pay to refuse a finesse that you don't need and may never have to try.

Friday, August 12

Present—For You and Yours... This is a rather uneventful day. Morning hours are most favorable, with the outlook somewhat adverse after dinner time. People tend to be skeptical under these radiations, but can be convinced by sincerity and frankness. Make the day count by doing some tasks around home that have been neglected.

The Day Under Your Sign

Aries. Born Mar. 21 to Apr. 19
Although you feel rather depressed, you'll be your old self again by noon.

Taurus. April 20 to May 20
Meet problems head-on instead of bypassing them. They won't solve themselves.

Gemini. May 21 to June 21
A get-together in your home should prove to be a roaring success.

Cancer. June 22 to July 21
You can be very persuasive, so this is a good time for writing activities.

Leo. July 22 to Aug. 21
You feel extra peppy and things should go smoothly for a change.

Virgo. Aug. 22 to Sept. 22
You can be too independent and arrogant unless instead of enlisting their sympathy.

Libra. Sept. 23 to Oct. 22
Things should move along at normal speed, but you won't be satisfied with that.

Scorpio. Oct. 23 to Nov. 21
Discharge your duties early so that you can spend maximum time with loved ones.

Sagittarius. Nov. 22 to Dec. 21
A minor annoyance in a.m. clears up and things should then go your way.

Capricorn. Dec. 22 to Jan. 20
You can capitalize on something you learn now, so be attentive every minute.

Aquarius. Jan. 21 to Feb. 19
Don't get mixed up in a dubious financial deal. Money dishonestly gained won't benefit you.

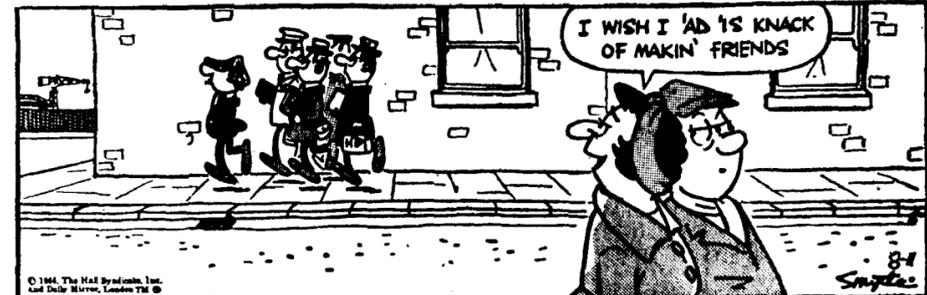

Pisces. Feb. 20 to March 20
Personal ambitions may suffer a temporary setback, but the long-range outlook is fine.

Gas No. 1 Heating Fuel

More than one million homes installed gas heating in 1965, maintaining the annual increase for the past 15 years and bringing the total number of gas househeating customers to 26,819,000.

The American Gas Association, in announcing the results of its 18th annual househeating survey, said that a total of 1,090,000 new customers installed gas heating last year, for a net gain of 3.7 per cent over 1964. Househeating saturation again rose to a new high of 77 per cent of the total residential gas customers.

In addition to the 26.8 million individual gas heating customers recorded last year, there were 2.5 million dwellings such as apartment houses or multi-family structures which received heat from a central source. This brought the total number of families being served by gas heating to 29,322,000 representing a 4.2 per cent gain over the 28,143,000 reported in 1964.

The survey predicted that in the three-year period ending in 1968, an additional 3.2 million new gas househeating customers will be recorded. New construction is expected to account for about two-thirds of the gain, or 2.1 million, of the new customers while the remaining 1.1 million will be added as a result of conversions from competitive heating fuels.

The preference for gas heating in newly-built dwellings continues to be the major factor in househeating customer growth. Of the 1,090,000 heating customers added by utilities last year, 63.3 per cent, or 690,000, were in new homes. The remainder represented homeowners converting from other fuels in existing dwellings.

The East North Central Region again leads the rest of the country with the greatest absolute increase in househeating customers. A total of 265,000 househeating customers were added in this region's swelling total for a 5 per cent gain over 1964. This brings the total to 6,227,000, the largest in the country. Unlike most of the nation, the bulk of the increase was attributed to conversions from other fuels. States included in this area are Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin.

SOURCE: AMERICAN GAS ASSOCIATION

A record 25,166,000 families will heat their homes this winter with gas, nearly twice the number as in 1954. For the past decade, one million or more new househeating customers have been added annually by gas utility companies. The high level of new construction and homeowners who convert from other fuels account for the increase in new gas heating customers. By the end of 1966 an additional 3.5 million customers will be heating their homes by gas.

$99 Bonus for Heat Conversion

New Jersey Natural Gas Company had made an outstanding offer to home owners who are not heating their homes with gas now, or those who want to add a gas space heater.

The offer includes a cash bonus of $99, $66, or $33—depending on the nature of the work. For instance, if your present heating system is other than gas and is in need of replacement, this is the time to take advantage of this big offer. In that case, where a new furnace or boiler would have to be installed, New Jersey Natural Gas Company will pay $99 toward the cost of the job.

If you just want to convert to gas heat and can use your existing boiler or furnace, New Jersey Natural Gas Company will pay $66 toward the cost of the conversion unit.

