3 Republicans at Congress

Fete Deny Political Intent

By BEN VAN VIET

WASHINGTON — Three of the four leading contenders for the Republican nomination for the 3rd congressional seat showed up at the 33rd annual congressional dinner sponsored by the N.J. Chamber of Commerce.

They all denied that their presence was in any way "politically inspired." Meanwhile, Monmouth County GOP chairman Benjamin H. Danskin said there has been no decision regarding the party's choice for a man to oppose incumbent Democrat James J. Howard.

However, it was learned that Mr. Danskin is prodding Assemblymen Joseph Azzolina and James M. Coleman to take a shot at the election. Both flatly have turned down the nomination.

Mr. Azzolina was considered a top choice for the slot two years ago, but withdrew in favor of the late Marcus Daly. Mr. Coleman ran for the office four years ago and lost.

A growing number of Republicans say confidently that this year's congressional race is all but lost because of a lack of strong candidates, a general lack of interest, and the effect of this being an off-year election with no strong candidate heading the ticket.

Mr. Howard said he still views himself as "the underdog" in this off-year election. A spokesman for the congressman suggested that maybe the Republicans should spare themselves the expense of running a campaign and simply endorse Mr. Howard.

This suggestion was greeted with less than enthusiastic applause by the multitude of GOP leaders here.

Seated across from the dinner table from Mr. Apy was

The present leading candidate for the Republican congressional nod, former Assemblyman Chester Apy, said he's still waiting to hear from the party leaders.

Mr. Apy, who is waiting word from someone concerning his political future, said that, if he doesn't get a solid invitation within ten days on whether he'll be getting either a state or county post, he'll strive in earnest for the congressional nomination.

Apy Is Available

Mr. Apy said he would consider accepting either a cabinet post in the Cahill administration or perhaps the job as Monmouth County prosecutor.

Mr. Apy refused to say which he would prefer. "I'm not going to be drawn into that position," he said.

Seated across from the dinner table from Mr. Apy was Brian T. Kennedy, another congressional hopeful.

Mr. Kennedy has already told the county GOP delegation that he didn't want the job if he wasn't selected by Feb. 1.

Well, he wasn't selected and he said last night that he still hasn't changed his mind.

And then there's William Dowd, Long Branch, who is serving as special assistant to President Nixon.

Nothing Significant

Mr. Dowd, 26, said there was nothing significant about his appearance here. He noted, however, that he lives in a bachelor apartment across 16th avenue from the Statler Hilton Hotel.

Mr. Dowd said it couldn't hurt his cause to appear here with most of the people who count in Monmouth (Republicans, Pg. 2, Col. 1)

Ylvisaker Is Seen Out to Try

For Williams Seat in Senate

By BEN VAN VIET

WASHINGTON — Paul N. Ylvisaker, former N.J. commissioner of community affairs, reportedly will seek the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Democrat Harrison A. Williams.

A high ranking Washington Democrat, who declined to be identified, said last night that Mr. Ylvisaker will announce his intentions within two weeks. He said the popular Democrat, who occupied a position of high regard, during the Hughes administration, has quietly been seeking moral support throughout the state.

"Paul has acquired a surprising amount of support," the Democrat said. "And we expect that he will decide to seek the senatorial nomination."

This makes at least the second threat to Senator Williams from within the Democratic ranks. State Sen. Frank J. Guarini Jr., R-Hudson, already has expressed an interest in seeking the senatorial nomination.

Sen. Williams, however, has ignored these reported challenges. He told The Daily Register last week that if Sen. Guarini seeks the nomination, "That's his business." And he told The Daily Register ister here last night that he had "no comment" on Mr. Ylvisaker's intentions.

The junior senator said, "As you know, the time (the primary election) hasn't arrived yet, and when the time comes, I'll let you know what I'm going to do." Then he laughed.

While Sen. Williams hasn't said he's running for a third term, he's very busy meeting speaking engagements throughout the state, and has even told reporters that he's confident of receiving support from both labor and the minority groups.

Nixon War on Pollution Goes to the People

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

CHICAGO (AP) — President Nixon and a Cabinet team blended pollution problems with practical politics today as part of a campaign to bring government closer to the people.

The President started trying to close the government-people gap after a conference with mayors of middle-sized cities in Indianapolis yesterday.

Conference Set

In advance of an antipollution conference with the governors of Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan, the first thing on the schedule today was an inspection of a pioneering sewage water treatment plant.

Nixon's big jet landed at Chicago's O'Hare Field. He shifted to a helicopter there that lifted him over the city to Meigs Field on the lake front for a civic reception at which Democratic Mayor Richard J. Daley didn't stint the honors.

There were fireworks and fire boats and hundreds of balloons soaring into the sky.

And hundreds of people were on hand, some of them young Republican standard bearers, to shout greetings.

Sees Air Pollution

Then he had a chance to see air pollution from the air on a flight to Chicago past smoking plants at the tip of Lake Michigan.

Nixon's big jet landed at Chicago's O'Hare Field. He shifted to a helicopter there that lifted him over the city cago Loop. Since September 1968 it has been turning polluted water into 99 per cent pure water which industry can use.

The President also is doing a bit of pioneering in the Midwest.

He flew his Urban Affairs Council, made up mainly of Cabinet members, from Washington to Indianapolis to confer with nine mayors from over the nation on puzzling urban problems. Never before had the council met outside of Washington.

Discuss Aims

Nixon brought his Cabinet committee on environmental quality — mostly the same men — to Chicago to discuss with the quartet of lake state governors his aims and hopes for what he has termed a "now or never" campaign to wipe out pollution and save the environment in the 1970s.

The presidential expedition to the lake area had its political touches. Nixon pumped hands and made short talks at almost every opportunity. Republican stalwarts with placards and cheers greeted him on his arrivals in both Indianapolis and Chicago.

Antiwar demonstrators turned up in both places — noisily but without causing any notable trouble.

Their shouts and chanting could be heard in the distance when Nixon was speaking to a crowd in the plaza before the Indianapolis City-County Building.

Cahill Warns Insurance Industry He'll Use Force

By JAMES H. RUBIN

TRENTON (AP) — Gov. William T. Cahill has put the automobile insurance industry on notice that his administration will deal forcefully with any effort to force increases in rates by threatening to withdraw liability coverage.

Cahill said yesterday he was alarmed at reports that insurers had without cause refused to renew liability policies in New Jersey. He pledged that he would not tolerate such practices.

The governor coupled the warning with an announcement that his administration would decide within a week on a request for an interim rate hike by 140 companies.

Cahill has indicated that he reluctantly favors granting the increase to alleviate the industry's financial problems.

The governor did not spell out what he had in mind by "forceful" action to curtail increases in rates by threatening to withdraw liability coverage.

Cahill met with legislative leaders and disclosed these other developments in a news conference afterwards.

—He said he anticipates final legislative passage Monday of his proposed 2 per cent increase in the sales tax and hopes to name a commission within two weeks to propose an overhaul of New Jersey's tax structure, including consideration of an income tax.

—His administration will study plans for increasing taxes paid by savings banks and savings and loan institutions in line with a pending proposal to raise commercial bank stock taxes.

Plans Cited

—Cahill said he plans to implement at least the first stage of a $271 million water pollution control bond issue approved by the voters last year to purchase six reservoir sites.

On Tuesday, State Banking and Insurance Commissioner Robert L. Clifford announced that the increase was being reinstated following a hearing before his agency.

Aetna Casualty and Surety Co. has threatened to refuse to renew auto insurance policies in all 21 counties but left the way open for consideration of a plan recommended by the State Investigation Commission to establish full-time regional prosecutors offices for smaller counties.

The latest troubles over auto insurance in New Jersey were touched off by the action of Travelers Indemnity Co. in refusing to roll back a 26 per cent interim rate hike.

Expanded Education Bill Section Near Senate Vote

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today moved toward a vote on a key measure to expand an aid-to-education program President Nixon wants reduced drastically.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., sponsored the amendment to eliminate a provision from the $35 billion education bill adding children from public housing projects to the federal impacted school aid program.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., sponsored the amendment to eliminate a provision from the $35 billion education bill adding children from public housing projects to the federal impacted school aid program.

Dominick argued yesterday the expansion is not in keeping with the original purpose of the 10-year-old impacted areas program that has provided an increasing amount of aid to school districts crowded because of nearby federal installations.

Cost to Rise

Dominick said the program would add $236 million a year to the cost of the program during the current budget year, but Congress voted $600 million. Congress now is trying to work out a new funding bill.

Supporters of the move to add public housing projects to the impacted area program contend the large tax-exempt developments can add as much of a burden to a district's schools as military bases.

Aid to impacted areas was a main issue in the dispute between Nixon and the Congress over a $19.7 billion health-education money bill the President successfully vetoed last month. The administration originally proposed $200 million for the impact program during the current budget year, but Congress voted $600 million. Congress now is trying to work out a new funding bill.

Another Development

In another development on education aid programs in sight, southern senators were readying proposals to stop the drive to complete desegregation of schools in their region. The senators are proposing riders to the bill which seek to give their region assurance of choice plans can be maintained in their schools.

Republican Politicos Stay Mum

Mr. Dowd said he intends to announce his intentions as far as the congressional nomination is concerned. He indicated that he might even oppose Mr. Apel who is, at present, regarded as the front runner.

The fourth announced possible candidate, Irving E. Keith, who reportedly has designs on the county prosecutor's job, didn't attend the Washington bash.

The Republicans reportedly will meet within a month to make their choice for the congressional nomination.

Union Beach Presents $701,783 Budget Total

UNION BEACH — A general appropriations budget totaling $701,783 was introduced last night by Borough Council. The budget, reflecting an increase of $71,450, will be aired publicly March 12.

Of the total budget $280,865 must be raised through local taxation, an increase of $125,302.

Based on a revaluation program that increases rates from $21.3 million last year to an anticipated $29 million this year, the overall tax rate will increase 10 cents to $4.53 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Broken down it will read: 97 cents for municipal purposes, up from 73 cents; $2.75 for schools, up from $2.66; 66 cents for county purposes, down from 84 cents and 15 cents for veterans and senior citizens deductions, down from 20 cents.

Council has allotted $543,183 for municipal purposes, an increase of $34,036; and $158,600 as a reserve for uncollected taxes, an increase of $37,414.

Council introduced an ordinance appropriating $72,000 for construction of a municipal garage on land adjacent to the water works on Florence Ave.

The 40-by-80-foot six-bay structure will be used to house all borough owned equipment. Public hearing on the measure will be held Feb. 26.

Bids for the borough's garbage collection contract will also be received Feb. 26.

The present contract totals $49,000 and is held by the Petrozelli-Mapplewood Co.

Council received $8,000 in state formula funds toward resurfacing of a section of Poole Ave. from Morningside Ave. to Stone Road. The project is expected to get under way in early spring.

the Project Harmony group said it will work to bring together involved people in Red Bank and surrounding communities to consider problems of an interracial nature and to recommend to appropriate public bodies and private agencies courses of action for alleviating them.

The Rev. Leonard Rowell, a member of the borough's Human Rights Commission, was appointed Project Harmony's temporary chairman by Mayor O'Hern. The mayor also named David J. Lewis, general secretary of the Community YMCA, as the group's secretary.

The Project Harmony group includes representatives from the Borough Council, Board of Education, school administration and student body; the Community Center; Concerned Citizens; Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, Local 39; Chamber of Commerce; National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and its youth group; the Westside Ministerium, and Westside businessmen.

Present at the meeting, in addition to the Rev. Mr. Rowell and Mr. Lewis, were Aaron Knight, Community Center director; Patrolman William Heyer; Police Chief Leroy McKnight; Superintendent of Schools Robert C. Hoops; Curtis Murphy; Calvin Johnson; Dr. Ivan Polonsky; Mrs. Jessie Boykin; Detective Lt. Robert Scott; Louis Vaiti; Fire Chief Thomas Hemschott; Community Chamber of Commerce executive vice president Jack T. Phinney; Victor Ransom; Detective Lt. Benjamin Glover; the Rev. Marcus Pierce; John Setaro; Stafford Thompson; Edward Jacobs and Mayor O'Hern.

HOLMDEL — Local residents will get their first look at the long-awaited master plan in a series of three monthly public meetings announced last night by the Board.

