THE OLD MADE NEW.

CATCH ON TO THIS AND SUIT YOURSELF.

In these times of so much business, advertising and sharp competition, when every merchant claims to have the largest stock, the best goods, at the lowest prices, it is hard work for a man to decide where to buy. In speaking for ourselves we will say that if we have given you good satisfaction during the past twenty-five years, we will do so again, and probably this is the best way to reason. We advertise to bring you to our store. After you come here we let our stock of Ready-Made Clothing and our prices do the selling. We do not force an opinion upon you to effect a sale, nor do we argue with you to prove that our judgment is better than your own. In the matter of

Boys' and Children's Clothing,

We say that our new Fall Stock is now on hand. A great many handsome patterns are in stock for the trade of the coming season. Here is one important fact, our prices for the same quality, as can be seen in the large clothing establishments of Newark, are decidedly CHEAPER. We have recently made an addition to our store, which we have fitted up with a magnificent display of fine cloths, from which we make a suit for the most fastidious.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER,

Author of "Cavalry Life," "Bootles' Baby" "Houp-La," "A Man of Honor," Etc.

MRS. HENRIETTA E. V. STANNARD.
(John Strange Winter.)

CHAPTER I.

"HURRY NO MAN'S CATTLE."

Hope is a lover's staff; walk hence with that,
And manage it against despairing thoughts.
—Two Gentlemen of Verona.

Brilliant hopes all woven in gorgeous tissues,
Flaunting gayly in the golden light;
Large desires, with most uncertain issues,
Tender wishes, blossoming at night.
—Flowers.

"The fact is," said Lucy, in his most confidential tones to a group of his brother officers who were gathered round the open window of the anteroom in Idleminster barracks; "the fact is, I never was in love with but one lady in all my life, and she jilted me. Her name was Naomi——"

But here he was interrupted by the laughter of several, and the vigorous remonstrance of one of his hearers; that one was Miles.

"Now, look here, Lucy; it won't do. Why can't you let the Reverend Solomon rest in his grave?"

"Rest in his grave!" repeated Lucy, with a wise air of surprise. "Why, I didn't—er—know anything had happened to his reverence."

Another burst of laughter followed this simple remark; whether at its very simplicity, or whether at the disgusted look on Miles' face, would be hard to say; perhaps partly from both causes.

"Oh!" Lucy went blandly on, seeing that the Reverend Solomon, who had succeeded him in the affections of Naomi, was evidently still in the flesh, "you are speaking figuratively, eh! Ah! bad thing to do, that I never-ah do it. As I said, she jilted me. Ah! she was wreally the only lady I ever-ah wished to marwry. I never-ah altogether got over it."

"I'm afraid you never will, Lucy," put in Harkness, dryly.

"Pewrhaps not," with a resigned air. "Still, thewre's no saying. Time heals all wounds, they say; and by the time Mignon is old enough to marwry me——"

"Oh! then you're going to marry Mignon!" laughed Hartog.

"If she will have me," returned Capt. Lucy, with the utmost gravity. "Pewrhaps she won't; things of the gender feminine are so given to change of mind. Naomi, my first love, changed hers. Mignon says now that she will nev-ah marwry anybody but her devoted Lal; but when Mignon grows up, and she sees that her Lal is getting middle-aged, stout — although that is a calamity which, let us hope, will not fall upon me—bald—an affliction which let us pwray, the decwrees of Pwrovidence may long forebend—deaf—a state of things upon which heaven long pwrotect me—old people are such a bore—why, then Mignon may forget — or, worse still, wrepent — the wresolves and pwromises of her childhood, and go for some fellow who at this moment is flourishing about the world in an Eton jacket and a turn down collar. It is the way of the world, and so the world wruns away."

"Well, you know, Lucy," put in Hartog, "you would make rather an old sort of husband for Miss Mignon."

"I shou-l-d-n't the better able to take care of her," returned Lucy, promptly. "Not that I expect her to have me for a moment. I know my sister used to swear, when she was young, that she would nev-ah marwry anybody but a clergyman."

"And she did not!" asked Preston.

"No." And Lucy looked wiser than ever. "My wre-spected bwrother-in-law, Jim Arkwright, digs coals and makes cottons and calicoes; a good fellow he is, too. I was at Harwrow with him."

"Oh, a manufacturer!" some one asked.

"Yes; his coal pits and cotton mills and such like," returned Lucy placidly. "Seems to pwy, too. Anyway, his house is one of the pleasantest I know. I wish I was going on thirty days' leave instead of ten."

"Oh, you're going to stay with your sister."

"Yes; and Harkness goes with me," Lucy answered.

"I may as well tell you here that Cecil Lucy, of the Scarlet Lancers, had but one near relative in the world—that was his sister, Mrs. Arkwright. The name of Arkwright, connected with that of Weyland—Weyland & Arkwright—was one of the best known in and round about the district of which Barnsbury was the center. Well it might be known, for it was to be seen everywhere for miles and miles around—on carts and trolleys and railway wagons alike; on thousands and thousands of bales of cotton and calico; on houses and mills; I might almost say, on men and women.

"Of the two senior partners of the firm, Murray Weyland was a man under 50 years old, and James—or, as he was invariably called, Jim—Arkwright was quite fifteen years younger.

"It cannot be said that either of them was a manufacturer of the conventional story book type. Murray Weyland had been educated at Eton; Arkwright at Harrow. They hunted, and shot, and fished; had grouse moors in Scotland; and most summers one or other of them went off to Norway for salmon fishing; each had a love place in the neighborhood of Barnsbury and combined the life of a country gentleman with that of a man of business.

"Well, to go back a little, Murray Weyland, before he was thirty years old, had married the daughter of an Irish gentleman with just about as much pedigree as the Weylands had money, and about a tenth of as much money as the Weylands had pedigree; a handsome and vivacious woman, with regular features, and that blue-black hair, just the hue of a raven's wing, which often goes with those gray eyes which look like black ones, because Dame Nature has put them in with a dirty finger.

"The result of this marriage was unbroken happiness and one child, a daughter, who was called Olive. And Olive Weyland was not only the richest girl about Barnsbury but the most popular and by far the prettiest.

"Nor was here common, every day beauty; for she was a girl with an air as distinguished as one might reasonably expect to meet on a fair day's march. It had been said of her that the traditional spoon with which she had been born had been, not of silver, but of jewels and gold; certainly she had been lucky in that she had inherited the best points of both father's and mother's persons. Mrs. Weyland was a small, straight-featured, sparkling brunette, full of fire and fun and vivacity. Weyland, on the contrary, was big and fair and slow, with what had been a brilliantly fair complexion, though now it was reddened and tanned by much exposure to sun and wind and all sorts of foul weather; and, as large, slow-speaking men often have, Murray Weyland had a firm, true, steady, tender heart, which had never done a wrong to any man or woman since the day it first began to beat.

Olive had got the father's true, steadfast nature, combined with occasional flashes of the mother's wit; she had got the father's large stature, the mother's grace; the father's yellow hair and fairness of skin, with the mother's regular features and gray Irish eyes. She had also got the benefit of the dirty finger, and the effect of the whole was to give to the world just as lovely a young woman as either author or reader could wish for the heroine of a story or to be the darling of any man's heart.

