State Takes Over Prosecutor's Office

John M. Gawler

By HALLIE SCHRAEGER
FREEHOLD — The takeover of the Monmouth County prosecutor's office by the state attorney general is no reflection on Prosecutor Vincent P. Keuper, Gov. Richard J. Hughes said last night.

Mr. Keuper probably will continue to conduct the routine business of his office, said Gov. Hughes.

The governor said he had ordered Attorney General Arthur J. Sills to take over the prosecutor's office because of the suicide yesterday of Monmouth County Chief of Detectives John M. Gawler.

Mr. Gawler, 57, was found dead in the garage of his home in Atlantic Highlands yesterday morning.

A veteran cop who was a former state trooper, Mr. Gawler had been subpoenaed Wednesday to testify before the State Investigations Commission as part of a continuing probe of organized crime in Monmouth County.

His death came three days

after the SIC subpoenaed records from his office.

"The circumstances of his death and the causes of the subpoena which might have had to do with his suicide should be investigated promptly," said the governor, interviewed after a Democratic fund-raising dinner in Middletown last night.

Vincent P. Keuper

Gov. Hughes said Mr. Keuper and Superior Court Judge Elvin R. Simmill, the assignment judge, had concurred with his judgment.

Arthur J. Sills

The governor said that when Mr. Sills meets today with Mr. Keuper and Judge Simmill, "there probably will be an arrangement under which Mr. Keuper will continue the investigation of criminal cases, the ordinary cases and the routine business of the prosecutor's office.

"I think it would be quite unjust if this was misconstrued as a reflection on Prosecutor Keuper."

To Attend

Also scheduled to attend this morning's meeting were Col. David B. Kelly, superintendent of the New Jersey State Police, and Edward Stier, deputy attorney general assigned to the statewide Grand Jury.

Gov. Hughes said he had notified SIC Chairman William F. Hyland "who indicated that SIC would cooperate in every way."

Gov. Hughes said state law provides that authority for the state to take over temporary management of the prosecutor's office to carry on a particular investigation could come from any one of four sources: the county assignment judge, the prosecutor, the Board of Freeholders or the governor.

He said he had ordered the same thing in Mercer County when it was necessary for the statewide Grand Jury to be handled through that office.

Other Matters

Gov. Hughes said the attorney general's office will handle "anything to do with Mr. Gawler's suicidal death or any matters involved in the subpoena which might have been a precipitating cause of his death."

Asked if this means the attorney general will take over whatever SIC is investigating, the governor said that "will be up to the attorney general. I have no doubt that the attorney general and the SIC will work together as they have in the past."

"The attorney general is serving on an emergency basis to investigate the strange combination of events... as far as I know, this has never happened in New Jersey before, that a chief law enforcement officer, being subpoenaed (See State, Pg. 2, Col. 3)

State Physician Rules Gawler Death Suicide

FREEHOLD — The asphyxiation death of Monmouth County Chief of Detectives John M. Gawler yesterday was ruled suicide by the state medical examiner, several hours after the county medical examiner had termed it "accidental."

The state medical examiner, Dr. Edward Albano, concluded after an autopsy that death came from "asphyxiation by auto exhaust, in family garage, carbon monoxide poison, suicidal." Mr. Gawler, 57, had been subpoenaed Wednesday to appear before the State Investigations Commission next Friday. The SIC had subpoenaed records from his office Monday in its continuing probe of organized crime in Monmouth County.

Monmouth County Medical Examiner C. Malcolm B. Gilman said Chief Gawler died about 4 a.m. in the two-car garage at his home, 30 Ocean Blvd., Atlantic Highlands. He leaves his widow, five children and one grandchild.

State Police said the death is still under investigation and foul play possibility has not been completely ruled out.

Lists Events

Capt. Mario Paterra, assistant investigations officer for the State Police, who is heading the investigation into Chief Gawler's death, listed this sequence of events:

"Chief Gawler went to bed at 10 p.m. He couldn't sleep, and at 2 a.m. he got up to watch television. He put on slippers and pants, according to his wife.

"At 7:30, when she got up, she noticed the TV was still on. She was getting their eight-year-old ready for school when she noticed the county car was still there.

"She looked inside the garage and she noticed her car there... she noticed his jacket was missing, went into the garage and found the body, at approximately 8 a.m. The police were called at 8:10.

Engine Warm

"The two engines were warm when the police arrived. The keys were in the ignition, and one vehicle apparently had run out of gas. The garage doors were closed.

"We can't say if the keys were turned on. The wife did remove the keys to her own car... she was in shock." Capt. Paterra said the chief's body — dressed in slippers, pants, and a polo shirt and a suede outer jacket — was in a sitting position with his back against one car and his knees against the other. He said Mr. Gawler "could have fallen into that position."

He said the right-hand door of Mrs. Gawler's car was "slightly open." (See Gawler, Pg. 2, Col. 4)

Brooke Seeks Cahill Win

By JANE FODERARO

ASBURY PARK — Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., yesterday called for the election of gubernatorial candidate William T. Cahill as well as "renewed confidence" in President Nixon.

Accord on Troop Withdrawal Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Asian diplomatic sources say there are strong indications a private understanding has been reached between President Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu on a timetable for withdrawing American troops from Vietnam.

These sources say Thieu has given assurances his troops will do their best to replace the bulk of the 500,000-man American force by the end of 1970 — with two major sets of circumstances influencing the pace of the program to switching the battle burden to the South Vietnamese.

According to this schedule: —If the enemy maintains the present combat lull and if the Vietnamese forces get quicker training, it may be possible for the United States to withdraw men at the rate of 20,000 a month.

—If the enemy steps up attacks or if there is a slowdown in the training of Vietnamese forces, the withdrawal pace would be slowed.

Clocks Go Back 1 Hour Sunday

The cold weather season will "officially" be ushered in Sunday morning when Daylight Savings Time officially ends at 2 a.m.

Clocks should be turned back one hour at 2 a.m., making it 1 a.m. Eastern Standard Time.

"I wouldn't have come," he said, "if I didn't believe that Bill Cahill had integrity and intestinal fortitude, compassion and heart."

The senator spoke before an audience of more than 500 at a rally of the New Jersey Federation of Republican Women in Convention Hall here. He was accompanied by Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., whom he called "one of my closest friends in the Senate."

"A Republican politician is expected to endorse a Republican candidate," he said, "but if you knew anything about me, you'd know I'm a man who believes what he says. If I don't believe in a Republican, I stay in Washington and do my job."

Sen. Brooke praised President Nixon's war policy and domestic decisions, at the same time stressing his agreement with the recent Vietnam moratorium.

"The moratorium did express the desire of the people," he said, adding, "... think of it as you will."

"We may differ on policies," said Sen. Brooke, "but no one can dispute that, when Mr. Nixon took office, the war was being escalated, troops were being increased, violence was rising.

"Today," he continued the troops and violence are decreasing and the President has said he will 'de-Americanize' the war."

Senator Brooke won the most applause yesterday with his remarks about the administration's proposed welfare program.

"I believe," he said, "that some people cannot take care of themselves — like the aged and infirm. But I also believe in a welfare program where it is more profitable to work than not to work."

"You don't help a man with a hand-out," he said, "for he loses his self respect. But, if you give a man skills, train his hands and mind, then he will be self-supporting. And when he has respect for himself, he will have respect for his fellow man."

"No man I know, black or white, wants to grow up in poverty," he continued, "and I applaud President Nixon's incentive program."

The New England lawmaker noted that people across the country look to New Jersey as a "political weathervane."

"The Democrats made the idle promises," he said, "Republicans did not create the decay and rot of our urban centers or cause inflation or enter a war ...

CASTS HIS LOT

"I have not agreed with everything President Nixon has done, but I still want to cast my lot with a party that will bring peace on earth, and a sound economy, that will help the cities and bring people together, both black and white." (See Brooke, Pg. 2, Col. 3)

Hughes Assails Nixon And GOP Legislature

By DORIS KULMAN

MIDDLETOWN — Gov. Richard J. Hughes socked it to the GOP last night, slamming the Nixon administration and comparing the state's Republican-controlled legislature with the old Huey Long machine in Louisiana.

In a speech that hit hard all the way, the governor urged election of Democratic state Assembly candidates Gordon N. Litwin and Richard L. Bonello noting that, among other things, they have pledged to work for reform of the legislature "and this legislature needs reforming more than any legislature I can recall since the days of Huey Long in Louisiana."

Addressing approximately 100 persons attending a Bonello-Litwin fund-raising dinner in the Navesink Country Club, the governor also called for election of Democratic gubernatorial nominee Robert B. Meyner, declaring that the Republican candidate, William T. Cahill "will be a 'yes man' for the Nixon administration."

Early in his speech, Gov. Hughes pointed out that there were Republicans among those who paid $100-a-plate to aid the Bonello-Litwin campaign.

"I know I'm not talking just to Democrats here," the governor said, "and I'm not opposed to Republicans as Republicans. I wouldn't be governor if it weren't for Republican votes. The problem is with the current Republican leadership."

Modern electronics brought Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J. to last night's dinner. Congressman Howard, forced by a foot injury to remain in Washington, videotaped a speech in which he declared that GOP Assemblyman Joseph Azzolina, a Bonello-Litwin opponent, mas-

Pledge on Permit Hit In Matawan Township

MATAWAN TOWNSHIP — Mayor Hans H. Froehlich was asked today by the four Democratic candidates for council to explain how he could assure an applicant at this month's Planning Board session that he need not worry about getting a variance for a senior citizen high-rise apartment.

Jerome R. Kaye, Marilyn Brenner, Joseph Zambor and Lewis Petrillo referred to the Oct. 1 board meeting, when Lou Manfra Enterprises Inc., of Newark forwarded a plan for a garden apartment complex on Central Ave., overlooking the Garden State Parkway.

Mayor Froehlich at that time asked if any consideration could be given to changing the proposal into a senior citizens complex. Mr. Manfra explained twin towers of 12 to 15 stories might be feasible.

"When the applicant's attorney (Lawrence Hecker) noted that a variance would be required, Mayor Froehlich assured him publicly that there would be no problem," former councilman Zambor stated.

What Discussions?
"The people of Matawan Township are entitled to have the mayor disclose whatever backroom discussions he may have had with the Township Council and Zoning Board of Adjustment about the matter unless the mayor is simply relying on the Republican majorities on the board of adjustment and the council to do his bidding," Mr. Zambor continued.

The four Democrats explained that a variance may be granted only by duly constituted majorities of the Zoning Board and Township Council after full and open public hearing at which interested citizens may present their views.

"But here we have the spectacle of the mayor casually doing away with these requirements of the law and substituting his personal fiat," the four council candidates stated.

"This high-handed, one-man Republican rule can only be brought to an end by the voters of Matawan Township returning a Democrat administration to office," the Democrats said.

Gawler Death Ruled A Suicide

No notes had been found after a thorough check, he said, and there was no evidence Mr. Gawler had been depressed.

Foul Play Not Out

In response to a reporter's question, Capt. Paterra said foul play had not been completely ruled out, but he indicated that it never is ruled out while an investigation is going on.

Dr. Gilman expressed his opinion at a late morning press conference, saying he had found the death to be accidental "by history and by examination." By history he meant events surrounding the case, he said.

Dr. Gilman said he had seen the body lying between the two cars on the floor near the door, with bruises on the knees, the left hand, the left leg and the nose "where he fell there. I think he died soon after he fell, trying to get out of the garage when he became aware of the situation."

Dr. Gilman said there was "no indication how long he stayed in the garage or where he was going."

Die Quickly

He said a person could be overcome by carbon monoxide fumes in one to three minutes and could die from them in three to five minutes.

Sadness and disbelief pervaded the Monmouth County Court House, yesterday.

Monmouth County Prosecutor Vincent P. Keuper, who appointed Mr. Gawler chief in 1957, said he learned of his death at 8:55 a.m. yesterday from Assistant Prosecutor John W. Applegate.

"I was shocked," said Mr. Keuper.

"I found Mr. Gawler to be a dedicated law enforcement officer. I've always considered him 100 per cent cop."

Mr. Keuper said Mr. Gawler had been "a close personal friend for a number of years, and a very good administrator."

John Gawler was also a student of the law. He read recent court decisions and discussed them with the prosecutors so he would understand the legal aspects. He was unusual in that respect."

Mr. Keuper said Chief Gawler had called him at 3 p.m. Wednesday at his office to tell him about the subpoena.

"I said I would discuss it with him this morning."

"He did not appear to be upset. We discussed other office matters," Mr. Keuper said.

County Detective Capt. Albert V. McCormick, who will be acting chief, unofficially, until Mr. Keuper makes a decision and a Civil Service examination is held, said: "The entire staff of the prosecutor's office is in shock, and we all extend heartfelt sympathies to his family."

"He was a great public servant, a man in the prime of life. Monmouth County has suffered a great loss."

Mr. McCormick, the ranking officer, was sworn in as a captain the same day Mr. Gawler was sworn in as chief.

Helen P. Hermance, chief clerk in the prosecutor's office, for 10 years, said: "Everyone loved him. He was the greatest guy going, always pleasant, always smiling."

John Miraglia, chief court clerk, who had known Mr. Gawler since he became a county detective in 1945, characterized him as "most cooperative and pleasant to work with."

"I can't see John Gawler, with his attitude toward life, and with his strength, doing something like this intentionally. He loved life too much."

Mr. Miraglia said he had seen Mr. Gawler last Friday and he had seemed in good spirits.

"I'd be very much surprised if the investigation turns up anything wrong with his records. He was no weak-kneed guy, who couldn't stand up to something like this."

Political Effect

Speculation was raised about whether the incident would have any effect on the state and county elections, but political leaders refused comment.

Some observers speculated that because Republicans run the county and Democrats run the prosecutor's office, the political impact would be negated.

Monmouth County Freeholder Director Joseph C. Irwin said he was "shocked and very sorry for what happened. I'm very sorry for his family."

Benjamin H. Danskin, Monmouth County Republican chairman, had no comment.

Undersheriff P. Paul Campi, county Democratic chairman, said his dealings with Mr. Gawler had been "very good."

Mr. Gawler was born in Newark and attended schools in Atlantic Highlands and Middletown. He studied at Elon and Wake Forest colleges in North Carolina, where he played football.

Was Trooper

He was a state trooper in New Jersey from 1938 until he enlisted in the Army in 1942. He advanced to the rank of captain and won the Silver and Bronze Stars.

Mr. Gawler was a resident of Atlantic Highlands for 50 years and had lived at 30 Ocean Ave. for seven years.

He was the son of Elmer I. Gawler and Mrs. Herbert W. Posten, both of Atlantic Highlands.

Mr. Gawler served with the Fifth Ranger Battalion of the Army in World War II.

He was an exempt fireman with Hose Co. Number 1 of Atlantic Highlands, and was a member of American Legion Post 141, Atlantic Highlands; the International Association of Chiefs of Police; the Monmouth County Police Chiefs Association; the National Academy Associates of the Federal Bureau of Investigation; and the Northeast Coast Chapter of the Fifth Ranger Battalion Association.

Survivors
Besides his parents, he is survived by his widow, Ruth Mortenson Gawler; two sons, Gary Gawler of Belford and Jay Gawler, at home; three daughters, Suellen, Deborah and Gretchen, all at home, and one brother, Elmer M. Gawler of Atlantic Highlands.

Services will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow in the Posten Funeral Home, Atlantic Highlands, with the Rev. Harvey Van Siver of the United Methodist Church officiating. Burial will be in Fair View Cemetery, Middletown.

There will be viewings today from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m.

Hughes Flails GOP

quered as a friend of the consumer "but at a time when a check proved housewives were losing $5 billion a year to deceptive advertising, I was ridiculed many times by Mr. Azzolina for my work on the truth-in-packaging bill."

Charging that "the whole legislature has been wholly irresponsible," Gov. Hughes said that the GOP state lawmakers "with the enthusiastic cooperation of your Republican representatives from Monmouth County" have wasted and "in some respects degraded" the power of their 3-1 majority.

Caucus Is Rapped

Gov. Hughes drew a bead on a favorite Litwin-Bonello target, the legislature's Republican caucus.

He declared that "the evil caucus... which decides legislation in the back room, with the full cooperation of the Republican legislators from Monmouth County, killed by slow death every one of the 25 consumer protection bills I proposed to protect the people from the thieves in the marketplace... there's not one word about consumer legislation in the Republican platform this year."

Also "buried in the Republican caucus, with the enthusiastic cooperation of Assemblymen Azzolina and Coleman (James M. Coleman R-Monmouth)," Gov. Hughes said, was a five-point program he proposed to control drug addiction and which provided for civil commitment to hospitals, instead of jail, for young addicts; special probation, a special urban parole corps, after-care clinics and a special program for 1,000 hard-core addicts.

The governor said the legislature is holding up appointment of five judges "because the Republicans want a political crony," has refused to pass anti-trust legislation or legislation regulating the garbage industry "and tried to steal $2 billion in state assets by giving to private corporations the state's interests in the tidelands, and I had to institute suit against the legislature to stop that swindle."

'Yes Man' Is Eyed

Noting that "New Jersey is the last major industrial state with a Democratic governor," Gov. Hughes said that Rep. Cahill, if elected governor, "won't be able to be for New Jersey. He will have to be a 'yes man' for the Nixon administration... he will have to support the Nixon Administration even if it wants to cut $1 billion from the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, as it did, even if it wants to run Medicare under private auspices."

"Bob Meyner won't be a 'yes man,'" Gov. Hughes said.

said, "He is fiercely independent."

Gov. Hughes tacitly acknowledged the national implications of the New Jersey election.

"The Nixon administration has to change course, and nothing will force it to do that except the strong voice of the people from the state houses of this country," he said.

The governor blasted President Nixon for not getting his priorities straight.

"The Nixon administration this month is closing 20 medical research centers to save $4 million," Gov. Hughes pointed out, while spending many times that amount to build a supersonic plane that will cut an hour from the New York-London flight time.

"He's building up our nuclear arms... when we have enough nuclear weapons to kill every man, woman and child in the world five times over... we need to move more quickly to peace instead of the nonsense of ABM's which aren't going to save us..."

Mr. Bonello, a Long Branch attorney, and Mr. Litwin, mayor of Little Silver, running in coastal district 5B, reaffirmed their pledge to seek reform of the legislature.

Their GOP opponents, Assemblymen Azzolina and Coleman "haven't done the job for Monmouth County," Mr. Bonello said.

Mayor Litwin scored their GOP opponents for blaming inaction on the county's transportation problems on Transportation Commissioner David Goldberg "when they have a 3-1 majority, they approve the state budget, a Republican from this county is chairman of the Senate transportation committee and Mr. Azzolina is on the Assembly's transportation committee."

Mayor Litwin said that he and Mr. Bonello have sought to debate the election issues publicly "because we believe in putting ourselves before the people, and we debated twice, but two minutes after the second debate the other side said 'no more debates.' They don't want to put themselves before the public..."

Marsh Blaze Extinguished

RUMSON — The local fire company was called out at 6:05 last night to fight a blaze in the marshes off Barley Point.

According to police, the fire company was on the scene for a little more than two hours before the blaze was extinguished at approximately 8:15 p.m.

The cause of the fire was unknown though an unidentified fireman speculated that the fire was probably an early Halloween prank.

State Takes Over Office

ad, commits suicide immediately thereafter."

How Long?

He said he didn't know how long the probe will take.

Mr. Keuper said he "welcomes" the outside investigation.

"It's the best thing to do—have someone other than our own men investigate," he said.

Chief Gawler's job is most likely to go to either Detective Capt. Albert V. McCormick — who will be acting chief, unofficially, said Mr.

Keuper, until he "decides what to do" — or Detective Lt. Andrew B. Manning, the next in line in terms of seniority.

Mr. Keuper said the procedure will be for him to make a temporary appointment and notify Civil Service, which can limit the examination to the two top eligibles or open it to all detectives who have served for a certain number of years.

"I think Civil Service will go along with me," Mr. Keuper said.

Mr. Keuper promoted Mc-

Cormick last April 22 to his captaincy, which he had sought for four years. In 1968, Mr. McCormick had filed suit against the prosecutor to get the job.

Ex-Mayor

The detective captain is a former mayor of Freehold Township who became a county detective in 1957 after serving as a Motor Vehicle Division inspector for 20 years.

Detective Manning, a polygraph expert, was appointed a county detective by Mr. Keuper in April, 1964, after serving as an acting county detective for two years. He was a state trooper for 10 years before that.

Meanwhile, the investigation into Mr. Gawler's death, led by Capt. Mario Paterra, assistant investigations officer of the State Police, and the SIC probe continue.

Mr. Keuper said yesterday he had no knowledge of personal subpoenas being served on anyone else.

The SIC probe here began Monday, when SIC investigators questioned personnel of the prosecutor's office, reviewed office records and vouchers from the prosecutor's office in the county treasurer's office.

Last week the SIC issued an arrest warrant for singer Frank Sinatra after he failed to appear at an SIC hearing on organized crime in the county. Sinatra called the action a "headline hunt."

The attorney general's office has superseded New Jersey prosecutors from time to time, but the last time it was done on a general investigation was in the early 1950s, when the state took over a probe of gambling from the Bergen County prosecutor's office.

Fair Haven Man Held

RED BANK — John Gosch, 24, of 144 Kemp Ave., Fair Haven, wanted by two police departments for forgery, was arrested at 121 W. Bergen Place at 11:40 p.m. Wednesday.

According to Police Chief Leroy McKnight, he was charged by police here with forgery and with possession of stolen goods.

After arraignment before acting Judge Arthur P. Siegfried, he was turned over to New Shrewsbury police and then sent to the county jail in Freehold where he awaits a hearing here Nov. 5. He has not yet been arraigned in New Shrewsbury yet.

Arrested with him was Stephen Tyson, 21, of 103 Montgomery Terrace, and charged by police here with obstructing the arrest of Gosch. He was also arraigned and awaits a hearing on Nov. 5.