The three sessions will be on the second Thursdays of the next three months, at 8:30 p.m. in the Intermediate School. The first, scheduled March 12, will disclose proposed land use and traffic circulation maps incorporated in the new planning scheme.

Planning Board chairman Larabee M. Smith said small scale versions of the map will be available to those attending the public meetings.

The second session, set for April 9, will invite comments from the public on the March presentation, and will unveil the proposed community facilities map. The third meeting May 14 will revolve around public comment on the three maps and general discussion of the entire master plan.

Preparation of the new master plan has been underway for more than a year by the professional planning firm of Robert Catlin and Associates. While the Planning Board has not revealed any details, major changes in land use are expected in some areas of the township.

One minor adjustment in present land use was recommended by the planners last night. The board sent to the Township Committee a proposal to rezone more than 900 acres as an office-research laboratory zone.

NEWARK — The two mediators in the Newark teacher strike have bowed out, at least temporarily, after representatives for the teachers said they would not negotiate while their members were being arrested.

The mediators, Theodore Kheel and Lewis Kaden, said in a statement Thursday night that they had "withdrawn from the dispute for the time being although we remain available to return to Newark if negotiations can be resumed."

A negotiating session set for last night was called off. Earlier, three strike leaders, Carole Graves, president of the Newark Teachers Union; Frank Florito, NTU executive vice president, and Donald Nicholas, a member of the union's executive committee, had been arrested on contempt of court charges for not calling an end to the strike following a court order prohibiting it.

Turnpike Pileup Mystery Seen

CHERRY HILL — A mysterious blue car or truck may have started a 28-vehicle pileup on the New Jersey Turnpike last November and then left the scene, according to a highway safety specialist.

George A. Larsen Jr. of the National Transportation Safety Board testified yesterday before the federal commission investigating the Nov. 29 accident in which 6 persons were killed.

He said so many vehicles in the accident were hit more than once that it would be "almost impossible to ever determine which vehicles arrived when, and what they hit."

Blonde Named In Death Plot

CLEVELAND, Ohio — Annette Gilly, 29, a slender blonde, has been named by a federal grand jury as a fourth conspirator in an alleged murder-for-hire plot to kill Joseph Yablonski.

Mrs. Gilly, whose husband, Paul, 36, also is charged in the case, was to be arraigned today. Her attorney, Gerald S. Gold, said he would seek a reduction of her $250,000 bond.

The grand jury, which was expected to conclude its second week of hearings today, earlier indicted Gilly along with Claude E. Vealey, 26, and Aubrey W. Martin, 21, on the conspiracy charges. All are from Cleveland.

Garbage Bill Action Held

TRENTON — Gov. William T. Cahill said yesterday he wants the Assembly to postpone action on legislation designed to prevent mobsters from taking over the garbage industry until he decides which of two legal approaches he prefers.

Assembly Speaker William K. Dickey, R-Camden, said that a package of three bills, sponsored by Assemblyman Peter Moraite, R-Bergen, will be held up until Cahill makes his decision.

The Moraite bills were in line for votes Monday, but Cahill asked legislative leaders to give his administration until next Thursday to decide whether it favors placing the industry under control of the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners or the State Health Department.

States Attack Penn Central

TRENTON — The New Jersey Board of Public Utility Commissioners joined yesterday with utility commissions in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia in a crackdown on Penn Central railroad service.

William E. Ozzard, New Jersey board president, said the five states have agreed to pool their resources to "establish uniform standards with which the railroad must comply in every state."

The Penn Central operates in all five states.

"With railroad service deteriorating and accidents increasing," Ozzard said, "this regional approach to dealing with the Penn Central is necessary to insure the railroad's compliance with their duty to provide safe, adequate and proper service."

Prison Reforms Are Urged

WASHINGTON — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger today urged the states to adopt simple, workable procedures to give every prisoner with a grievance the opportunity for a prompt and fair hearing.

Burger, in a speech prepared for the National Association of Attorney Generals, proposed also that staffs of lawyers be available to all prisoners to advise them and help prepare appeals.

The chief justice said such reforms would help "restore state supreme courts to their rightful place in the sun as the primary arbiters of the state cases."

Yablonski Probe Continues

WASHINGTON — Five days before he was beaten at a rally, word was sent down from United Mine Workers headquarters "to discipline Jock Yablonski," a Senate group investigating the union had been told.

Joseph A. Yablonski Jr. told a Senate labor subcommittee yesterday the beating at a union rally in Springfield, Ill., was one of the first indications of the "reign of terror" that enveloped his late father's campaign for the union presidency and still haunts his family and supporters.

Dismissed Aide Seeks Mayoralty

NEWARK — John P. Caufield, dismissed as Newark fire director last week when he refused to support Mayor Hugh J. Addonizio for a third term, announced Thursday he wants the mayor's job.

Caufield is the sixth candidate to announce for the mayoralty post in the May election.

Addonizio, under federal indictment with other city officials on charges of extortion and tax evasion, announced his candidacy last week.

Caufield said when fired he could not support Addonizio because the mayor had "lost the confidence of the people."

Panther Hearing Disrupted

NEW YORK — When defendants interrupt their trials with loud protests, jeers and obscenities, what can the judge do to maintain order in the court? Recent courtroom disturbances in New York and Chicago have brought this legal question into the spotlight.

In the "Chicago Eight" conspiracy trial, federal Judge Julius J. Hoffman ordered Black Panther leader Bobby Seale chained and gagged after he continually shouted demands for the right to represent himself.

Hoffman later sentenced Seale to four years in prison on 16 counts of contempt of court. He also revoked the bail of David T. Delling, another defendant, who shouted an obscenity. Delling was jailed Wednesday.

Carswell Denies Rights Bias

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court nominee G. Harrold Carswell has emphatically denied he was hostile or disinterested to civil rights litigants and their attorneys.

"Lawyers from all parts of the nation have practiced before me over the years without any suggestion of any act or word of courtesy or hostility on my part," Judge Carswell said yesterday in a letter to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

And Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said the Committee has received numerous telegrams, letters and telephone calls from judges, lawyers and litigants—"including Negro civil rights lawyers"—backing Carswell's denial.

Gulf Agreement Repeat Possible

WASHINGTON — A Republican defender of President Nixon's Vietnam policy says a proposal to repeal the Tonkin Gulf resolution stands the best chance of approval among nine measures under consideration by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

But even that effort may not get enough support from the 15-member committee to be sent to the full Senate, Kentucky Sen. John Sherman Cooper said in an interview after Thursday's hearing—the last of the week.

WEIGHING IN — Clint Hasenohr, scoutmaster of Troop 8 of Red Bank, checks the weight of one sled entry in the Klondike Derby, a winter skill program to be held Feb. 14 in Middletown. Jack Fenton, left, official weightmaster, prepares to record sled weight on official entry blank. Sleds must weigh 80 pounds or more. Scoutmaster John Cox, right front, and Commissioner William Bishop look on.

Klondike Derby Slated At Middletown Feb. 14

MIDDLETOWN — "The Klondike Derby," a winter skill program for 800 Scouts and leaders of the Great Northern District of Red Bank, Middletown and Highlands, will be held Feb. 14 at Deep Dale Farms, Red Hill Road, Sidney Duhl, of the American Lumber Co., and owner of the property, made the area available for the event.

Tomorrow at 1 p.m. here in the Sears Roebuck and Co. parking lot, the official sled weighing-in will take place. The sleds must weigh 80 pounds or more.

The program, planned for a Scouting birthday, is fashioned after the great gold rush of Alaska. Patrol teams of eight scouts will pull Klondike-type sleds through seven stations on the property to test their winter skill abilities.

This year's derby governor is Jay Guyer of Little Silver with Otto Speth of Belford as lieutenant governor. In charge of the seven stations are William Bishop of Post 141, John Patt of Troop 250, Omero Benachetti of Troop 127, Tom Dunlap of Troop 50, William Maire of Troop 140, Edward Cote of Troop 32, and John Cox of Troop 201. Official scorer will be Harry Stahl of Belford. Edward Weickert of Lincroft is in charge of registration with Sidney Bell of River Plaza as weightmaster.

Sandy Hook Inlet Seen Set for Fast Decision

By PAUL KERN

NEW YORK — The 29-year-old question of the feasibility and value of an inlet connecting the Atlantic Ocean with Raritan Bay via Sandy Hook should be answered sometime next month.

At a closed hearing here yesterday, the Army Corps of Engineers presented the results of experiments conducted in Vicksburg, Miss., and promised the answers to the final questions will be available next month.

About 75 persons, 11 of them from Monmouth County, attended the hearing and heard a review of all the results of tests the corps has been conducting on a model of Sandy Hook and its surrounding area over the last three years.

Some new questions were raised about possible siphoning of pollution from New York Harbor, changes in salinity and its effect on shellfish beds and scouring action.

Test Slated

Although the engineers said they think pollution from New York Harbor would be diverted by tidal action created by the inlet pushing the pollutants out to sea, they will enlarge the Vicksburg model to include New York Harbor and study the effects this month.

Plans to fund the project, estimated at $8 million, include the federal government, New Jersey, Monmouth County and municipalities on Raritan Bay and the Shrewsbury and Navesink Rivers all sharing the cost with the biggest burden going to the federal and state governments.

Freeholder Director Joseph C. Irwin, a longtime proponent of the inlet, said when the study is complete and a public hearing is held next month, "it will be a matter of dollars and cents and where the money will come from."

Experts Get Copies

Experts have been given copies of the report delivered today but not released to the public and the experts have been given a maximum of one month to comment before the public hearing and the decision is made.

Others attending the meeting were Timothy Lynch representing Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., Freeholder Albert E. Allen and Charles M. Pike, Monmouth County Planning Director.

Although a date has not been set for public hearing, county officials, including Mr. Howard are pressing for a hearing as soon as possible.

Restaurant, Theater Planned in Township

MATAWAN TOWNSHIP — Strathmore residents will be able to sup on Kentucky fried chicken and attend a movie all within walking distance if plans presented last night to the Planning Board are realized.

The board classified as a major subdivision an application by Gino's Inc., Clark, to split a large lot on the south bound side of Rt. 34 just north of Lloyd Road to provide a site for an $85,000 Gino's Restaurant, franchised for Kentucky Fried Chicken, among other short order goodies. Public hearing on the subdivision will be Thursday, March 5.

Public hearing on the subdivision will be Thursday, March 5.

Gino's Restaurants operate in eight states and the District of Columbia. Nearest one in operation is in Sayreville.

The Strathmore movie theater, proposed by Coulson

Enterprises, Inc., 1008 Rt. 35, on Cambridge Drive near the Scruba-Dub Car Wash, will cost $100,000. Seating 480, it will cover 5,600 square feet and will have 90 on-site parking spaces.

The theater site plan was referred to the site plan subcommittee for review and recommendations.

Final approval subject to granting of sewer permits was given a site plan for a $100,000 office building, 10,000 square feet in area, with 58 parking places, proposed for Rt. 34 opposite Matawan Mall by Stanley Seidenberg, Thomas M. W. Moule and Abraham Kruka, partners.

NEW SHREWSBURY — Mayor Francis L. Cooper said last night he is "appalled by the apathy or euphoria of citizens in the vital area of education."

Council had just been officially informed of the rejection of the Monmouth Regional High School budget at the polls last Tuesday.

Voters in Eatontown had voted in favor of the budget two to one, but voters in New Shrewsbury overwhelmingly voted against it.

The councils of the three constituent districts, New Shrewsbury, Shrewsbury Township and Eatontown, will meet with the Monmouth Regional High School Board of Education on Feb. 17 to discuss the budget.

"When I review in my mind," Mayor Cooper said, "that only some 800 citizens in our three communities voted upon the budget, I am appalled. For years our dollars have gone at the rate of 68 to 70 cents out of each tax dollar to the so-called education bite, and yet for years the public has demonstrated a tremendous lack of interest, lack of understanding and an apathetic approach."

"As a result of this apathy," Mayor Cooper said, "your elected school boards are confused, your state authorities are lethargic in at-parking ordinance regulations; and a complaint from Ambrose Walker of Drift Road, about hazardous walking conditions for students of Swimming River School in the vicinity of the Mallard Building at the intersection of Hance Ave. and Apple St., caused by snow piled on sidewalks.