No other child than Olive had chosen to make music in the pretty old house where the Weylands lived; yet, though there was no boy Weyland to take his place in the firm, Murray Weyland did not make a trouble of the fact. There were enough of the young Arkwrights over at Barnardwicke to carry on half a dozen firms, he was in the habit of saying; and it was true. Jim Arkwright had married when very young, and the old place where his father and his grandfather had lived before him resound I with the noise of six little pairs of feet. Six healthy, happy voices shouted "Dad dad, dad!" when he returned from his office, or, in a well-spattered pink coat, from his Elysian fields—that is, from hunting; and those six were all boys, and two of them had had the audacity to come as a pair.

And as there were enough of the young Arkwrights and to spare, Murray Weyland was well content with his girl. Sometimes he declared in jest he had gone in for quality rather than for quantity, and there were many who agreed with him; among them no-ably was Edith Arkwright's brother, Cecil Lucy, of the Scarlet Lancers, who—in spite of his affection and his devotion—had now that she had completed her twenty-first year, Mr. Weyland would fain have had an entertainment of a grander sort, and of a more elaborate kind, but Olive would have none of it.

"No, dear dad," she urged, "let us have everything as usual. My birthday party has always been enjoyed by everyone so why make any change?"

Of course Olive had her way, and invitations were sent out for the usual thing—a garden party, followed by a marquee dance and a regular ball supper. And when the day came it rose bright and cloudless, as it seemed a fair August day to do. Olive awoke upon a world which seemed to have no drawbacks, no failures, no disappointments; it seemed to her like a bed of rose leaves, among which there were no crumpled petals.

In the breakfast room a table was awaiting her piled up almost to overflowing with birthday offerings—gloves and bouquets, pearls and diamonds, gold and silver, and almost said frankincense and myrrh; she should have been very far out of it, for there were perfumes in bottles and flacons of every color and size and form; and the appearance of the whole was more like an array of bridal gifts than of birthday presents.

"A glorious day, Olive," said Mr. Weyland, when she fell her soft and blooming cheek for an instant against his, by way of morning greeting.

"Lovely, isn't it, dear dad! I really think I am one of the luckiest girls in the world. Mother, darling, that is from you," holding out a bangle set with rubies. "Nobody else knew I was wishing for such a one."

"Is it exactly what you wanted?" her mother asked. "I was more than half tempted to send for a few that you might choose it yourself, only it seemed more orthodox to let it come in the light of a surprise."

"Oh, much more; it is lovely!" Olive answered, as she clasped the beautiful ornament upon her arm. "What is that?—Edith Arkwright! taking a letter from the pile beside her plate as she spoke. "Oh, that is nice! Cecil has come," she read aloud, "'bringing Capt. Harkness, of his regiment; so I shall bring them to you to-morrow afternoon.' That could not be better. Men always improve everything. And Mr. Lucy—I beg his pardon, Capt. Lucy—always makes things go off well; he's such fun."

She was not allowed to linger very long over the breakfast table, or to examine the many offerings which the day had brought her.

There were, she declared, a hundred and fifty things to do and to see after; so presently she went away, singing in a right ringing voice a verse of an old ballad which had been haunting her persistently for weeks past:

Of all the girls that are so smart
There's none like pretty Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And lives in our alley.
There is no lady in the land
That's half so sweet as Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And lives in our alley.
—Old Ballad.

It was Olive Weyland's twenty-first birthday—her coming of age.

It had been the invariable custom of her parents to give a summer dance upon that day, a dance following a garden party; but now that she had completed her twenty-first year, Mr. Weyland would fain have had an entertainment of a grander sort, and of a more elaborate kind, but Olive would have none of it.

"No, dear dad," she urged, "let us have everything as usual. My birthday party has always been enjoyed by everyone so why make any change?"

Of course Olive had her way, and invitations were sent out for the usual thing—a garden party, followed by a marquee dance and a regular ball supper. And when the day came it rose bright and cloudless, as it seemed a fair August day to do. Olive awoke upon a world which seemed to have no drawbacks, no failures, no disappointments; it seemed to her like a bed of rose leaves, among which there were no crumpled petals.

"A glorious day, Olive," said Mr. Weyland, when she fell her soft and blooming cheek for an instant against his, by way of morning greeting.

"Lovely, isn't it, dear dad! I really think I am one of the luckiest girls in the world. Mother, darling, that is from you," holding out a bangle set with rubies. "Nobody else knew I was wishing for such a one."

"Is it exactly what you wanted?" her mother asked. "I was more than half tempted to send for a few that you might choose it yourself, only it seemed more orthodox to let it come in the light of a surprise."

"Oh, much more; it is lovely!" Olive answered, as she clasped the beautiful ornament upon her arm. "What is that?—Edith Arkwright!" taking a letter from the pile beside her plate as she spoke. "Oh, that is nice! 'Cecil has come,'" she read aloud, "'bringing Capt. Harkness, of his regiment; so I shall bring them to you to-morrow afternoon.' That could not be better. Men always improve everything. And Mr. Lucy—I beg his pardon, Capt. Lucy—always makes things go off well; he's such fun."

She was not allowed to linger very long over the breakfast table, or to examine the many offerings which the day had brought her.

There were, she declared, a hundred and fifty things to do and to see after; so presently she went away, singing in a right ringing voice a verse of an old ballad which had been haunting her persistently for weeks past:

Of all the girls that are so smart
There's none like pretty Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And lives in our alley.
There is no lady in the land
That's half so sweet as Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And lives in our alley.

Right tenderly did the fresh young voice linger over the quaint Seventeenth-century words, and right bravely did she chant out that other verse, which tells to any sympathetic ear such a whole, big, wide world of tenderness and love and patient endurance:

My master and the neighbors all
Make sport of me and Sally,
And, but for her, I'd rather be
A slave, and row a galley.
But when my seven long years are out,
Oh, then I'll marry Sally!
An! then how happily we'll live,
But not in our alley.

As she crossed the lawn, just below the terrace which ran in front of the drawing room windows (seven of them), toward the large marquee in which they were to dance in the evening, and to which several workmen were busily engaged in putting the finishing touches, her voice rang out as triumphantly as if she were indeed the beloved of the celebrated Sally, who lived up an alley, and kept her 'prentice-love as true to her as the needle to the pole; indeed, with such nerve and dramatic intensity did she sing, that one of her hearers burst out laughing, and made her start visibly.

"Please forgive me for laughing," the person exclaimed, in a tone of apology, which yet had a ring of amusement in it. "It really was so droll, the way you sang, 'Oh, then I'll marry Sally!'"

Miss Weyland laughed likewise.

"Yes, of course it was; but I love that old song, and it always makes me feel just as if I, too, had a Sally."

She looked past him, toward his companion, and held out her hand.

"How are you, Capt. Lucy? I'm so glad you have come to Mrs. Arkwright's in time for my birthday party. And this, of course, is Capt. Harkness!" holding her hand out to him in turn.

"Yes." Then, as the hand was taken, he went on placidly: "In time for your party, Miss Weyland! Why, I—or—came on purpose for it. A pwretty bother we had to get leave, too—hadn't we, Harkness?"

In time for your party, Miss Weyland.

"Oh, an awful bother!" said Harkness, stroking his mustache, and looking very modestly at lovely Olive.