Meyner Sees Cahill 'Deal' With Hudson

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Robert B. Meyner has accused his Republican opponent of making a "deal" with Hudson County political "bosses" in a bid for the crucial support that could swing the election.

Meyner, portraying himself as an "independent" candidate owing no political debts to party leaders, contended that his rival may have promised favorable consideration on judges and a county prosecutor to convince the Hudson Democratic organization to swing over to the GOP side.

Meyner and Cahill were scheduled to meet here today for the last formal debate of the campaign before the New Jersey Federation of District Boards of Education.

At a news conference in Morristown yesterday, Meyner gave this assessment of the demonstration of Hudson County support for Cahill.

"I think you can justifiably ask what price is being paid for this support," Meyner said. "It would be a miracle if there was not a deal."

Meyner has been feuding for years with John V. Kenny, the powerful Democratic boss of Hudson County, in a dispute that began over matters of patronage while Meyner was governor.

Gov. Richard J. Hughes, a Democrat, has sought with no apparent success to mediate the feud this year. He even made an emergency swing through the county Wednesday night in hopes of offsetting the warm reception for Cahill, who toured the county earlier in the day.

However, Meyner's bitter allegations of a deal suggested to some political observers that Democratic strategists have abandoned hopes for a huge plurality in Hudson. The county has traditionally been a vital factor in any Democratic statewide victory.

Brooke Backs Cahill

Sen. Brooke is the chief sponsor of a resolution backed by 43 senators urging a U.S.-Soviet moratorium on the testing of multiple, warhead missiles. Earlier this week, he publicly countered Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who has been attacking administration critics, including Democratic Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, for their views on MIRV testing.

"Does he clear these things with the White House?" Sen. Brooke asked on Wednesday.

The main speaker, who is the first black U.S. senator since Reconstruction, addressed a predominately white audience. About 30 Negroes attended.

The setting for yesterday's rally was a chilly Convention Hall where women, bundled in coats, sat with cold box lunches in their laps. Many of them listened intently to the speakers or tapped their feet to fill-in rock music while munching on apples.

Cahill's Appeal
One of the highlights planned for the ladies was the appearance of the entire Cahill family, including a four-year-old grandson. It apparently was the first time the Cahills have made a public appearance together since a daughter, Patricia, suffered a fractured skull in an auto crash in July.

Mr. Cahill flew by helicopter to meet his family and the Republican women in Asbury Park from Hudson County, where he said he was "spreading the gospel." After he briefly hailed the women gathered here, he flew back to Hudson.

Mrs. Ann D. Flynn, federation president, led yesterday's proceedings, introducing a number of party officials including state Sen. Richard Stout; Benjamin Danskin, county Republican chairman; Mrs. Harry H. Neuberger, past president of the federation; Mrs. Betty Thompson, rally chairman; and Mr. and Mrs. Webster Todd. Mrs. Flynn presented a scroll to Mr. Todd for his contributions to the party while serving as state chairman. (See Brooke)

Top of the News

NEW YORK — Life magazine charges that a Washington lobbyist received $5,000 in cash to wield influence in a tax evasion case while sitting in House Speaker John W. McCormack's chair in the speaker's private office. McCormack was not present at the time, Life says.

The Life article also describes several other alleged fixes and fix attempts involving both the lobbyist and McCormack's suspended chief aide and claims "the evidence is that McCormack was more than naively involved in whatever took place in his office."

Life, in the article written by William Lambert to appear in the Oct. 31 edition, identifies the lobbyist and alleged fixer as Nathan Voloshen, a 71-year-old "purported lawyer in Maryland who is a close friend of the speaker." Both Voloshen and Dr. Martin Sweig, whom McCormack suspended last week as his administrative assistant, are currently targets of a Securities and Exchange Commission complaint.

The article said that Dr. Irving Helfert, a Dayton, Ohio, urologist accused of evading more than $300,000 in federal taxes, counted out the $5,000 in cash in McCormack's office and handed it to Voloshen. "Voloshen said he would mail Helfert a receipt, and the doctor would be hearing from him," Lambert wrote. "But he never did. The doctor was convicted, fined $15,000 and given a suspended jail sentence."

Lebanon Sets Cities Curfew

The Lebanese government put an indefinite curfew on its major cities today and sought negotiations to restore peace between it and Arab guerrillas trying to use southeast Lebanon as the launching pad for raids on Israel. The government ordered the curfew in Beirut, Tripoli, Sidon, Tyre and Baalbek after leftist leaders called a general strike to protest Lebanese army operations this week to curb the guerrillas. The government feared the strike would spawn riots and fighting.

Goldwater Raps Scott Plan

WASHINGTON — Sen. Barry Goldwater has acidly criticized the Vietnam cease-fire proposal of Sen. Hugh Scott, adding the Republican leader does not necessarily speak for his GOP colleagues. It was the first flicker of conservative Republican restiveness since Scott, a self-described progressive, became GOP leader last month. Goldwater noted Scott had said he was not in the habit of clearing his ideas in advance with the White House. "I think it would be helpful if he would also state that he is not in the habit of clearing such statements with all members of his own political party in the Senate," Goldwater said.

Army Probe Phase Hushed

WASHINGTON — Phase One of a Senate conspiracy probe that shook the Army from GI to general has ended in a wave of Fifth Amendment responses from witnesses who refused to answer questions about alleged multimillion-dollar graft operation. Phase Two, a public airing of large-scale black market and currency manipulation rackets in South Vietnam, is next on the agenda. The Fifth Amendment was invoked 114 times yesterday, 38 times by William O. Wooldridge, a sad-faced, 47-year-old sergeant major who used to be the Army's top-ranking enlisted man.

Druggist Gets Life in Slaying

HACKENSACK — Pharmacist Daniel Obstein has been sentenced to life imprisonment for the 1968 murder of his business partner, Robert Yukubie. At the same time the sentence was handed down yesterday, Obstein's attorney filed a motion for a new trial. A hearing will be held on the motion Nov. 18. Obstein, 36, operated a pharmacy at the Millburn Mall in Union.

Peace Lag Cited on UN Day

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The United Nations marked its 24th birthday today with a show of U.S.-Soviet accord and a warning from Secretary-General U Thant that peace is still a remote goal.

In a U.N. Day message, Thant told delegates of the 128 member nations that "we have not done nearly enough to reach the goals solemnly proclaimed" in San Francisco in 1945.

"The scourge of war is still with us," he said. "The armaments race continues under its own mad momentum. Human rights are being flagrantly violated in southern Africa and in many other parts of the world."

Nixon Sets State Cahill Tour

NEWARK — President Nixon will begin his tour of New Jersey on behalf of Republican gubernatorial candidate William T. Cahill with a rally at Morristown Airport at 6:30 p.m. next Wednesday. He will then go by motorcade to the Governor Morris Inn and then to a rally at 7:30 p.m. at Hackensack High School. Orson Bean will entertain in advance.

Nuclear Curb Talks Pushed

WASHINGTON — The United States and the Soviet Union reportedly have resumed active discussion of plans for opening talks on halting the nuclear arms race. Some diplomatic informants said it now seems possible the long delayed U.S.-Soviet conference could get under way in a month or so. Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin met with Secretary of State William P. Rogers at the State Department yesterday.

Meyner Backs Consumer Bill

TRENTON — Legislation to relieve consumers of the obligation to pay for defective merchandise or home repairs that are never completed won backing yesterday from Democratic gubernatorial candidate Robert B. Meyner. Republican gubernatorial candidate William T. Cahill stopped short of endorsing the so-called "holder in due course" bills which have been stalled in the state Senate since last spring, but he said he favored consumer protection legislation.

Sides Rest in Polack Case

NEWARK — The government and the defense have both rested their cases in the trial of Passaic County Judge Stanley J. Polack on charges of failing to file income tax returns. The jury is expected to start deliberation on the charges today in federal court here.

Wealth Tax Action Is Next

WASHINGTON — The Senate Finance Committee, after a surprise vote to cut the oil depletion allowance to 23 per cent, moved on today to proposals for a minimum tax on the wealthy. Committee members agreed on a new depletion allowance figure yesterday after narrowly rejecting efforts to retain the current 27½ per cent exemption but refused to go as far as the House tax reform bill which would slash it to 20 per cent. The committee action would raise taxes on the oil industry by an estimated $155 million. The House figure would bring in more than $500 million.

Error Told on Sweetener List

WASHINGTON — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said Thursday it erred last week by including 11 beverages on a list of food and drink products that contain the now-banned artificial sweetener cyclamate. The beverages either never contain cyclamates or only use the sweetener in specially marked cans and bottles, the department said.

"Those that do use cyclamate indicate on their labeling that they are intended as diet drinks and list cyclamate among their ingredients," the department said.

Football Field Tripled in Size; Judge Finds Attorney Offsides

By BOB BRAMLEY

MIDDLETOWN—How long is a football field?

Eaton attorney Francis X. Moore learned in a hurry in Municipal Court yesterday when testimony placed his client about 1,000 feet from the scene of an alleged accident on Rt. 35.

Trying to minimize the distance his man had traveled after the impact before stopping, Mr. Moore told the court, "A thousand feet—that's only about as long as a football field; a football field's 900 feet."

Judge Jerry J. Massell and Robert H. Otten, municipal prosecutor, hastened to correct the defense attorney.

"A football field's only 300 feet," Mr. Otten protested. "A thousand feet—that's nearly four football fields," the judge remarked, eyebrows raised.

Caught off base—or perhaps better, off sides — Mr. Moore recouped with a broad Irish grin.

"Well, that's not so bad if you're running," he declared.

His client, John J. Flannely of 20 Orchard St., Keyport, accused of drunken driving and leaving the scene of an accident, was fined $50 for leaving the scene, running off or not. The drunken driving charge was amended to driving while impaired, with a $100 fine and a six-month license suspension. Mr. Flannely has already lost his license for an additional six months for refusing to submit to a breathalyzer test.

James Rogers of Church St., Fair Haven, also found guilty of impaired driving and leaving the scene of an accident near Rt. 35 and Twinbrook Ave., was fined a total of $150 and lost his license for six months.

John Malley of Murray Lane, Keansburg, pleaded guilty to driving while impaired, failing to stop at a police officer's signal and resisting arrest. He was fined a total of $105 and lost his license for six months.

William Witz, 20, of Everett Road, Lincroft, pleaded guilty to driving while on the revoked list, reckless driving and possession of alcohol as a minor in a motor vehicle. He was assessed fines totaling $280. His license suspension.

Cyclist Hurt In Accident

HAZLET — A 13-year-old boy was seriously injured yesterday afternoon when the bicycle he was riding on Hazlet Avenue near Rt. 35 was struck by a car.

Brian Dougherty, 13, of 8 Galway Drive, was admitted to Riverview Hospital, Red Bank, with a broken leg and head injuries. He was reported in fair condition this morning.

Police said the driver of the car, Brian Ostering, 18, of 29 Garfield Ave., Keansburg, was delivering the auto for the Buhler and Bitter dealership on Rt. 35.

Patrolman Philip Nobile issued the Ostering youth a summons for careless driving.

Proclamation Issued

FREEHOLD — Mayor John I. Dawes has proclaimed Election Day, Nov. 4 "Clean Water Day" and urged Freehold voters to support the Water Conservation Bond Issue by voting "yes" on Question No. 1 on the ballot.

Middletown Politicians Tell Programs, Tangle

MIDDLETOWN — Nearly 200 residents gathered last night in the high school cafeteria to hear the four Township Committee candidates outline their programs and exchange verbal volleys.

The round table discussion, sponsored by the League of Women Voters, was moderated by Mrs. Richard McCormick, past president of the Piscataway League.

Mrs. Barbara Katell, local League president, introduced the moderator and candidates, reminding listeners that the League espouses no candidates, standing on issues only.

The discussion schedule provided four minutes for an opening statement by each candidate, with timekeepers flashing yellow and red cards to make sure none spoke longer. Candidates were then allowed to discuss issues among themselves without public participation. Finally, the public was invited to direct questions at specific candidates.

Perhaps because the audience was obviously composed principally of those who favor the Democratic candidates and the recommended change to a Faulkner Act Plan F government, there was little controversy and no fireworks.

The two Republicans, Mayor Harold H. Foulks and Committeeman William C. Johnson Jr., came out for the status quo, both opposing the government change and praising the accomplishments of the Township Committee form of government.

Mayor Foulks deplored the recommended marking off of the township into four wards, which he said would only disrupt Middletown, and pleaded for unity as the main issue. He pleaded for continued progress for the whole town, not for "special factions."

Mr. Johnson asked voters to give the change "a second thought, though I know most of you here have your minds made up."

Praising Middletown as "a fine place to live," Mr. Johnson added, "Why disrupt it through a change in government?"

Democrats Francis X. Campbell and Bruce Robinson disagreed. Mr. Campbell scored the present government's alleged lack of planning and government by "reaction instead of action." Mr. Robinson criticized the Township Committee for lack of planning, for allowing building that has overcrowded township schools, for not providing for senior citizens housing, and for procrastination in all its affairs.

Both Democrats favor the recommended government change, and accuse Republicans of opposing it to appease special interests.

"Where is the money coming from for the Vote No Committee? From special interest groups!" Mr. Robinson declared, drawing applause.

A short question and answer period open to the public was followed by summaries of their stands by the four candidates.

"We've had good government, let's keep it," Mr. Johnson urged.

"You've heard the government change is the most important issue in this election, and you better believe it. Vote yes; we deserve the best. Or you'll face a holocaust of bankruptcy," Mr. Robinson warned.

Mayor Foulks spoke of Township cooperation with other boards and bodies within and without the township "to keep Middletown a fine place in which to live."

"A revised government plan sets goals for the future; we must quit working only on a day to day basis," Mr. Campbell declared.

Candidates and residents adjourned to enjoy coffee and cake served by League members.

Hughes Eyes Rumson Move

MIDDLETOWN — When he leaves the governor's mansion, Richard J. Hughes may become a Monmouth County voter.

The governor said last night that he and Mrs. Hughes are considering a move that may swell Rumson's small Democratic vote.

The Hugheses are house-hunting, and Gov. Hughes left a fund-raising dinner for Democratic Assembly candidates Richard L. Bonello and Gordon N. Litwin in the Navesink Country Club here last night to join Mrs. Hughes in South Jersey where she has been looking at a possible new home for the Hugheses.

But, the governor revealed, Mrs. Hughes also has done househunting in Rumson.

Would the governor like to call Monmouth County home?

"Oh, very much," he said last night, "It's very lovely here."

Brochure Firm Threatens Slander Suit County Candidates

MATAWAN TOWNSHIP — A $1 million libel and slander suit has been threatened against two Democratic Councilmen by Allen B. Goldenthal of the Plusfactor Group, Ltd. of Manhattan, which is preparing the controversial township industrial brochure.

The action follows accusations made at Monday night's Council meeting by Democrats Walter Gehricke and Jerome R. Kaye that the Plusfactor Group has breached its contract because the brochure was not printed by July 31 and the material within it was not approved by the Township Council as stipulated.

Blaming the comments on the heat of last-minute election campaigning, Mr. Goldenthal nonetheless claimed the statements were defamatory to himself and his company.

Want Apology

"Should Messrs. Gehricke and Kaye not publicly apologize to both myself and the Plusfactor Group Ltd., within the next three days, both of them will be served with separate libel and slander suits in the amount of $250,000 apiece from both myself and my company," Mr. Goldenthal stated.

Both councilmen last night declared they would not apologize for their statements and continued their questioning on the alleged breach of contract.

"Mr. Goldenthal should read the contract he signed which clearly states, in paragraph 12 — it is understood and agreed that all work be done to satisfaction of the township industrial commission and the township council, which satisfaction should not be unreasonably withheld," Mr. Gehricke pointed out.

"My criticism is of the Republican majority on the council and not of Mr. Goldenthal," Mr. Kaye, who is seeking reelection, explained. "They are the ones who chose to push this through in one night."

May Meeting

The councilman's statement refers to the May Township Council meeting at which the Republican councilmen, headed by Mayor Hans H. Froehlich, approved a contract with Plusfactor for $3,000 to produce 10,000 brochures as inserts into the Markets and Plants Location magazine.

The contract was hurriedly signed, according to the mayor, because of a June deadline. According to Mr. Goldenthal, the brochure, to include numerous photos of choice industrial development sites in the township, is at able, and that TETEE EOO the printers and will be mailed within the magazine, now called Marsites, next week.

Mr. Goldenthal explained that the delay was unavoidable, and that the contract was "verbally extended into November by consent of the industrial commission."

"There is no question that the brochure and the magazine insert, as well as the public relations campaign were delayed well beyond the contractual period because of a number of both understandable and unavoidable circumstances," Mr. Goldenthal explained.

The publicist claimed that the prime problem was the maintenance of an even flow of communication with the township.

Explaining that each of the Industrial Commission members was given specific information to gather for the brochure, Mr. Goldenthal said, "two members of the commission resigned and were never replaced... the members were part-time and often out of town because of their jobs and could not get information to me."

As a result, Mr. Goldenthal stated, he had to come into the township and take several pictures and contacted the Monmouth County Planning Board for information regarding tax figures, population and other details needed for inclusion in the brochure.

"I and Plusfactor Group bear no malice whatsoever," he said. "We think now and we always will think that the members of the commission have done a heroic task and given freely of their personal time for their own community with little or no compensation."

Regarding approval of the brochure by the council, Mr. Goldenthal stated, "Mr. Taylor (Robert Taylor, chairman of the commission) and the entire group approved the manuscript in writing at its meeting in September and as far as the blueprints of the brochure are concerned, Louis Fox, a member, approved them at 3 p.m. Tuesday."

He added that the commission had led him to believe everything they had was approved by the council. "We thought they were dealing with the council," he explained.

No Excuse

Mr. Gehricke, in support of his charge of breach of contract maintained "When Mr. Goldenthal talks about all of the things people failed to do he cannot hide the fact that he knowingly and willingly entered into a contract on June 9 to deliver a product on July 31 and there is nothing in the contract I read that would excuse him from strict compliance with that date."

"It is one of the basic tenets of contract law that amendments and modifications or a written agreement are also required to be in writing," he added concerning the claimed verbal agreement.

Concurs

Mr. Kaye, whose motion Monday that the township attorney determine whether any breach of contract has occurred and what, if any, action should be taken, was adopted unanimously by the council, concurred that Mr. Goldenthal has not read the contract.

"It would be difficult for Mr. Goldenthal to prove his defamation charges, but he can file any kind of suit he wishes — he has no basis for it," Mr. Kaye added.

Mr. Goldenthal chastised his attackers for not having the township at heart, as he said, "By the end of next week, a half million people will have read about Matawan Township. This is certainly the wrong time for factions to be squabbling. I don't care about what the council thinks — I'll never deal with a township like Matawan again."

"Don't misunderstand," he added, "We think Matawan Township is a great town, with great people and great potential. We only hope that this minority of amateur, disgruntled, unsuccessful politicians does not attempt to further hinder the progress finally being made by their township."

Fete Is Tomorrow

WEST LONG BRANCH — The League of Women Voters will hold a luncheon for candidates seeking election to Monmouth County offices in the Squire's Pub, Monmouth Road, at noon tomorrow.

sidered important in the election. Answers indicating the position each office seeker takes on these subjects will be made public. Mrs. Smith called it important for individual voters to know the results of the poll before the election.

'Jimmy' Has Costly Debut

By WILLIAM GLOVER
NEW YORK (AP) — Now is the time for all tired businessmen to rush to the aid of "Jimmy," a musical cliche that premiered last night at Broadway's Winter Garden.

There are all sorts of goodies to keep that sort of showbiz audience awake: high-kicking chorines, scanty costumes, giddy music, remember-when? nostalgia, bawdy little yocks and the kind of plot that made Warner Bros. B movies a cinematic legend.

What Is A Heat Pump?

A heat pump is a machine that uses electricity to both heat and cool a house completely automatically, under any and all severe weather conditions.

What's more, the Lennox Heat Pump filters air all year 'round and dehumidifies it in the summer. The result is spring-time freshness every day of the year.

Economical? You bet! This is because on most days all you pay for is the cost of electricity to move heat. You see, even on the coldest days, there is heat in the outside air. When heat is required, the heat pump extracts this heat and pumps it INTO your home. When cooling is desired on hot, muggy days, the system reverses itself and pumps heat OUT OF your home. On "in-between days," the system automatically provides heating or cooling as necessary to maintain the exact temperatures you select on the thermostat.

You can get up to three cents worth of heat for every cent of electricity you buy to operate the heat pump. Sound like a good deal? It is . . . especially if you want to add cooling to your new or existing home. With a Lennox Heat Pump, you'll get both (heating and cooling) in a single system. What other reason could you want for converting to a flameless electric heat pump?

Meyner lobbies for the cigarette companies. Cahill works for the people.

For the past four years, on the recommendation of Lyndon B. Johnson, Robert Meyner has earned a reported $100,000 a year from the tobacco industry to administer the so-called cigarette advertising "code." He OK's almost every cigarette advertisement you see.

Actually, of course, the cigarette companies have purchased Mr. Meyner's influence in order to avoid a government crackdown on the tobacco industry. Meanwhile, the advertising he approves continues to attract new smokers and the cancer rate climbs.

Bill Cahill cares about people. In the Congress in 1965 he voted to restrict cigarette advertising — and in 1969 to get much tougher. He worked for the consumer with strong amendments to the truth-in-lending law. And again with a comprehensive bill against obscene literature in the mails.

Bill Cahill's only special interest is you.

Cahill Is Our Choice for Governor

A week from Tuesday, New Jersey citizens will be faced with a great responsibility. Actually, it is an opportunity because they are being asked, among other things, to elect the next governor of the state, a job that ranks among the most important in the nation.

The major parties have nominated two excellent people. In choosing Robert B. Meyner, the Democrats picked an outstanding man who twice was elected governor. His eight years as the state's chief executive were commendable in many areas, particularly in judicial appointments and in rearranging the Cabinet, specifically the duties of the attorney general.