Mr. Walker also complained to Council against the creation of slum conditions in certain buildings in the Pinebrook area, where people are forced to live in apartments without water and inappropriate toilet facilities. Council agreed to investigate and instigate proceedings.

Admiral Andrew Shepard complained to council that for many years storm sewers in the Riverdale Ave. area have remained without metal grill covers, creating a hazard for young children. Council resolved to carry out repairs immediately.

Three Major Factors Are Behind Carswell's Success

News

Analysis

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — G. Harrold Carswell's emerging triumph where Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. failed may be traced to at least three factors.

— Labor never worked itself up into a lather over Carswell.

— Stocks and bonds never held a fascination for the Florida judge.

— Politicians can afford to be mavericks just so many times.

And there probably is a fourth good reason. Something that may be called the pressure of the inevitable.

Carswell and Haynsworth started out on the road to Abe Fortas' seat on the Supreme Court with much in common.

Both are experienced federal judges. Both are Southerners with a conservative outlook. Both offered the prospect of contributing to the balance President Nixon and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell find lacking in the court.

But there are important differences, too.

Haynsworth is a shy man, afflicted with a stammer that made his testifying before the Senate Judiciary Committee painful.

Carswell, with a past fling at both politics and newspaper work, was a responsive witness, almost never giving an evasive impression.

This hurt Haynsworth among small-state senators, politicians who generally don't have to worry too much about the sensibilities of organized labor or blacks.

For instance, when the Senate voted, there were unanimous "nays" from Idaho, Montana, New Mexico and Nevada.

Carswell never has had to wrestle with "ethics" allegations and insinuations. He told the Judiciary Committee on his first day as a witness that he owns no stocks or bonds whatsoever.

Attacked on Front

He has been attacked on one front alone, civil rights.

Carswell has another big thing going for him — the fact of life that is party regularity.

Politicians, party leaders especially, can be independent just so many times. A man who votes too often against the party soon will experience painful stings and pressures.

Seventeen Republicans, including Senate party leaders Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, Robert P. Griffin of Michigan and Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, turned their backs on Nixon and voted against Carswell.

The Senate has 43 Republicans. Haynsworth lost 55 to.

Can 17 Republicans — assuming they disapprove as much of Carswell — vote against the White House again?

There is, in the capital, a feeling that Nixon and Mitchell inevitably will get their kind of judge to the Supreme Court.

This fatalism has helped Carswell, too, eroding inciment opposition in the expectation the White House will have its way eventually, so why hold out on this particular judge.

HOMEOWNERS CORNER

By ROBBY ROBINSON

Somewhere in your house is a main switch that shuts off all the electricity in the place. At the same spot there's also a fuse panel or circuit breaker panel to shut off parts of your house wiring automatically if you plug in more gadgets than the wiring is supposed to handle.

This can save you a lot of inconvenience if the lights suddenly go out when a fuse blows. It may also let you prevent a serious electrical fire if something should ever go seriously haywire in your household electrical system.

It is also important to have a one-stop and complete hardware store where you may purchase at a moment's notice all those necessary building and repair items. Our fantastic stock includes lumber, millwork, Andersen products, paint, tools, hardware, paneling, ceiling tile, cinder blocks, Sakrete, Formica, roofing materials and cabinet hardware here at LITTLE SILVER LUMBER, Sycamore Ave., Little Silver, 741-7800. Charge accounts welcome.

HELPFUL HINT: Never replace a fuse with one that has a higher rating marked on it. The fuse won't blow when it's supposed to and wiring will get hot.

Howard Presses Fort Sewer System Hookup

By PAUL KERN

WASHINGTON — Pressure is being put on President Nixon to spend in Monmouth County part of the $359 million fund he set up to control pollution from federal installations.

Representative James J. Howard (D-N.J.) has written a letter to the President pushing for funds to connect Ft. Monmouth with the Northeast Monmouth County Regional Sewerage Authority. (NEMCRSA).

A letter from the congressman's office has also gone out to Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the powerful House Armed Services Committee which has failed in the past to include funds for the hook-up in service construction appropriations bills.

President Nixon announced yesterday he is making the $359 million available over three years to clean up pollution emanating from federal installations and called for all federal facilities to comply with his clean air and water order by Dec. 31, 1972.

The president's newly designated chairman of the Council on Environmental Quality, Russell E. Train, said the Department of Defense is the greatest government contributor to pollution.

According to Mr. Train, the federal budget that goes into effect on July 1 includes $52 million to control pollution from federal installations and the President has ordered the Department of Defense to appropriate an additional $40 million from its budget for a total of $92 million that will be available after July 1.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., long in favor of connecting the fort with the NEMCRSA, has warned that if a solution isn't found for the fort-caused pollution in the Shrewsbury River, the state could compel the army base to build an ocean outfall line that will cost over $2 million.

The alternative, the Senator said, is to connect the fort with the sewerage authority's disposal system for $1,790,000.

Authority Chairman Michael J. Rafferty said in December the state Department of Health and the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration will conduct

Nixon Heads in Right Direction

In 1962, when the federal government first spent more than $100 billion in one year, the nation was staggered by the immensity of this country's involvements and commitments.

How could any government raise and spend that much money? Unfortunately, of course, it wasn't raising in those days as much as it spent. One result was the fueling of inflation which now approaches runaway dimensions.

Against that backdrop, it is astounding that — in less than a decade — the President presents an "austerity" budget for fiscal 1971 that calls for roughly doubling what the government spent in 1962.

Had Mr. Nixon given more sympathetic heed to the requests for military and domestic programs, the budget would have substantially exceeded the $200.8 billion called for. Such is the growth of the nation's needs, real or imagined.

Federal budgeting is more than an exercise in accounting. It also reflects the Administration's sense of priorities. Here, it seems to us, is where President Nixon's first budget merits closest attention.

It is significant that the budget shifts emphasis from defense spending to domestic programs. Although criti-cics of the war in Vietnam and of military spending in general are not satisfied with the pace of the direction in which the Administration is moving, it is pleasing to note that the new budget's $71.191 billion for defense is $5.31 billion under this year's level, and, according to the White House, $9.5 billion less than the plan once proposed by the preceding Administration.

In fiscal 1971, defense spending will represent only 37 per cent of the budget as compared with 44 per cent this year. At the same time, spending for "human resources" will take 41 per cent of the next budget as compared with 34 per cent this year.

"Human resources" programs include manpower training, education, health, income security and veterans benefits and services.

The President relies heavily upon a balanced budget as a major factor in bringing inflation under control. If Congress responds favorably and provides a budget surplus, the Federal Reserve Board may be more disposed to ease its restraints on money and credit.

In all, Mr. Nixon's first budget shows commendable restraint on spending. It also moves in the direction of a better ordering of national priorities.

Counterrevolution to 747 Needed

With inauguration of service between New York and London of the huge Boeing 747 superjets, what has been described as "a true revolution in the sky" has begun.

Twice as large as what used to be the largest commercial planes, the 747s are designed to carry 490 passengers, although the first used by Pan American World Airways have a capacity of only 362 so as to provide more spacious interiors.

This "revolution" will bring absolute chaos on the ground until the air industry can meet the challenge of handling the 747s at terminals that are already bursting at the seams.

When two or more of the planes arrive carrying about 700 passengers and 1,400 pieces of luggage, they will tax the efficiency of the best airport crews. Consider, too, the automotive congestion caused by hundreds more cars trying to get into and out of terminal areas with passengers.

Transportation Secretary Volpe says the 747 should inspire solutions to airway and airport congestion. More than inspiration is needed. It should be made imperative that the air transportation industry moves quickly to develop ways and means of handling the jumbo jetliners. It should also spur action on better ground access to airports served by 747s.

Things will not get better by themselves. The same engineers who designed the 490-seat plane are working on an enlarged version that will carry 1,000 passengers. The revolution in the sky demands revolutionary planning on the ground.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Black Panthers Meet in Algeria

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

Another highly significant strategic conference in Algeria, of direct importance to the U.S., preceded that world-farmer meeting of Arab rulers.

The secret pow-wow was a gathering of leaders of the Black Panther Party (BPP).

Among those definitely known to have participated were:

Eldridge Cleaver, BPP minister of education who jumped U.S. bail and is a fugitive from justice; Emory Douglas, BPP minister of culture; Donald Cox, BPP field marshal; and two Black Panther strongarm men wanted for hijacking planes to Cuba — Byron Booth and Clinton Smith.

Foremost among the subjects discussed at this carefully unpublicized Black Panther parley were:

How and when Cleaver would seek to return to the U.S.; an aggressive drive to raise funds, particularly for legal and other measures against police; to what extent the BPP should get involved in the 1970 local, state and congressional elections.

GOLDSMITH The pro-Soviet Algerian government actively cooperated in suppressing disclosure of the BPP strategy meeting.

Long a haven for fugitive Panthers and other black extremists, Algeria hosted a number of them at a so-called Pan-African Cultural Festival last summer. Also prominent at this affair, in which the U.S. was repeatedly vehemently denounced, were leaders of Al Fatah, the Arab terrorist organization.

Black Panther and Al Fatah officials appeared together and spoke from the same platform.

Before jumping bail, Cleaver thundered at an Omaha, Nebr., rally:

"We are going to fight and we will decimate this country. We will gut your industrial cities, and we will create conditions so that enemies can walk in here and pick the gold out of your (obscene) teeth. We are going to move against this system . . . in harmony with Mao Tse-tung, with Ho Chi Minh, with Fidel Castro . . ."

Despite Cleaver's effusive acclaim of Castro, the Black Panther leader, after fleeing to Cuba, left there after a few months greatly disenchanted by that Communist paradise. When Cleaver was safely in Algeria, he let it be known he had gotten out of Cuba because of "racism and personal hostility."

BPP BATTLE NOTES — A marked coolness has developed between the revolutionary Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and the Black Panther Party over the issue of community control of the police. The BPP favors that; SDS is opposed. Their backstage disagreement was brought into the open by sharply critical comments in their official publications — the SDS' "New Left Notes" and "The Black Panther."

Latest BPP official to jump bail is Fred Richardson, listed as deputy minister of information. Charged with allegedly distributing dynamite to fellow conspirators to terrorize New York City last spring, Richardson, 27, failed to show up in court for a pre-trial hearing. New York State Supreme Court Justice John Murtagh thereupon forfeited Richardson's $25,000 bail and issued a warrant for his arrest.

At a Black Panther rally in Washington, Reginald Booker, head of a local "transportation crisis" committee, frantically called on blacks to arm, as follows:

"Any black man who does not possess a gun is unintelligent. The first task of black people is to collectively arm themselves for self-defense because the administration has declared war on us."

The Human Heart—Part I

By JIM BISHOP

The 10-ounce pump in your chest is almost indestructible. Almost. No metal pump can match it for endurance and reliability. It can work for 70 or more years without faltering. And yet, if it stops for only four minutes, brain damage becomes insuperable.

The heart is a muscular four-chambered organ which squeezes and expands 72 or more times a minute. Its function is to pump five quarts of blood through a 30-quart system. Nourishment is carried to the topmost cell of your head and to the tip of the big toe.

Coming back, the blood carries the garbage from billions of living cells to be filtered by the kidneys and lungs, properly aerated, and sent back to the heart, which takes a bite of lunch for itself.

America loses 1,100,000 lives to cardiovascular attacks every year — more than this nation lost in combat in all its wars from the Revolution to Vietnam; six times more than all the lives lost in one year to cancer. Why? The scientific words are thrombosis; embolism; high blood pressure; cigarettes; genetics; cholesterol, phospholipid fats; triglycerides.

The world's attention is on heart transplants. This represents the last desperate gamble. We are going to have to learn something about the other end of the spectrum — how to stop a heart attack before it starts. It is a cruel truth that 65 per cent of all patients with a heart attack do not reach the hospital alive. The odds are staggering.

THERE ARE ABOUT a dozen highly sophisticated cardio-vascular hospitals in the United States. One looks like a Spanish hacienda and repose off the edge of Miami Beach. It is called The Miami Heart Institute and it exists largely on the charity of people interested in the human heart. One part is devoted to intensive care, with green screen oscilloscope and electro-cardiogram wires attached to the bodies of the desperately ill. There, a variety of electric watchdogs monitor the heart.

In a new building, there is a Research Division under the direction of Doctor Edwin Boyle. He is a spectacled man of 46, a man with a Charleston drawl who spends all his time studying ways of preventing that first heart attack from occurring.