"I—or—my sister had got twins," Lucy continued. "So she has, you know; and I didn't think it necessary to say it was thwree years ago."

"But if you are found out?" Olive cried, laughing.

"Oh, if I am found out!" shrugging his shoulders, as if that was a very remote contingency, about which he need not particularly trouble himself.

"Well, you did get it, and that's the great thing," said Olive, smiling. "So now come and see the marquee. I was on my way to see how the men are getting on with it. It is where we dance this evening," she added, by way of explanation to Harkness.

Harkness made her a grave little bow, followed by a polite little speech expressive of joy at the good fortune he had to be one of those who were so lucky as to have the chance of dancing in the big marquee that evening.

"But you are really to dance," she said; "you are not to get into a corner and look as if you were simply dying for a cigar."

"I never smoke cigars," he replied, gravely.

Lucy laughed out aloud. "I should think not; the very coolest lwrar-wool you ever saw in all your life," he informed Olive. "I assure you it sets evewry one in barwracks coughing as soon as ever he bwrings it out. Have you got it in your pocket, Harkness?"

"I don't take it to make calls upon ladies," Harkness answered. "Now, Lucy, on the contrary, Miss Weyland, is so lovely-ly at-tired in his clay that he goes so far as to take it to church with him."

"Not really!" she said, smiling up at Lucy, who began to laugh in a shamefaced way, and reddened a little under the gaze of the black-fringed gray eyes.

"And a week or two ago," Harkness went on ruthlessly, "he created quite a sensation in Idleminster cathedra, and set all the grandees of that distinguished city agog. It was such a joke. We had had an awful old swell of a general to morning service in the garrison church, and consequently to lunch at our mess afterwards; and as this old gentleman sat and prosed and prosed till half-past three o'clock, it was all we could do to get out of uniform and into morning clothes, and drive down to the cathedral in time for afternoon service at four. Of course Lucy couldn't do—do—I mean couldn't live without a pipe, squeezed in somehow or other. So he smoked one in the cab, and as we reached our destination before it was half finished he just shoved it into his pocket and went innocently in, as if he had never done anything half so wicked as smoke a pipe in all his life. But by and by—I was sitting in the rower stalls immediately below him—I heard a fearful scuffle behind me, and a smothered laugh, and when I looked round there was poor Lucy, with a face as red as a turkey cock or his full dress tunic, trying vainly to get at his coat tails, and his coat tails were smoking and smudging like a fire at a picnic!"

Olive's face had been growing more and more interested with each word that fell from Harkness' lips, and her gray eyes opened as widely as an astonished child's.

"And how did you put it out?" she demanded.

Harkness laughed more than ever.

"Oh, one of our officers happened to be next to him, and promptly crushed the smoking tails into better behavior. An awful dandy he is, too—quite the showman of the regiment, and he was going out to tea after service. I assure you his face of concentrated disgust—when the excitement of the moment had passed over, and he realized the fact that the spic-and-span yellow gloves which had covered his hands when he left barracks were for the most part black enough for a funeral—was very fine."

"Oh, but I gave him mine, and—er—mine were new!" put in Lucy, with an air of expostulation.

"Oh, then it's really true!" Olive cried, in surprise.

"True!—as gospel," answered Harkness, solemnly; "and if he had happened to sit in my place instead of where he did, there is no saying what might not have been the consequences. For I sat between two of the cerrymonic; and if Lucy's pockets had burst into flames there, and had set the surplices on fire, why, that would have been a flare-up—no mistake about it."

"Take care you leave it behind to-day," Olive said, with a laugh, to Lucy; "or I am going to wear a muslin frock, and if you happened to set that on fire out in the open I should not have the ghost of a chance."

"I'll take care never to set your fwrock on fire," murmured Lucy, in a very low voice, so that his friend should not hear it; then added, as Mr. Weyland approached them, "if it were your heart now, Miss Weyland."

"Ah! if it were my heart, Capt. Lucy," she answered, gayly.

"Yes, dear dad; we are going to see your beloved horses, certainly."

As the three—Olive, her father, and Harkness—moved away in the direction of the stables, Lucy found himself singing unconsciously, as he followed them, in a very soft voice, a line or two of Olive's song:

But when my seven long years are out,
Oh, then I'll marwry Sally;
And, oh, how happily we'll live!
But not in our alley.

Olive heard him and looked back.

"You don't sing it with much expression," she said, turning to walk beside him.

"I would sing it with expwression enough," he answered, "if I thought thewre was the wewry faintest chance of Sally's even—looking at me."

"Poor thing!" remarked Olive, but without any pity in her tones; for she was accustomed to Lucy's extravagant love making, and never guessed at the depth of earnest reality which lay behind it. "So it has a Sally, and its Sally is not kind to it! Poor thing! And it looks so dejected and so unhappy over it!"

Lucy looked straight in front of him, and said not a word for full three minutes. It fell rather hard upon him that she should be so ignorant of the truth; for during all these years, whenever he could scrape a few days' leave together, he had almost invariably spent it with Mrs. Arkwright, who was his only near relative. Her house naturally stood to him in the light of a home; and he hardly ever accepted any other invitations, except it was to Farrer's court, where he always spent some portion of his long leave.

Each time he had so come it had been with the fixed determination that he would speak to Olive, and get the matter settled one way or the other, for weal or woe; but each time he had gone away without putting the momentous question into words, because he felt that so long as Olive seemed to one unknown nobody else it was best for him to await in patience the development of events. So each time he left his sister's house it was without coming any nearer to the attainment of his wishes—without indeed any change, except that he each time grew a shade more intimate with the Weylands in general and with Olive in particular, and that he each time went away more desperately in love with her than ever.

So many, many things seemed to come between them, serving as almost insurmountable barriers. In the first place, Olive would one day be enormously rich, and as he had only some seven or eight hundred a year—a very modest income beside what hers would be—he more than once went away feeling that so long as Olive seemed to encourage

RAHWAY, N. J., OCTOBER 8, 1886.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINATIONS.

FOR GOVERNOR,

ROBERT S. GREEN,

OF UNION.

FOR CONGRESSMAN—3RD DIST.,

WILLIAM McMAHON,

OF RAHWAY.

3d Assembly District Democratic Convention.

The Democratic voters of the Third Assembly District, Union County, are requested to meet in their respective wards and townships to elect delegates to a convention to be held at LAMBERTS HOTEL, IN RAHWAY, on TUESDAY, OCTOBER 12th, at two o'clock P. M., to nominate a candidate to represent said district in the next Legislature, viz:

The basis of representation will be one delegate for every fifty Democratic votes, and one for every fraction over twenty-five cast at the last gubernatorial election in the several townships and wards, making the total number to which the ward and apportioned as follows, viz:

Rahway, 1st Ward	5
" 2d "	5
" 3d "	5
" 4th "	5
Clark	5
Cranford	5
Fanwood	2
Scotch Plains	2
Total	35

LOUIS F. WADSWORTH,
Chairman of last Convention.

The Plainfield Times (Republican) referring to the nomination of Hon. Robert S. Green says—"There is little doubt that he will be the next Governor of New Jersey."

Judge Green is undoubtedly the strongest of those named in the convention. His election is practically assured, and his name at the head of the ticket will give strength to the local tickets and help in the very necessary work of carrying the State Legislature for the Democratic party this fall.—Hudson Co. Dem. Adv.