And if you need some supplementary heat—for example for an additional room, or for some cold spot in your house—New Jersey Natural Gas Company will pay $33 toward the purchase of that space heater.

This offer of $99, $66 or $33 is unconditional—in other words, it will be paid to your plumbing or heating contractor who completed the job. All you have to do is fill out a coupon available from the company. Your plumbing or heating contractor will accept the coupon as the equivalent of the $99, $66 or $33 and thus subtract it from his bill to you. He, in turn, will submit it to the New Jersey Natural Gas Company and will be reimbursed the appropriate amount.

One of the most amazing offers that has withstood the test of time is New Jersey Natural Gas Company's "Certified Heating Estimate."

Just what is a "Certified Heating Estimate?"

Well, this is the way it works. If you want to convert your existing heating system in your home to gas heat and want to know what it will cost you to heat your home, all you have to do is call your nearest New Jersey Natural Gas Company office.

They will send a qualified representative who will make a survey of your home and submit to you the estimated cost of heating your home by gas for a 10-month period from Sept. 1 through June 30. Upon request, a certificate will be issued.

At the end of the year, if the cost of heating your home by gas exceeds the estimate, New Jersey Natural Gas Company upon your written request will remove the gas heating equipment, replace your original heating equipment and refund the installed cost of the gas heating equipment.

This is a certification that can't be beat and that's why so many people have taken advantage of it in recent years and have converted to gas heat.

Gas furnaces are truly space-savers. Some units take up only 2½ feet of floor space, yet will heat the average size home.

Clean, compact and automatic, the gas heating plant of today is a far cry from the massive, grimy furnaces of the past.

Ready to scrap that ancient heating plant?

Here's welcome news. Your gas company and gas appliance dealer can offer combined-minded, cost-conscious home owners an array of fully automatic gas equipment that will heat, humidify, filter and circulate "conditioned" air to all parts of the home.

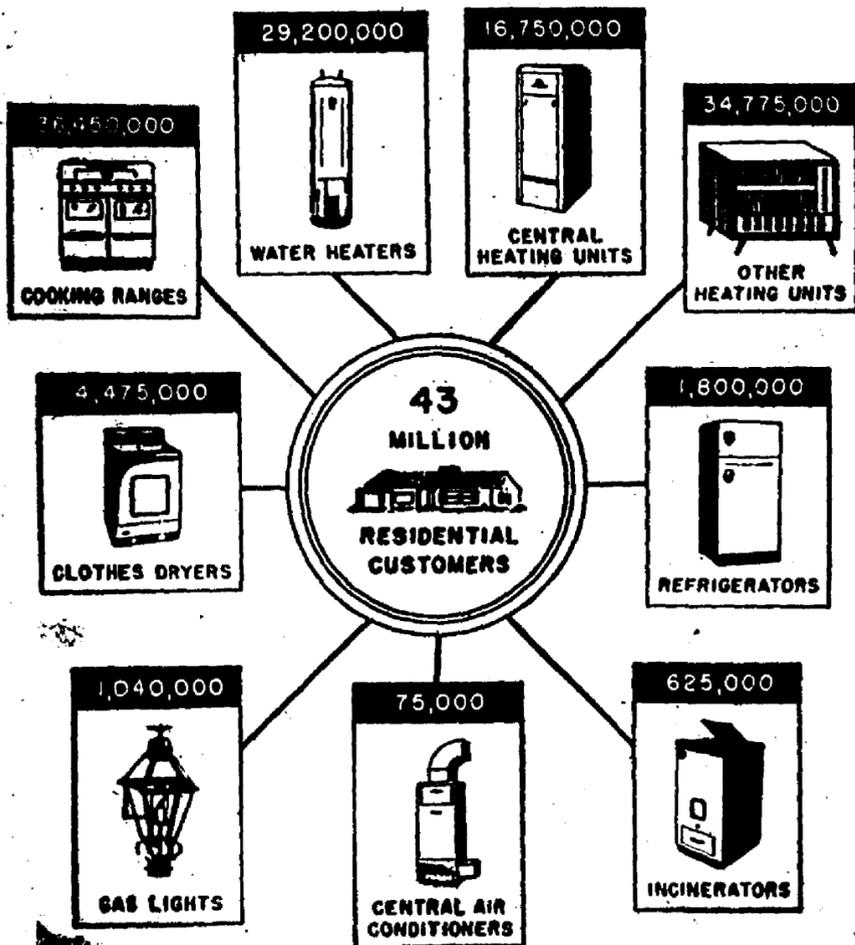

Space-saving gas equipment is readily adaptable to panel, radiant or perimeter heating. The new units can be safely installed almost anywhere—in a basement, attic, crawl space, utility room, closet, wall, under stairs, or even on the ceiling, according to the American Gas Association.

Gas companies and appliance dealers will willingly estimate your home heating and fuel requirements, based on local climate conditions and the construction of your home.

Modern, versatile gas equipment eliminates all need for ash cans, coal bins, and fuel tanks. There's never any need to shovel coal, empty ashes, bank fires or clean up dirt and grime. No waiting for fuel deliveries, either, or danger of running out of fuel.

Gas is delivered by protected underground pipes directly into the furnace. Modern controls can be set for the exact degree of warmth desired and some will turn down the heat at night and raise it in the morning automatically. Other reasons for replacing obsolete heating equipment with modern gas units are economy of operation and freedom from maintenance.