Boyle's interest is in soft spongey hearts and hard arteries. After years of lonesome unrewarding work, he has devised a galaxy of tests which will with reasonable accuracy, tell a patient whether he is headed on a collision course with a heart attack, or pinpoint an artery which contains a fatty plaque which may bring on a thrombosis.

With very little money coming in, Dr. Boyle has assembled his sensitive machines one by one, and has selected a brilliant team of assistants and technicians. Today, Boyle is getting ready to run tired men and women through his laboratory, testing and cross-testing and, when he has completed them, he puts all of the facts on a perforated card and drops it into a computer.

THE COMPUTER will tell whether the patient is a good heart risk (a quotient of 1.0) or a bad one (10.0). It tested a medical student who was present for a seminar — a healthy young man of 22 — and found that, instead of a normal blood-clotting time of 20 minutes or more, the machine said eight minutes. This is bad.

Dr. Boyle ran the boy through the test a second time with the same dismal result. The student, according to the computer, was susceptible to a thrombosis. He confessed that his mother and father had died of heart attacks in their 30's. Dr. Boyle put the boy on a regimen of three aspirin tablets a day and, no one knows why, but three aspirins reduced the clotting period to 22 minutes — a normal time.

Soon, medicine is going to be forced away from trying to save sick hearts and test the pump before it is ready to give up and stop. On the other hand, the government is cutting down on heart research. The heart, in this country, has become the least worthy of organs . . .

(Part two of The Human Heart will be published Monday.)

Student Loan Program Survives

By SYLVIA PORTER

To the astonishment (and pleasure) of us all, the Federal-State Guaranteed Student Loan Program is still alive. In fact, it's actually expanding in the face of the tightest, most brutal credit squeeze in modern history.

This is the major program, launched by the Higher Education Act of 1965, to help middle-grade students from middle-income families finance their way through college, business, trade, technical and vocational schools. Below I'll give you basic guides to getting one of these low-interest, deferred payment, educational loans — but first, here are some up-to-date facts and observations.

Last summer this program was dying — because the maximum lenders could get on the loans was 7 per cent and they had to give exceedingly generous repayment terms as well. As interest rates spiraled far above 7 per cent on much safer loans, there seemed no hope for the program unless it was sweetened considerably.

Finally, under skillful prodding, the White House got behind and pushed through a law which permits the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to make a "special allowance" to lenders of up to 3 per cent above the 7 per cent charged to students. In short, students still get 7 per cent insured loans — but lenders can earn up to 10. The incentive payments were made retroactive to Aug. 1 and Nixon urged lenders to make loans for the 1970 school year.

THIS HAS BEEN the record to now: In the first six months of fiscal 1970, $570 million was loaned and the target for all of '70 is $704 million, highest since the program began. Since fiscal '68, 2,500,000 loans have been made totaling $2 billion. Lenders got an incentive payment of 2 per cent in the August-September period — and 2 per cent in the September-December quarter (making their returns 9 and 9 1/2 per cent).

Of the total of loans, 87 per cent have been made by commercial banks; 9.8 per cent have gone to students from families with adjusted incomes of under $15,000; 79 per cent to students from families with incomes under $9,000.

Now, pressure is mounting for a law to create a new government corporation which would have access to U.S. Treasury funds with which to buy student loans from private lenders in order to free the lenders to make more loans. The corporation would be called "Student Loan Marketing Association" or "Sally Mae."

All this is good news. The program has survived despite overwhelming odds. It is filling a great need, is gaining recognition, is slated to play a much broader role. Now to details for students.

YOU ARE ELIGIBLE for a loan regardless of your family's financial status if you are in good academic standing at an approved institution. The loan is made to you, not your parents.

You can borrow up to a maximum of $1,500 per academic year, but your total may not exceed $7,500 at any time. Your maximum rate is 7 per cent plus an insurance premium of 1/4 per cent prepaid on each loan. If your family's adjusted income is under $15,000, the U.S. government will pay the total interest while you're in school. All of you will pay the full interest during the repayment period.

Your repayment begins between nine and 12 months after you leave school and is normally scheduled for from five to 10 years.

You may apply at any one of 20,000 participating institutions across the country — banks, savings & loan associations, credit unions, pension funds, insurance companies, eligible schools. The loan is made at the discretion of the lender, though.

This program is the best financial source for the non-scholarship student of the middle-income family. If you're eligible, start tracking down a lender now.

Qualified Candidates

22 Sailors Way

Rumson, N. J.

To the Editor:

I was delighted to read in the Feb. 2 edition of The Register, the comments by former Mayor Charles S. Callman of Rumson, wherein he related the "continuing excellence of the high school" to "increased property values" in the borough. The question immediately then comes to mind, "How are property values affected by elementary school education?"

Property values, it would seem, must be affected by the tangible structures in which students learn, as well as the intangible knowledge which is imparted therein. Will property values continue to rise in proportion to the number of temporary classrooms we erect? If not, when do we plan to face up to our responsibilities and add the permanent facilities required to regain a former high quality of elementary education?

And what else is inherent in a "quality education?" Consistent excellence in teaching, administration, and Board of Education interest. What degree of consistency is there when the average rate of turnover in the teaching staff in recent years approximates 28 per cent per year? What degree of effectiveness is achieved when classes reach 25-32 pupils per classroom? How does an administration, which appears to be less than progressive, affect the quality of education received by our children?

No school system functions well without the genuine interest of the elected members of the Board of Education. Prospective board candidates also must be judged by their interest in school activities, the number of board meetings they attend, and their contribution at such meetings. Having attended the majority of school board meetings in the past two years, I can honestly say that there are only two candidates, Jean Kelly and Herbert Zydney, who have demonstrated a real interest in solving the present problems of teacher turnover, overcrowding and apathy, which currently endanger the quality of the elementary school education in Rumson.

Yours truly,
Anne T. Swikart

Congressman Thanked

385 Matawan Ave.
Cliffwood, N. J.

To the Editor:

Attached is a copy of a letter mailed to Rep. James J. Howard, Washington, D. C.

I would appreciate your publishing the attached letter in your "Letters to the Editor" column.

Thank you.

Very truly yours,
Mrs. Robert J. Collins

On Jan. 10, residents of Cliffwood received home mail delivery for the first time.

I would like to take this opportunity (and I am certain many others in Cliffwood share this feeling) to thank you for your exerted efforts in helping to make this service possible. Your concern for the people of Cliffwood shows that we have a representative who truly represents.

Regional Postal Service Officer, Frank C. Williams, and Hazlet Postmaster Allan George should be commended for the assistance they have rendered the Cliffwood postmaster, Frank Caracciolo, in preparing for home delivery. Through the combined efforts of these three men, efficient service was quickly and smoothly implemented within three weeks.

Rumors and GOP

25 East Roosevelt Circle
Middletown, N. J.

To the Editor:

I read with interest your story about the possible Republican candidates to run against Congressman Howard. You seem to have overlooked a rumor which has been increasingly passed around in Middletown.

Retired Man Seeks Seat On Board

MIDDLETON — Seeking one of the three contested seats on the Board of Education Tuesday is newcomer Joseph H. Cronin of 25 E. Roosevelt Circle, recently retired from the Newark post office after 35 years' service.

Mr. Cronin cites his experience in the post office accounting office where he was responsible for more than $50 million annually in revenue and payrolls. He was also involved in budget management and manpower control of the Newark post office, which has 3,500 employees.

The candidate believes the school budget could be allocated more efficiently and urges voters to reject it. He hopes to develop a better system of relationships between the Board of Education and the "silent majority" of taxpayers, such as senior citizens, parents of non-public school children and parents with grown children.

A resident of the township nearly 20 years, Mr. Cronin and his wife, Regina, have three grown children: Michael Cronin, a New York attorney; Dr. Terrence Cronin, a physician, and a daughter Regina, a school teacher like her mother.

Store Okayed

SHREWSBURY — The Planning Board last night approved site plans for two new retail stores and a warehouse extension.

The store application was by Ray Stillman Real Estate for the lot it owns south of the Betsy Ross Restaurant on Broad St.

The warehouse extension is for Good Humor ice cream located on Shrewsbury Ave.

Environment Crises Seminars Scheduled

LINCROFT — Environmental crises will be studied at a pair of seminars at Brookdale Community College this month.

The seminars, sponsored by the college in cooperation with the Daily Register, will begin Feb. 21 at 12:30 p.m. with a study of pollution, and will continue February 28 when world population problems will be the subject of scrutiny.

The seminars have been planned by the Community Services Division of the college and will be conducted on-campus in Barn A.

Both sessions are open to the public and all persons with an interest in preventing destruction of the environment should find them provocative.

Marvin A. Clark, a trustee of Brookdale and vice chairman of the Monmouth County Conservation Council, will be a featured speaker at the Feb. 21 seminar. Mr. Clark, a former agricultural extension agent in Monmouth County, will discuss the county's environmental problems during its transition from a farming to a suburban area.

Role of Boards

David Moore, executive director of the North Jersey Conservation Foundation, will examine the role of local conservation commissions as instruments for local environmental control.

After the presentations, small group sessions will give participants an opportunity to review problems of particular concern.

D.W. Bennett, conservation director of the American Litter Society, will lead a session on estuarine problems; John Clark, assistant director of Sandy Hook Marine Laboratories, will chair a study of marine areas; Dr. Edward Ambry, director of the New Jersey Council of Environmental Education, will head an examination of environmental education; Neal

Prosecutor Says Freeholders Will Get Info on Informers

FREEHOLD—County Prosecutor Vincent P. Keuper said yesterday he will give the Board of Freeholders any information it wants concerning payments to confidential informers.

"This creates no problem at all," said the prosecutor. "I will be very happy to sit down with Chief of Detectives Albert V. McCormick and supply the board any information it wants with the understanding that the information will be kept in confidence, which I expect it will be."

"I have no hesitation to ask the chief of detectives to supply this information."

Freeholder director Joseph C. Irwin, in light of disclosures at the state Investigation Commission (SIC) hearing in Trenton Tuesday, said the freeholders would not permit any further money paid to the prosecutor or any of his detectives unless there is an enumeration of the person to whom the money is paid, the purpose for which it is paid and the nature of the services that are performed.

At the SIC hearing, Mr. Keuper denied having any responsibility for administering a so-called emergency fund through which informers were paid. He said the fund was administered by the late John M. Gawler, chief of county detectives, who committed suicide less than 24 hours after he was subpoenaed to appear before the SIC.

Mr. Keuper said then he did not know what had happened to the $58,000, the amount of payments made to "informants" in the past 10 years, but that he had complete trust in Mr. Gawler's competence.

tence and integrity. In response to a SIC hint that the freeholders may have been negligent in not requiring a full accounting of the confidential funds, Mr. Irwin said the board had no right to make such inquiry and that the county had acted properly in accordance with procedures established with the knowledge of the prosecutor and the county courts.

Every voucher paid by the board, he continued, was approved by Mr. Keuper and by a county or Superior Court judge. A change in a state law no longer requires that the vouchers be approved by a judge.

Mr. Irwin said the board assumed, and it had a right to assume, that the approval by a judge was a mandate for the board to make payment.

Mr. Keuper said Chief McCormick is custodian of the emergency fund—Mr. Gawler had been custodian prior to his death—and is responsible for it. He added that he recommended that Mr. McCormick be named custodian and the Board of Freeholders appointed him.

When the fund needs replenishment, he continued, the custodian submits his vouchers and a check is made out to the custodian.

Mr. Irwin had said the freeholders will make no money available to the prosecutor until proper proofs are filed.

HEARTS AND FLOWERS BALL

Mrs. William Wikoff Jr., chairman of the Little Silver PTA "Hearts and Flowers Ball," previews one of the decorations with ticket chairman Mrs. Peter Enander. Both reside in Little Silver. The ball will be held Feb. 14 at 8 p.m. in the Crystal Room of The Cobblestones, Middletown. Dancers Gloria and Jaro York will perform. Committee aides include Mrs. Thomas Judge, Mrs. Oliver Bennett, Mrs. Lambert Gieseke and Mrs. Bernard Rosen, decorations chairman. (Register Staff Photo)

Even though St. Valentine has had to take a back seat in the court of distinguished martyrs and saints, he traditionally still holds first chair in the heart of young lovers and party planners. The date this year is one of the most popular for clubs and organizations which give big-hearted chunks of their proceeds to charities and community projects. Fun and sociability are given in return.