Republican headquarters for the city appear to have been established in the anteroom of the Advocate office. It being on the ground floor some bad boys have been looking through the orifices to make observations. A prominent figure at a recent gathering was that of a well known ex-magistrate sitting on the floor and embracing his lower extremities.

The nomination of Mr. Wm. McMahon by the Democrats of the Third District was the natural thing to do. Two years ago Mr. McMahon had good reason to believe that he had been nominated, but when the question was raised he submitted the case to a peaceful arbitration, and accepted the result, supporting his late opponent loyally to the end. On both occasions Mr. McMahon owed his strength to the support which the workingmen gave to his cause. His nomination should be a source of strength to the Gubernatorial and Legislative tickets, and will certainly result in his election.—Trenton True American.

The convention to nominate a Prohibition candidate for Assemblyman in this district was held at Plainfield on Tuesday evening. There was quite a good representation of delegates. U. M. Osborn, was made chairman and Ira Osborn secretary, both of this city, and the former received the unanimous nomination for Assemblyman. Uncle Will no doubt make things lively. He and Billy Chamberlain on a former occasion were candidates for office at the same time, but they were then on the same ticket, for Chosen Freeholders, and were both elected. History cannot repeat itself in that respect, and if the Democrats nominate a strong and popular candidate they may be both left.

P. S.—We have since learned that Mr. Osborn positively declines to accept the nomination. He says he has refused that honor from the Republican party in the past and does not desire it now. It is probable that Hon. Chauncey Schaffer, of Plainfield, will be selected by the executive committee to fill the vacancy.

The contest is over. The fight is lost and won, and all Democrats, bowing to the will of the majority, should rally to the support of the nominee of the convention. Fortunately that nominee is a man of undoubted ability and integrity, amply endowed by nature and education for the important office to which he is named. Robert S. Green is known to the people of the State as one who has been an unswerving Democrat, a good citizen, faithful to all the obligations of citizenship, and above suspicion and reproach in any of the relations of public and private life. He has filled important positions of public trust, with a desire to best serve those whom he represented, and, it must be said, to their satisfaction. As Governor of New Jersey we believe that he will be upright and zealous for the public welfare; clear of mind and right of purpose; and will make an Executive of whom the State will be proud. As such he should receive the support of every Democrat.—Trenton True American.

The Republicans at their state Convention on Tuesday, nominated Benjamin F. Howey, of Warren, as their candidate for Governor, after a long series of declinations from prominent members of the party who refused to be set up for a trouncing by Judge Green. Howey was accidently elected to Congress some years ago, on account of a split in the Democratic party and that appears to be the only reason that can be assigned for his nomination at this time, except to fill out the ticket. The convention was sorely troubled over the temperance question, and the committee on platform worked for hours to get some kind of a straddling plank in which would imply "we do and we don't" at the same time. South Jersey wanted a strong temperance plank and North Jersey wanted only a very mild one, if any. Finally it was agreed to put in a local option plank, in favor of the submission of the question of the regulation, control or prohibition of the liquor traffic to the votes of the people at elections especially provided for the purpose. Willie Waltah Phelps with his red neck-tie (we presume) was permanent chairman, and made one of his high-faluting speeches in which he falsified Judge Green's record in Congress, for which misstatements he has no excuse, as he was a member at the same time. Judge Green will address the citizens of Newark, on Monday night, and, to use an expression of the boys, he will doubtless go for Willie's neck-tie. Our space will not admit of a full report of the convention.

The little six years old son of Mr. and Mrs. Boston Westervelt was severely bitten in the cheek by the family dog on Wednesday. The dog was in the act of getting a drink, and the little boy was playfully pulling it away, when it suddenly turned and caught the boy by the cheek, tearing it entirely through. It bled profusely and a doctor was called, who cauterized and dressed the wound. The dog was so incensed at the dog that he caused it to be at once shot. There is no idea that it had hydrophobia, the cause of its being in the act of drinking water would prove that.

WM. McMAHON FOR CONGRESS.

Last week we barely had time to announce the news received by telephone from New Brunswick, of the nomination of Wm. McMahon, of this city, for Congress. Mr. McMahon is no stranger to the people of this district. Two years ago he was a candidate before the convention, and it was a disputed question whether he or Judge Green had really received the nomination at the first assembling of the delegates, though the chairman, after much changing in the delegations, declared the latter had received a majority and was, therefore, the nominee. Many of Mr. McMahon's friends insisted that he had fairly received the nomination at that time, and he and Judge Green agreed to leave it to the delegates, who were again called together, when Mr. Green was clearly nominated, and Mr. McMahon patriotically submitted and worked arduously for his election and that of the whole ticket.

At the convention last Thursday these circumstances were remembered; Judge Green having been more highly honored by the nomination for Governor, it was but fitting that Mr. McMahon should be tendered the nomination for Congress, which was gracefully done. He has been a resident of Rahway for several years, is an active and successful business man, and, owning considerable property in this city, he is particularly interested in the welfare of this section and the district generally. All who know him can testify to his perseverence in all undertakings, and if elected to Congress, on that account, together with his wide acquaintance with prominent public men, he will be in a position to do much for his district and state.

He also has a great hold of the hearts of the laboring classes, having frequently befriended their organizations when necessity required, though he is opposed to any of the tendencies to anarchy or communism, as displayed by some of the misguided so-called workingmen. The working classes, therefore, are flocking to his support and he will doubtless be elected by a good old fashioned majority. He is now the regular Democratic nominee, and on that account, of course, will also receive the support of all loyal Democrats.

Mr. McMahon celebrated his 34 birthday last June. He was born in Charlestown, New Hampshire, and when a small boy determined to earn his own livelihood. He was just thirteen years of age when he left the humble home of his parents to seek the fortunes of life, unaided and alone. Like most ambitious New England boys, young McMahon struck out for Boston. He found employment in a mercantile house, and after remaing there several years, was induced by a New York merchant to come to that city and accept employment in his establishment at a largely increased salary. Mr McMahon grew up in the mercantile business, but ill-health forced him to abandon it, and by order of his physician he spent a year or two in the West and Southwest, where he investigated the mining interests. Returning east with recuperated health and vigor he again made a start in life. He became interested in a Connecticut flint-stone and feld-spar mine, which had several New Jersey potteries for customers. Since then Mr. McMahon has been interested in various business pursuits. He is a director in several large manufacturing enterprises, and is associated with many of the most prominent manufacturers of New York, New Jersey and New England. Mr. McMahon has resided in Rahway eleven years. Eight years ago he was tendered the unanimous nomination of the Democracy for the Mayoralty of the city, which honor he respectfully declined, owing to press of private business.

THE CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.

The delegates from the counties of Middlesex, Monmouth and Union assembled at Turn Hall, New Brunswick, on Thursday last, to nominate a candidate for Congress in this district, to be supported by the Democrats at the approaching election. L. F. Wadsworth, of Plainfield, called the convention to order and asked for nominations for a temporary chairman.