125 MILLION GAS APPLIANCES IN USE TODAY

SOURCE: AMERICAN GAS ASSOCIATION

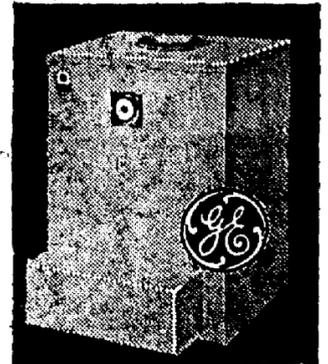

More than 125 million gas appliances are now in daily service in homes throughout the United States. The nation's 43 million gas-using families—34 million served by utility companies and the remainder by LP "bottled" gas—average nearly three gas appliances each.

1,000 U.S. Schools Heated by GAS

An estimated 35,490 elementary and secondary schools throughout the United States are heated by utility gas, according to statistics just compiled by the American Gas Association in its first survey of school heating sources.

The estimate is an extrapolation of actual data furnished by member companies which showed that gas utility companies serve 24,813,373 residential customers or 70.9 per cent of total residential gas customers during 1965, were heating 28,074 schools.

A.G.A.'s Bureau of Statistics, in compiling the data, assumed that in regions where coverage was less than 70 per cent, the non-reporting companies had a ratio of school heating to customers at a rate of one-half of that experienced by reporting companies.

The survey also showed that companies serving 63.5 per cent of the residential customers and encompassing 33.8 per cent of the schools in the country were heating 59.7 per cent of the schools in their service areas.

On a regional basis the West South Central region shows the highest school heating saturation. Companies there serving 80.1 per cent of the residential customers and having 47.9 per cent of the schools in that region within the limits of their service area were heating 99.2 per cent of the schools.

New England shows the lowest percentage of schools heated by gas. In this region, companies serving 64.3 per cent of the residential customers and covering 40.8 per cent of the schools in the region were heating only 12.0 per cent of them.

Other regions with relatively high school heating saturation are the West North Central, the East South Central, and the Mountain and the Pacific regions.

Professional heating experts have helped make gas-fired forced warm air furnaces the country's first choice in residential heating. Ask any of them why, and they'll tell you "flexibility."

What does flexibility mean in a home heating system?

Webster defines flexible as "not stiff or rigid . . . easily persuaded or influenced, tractable . . . adjustable to change, capable of modification."

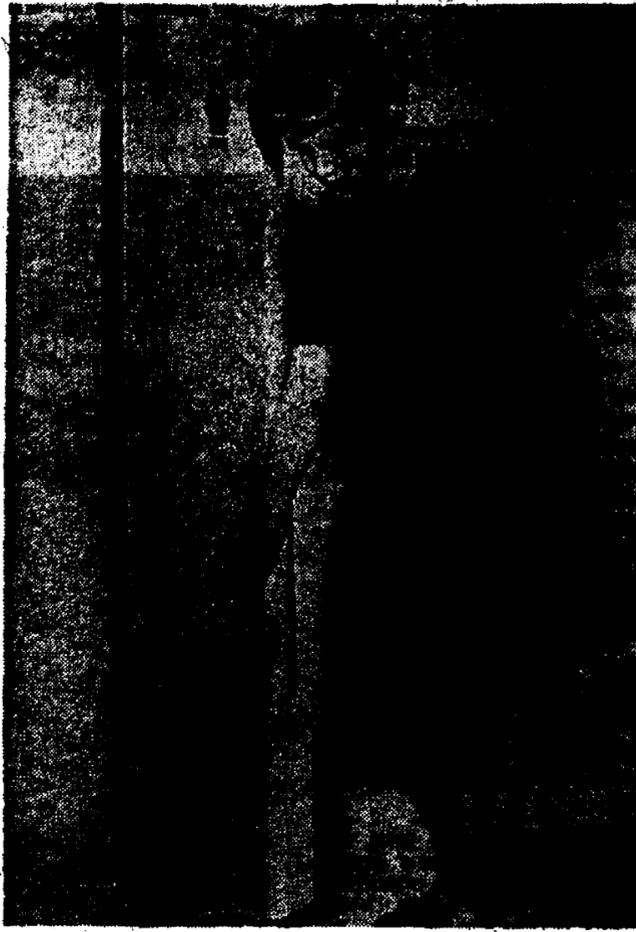

The modern gas furnace does not make any "rigid" demands as to the space it must occupy — models are available for virtually every part of the house. It is "easily persuaded" to quick and silent heating action by the thermostat's demand, whether through an automatic signal or householder's action.

It is "adjustable to change" as demanded by the weather, or by a change in heating requirements in different parts of the home. The gas furnace works at top efficiency whether taking the chill off a fall morning or defying winter's coldest blasts.

And as for being "capable of modification," that's outstandingly demonstrated in the many ways gas forced warm air systems are used in connection with whole house air conditioning. Blowers, ducts, and air filters serve both summer and winter. Many gas systems are also specially designed for add-on cooling.

These then, with the help of Webster, are some of the things experts mean when they praise the "flexibility" of today's forced warm air gas furnace.