FOUR-YEAR-OLDS

... alert, and intelligent, and as mature as such little children can be, are invited to join our new kindergarten classes. Our success in teaching reading and arithmetic to qualified five-year-olds encouraged us last year to believe that something more in the way of readiness training could be done for certain four-year-old children than was being accomplished. We started this program, and it certainly worked, with a fair number actually going into formal reading and number work during the year. We plan to continue permanently with these groups and are ready to examine applicants. The children will attend class in our primary school center at Rumson, which is devoted to the training of four-, five-, and six-year-old children. They will attend school from 9 A.M. to 3 P.M. during the conventional school year, with plenty of provision for rest. If you are interested, please call us and arrange for preliminary testing. Transportation is available.

Monmouth Five Out-Foxed By Marist in Final Minute

By RICH NICOLETTI
WEST LONG BRANCH — Monmouth College basketball fans watched 39 minutes of see-saw action here last night before the Red Foxes of Marist put reservist Brian McGowen in the game to steal the show and the contest, 73-66.

Hawk Nemesis

McGowen came in with about six minutes left and sank seven out of seven foul shots, and one very important field goal.

Red Fox Joe Scott, who scored 24 points in the game, fouled out with 1:45 left and the score tied at 66-all.

Forty seconds later, McGowen stood at the line and converted two attempts.

Monmouth took the ball down, and Artie Smith was fouled going up for a shot. The six-foot Hawk junior missed the flip and Marist's Ray Charlton came down with the ball. Charlton threw a pass almost the length of the court into the waiting arms of McGowen who went in for the layup to give the winners a four-point bulge with 44 seconds remaining.

McGowen ended his performance just seconds later when he chucked in his final foul shot.

Desperation Foul

Monmouth, in a desperate attempt to get possession of the ball, fouled once more. This time John Barone was the culprit. It was his fifth.

Charlton tossed in the final bucket at the line and the contest was over five seconds later.

The game was a back-and-forth battle from the outset. The Hawks posted the first tally on an Ed Halicki hook shot. Marist's Scott followed with a hook of his own, but Halicki did it once again to put the Hawks up by two.

Top Hawk

Halicki, who led the Hawks with 21 points, was the home team's "golden boy" under the boards both in rebounding and scoring. He scored 14 of his total in the first half.

The score at the half was Marist, 38, Monmouth, 35.

The visitors took the lead nine times in the half, while the Hawks had it and lost it eight times.

The half was highlighted by an eight-point barrage by the Hawks and led by Barone who scored six of them.

Barone didn't make his first field goal until 13 minutes had passed in the first portion of the game. The nation's record-breaking foul shooter missed his first attempt at the line, made his second, and then missed on his third. His other four attempts in the game were duck soup.

Marist came out after intermission looking as though it might drive away. After Smith of the Hawks scored on two free slips, Marist's Scott fired in four straight points making the count, 43-37 in favor of the Foxes.

Barone put the Hawks within three points on four free throws, with a successful charity shot by Fox Ray Manning sandwiched in between.

Suddenly, Halicki gave the Hawks the lead. The 6-7 sophomore center made two good taps within 20 seconds for Monmouth's first lead in the second half.

Marist grabbed the lead within seconds as Bill Spena canned a jumper.

Elusive Lead

Once again the lead began changing hands as quickly as the ball moved from one end to the other. In five minutes time the two squads exchanged the lead seven times before the Hawks captured the advantage by a point with 10 minutes left in the game.

Marist didn't stop there.

The Red Foxes took over again on a Spena jump shot, followed by a Spena one-pointer at the line.

Barone accounted for 16 Hawk points, 10 of which were from the floor. Of Halicki's 21, 20 were a result of field goals. The Monmouth center was successful on only one foul shot in six attempts.

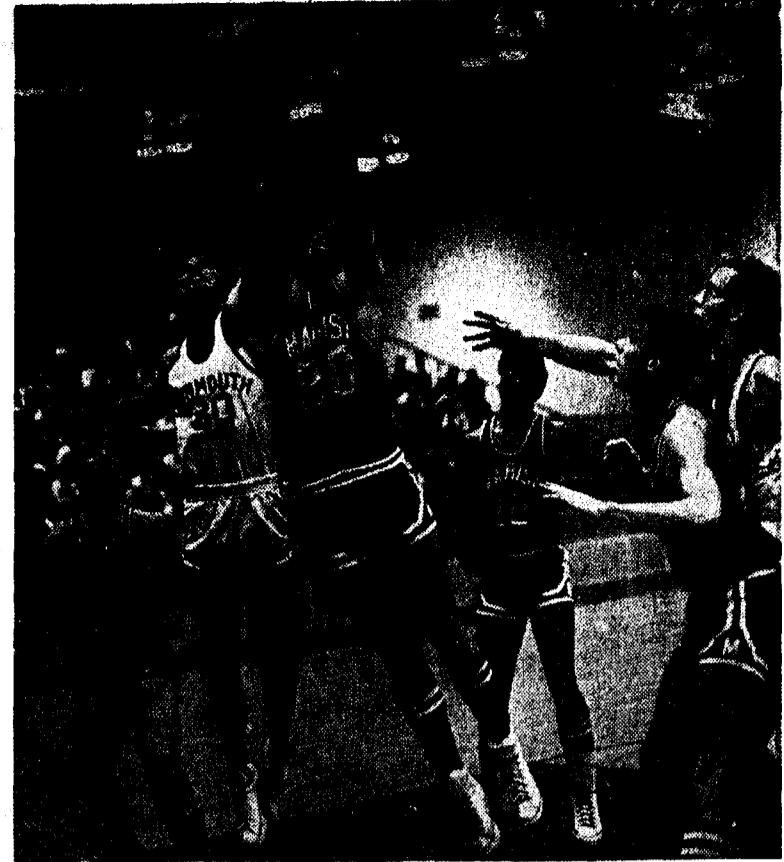

Charlton was second in scoring for Marist with 16, followed by Spena with 11.

The loss was the ninth for the Hawks. They have won 10.

Coaches Rile Over Fouls

By TED MEIER
Associated Press
Sports Writer

Oh, those technical fouls. They are the bane of college basketball coaches.

One was called on Dean Smith, University of North Carolina coach at Winston-Salem, N.C., last night and it led to an 88-85 upset of the nationally seventh-ranked Tar Heels by the unranked Wake Forest Deacons in the last minute of play.

Charlie Davis, a 6-foot-1 native New Yorker, capped a brilliant 41-point performance with three straight free throws, including one technical, that turned a one-point Wake Forrest deficit into an 85-83 lead.

This came with 52 seconds on the clock and a basket by Dan Ackley with 36 seconds left sewed it up for the Deacons.

Referee Ralph Stout called a foul against Eddie Fogler of North Carolina that led to the technical.

The Call Hurts

"When Stout called the foul against Eddie, I stood up," Smith said later. "Stout looked at me as I put my hand to my neck. I didn't realize he had called a technical until the crowd roared. Certainly it hurt us when they got the extra point and the ball. It was the first time I have been

Bruins Traverse the West, Stay Well Afloat in East

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Boston Bruins are sailing smoothly through the National Hockey League's West Division and their success among the expansionists has kept them afloat in the NHL's East Division race.

The Bruins battered Philadelphia 5-1 last night and moved back within three points of the idle New York Rangers in the East race. Montreal kept pace with Boston, whipping Los Angeles 5-3 to remain tied for second place.

In the only other NHL game played, Detroit defeated Toronto 4-1.

String Now Is 25

Boston's victory over the Flyers ran the Bruins' undefeated string against the West to 25 games — 20 of them victories. Against the East, Boston's record is a mediocre 7-12 with six ties.

Bobby Orr, the NHL's leading scorer, paced the Bruins with two more goals and an assist, increasing his total to 80 points, a continuing record for NHL defensemen.

Orr's goals were his 18th and 19th of the season leaving him two short of his own record for a single season — the only scoring mark for a defenseman which he hasn't already shattered this season.

Garry Unger and Alex Delvecchio each scored one goal and set up another leading Detroit past Toronto.

before in shutting out St. Louis.

The victory moved the Wings three points ahead of idle Chicago in the battle for fourth place in the East. Toronto, last in the division, is 11 points back of Detroit.

Hockey (After Dark) Skates into Garden State

By JANET STAIHAR

WEST ORANGE (AP) — In the cold, dead of night, a hooded youth slung a bulky bag over his shoulder as a cruising patrol car pulled up to the corner.

"I'm on my way to play hockey," the youth shouted to the suspicious policeman.

"Oh, yeah," came the disbelieving reply.

But after a stationhouse call to the South Mountain Arena here and a chat with the boy's coach, the young sportsman went on his way and the policeman turned into a believer.

Oddly enough, the boy's team did practice at the unorthodox hour — as do dozens of dyed-in-the-wool ice hockey buffs who'd rather count puck points than sheep.

In northern New Jersey and Pennsylvania as the popularity of the New York Rangers and Philadelphia Flyers soars so rockets the enthusiasm for the sport which not so long ago was only great stuff in Canada and New England.

DEMAND EXCEEDS FACILITIES

As a result scholastic ice hockey is catching on to the extent that the demand for skating time greatly exceeds what's available at the few ice rinks in northern New Jersey.

Business is so good that some rinks never close. Often the only time left for scholastic and recreational ice hockey teams to practice after regular skaters finish in the prime day hours is when everyone else but burglars and milkmen sleep.

"A boy who comes out for hockey is very dedicated. He has to be to take these hours," said Clifford Back, coach of the Morris Hills Scarlet Knights.

"We practice at 11:15 at night. By the time we get off the ice, it's one o'clock and it takes an hour to get home. They get to bed at three, then get up to go to school."

Surprisingly, only a handful of boys have dropped out of ice hockey because of moonlight practices.

"It's rough on the kids physically," admitted Chatham Township Coach Paul Chaput, who came here a year ago from established hockey country, Greenfield, Mass.

"Some of them lost weight. But the interest is phenomenal. They've gone nuts for the game."

Unlike football or baseball where a high school owns its field, ice arenas must be rented from parks or private firms.

"It's tough to get ice," Chaput said, echoing the lament of other coaches who'd like their towns to build rinks to support the burgeoning sport.

Bob Uger, a 15-year-old Chatham Township sophomore, says his understanding German teacher lets him doze in the classroom after a night's scrimmage.

On the other hand, Morris Hills players Mark Dovoney, 16, and Tom Deresky, 14, say their grades went up. They study just prior to the night practice sessions, while before they went to bed.

ROUGH IN BRICKTOWN

"It's rough getting the parents up," said Bricktown Coach Bob Auriemma, who also directs the Brick Recreational League. "The boys are ready to go by 5 a.m."

At 6:30 a.m. Saturdays, boys 9 to 12 in the recreational league meet in pitched battle on the ice.

"Our fellows moan and groan on the way down," added the Morris Hills mentor, "but when they get the stick in their hands they forget the time."

Coaches' wives view the sport through sleepy eyes.

"She's not too crazy about my getting up so early," said Morristown Prep Coach Peter Chazonelle, of his wife's attitude. "She stays in bed."

When the cold freezes over local ponds, some teams can practice earlier in the evening. But nature seldom is that cooperative and teams must usually resort to man-made ice.

QUESTION OF HOURS

Although practice sessions are pegged to the owls, regular scheduled games in the North Jersey Scholastic Hockey League are held to permit fans to come at decent hours.

"In the last 10 years, the number of people who participated in ice hockey has tripled," said Paul McInnis, manager of the South Mountain Arena, which is owned by the Essex County Park Commission.

This is only the second year the arena has been open around the clock. Up to 50 teams rent the court in a week.

Thirteen years ago, the league began with five teams.

Today it has a dozen.

Also hoing for the pros at the crack of dawn are 7-10 year-old athletes in the squirt division, 11-12 year-olds in the pee wees and 13-15 year-olds in the bantams.

"The interest in New Jersey and New York has been an out-flow of the success of the big league teams, especially the Rangers," McInnis said.

Now even the youngsters whose hands are barely large enough to scoop up a puck are emulating the styles of Bobby Hull or Robert Plager. Move over football.