The Republicans selected a congressman, William T. Cahill, whose popularity was mainly in areas south of Monmouth County. A "down to earth," family-type man with a reputation as an aggressive campaigner, he has been a winner at the polls because his liberal views on government were attractive to independents and, undoubtedly, some Democrats.

The contest between them has, unfortunately, gotten too personal. At the outset, it appeared that the state's vital issues would be thoroughly debated. This has not developed as completely as we would have liked, but the men have, in one manner or another, made their positions clear.

On the matter of taxes, both oppose imposition of an income tax. That is understandable only because professionals in the political world find the word tax to be as popular as illness. The present Democratic governor, Richard J. Hughes, acknowledges the need for an income tax, but, of course, he is now in the role of statesman rather than candidate.

Mr. Meyner sees the answer to the state's financial plight in a tax convention. Mr. Cahill says that, if his back is against the wall and the state needs money, he would recommend an increase in the sales tax because that is already on the books and no new government agency would be needed to collect it.

On that point, Mr. Cahill is more realistic. We believe Mr. Meyner is being an artful dodger, even though the idea of a tax convention is a good one. Having created the impression that the state might not need more money, he has paraphrased Mr. Cahill's stated position and is accusing his opponent of being an advocate of more taxes. As clever as this may be, we do not believe that serious citizens will be swayed by it.

On transportation, Mr. Cahill has opposed construction of a jetport in the state and has said he will insist that the Port of New York Authority direct its energies and capital to meeting the rapid transit needs of New Jersey and New York. Mr. Meyner's "open mind" on the jetport question is not backed up by independent studies which show that the existing airports would be more efficient if better flight schedules were inaugurated.

On education, Mr. Cahill has accused Mr. Meyner of failure to recognize, while he was governor, that New Jersey was not preparing to meet the challenges of a growing population. He has praised Gov. Hughes for making a start on the county college program, and promises that within a short time after his election, a 10-year master plan on education will be a reality.

One of the potent points that Mr. Cahill has advanced is in the area of crime. Promising the appointment of 21 young, crime-busting prosecutors is certainly appealing to people who wonder if criminals are thriving because law enforcers aren't as enthusiastic as they should be. Some of the present prosecutors were appointed by Mr. Meyner when he was governor. While he cannot be accused of being soft on crime, it is still a fact that New Jersey is regarded as a haven for wealthy underworld characters.

Despite some legitimate complaints that Democratic governors have been hampered by Republican-controlled legislatures, dynamic leadership in the state house can get things accomplished. Gov. Hughes has shown that, when the pressure was great, he could take major issues to the public and win support of people of both political parties. He did that with the bond issues last year, and we believe he will be successful again this year on the clean water question.

New Jersey is a great state, but we must all acknowledge that we are failing in many vital areas. Our big cities are in desperate need of help, our commuters have not gotten the relief that has been promised them and our people are concerned about whether we are going.

We need a fresh approach to problems that have gone unsolved for too long. It is our opinion that William T. Cahill can supply that freshness. He has stated some unpopular views, but this is refreshing in contrast to the generalities that Mr. Meyner has advanced. That is why we recommend the election of Mr. Cahill as governor.

Student Deferment Stays

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

A move to abolish student draft deferment was defeated, 22 to 11, in the House Armed Services Committee, and it will be just as decisively rejected in the full House when the issue is raised there.

As in the showdown at a closed-door meeting of the committee, the House test will come on a point of order against the anti-deferment motion.

The challenger is Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., chairman of the Armed Services Subcommittee on the Draft. It was his canny strategy that blocked the anti-deferment maneuver in his subcommittee, and he is set to do the same in the House.

The controversy arose after the subcommittee unanimously approved empowering President Nixon to use a lottery for selection of draftees.

Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., a self-designated "hawk" and chairman of the Internal Security Committee, proposed an amendment "to abolish college deferments except for students in the ROTC programs."

"Changing to a lottery system for draft selection," contended Ichord, "will not defuse the unrest existing on college campuses throughout the country. In my opinion, one of the greatest mistakes we made in fighting the Vietnam war was continuing a policy of student deferments during a shooting war. It had never been done in any country before, and it hasn't worked and it can't work."

Hebert immediately made a point of order on the ground Ichord's proposal "is not germane to the bill before us."

This challenge touched off a tense clash among the committee members. Ichord's vigorous appeal to Acting Chairman Philip Philipbin, D-Mass., to overrule Hebert's objection was warmly supported by Rep. Alton Lennon, D-N.C., Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich., Robert Leggett, D-Calif., Charles Wilson, D-Calif., and Otis Pike, D-N.Y.

Republican committee members took no part in the wrangle, and sided with Hebert on the showdown vote.

Questioned as to why he opposed eliminating student deferment, Hebert replied this was not in the bill sought by President Nixon. Explained the veteran Louisiana legislator, "The basis for my point of order is very clear. The President, who is commander-in-chief, asked for a change in the draft law to permit selection by lottery. That's what my subcommittee approved and that is the legislation pending before the full committee."

"RULE 17 of this committee, which is also the rule of the House, precludes any amendment that is not germane to the legislation before the committee. That's the whole basis for my point of order."

Highlights of the backstage word battle that ensued are as follows: Rep. Nedzi argued that student deferment "is such an integral part of the draft problem" that it had to be considered in any basic revision of the law.

"The committee should go in depth on the question of revising the draft act," he maintained. "Therefore, under these circumstances, it would appear this bill should be sent back to the subcommittee for a more thorough review and report."

THIS VIEW was supported by Reps. Wilson and Otis Pike. The latter charged that opposing Ichord's amendment on the ground it wasn't germane was "using a technicality to block consideration of a proper proposal."

Rep. Leggett warned he was ready to go before the full House if "we resort to extreme narrow technicality."

A Lover of Fellow Men

By JIM BISHOP

Once there was a world full of ignorance, confidence and love. It had a demigod in New York named Bernard Shor. His friends hung on him the ridiculous nickname of Toots. He was too big and too crude for the name, but, by some gastronomic alchemy, the name stuck and every other person who entered this man's restaurant loved him.

Now Bob Considine, the only all-around writer in the business, has written a book called "Toots." I didn't think it could be done because Mister Shor is a loving heart, a weeper at weddings, and a Jew who doesn't know whether to stand or sit at Friday night services. Shor is simple-minded and complex.

When friends like Bill Corum and Mark Hellinger die, tough-guy Shor starts to cry and he reminds you of the paid keepers at an Irish wake. He is a big fat man who is a millionaire one year and a debtor the next. He keeps the cash register at the door between the dining room and the kitchen because, when he wants to tap it for a couple of hundred, he can't stand the smell of the kitchen.

Considine, of course frisked his subject for everything. For example, when Toots is on the wagon, which is frequently, New York fires a brass cannon when he gets off. His wife, he calls her Baby, used to tip a leg in shows like "No Foolin'!" All the kids were brought up as Roman Catholics, which is not kosher.

HE WAS SO FRIENDLY with Cardinal Spellman that, at dinner, very often His Eminence would have Mr. Shor sit on his right so that they could discuss baseball — the only topic they had in common.

I think I know Mr. Shor almost as well as Mr. Considine. And yet Bob has written a masterful job on a complex figure. I broke up laughing so many times that I had to shut the book for fear of awakening my wife. It is more than masterful; it is genius.

Toots was the intimate friend of Presidents of the United States and he would sit with Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson and tell them how to run the country. In addition, he had good manners. If he liked you, he would snarl and called you a "Crumb Bum." If he didn't like you, you were Mr. and Mrs. He loved the nuts at Marymount, where his children had sense pounded in their heads, but he also had a special felling for Frank Costello and Harry Truman. Don't tell me that they do not go together — I know it.

Mr. Shor can drink pretty well, which is an accomplishment after the age of 50, but I have never known him to spend a dime for advertising and I never met a writer who didn't give Toots Shor free plugs — like this one. When he was a kid in South Philadelphia he was afraid of dark hallways and, after school, he sold newspapers and brought the money home to his mother.

At 5 p.m. on a cold winter day, his sister leaned out of a fourth story window and said: "Toots, I just walked through the dark hall and there's nobody there." Then he would climb the stairs. His trouble is that he has never forgiven death or prison for anybody. If Corum the sports writer died, Mr. Shor sat at home and drank sipping whisky from three until six.

HE FIRED BARTENDERS who stole and hired them back. When Jackie Gleason couldn't find work, Mr. Shor permitted him to run up a bill of $800. Gleason signed the checks, and apologized to the waiters for the tip. "You know how cheap Toots is," he used to say.

Personally, Mr. Shor looks like a man who is wearing someone else's face. The teeth look like $4 a set and, as Jimmy Cannon once observed, when Shor trots upstairs in his restaurant his pants look like two boys fighting under a blanket.

Under the tough face is a heart so soft that he must resort to profanity to make himself look tough. My kids grew up calling him Uncle Toots and the name still sticks. Until they reached adulthood, they thought that he was related to us.

He used to permit me to eat on the cuff when nobody wanted to buy anything I might write. One day I said that I had hit a gold mine with a book and I would like to lend him a couple of thousand. He clenched his teeth and fought the tears and said: "I don't need your goddam money."

Now he is between covers, written by Considine and published by Meredith Press and he doesn't deserve it unless you remember an old poem called "About Ben Adhem (may his tribe increase!)" avowed one night from a deep dream of peace and saw within the confines of his room an angel writing in a book of gold. . .

Shor leads all the names I can think of because, although he will deny it, he truly loves his fellow man. . .

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

How to Buy Mutual Funds

By SYLVIA PORTER

Probably the most difficult area for you, the average investor in mutual funds, to analyze and understand is point No. 6: The Investment Record.

On the face of it, it seems simple enough to say that Fund X has performed better than Fund Y and therefore, you should buy X. But as any professional would tell you (and you're trying to become a professional, too) there is far more to this point than the simple comparison of percentage gains or losses (which salesmen love to stress when the comparison is in their favor).

To illustrate, for what periods are the investment records being compared? If it is a short-term period, what was the market environment? Was it a market in which speculative issues dominated on the upside? If so, was Fund X, as opposed to Fund Y, in a position to take advantage of this environment?

In recent years, much has been made of the short-term investment record of a limited number of mutual funds. But ask: what actually produced the results? Was it, for instance, the fact that the fund had a very small portfolio with a limited number of holdings and a couple of these happened to be star performers?

OR WAS it the fact that the fund came on the scene at the start of an active bull market? Was it because the fund emphasized a given "hot" industry which may soon cool? Was the fund using borrowed capital? Was it invested in highly speculative — and to a great extent — unmarketable securities?

If the answer to any of these questions is in part or in whole "yes," proceed with caution. For if you are seeking protection for your capital and superior proven professional management, you should not be deluded by short-term percentage figures. Ask and get clear, unqualified answers to such hard questions as I've posed here, and see if the fund's investment results are achieved in a way which matches your long-term needs.

Again, as an illustration, what about the fund's long-term record? The importance of this cannot be overemphasized, for you want to see how the fund performs through bad markets as well as good. To the extent that your fund produces tangible, favorable results through down markets as well as up markets, you can feel reasonably confident in the management's ability.

OBVIOUSLY, YOU cannot be confident about the flashy performance of a fund management which started operating early in 1968's bull market. This is hardly an acid test of its abilities.

And what about the age of the fund? The benefit of a long age is that the fund has had the obvious advantages of steering its way through both down and up markets. Its management has become seasoned. In contrast, many funds founded in very recent years have prospered in the greatest "up" market in history; the acumen of their managements must remain open to question.

Dr. Ervin L. Harlacher, President
Brookdale Community College
Lincroft, New Jersey
Dear Dr. Harlacher:

On behalf of the board of directors of the Northern Monmouth County branch of the American Association of University Women I congratulate Brookdale Community College as its doors open to its first student body. Brookdale promises to be a unique institution, meeting the challenge of educating a broad spectrum of the population in a very personal way.

Our branch has urged the establishment of a local community college for the past five years, and so it is with utmost sincerity that I extend to the college our best wishes for a successful beginning. May the administration and faculty be endowed with a sense of vision, and strive toward standards of excellence, so that an effective education will be available to our county's eligible citizens.

The Rumson Fair

Rumson, N. J.

To the Editor:

First let me thank you sincerely for the article regarding our Rumson PTA Country and Crafts Fair.

However, I must clarify one very important omission. If the concept and goals of the fair were mine, the implementation and credit for making them a reality go to the following:

The overall fair chairman, Mrs. Herman Komar, boutique chairman, Mrs. Fred Ciambone and Mrs. Leonard Frischa; trim shop chairman, Mrs. Charles Krauter and Mrs. John Jordan; toy shop chairman, Mrs. Harrison Rowe; bake shop chairman, Mrs. Robert N. Collyer; puppet theater, Mrs. Don Martin; cartoon theater, Mrs. Niel Lindeman; concessions, Mrs. James Gordon; publicity, Mrs. John McClun.

Without these hard working and tireless few the countless number of others would have been of little use. It will have been their combined efforts that made our fair successful.

Thank you again.

Sincerely,
Vera Pustrom,
President
Rumson PTA

Ratings for Movies

27 Walnut St.
Port Monmouth, N. J.

To the Editor:

I've lived in the Middletown area for about three years. Recently I was up in Secaucus and was reading the Jersey Journal and noticed that in the advertisement section for the movies there was printed a letter which gave the readers a good evaluation of each movie: M, mature audience, G, general audience and X, which my nine-year-old says is real, real bad.

I would like to know why the readers of this paper are not entitled to this same kind of information.

I have called up Rt. 35 Drive-in in Hazlet and asked what rating different movies have, and the personnel who answer the phone have no idea. I have proceeded at times to these movies with my family, only to leave 15 to 20 minutes later with embarrassment on my wife's and my face.

Since you're a good paper, would you please do something about this? Give us the information we look for and need.

Thank you,
William J. Dorsa

Stomach Trouble

92 Her Drive
Middletown, N. J.

To the Editor:

I couldn't say if politely if I tried: Madlyn Murray O'Hair turns my stomach.

"Silent meditation," no matter how you put it, is still silent meditation. It's not prayer, not study hall or history — so what's her beef?

Sex education in public schools might have started long ago if most educators and the ever-present silent majority of parents weren't afraid that the introduction of sex without the mention of God would be too clinical. You know, He started it all. I'm horrible with names, but wasn't it Adam and Eve?

I wonder if Madlyn Murray O'Hair ever cusses when she's mad?

Our Polluted Air

138 Maple Ave.
Keansburg, N. J.

To the Editor:

What's happening lately on the air pollution situation that so much space was devoted to not too long ago.

Now that the state has begun suits against the various airlines, what about the other equally large offenders, such as the C.R.T. of N.J. with the smoke pouring from its locomotives, or have you been caught in traffic lately behind any one of the big buses, intra or interstate — and the trucks, etc.

As usual, too much talk and too little action, particularly in these areas of air and water pollution.

Sincerely,
Warren D. Young

New Shrewsbury Rivals Debate

By LONIA EFTHYVOULOU

NEW SHREWSBURY — A conflicting variety of reasons why voters should support them, was aired last night by Independent, Democratic and Republican candidates.

Five candidates from two tickets, the "Do Something About It" (DSAI) coalition and the Republican ticket, participated in a debate sponsored by the Red Bank Area League of Women Voters, at Tinton Falls School.

The "need of experience" was stressed by Lawrence J. Kirk, incumbent Republican candidate for council, who said both he and his running mate Edward F. Stashak, had such experience while DSAI lacked it.

"New brooms sweep clean, is the main thing to remember," said the third member of the Republican ticket, Robert V. Hammen, candidate for tax assessor who assured voters he would learn as he went along.

John McCarthy, a Republican running for council on the DSAI ticket as an Independent, said, "The quality and caliber of the people in office is the main thing, and DSAI have proved they have it."

"New Shrewsbury has to plan well ahead if it is to progress," said Gabriel E. Spector, a Democrat running on the DSAI ticket for council. Mr. Spector advocated revision of the zoning ordinance as a first step in this direction.

Mrs. Sheila C. O'Keefe, a Democrat on the DSAI ticket, running for tax assessor, also stressed the need for experience in her job. "It is too much of a job for a part-time assessor," she said.

Mr. Stashak was unable to attend.

Each candidate was given four minutes to make a statement on these questions: "What is the most pressing problem in New Shrewsbury? Which is the best solution for it?" "What measures should be taken for promoting better relations with borough residents?" A question and answer period followed, and each candidate was given two minutes for a summation.

"In talking to people," said Mr. Kirk, "I have come to one conclusion. The main problem facing all today is the question of money and the tax rate. The question is not how I would deal with it, but how we shall all deal with it."

Problems Involved
"We are faced with the cost of reevaluation... the possible cost of the pending outcome of the suit with Shrewsbury Township... and of course, the cost of sewerage. This cost must be spread out evenly among all. Residents of the southern portion of the borough do not feel they should have to pay for sewers in the north, at a time that they will not be getting them."

"On the communications issue, I have no answer," he said, "the council's newsletter has been a failure... and so has the use of radio... how can we communicate with people... I simply do not know."

Stressing that the caliber and ability of the men elected is the most important issue facing the borough, Mr. McCarthy said, "The five men elected at the last election have proved their worth. Their coalition is made up of Democrats and Independents. I am a Republican but was not satisfied, so I joined DSAI."

Mr. McCarthy cited improvement of police morale and efficiency, creation of advisory bodies and committees, and improved communication with the residents as proof of DSAI achievement. He urged that "budgetary surpluses should, however, be built up, even if it means a slight increase in the tax rate."

Mr. Spector cited the zoning ordinance as the main problem and advocated its revision on the basis of the master plan, so that the borough might plan ahead. He cited the southern portion of the borough as an example where residential and industrial expansion could proceed in the same residential zones, and condemned this situation.

Stressing that future road construction would affect New Shrewsbury he said "Now is the time, under the DSAI Council which has started things moving, to do something about it. The situation must be revised now, since the master plan is also under revision."

Ratables Needed

Under question from the public on how the lack of surplus in the budget could be improved with affecting the tax rate, Mr. McCarthy said ratables are the answer.

Following a period of rather confused questioning by members of the public who fired questions at candidates on surpluses, budget, and tax rates, and with the development of individual discussions, Mrs. Vreeland, acting on a suggestion by Stanley Fox, called the meeting to order asking that the ground rules be observed.

Replying to a question addressed to all candidates on how sewers will be paid for, which especially concerns people from the southern portion of the borough, Mr. Kirk explained that payment will be in stages.

"First we have the collection lines," he said, "which will be paid for by assessment of property owners force feed lines and pumping stations, he indicated will be paid for by the bond and by the annual service charges levied on users.

Secession Pondered

One question which rocked the audience, came during discussion of problems of the southern portion. Bernard Ross of Dellwood Lane, asked: "Has anyone ever thought about secession of the southern part from the north?"

"Neither end could survive without the other," was a quick rejoinder.

Mrs. O'Keefe and Mr. Hammen enumerated their experience in the field. Mrs. O'Keefe stressed she has held the office since 1965 and has had accreditation and certification as a professional assessor from the State Division of Taxation.

Mr. Hammen said that, though not accredited, he has had a long experience in building and selling homes and that although not full-time, he would be able to devote most of his time to the office.

Mr. Hammen was asked by Andrew Shepard whether he knew that if elected, he would not be able to succeed himself on the basis of "a new law, under which tax assessors must have four years of study for accreditation before they are reelected." Apparently the law will come into effect after the election, Mr. Shepard said.

Mr. Hammen said irrespective of any such law, he would devote himself to his duties, if elected.

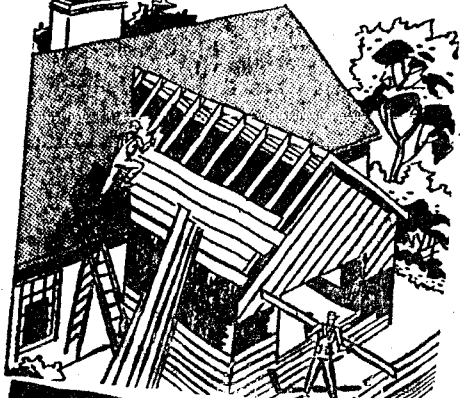

We challenge them all to

Liquor Stolen In Englishtown

ENGLESTOWN — The State Police at Tennent have reported a window was broken at Gershenberg's Liquor Store, 15 Main St., and eight half-pint bottles of liquor were stolen.

State Police believe the incident took place late Wednesday night or early yesterday morning.

Cyclamate Withdrawal Explained

TRENTON — Dr. Roscoe P. Kandle, state commissioner of health, said the gradual withdrawal from the market of products containing cyclamates is no cause for panic.

He said there will be an orderly withdrawal of most products containing cyclamates, but that products prescribed by physicians which have cyclamates in them should continue to be used in accordance with the physician's directions.

Dr. Kandle also said he did not think moderate use of foods containing cyclamates that are now in households would be injurious. He said federal officials have emphasized that there is no evidence that cyclamates have caused cancer in humans. Some laboratory rats which ingested dosages of cyclamates 50 times higher than that recommended for humans developed tumors.

Computer Time Sharing Is Becoming Top Business

By BOB DUBILL
PRINCETON (AP) — Computers are sharing themselves and it seems just about everybody wants a piece of the action.

Time sharing is the fastest growing segment of the computer industry with an estimated $200 million being spent this year for development alone.

Of all the states on the eastern seaboard, New Jersey has probably the biggest share of the time sharing market. The field ranges from such established firms as Bell Telephone Laboratories' "in house" time sharing system, to Princeton Time Sharing Services Inc., a new but rapidly growing enterprise that has recently signed up such blue chip clients as the 65,000-member New Jersey Education Association, to Drexel, Hannum and Ripley Inc., one of the biggest investment and banking houses in Pennsylvania.

In a nutshell, time sharing enables many computer users to be linked to a central computer. A customer can "talk" with the central computer and obtain immediate answers to problems.

Phone Lines Used
This "talk" is carried over telephone lines. The user can converse with the computer by using teletype machines, keypunch equipment or graphic display terminals that resemble television screens.