Eight out of every ten new homes built in the U.S. have gas for house heating where gas is available. Gas furnaces are not only modern, but gas has been tested by time and found to be the ideal fuel for house heating.

Modern automatic gas water heaters provide quick recovery to guarantee plenty of hot water whenever it is needed.

Homes heated with gas don't have to be limited to the conventional basement installation, according to the American Gas Association.

Modern, fully automatic gas furnaces and air conditioning units, compactly and handsomely styled, come in a variety of colors, harmonize nicely with almost all color schemes and design motifs, hence can be installed almost anywhere in the house.

If the family prefers a basement installation, however, space-saving designs of new gas units, plus their freedom from fuel storage and maintenance complications, help make the basement an additional family living area.

Fully automatic gas furnaces heat, filter and circulate warm fresh air to all parts of the house. They will even humidify the air when climatic conditions require it. Clock-type thermostats can be set to automatically cut-back temperatures at night and raise them to the desired degree in the morning. Built-in controls and regulators make gas heating units safe and dependable.

Safety is important and the popularity of gas for house heating is based in part on the public's realization that a properly installed gas furnace, with automatic shut-off and other modern safety controls, is as safe a heating installation as can be had anywhere.

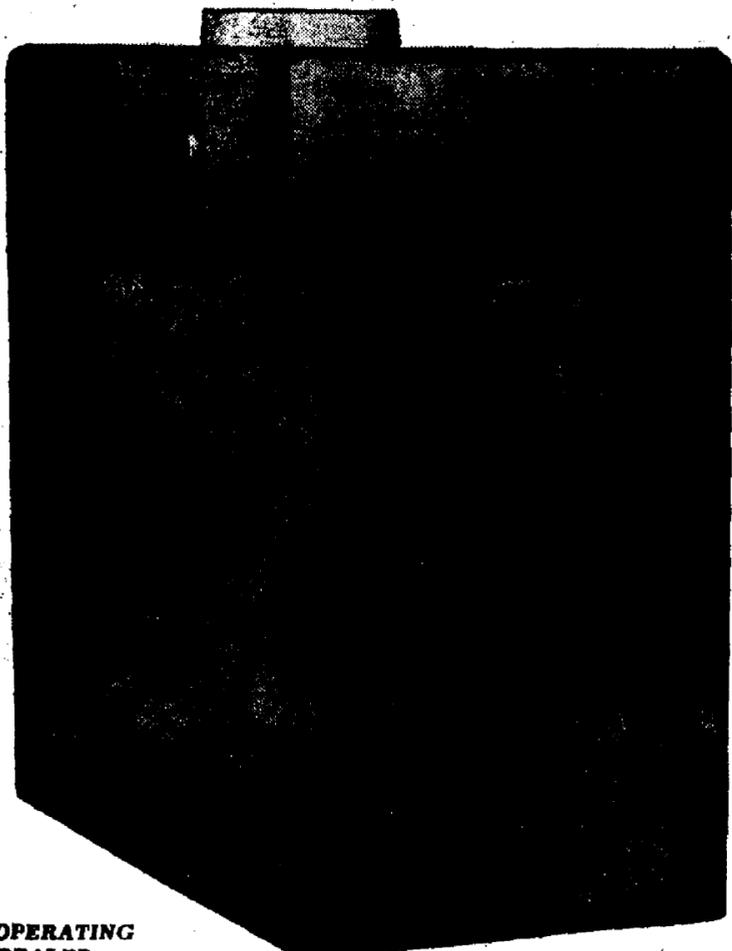

Gas causes fewer building fires than all other fuels. In fact only 3½ per cent of all fires in the U.S. were gas caused, which puts gas way down on the list.

The American Gas Association points to this as an outstanding example of the industry's excellent safety experience and says it is even more remarkable in view of the fact that more and more people (1,000,000 more each year) are using gas for house heating.

Gas Heats More Homes in U.S.

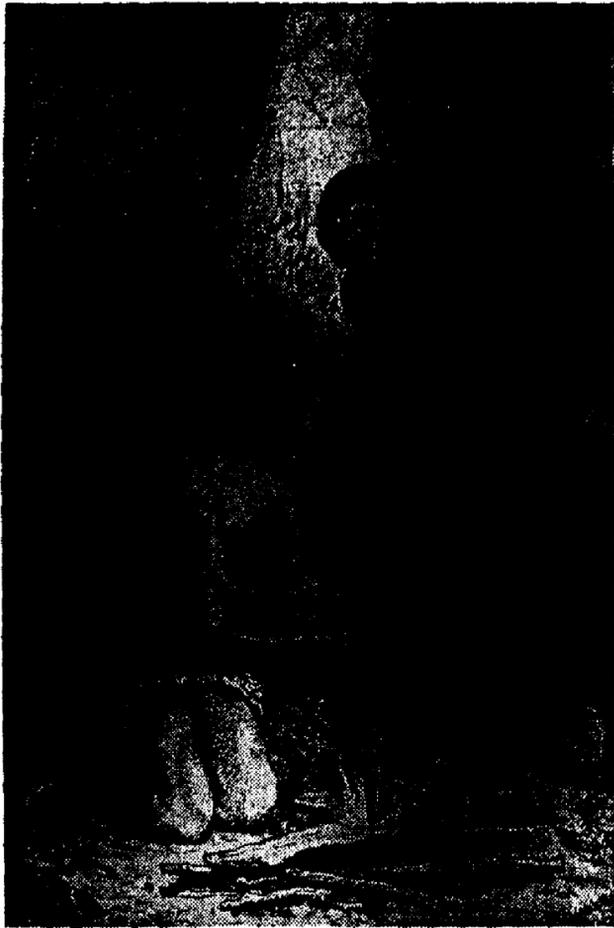

Since man's first winter, the "heat" has been on in one way or another. Today we take for granted our warm, cozy homes, but ancient man had to resort to leaves, bark from trees and animal skins to fight the cold.