Judge John L. Wheeler, of Monmouth, and Frank J. Vogel, of Elizabeth, were nominated, but the name of Wheeler was withdrawn and Vogel was chosen; secretary, Daniel H. Applegate, of Monmouth. Committees on permanent organization—Thos. Powers, Monmouth, G. R. Lindsay, Union, W. G. Compton, Middlesex; rules, Theodore Wood, Middlesex, J. C. Conover, Monmouth, L. F. Wadsworth, Union; credentials, Jacob Sutcliffe, Middlesex, Frank E. Heyer, Monmouth, J. A. Fay, jr. Union; resolutions, Michael Burke, Middlesex, John L. Wheeler, Monmouth, W. M. Chapman, Union; vice presidents, Michael Taylor of Monmouth, J. W. Hayes, of Middlesex, F. Blancke, of Union. Joseph F. McCormick of Middlesex and James Walsh of Union, were elected assistant secretaries, and the convention adjourned until two o'clock.

Upon reassembling the committee on permanent organization presented the names of the temporary officers as permanent which was concurred in.

The committee on credentials reported no contests and their report was approved.

The committee on resolutions recommended that the convention adopt the platform adopted at Trenton, which was concurred in.

The committee on rules reported in favor of adopting the rules of the last congressional convention and the report was adopted. There was considerable debate on the question as to whether the vote for the nominees should be by wards and townships or by counties. It was decided that it should be by wards and townships.

On motion, the convention then went into nomination for candidates.

Middlesex nominated William McMahon.

Mohmouth county nominated Charles Haight.

Union county, through Mr. Gilhooly, of Elizabeth, nominated William McMahon.

Dr. Silvers of Rahway presented the name of Joseph W. Yates.

A telegram was then read by the secretary from Gen. Haight, positively declining the candidacy.

Col Hendrickson, chairman of the Monmouth delegation, received a like telegram and withdrew the name.

Monmouth county tried to secure 15 minutes for consultation, but it was declared out of order, and the roll of the wards and townships went on. It was however, interrupted while Middlesex was being called, by a demand of Monmouth that they be allowed to consult, which was finally granted, and the five minutes asked by them was given.

Upon coming to order again, after considerable trouble in seating the assembly, the roll-call proceeded.

When the ballot had proceeded a little further Col. Hendrickson, chairman of the Monmouth county delegation, moved, in behalf of his delegation, that the nomination of William McMahon be made unanimous, which was carried amid great enthusiasm.

A motion was made and carried that a committee of three be appointed to inform Mr. McMahon of his nomination.

Messrs. Fay, Hayes and Kinmouth were appointed the committee.

Then followed speeches by Gen. Fay, Hon John T. Dunn, G. R. Lindsay, esq., Judge John L. Wheeler and others, which were attentively listened to and applauded.

THE VACANCY IN COUNCIL.—As there was a doubt about the requisite vote to fill a vacancy in the Common Council, on Tuesday night, we quote the law on the subject, passed especially for Rahway, approved March 6, 1873, as follows:—"Whenever a vacancy occurs in said Council, the remaining members by a vote of a majority thereof may fill such vacancy during that official year." Mr. Denike, was therefore, legally elected on Tuesday night.

The New York World publishes a long trade review, showing an extraordinary revival of business in most lines in all of the principal cities of the country.

The business boom and the Democratic Administration are traveling along the same road and in company.

JUDGE GREEN'S ACCEPTANCE.

Allan McDermott, chairman of the recent gubernational convention appointed the following committee of one from each county to wait upon Hon. Robert S. Green and officially notify him of his nomination for Governor:

Atlantic, James S. Beckwith; Bergen, Henry D. Winton; Burlington, Theodore Budd; Camden, Charles S. Bigelway; Cape May, Thomas E. Ludlam; Cumberland, Judge Jona. S. Whitaker; Essex, James F. Connelly; Gloucester, Clement Reeves; Hudson, ex-Senator E. T. Paxton, Temporary Chairman; Hunterdon, Assemblyman Chester Woolverton; Mercer, Joseph L. Naar; Middlesex, Senator D. C. Chase; Monmouth, Assemblyman William S. Throckmorton; Morris, Edward W. Quayle; Ocean, Clifford Horner; Passaic, Prosecutor William B. Gourley; Salem, William J. Casper; Somerset, John T. Van Cleef; Sussex, Judge Lewis J. Martin; Union, James E. Martine; Warren, W. M. Baird.

The committee fixed last Monday as the day upon which to perform the duty, and assembled at the Sheridan House just before noon, nearly all being present. Hon. E. T. Paxton of Hudson, was chosen as chairman, and the committee with a few friends proceeded to Judge Green's plens ant residence, corner of West Jersey and Cherry streets, where they were cordially greeted by him and his pleasant wife. After the greetings and congratulations Judge Paxton briefly addressed Judge Green, tendering him the nomination for Governor—to which he made the following eloquent response:

I am deeply sensible of the high honor which has been conferred on me by the convention, whose representatives you are. I trust I appreciate the responsibilities which its acceptance entails.

The resolutions adopted by the convention have been the subject of careful consideration and meet my cordial and unqualified approval.

I may avail myself, in the near future, of the opportunity to give a more formal and extended consideration to the declarations of the platform, but cannot omit at once to declare my earnest purpose, if elected, to carry out its two prominent features—equal taxation of property, regulated by value and not by ownership, and the PROTECTION OF THE WAGE-WORKING from insidious legislative disjunctions, and protection to them in their right to fair compensation. The policy of requiring aggregated capital to bear its just proportion of the burdens of government, so successfully inaugurated, should be pursued to its proper conclusion and rendered permanent.

The duties of government to labor are twofold—one as employer, the other as sovereign. As employer it should not degrade or reduce the honest wage-worker by competition from convict labor. As sovereign it should absolutely protect him from imported pauper and contract competition. It should see that the laws already passed for the amelioration of the condition of labor are enforced in their letter and spirit, and that other just measures are enacted to ensure to the sons of toil their equal rights under the Constitution. Labor, satisfied and contented, without injustice to the rights of capital, is the nation's prosperity.

This nomination comes through you from the convention, as you have said, of the Democratic party to one, who unidentified with any divisions in the party in the past, is to day untrammeled by pledge or promise to any one—a position of independence acquiesced in and approved of by friends; preserved in to the present time to simple justice to those good and true Democrats whose judgment led them in the convention to prefer some other candidate, and to be resolutely maintained at all hazards as demanded by the dignity and honor of the high position for which I have been nominated.

I am, therefore, in the position to and to accept the nomination as the representative of the whole party, with no pledges given or to be given, save to be fair and just, to labor earnestly, zealously, unflinchingly, honestly for the success of the party which has so honored me, and if elected, to administer the affairs of state committed to me under the Constitution and the laws in accordance with the principles enunciated in the platform, endeavoring to secure the greatest good to the greatest number; equal laws, equal rights, equal taxation; maintaining the laws which have so far been enacted to effect those ends, especially carrying out the policy of taxation already established, and using all proper means to secure the just and equitable adjustment by law and through law of the relative rights and responsibilities of labor and capital.

Let me thank you, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, for the pleasant manner in which the action of the convention has been communicated and assure you, one and all, of my personal esteem and friendship."

During the delivery of his address, Mr. Green was interrupted by applause, evoked by the earnestness as well as the form of his declarations on the subject of labor and taxation.

"I want no better platform than that," was the expression of more than one of the committee, and the whole body joined in congratulations at having so able and outspoken a candidate, whose words showed how thoroughly he appreciated the situation, and how plainly and candidly he met it.