Princeton Time Sharing got off the ground last year when four executives from diverse branches of the computer world pooled talents, brains and cash to go into business for themselves. They were T. E. Dolotta, former associate director of the Princeton University Computer Center, president; Joel Leichter, former manager of special projects for McGraw-Hill Corp., vice president and secretary-treasurer; John J. Leahy, who left a job as a marketing manager for international Business Machines Inc., vice president for sales, and Carl Witonsky, manager for marketing for IBM in Trenton for seven years, vice president for systems and operations.

IBM 360 Used
The company raised a million dollars through a public stock offering, set up headquarters in a specially designed building off Route 1 in Princeton and brought in an IBM 360 computer which serves as the heart of the operation.

"The basic concept is to offer customers the facilities of a very large computer located in a central point," said Witonsky.

"Each customer has a special typewriter which allows him, via office telephone, to 'talk' directly to the computer. In this fashion many people can simultaneously be performing their computer work from their homes, offices, schools or laboratories."

The company started sales operations in April and logged $700,000 worth of contracts through June 30, according to its first annual report.

"Every month business has grown so that it has exceeded ed the previous month's revenues," said Witonsky.

The biggest contract was landed this week, in excess of $500,000 over a two-year period. It is with Drexel, Hannum and Ripley Inc.

With that signing, Princeton Time Sharing Services, which carries the call letters PTSS, will be expanding its operations beyond actual time sharing. It will install, operate and program an IBM computer for DHR Systems, a subsidiary of the investment house. The system will provide at-a-glance analysis of stock portfolios for the investment firm's trust accounts and clients.

"It will enable DHR to make instant analysis of any individual portfolios and of the stock market as a whole," said Witonsky. "This includes price-earnings ratios, comparisons with stocks in particular categories and the whole gamut of financial transactions. The individual portfolios will be programmed as well as the entire stock market."

Shopped Around
"We shopped around the country," said Jere Court, president of DHR Systems. "We thought they had the best technical expertise. They have a fellow there, Howard Strauss, who's brilliant, one of the best in the country."

Strauss, an electrical engineer, has been a systems specialist for more than five years, including a stint with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. He came to Princeton Time Sharing from Bell Labs.

"There's a great deal of challenge and responsibility in a young company," he said. "The opportunities are exciting."

PTSS has grown from four employees to 39, including salesmen, programmers, and systems specialists. It expects to have 100 employees within a year. It has opened an office in Manhattan and plans to open one in downtown Philadelphia next month.

It plans to tell stockholders at the first annual meeting at the Holiday Inn here next Tuesday that it will acquire a new and larger multi-million dollar IBM computer next month.

Clients Listed
Some of the company's New Jersey clients include:

— The NJEA, a data processing contract establishing a registration system for the organizations thousands of teachers, membership and circulation control.

"We print every label for the 85,000 copies of the NJEA's monthly magazine," said Witonsky.

— Salmon Paper Box Co. of Matawan — cost and production analysis and specifications for manufacturing of paper boxes; can forecast to the decimal how much waste and profit can be anticipated.

According to Witonsky: "Data files such as inventories, billing, engineering specifications, accounting, bills of materials and legal codes can be transcribed to a central file. A user may then examine his files, delete and add entries, modify records — or anything he wishes — from his own office.

The central file or data bank, which is the repository for all customer data files, contains over 400 million digits of information any of which can be accessed in less than one second."

There are those in the computer field who envision the potential of share-ability as limitless. Some see the day when computers will be providing the public with computer services in the same manner that gas, electric and telephone utilities offer their own commodities.

County Sewerage Progress Stressed

FREEHOLD — Speaking at last night's Boro Republican Club meeting in the American Hotel, Freeholder Harry Larrison Jr., a member of the Monmouth County Sewerage Advisory Committee, stated that the county has been pursuing a series of programs designed to preserve and enhance the natural resources of the County.

"Monmouth was the first county in the state to prepare and adopt a master sewerage plan and is recognized as a leader in the field of regionalizing sanitary sewerage facilities by the state Health Department," he said.

Freeholder Larrison commented that the county's initiative will yield benefits by making the projects eligible for the maximum federal and state aid.

Freeholder Larrison said that after the adoption of the master sewerage plan, "a program of loans to regional authorities to connect adjoining areas in the future was begun by the Board of Freeholders to guarantee conformance with the county plan," he said. Also, a study of alternative methods of disposal of effluent from regional treatment plants to the Raritan Bay was made.

This, he added, resulted in the county appointing the Bayshore Outfall Sewerage Authority to construct and operate an ocean outfall line serving the entire bayshore area of Monmouth County.

The freeholder urged all voters in Monmouth County to support the Water Conservation Referendum on Nov. 4. This would provide state aid for regional water pollution control facilities.

Community Council Activities Continue

MIDDLETOWN — Quietly and without fanfare the Community Affairs Council has continued its function as go-between among various municipal bodies, coordinating activities and projects and insuring cooperation among representatives of many groups.

Mrs. Raymond E. Lenartowicz of Lincroft, council chairman, reports a meeting with Dr. Lyndon U. Kibler of the Conservation Commission, which plans beautification of Rts. 35 and 36. Mrs. Lenartowicz yesterday in Township Hall with Mrs. Robert Gorsuch, Shade Tree Commission chairman, to begin the beautification project.

Mrs. Richard Persson, a council member, has reported the 911 emergency telephone number plan cannot be employed in the township. Telephone company officials have explained that widely dispersed fire and first aid companies and a multitude of telephone exchanges in the area make use of the emergency system impractical.

Mrs. John Ketchow and Paul Reussille will continue a survey of Board of Education policy on more frequent use of school buildings after school hours. Mrs. Ketchow, who heads the council's school use committee, will offer a public conference on school use in January.

Democrats Blame GOP For Transport Woes

LONG BRANCH — Richard L. Bonello and Gordon N. Litwin, Democratic candidates for the Assembly in coastal district 5B, yesterday scored the county's GOP state legislative delegation for inaction on transportation problems and pledged, if elected, to work for implementation of the 1968 master plan for transportation.

The Democrats pointed out that GOP Assemblyman Joseph Azzolina, one of their opponents, has been on the Assembly's transportation committee. "Neither he nor any members of the all-Republican delegation to Trenton have come close to solving Monmouth County's transportation problems," they said.

Mr. Bonello and Mr. Litwin also pointed out that GOP Assemblyman James M. Coleman Jr., their other opponent, voted against state subsidies for buses.

In Monmouth County "thousands depend upon bus transportation and had it not been for recent subsidies by the state there soon would be no buses," the Democrats said. "The fact that Assemblyman Coleman voted against this program is another example of the lack of concern our legislators have for our problems."

Mr. Bonello, a Long Branch attorney, and Mr. Litwin, mayor of Little Silver, declared that Assemblymen Azzolina and Coleman "must accept responsibility" for the fact that Monmouth County is "a prime example of neglect in highway construction. . . . We attribute this failure to get the job done to our elected representatives."

In declaring support for the transportation master plan the Democrats pointed out that it provides for mass transit, including railroads and buses, as well as highways.

They said that if elected they will press for speeding up the program for replacement of old railroad equipment, extension of electrification of the New York and Long Branch Railroad, and the rehabilitation of railroad stations, including provision for adequate parking facilities.

Rule Change Talk Set In Middletown

MIDDLETOWN — A co-sponsored meeting with the subject, the proposed change of government, will be held Tuesday at 8:15 at the Lincoln School.

Tri-sponsors of the informal gathering are the Business Residential Organization of Middletown Inc. (BROOM), the Women's Club and the Lincoln Parent Teachers Association.

BROOM president James Deehan, in a press release, stated that, "because of some unusual developments over the past week concerning certain facts and truths about the charter study, the proposal to change the current form of government to Mayor-Council will prove that this meeting is vital to all residents."

Mr. Deegan asked all members of his association to call five persons and bring "one friend" to the meeting.

Mr. Deegan in his letter asks incumbent assemblyman Joseph Azzolina to attend the meeting and present his views.

If the veteran legislator cannot attend the session Mr. Deegan suggests that another supporter of the negative side present his opponent's case.

Wife of Georgia's Governor

Homemaker in a 'Glass Bowl' Mansion

By KATHRYN JOHNSON

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—"I've never cared much for politics, you can get hurt a lot," says Mrs. Lester Maddox whose husband often hints she will run for governor to succeed him in 1970.

The blue-eyed, soft-spoken Mrs. Maddox says she is too busy being first lady to think about politics for herself now.

Maddox cannot succeed himself under present Georgia law. He says that while his wife does not want to be governor, he might be able to persuade her to run.

"I've made no definite decision," says Mrs. Maddox. "Much depends on what the legislature does about a bill allowing the governor to succeed himself."

Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace successfully ran his wife for governor when state law prevented him from succeeding himself, and there has been much speculation on whether Maddox will try the same thing.

Quiet Woman

Georgia's blonde 40-year-old first lady is a quiet woman who spends much of her time showing off the new state mansion to visitors.

"I don't feel right if I'm not there to greet them," she says of the daily visitors to the mansion. "And they seem to appreciate it so much."

Visitors make themselves at home — despite ropes which give them only a peek at the rooms.

"The ropes are the only things that don't seem like home," says Mrs. Maddox wistfully.

Living in the mansion, she said, "is like living in a glass bowl — with the family on the inside looking out and the outside world looking in."

Loves to Cook

"I love to cook," she says. She does so when she can. "More than anything else, I miss having the family together often," she says. Only one of the Maddoxes' four children, Ginny, still lives with her parents. The others — two sons and another daughter — are married and have children.

"My wife's cooking is one of the things I've missed most since I've been in the office," says Maddox. "The whole family can tell when she has baked the biscuits, made the gravy, fried the chicken or cooked the roast."

She spends several hours a week gardening but confesses the mansion servants do most of the hard labor. But the lush vegetable garden has furnished many a meal for the mansion.

Virginia Cox Maddox began married life more than 32 years ago in a cramped apartment. She worked in the Maddoxes' Pickrick Furniture store until they sold it, and the governor says she ran it well. Before that, she worked at their Pickrick Restaurant, which Maddox closed down rather than integrate in 1964. But she doesn't spend all her time at home. The public gets plenty of chances to see the first lady because she accompanies the governor on many trips around the state.

The Maddoxes go over the governor's calendar once a week together, Mrs. Maddox says.

"He has five or six speaking engagements each week," says Mrs. Maddox, "and I like to accompany him whenever I can. I have discovered that people want to meet the governor's wife," she added.

Fast-Paced Life

Keeping up with Georgia's jaunty governor on his fast-paced trips is a challenge.

"I've had to learn to walk like a state trooper and stand like a soldier," she says. "But getting to travel around Georgia is enjoyable."

THE FAST GOURMET

Bring-Your-Own-Dish Supper

By POPPY CANNON

HAMMONDSPORT, N. Y. — On the shores of Lake Keuka, at the Pleasant Valley winery, curator Walter Taylor, grandson of the founder of the winery, puts his heart, soul, time and money into America's first wine museum, which is perched high on a steep hillside above the lake and surrounded by vineyards — some of which are 80 years.

The sturdy wood and stone building was the site of the original winery used from 1833 to 1920.

Here he has gathered together memorabilia of his family, who have been in the wine business for four generations; installed a library of wine books, old presses, tools, cooperage, and so on. And collaborated with a big, red-headed young winemaker, named Vine (of all things!) to produce the "Home Winemakers Handbook."

In a little shop across the way, you can buy not only the grapes, but all the equipment needed for making and serving wine at home. Every year thousands of tourists visit the museum. This season there were 20,000.

Saturday night the museum is closed to the public. Last week there was a harvest festival for the workers in the vineyard — a party called in the area B.Y.O.D. — Bring Your Own Dish.

Sometimes parties of the same type are called B.Y.O.L., meaning Bring Your Own Liquor. Occasionally the daring will say B.Y.O.B. — Bring Your Own Bottle or Babe!

Similar to what we call in Connecticut a Covered Dish Party, there were huge platters of potato chips — better known here as Saratoga chips — from the old-time Saratoga Spa. One woman or butter; add 2 lbs. chopped brought Chicken a la Keene, said to have been invented in London for a racing enthusiast named Keene; later the famous Oscar of the Waldorf called it Chicken a la King. Belle of the ball, however, was a double-quick casserole called "Pre-Pay Day" which admittedly was adapted from Ersa Poston's recipe.

PRE-PAY DAY CASSEROLE

To make a casserole for eight, combine 1 cup each frozen, diced onions and green peppers, thawed and dried on paper towels. Brown lightly in margarine beef and cook until meat loses its red color. Add 2 (8 ounce) cans tomato sauce and 1/2 cup water. Salt and pepper to taste. Cook 15 min. on top of the stove. Meanwhile, in a large greased casserole dish, add 4 cups instant packaged precooked rice, 2 cans corn niblets (drained); 2 more cans tomato sauce, 1 cup water. Add the meat mixture and bring to boil again. Cover. Let stand 10 minutes. Sprinkle with sharp grated New York State cheese. Set under broiler until lightly browned. Garnish top with a wide border of freeze-dried or fresh, chopped chives.

APPLE CANDY PIE — Top 2 (16 oz.) cans drained, apple pie slices in a deep, buttered baking dish. You should have about 4 cups. Add 1/2 cup water. For topping: Mix 1 cup brown sugar, 1/2 cup flour, 1/2 cup butter or soft margarine, 1/2 tsp. each allspice and cinnamon, 1/4 tsp. salt. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 deg.) about 20 min. or until apples are bubbling hot and topping is tenderly browned and crusty. Serves six to eight.

Economist Attends Convention

TRENTON — Mrs. Sylvia Meehan, county home economist for the Monmouth County Extension Service attended the National Association of Extension Home Economists Convention in Philadelphia Sunday through Wednesday.

The theme of the convention was "Environment for Living" to help home economists understand social change, gain insight to deal with changing needs, and help build a better dimension of living for all people.

Mrs. Carolyn Yuknus, a Union County home economist, was installed as national president of the association. In addition a Camden County home economist, Miss Betty Fleming, received one of the eight Florence Hall awards given annually to members who demonstrate creativity and excellence in their extension programs. Miss Fleming won the award for the skits she developed to teach nutrition to mothers of Head Start children.

Miss Sullivan Named To College Faculty

Miss Judith Sullivan

NEW SHREWSBURY — Miss Judith Sullivan, daughter of Mrs. Jessie Sullivan Andrews, 116 Clinton Place, has been appointed to the faculty of Manchester College in North Manchester, Ind. She is instructing in speech and drama and is advisor to Black Students of Manchester.

Miss Sullivan received a bachelor of arts degree in English and drama from Bennett College in Greensboro, N.C., and a master of science degree in education with specialization in speech pathology and audiology from Oregon College of Education in Monmouth. "She was speech and hearing therapist for Southeast Fountain County School Corporation in Veedersburg, Ind., before her new appointment."

A Look Ahead to a Busy Year at Riverview

RED BANK — "We want new members — and involved members." That was the theme of Mrs. Ben Scotti's remarks when she presided at a meeting of Riverview Hospital Auxiliaries held here last week.

Mrs. Scotti is the president of the recently formed executive board consisting of representatives from each of Riverview's present women's auxiliaries: Fair Haven, Navesink River, Middletown, Red Bank and Shrewsbury. While each of the auxiliaries has its own projects (The Red Bank Auxiliary, for example, runs the Hospital's Coffee Shop), the executive board serves to help communication between the groups. It also helps to spur all the auxiliaries on to new combined fund raising efforts for Riverview.

Mrs. Scotti, a relative newcomer to this area with lots of energy and ideas, would like to see the number of auxiliaries and auxiliaries increase. She'd like to see groups formed in some of the other towns served by Riverview.

"And, we need at least one auxiliary with evening meetings for professional women and women with young children," she said. "We want members who want to work — and who want to become involved in something satisfying that they know will be worthwhile," she said. "I know we have people moving into this area every day; people with talent, time and good ideas which they would like to put to use. These are the people we welcome into the Riverview Hospital Auxiliaries."

A membership drive is under way now. Helping Mrs. Scotti are Mrs. Kenneth Hahn of Fair Haven, treasurer of the board and Mrs. Albert Rogers of New Monmouth, secretary of the board.

The new executive board is already coordinating two projects for the year. Riverview Hospital auxiliaries are selling tickets to the Metro Lyric Opera's production of "Carmen" coming to the Carlton Theater in Red Bank on Friday, Nov. 21. News of this production should be welcomed by County residents who have not been able to hear opera in New York so far this season. The production will feature Metropolitan Opera stars Mignon Dunn and Frank Guarrera. Concert-goers who buy tickets from Riverview Hospital auxiliary members will also be helping Riverview.

Another project will be the Riverview Auxiliary Cookbook. The executive board hopes area gourmets and hostesses will take some time during the long cold winter to copy out their favorite recipes for inclusion in this community venture, and help to make it a success. Mrs. George Gould, another newcomer to the area, is coordinating the cookbook effort.

Women who would like to find out more about the auxiliaries or either of the above projects are invited to telephone Mrs. Scotti, or Riverview Hospital's director of volunteers, Mrs. Elma Blowers, or public relations director, Mrs. Dee Ippen.

Alert to Kids on Drug Danger

By ARLEEN ABRAHAM
Despite the current tendency of many people, especially youth, to put down the military, it's every bit as enjoyable and just as rewarding to be a military wife today as it was 20 years ago when the armed services commanded the unquestioned respect of all.

So says Mrs. Edrei Annette Coleman, recently chosen Military Wife of the Year. "Because I don't have to face the prospect of being separated from my chaplain husband and having to fend for myself as I did during part of World War II and again during Korea, I find being a military wife much easier now than it was back in the '40s," she says, adding that "a lot of the protocol bits became routine after a while and I no longer waste my time worrying over trivialities."

Teaches School

Mrs. Coleman is base schoolteacher at the Chena Elementary School in Ft. Wainwright, Alaska, where her husband, Maj. Victor S. Coleman, currently serves as chaplain.

Her spare time she devotes to "my cause — the HELP DAN project." The initials stand for Help Educate Little People about the abuse of Drugs Alcohol Narcotics, an education program that she was instrumental in developing and introducing to her 5th and 6th graders.

This program to educate elementary school pupils about the dangers of such abuse was judged the year's most outstanding community service project conducted by a military wife, thus earning her the Military Wife title for 1969. The contest, sponsored by Harrell International, is designed to focus attention on the wide range of community activities military wives engage in.

Though she is now a teacher with more than 17 years' experience, there was a time when it was questionable whether the attractive hazel-eyed blonde would ever get her college degree. She dropped out of college after her freshman year to marry Coleman, then a civilian Methodist pastor who was to hold several parsonages within the next few years. But she attended schools wherever they lived and also taught prior to receiving her degree in education from Kansas State.

Recalling her own desire for an education led the fashionably but conservatively attired Mrs. Coleman to reflect upon the different attitudes displayed by children in military vs. nonmilitary homes.

Proper Patriotism

"Those young people who oppose the military way without ever having tried it don't have a proper appreciation of their heritage or a proper attitude toward patriotism. The trouble with these kids is that not enough is expected of them," says the woman who was also voted Alaska Mother of the Year for 1969.

"On a military base a father must take the responsibility for his child's behavior," she continues in the soft drawl that reveals her Seminary, Miss., childhood. "For instance recently someone threw a rock through the schoolhouse door. The commanding officer called in the culprit's father and put a mark against the father's name. You can bet that boy will think twice before he even thinks about throwing another rock."

"I believe that all children, army brats or not, should be subject to some of the respect, decorum and discipline associated with the military services. A child must respect a mother simply because she is a mother — not because she is right or wrong," adds Mrs. Coleman, herself the mother of a grown daughter. "And you must place a lot of alert to kids on drug confidence in the child."

High Expectations

She attributes the success of her HELP DAN program to the fact that she lets her students know that she is expecting quite a bit from them — the ability to digest information, evaluate it and later use it as a basis for decision making. The program, established a year and a half ago in response to her 5th grade class' interest in the drug and alcohol problem that was known to be affecting some of the local teens, does not preach or lecture. Instead the youngsters are fed the facts—through discussion groups, guest speakers, social workers, panels and filmstrips.

"I set up the project originally as an extracurricular club because I wanted my students to be able to face temptation and walk away from it. And experience shows age 10 is not too young for them to be tempted," she emphasizes.

Now hard at work setting up other local chapters in Alaska, Mrs. Coleman hopes eventually to see the idea take hold on a nationwide basis.

Starting next May, after her husband's retirement and their eventual move back to Mississippi, she hopes to devote full time to publicizing HELP DAN.

Although she claims to be a behind-the-scenes worker and happiest when she is following someone else's lead, she is not a bit fearful about carrying this project herself. "That's the first requisite for a military wife — the ability to be strong and take the lead," she says. "I had been sheltered all my life before my marriage and even after. But when Victor was away I saw that I could cope. He still takes the lead when he's here, but I know I can take care of myself," she declares confidently.

Bridal Advice

After 20 years as a military wife, does she have any other tips to servicemen's brides? "Just one: make wherever you live today your home. Don't put off furnishing a temporary home, just because it's temporary. That way you get in a rut and wind up thinking 'next year I'll be living somewhere else so I'll do it then.' Then you haven't enjoyed the place when you had it."

Tip Intercepting at the Table

Dear Ann Landers: For a long time I have been bugged by a problem that has been preying on my mind. I hope you can help me — as well as other hard-working waitresses.

What can be done about a wife who sneaks the tip off the table while her husband is paying the bill? This has happened to me more times than I care to think about and it makes me furious. I work hard. My base salary is low and I depend on tips to live. The wife who grabs my tip is taking something that belongs to me. Isn't this stealing? Any suggestions?—Flat-Footed Frankie

Dear Frankie: A tip is a gratuity. When a wife filches the waitress' tip she is intercepting a gift. This is, of course, a crummy trick and any person who would stoop to it is rock-bottom.

The five dining room hostesses with whom we checked, however, were unanimously of the opinion that nothing should be said. An airing of the grievance would create embarrassment, ugly exchanges — and in the end, ill will for the establishment.