To all ancient peoples fire had a religious, as well as practical, significance. Angio was the fire god of the ancient Hindus. He was depicted as having two faces: one good, the other evil. It was his role to act as intermediary between man and the higher gods by bringing the essence of the sacrifices.

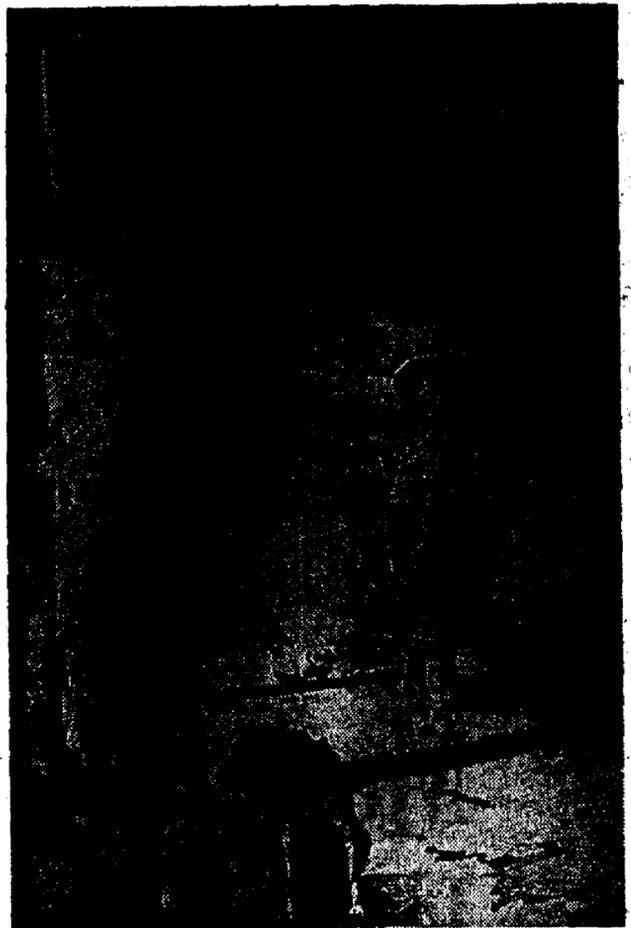

In honor of Hephaestus, the Greek fire god, each Hellenic city-state had its prytaneum, a temple with an eternal flame. When the Greeks went to colonize barbarian tribes, their most precious treasure was a glowing ember from the home prytaneum, carefully preserved to start a new eternal fire in the foreign land. Rome, too, had an eternal flame in honor of Vesta, goddess of hearth and home.

At the beginning of the Christian era, the Romans developed the first central heating system. Slaves kept their master's dwellings warm by holding smoking firebrands under the moldings to heat the air circulating through wall flues.

During the 11th and 12th centuries when feudalism was in flower, the fortified, multi-storied castles required many fireplaces to warm the homestead. Great halls had one or more fireplaces and reinforced walls to retain the heat.

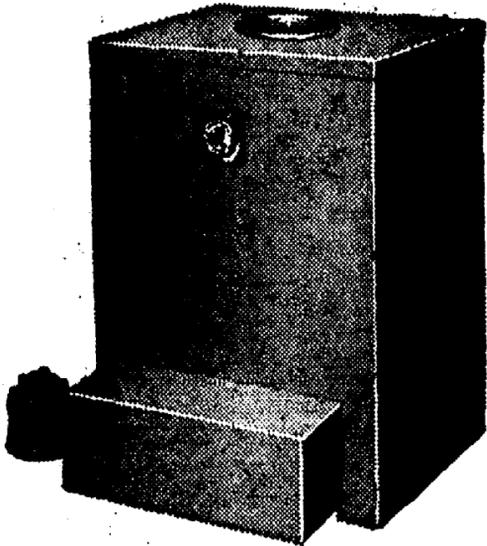

Small rooms depended on metal baskets or braziers filled with coal. This custom was refined by the Italian nobles of the Renaissance. They burned charcoal in elaborate bronze pots and threw perfume on the flames to offset the pungent odor.

Fireplaces were long the major source of heat for homes in Europe and in Colonial America. Even today, many an English mansion keeps the chill of the countryside at bay with a warm fire in the fireplace. Central heating is just now making inroads in British homes, replacing room warmers.

"Pennsylvania fireplace" — we call it a stove — and for the first time a comparatively effective, low cost way of heating was available to all. Well into the 20th century, the old pot-bellied stove was still a family's best friend in winter.

than All Other Fuels Combined

Like these giant heating plants, today's modern homes also depend on piped-in gas heating. Today, gas heats more homes in the U.S. than all other fuels combined. A survey by the American Gas Association shows that where mains are currently available, nearly nine out of ten new homes are being built with gas heating.