Scarlet Fliers Flip Freehold

NEPTUNE — Neptune's Scarlet Fliers won their third game in a row here yesterday by routing Freehold, 89-62, in a Shore Conference "A" Division contest.

The Colonials, who lost their third consecutive game, are now 3-9 in the division and 5-13 overall. The Fliers are 8-4 in the league and 9-9 on the season.

Freehold led throughout the first period, but that was the only time the Colonials were in the game. The Colonials led by as many as six points twice in the period, but Neptune spurted in the closing minutes to tie it at 16. The Fliers ran off the last six points with Bob Feeney's deuce with six seconds left knotting it.

Neptune extended its string to 16 by scoring the first 10 points of the second period. Ed Calderon got five points in the streak and Ed Hayes poured in three.

The lead was up to 15 points when Mike Edwards' basket made it 33-18. At the half, it was 43-25.

Build Margin

Neptune built up the lead to 25 points in the third period and led by as many as 29 in the fourth. The Flier bench came in late in the third quarter.

Freehold hit a miserable 27.5 per cent from the field while Neptune ripped the twine for 44.3 per cent. The Fliers had 21 turnovers and Freehold had 22.

Neptune completely dominated the boards, with 66 rebounds to Freehold's 24. Edwards, who had 16 points, pulled down 15 rebounds; Sam Huey had 12, and Hayes, 11. Earl Copeland led Freehold with 10.

Don Davis of Freehold led the scorers with 20 points.

Gary Sergo had 17 points to pace the Neptune Jayvees to a 75-35 romp over their Colonial counterparts, and Weldon Rolle's 31 paced the Flier freshman to a 108-23 rout of the Colonial frosh.

Portrait of 'The Babe' In Baltimore Museum

BALTIMORE (AP) — A life-sized portrait of Babe Ruth, in his classic home run swing, will be unveiled today to mark the 75th anniversary of his birth.

The portrait, on loan from William Frazier of Trenton, N.J., will occupy a prominent position in the Babe Ruth Shrine and Museum when it is formally dedicated in the spring.

Today's special meeting of the Mayor's committee for the preservation of Babe Ruth's birthplace, and three adjoining row houses, is about 99 per cent complete.

The major project still to be completed is the steel spiral staircase in the two houses comprising the museum.

The Hillerich & Bradley Co. of Louisville, Ky., will supply 81 Babe Ruth model bats to be used as a balustrade on the stairway.

Photographs and other Ruth memorabilia will be kept in the museum, which will include an auditorium-type room with a motion picture screen and projection room.

Ruth's birthplace, at 216 Emory St., will be restored to the way it may have LONG BRANCH — The Patten Point Yacht Club has named Anthony R. Ricciardi of Port-au-Perch as commodore and Mrs. John Randall, also of Port-au-Perch, as chairman of the Ladies Auxiliary.

The houses started to collapse when reconstruction was begun, so they were torn down and the contractor started from scratch. Most of the front brick work was saved, and individual bricks were numbered for placing back in their original positions.

The houses started to collapse when reconstruction was begun, so they were torn down and the contractor started from scratch. Most of the front brick work was saved, and individual bricks were numbered for placing back in their original positions.

The club takes its name from steamship line owner Capt. Thomas Patten, original owner of the property where the club is headquartered. The four-acre site overlooking the Shrewsbury River includes a swimming pool and complete marina facilities for boats up to 60 feet, along with the 77-year-old Patten mansion which was restored by the group to serve as the main clubhouse. Built by ship's carpenters, the 19th century structure

Area Exec Successfully Went From 'Mad Ave.' to Ball Bats

By JANE FODERARO

RUMSON — Evan Baker of Rumson has done what many businessmen, at one time or another, long to do...

He broke out of a "comfortable mold" as vice president of a top-flight New York ad agency to make his mark as head of a small company with growth potential...

Mr. Baker is now chief executive officer of Adirondack Industries of Dolgeville, N.Y., manufacturers of baseball bats... and, quite literally, a company that's being promoted like it's never been promoted before. It is a subsidiary of Rowan Industries based in Oceanport.

Tone Changed

The energetic and attractive Mr. Baker swapped the whirl of mid-town Manhattan for self-propulsion when he left his executive post with Doyle Dane Bernbach, the creative agency that substantially changed the tone and approach of national advertising with such accounts as Volkswagen and Avis.

Why did he do it?

"It was really a matter of timing," he says. "I was ready to move into a new phase of life."

"People are either products, or victims, of their experience," he observes. "They can fall into something... or they can plan it."

Mr. Baker says he had been aiming for the kind of situation Rowan offered. "There is tremendous depth required for marketing strategy in an ad agency. But, still, you're a little too far away from decision making. Maybe, in any service business, you do not always feel totally involved," he says.

Totally Involved

Mr. Baker is totally, but totally involved in his bat company. In 1969, he spent 55 days in the state — the rest of the time he's on the wing for Adirondack between Dolgeville, Manhattan and major league bases.

But one suspects that Mr. Baker's drive (while he talks, he jumps up, walks around, sits down again) comes from more than the challenge of his new position... or experience gained on fiercely competitive Madison Avenue (where, he says, there's so much talent that "even a wisecrack isn't funny").

GOES TO BAT — Evan Baker brings Madison Avenue know-how to Adirondack Industries, a small manufacturer of baseball bats in upstate New York.

"With a shorter work week ahead," he says, "projections show tremendous growth in the leisure market."

Basically, Evan Baker is a natural-born promoter. Not the old-fashioned talk-'em-up hustler. Nor the mill-out-the-hand-out variety. But he's the contemporary sales-chart tactician who sees the sale of a baseball bat as a problem to be solved. He seeks a formula, starting with research, that will wind up where it counts, on the books — with Mrs. Babe Ruth.

On Tonight Show

As if that weren't enough, Mr. Mays took his big stick back to National Broadcasting Company that night — to tape the Tonight Show with Johnny Carson.

On the scene, behind the big day started out early when Willie appeared on the Today Show with Joe Garagiola and Hugh Downs. At noon, it was a swish luncheon on Wall Street where Mr. Mays received 600 shares (like home runs) of Rowan stock. Then on to a posh blow-out on the St. Regis roof where he received a $12,000 sports car (a de Tomaso Mangusta which is a subsidiary of Rowan). He also received the key to the city from Mayor Lindsay and the Adirondack "Big Stick" Award from Bowie Kuhn, baseball commissioner.

On hand to make it even more official were Big Joe, Roy Campanella, Jackie Robinson, Mickey Mantle, Duke Snider, Gil Hodges, Cleon Jones and many others, even Mrs. Babe Ruth.

But wait. If anyone thinks that bats are big in the Baker family right now, wait until Mr. B turns his attention to other Adirondack lines. Like toboggans, bobsleds, hockey sticks, skis, and hobby horses (that's right, hobby horses).

And, oh yes, there's one more. Soon to be added is an archery line. Did anybody ever see Hugh Downs with an apple on his head?

Saturday, February 7
PRESENT-FOR YOU AND YOURS . . . Clever management could be a prime factor in reaching your goal. And one victory can snowball into a chain of events. Some people's moods change and fluctuate like the tide under current rays and will need to be handled with the traditional "kid gloves."

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19) — Emphasize your talents, but do so with modesty, and you're more receptive at this time.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 19) — You have everything you need at the tip of your fingers but you feel dissatisfied.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — If you aren't so inquisitive, you're more apt to get the true picture.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21) — Nothing too vital in today's chart so go out and give yourself a treat of some sort.

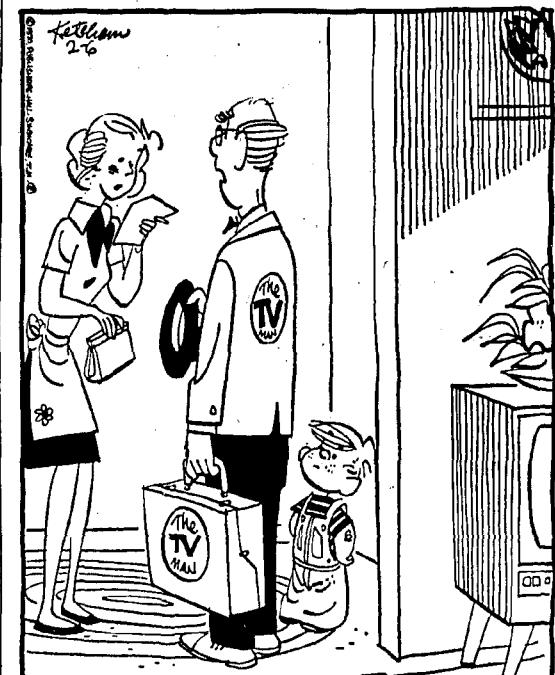

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You have a deep appreciation for beauty and will want some art object for your home.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — You dislike making changes in established routine but it makes sense now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 19) — Someone may demand more attention than you like to pay him or her. Do your best!

Bridge Advice

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Now that the football season is safely behind us, the story can be told at last. People wondered why Shorty's dad didn't get an athletic scholarship to State after his brilliant high school career. Little did they know that Sam lost his opportunity in a bridge game with State's backfield coach.

"Sam took the first trick in dummy with the ace of spades," the coach told me, and he sighed heavily. "He took the king and queen of diamonds, but the suit didn't break. Sam had to win the third diamond in dummy, and now his nine of diamonds was high. So he was forced to win the fourth round of diamonds with the nine of diamonds and could never get back to dummy for the fifth diamond."

"But what has that to do with football?" I asked.

"What could we do with a runner who trips over his own feet?" my friend demanded. "Besides, we play a lot of bridge after practice sessions, and having a player like that around for three years would drive me out of my mind."

This column is not usually directed to football players, but the need is clear. Anybody who wants to succeed as a runner should study today's hand to learn how to keep out of his own way.

South must refuse the first spade trick, and the second, and the third. If West leads a fourth spade, declarer discards a low diamond on the ace of spades. (If West leads anything else, South can eventually cash dummy's ace of spades and discard the diamond all by himself.)

South can then cash the king and queen of diamonds and lead his third diamond to dummy's ace. Without a blocking fourth diamond in his hand, declarer can run the fourth and fifth diamond from the dummy, making his contract and winning a backfield berth on his college football team.

As dealer, you hold: S — K Q J 10 7 6 H — 7 5 D — 3 say?

C — C Q 9 4. What do you say?

Answer: Bid one spade. Most experts would open this hand even though an aceless hand with only 2 Quick Tricks is a bit under the standard. But how can you pass a hand that will produce about seven playing tricks? Some experts would open this hand with a weak two-bid but it's a better four-bid than a two-bid. A few pussycats would pass. Let's not say any more about them.

Seeks to Mold Arab-Jewish Friendships

NEW YORK (AP) — He is there; he is here. He is burnt ashes, he is a living man. He must be nearing 50, but he's young, in a new era. "My age is 20," he said, rejecting ordinary time reckonings. "Everything before is burned, a cinder."

Yet it still exists, too, for him, when he returns to it, in a kind of lonely, disciplined withdrawal into another reality. Sometimes just talking about it leaves him unable to eat for several days.

"It's another world," he said.

Because he experienced it, yet also embraces the present, conversation with him is almost like talking with two men, with Yehiel De-Nur, a warmhearted Jewish writer from Israel, and with Ka-Tzelnik 135633, the concentration camp number that identified him in Auschwitz.

Yehiel De-Nur

"That cycle of fire is silent now," he said. "But it still exists. Every deed — good or evil — is a finger-print in the world's air. The smoke of millions of lives, of a million children put alive in the ovens, still is in the air. It cries out in our own sky. It is not lost."

Its cry re-echoes in the present Arab pressure on Israel, he said, and he and his wife have sparked a dramatic, spreading movement in their homeland to bring Jews and Arabs together in private homes for evenings of talk and friendship to try to overcome the harsh barriers of hostility.

"We are neighbors," he said. "We must live together in this world, this land, let us live as brothers."

No Place Left

If reconciliation does not come, he added, if a Jewish country cannot be sustained in the circle of Arab states, then "there is no place left."

"I have to go back to Auschwitz," he said, seeming to revert to that other experience of an entire people. "There is no country where I have not been burned and bled and thrown out. If now, I am to be thrown out of Palestine, then there is nowhere to go, except back to Auschwitz."