Dear Ann Landers: Now that we have proved it is possible to land on the moon, a great many people are making suggestions as to who ought to go there. Here is mine:

The moon would be an ideal place for all wives who think their husbands are lousy lovers, can't tell a joke right, pay no attention to their kids, squeeze the toothpaste tube in the middle, snore a lot, are too lazy to throw their socks in the clothes hamper, and fall asleep in front of the T.V.

How about it, Ann. Do you agree? — Yukon Jake
Dear Yuk: Sorry, the moon wouldn't hold 'em.

Dear Ann Landers: We have four teen-age boys — 19, 17, 16 and 13. They are good students, reliable and cooperative and have never been in any trouble. Our boys have worked since they were old enough to carry papers and mow lawns. We taught them to save a part of every dollar. If they want extras they are allowed to buy them with their own money. The boys have bought cameras, water skis and scuba diving equipment. They also paid for their own lessons.

Last month we bought a color TV and put the old black-and-white TV up for sale. The old TV is also a stereo and radio combination — in excellent condition. Our two middle boys said they wanted to buy it on the installment plan and keep it in their room. We sold it to them for $100.

When my brother-in-law heard we sold our old TV to the boys he said it was the cheapest thing he'd ever heard of. He called us a few unflattering names which made me feel awful.

My husband insists we did the right thing. I'm not so sure now. What is your opinion? — Grand Rapids

Dear Grand: It seems to me that your brother-in-law is sticking his nose into places where it doesn't belong.

If more kids had to earn money for extras there'd be fewer kids in trouble. That which people get for nothing has no value. I am impressed by the way you and your husband are raising your boys. I hope your brother-in-law does as well.

Is alcoholism a disease? How can the alcoholic be treated? Is there a cure? Read the booklet "Alcoholism — Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

trated by work by contemporary artists.

Members and friends of the association also will see the preview of a new exhibit of early iron banks. This exhibit will be open to the public from Oct. 31 to Dec. 6. It will feature 19th century banks that were popular as inducements for children to save.

On the third floor of the museum, early photographs of the county are on display. These include Asbury Park's first boardwalk, summer in Ocean Grove and Long Branch, the original Steinbach's store, and Freehold's first gas street lights.

The Historical Association, which was founded in 1898, built the museum in 1931. It is a three-story Georgian building that houses a collection of colonial and Revolutionary relics and material pertaining to the early days of the republic.

Emanuel Leutze's painting, "Washington at Monmouth," is on exhibit here, as well as period room furnishings, silver, china, and other historic paintings.

Of particular interest to children are the third floor exhibits of early Indian relics, miniature furniture, guns, dolls, toys, costumes, local life and crafts.

The museum is open to the public from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and from 2 to 5 p.m. Sundays. The reference library is open from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the second and fourth Saturdays of the month.

Azzolina Aide Sought to Kill Local Plastic Tray Codes

By DORIS KULMAN

Six weeks before the legislature's Unfair Advertising and Packaging Study Commission, headed by Assemblyman Joseph Azzolina, R-Monmouth, opened public hearings last month, an Azzolina aide attempted to get New Jersey communities to rescind local ordinances requiring transparent packaging of meats, or to stop enforcing them.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture says the Azzolina aide, James M. Neilland, "misconstrued" the department's stand on municipal clear packaging ordinances in his attempt to shoot down the local requirements for see-through wrapping of meats.

Mr. Neilland earlier had unsuccessfully appealed to the U. S. Department of Agriculture for help in finding "an agency which could take direct action" to have the municipal transparent packaging ordinances rescinded, and apparently had sought to have the state attorney general's office declare them illegal.

WOULD BAN CODE

Mr. Azzolina, a Middletown supermarket owner who has opposed clear packaging legislation, led an unsuccessful fight in the Assembly last May for passage of a bill that would have prevented municipalities from enacting clear packaging ordinances. His Democratic opponents in the state Assembly race, citing this and the Azzolina-Neilland association, have charged that Mr. Azzolina is in conflict of interest as chairman of the legislative commission which is studying deceptive advertising and packaging.

Mr. Neilland, a former paid Azzolina aide now described as the assemblyman's "volunteer" legislative aide, was acting as the paid executive director of the N. J. Food Council when, in early August, he attempted to get local governments to dump clear packaging ordinances, and to stop enforcing them.

OPPOSED CODES

As spokesman for the Food Council, a year-old organization of supermarket owners, Mr. Neilland has opposed clear packaging legislation before municipal bodies throughout New Jersey.

Mr. Azzolina is a member of the Food Council's board of directors.

Keyes Fibre Co., described by Mr. Neilland as manufacturers of fibre (non-transparent) trays for meat packaging, is an associate member of the Food Council.

In his letters to the governing bodies of towns which had adopted laws requiring top-to-bottom transparent packaging of meats, or were known to be considering them, Mr. Neilland said the U. S. Department of Agriculture had ruled local governments couldn't impose any meat packaging requirements not specified in the federal meat inspection act.

CITED USDA

Based on the USDA declaration, Mr. Neilland's letter said, those municipalities with clear packaging laws should stop enforcing them and start rescinding them.

And, he warned, the food retailer members of the Food Council might "upon the advice of their attorneys" decide to ignore the local transparent packaging requirements.

With his letter, Mr. Neilland sent a copy of a July 7 USDA letter to Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., which, he said, contained the federal agency's statement backing his view.

A spokesman for Sen. Case said he had sought a USDA interpretation of the effect of the federal meat inspection act on food packaging requirements at the request of Mr. Neilland and the Food Council.

CALLED, WROTE

Three weeks after the Food Council's letter went out to the municipalities, the USDA's legal office made a telephone call to Mr. Neilland, followed by a letter from Edward M. Shulman, USDA's general counsel.

Mr. Shulman said that the USDA's original letter to Sen. Case had stated the department's view that, while local ordinances don't apply in federally-inspected meat plants, local laws requiring "use of see-through plastic trays for meat" are valid in retail stores where those same federally-inspected meats are cut up or packaged for sale, unless the retail store has a federal inspector on the premises.

(There are very few retail packaging operations under federal inspection, another USDA spokesman told The Daily Register.)

MAY USE THEM

Federally inspected plants "may use either plastic trays or other types of trays approved by the department . . ." the Shulman letter said.

"In our view, meat product prepared under federal inspection loses its status as federally inspected when it is further prepared without federal inspection," Mr. Shulman's letter to Mr. Neilland said, "... We believe state or other local laws and ordinances requiring the use of plastic trays for meat products sold at retail could be applied to such products if the products had been cut up or otherwise prepared without federal inspection at the retail stores, even though those products, or the carcasses or parts thereof from which they were derived, were originally prepared under federal inspection.

MISCONSTRUED

"We understand that copies of our letter to Sen. Case were distributed to various persons with a transmittal letter from you . . . In view of the fact that your transmittal letter misconstrued the contents of my letter to Sen. Case it is suggested that a copy of the present letter be sent to each of the persons to whom your transmittal letter was addressed."

Mr. Neilland said he never sent copies of that Shulman letter to any of the municipalities to which he sent the earlier USDA letter.

"It was only a suggestion" by Mr. Shulman, Mr. Neilland maintained. And, he said, he doesn't buy the idea that he misconstrued the USDA letter to Sen. Case, nor did he ever have reason to believe any of the municipalities took the Food Council's letter seriously.

WOULD ADVISE

"Had we learned that any municipality was considering rescinding the ordinance, we would have advised them of the second USDA letter," Mr. Neilland insisted.

And, he asked, how could he be accused of misconstruing the USDA letter to Sen. Case "when I sent a copy of it along?"

A spokesman for the USDA's legal office told The Register: "We went into considerable detail in our letter to Sen. Case. Mr. Neilland put a different construction on it than we intended . . ."

The USDA letter to Sen. Case says that "marking, labeling, packaging or ingredient requirements in addition to, or different than, those made under this Act (Federal Meat Inspection Act) may not be imposed by any state . . . with respect to articles prepared at any establishment under inspection in accordance with the requirements under . . . this act . . ."

NOT PRECLUDED

However, the letter adds, that doesn't preclude "the application of the requirements of a local ordinance or state law to non-federally inspected products prepared and distributed to the state . . ."

Mr. Azzolina and Mr. Neilland are of one mind on the issue.

"I don't believe Jim misconstrued their letter," Mr. Azzolina said. "From what I've heard and seen, it seems to me the department took one position, then changed it and took another."

James M. Neilland

Joseph Azzolina

That's Mr. Neilland's position, too — except that he attributes what he says is USDA's change of mind to pressure from lobbyists for manufacturers of plastic meat trays.

Just before writing to the municipalities himself, Mr. Neilland sought an agency which could act to invalidate the municipal ordinances. On July 30, he asked USDA for its assistance in suggesting an agency "which could take direct action."

REPLIED

On Aug. 13, Mr. Shulman replied, telling Mr. Neilland that USDA doesn't have any such power. Mr. Shulman's letter continues: "Our views concerning the validity of the local ordinances in question were previously set forth in a letter . . . to Sen. Case a copy of which you acknowledge receiving . . ."

Two weeks before he received the Shulman reply, Mr. Neilland sent his letters to municipalities, such as his Aug. 4 letter to Woodbridge, where a clear packaging ordinance was to become effective two days later.

The letter, with the paragraph slapping at plastic meat trays omitted, says:

"The attached is a true copy of a letter from the general counsel of the U. S. Department of Agriculture to Sen. Clifford P. Case."

ALAMPI OPINION

"This letter supports the opinion of N. J. Secretary of Agriculture Phillip Alampi that local ordinances which impose meat packaging requirements in addition to those contained in the Federal Meat Inspection Act are invalid."

"Therefore, I request that the meat packaging ordinance adopted in your municipality be rescinded at your earliest opportunity."

"In the interim, it would be most helpful if you could order a halt to enforcement of this ordinance as all members of N. J. Food Council have received a copy of the USDA letter and, upon the advice of their attorneys, those operating retail food outlets in your community may choose to cease using transparent plastic trays . . ."

SAW CONFLICT

Mr. Neilland said the reference to Mr. Alampi is to a March 20 "Dear Joe" letter from the state secretary of agriculture to Assemblyman Azzolina declaring that a transparent meat packaging bill proposed in the state Assembly "might also be in conflict with the federal Meat Inspection Act . . . it is the view of the consumer and marketing service that his proposed state law would be invalid . . ."

Mr. Alampi said yesterday that he hadn't been informed the USDA has said local clear packaging ordinances are valid in retail stores where meats are cut and wrapped without supervision of federal inspectors.

"I really don't remember," Mr. Alampi said when asked on what he had based his March decision that the proposed state law would conflict with the federal meat inspection act, "But I'm pretty sure it was on the opinion of Herb Glickman, or someone in the consumer and marketing service (of the USDA)."

NOT HIS RULING

Herbert Glickman, a deputy state attorney general assigned to the state Department of Agriculture, said yesterday that no such ruling had come from him.

According to Mr. Glickman, the question about the possible state-federal conflict first came to his attention four months after Mr. Alampi's letter to Mr. Azzolina, via a July 30 letter from Secretary Alampi to Attorney General Arthur Silles, citing the USDA letter to Sen. Case and suggesting that " . . . you consider advising municipal officials that local packaging ordinances are invalid if such ordinances are at variance with the federal meat and poultry inspection act. Where they have been adopted they should be rescinded . . ."

Mr. Glickman said the state attorney general's office didn't make any determination.

For one thing, it is for local municipal attorneys to determine if they have the right to enact the ordinances, Mr. Glickman said.

COULDN'T ADVISE

And for another, Secretary Alampi's letter indicated that his request "was in response to correspondence from the N. J. Food Council, and we told him we couldn't legally give advice for a non-governmental agency," Mr. Glickman said.

Besides, on July 28, two days before the Alampi letter to Mr. Silles, the attorney general's office, responding to earlier correspondence from that organization, had told the N. J. Food Council that the legality of the municipal ordinances "should be referred to the local municipality," Mr. Glickman explained.

A spokesman for the USDA's consumer and marketing service said yesterday "I am not aware that this department" ever ruled on a federal-state meat packaging law conflict.

"My concern was strictly with Secretary Alampi," Mr. Azzolina said yesterday. "I wanted to know the Department of Agriculture's feeling. I never did anything but follow advice from them . . ."

BOARD MEMBERS

Mr. Azzolina acknowledged that the two Middletown Food Circus-Foodtown supermarkets of which he is president and part owner are members of the Food Council's board of directors.

As president of those stores, "when I go to Food Council meetings, 'I sit on the board of directors,' Mr. Azzolina said, "but I attend very few meetings. I don't have time for everything."

He said that "anything Jim does for the Food Council he does with permission from the president (Joseph Saker) and sometimes with the permission of the board . . ."

Assemblyman Azzolina said they "knew there was a letter" from Mr. Neilland attempting to get municipalities to rescind clear packaging ordinances "but I wasn't aware they went out until after they went out. I forget at what point I knew they went out. I wasn't concerned with it. It wasn't something I was involved in, not something I was part of."

NOT FOR BOARD

"It has nothing to do with the commission," Mr. Azzolina added. He said that "the commission was established long before the plastic tray legislation came up . . ."

Mr. Azzolina said that as far as he knows, the attempt to enact transparent packaging legislation was first made this year. The Azzolina Commission was established by the legislature in 1968, but it didn't schedule any hearings until this past Sept. 10.

As he has before, Mr. Azzolina defended his association with Mr. Neilland.

He said that when Mr. Neilland was his paid aide he received only token payment " . . . he couldn't make a living on it, that's for sure."

"He's always given me time. We're good friends. He likes to work with me. He likes to be part of the team . . . Whenever he can spare the time now, he helps me . . ."

Moratorium Sharers' Penalties At Shore High Are Protested

WEST LONG BRANCH — Several parents of Shore Regional High School students, some with their children have accused the Board of Education of persecuting students "who were honest enough to admit they took part in anti-war activities on Oct. 15."

Lincoln Seitzman, the first parent to speak, told the board he had given his children notes to the school saying they were absent on that day "for personal" reasons and that school officials questioned the students until they revealed they had been at Monmouth College taking part in a demonstration.

The students were given five days detention, according to Mr. Seitzman who declared "It's not fair to persecute these kids for their political beliefs and honesty."

He also said that many students who brought in notes saying they were sick that day also had attended the demonstration and were not punished.

View Is Shared

Other parents held Mr. Seitzman's view, Mrs. Leonard E. Spiegel told the board, "Students who were honest and whose parents were honest were punished. I call this hypocrisy."

Mr. Seitzman also told the board, "We tell these kids the reason democracy doesn't work is nobody gives a damn — well, they give a damn."

Another parent called the board's actions "politically expedient" and said that although he felt the school board was right in not closing the school that day, "The students should be treated properly in a democratic society."

Others among the parents said the school should have had "a program, either an assembly or classroom discussion" as its observance of moratorium day.

Dr. Leonard Spiegel accused the board of trying to "teach the students a thing or two" and repeatedly told the board its policies should be "consistently enforced."

Dr. Spiegel and others said the board has accepted absence excuses for "personal reasons" in the past and said the board's actions constitute "using the law when it's on your side; otherwise ignoring it."

Response to Defense

The parents were responding to a board defense that the only legal reason for absence is illness.

Superintendent of Schools Elbert M. Hoppenstedt replied to the parents, "We were trying to avoid a mass exodus from the school and follow state law . . . because teachers mark time when attendance is low."

Board President Vincent Kublin stated "We have programmed 180 days of school and we can't afford to lose a full day. Before the next demonstrations in November, we will seriously consider a program in the school; either an assembly or classroom discussion."

He also thanked the parents for coming to express their views and said the board will begin working plans for November immediately.

'Good Example'

Peter Pace, president of the Shore Regional Education Association told The Daily Register "The parents here tonight were a good example of the democratic process at work and the criticisms the board received were good."

The board adjourned last night's meeting until Nov. 5 when it will officially introduce the proposed $1,470,000 referendum.

Board secretary Thomas Garland said after the meeting that the board is still going over plans with its architects for the proposed new wing which has been described as a "cut down version of the plan that was defeated last spring."

Mr. Garland said that the current plans call for 12 to 14 new classrooms, two laboratories, one or two shop areas instead of the four in the defeated plan, and a smaller gym than in the previous plan, and a cafeteria.

Manalapan Bond Code For Road Job Amended

MANALAPAN — The Township Committee has amended the bonding ordinance pertaining to the reconstruction and relocation of a portion of Gordons Corner Road. The original proposal had called for a total cost of $150,000, with $140,000 of the sum being raised by bond issue.

It was explained by the township engineer, John Kovacs, that the new amount — $311,000 total with $295,400 bonded — was due primarily to the unexpected expense of right-of-way acquisitions. He said that he and committee originally thought the residents along the affected area of Gordons Corner Road would donate the rights - of way to the township. He also cited rising construction costs as another cause for the increase.

Mayor Thomas F. Whalen added that the state had provided a proportional increase in aid to the project of $24,000 to a total of $78,000.

Bids Held Over

Since this was only the first reading of the amended ordinance, the two lowest bids were held pending adoption after a public hearing on the ordinance which is set for the next regular committee meeting, Nov. 12.

Mayor Whalen proclaimed Nov. 4, "Clean Water Day," and he urged all voters of Manalapan to support the "water conservation bond issue." This was done at the suggestion of Ocean Township which had asked all municipalities in Monmouth County to do this.

A second proclamation forbids persons aged under 19 on the streets or public property on Oct. 30 and 31, "Mischievous Night" and Halloween, respectively.

Acting Township Clerk Robert B. Laughlin read a letter that had been forwarded from the planning board. In it George C. Dates, vice president of Hovanian Enterprises stated his company's intention to donate eight acres of land to the township "for a conservation area."

John and Julia Gurzo, Rd 2, Englishtown, were awarded a tax refund of $405.88, representing an overpayment of 1969 taxes.

Stanely W. England, 31 Greenleaf Drive, was appointed and sworn to membership on the Shade Tree Commission. He succeeds Rudolf Sloboda, who resigned two weeks ago. Mr. England will serve until Dec. 31, when Mr. Sloboda's term expires.

Marlboro Starts Move To Preserve Burnt Fly

MARLBORO — Mayor Walter C. Grubb Jr. recommended a resolution to Township Council last night, permitting him to forward a request to the state Department of Conservation and Economic Development asking for state aid under Green Acres or a similar program to purchase the Burnt Fly Bog area.

Mayor Grubb stated that the area is unique in Marlboro for its suitability for public use. He added that the people who currently reside in the area would be permitted to remain until their normal residency would be terminated "by fire, or whatever."

There are approximately 1,000 acres in the Burnt Fly area, about half of which are in Marlboro, with the remainder in Madison Township.

Mayor Grubb also suggested that a letter be sent to the Madison Township Committee advising them of the action that is being taken and urging them to assist in obtaining the area for public use.

Tape Ruling

The controversy over the accessibility of tape recordings of council meetings was settled by the approval of a resolution by council.

The resolution stated that all tapes will be retained and preserved for two years, and no tapes will be released prior to council's formal acceptance of the written minutes. All appointments to hear the tapes must be made in writing in advance. All previous resolutions regarding the tapes were rescinded.

Council also authorized township attorney, James Minogue, to undertake two actions. The first is to defend Marlboro in a suit brought by Isidor Shippers, et al. The suit is one of four filed against the township testing legality of two-acre zoning requirements.

Appraisal

The second action is for the attorney to engage real estate appraisers to determine the value of 21 parcels that have been recommended to council by the Recreation Commission as possible sites for recreation areas. Council President Joseph Brodnjak said the sites range in size from 92 acres to four acres.

Mayor Grubb suggested that a list of the sites be opened to the public. Councilman John McLaughlin disagreed, saying that if the list were made public, the price of the lands would immediately rise.

Council awarded a contract for the paving of Beacon Hill Road to Manzo Contracting Co., Inc., who submitted the

Man Found Dead in Car

RED BANK — Police Chief Leroy McKnight termed the death of Robert B. Winters, 51, of 88 E. Front St., a suicide yesterday.

He was pronounced dead by Dr. Leo Rocco, the police physician, at 1 p.m. and the county medical examiner, Dr. C. Malcolm B. Gilman, determined the cause of death to be hemorrhage caused by severe lacerations of the right forearm.

Chief McKnight said that a razor was on the floor of the car, found parked in the driveway of the St. James grammar school on Peters Place at 12:50 p.m.

low bid of three received — $16,050. Councilman McLaughlin said this is less than half of the amount appropriated for the project, and the township might be able to double the size of the project later.

Blood Bank

A resolution was approved to establish a community blood bank in Marlboro as an adjunct to the Monmouth County Blood Bank. Council declared Nov. 22 Blood Bank Day. The Monmouth County Blood Bank has offered the services of its equipment and staff in the operation. Participation in the program by Marlboro residents allows them the use of the county blood bank for the cost of processing only, about $13.

Council authorized the acquisition of easements from Raymond Powell and wife and Leo di Dominico and wife for the Orchard Park-John Street drainage project. Mr. Minogue said an easement had been signed with the Powells for a nominal amount.

The easements became necessary when the Central Railroad of New Jersey failed to make a "reasonable" offer of an easement to the township. With these easements, Mr. Minogue said, the railroad may now make a more reasonable offer. The drainage project will pass perpendicularly under the railroad tracks rather than "longitudinally," he explained.

Mayor Grubb stated that under the Faulkner Act, he and the business administrator, Philip Brown, will hold public hearings during November on the proposed budgets of boards and agencies that are to be incorporated in the township budget.

Secession Discussed In Newark

NEWARK (AP) — A defiant cry of secession has been raised by Vailsburg — a tidy, white, middle-class section of Newark.

Frustrated by the city's spiraling property taxes and by welfare "handouts" they do not receive — and, above all, fearful of encroaching slums — a group of local citizens have incorporated themselves as "A Committee for an Independent Vailsburg."