Why? In a study made by the U.S. Housing and Home Finance Agency, 89 per cent of the gas consumers said they actually prefer the fuel they are now using. Several of the reasons they gave are that gas is clean and comfortable, the heating unit is fully automatic, and there are no deliveries or service expenses.

Natural gas heat returns full value for every heating dollar you spend. Gas burners have no or few moving parts. There is nothing to wear out or get out of order. Moreover, the equipment has long life and saves on service costs.

Gas-fired conversion burners suit the needs of many homeowners who have heating plants which are in good repair and adequate in size.

Even, steady temperatures inside the home — warmth that doesn't fluctuate according to the weather outside — is a trademark of a dependable gas furnace.

In the general store of a by-gone rural America, the stove was the social focal point. Farmers gathered around to warm their bodies and refresh their minds with news of the surrounding areas.

Steam, hot water and warm air systems were next in the line of improvements. The principles for steam heating were worked out by James Watt as early as 1764. Coal or oil-burning furnaces produced heat which was conveyed to rooms through pipes or ducts. Because steam heating requires more equipment, warm air and water systems soon outranked it in popularity.

But since World War II, transmission of energy through pipelines has made heating more efficient than ever — even capable of keeping whole cities warm from one central plant. Some metropolitan areas have an elaborate under-street heat conduit system with manholes, expansion joints and valves that rival the sewer system for complexity.

Gas Reserves Set for 100 Years

NEW YORK — Contrary to published claims that natural gas shortages are imminent, U.S. government sources indicate that there are enough reserves of this natural resource in the ground to serve this nation's needs for the next 100 years, according to the American Gas Association.

A.G.A. cited the most recent findings of the Geological Survey conducted by the United States Department of the Interior as published in Circular 522, "Resources of Oil, Gas and Natural-Gas Liquids in the United States and the World," released in late 1965.

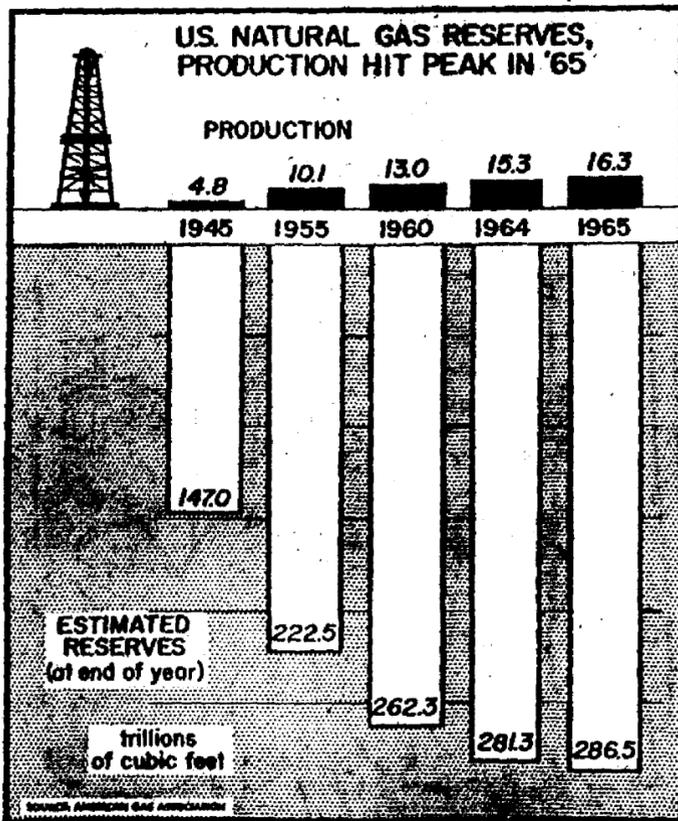

The authoritative report estimates that there are now 4,000 trillion cubic feet of natural gas in place in the United States and that approximately half of this is economically recoverable. The report emphasizes that these are minimum quantities and that the estimates will probably be revised upward in the future.

Based on the current production rate, A.G.A. asserted, the 2,000 trillion cubic feet of natural gas economically recoverable is of sufficient quantity to furnish this nation's natural gas needs for more than a century.

The Geological Survey pointed out that its estimates have been compiled on an extremely conservative basis. It reported:

"Because man cannot see oil and gas resources, it is not surprising that he has been ultraconservative in estimating yet-undiscovered quantities. Repeatedly, expert estimates of total undiscovered quantities have been exceeded within a decade or so by quantities actually discovered.

"This conservatism regarding the unseen is also reflected

After taking a record 16.3 trillion cubic feet of natural gas out of the ground in production during 1965, proved gas reserves at the beginning of 1966 stood at 286.5 trillion cubic feet. This was a gain of 5.2 trillion cubic feet over the previous year. Gross additions to the reserves were 21.3 trillion cubic feet — the third highest in two decades.

in estimates of yet-to-be produced quantities in accumulations that have already been outlined by drilling, that is, estimates of 'proved reserves.' The record shows that estimates of ultimate recovery from drilled pools are generally revised sharply upward as cumulative production mounts."