People want to forget that holocaust, he said, to blot it from awareness, but man must face the fact of his own actions, including his horrors, in order to be healed, and that is why Ka-Tzelnik 135633 writes under that grim name his "chronicles from the planet Auschwitz."

Six Novels

He does so through novels, six of them so far, including "House of Dolls," which has sold more than five million copies in 15 languages, and his latest, issued by Harper and Row, called "Phoenix Over the Galilee."

De-Nur. I cannot look at it with a normal man's mind."

Yet it was carried out by men, by his own species, he added.

"Auschwitz was not done by an animal, but by human beings, in my image. The world runs away from that. It is a reflection on man's very self. He is too weak for it, and so he runs away, so he will not see it."

But it is an indelible truth, stamped in human annals, as well as on a generation of victims, he said, adding: "I feel I must be on being that race as long as the world is not awakened to the crucifixion of a whole people the way it was awakened by the crucifixion of a single man."

Reflections

"But in the last moment, the world will not make the step. This hatred, madness, will end. It is artificial. It is not basic. Humanity must open its eyes. On this earth, there must be a place for Jews, as for all men."

And in that hope, Ka-Tzelnik 135633 keeps pointing to the "light of the lesson of the holocaust," while De-Nur and his Sabre wife press their crusade for brotherhood between Arabs and Jews. Royalties from his latest book have been dedicated to establishing an institute for that purpose.

The present hatred, whipped up by the ambitions of Nasser and his Russian backers, "is artificial," he said. "It has no reason for existence. We — the Arabs and Jews — are puppets on the strings of strange powers."

"The outside hands plague us. But the new generation of Jews and Arabs must break the cycle of hatred. The Arabs within Israel can become a living bridge to our brothers across the border."

A Look at the Israeli Army, 1970 Version

By LESTER KINSOLVING
TEL AVIV — Is Israel becoming a Sparta?

"Well, we don't put our old people out to die!" answered Shlomo Keddar, former Haganah Commander — and now ombudsman — of Jerusalem.

"I don't think we can fairly be called militaristic. But we are at war — a war not of our choosing. And it is absolutely imperative that we have the best possible armed forces."

He recalled a dinner just after the Six Day War, in which there were present a number of young men who had been in combat: "There was, and I think understandably, some discussion of the war. But only the deepest sense of relief, none of the gloating or triumph of some victors. If anything, a regret that there had to be any fighting and death."

One of those in the thick of the fighting was Gen. Mordechai Gur, now commander of Northern Israel, who led his fellow paratroopers in their taking of the Old City of Jerusalem. Gen. Gur is a writer — of books for children.

The paratroopers, known as the San Chenim, are Israel's military elite. Their training requires among other things the ability to do at least 40 pushups and run 13 miles, non-stop; sometimes while helping carry a comrade who is winded or who has fainted in the intense heat.

All San Chenim are volunteers. This is one of the reasons cited by Maj. Giora (last names of Israel soldiers below the rank of general are never revealed) as among reasons why they are "the best troops in the Israel Defense Forces."

Would any other of Israel's military units happen to disagree with this estimate?

"No," replied the major, quickly and a little ominously — but adding as an afterthought:

"We are best on ground. Our pilots are good, too."

The major, age 31 and a regular army veteran of two wars, is not tall; but he is ruggedly built.

When he is 42, he hopes to revert to the reserves so that he may take up the engineering for which he spent four college years at Haifa's Technion.

He also has an impressive red beard and explained that any Israeli soldier may wear a beard — provided it is neatly trimmed, "because it is a pain shaving when we are training all over Israel." But no long hair: "No heepies or bitnicks."

He cited the fact that his unit had carefully removed

Considering the superb physical conditioning and morale of his men, who wear the coveted red beret, do they ever have to be disciplined for pushing around other soldiers, or civilians?

"I have never had such problem," he answered. "That would be very unwise — we have enough fighting to do."

But aren't some of his men unwise?

"If they were unwise, they wouldn't be with us," he answered with a light grin. Then he frowned and went on: "Our purpose is not to kill — we kill only when there is no alternative."

He cited the fact that his unit had carefully removed all civilians before they blew up 13 Arab planes in the raid on the Beirut airport last year. But then he clammed up in regard to all other details of the notable raid, in which there were no casualties on either side.

At this point, a twin-engine Nord flew 1,500 feet over our heads and began discharging parachutists. "I'm sorry that my English is not so good," he said, as our conversation concluded.

The Israel Defense Forces, in addition to being undefeated against three confrontations of vast superiority in manpower and equipment, are also one of the world's most unusual armies.

Saluting is virtually non-existent, as is the calling of officers "Sir." (It is either "Commander" or the officer's first name).

"We are risking our lives together," explained Pvt. Morris — "Such familiarity is never contemptuous, especially when our officers are always out in front leading us when we go into battle."

Do any enlisted men ever talk back to officers? "Oh, that would be very wrong!" explained Pvt. Morris. "If he kept doing it he could be arrested or jailed — but usually the other soldiers would make him — what shall I say — a 'treatment.' And when they are under arrest, they must march through the base and the other soldiers look at them — and they are ashamed!"

Do any of Israel's young men resist the call to universal military service?

"I have never heard of such. I have a friend who was paralyzed as a child. He appealed dozens of times to serve and they finally gave him a desk job as a soldier — not so much because they needed him, but because of him. It is an awful thing to be turned down for service, either because of health or a police record."

"All parents and friends are enthusiastic and behind us. Here in Israel it is an honor to be in the Army."

Pvt. Morris earns a salary of 22 Israeli pounds each month — roughly six dollars.

Satire Column in Religious Paper Lampoons Absurdities in Church

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
NEW YORK (AP) — A Jesuit priest said to his bishop: "Your Excellency, an official of your chancery office has informed my superior that I am not to take part in any more racial demonstrations. I would like to know whether this was done with your knowledge and approval."

The bishop: "Father, it was done without my knowledge but with my approval."

That's the sort of ecclesiastical ambiguity and absurdity, collected mostly from church publications and parish bulletins and sent in by readers, which are the object of zestful, often peppery satire in a lighthearted column "Cry Pax!"

Subtitles "A Column Without Rules," it appears in the National Catholic Reporter, an independent weekly published in Kansas City, and it gleefully lampoons each week's accumulated accounts of oddities and inanities in the church.

A selection of the, "The Best of Cry Pax!" has been issued as a paperbound book.

As for the purpose behind such material, Editor Robert G. Hoyt says simply, "It is to make you laugh, an altogether sufficient function."

Some people feel it is irreverent to laugh about the church, he says, but "our premise is that God must have a sense of humor."

Here are a few examples from the glimpses into the comic side of the religious enterprise, along with the editor's postscript comments in some cases:

— The Baltimore Catholic Review reports the wording of a sign on the wall of a local estate: "Trespassers will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. Sisters of Mercy."

— Headline in the Michigan Catholic, Detroit archdiocesan newspaper: "Minister Marries Son in Catholic Church." Comment: "Ecumenism gone wild."

— A Church of England bishop, interviewed by the Gloucester Citizen on the question of admitting women to the priesthood, said "You can't just think of women priests, you have got to think in terms of a woman bishop. And you can't have a 'Father-in-God' in a skirt."

Comment: "The Citizen carried a photo on the same page showing the bishop in his, uh, robes."

— The spiritual director of the Holy Name Society in Cleveland defended a petition circulated in the diocese backing Pope Paul and Humane Vitae — his encyclical against contraception. The petition, he said, "gave the great mass of people a chance to stand up and be counted." According to National Catholic News Service however, he declined to give the number of signers.

Comment: "A chance to stand up and be counted in the dark."

— An advertisement sponsored by the Lutheran Laymen's League announces availability of a free booklet entitled, "Life After Death-Fact or Fiction," and asks, "Why not find out for yourself?"

— The order of services for a Christmas Eve candlelight service in St. Thomas Episcopal Church, New York City, concludes: "Please do not attempt to leave the church while it is in darkness." Comment: "Yes, Lord."

— In a piece for the New York Times Book Review, theologian Martin Marty includes a quote from an early American pacifist, David Lipscomb. "I would like as soon to risk my chance of heaven to die drunk in a bawdy house as to die on the battlefield with murder in my heart, trying to kill my fellow men."

Second Choice

— The editor of Catholic Miss recently asked her readers to describe their fondest wishes and dreams. A 13-year-old responded:

"If I could have my fondest dream come true, I would wish for a life using all my natural talents for God's glory until they are exhausted. If I could have this wish I would have fulfilled God's command to know, love and serve Him in this world. If I couldn't have this, I would wish for a color television set."

— A National Catholic News Service story explaining reforms aimed at great simplicity in the papal household included this paragraph:

"Laymen holding the title of Gentlemen of the Cape and Sword are now to be called Gentlemen of His Holiness. It has already become the custom of these to wear only tails on ceremonial occasion and to leave at home their Spanish costumes of the 15th century."

Comment: "Rome bureau: Send pix soonest."

— In an article headlined, "I Am a Priest — I Never Want to Marry," in The Catholic Register, a defender of celibacy listed some of its practical advantages, including this one:

"The unmarried priest can risk the physical danger of taking spiritual care of sick persons without any fear of bringing home germs to his loved ones."

Comment: "Celibacy is sanitary."

SCOUT SUNDAY

RED BANK — Clergymen from local churches attended a church night presented by the Kiwanis Club of Red Bank, William C. Langston, left, is pictured with Brig. Gen. Walter Murdock, Salvation Army, Red Bank, James A. Marvin, chaplain, Ft. Monmouth and Raymond P. Garman, Sr., president of Kiwanis. The club presented its annual support of churches Monday in Molly Pitcher Motor Inn.

Other clergymen in attendance were:

Set Lenten Preaching

SHREWSBURY — A Lenten preaching mission will be held in Christ Episcopal Church here during the first week in Lent, beginning Ash Wednesday, Feb. 11, through Sunday, Feb. 15.

"AGE" SEGREGATION HIT
SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Criticizing the church practice of establishing special homes for the aged, Dr. Herbert C. Lazebny, head of a residential development for older citizens, calls them "ghettos of aging." He told a Christian Church (Disciples) meeting in Little Silver when that church was under the Shrewsbury parish. Since then he has

Mission

The Rev. Ronald G. Albury announced today that Brother Stephen, a provincial minister of the Order of St. Francis, based at Little Portion Friary, Mt. Sinai, Long Island, will conduct services at Christ Church each evening at 8 o'clock (excepting Saturday and Sunday) and will deliver the sermon at 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. on Sunday, Feb. 15.

Many years ago, after his graduation from Columbia University and the General Theological Seminary, Brother Stephen conducted a mission in Little Silver when that church was under the Shrewsbury parish. Since then he has been in parish work in Chicago and Harlem, has had charge of various houses of the order at different times and was Episcopalian chaplain in Illinois penitentiaries.

AWARENESS "GAP"
WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — A survey taken by the Roman Catholic diocese here found that 43 per cent of Catholics in the area had never heard of the Second Vatican Council, the 1962-65 meeting in Rome whose actions have revolutionized Catholic methods and thought.

"Very startling data," observed Bishop Bernard J. Flanagan.

SHREWSBURY — Einar Waerom, internationally known Swedish tenor, will present a concert at the First Assembly of God Church here tomorrow at 7:30 a.m.

He received his musical training at the Royal Conservatory in Stockholm where he studied for operatic and concert work. Later, however, he dedicated his talent to Christian service, and he was introduced to America by Bishop Raymond T. Wade of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Since then he has appeared in sacred concerts throughout the nation.

His unusual voice is his way of preaching the Gospel, for he considers himself a minister of music. The public is invited to attend the concert.

ENJOYMENT

Your Weekend Magazine

Katchen Remembered

RED BANK — A special concert, dedicated to the memory of pianist Julius Katchen, will be performed at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday by his friend, pianist Jacob Lateiner, at the Carlton Theater.

The concert, third in the Monmouth Arts Foundation's series for 1969-70, was originally to have been performed by Mr. Katchen, a world-renowned pianist and a native of Monmouth County. He had been chosen over a year ago to return to the MAF Concert Series after having performed here in 1965.

He died in Paris last year at the age of 42.

A special concert program insert will contain a biography of Mr. Katchen. And, also in his memory, scholarships have been established through the Julius Katchen Memorial Scholarship Fund and the Monmouth Arts Foundation Scholarship Fund. Mr. Lateiner is contributing part of his concert fees to support the scholarships.