Started last April by several local businessmen, the secession movement has only got as far as registering itself in the Essex County Court House — but many hundreds of residents are behind it.

"The only way we would have backed down is if the majority of the people in Vailsburg were against it," explained the committee's honorary president, Michael Mancini, an appliance repairman.

Vailsburg, population 26,000, is an orderly stretch of privately owned houses sitting on the western edge of Newark, a city of 400,000. Its citizens are a mixture of Italians, Irish, other whites and a few Negroes.

"These people are all homeowners," said Louis Malavara, a Vailsburg real estate agent. "It's these people who carry the burden of the city's taxes." "They've got nowhere to go. They can't sell their houses because they carry a Newark address," he added. "I'd rather get away from Newark, leave Vailsburg like it used to be," Mrs. Helen Anderson, a housewife, said. "It's not safe here anymore. In plain English, the place is going to the dogs."

Azzolina Maps Ways To Guard Purchasers

MIDDLETOWN — New Jersey housewives shopping for groceries will have an easier time if Assemblyman Joseph Azzolina, R-Monmouth, has his way.

As a result of public hearings conducted by the Legislative Commission on Unfair Advertising and Packaging, improvement will be recommended to the commission by Mr. Azzolina, its chairman.

The Middletown legislator's food proposals are aimed primarily at making it less confusing for a shopper seeking the best value, an end to price discrimination and a prohibition against the transfer between stores of fresh produce and fresh meat. Other recommendations are designed to improve the state Weights and Measures Code and the Food and Drug Act.

Voicing the opinion that the federal Fair Packaging Act of 1966 has not eliminated a shopper's confusion when faced with the large assortment of package sizes, Assemblyman Azzolina declared:

PROMOTES ECONOMY

"Until Congress puts teeth into its law or until the packaging industry acts voluntarily, New Jersey can do something to help in this area. I will propose legislation to assure that a large package of any product will cost less per ounce than the same product sold in a smaller package."

"With the enactment of this bill every housewife will know that she is getting a better buy whenever she purchases larger packages of a product."

Assemblyman Azzolina, recalling testimony before the commission alleging that produce is taken from one store and transferred to another store in the same chain, said he is proposing legislation to prohibit this practice.

"New Jersey must make it illegal to transfer fresh produce or fresh meat once this merchandise has been offered for sale at retail," he explained.

Because witnesses during the hearings testified of "rumors" concerning higher prices in ghetto area stores than are charged in suburban areas of the same chain, Assemblyman Azzolina said he will go directly to the industry to determine if such practices are in existence and to bring them to an immediate halt.

PRICING STAND

He said it would be most unusual, if not impossible, to permit government to become involved in price fixing because of the many variables which determine pricing policies. He expressed confidence, however, that the industry itself can eliminate price discrimination if the rumors prove true.

Concerning the controversy surrounding New Jersey's Weights and Measures Code, the commission chairman said:

"If the model code used in 38 other states is the ideal, then New Jersey should enact it. If we can develop a better code, then this should and must be accomplished. Officials holding conflicting opinions on this subject must be brought together promptly to resolve the problem."

Mr. Azzolina also said he will ask the state Office of Food and Drugs to submit the exact improvements it feels are necessary for the state Food and Drug Act. He voiced confidence that these amendments could be enacted quickly.

Recommendations from that office are expected to concern food additives as well as hazardous substances which should be regulated or prohibited.

Brookdale Patrol Formed

LINCROFT — Students at Brookdale Community College, concerned with a recent rash of car break-ins and vandalism, have formed a group to take security into its own hands.

The student organization, Students for Law and Order (SLO), was formed Wednesday by Michael Mazza, 23 Almar Drive, a freshman.

The group, now 25 strong, plans to patrol the campus, especially student parking areas during evening hours, in an attempt to halt the vandalism.

"Several cars have been broken into in the past two nights," Mr. Mazza, said yesterday. "Stereo tape decks and radios have been taken, convertible tops slashed and windows broken," he explained.

"We have future plans, to increase the force, but right now we have a problem," the security man explained. "We'll try to increase surveillance of the parking lots — we're trying to work something out," he added.

Dr. Ervin L. Harlachier, president said the college has been and continues to search for a second full-time security guard.

He expressed concern for the vandalism and thefts and indicated the college will try to keep a closer watch on the student parking lots.

No Coverage

The college presently does not have insurance to cover the damages, Mr. Mazza said. He explained that he is meeting with college officials Monday in hopes of working out a plan to help foil the vandalism.

"We have no authority to be a vigilante group," he said. "We'd call in local authorities if we see anyone doing anything wrong," Mr. Mazza explained.

Mr. Foulks stated that he has received several applications and has interviewed many prospective security employees with an eye toward future additions to the force. "Maybe next week we'll know exactly what we can do," he added.

Detective Capt. Robert Lettis said the police department is presently investigating the thefts of two stereo tape decks which were reported Tuesday night.

As far as he knows, there have been no other reported incidents, although, he added, "there seems to have been some trouble out there in just the past two nights."

Ocean Outfall Phase Approved

MIDDLETOWN — Peter Homack, consulting engineer for the Monmouth County Bayshore Outfall Authority, last night advised the group that the state Department of Health has approved the preliminary plans for Phase I of the ocean outfall line.

Phase I includes a portion of Middletown and east through Atlantic Highlands and Highlands. Final plans of the design will begin immediately and are slated for completion by early next year.

Mr. Homack, who is with the Elson T. Killam Associates of Millburn, said preliminary plans for the second phase design—including Middletown west through the Union Beach-Hazlet-Holmdel Regional and into Keyport, Matawan Township and Matawan Borough — will be completed by June, 1970 and final plans by the following December.

"We're on schedule and will meet the timetable of 1972 completion of the Bayshore Regional group," Mr. Homack explained. He estimated completion of the first phase by mid-1971.

Mr. Homack advised the authority to wait until Middletown Sewerage Authority is ready to proceed with its program until it can be determined what federal and state funds will be available before setting dates for bids.

In the meantime, the authority will be concerned with acquisition of easement and rights of way, final design, financing and agreements with participating communities.

The engineer claimed that assistance from governmental agencies is contingent on the passage of the $271 clean water referendum next month.

He explained that should the state be able to finance 25 per cent of the cost of projects, the federal government will make available another 55 per cent, leaving only a small portion for community financing.

Sewerage Proposals Slated For Public Airing in Rumson

RUMSON — A public meeting will be held Wednesday at 8:15 in Forrestdale School on the proposed sewerage plans.

Rumson will be a customer of the Northeast Monmouth Authority and will pay one-half of the $143,260 cost of connecting a 24-inch gravity sewer 100 feet north of Marius Lane in Sea Bright. Sea Bright will assume the other half of the cost.

Rumson will pay all of the estimated $32,000 for a 12-inch force main extending south to Marius Lane. The regional trunk sewer will be located at the Monmouth Beach line.

A letter sent by Mayor John O. Teeter to residents announcing the meeting and outlining the four phases of connection states that general taxation was chosen as the method of financing because it should result in better salability of bonds at a favorable rate of interest and because property owners may deduct payment from income taxes.

Richard Hoffman, brother of Patrolman Robert Hoffman, was sworn in as a probationary patrolman, effective Nov. 1.

From the audience, David

Van Iderstine Jr., 1 Wilson Circle, proposed, on behalf of the student government of Rumson - Fair Haven Regional High School, that an ordinance be passed prohibiting the burning of leaves.

Mayor Teeter said police have been advised to tell people of the hazard of leaf burning and said the council would take Mr. Van Iderstine's suggestion under advisement.

Police patrols will be stepped up in the borough on Halloween night.

ROBBY ROBINSON

One of the newest concepts in home living is the addition of the family learning center. As educational requirements continue to increase, children will often turn to the home as a necessary supplement to the classroom. But a child's study room is no longer enough. The adults must keep up with the youngsters also. This room is more than a den. It is the center for all kinds of educational aids. There's a television, tape decks, even visual aids (a screen built right into the wall for slides and movies). This study center is a library including dictionaries, encyclopedias and reference materials, typewriters, adding machines, etc., so Dad can conduct business also. In total, this learning center is a vital room that provides the right atmosphere for learning on a family level. The place to find these just right materials for building that family learning center or any other room in your home is LITTLE SILVER LUMBER & SUPPLY CO., 15 Sycamore Avenue (at R.R. station), Little Silver, 741-7800. We have a fine selection of everything you will need for building or home-repair projects, and we welcome charge accounts.

HELPFUL HINT: If any electric kitchen tools need oiling, use olive oil.

Gardening Tips

FREEHOLD — According to Donald M. Mohr, senior county agent, now is a good time to:

1. Continue to mow lawn.
2. Apply lime to lawn and garden area.
3. Get ready to rake leaves.
4. Plant spring flowering bulbs (better hurry).
5. Clean up garden area and sow cover crop of wheat or rye.
6. Start compost pile (write or call our office — 20 Court St. — for directions).
7. Prepare to mulch rhododendron.

Lawns Require Lime As Well As Fertilizer

FREEHOLD — A home owner interested in growing an attractive lawn frequently asks "Does the lawn require lime if I fertilize properly?"

The answer for attractive lawns in New Jersey is an emphatic "Yes," Donald M. says.

The benefits derived from lime and fertilizer are quite different. Fertilizer is no substitute for the beneficial effects of lime.

The best lawns are the ones which are properly provided with both lime and fertilizer. And now is an excellent time to apply lime.

Lime applied now will do more good to your lawn next year than an application in the spring. The alternate freezing and thawing of the soil in late winter will help work the lime into the soil where it will do the most good for improving conditions for growth of lawn grasses.

Generally, an established lawn needs about 25 pounds of limestone to 1,000 square feet of lawn area each year. It is a good habit to apply 25 pounds each year and get a soil test every three to five years to check on the lime status of the soil.

If you are in doubt about your lawn's need for lime, get a soil test to be sure.

28 Homes Sold

FREEHOLD — Central Monmouth Multiple Listing Service, the county's newest multiple listing service, sold nearly a home a day during the month of September.

Charles Shane, a trustee and advertising chairman of CMMLS, reported that the 19-member agencies sold 28 houses during the month with total gross sales of $780,150. This represents an average sale of $27,862.

The September sales, Mr. Shane said, continue to reflect the housing growth in western Monmouth County.

"Our sales continue to grow despite a general decline in the real estate market throughout the state," Mr. Shane said. "And we feel that this is because our efforts to attract people from New York and northern New Jersey are beginning to get results."

Follow Instructions On Fertilizing Lawns

FREEHOLD — One of the best ways to improve or rejuvenate lawns in which grass is thin, poorly colored, and lacking vigor is to stimulate growth with a fertilizer applied in the fall, reminds Donald M. Mohr, senior county agent.

Even lawns which have a good turf should be fertilized to maintain green color and a dense stand of desirable grasses.

With the return of cooler weather and more moist soil conditions, lawn grasses begin to show renewed vigor and life. The addition of fertilizer stimulates color, vigor and density.

Apply a high nitrogen fertilizer such as a 10-6-4 (50 per cent organic) at the rate of 10 pounds to 1,000 square feet. Fertilizer of a different analysis having a similar ratio may be used, but the rate of application should be adjusted to provide an equivalent amount of nitrogen.

Make sure the rate of application is correct. Do not apply fertilizer when the grass is wet. Spread fertilizer evenly and avoid missing areas between spreader widths.

Improper application of fertilizer can ruin a lawn because of burning or produce a pattern of light and dark streaks.

An application of fertilizer to your lawn now will not only improve its appearance this fall, but will better prepare it for the battle against crabgrass and other weeds next year.

Knicks Bow to Warriors

By MIKE RECHT
NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knicks just might have been talked into their first defeat of the National Basketball Association season by Nate Thurmond of San Francisco.

Actually, shouting is a better description of what Nate was doing when he lambasted referee Jake O'Donnell midway through the second period of Warriors' game against the Knicks last night.

O'Donnell, a two-sport man, has heard it all before as an American League umpire and when Nate objected to a call and said the magic word, O'Donnell first called a technical on him and then gave him the old heave ho.

Thurmond had 13 points and 11 rebounds at the time and the Warriors held a 46-36 lead.

But the absence of their 6-foot-10 All Star center didn't seem to faze them as they went on to hand the Knicks their first loss in six games 112-109 at Madison Square Garden in the only NBA game scheduled.

Washington beat Miami 102-92 in the only American Basketball Association contest.

Jeff Mullins scored 27 points for San Francisco and Joe Ellis came off the bench for 18, including 10 in the final period, two of them free throws for a 110-107 lead with one minute to go.

Thurmond's unexpected exit might have helped.

New York coach Red Holzman had the same feeling after seeing his club out-rebounded 68-42 by the hustling Warriors as center Willis Reed managed only five rebounds and 22 points, hitting a dismal six of 22 field goal tries, against Thurmond's rookie replacement Dale Schlueter.

"I wasn't happy to see him go," Holzman said of Thurmond's departure. Sometimes that works against you. I'd rather take my chances with him in there. The other team compensates for it. They help each other more. We did the same thing last year when some of our guys were hurt.

"We were just flat and they caused a lot of things to happen to us by playing good defense."

Golf Proette No Girl Jock

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Spunky Shirley Englehorn, a leading golf proette who had wanted to compete with the men in the Los Angeles Open in January, said last night she would respect a PGA order barring her from the tournament.

"I'm no girl jockey," said Miss Englehorn when informed of the order from Joseph C. Dey, commissioner of the PGA Tournament Players Division. Dey shut the door on Miss Englehorn's efforts to enter the tournament saying, "PGA tournaments are for male golfers."

Miss Englehorn was reached in Corpus Christi, Tex., where she is competing in the Corpus Christi Civitan Open beginning today.

Respects Ruling
"I respect the PGA ruling," she said. "I just hope someday it can be changed. Golf is golf. If I could qualify, why not?"

Miss Englehorn, a 29-year-old blonde from Caldwell,

Idaho, has won more than $115,000 since she joined the women's tour in 1959. She was voted winner of the 1967 Ben Hogan award by the nation's golf writers for her comeback following a serious automobile accident.

Sponsors of the Los Angeles tournament Jan. 8-11 had offered Miss Englehorn a chance to qualify for one of two places included in eight sponsors' exemptions.

Mark Walsh, chairman of the tournament, said, "There will be 30 or 40 men trying to qualify for those two spots and we think Shirley should be included."

The Los Angeles group contended nothing in their contract excluded a girl from their tournament. PGA officials in New York were not sure if PGA rules included any ban against women, but Dey gave the final word.

Male players wishing to qualify for PGA events must either be a Class A club professional, a graduate of the Approved Tournament Division player school, a foreign player in good standing with the PGA, an amateur with a handicap of two or less, or be granted a sponsor's exemption.

Miss Englehorn said she was curious to see how she would have done.

"I realize they hit 7-irons to the green where we hit 4-woods and I would be playing from the men's tees but in golf, the real ability is in getting the ball in the cup."

She said mixed tournaments would be a "tremendous thing for golf. The men have a lot of color and we have a lot of color. I hope it can be worked out someday."

Archer Survives Pain, Woods, Wind in SF

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gangling George Archer, ignoring the throbbing pain of an ailing elbow, ambled through the woods and winds to an eight-under-par 63 yesterday and the first round lead in the $100,000 San Francisco Open golf tournament.

Nabs 10 Birdies
Archer, in the woods three times and victim of a 50-yard tee shot on another hole, still managed a fantastic 10 birdies on the tight, 6,677-yard, par-71 Harding Park golf course.

But big George, slump-ridden for two months and sidelined with tendonitis in the left elbow for about six weeks, still held only a one-stroke lead over veteran Dick Mayer, the 1957 U.S. Open champion who has been off the tour for a year, and non-winner Jack Montgomery, each with a 64, seven under.

Assault on Par
The cool, overcast, slightly windy weather seemed to bother the touring pros not at all, with a wholesale assault on par. Jerry Heard, who has just finished his rookie year, and big Bob Lunn each had a 65, six under.

They were followed by Lee Elder and Mike Hill, in a group at 66.

Among the large group at 67 were Bob Goalby, Dave Hill, young John Miller and Dale Douglass. Leading money winner Frank Beard was six strokes back at 69.

Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper, who won this tournament last year when it was known as the Lucky International, each had a 70.

GREEN TIME FOR ARNIE — Arnold Palmer keeps a close watch on the ball as he chips onto the sixth green in yesterday's opening round of the San Francisco Open. The shot stopped about six feet from the cup and Palmer carded a par 4 on the hole. He shot a par 36 on the first nine. (AP Wirephoto)

Wave Spoils Bova's Day

Shore Regional's Larry Bova broke a course record yesterday as he turned in a 12:28 and beat the old record by 10 seconds, but the Blue Devils (10-2-1) fell to Long Branch, 25-30. Freehold dropped its fifth conference decision, losing to Brick Township, 20-42.

Shore harriers ran well, but Long Branch proved equal to the occasion. Waves Glenn Turner and Dennis Morgan followed Bova over the line. Blue Devil Steve Jacobs was fourth ahead of Wavers Hoyle Mozie and Tom Jones. Steve Kronheim and Jon Waldrop gave the Devils seventh and eighth positions and Wilfred Chestnut scored ninth for the Branchers (10-1). Tim Beatty rounded out the top 10 placers for Shore.

Freehold's Ed Burgess finished first in the Colonials' meet against Brick, but the Green Dragons grabbed the next six slots. Greg Loxton took eighth ahead of a Dragon and Jim Schlenz was 10th for the Colonials.

Piping Rock Entrant Tops Mrs. Burke

DEAL — Mrs. Gordon McGrath of Piping Rock, L.I., fired a closing day 40-41-81 to coast to victory in the 36th annual Metropolitan Shore Women's Golf Championships at the Deal Golf and Country Club here yesterday.

Mrs. McGrath's 54-hole total of 249, was four strokes better than runner-up Mrs. Michael Burke of the host club, who took a slim one-stroke lead into the final 18 holes.

Mrs. Henry Doubilet of Hollywood, the only other Shore contender, finished fourth at 258.

Three-Way Deadlock In PGA Tournament

DEAL — Babe Lichardus of Shackamaxon, Lloyd Monroe of Spring Brook and Bob Benning of Plainfield all carded 75's to share the top spot among the 36 pros in yesterday's state PGA Pro-Am golf tournament at the Hollywood Country Club.

Bernie Hemmerling of Colonial Terrace and Art Doering of Montclair each posted a 76, and Roy Faber of Colonia had a 77. Tony Gaeta of Tomahawk and Chet Ghizzone of Glenhurst carded 78's.

Our used cars are better than just o.k.

When we take in a used car, we don't just clean it up and slap a fancy sticker on it. First we inspect and test it in 22 places. And repair it where it needs repairing. Then we put our sticker on the windshield... a sticker with the "Svensk Testad" emblem on it. Which means the car was tested the Swedish way, the world's toughest way to test used cars. Some used car dealers think it's all right to put stickers on their used cars without this kind of inspection. That's o.k. But our way is better.

Knights Try Lions; Tigers Host Penn

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A revamped and revitalized Rutgers hosts a recuperating Columbia in New Brunswick this weekend, and very likely will make good on its bid to become the first five-game winner among football playing colleges in New Jersey.

Rutgers, which lost two starters and a ballgame to Lehigh Oct. 11, regrouped to sink Navy, 20-6, last Saturday, and is looking forward to meeting Columbia, 41-6 losers to Yale a week ago.

The Scarlet Knights, relying on the strong arm of quarterback Rich Policastro and stand-ins for injured veterans Bob Stonebraker and Al Fenstermacher, allowed Navy only a fourth-quarter touchdown Saturday and boosted their season's mark to 4-1. Navy has lost all five of its games.

Craft Takes Judo Contest

TEANECK—Bennett Craft, a 17-year-old Red Bank High School senior, took first place in the middle division of the fourth annual judo contest at Fairleigh Dickinson College recently.

Craft also took third place in the senior division. He holds a purple belt in the junior division and a brown belt in the senior division.

Although he weighs 163, Craft fought opponents up to 180 pounds. He finished three of his five opponents in less than one minute.

Craft, who represents the Asbury Park Judo Academy, has placed high in many local, state and national tournaments.

School Cage Session Is Set for Oct. 30

Stonebraker, an end who also serves as offensive captain, and flanker Fenstermacher were replaced by newcomer Larry Robertson, a fleet running back who scored all three Rutgers touchdowns, and by Bruce Van Ness, a veteran who's moved from quarterback to flanker in the space of a little over one season.

With the versatile Van Ness at flanker and Robertson at tailback, coach John Bateman got the maximum out of an offense he said earlier this season was the best he'd seen at Rutgers in his ten years as coach.

Tigers Host Quakers
In other games this weekend, erratic Princeton hosts the University of Pennsylvania, Montclair State is at Upsala, Glassboro State is at Central Connecticut State, and Jersey City State hooks up with Trenton State at Trenton.

New Jersey interscholastic football reaches the midway point of the season this weekend, and Shore Conference action will be at a minimum as many Monmouth and Ocean County clubs renew non-conference rivalries.

Only five Shore Conference contests are on tap tomorrow when 14 games will be played. Middletown visits Lakewood and Brick Township invades Neptune in the "A" Division, while Red Bank entertains Howell and Manasquan plays host to Matawan Regional in the "B" circuit. Central Regional is at Point Pleasant Boro in the lone "C" encounter.

Under The Arcs
Weekend activity begins tonight when unbeaten Immaculata of Somerville comes to New Monmouth to collide with Mater Dei under the Seraphs' arc lights. Game time is 8 p.m.

Non-conference action tomorrow afternoon, all at 2 p.m., has Long Branch at Asbury Park, Keyport at Keansburg, Ocean Township at Toms River South, Red Bank Catholic at Netcong, Shore Regional at Rumson-Fair Haven Regional, Monmouth Regional at Wall Township, St. Joseph's of Camden at Raritan, Marlboro at Point Pleasant Beach, and Southern Regional at Jackson Township.