A.G.A. announced that it is currently compiling figures for its annual Natural Gas Reserves report and that early estimates from some segments of the industry indicate a near record increase in reserves. The industry-wide report is expected to be completed within two weeks.

IT'S A FACT...

GAS RESERVES GROW DESPITE RECORD PRODUCTION

PROVED RESERVES OF NATURAL GAS ALMOST DOUBLED IN THE LAST 20 YEARS EVEN THOUGH 207 TRILLION CUBIC FEET WERE TAKEN FROM THE GROUND. EACH YEAR, MORE GAS IS FOUND THAN IS USED. LAST YEAR'S ADDITIONS TO RESERVES WERE THE LARGEST IN 10 YEARS.

Choice of Fuel Big Factor in Heating

Does it really matter which fuel you use for house heating?

Yes, says the American Gas Association, because houses are like people — you enjoy them more when they aren't stuffy.

While most fuels can provide warmth, not all can provide the important ingredients that make the atmosphere in the home both comfortable and healthy. True comfort, A. G. A. points out, is the result of proper temperature, proper humidity, imperceptible air movement and clean, fresh air.

When properly controlled, the air is neither too hot nor too cold, too humid nor too dry, draft or stagnant, dusty or odorous. It's just plain comfortable and you are practically unaware of the atmosphere.

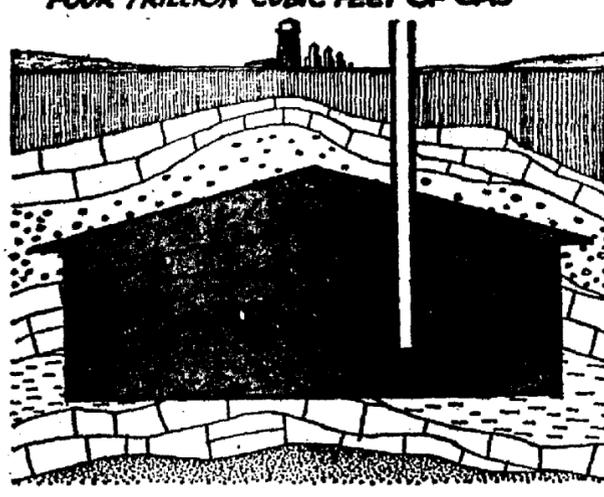

Gas forced air heating systems meet all of the major comfort requirements. By circulating clean, fresh air through special filters, gas aids in the prevention of physical discomfort caused by airborne nose or throat irritants. Some filters are capable of removing germs and bacteria, as well as pollens and airborne particles that often affect hay fever or asthma sufferers, thus contribute to better health.

Gas controls air freshness by adding measured amounts of fresh outside air to that inside the home. This is the comfort characteristic which prevents headaches and the feeling of staleness and stuffiness. And gas allows for "planned ventilation" to rid the home of air impurities, stale odors and excess humidity. Without this, the homeowner lives in a virtual "thermos bottle."

These, then, are just some of the reasons why the choice of a house heating fuel can be vitally important. In choosing your fuel remember to check for even temperature, proper humidity, imperceptible air movement and clean, fresh air. Anything less is sub-standard and fails to meet scientific and physiological standards established through extensive research studies conducted by the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air Conditioning Engineers and the National Warm Air Heating and Air Conditioning Association.

Remember, too, that gas war air systems meet these comfort requirements and then some. The efficiency, economy, dependability and convenience of gas makes it the ideal house heating fuel.

With a forced warm air gas heating system, humidity control is simple and effective. Moisture can be added to the air right at the furnace with properly humidified air distributed throughout the entire home. Proper humidity is an important health, as well as comfort, factor in house heating.

Any reliable heating contractor will gladly make a free gas heating survey of your home. Or call your local gas company. Both can offer expert advice on all phases of house heating.

Selection of house heating equipment, once the prerogative of the man of the house, has become a family affair with husband and wife deciding together.

One reason for this new trend is the development of gas systems which combine house heating and air conditioning on a year-round basis. Women have become increasingly aware of the importance of comfortable temperatures in winter and summer for good family health.

And women enjoy selecting light colors for decorating with less concern for soiling and expense of upkeep. They know that air conditioning in summer means plenty of fresh, cool, dust-free air without having windows open. And all year long, time can be saved from the usual home maintenance chores when a modern gas heating-air conditioning system is installed.

Considering the total family operating expenses, it is economical to use one fuel for a number of household jobs. The American Gas Association points out that when gas is used for heating, the family can gain a special rate advantage for water heating, cooking, refrigeration, clothes drying, garbage disposal and air conditioning. Savings in fuel costs thus realized are further augmented by the cleanliness of gas as a fuel. This means less need for expensive redecorating such as new slip-covers, rug, painting and papering.

Gas systems are designed to meet variations in the style of house, regional climate, and budget requirements. The most popular type of gas heat is forced warm air which sends clean, filtered, warm air circulating through a system of ducts which can also be used for air conditioning.