An adjournment to the dining room proved the Judge as pleasant and appreciative a host as he had shown himself an orator, and after a few minutes spent in conversation and refreshment, the party broke up, all well pleased with their reception.

Among those present, besides the committee, were noticed Attorney General Stockton, Judges McCormack and Hyer, Drs. Lewis M. Oakley and James S. Green, County Collector Sheridan, Surrogate Gerber, General Fay, of Elizabeth, Comptroller Carlton, City Treasurer Whelan, and General Robert F. Stockton and ex-Senator Blackwell, of Trenton.

HYPOCRITICAL PRETENSE.

MR. EDITOR: Will you allow me to explode the claim put forth all over the land that the Republican party is the only and truly great temperance party—that the Democratic party has never legislated favorably to the temperance cause—and that if the prohibitionists desire to succeed they can best do it within the ranks of the Republican party? Here is the record:

Prohibitory laws were enacted in Maine in 1840, Minnesota 1853, Rhode Island 1852, Michigan 1853, Connecticut 1854, Indiana 1855, Nebraska 1855—seven states and territories by Democratic legislatures. Massachusetts 1852, Free soil; Vermont 1852 Whig; Delaware 1855 American; Iowa 1855 Whig; New York 1855 Whig; New Hampshird 1855 American; Illinois 1855 Whig. Thus all the prohibitory laws were passed before the Republican party was organized in 1856. But stronger facts come to light. The Republican party as a temperance party repealed the prohibitory laws in Massachusetts in 1868; Rhode Island 1863; Connecticut 1873; Michigan 1875; Nebraska 1880; Iowa 1880; thus showing that the great claimant of moral ideas is dominated by the rum power and have done all the repealing. They are the great promisers but never the doers. They put it in the platforms but do nothing to redeem their pledges made before election. The Democrats promise nothing, say they are opposed to this measure, but often have answered the demands of the people. Which is the most consistent?

U. M. OSBORN.

REFORM CLUB DOINGS.—The Thursday evening meeting was as well attended as usual, the business duly transacted and the later portions of the evening devoted to matters relative to the good of the cause. Humor and jollity having taken the place of bickerings and wrangling, all things go on smoothly and satisfactorily. The Glee Club are arranging a series of entertainments; the Fair committee is laying the foundation for a successful entertainment and the prospects for the coming year are brighter than they have been for months. At the Sunday afternoon meeting Rev. J. A. Liggett delivered a most attractive and interesting address founded on the description of Belshazzar's feast. His comparisons of this noted character of scripture with the rum power of to-day, and the "handwriting on the wall" were vivid, and his audience was highly pleased. He was followed by Rev. Mr. Clark, of Pennsylvania, (son of Rev. C. Clark, of this city) in a short address, aptly and pleasingly making the application based on the previous speaker's remarks. On Sunday next Rev. C. E. Dutcher, of Elizabeth, will address the meeting.

MR. HOLLY FAIR.—The management of the Burlington County Agricultural Society has for some time past been actively engaged in perfecting arrangements which shall place the exhibition of this year far in advance of its thirty-nine predecessors. The Fair will open on Monday next, October 11th, and close on Saturday night, October 17th, and each day will be replete with its own special attractions. The special train service of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will be increased over last year and will cover four days at least, thus affording better facilities than ever for visiting the great New Jersey show. The usual low rate of excursion tickets will be maintained.

Independence Hook and Ladder Co., headed by Columbia Drum and Fife Corps, enlivened the streets by a parade before departure for, and in returning from New Brunswick, on Tuesday, to participate in the firemen's celebration there. They are enthusiastic in their praises of the handsome manner in which they were received and entertained by Raritan Engine Co., and by the firemen and citizens generally.

THE THIRD PARTY.

MR. EDITOR: I have been intensely amused since the syndicate of youths have taken hold of the Advocate, to read their tin-pan thunderings at the Prohibitionists. They seem to be scared out of their wits and to have concluded, that we of that party were about to swallow them up. I know of no one who makes sufficient claim to immediate success for our party, (except it be the N. Y. World which has an object in so doing) to cause any great terror to spread over the minds of the G. O. P. But I started out, with your permission to make a few selections from a most timely and sensible article written by Mr. J. C. Fernald of Ohio, on the origin of the Republican as a third party, just thirty years ago. It was most emphatically a party of one idea, that of anti-slavery. It gathered in and was made up of men of all views and opinions on every other subject than that one idea.

At the first National Convention of the Republican party at Philadelphia, in June, 1856. Among other things it was resolved to demand in relation to slavery in the territories—"positive legislation prohibiting its existence and extension therein; that the Constitution confers upon Congress sovereign power over the territories of the United States for their government; and that, in the exercise of this power, it is both the right and the duty of Congress to prohibit in the territories those twin relics of barbarism, Polygamy and Slavery."

Thus it will be seen that the Republican party was organized as a prohibition party. They were so fond of the word "prohibit" that they repeated it, and stamped it upon two successive planks of their national platform. It will be objected that this was prohibition only for the territories. The answer is, it was prohibition to the utmost reach of Constitutional power. It was to prohibit as far as prohibition was possible without war.

How was the party formed that was to do it?

"Two years ago [in 1856] the Republicans of this nation mustered thirteen hundred thousand strong. We did this under the single impulse of resistence to a common danger, with every external circumstance against us. Of strange discordant, and even hostile elements, we gathered from the four winds, and formed and fought the battle through under the constant hot fire of a disciplined, proud and pampered enemy. Did we brave all then to falter now? — now, when the enemy is wavering, dissevered and belligerent? The result is not doubtful. We shall not fail—if we stand firm, we shall not fail. Wise counsels may accelerate it, or mistakes may delay it; but, sooner or later, the victory is sure to come."

A party made up of "strange, discordant, and even hostile elements gathered from the four winds," "under the single impulse of resistance to a common danger," confident of "victory," and that victory, the "ultimate extinction" of slavery—such is Abraham Lincoln's description of the origin of the Republican party.

James G. Blaine, In his "Twenty Years of Congress" (Vol. I. p. 127), says of the Fremont campaign:

"The principles enunicated by the Democratic and Republican parties on the slavery question formed the only subject of deliberation during the canvass in the free States."

Of the Philadelphia Convention he says:

In its ranks were all shades of anti-slavery opinion, the patient Abolitionist, the Free-Soller of the Buffalo platform, the Democrats who had supported the Wilmot Proviso, the Whigs who had followed Seward. There was no strife about candidates.

The very history of the Republican party then, as recited by Mr. Blaine, is one of the strongest arguments possible in favor of calling out from parties formed on old issues a new party, when a new moral issue demands decision. By the change of a few words, his description would be a strikingly life like picture of a Prohibition Convention of 1886.

Of the Convention of 1860, at Chicago, Mr. Blaine says (p. 104):

"It was a representative meeting of the able and active men of both the old parties in the North, who had come together on the one overshadowing issue of the hour. Differing widely on many other points, inheriting their creeds from antagonistic organizations of the past, they thought alike, on the one subject of putting a stop to the extension of slavery."

Here Mr. Blaine distinctly describes the Republican party as a third party, gathered from "both the old parties."

This Prohibition third party of 1850—60, was organized according to its most eminent expounder on a moral idea.