'Must' for Huskies
Matawan Regional's invasion of Manasquan is a "must" game for the Huskies and their "B" Division title aspirations. Coach Barry Rizzo's single-wing operators have yet to lose, but a pair of 6-6 ties with Red Bank and Ocean Township the past two Saturdays to go along with their two victories put them on the spot.

Manasquan (4-0) leads the "B" standings with three victories, while defending champion Ocean Township has two wins and that tie in "B".

Ocean, 3-0-1 overall, has the most difficult assignment tomorrow when it enters the tepee of the warlike Indians from Toms River South. The home team is 4-0, defending "A" Division champs and regarded in most circles as the top schoolboy team in the state.

Middletown, also unbeaten in four outings and rated among the Garden State's best eleven, can inch up to sole possession of the top rung in "A" by making a dangerous Lakewood team its fifth consecutive victim. The winner of the Brick Township-Neptune battle will go

Red Bank is favored to even its standard at .500 against Howell. The Buccaneers, who have shown vast improvement the past two weekends by tying Matawan and defeating Asbury Park, are 1-2-1.

In the only "C" tussle, Point Boro will be out for its 25th consecutive victory — the longest winning streak in the state — against Central Regional.

Long Branch, triumphant in its last three outings after an opening game loss to Middletown, should be a heavy favorite in its visit to Asbury Park (1-3), but anything can happen when these two traditional rivals get together.

Rumson-Fair Haven Regional, which has been mildly impressive in splitting four Garden State Conference games, plays a Shore area opponent for the first time. It's Shore Regional, the "C" entry which has yet to win in four attempts.

Keyport and Keansburg launch what is expected to be a long and aggressive rivalry, and there's an interesting sidelight to this year's meeting at the Mater Dei High School field. Keyport (1-3) is coached by Tom Karlo, while Keansburg (0-3-1) is guided by Bob Glisson. Karlo served as assistant to Glisson when the latter coached varsity football at Red Bank High. Karlo later moved in as commander of the Buccaneers' ship.

Red Bank Catholic, idle last week, figures to get back on the winning track at Netcong. The Caseys won their first two games before bowing to a big and strong St. Benedict's club two weeks ago.

The Monmouth Regional-Wall Township game rates as a toss-up between "B" and "C" teams, while Raritan faces a virtual unknown in its home game against St. Joseph's of Camden.

Another coin-flipper is the invasion of Point Pleasant Beach (2-2) by Marlboro, sporting a fine 3-1 log in its second season of varsity play. The Mustangs, who failed to win in their seven attempts last fall, finally tasted victory in this season's opener and they apparently like it.

NICK'S NOTES

Alas, Poor Yorick, He Was the First Football

By RICH NICOLETTI

This has been a year to remember in sports. First, the Jets put the American Football League on the map, then the Mets come from nowhere and win the World Series, and to top it all off, both surprises took place in a year when the two sports were celebrating centennial anniversaries.

Just think, way back in 1869 Rutgers and Princeton met in the first college football game and ... Wait a minute! Let's backtrack. Rutgers and Princeton did play a football game way back in 1869, but writer Herbert Manchester, author of "Four Centuries of Sports in America," notes both Harvard and Yale served as football battlegrounds 40 years before the Scarlet Knights and Tigers met on that memorable Nov. 6th.

According to Manchester's findings, both Yale and Harvard's sophomores forced their freshmen into a football game each year on the day after school opened. The game was used as a form of hazing. The freshmen, playing a game more like soccer, had to aim their kick at the ball, while the sophomores aimed theirs at the freshmen's shins and elsewhere on the lower anatomy.

'CLASS-DAY GAMES'
The annual "class-day games" were finally abolished by the faculties of the two universities in the 1830's because the game provoked so many injuries.

Football is considered by many to be a very violent game, and, not so oddly enough, it was born just that way. To find the true birthplace of football, one must trace back to the period in England around 1042 just after the Danes left the land which they had occupied for some 25 years.

About that time, English workmen excavating a battlefield, dug up an old skull which was identified as that of a Dane. The workmen, still smoldering with memories of Danish imperialism, kicked the skull around the field to prove their contempt. In no time, all of the workmen were kicking the skull all over the place, back and forth until the work was completely neglected.

DIG FOR HEAD
Unbelievable as it may sound, some boys, who were witnessing the display, sensed a new form of activity and immediately began digging for a defunct head. Upon finding one, the lads began booting it around. Some of the fellows were barefoot, and other wore shoes without hard tips. The concussion of the ball on the tender feet caused great displeasure, but the idea was retained and soon one of the boys appeared with an inflated cow bladder, and so the principle of football was born, a result of violence in a mixed up world.

In the 12th century, football was played without any basic rules. The game became a mob scene as town opposed town with hundreds of players on each team. When victorious players charged into small towns, the people of the villages would all run inside until the tramping and shouting had died down.

Finally, the players of this game of "kicking the Dane's head" were told to confine their action to a vacant lot or field, or else give up the game altogether. Thus, the standardization of the sport.

Late in the 12th century, the game was given an official name, "futebol." The sport took on great popularity among the English until King Henry II abolished it because his subjects were neglecting their compulsory practice of archery.

Henry's ban was carried on by succeeding rulers for more than 400 years, but because some of the later potentates were a bit lax in their rule, the game was played occasionally.

After firearms took the place of bows and arrows, King James I lifted the ban on futballe and gave his regal blessing, declared it as a clean, honorable and manly pastime.

While this may take away a little of the glamor of the Rutgers-Princeton meeting, there still was a first at the 1869 New Brunswick game. During the first meeting of the two schools, a loud cheer was heard. It wasn't a rah, rah, but more of a blood-chilling battle cry. The sounds didn't come from the sidelines, but from the players themselves. It seems that one of the Princeton players had heard of a New Jersey regiment, which fighting in the Civil War, had used the cry to frighten its foe. The roar didn't do much to stymie the Rutgers players in the first game, but the following weekend the Tigers won, 6-0, and attributed their win to the vicious yell which broke the Knights' spirit.

Palm Peter First In Lansing Pace

FREEHOLD — Palm Peter, the three-year-old New Jersey-bred colt owned by Ed Sabatini from here, maintained his record of never having a rival in front of him when he accounted for yesterday's $2,800 Lansing Pace at Freehold Raceway here.

The mile test marked his sixth triumph in seven career starts. His lone blemish occurred here last week when he was disqualified from first money after devastating his opposition with four and one-half lengths to spare.

Palm Peter was backed down to 3-10 favoritism and responded by a length and one-half win although driver Gerald Baldachino was forced to shake up the colt in mid-stretch when Speedy Chief challenged on the outside. Swan Bay N took down the third honors.

Children's Letters to God

"ASTRO-GUIDE" By Ceean

Saturday, October 25
Present—For You and Yours... Even the most Garbo-like individuals should feel gregarious today. Nobody "wants to be alone" under today's sunny radiations! Invitations should be plentiful. Your problem may be in choosing where and with whom you want to spend an exciting evening. Be selective.

The Day Under Your Sign

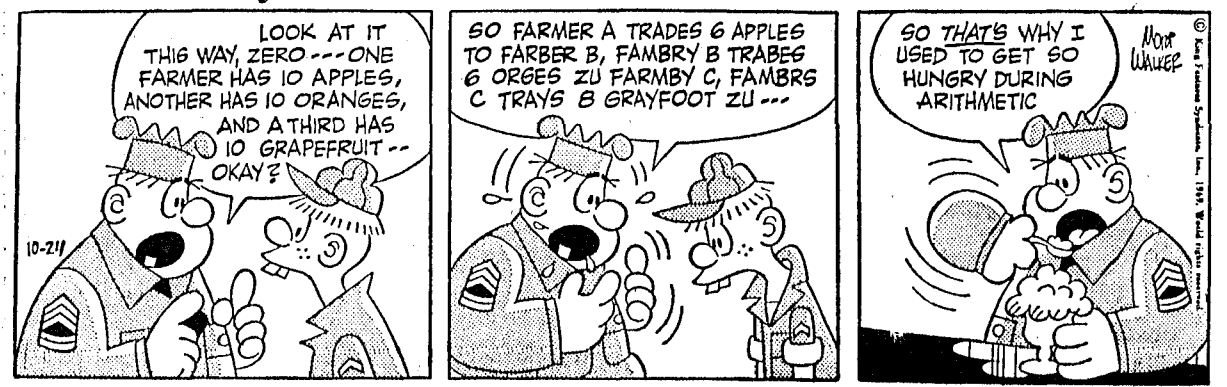

Aries, Born Mar. 21 to Apr. 19
Use all available sources to find what you want and need. Someone will come to your aid. Someone will come to your aid. Someone will come to your aid.
Taurus, April 20 to May 20
It may be necessary to lend a helping hand to a "brother" in need. Don't resent it.
Gemini, May 21 to June 21
A change of hair or new attire may spark up an otherwise dull sort of day.
Cancer, June 22 to July 21
An inopportune time to become embroiled in affairs of others, but it may be unavoidable.
Leo, July 22 to Aug. 21
A day of one surprise after the other. Be prepared for the unexpected and unusual.
Virgo, Aug. 22 to Sept. 22
Carry out a contemplated plan of action even though someone discourages you.
Libra, Sept. 23 to Oct. 22
Keep a watchful eye on those who would "do you out of" some sort of advantage.
Scorpio, Oct. 23 to Nov. 21
A changing trend or turning point may necessitate a fast decision late in day.
Sagittarius, Nov. 22 to Dec. 21
You have a right to expect the best if you have earned it by industrious effort and good attitude.
Capricorn, Dec. 22 to Jan. 20
Aquarius, Jan. 21 to Feb. 19
Mingling and exchanging anecdotes and experiences with kindred spirits enliven the day.
Pisces, Feb. 20 to March 20
A unique situation leaves you at a loss as to just what course to take. Think it over.

Bridge Advice

During World War II, I spent some of my time opening safes and locked doors, a nefarious practice that came naturally to me because of my bridge background. An experienced bridge player gets quite a bit of practice unlocking doors to get to the dummy, as today's hand indicates.

South won the first trick with the ace of spades and scowled at West for the fiendish opening lead. With any other lead it would have been a cinch to get to dummy by ruffing a heart.

South could surely win six trumps, two hearts and the ace of diamonds. His game would be safe if he could get to dummy in order to cash of clubs. But how could he unlock the door to dummy?

Declarer made an attempt by leading a low heart to dummy's jack. This would land him in the dummy if West had the king of hearts.

The attempt was better than nothing, but not much better. East won with the king of hearts and returned a trump to take the last spade out of dummy. Now South had to lead everything out of his own hand and wound up losing two diamonds and one more heart. Down one.

Give the defenders credit for suspecting the club situation, but don't give South any credit as a locksmith. At the second trick South should lead the queen of hearts to open the door to dummy.

If East wins the trick, dummy's jack of hearts is an entry. If East declines the trick, South cashes the ace of hearts and ruffs a heart.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S — 32 H 4 D — 7 4 3 2 C — A 7 6 5. What do you say?

Answer: Pass. Do not respond with only 5 points in high cards, particularly when one of those points is a doubleton jack in an unbid suit. You might be tempted to respond to one heart because then the jack of hearts would have some value; but there should be little temptation to respond to one spade. If partner opened with one club or one diamond, you would raise, since then your doubletons would give you some ruffing value.

Brother Betz Elected CBA Board Secretary

LINCROFT — Brother Henry Betz, new vice principal of Christian Brothers Academy, was elected secretary of the school's Board of Trustees at a recent meeting.

Principal Brother Stephen McCabe, who serves as board treasurer, reported the academy opened this year with 759 students, and 26 brothers, 18 laymen and two women on the faculty.

A decision will be made this year whether or not to continue the modular scheduling system which the school is now following.

The new humanities program was described by Brother Stephen as a course dealing with the various stages of man, from primitive to modern, covering his ideas on literature, religion, philosophy, art and music, politics, technology and economic life.

A 20-lecture technical writing class, instructed by James Kelley, is one of several non-credit mini-courses being offered this year.

Seventy-five per cent of the student body is participating in extra curricular activities.

Also attending the board meeting were Rodolfo Correa, president and Brother Boniface Monahan, Edmund Sullivan, Brother Thomas Brean-nan, Brother Augustine Loes, Albert Murphy, Brother Christopher Dardis, Walter Hurley, William Kenney and John Nappi, all trustees.

Colts Neck Center Hall House Sold

FAIR HAVEN — Mrs. Margaret Rich associated with the Ray Van Horn Agency, reports the sale of a new true center hall Colonial residence of eight rooms and 2½ bath in Colts Neck. The house was designed by Thompson of Princeton.

The attractive house is located in the two-acre zone area on the west side of Fox Hedge Road in the Holly Bush Farms section of Colts Neck. The builder is Paul T. Lahiff and the purchasers are Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Schumacher of Houston, Texas. Mr. Schumacher is associated with the Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Two days later, Mrs. Rich negotiated the sale of the D.M. Gallagher property on Briarwood Road, Fair Haven, a three-year-old, eight-room Colonial residence with 2½ baths situated on a lovely wooded plot. The purchasers are Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Johnson Jr. of Grand Blanc, Mich. Mr. Johnson is an executive associated with E.I. DuPont. Mr. Gallagher is vice president of Western Electric Co.

Both of these sales were negotiated last week.

Two Democrats Address 350

FREEHOLD — Michael Dotsey and Frank Guadagnini, Democratic candidates for the Township Committee, addressed an estimated 350 persons at a township Democratic club buffet-dance last weekend.

Mr. Dotsey pledged "to end the present government by crisis and restore government of the people, by the people and for the people."

He called for better community services, more economical planning, and "elimination of extravagant spending for engineering and attorney fees." He said the fees paid by the township for these services were the highest in the county.

Mr. Guadagnini told the gathering that Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., had endorsed the two Democratic candidates.

Middletown Gets Its Own Symphony

By BOB BRAMLEY
MIDDLETOWN — "The more we play this, the trickier it's going to get. . . Get off those eighth notes; make 'em sixteenths!"

The eighth notes are in the adagio last movement of Beethoven's First Symphony. Urging his musicians to get off them was Nolan Willence of Hazlet, director and conductor of the Middletown Community Symphony Orchestra, sponsored by the Recreation Commission.

The scene was a regular Wednesday night orchestra rehearsal in the Community Center, Kings Hwy. Mr. Willence faced the nucleus of his orchestra — a group of 18 musicians perched with their instruments on a crescent of folding metal chairs. The nucleus was wildly unbalanced: only three violins and two violas were backed up by two cellos; woodwinds were three clarinets, two bassoons and a lonely flute; a trumpet and a cornet completed the sketchy ensemble.

Mr. Willence rapped on his podium, interrupting a jumble of beeps, squawks and chopped musical phrases that splashed among the musicians as they warmed up their instruments.

"First take the Beethoven the last movement," the conductor directed.

There was a great rustle of paper leaves, as music was arranged on stands.

You clarinets give us an A, please." The conductor hummed the note as it sang mellowly from the clarinet's ebony throat. A busy plucking of strings arose as violins, violas and cellos were matched to the clarinet's A; the flute's A, wrapped in velvet, breathed through an octave higher; bassoons honked theirs reedily an octave lower. The trumpet and the cornet rang their A's spiraling in brassy arpeggios to more celestial A's in higher registers.

"All right, all right; let's take it from the top, now," the director ordered, rapping with his baton once again.

"Da-da-da-da-da-Dit-Dit-dah!" Mr. Willence sang, showing his violins how the opening phrase must go.

Several false starts followed; the movement is a difficult one. At last the first violins mastered the tricky phrasing. The second violins, violas and cellos chimed in low and mellow; flutes were heard, shrill and breathy; clarinets sang and bassoons resounded. The voice of the orchestra started to unfold, and for a minute it took off as real music.

The back door opened. A middle-aged housewife arrived stalwartly lugging a bass fiddle. On her heels was an elderly man with another. The generation gap was closed by a pretty teen-ager (See Middletown, Pg. 2)

Backward Step By Tom Jones

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Jones, the Welsh singer, is one of Britain's singing idols, a recording star and a smash in American night-clubs from East to West Coast.

The mystery, perhaps, is why Tom Jones' ABC variety hour is at best a fair to middling success.

The answer, still perhaps, is that Jones' personality comes across footlights better than through a camera, and that he seems slightly uncomfortable in television, restrained by cue cards and able to cut loose in his own style only once or twice in his hour.

In last night's show, Jones seemed completely relaxed only in his solo spot, shouting a song while surrounded by squealing teen-agers.

The hour is a handsome production, full of rich sound and dotted with interludes of the usual guest stars doing their usual things. Last night, it was Jose Feliciano and Shelley Berman, who did a comedy bit risque by TV standards.

Slim, Smooth

Jones, who seems slimmed down and smoothed up this season, has his own way with a song—moving a lot and apparently singing at the top of his voice. He is at his worst reading his lines in the mandatory badinage between star and guest.

The show's stiffness is particularly evident when compared with the easy-mannered variety program that follows on NBC — Dean Martin's show. The difference seems to be that the first show seeks to electrify the viewer while Martin and company invite him to relax.

It would be interesting to know how many of the singing Welshman's fans, under some misapprehension, tune in Saturday night's NBC broadcast of "Tom Jones," a lusty, bawling period piece that viewers of the movie in 1963 never dreamed could ever be broadcast.

The singing Tom Jones, born, Tom Woodward, borrowed his stage name when the adaptation of Henry Fielding's novel of 18th century England became such a hit.

The movie, a multi-Oscar winner, may appear on the small screen with some of its more daring sequences pruned. NBC policy prevents preliminary revelations of the censor's scissor work.

Judy Stays On

NBC spokesman say that while Judy Carne has left "Laugh-In" for eastern theater work, her contract with the show runs through this season and that bits in which she appears have been stockpiled. Thus she still will appear in the weekly show — and when they run out of Carne bits she is expected to return to Hollywood and turn out another batch.

Nearly One Million People Visited Telegraph Hill Park

HOLMDEL — An estimated million people will have visited Telegraph Hill Park on the Garden State Parkway in the current two-year period whereas half that number came during the entire decade before.

The big difference in people figures can be attributed to the Garden State Arts Center, which was opened in the parkway's Telegraph Hill Park a year ago last June and ended its second season a month ago with gusto.

New Jersey's road show-place (the only one of its kind in the world) and its park environs will probably draw more than 550,000 persons to the scenes and sights there this year alone.

The greater part of that total attended night-and-day performances at the center from May to September.

While the Arts Center's grand amphitheater is being winterized and shut until next spring, Telegraph Hill Park remains an attraction to the toll road motorists as flora and fauna share the spotlight with the edifice and grounds.

The exterior of the open-sided eight-columned white-concrete amphitheater remains in full view, but its stage and 5,058 seats under the circular roof will be dark and empty for the winter.

Those same seats — all 5,058 of them — were filled to capacity six times during the past season and on six other nights were just shy of such total capacity.

That teeming dozen were among 69 paid-admission performances at the center during its basic summer season from June 12 to Sept. 13.

Total attendance at the center for the 69 night-time shows this year was 310,540. This includes those people on the spacious sloping lawn surrounding the amphitheater where a maximum of 3,000 additional patrons can be accommodated (it reached that maximum twice this summer).

The lawn seaters were even greater in number during the premier season in 1968, but the Arts Center management limited the space to 3,000 this year to avoid possible overcrowding.

Total amphitheater attendance in 1968 for paid-admission performances—there were only 59 during that premier season — was approximately 270,000.

Special matinees for children from disadvantaged areas of New Jersey and senior citizens, and other free programs pushed the summer attendance last year to some 315,000; and this year to some 345,000.

In addition, 100,000 youngsters from schools throughout New Jersey saw a series of Young People's Concerts at the center last May, and in September last year some 55,000 students were guests at such special shows.

The New Jersey Highway

Authority, which built and operates the Arts Center as a roadside development of the parkway under the state legislation which created it, established a GSAC Fund last year to receive tax-deductible contributions toward financing the free programs for young people.

Along with Arts Center amphitheater, plaza and ample parking areas, Telegraph Hill Park embraces public nature trails, picnicking facilities and a scenic overlook. On the park's west side across the parkway north-south lanes from the center site stand state police, maintenance and other installations vital to the day-to-day operations of the toll road.

Telegraph Hill Park was first opened to parkway motorists (it is accessible only from the parkway) as an improved stopping place in 1957.

with a cello. The door stayed open as more players arrive — another violin, two oboes, another bass, a French horn, another flute, more violins, a viola.

The newcomers settled themselves, tuned up. Again the conductor's baton rapped the podium.

"All right — from the top!" Mr. Willence directed.

The violins started the last movement once again. Gradually the voices of the other instruments added themselves, enriching the fabric of sweet sound that was starting to swirl around the musicians. The players began to relax, to feel comfortable in the difficult Beethoven.

Mr. Willence, tie loosened, baton slashing, leaned over his violin section, drawing the music from his strings in shimmering handfuls.

The room was filled with powerful sound, and suddenly it began to sound like music.

Mr. Willence, who started playing trumpet at nine and played his way to professional status with the Boston Pops and the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestras, has started his second season as director of the Middletown Symphony. He also plays in the Monmouth Symphony Orchestra when he is not earning his living as an architectural designer.

With a nucleus of about 25 regulars, expanded at times to as many as 50, the orchestra rehearses each Wednesday night in the Community Center, preparing for concerts scheduled in January and May and for a performance with the Interfaith Chorus in May. A children's concert is also contemplated for a Saturday afternoon yet to be announced.

In its third season, the orchestra includes area residents ranging in age from 12 through 70.

Mr. Willence takes a professional approach toward his musicians, although anyone with an instrument is welcome. "They don't have to be the greatest. I'll go as far as possible with them; they find their own level," the director said.

But there is a deeper quality to his leadership, a quality reflected in the determination in the faces, young and old, of his musicians as they steer their intricate ways through Beethoven, Schubert, Mozart.

'You Know I Can't' Is Next By Wagon Wheel Playhouse

MIDDLETOWN — Wagon Wheel Playhouse opens the 1969-1970 season Nov. 6, 7 and 8 with its production of Robert Anderson's "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running."