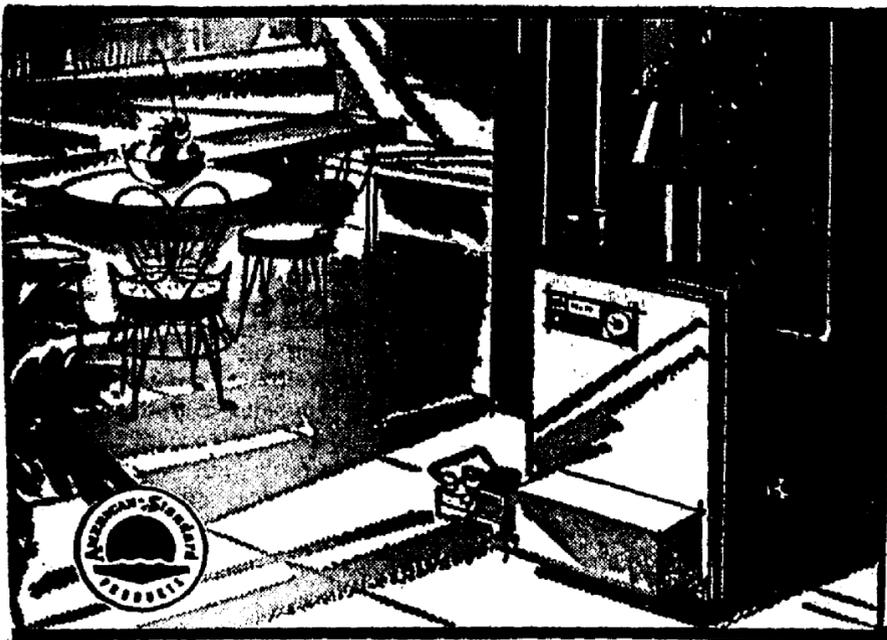

Gas boilers are used with systems that heat the home by circulating hot water or steam by means of radiant heating with piping in the floor, compact radiators and convectors, often recessed, and by baseboard radiation. Add-on gas air conditioners have also been developed for use in conjunction with these popular methods of house heating.

Many families change to gas heat without having to purchase a completely new heating plant. If the old furnace or boiler is in good condition, a conversion burner can be installed at a modest cost.

EXCLUSIVE WITH GAS

Uniform Heat Throughout House

The energy market is more competitive than ever before. The electric industry has challenged gas dominance in cooking and water heating. Now, backed by coal and railroad interests, it has set its sights on the biggest prize in the residential market — space heating. It seems ready to pay any price to get it.

Let's look at the evidence on both the quality and cost and see how the competition measures up to the standards set by gas heat.

A heating system should provide as uniform a temperature as possible from floor to ceiling. Surveys reveal that electricity tends to heat in layers, warm at head level, cold at floor level. The problem is especially acute with radiant heat from the ceiling controlled by a wall thermostat. In this situation, the heat is often adequate only down to the level of the thermostat.

The temperature should be uniform throughout the house. In spite of the extra heavy insulation required or strongly recommended for all homes built for electric heat, homeowners are advised to turn down thermostats in individual rooms when not in use to keep costs within reason. Basements are often left unheated. Moving from one part of the house to another means passing from warm to cool areas and back again, a throwback to the days when each room was heated by its own fireplace. Gas heat is economical enough to allow comfortable, uniform heating throughout the house.

The best heating system provides for air filtration. This is the most important factor in home cleanliness, as far as the heating system is concerned.

Any source of heat — a radiator, hot water or electric baseboard unit, or warm air register — creates a rising current of air above it. It makes no difference whether the heat comes from electricity, gas or any other fuel. Over a long period of time, this continuous flow of air may deposit enough dirt on the wall above the unit to produce the familiar streaks.

It is obvious that these deposits depend on the amount of dirt in the air. Unlike electric heat, most gas heating is by warm air systems in which the air is being constantly filtered. Thus, the amount of dirt in the air is likely to be substantially less. This not only helps avoid streaks over heating units, but helps cut down dust and dirt throughout the house.

The best heating system provides for humidity control. With a gas-fired warm air system, moisture may be added to the air being circulated, assuring maximum comfort. In most cases, this is not possible with electric heat.

An important plus is adaptability to summer cooling. With proper planning, central cooling can be added to a gas warm air system at reasonable cost, because much of the same duct work can be used for both heating and cooling. Electric resistance heating systems offer no such advantage.

The system should be economical to operate. Gas systems can provide all these features at reasonable cost. Electric systems cannot, and still electric heating costs more — much more.

A turn of the thermostat and dependable natural gas responds instantly to warm the whole house — even on the coldest morning.

Gas Heating Economical

Only the very rich can afford poor heating equipment.

This warning is sounded by the American Gas Association in calling attention to the untaken economy of having an inferior heating system installed in the home.

Builders and buyers of new homes frequently find that they can't afford everything they would like to have. Consequently, says A.G.A., they start looking for places to cut costs. Because some heating systems are lower in first cost than others, the temptation is to select the heating system that appears to be cheapest without taking the long range maintenance and operating costs into consideration.

This mistaken emphasis on low purchase price overlooks the fact that an inadequate system generally costs far more to operate, requires frequent servicing and seldom can supply sufficient heat to meet subnormal temperatures.

On the other hand, A.G.A. points out, a properly sized, properly installed gas heating system will usually last the life of the house. Savings in maintenance and operating costs not only quickly make up the difference in first cost but are realized over the life of the equipment. And a properly-sized gas system will keep the entire house comfortably warm regardless of outside weather.

Anything else, the American Gas Association says, is false economy.