In view of these facts of historical events of thirty years ago, Mr. Editor, of all of which you and I, as well as many others who were actors therein, on one side or the other, is it not only amusing but extremely ridiculous to witness the egotistical superiority of intelligence, and the question of the right of men to think and act for themselves, exhibited by these fellows. If the ideas of this clique of political tinkers who do up the Advocate's articles on prohibition are correct, then the Republican party and its principles of which they claim to be exponents is, and has been for the whole period of its existence, radically wrong. U. M. OSBORN.

"I beg to acknowledge the receipt of $583.39 from citizens of Rahway, N. J., for which please accept our thanks.

W. L. CAMPBELL, Treas.

The semi-monthly meeting of the directors of the Workmen's Building Loan Association was held on Monday evening. The regular routine of business was transacted and the reports showed everything in good condition. Circumstances point to an active demand for loans next Spring, and the premiums will no doubt advance.

On Monday evening next the officers and members of Bethel church will hold in their old church building, on Central avenue, a "Roast Pig Dinner Party." The affair promises to be a unique one and will no doubt be well patronized. Dinner 25 cents. Admission 10 cents. All the good things of the season will be provided.

Mrs. Deitz made a complaint before Justice Tunison against several young men who recently have spent a portion of their Sunday's in pitching pennies and "running the growler." The young men were arraigned before the Justice on Monday and fined $4 00 each. Let all Sunday growler gangs and Sunday drunkards receive similar treatment.

There will be a grand time at the Bethel church, Elm street, next Sunday. Bishop Cain will be present all day; at 10:30 Rev. Wm. Carpenter, of Brooklyn, will preach; at 3 p. m. Rev. Dr. Liggett, of the 3d Presbyterian church. The public is cordially invited to come and aid us to secure a house in which to worship God comfortably. H. P. THOMAS, Pastor.

Amos H. Vanhorn sends copy for a new advertisement, too late to get in type for this issue. He took four premiums at the late Waverly Fair—one for parlor suits in brocatelle; one in marble and plush; one for bedroom suit in antique oak; one for dining room suit. He has an immense stock of everything to furnish a house at prices that defy competition.

Mr. D. W. Davis, of the Williams & Clark Works, requests us to state that our informant was mistaken last week as to his offering $100 reward for the recovery of the body of Patrick Casey. Those familiar with the river knew that where the drowning took place the bottom is soft and the body would not be likely to move. Mr. Davis, however, took great interest in the recovery, and he and his men rendered all assistance possible.

REPUBLICAN DELEGATES.—The Republicans of Rahway on Friday evening last elected the following delegates to the state and congressional conventions:

State—1st Ward, George Eath; 2d, Richard Hurley; 3d, F. L. Sieden; 4th Wm. R. Frazee.

Congressional—1st Ward, H. Brant, J. M. Potter, 2d, Edw. Marr; George Wright; 3d, Chas. E. Reed, S. Ryno, H. B. Rollinson; 4th, A. E. Jewell.

At the meeting held on Saturday last, at the Franklin School, it was decided to hold the drawing class in Rahway alternating at the Columbian and Franklin Schools, Saturdays, Oct. 9th and 23d, Nov. 6th and 20th, Dec. 4th and 18th, Jan. 8th and 22d, from 2 to 4 P. M. It was also decided to allow any private school teacher of the city to join the class. The first meeting will be held at the Columbian School on Saturday of this week.

The New Brunswick Home News in its report of the grand firemen's parade in that city on Tuesday, has the following:

No. 1, Hook and Ladder Company, of Rahway, the guests of Triton No. 4, brought along their hand-drawn truck and about 50 men in uniform, who in their appearance and behavior are a credit to our sister city, and meet with a hearty and deserved welcome from the firemen and citizens.

Chris. Benner met with a painful accident while at work at the Gordon Press Works last Monday afternoon. Several of the men were engaged in moving a heavy piece of casting, for the Tesla Electric Light company, when it slipped and caught Benner's finger, cutting it almost entirely off. Charles Beyer assisted him to Dr. Daly's office where the injured finger was dressed.

It appears that some of the parents in the Franklin school district last week became indignant because of the suspension of a number of school children for ill behavior during the absence of Principal Banks, and an indignation meeting was called for last Friday evening to announce the action. But it seemed that the indignation had cooled down before the evening, as not enough turned out to make a meeting.

The tennis tournament of the Seminole Archery Club has been concluded. J. B. Mershon took the gentlemen's prize for singles, with Dr. Cadek second; Miss Julia Stanley won the first for ladies' singles, Miss Daisy Bush second; Wm. Pratt and I. I. Hurley won the gentlemen's double, and Miss Stanley and Mr. Pratt, the lady and gentleman double. Miss Stanley having won the second prize, because of Miss Bush's absence by sickness, she generously donated the prize back to the club for further contests.

The application of Charles A. Diebold for license was granted viva voce.

NEW BUSINESS.

Mr. Tufts moved to go into nomination of a Councilman from the 4th Ward, to fill vacancy occasioned by resignation of Mr. Dacon. Mr. Carman wanted to know whether it required a majority of the Council or a majority of the members present for an election; the chair decided a majority present. Mr. Tufts then nominated Ex-councilman Denike and Mr. Rollinson nominated Mr. Geo. Miller. Mr. Shipman said that he thought it should be the representatives from the 4th Ward to make the nomination. Mr. Robinson said with much personal condemnation for Mr. Denike, that he would decline to vote for him as he did not wish to draw him away from the peace and comfort of his family, (laughter.) A vote was then taken on the two candidates, when all the Democrats (6), except Mr. Shipman, voted for Mr. Denike, and three Republicans present for Miller.

The president hesitated about deciding as to the election, thinking it might require a majority of the Council, or seven votes, and Mr. Carman called for the opinion of the City attorney. He was not prepared to decide, on account of the absence of the law, and on motion the matter was laid over until next meeting.

Mr. Lohmiller gave notice of an amendment to Section 4 of the supplement to the License ordinance for Inns and Taverns. Mr. Carman became curious, because it was not exactly the usual way of introducing a title to a new ordinance and wandered off into all sorts of remarks which did not relate to the subject.

Mr. Rollinson moved that it be received and placed on file; the chair was unable to decide the result of the motion and called for the ayes and nays, when it was lost, the Republicans voting for and the Democrats against the motion. No further action was taken.

The following bills as audited and approved were ordered paid:

J. O. Tunison, $12.50; L. M. Brown, $61.93; H. S. Langstaff, $8.22; John C. Blore, $33.33; J. A. Van Orswork, $25.50; J. W. Slack, $33.33; Geo. W. Lawrence, $21.92; William Tooker, $5.00; George Congar, $45.00, salaries; John H. Hughes, Special Police, $54.00; J. O. Tunison, $13.23, collecting taxes; Railway Savings Institution for rent of offices, $225.00; Joseph Bast, $17.50, Wm. O. Morss, $18.00, Timothy O'Connell, $15.00, John Walsh, $15.37, Patrick Welch, $16.88 and $17.25, John McVey, $15.00, Michael Cook, $16.88 and $18.00, Benj. Clark, $18.00, work on streets; Louis Deitz, $11.25, Adam Turner, $11.00, Mrs. Frank Tunison, $4.00, Poor and Alms, were ordered paid.