This satirical comedy on sex is presented through four one-act plays.

Wagon Wheel's Sarah Melici plays the female lead in three of these short plays. Mrs. Melici made her Wagon Wheel debut in Tennessee Williams' "Summer and Smoke."

Her portrayal of the repressed spinster Alma was the highlight of that season. Mrs. Melici lives with her husband, Joseph, and their three children in Middletown.

Prior to appearances in Monmouth County, she appeared with the Staten Island Theatre Workshop.

Mrs. Melici had roles in "Country Girl," "Curious Savage," and "Blithe Spirit." She has also appeared off-Broadway at the Amato Theatre, Bleecker St., in Greenwich Village.

She has been seen with the Wagon Wheel Women, an avant garde group specializing in concert readings appearing before local clubs and service organizations. She creates three distinct characters in her roles in "You Know I Can't..." First as the wife shopping for twin beds after years of sharing "old 54," she skillfully establishes identification with every woman over 35 who would enjoy a good night's sleep in a bed all her own.

Then she shifts to the clinical wife of Anderson's second vignette. Finally, she becomes the crochety, senile current wife of Bernie, or is it John, or Harry? At that stage of life neither is sure of the identity of the other.

The show will be performed in the Holmdel Village School. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. William Baker or Mrs. Don Brennan. Block tickets for clubs and organizations may be had by a call to Kaja Mitchell.

STAMPS

Instruments Featured

By SYD KRONISH

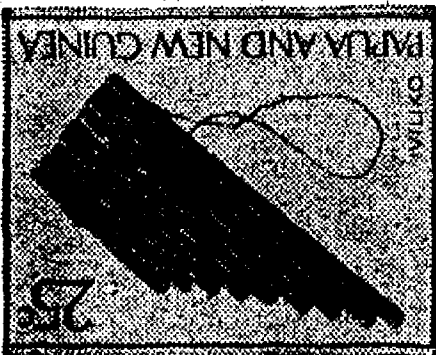

Did you ever hear music played on a tareko, a garamut, an iviliko or a kundu?

Well few people outside of Papua and New Guinea have ever had such musical pleasures, but now at last — thanks to a new issue of postage stamps from Papua and New Guinea — we have an opportunity to see what these instruments look like.

The tareko is a seed pod rattle from the Papuan Gulf region. The garamut is a slit drum from the Admiralty Island group. The iviliko is a grass or bamboo stem pipe and the kundu is an hour-glass drum used widely throughout the entire area.

According to the Department of Posts and Telegraphs at Port Moresby, these new stamps were designed by George Hamori of Sydney, Australia. The stamps themselves were printed in Switzerland.

Two new issues featuring the "new and the old" of Tunisia have arrived on the philatelic scene, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The new — and the way to the future — is stressed on a new Tunisian stamp commemorating the fifth anniversary of the African Bank of Development which has helped this small nation in its development programs. The "old" is highlighted on a stamp bearing the Tunisian coat of arms. The stamp bears the Tunisian heraldic device emblazoned on a shield. Above the shield is the Tunisian red crescent.

The United Nations Postal Administration has announced the following new issues for 1970. In March the U.N. will issue a stamp featuring the Peace Bell as the fourth in its "Art at the United Nations" series; April — U.N. Geneva definitive stamp; May — "Fight Cancer;" June — 25th anniversary of "Peace and Progress;" September — Geneva definitive stamps; November — "Peaceful Uses of Sea Bed."

Errors may be bad for baseball players, but not for stamp collectors. Recent auctions in New York have shown substantial prices for U.S. errors. In one sale alone of low-priced U.S. stamps, a total of $9,950 was realized on just 52 stamps with errors.

A brine pipeline may not be considered top news today, but 350 years ago in Germany it was quite an event. This month West Germany honors the anniversary of the pipeline between Bad Reichenhall and Traunstein with the issuance of a commemorative stamp. The 20 pfennig green, brown, red, blue and black depicts the area between the two sites where the pipeline traveled.

YOUR GARDEN

April in October

Not surprisingly in this mixed-up gardening year, quite a few plants are confused.

Some of the rhodies, azaleas, forsythias, flowering crabs, magnolias, and who knows what else have been making a brave effort to bloom this month.

This extra season of flowering is not a danger signal that your plants are dying — only a little eccentric.

They probably think it's spring because they went through a dormant period — something like winter — during the drought last June and again in August in some sections.

They set their flower buds during the dormant time. The spring-like conditions of temperature and day length returned this fall, so what else could a plant do but bloom?

Needles Dropping

Anyway, that's the way horticulturists here at Rutgers have doped out the colorful fall happening. And they pass along the explanation that will have to do until a better one comes along.

Many home owners have been calling or writing to find out what's happening. Now you have an explanation, too, even if you didn't inquire.

And here's something a bit more ominous that may be giving you sleepless nights. Your arborvitae and pines may be shedding their needles.

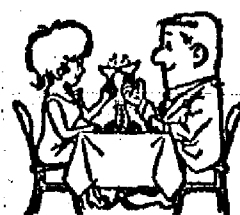

In most cases this is normal for this season. The thing to do is take a tour of the neighborhood with a sharp eye for arborvitae and pines with brown needles.

If you find that everyone else is in the same boat, go home and sleep like a baby. And use the fallen needles for mulch.

'Suave Villain' Is Retiring

By NORMAN GOLDSTEIN

NEW YORK (AP) — George Sanders, the suave, virile villain of nearly 100 films, is retiring.

He walks slowly now, his 6-foot-3-inch frame bent slightly over his cane. His hair is almost completely white, but he exudes a youthfulness that belies his 63 years.

George Sanders had had fun making movies and he enjoys talking about them.

Recently, on the last filming day of his long career, Sanders talked of his health, of the parts that have made him famous, and of his final role — that of a homosexual, female impersonator.

"I have no choice," he said of his retirement. "I couldn't pass an insurance physical now."

Turning to what might have been, Sanders said he would have liked to have played a Keystone Kop.

"Any kind of laughter is better than tears. I played in comedies, but never in slapstick; no pie-throwing."

The desire to play comedy seemed out of character for the debonair, British lover type, the handsome villain with the acerbic wit who told the Marilyn Monroe type in "All About Eve" that she was "a graduate of the Copacabana School of Dramatic Arts." He won an Academy Award for his role in that 1950 film.

Romantic villain or comic spy, "a part is a part," Sanders says. "You do the best you can. And if there's some dame involved, you do the best you can with the dame."

He recalled his early movie days, soon after he left his native Russia. (He was born in St. Petersburg under the protection of the British Embassy, and thus a British citizen.)

"I played a god wandering through the Milky Way — riding bareback on a greasy horse. It was very cold."

That was in "The Man Who Could Work Miracles," from an H. G. Wells book. He had begun his film career earlier — after starting out in the textile business — with the British-made "Strange Cargo."

He says his favorite film was the musical "Call Me Madam," because: "It was kind of fun."

Films today? "I don't go to see them," Sanders says, adding that:

"I hear they're pornographic or quasi-pornographic. I don't like films that only suggest. They should be either all or nothing. I'd like to see a pornographic cartoon; sex treated in a funny way."

Sex — serious, not funny is a dominant part of his final role, in "The Kremlin Letter," directed by John Huston. Sanders plays a lady cocktail-hour pianist in a San Francisco night club — in drag.

"I didn't even know what it meant," he laughed, "In my

The group includes lead guitarist Joe Hagstrom, bass guitarist Chris Plunkett and drummer Bob McEvilly, all members of the original Source, and Russ Howard, former lead singer with The Chlan and The Citizens Band, and Nick Soviero, former organist and pianist with The Clique and Scarborough Fair.

day, you just said 'dressed up as a woman.'"

For George Sanders retirement means Majorca, and an old remodeled house "where you can see the mountains through one window, kids playing in the street through another and the sea through a third."

What will he do?

"What shall I do?" he barked. "I'm doing something now. When I retire, I shall do nothing! Nothing!"

It, too, seemed like a role he would enjoy.

Writer Is Commentator

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Arlo Guthrie, 22-year-old son of the late folk singer Woody Guthrie, compares the songs he writes with his father's: "Well, mine are a lot longer."

It's a typical statement by Arlo Guthrie, elliptical, but true (the talking blues song that brought Arlo fame in 1967, "The Alice's Restaurant Massacre," runs 18 minutes in the short version) and there's humor lurking in the background.

"Alice's Restaurant," as the song usually is called, rambles along, telling about a fellowship-filled Thanksgiving dinner that really happened in Stockbridge, Mass., goes on, with irony, to explain how Arlo got arrested for littering when he dumped the garbage from the dinner in a ravine because the dump was closed for the holiday, and winds up as a polemic against the draft. All the way through, it's a very funny song.

Guthrie says that "Alice's Restaurant" is a comment on a lot of scenes, at the same time it's about himself.

"Before Dylan, a singer was commenting on what was happening. It had nothing to do with him except that he was the commentator and his philosophy was a part of how he saw things. Woody was that way. This is the tradition of folk."

Guthrie really has left the tradition of outside commentator. Not only is the song "Alice's Restaurant" about him, but he's playing himself in the new movie, "Alice's Restaurant," which is based on the song.

Actually the movie is expanded from the song to include a good deal about Ar-

ARLO GUTHRIE, whose upcoming marriage may be held in the deconsecrated church which is the main locale of his movie, "Alice's Restaurant," shown at "A Musical Tribute to Woody Guthrie" concert at Carnegie Hall in 1968.

lo's life and about Alice and Ray Brock, who lived in a church in Stockbridge, Mass.

Getting People Together

Still, in some ways, Guthrie thinks his and his father's outlooks are the same. "Woody was involved with unions getting people together. He was interested in getting people together in numbers. I'm interested in getting people together with themselves. It's the same thing."

"I'm not interested in riding freight trains or doing away with Hitler. (During his roving years, Woody had taped on his guitar, 'This machine shoots fascists.') I'm interested in Vietnam and Biafra, what is happening in the world now. Woody would have been interested in the same things."

Woody Guthrie died in 1967 of Huntington's Chorea, a progressive degeneration of the nervous system. He went into the hospital when Arlo, oldest of the three children of his second marriage, was 7.

"Woody used to come home all the time," Guthrie says. "We went to visit him when he couldn't make it home. We didn't compare notes on singing; we used to sing all the time. His friends would come and we'd all sing. It was groovy. I liked all his stuff."

All Woody's stuff is more than 1,000 songs he wrote, including "Oklahoma Hills," "This Land is Your Land," "So Long It's Been Good To Know Yuh," "This Train Is Bound for Glory," "Dust Bowl Refugee," "Blowing Down This Old Dusty Road," "Reuben James."

Although Arlo took part, along with Bob Dylan, Pete Seeger, Judy Collins and Jack Elliott, in a memorial Carnegie Hall concert in 1968 in which all the songs sung were Woody's, he says, "I guess people would rather have me do my own stuff. There aren't many people who can get away singing old stuff these days."

Guthrie doesn't intend to rest on his own old stuff, either. This year he refused to sing "Alice's Restaurant" at Newport. He's written a number of songs since that one and he sang some of those.

"People are concerned about individual performers because they're concerned about their own personalities," Guthrie says. "The more they can see through performers the more they can interpret through themselves."

"This year seems to be the year for finding out things, for preparing for the world. Those people that are prepared will be willing to accept it. Those that aren't will have to go with the old one."

"It's got nothing to do with a generation gap. I don't believe in that. There are ignorant kids and ignorant adults, beautiful kids and beautiful adults. Just because there are more beautiful kids doesn't mean there is a generation gap. The generation gap is only an excuse for not getting home at night or for not liking your kid. It's a good excuse, but it's not very realistic."

"There's a vibration gap, though. People want to be able to learn without being afraid of what they're going to find out and they don't want other people to put them up-tight. Kids all want the same thing — to find out what is happening."

Ballroom Teams Are Again Popular

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Cheek to cheek dancing is making a comeback among the younger sets, and, as trends go, that means ballroom dance teams are not far behind.

Ed Sims, one-half of a dance team that includes blonde Audre Dechmann, one-time Miss America contestant, suggests that ballroom dance teams may be enjoying a new popularity because "people are tired of listening to old stale jokes."

Whatever the reasons, Ed and Audre have been enjoying enthusiastic audience receptions that have been unknown since Marge and Gower Champion retired 10 years ago.

Young People

And their admirers aren't the other side of 30 either. Audre happily explains that young people are looking — and enjoying. Of course, Ed and Audre's routines are a blend of the old and the new. They update duo dancing with a formula that includes ballet, rock 'n' roll, and a trace of African primitive.

"We are taking mod songs and playing them in straight 44 time which gets us away from the generation gap," Sims explains. "We are giving the kids something that resembles their own sophisticated primitive dancing. The watusi with its clap under the leg, is basically from the African bush."

Ed and Audre have been anticipating the return of a ballroom dance fad for sometime. Meantime they've kept busy with cruise ship bookings; "those months at sea are great to develop new routines," says Ed.

At Palmer House

This spring they were a hit at the Palmer house in Chicago during the prom season, and the St. Regis Hotel in New York recently booked them during the height of their roof business. Manager Charles Carey spotted the crowds and quickly changed the two-week booking to two months. They are booked into other Sheraton hotels this season.

The older generation has welcomed the dance team revival.

"Comedians could carry the same jokes over hotel and night club circuits, year after year, with a new twist. Now thanks to television the audience has heard every joke with every imaginable set of characters and locale. Lots of stuff one hears today wasn't even pleasing to adults 20 years ago. It still isn't funny and the kids think of it as 'establishment humor' " Ed says.

Leaps and Lifts

Audre and Ed do certain leaps and lifts, but not the sustained lifts that were a trademark of old-time dance teams. It is more "drum solo form of Latin primitive dancing." Ed drops to his knees, Audre leaps, and with a little ballet and rock 'n' roll, a new rhythm emerges on the dance floor.

DANCING DUO — Audre Dechmann and Ed Sims are delighted with the renewed popularity of ballroom dancing. But it's not the lifts and carries of old. Today's new dance duo intersperses solid ballroom steps with ballet, rock 'n' roll and a bit of African primitive.

"A tremendous number of young people have never seen ballroom dancing," Audre explains. An 18-year-old girl told us recently that the only dance team she'd ever seen was the movie dance team of Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire.

Older folk look a little startled when the dance team takes the floor — even suspicious, Ed says. You can almost hear, "shades of Vernon Castle," but soon they see that the ballroom idiom has been turned into contemporary choreography and the mature audience is with it too.

Even their clothes have a "today" look. Audre wears Partos gowns. Ed wears an Edwardian jacket.

Their prime concern is to get the audience in the mood to concentrate on their dancing. They determine how quickly they "can get to them," by a pre-performance inspection of the audience.

Saturday night audiences are usually in a party mood, but weekday audiences might be depressed rather than exhilarated. Such an audience may be looking, but not really seeing. In that situation, Ed and Audre skip the vocal bit. They keep moving about.

"We don't require that the audience sit mute as they might if they were listening to a singer or comedian. I think that is one reason dance teams may have an advantage in a new entertainment era," Audre says.

Nobody is rooting for the return of dance teams more than the duos of earlier years, say Audre and Ed. At every St. Regis performance, dance teams from the past came to see their act.

THEATER

Diversity Is in Sight

BLISSFUL — Pat and Jack Bliss, stars of the upcoming Seaview Players production of "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever" indulge in some ESP concentration in rehearsals of the play about a clairvoyant.

By NANCY HUTCHINS

Diversity is an important ingredient to good theater. Luckily, Monmouth County seems to be getting a good heaping dose of diversity in the theatrical offerings this year. Last year was just a bit dull, with an overabundance of situation comedies that didn't do justice to the potential of the active groups in the area.

Monmouth County's theatrical season opens next month on a variety of offerings. The month will see the debut of a new group, the B-C Company, presenting "The Drunkard" Nov. 1 and 2 in the Casino Theater, Beach Way, Keansburg. This long-running off-Broadway piece will be presented both days at 8:40 p.m., with a Sunday matinee at 2:30 p.m. Heading the cast are two New Yorkers, Ignatius Modica and Miss Mary Lynn, and a Cliffwood Beach man, Bruce O'Keefe. Director Barbara Crover hopes to develop the company into a repertoire group, expanding its offerings from the club events and tours of its past.

Seaview's First

Seaview Players, now in its seventh year, is the first of the older groups to open this fall. Their production of "On a Clear Day, You Can See Forever," will be presented Nov. 1, 7, 8, and 15, in the Savoy Theater in Asbury Park.

Heading the Seaview cast will be the husband and wife team of Pat and Jack Bliss, who will share equal billing for the first time in this production although they have appeared together before. Mrs. Bliss is a bright sprite of a woman, whose many appearances on local stages met with favor from critics and audience. She was particularly effective in last year's Center Drama Workshop production of "The Miracle Worker." Mr. Bliss has been active with the Deal Summer Theater, appearing in either lead or featured roles, as well as stints with Center Drama and Seaview.

Also in the cast will be Roy Brown, Steve Sgromolo, Mark Ellentuck, Helen O'Brien, Harold Rice in a dual role, and Alexandra Reynolds. Set design is by Lonia Efthymiou, direction by Vince Hartnett, with Mike Brody, Dorothy Farah, and Dave Frey assisting in the respective roles of music, dance, and stage managers.

Membership Grows

Some 100 members keep the Players going, with new people joining with each new production. Meetings take place the third Wednesday of each month, and meeting details may be obtained by writing Seaview Players, Box 717, Eatontown.

Continuing November's theater season is Wagon Wheel Player's presentation of "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running," to be held in the Village School, Holmdel, Nov. 6, 7 and 8. Benefit tickets are being sold for the Nov. 8 date by the Matawan Chapter of Women's American ORT to raise funds for the ORT vocational schools which educate underprivileged children.

'Swan Lake' Due Next

Adding even more diversity to the month is the second event in the Monmouth Arts Foundation Cultural Series, the National Ballet of Canada in "Swan Lake" Nov. 3 in the Carlton Theater. Since the series is sold on a subscription basis, no tickets are now available.

One of the major Monmouth diversions is the Monmouth Civic Chorus, whose activities are designed to keep music lovers happy. Besides the choral works, the area looks forward to the group's spring musical production. This year, for good measure, the group will present an old hand in the 20th anniversary program. Gordon Pagdin, conductor of the chorus for 13 years until he moved from the area in 1962, will return to lend his fine baton hand to the Christmas portions of Handel's Messiah Sunday, Dec. 7 in the Rumson-Fair Haven Regional High School.

Shah of Iran Set To 'Meet the Press'

NEW YORK — The Shah of Iran, Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, will be the guest on "Meet the Press" Sunday at 1 p.m. on channel 4.

Lawrence E. Spivak, producer and permanent panelist of "Meet the Press," will be the moderator.

Interviewing the Shah will be John Hightower of the Associated Press, Marquis Childs of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Stewart Hensley of United Press International, and John Chancellor of NBC News.

"THE DAYDREAMER"

WELCOME — Al Monaco of Rumson opens inner door of Wine Barrel, inviting guests to a new and intimate dining experience. (Register Staff Photos)

NEW — Facade on Willowbrook Inn, 740 River Road, Fair Haven, has been remodeled to accommodate new dining room, the Wine Barrel.

Willowbrook Has Rathskeller

By FLORENCE BRUDER
FAIR HAVEN — Step through the door of the Wine Barrel at the Willowbrook Inn, 740 River Road, and you enter a different culinary world.

Open for luncheon and dinner, the new room on the lower level of the landmark restaurant is unique.

Hand-hewn beams, red tablecloths, an inviting fireplace, dim lighting and an appetizing menu make up, in atmosphere and fact, an appealing eating place.

Owner William Spreen is German, and he knows how to whip up a rathskeller feeling.

With a new facade outside, the place invites shoppers in for luncheon and, later, more leisurely diners. Hours are 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and 5 to 10 p.m., later on Saturdays.

With a seating capacity of 17 tables of varying sizes, the Wine Barrel offers a tasty smorgasbord for lunch, plus such favorites as Reuben sandwiches, Hungarian goulash, shrimp salad and a variety of sandwiches.

The a la carte dinner menu specializes in appetizers such as Rumaki (chicken livers wrapped in bacon and hot mustard), clams, oysters and crepes suzettes with seafood.

The main fare includes sauerbraten, fresh broiled lobster and roast prime ribs of beef.

The Sinacoris Sing Wednesday

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS — "The Singing Sinacoris" from Peoria, Ill., will do a musical program at Emmanuel Baptist Church Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Danny Sinacori served as minister of music at Trinity Temple in Peoria. He has been in demand by quartets and evangelists for his musical talents. He also has written musical compositions which he includes in his presentations.

Chris Sinacori was soloist at Trinity Temple, but now travels with her husband. Emmanuel Baptist is at Rt. 36 and Seventh Ave.

LENNONS LOSE BABY
LONDON (AP) — Yoko Ono, 34-year-old wife of Beatle John Lennon, has lost the baby she was expecting in two months. It was her second miscarriage. She lost her first baby by Lennon last November, three months before it was due.

broiled filet mignon and lobster tail.

Desserts include creamy cheesecake, rice pudding and shortcake, as well as a dash of Irish coffee, made with 10-year-old Irish whisky.

The bar is large and comfortable, with captains' chairs surrounding it, and candlelights behind.

As you enter, there is a wine press in the foyer, and a wine barrel made into an occasional table.

As you walk through the door, carved out of a giant wine barrel, you enter a room with crests on the wall and sparkling white napkins on the tables.

The cocktails are generous and the prices reasonable on both food and liquor.

It is a clean place, in keeping with its German origin, and the waitresses are most cordial.

Harold Craft is the chef. From Keyport, he has had extensive experience on railroad dining cars.

The stones used in the facade are from Italy and the pillars in front of the Willowbrook are new.

SCHOOL CONFERENCES
HAZLET — Parent-teacher conferences will be held in Raritan High School cafeteria Monday and Tuesday from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 12:30 to 3 p.m.