Mr. Lateiner's program will open with Bach's Organ Toccata in C Major (arranged by Busoni) followed by the Sonata in C Minor, Opus III, by Beethoven. After an intermission, he will perform the Sonata in 1 Movement, Opus I, by Berg and conclude the program with Variations on a Theme of Paganini (Books I and II) by Brahms.

A reception for Mr. Lateiner will be held in the upper lobby after the concert.

Mr. Lateiner is known for his interpretations of Beethoven, but his repertoire is varied and he also maintains a keen interest in contemporary music. His collaboration with Jascha Heifetz and Gregor Piatigorsky resulted in superb chamber music concerts. He performed on the first NAF Concert Series season 13 years ago.

Van Cliburn Concert In Newark Feb. 8

NEWARK — Van Cliburn will give the fifth concert in the 1969-70 concert series at Symphony Hall here Sunday.

The series is presented by Symphony Hall in association with Moe Septee. The Cliburn concert will begin at 3 p.m.

International fame came to the pianist in 1958, when he won the Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow, and has continued to mount since.

Each season Cliburn makes more than 60 appearances in the United States and Canada, and each summer attracts large audiences to outdoor festivals at Saratoga, Ravinia Park, Interlochen, Garden State Arts Center and Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia.

Organ Society To Hear Faller

EAST KEANSBURG — Hank Faller, a musician without sight who has risen to the top, will be featured at the Monmouth Organ Society's meeting, 8 p.m. Monday, in the new Imperial Room of Buck Smith's, here. The public is invited to attend his concert which will feature romantic music with a Valentine Day theme.

Mr. Faller began his career as a summer replacement for organist Al Rando at the Plantation Room of New York's Hotel Dixie. He became a fast favorite and was held over for three years. He has accompanied several of Hollywood's most well-known singers and has performed at numerous New York supper clubs. Mr. Faller's arrangements are quiet, soothing and geared for listening pleasure. He has also recorded several record albums, the latest of which will be available at the meeting. He is currently playing at the Red Coach in Westbury, Long Island.

In addition to his schedule at home, Cliburn made a second triumphal Japanese tour last June. His first visit was made in 1966.

The pianist has been to the Soviet Union three times since his win in the Tchaikovsky competition, in 1960, 1962 and 1965.

Pianist Artur Rubinstein will play a special concert in the Symphony Hall Series Sunday, March 1.

'Amazing' At Museum On Sunday

RED BANK — The "Amazing Randi" will perform sleight of hand and other magic to entertain Monmouth Museum members and friends at a benefit preview party of "As Eye See It," an exhibition of optical illusions, Sunday from 5:30 to 8 p.m. in the Museum's Gallery at the Mall.

Randi has performed all over the world, has appeared on the "Johnny Carson" and "Today" shows and is famous for rapid escapes, especially from a lion's cage in Denmark, the Paddington Jail in London and a sealed container at the bottom of a swimming pool on television.

He is adept at close-up magic such as making radios disappear from mid-air and objects vanish from spectators' pockets while his hands are tied behind him.

Randi, who lives in Rumson, is also an amateur archaeologist and inventor. One of his inventions will be featured in the exhibition for which he is a technical consultant.

"As Eye See It" opens to the public Tuesday, Feb. 17.

HELP FROM KENNY — Poet and songwriter Charles F. Kenny reads a poem commemorating the 300th anniversary of the settlement of Eatontown to his wife, Anne, and daughters, Kerry Jo, 5, and Annie Sue 10.

Celebrity Providing Sonnets on Eatontown

EATONTOWN — This borough's first 300 years have been celebrated in a series of sonnets written by a local resident whose songs have been sung and recorded by Bing Crosby, Pat Boone and many others.

He is Charles F. Kenny. With his brother, columnist Nick Kenny, he wrote "Love Letters in the Sand," "Cathedral in the Pines," "Carelessly," "Goldmine in the Sky," and "Gone Fishing." Now retired after more than 30 years with the New York Mirror, he lives at 63 Reynolds Drive with his wife and two school-age children.

Several members of the Tricentennial Committee planning the year-long celebration of Eatontown's 300th anniversary knew of Mr. Kenny's background and asked him to write something which could be used in 1970. He responded with a series of eight sonnets recalling significant events in the history of the area.

Mr. Kenny was born in New York, but lived in Canada until joining the Canadian Army and the United States Navy in World War I.

After several years leading bands for Paul Whiteman on Munson Liners sailing to South America, he appeared in a national touring company of "The Student Prince."

He began writing songs with his brother in 1929 and joined the Mirror in 1931. He married his wife, Anne, a former Metropolitan Opera chorister, in 1958 and moved to Eatontown in 1961. He retired when the Mirror went out of business in 1963.

"I haven't had much luck with music recently," Mr. Kenny confides. "Rock and roll is a little out of my line and my one try at protest music hasn't gotten very far with the protestors or the publishers."

"But country and Western music is regaining popularity," he said, "and some of our biggest hits were country and western."

Miller's 'The Price' Enthralls Audience

By CAROL JACOBSON

RED BANK — An absorbed audience, "The Price," Arthur Miller's fine domestic drama, and an excellent cast, made for good theater last night in the Carlton Theatre sponsored by the Monmouth Arts Foundation.

Much the same as Miller's other compelling dramas, "All My Sons," "A View From the Bridge," and "Death of a Salesman" this play portrays the lifelong torment of two brothers and the careers they chose. The question arises, was the price worth it?

One thing that makes this play different from the others, is the creation of a humorous character, Gregory Solomon, an 89-year-old Jewish furniture dealer, who hobbles, wheezes, and philosophizes himself out of $1,100 for some old furniture. Supposedly, it is the first time the playwright, once considered the finest contemporary dramatist of the 1950s, ever developed such a role.

Buloff Takes Hold

It is "embraced" by Joseph Buloff. He almost glorifies Gregory Solomon.

The universality of the other characters, Victor and Walter Franz, and Victor's wife, Esther, played respectively by Douglass Watson, Carle Benson, and Betty Miller, although not as tragic as past characters in Miller's plays, are dimensional . . . they are real.

To simplify the plot, it is time for the family furniture to be sold. Mr. Franz, the boys' father, once a millionaire, lost everything in the 1929 stock market crash, and ended up a broken man.

Each brother chose a different road but in the development of each character, it is difficult not to feel pity for the rich, successful Walter, who left his pitiful father to continue his career because he knew "his father could take care of himself." For all his success, he is a shell . . . he can not feel anything vital for anyone.

Conscience Is Clear

Victor walked the same police beat for 28 years, struggled through a marriage, not too unhappily, with a son in MIT, and at 50 is scared but ready to find something for himself to do after retirement from the police force. His conscience is clear. He couldn't leave the broken father, even though he knew the old man was selfish . . . he also knew he was scared. Instead of going to college, and he finds out now he could have, he goes to work.

The old story arises. How can two children living with one set of parents, be so different. "What's it all about, it sometimes seems like a dream," echoes throughout the play.

Mr. Solomon's comments, though, about his work if I can use a pun, were priceless. "I'm registered, licensed and even vaccinated," he said. "There's only one beauty in this business, you meet all kinds of people."

Joseph Anthony ably directed the show, and Robert T. Williams staged a cluttered but deceptive antique attic set.

Letters Reflect The Thoughts of Steinbeck

JOURNAL OF A NOVEL: The East of Eden Letters. By John Steinbeck. Viking. $6.50.

By chance, posterity has been given an unusual document revealing how a major writer creates a work of fiction; at the same time this document gives intimate glimpses into the personal life of the author.

These were the circumstances:

In 1951 Steinbeck was writing "East of Eden." He was in mid-career. His "Grapes of Wrath" had come out in 1939, and in 1962 he was destined to receive the Nobel prize.

He wrote this novel in a large notebook given to him by his publishing house editor, Pascal (Pat) Covici. As he felt the need for a "warm-up" before composing each daily stint, he used the left-hand pages of the notebook to write "letters" to Covici, and the right-hand pages for the novel's text. This book is a journal of the left-hand pages. Steinbeck never intended for them to be published.

Harmon, Middlecoff
On Bob Hope Classic

NEW YORK — Former golf champions Claude Harmon and Dr. Cary Middlecoff will join NBC Sports reporters Charlie Jones, Pat Heron, Jay Randolph and Kyle Rote for NBC's coverage of the final two rounds of the 11th annual Bob Hope Desert Classic tomorrow from 6 to 7 p.m. and Sunday from 4:30 to 6 p.m.

Fourteen NBC color cameras will be placed about the last four holes of the La Quinta Country Club course to bring viewers the important action. The Bob Hope Desert Classic has been the highest-rated golf tournament on television for the last two years.

Harmon and Jones will be stationed in the TV tower behind the 18th hole describing play. Middlecoff and Bob Hope will be located just off the green at No. 18. They will conduct interviews with the pros and celebrity-amateurs after they have completed their rounds and signed their scorecards.

lished, and wrote in uninhibited fashion.

In his hodge-podge informal journal Steinbeck chats about his fears and triumphs in developing the plot and creating his characters, who seem to have identities of their own. He muses over writers and writing. He tosses in domestic bits about his personal life, and boasts about his recreations as a handyman carpenter. He fusses about the distractions of daily living, his insomnia. But mainly he records his experiences as a writer.

This document has a unique tone. It reveals a writer's inner thoughts about his work and himself during the creative process. The result is a remarkable revelation.

Stamps in the News

By SYD KRONISH

Although Jamaica was first discovered in 1494 and the island quickly became an important point on the Europe-America trade route, the country has only had its own coins since 1869. To commemorate the centenary of Jamaica coins, it has issued two new stamps for the occasion.

The three cents bears a facsimile of each side of the first halfpenny and the 15 cents shows Jamaica's first penny coin.

Earlier coins used in Jamaica varied from the doublets, pistoles, joes and reales to the British colonial coins. The first Jamaica coins were struck 100 years ago at the Royal Mint in London.

Coin collectors will note that many Jamaica coins, particularly those of the Queen Victoria reign are difficult to locate and are a valuable asset to any collection.

Show Fizzle Boosts Career

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Funny thing about being in an unsuccessful Broadway show, Frank Gorshin finds. It has given his career a boost.

His night club price has gone up, and he's getting offers of straight acting roles — "which," he adds, "is what I want to do."

Gorshin is the skinny, flap-eared impressionist who imitates some 40 other show business notables so skillfully that many watchers say he takes on their looks. A grinning Burt Lancaster and a teeth-gritting, intense Kirk Douglas are among his best. Frank claims an almost hypnotic psychology augments his facial changes. "When I say I'm going to do Richard Widmark, the audience wants to see Richard Widmark. Half the job's done for me."

Title Role

Producer Jack L. Warner, turning from films to Broadway, saw Gorshin on a television special and picked him for the title role in "Jimmy," a musical about the late New York Mayor Jimmy Walker.

Frank sang, danced and acted.

"The show closed Jan. 3 after a little over two months," says Gorshin. "The reviews killed us. The show was really panned."

"On the last night, with the curtain coming down and the audience applauding, I was crying. Not because the show was closing but because we could have been a hit. We didn't have enough preview performances."

Since the interview Gorshin has begun a two-week stand in Las Vegas where, an informed source says, his fee has gone from $25,000 to $30,000 a week. Other performances will follow in Reno, Lake Tahoe, Dallas and New Orleans. Gorshin has just guest-starred on television in a "Name of the Game" segment with Anthony Franciosa. Straight acting — no impressions.

Gained Prestige

His theory on being in increased demand: "I gained prestige by starring in a Broadway show even if it wasn't a smash. We played to 8,000 people a week, and some nice things were said about me in the reviews."

Gorshin's start as a performer was in his native Pittsburgh, where at 12 the railroad laborer's son emerged from seeing "The Jolson Story" imitating the Mammy singer.

Carnegie Tech's drama school, the Army's special Services and a small Hollywood night spot led to Steve Allen's television show and eventually the supper club big time.

Outwardly glib but "basically more sensitive than people know me," Gorshin says he's undiscouraged by the Broadway fizzle.

"In my night club act I'm using a song from the show, 'Life Is a One-Way Street.' It says you've got to look straight ahead. You can't look back."