Four Bills, from Mr. F. T. Cladek, amounting to $273.86 were read. Mr. Carman said that the bills had not been audited as they had not been signed in time for the Treasurer, but had since been signed and he moved that the said bills having been found to be correct, be ordered paid, which was agreed to. Mr. Lohmiller also presented a bill from the Fabric Fire Hose Company for $11.72 and moved that as it had been found correct and signed by the proper committee it be paid, which was so ordered. Mr. Lohmiller then moved to adjourn. Mr. McManus said that before adjourning, he would move to go into secret session, which was seconded by Mr. Carman and was carried. A lengthy session was held, after which Council adjourned.

FIREMEN'S ELECTION.—As stated in our last, no nominations were made at the regular convention for Chief and Assistant Engineers of the Rahway Fire Department. Subsequently the following ticket was placed in the field and the candidates were elected practically without opposition: For Chief, Samuel Lakey; Assistant, 1st and 4th Wards, Edward C. Fox; 2d and 3d Wards, Frederick Frank. An independent ticket with Ira C. Ayres for Chief, and C. W. Ward and J. D. Fyffe for Assistants, was printed, but those candidates say it was done without their consent, and they used all efforts to keep them from being voted. The following was the result in the different companies: Independence H. & L. Co. 35 votes for the regular ticket; Washington Engine Co. cast only one vote, for the independent ticket, and Washington Hose Co. did not cast any votes—these down town companies appearing to take no interest in the election; Franklin Engine Co. No. 2, 49 for regular ticket; Franklin Hose 2, 21 for regular ticket; Protection Hose 3, 16 for independent ticket and 2 for the regular. A procession of the uptown companies with the apparatuses was formed and marched through the principle streets, headed by martial music, in honor of the victories, after which refreshments were served at 2's house. Mr. Lake, the newly elected Chief, is a steady, straightforward gentleman, and an experienced fireman and will doubtless make an efficient officer. He has for a long time been an employee in the DEMOCRAT office, which is honored by his election. His assistants are also good men, and they will doubtless enforce discipline in the department.

Last Thursday Judge Scudder rendered his decision in the two cases of the township of Woodbridge vs. Chas. C. Dally and Jacob Stell. The Judge says that the two cases were tried together and were defended by Jacob Stell, who claims in both cases that he was not liable upon the bonds, because the name of Samuel Dally, his co-security, was forged to the bond, and that he, the defendant, signed, supposing the signature to be genuine. The Court holds "that this is not a legal defense and does not release the defendant from liabilities. In the first case, which is brought up on the bond of March 16, 1883, I find that the sum of $8,000 was misappropriated, by the collector, Chas. C. Dally, during his term in office in 1883, being the amount claimed to have been paid by him to the collector of Middlesex county in excess of taxes levied in the township of Woodbridge in 1882." The court finds for the township in the sum of $3,485, being principal and interest sued for, and on the second case on the bond of March 15, 1884, the court finds the plaintiff is entitled to $5,300.97, with interest from April 9, 1884, being the amount remaining in Mr. Dally's hands, when he vacated his office and which sum was not paid over by him."

The Rahway Teacher's Reading Circle met at the residence of Miss Clara Ellis, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 5th. The meeting was called to order by the Vice President, Miss Maggie Burlon. Mr. Banks reported the result of his correspondence with Supt. Pease, and the committee on drawing. Arrangements have been made for the class to meet twice each month at Rahway, said class open to all teachers holding a State or County certificate. The essays were clear, concise and practical, and showed that their writers had diligently studied their subject. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Hazard, Chamberlin's Hotel, on Monday evening, Oct. 18th. Subject for discussion, first ten chapters of Parker's Talks on Teaching.

COUNTY COURTS.

The October term of the Union County Courts commenced on Tuesday, Judge VanSyckle presiding, with associates McCormick, Harper and Hyer. The first business was the swearing of the grand jury. There was nothing to call their special attention to. The following is the list:

Seth B. Ryder, foreman, Fred. Bender, Jr., Daniel Wolfskiel, Thomas Terrill, Jr., John Engel, Frederick Foster, David W. Odiorne, Peter O'Dyke, Elizabeth; Daniel D. VanBuren, Wm. H. Sterling, Geo. W. Cole, Wm. J. Leonard, Plainfield; Linus Clarkson Wright, Rahway; Lewis T. Terry, Springfield; Robert Morrell, Summit; John C. Connolly, Westfield; Philip Shangle, Linden; David Potter, Union; William D. Bigelow, Cranford; Matthias Doty, New Providence, (excused.)

The list of supreme and circuit cases was called and dates fixed for trial. The following are those relating to parties in Rahway:

In the supreme court—Samuel Ayers vs. the Pennsylvania R. R.; Vail & Ward and Mercer Beasley, lawyers. (This is the suit for encroachment by the railroad, which has been once tried and appealed, from Judge VanSyckle's decision, and the appeal sustained; it is now down for retrial.) Mr. Beasley being absent, the time for trial of the railroad cases was not fixed.

The cases of Catharine and Philip Geyer vs. John Fetter, went off for the term, on account of the recent death of Mr. Stone who was attorney for Mr. Fetter. Mr. Berry appearing on the other side.

The Jardine cases against the railroad are all on the calender.

The case of John U. Underhill vs. Matthew T. Gay, for libel, growing out of some publications made by Mr. Gay during the last charter election campaign, was set down for Oct. 8th. Mr. Berry appears for the plaintiff and P. W. Ward for defendant.

Geo. M. Spidell vs. Wm. L. Mershon & Co., Garret Berry and E. S. Savage, Oct. 7th.

The following licenses were granted: Edward G. Delaney, Michael Kenney, Summit; Louis Nees, Wm. Ryan, Louis Vonah, Linden; Albert W. Moffett, Clark; Emanuel Eckle, Martin Hess, Cranford; August Kline, Jacob Wenzel, Union. The applications for the old hotels at Westfield and Springfield were objected to and laid over for a hearing on Saturday—the applicants being new parties.

The appeals in the other courts were set down by Judge McCormick as follows:

Henry G. Bunch vs. Eden Laing (reported in course of settlement) Nov. 8th.

Emil Tolger vs. Mary Reuter, William Gibby vs. Ira LaForge, Sophia Spear vs. Simeon Olmstead—all for Nov. 10th.

REMEMBERING THE CHIEF.

Last Friday evening the members of Independence Hook and Ladder Co. No. 1 and some friends met in the Company's parlor, where they had invited Chief Engineer Keller to join them. After enjoying a social conversation for a time, ex-Chief R. H. Kinsey called the attention of those present to the important part of the programme of the evening, and in a brief speech, in his usual happy manner, said that he had been called upon by the members of the Truck and their friends to present to the Chief a trumpet, (which he then held up) as a token of appreciation of him as a competant and faithful officer and fireman. The chief was somewhat embarrassed by the action, but recovered enough to make an appropriate acknowledgement. The trumpet is a fine silver, one 20 inches in height, lined with gold. The outside is handsomely decorated with the usual hook and ladder emblems, and the following inscription:

Presented
to
JACOB A. KELLER,
Chief of the R. F. D.,
by the
Members and Friends of
Independence H. & L. Co. No. 1.
October 4th, 1886.
C. B. Haley,
R. H. Kinsey, } Committee.
O. D. Sherwood,

On the bell of the trumpet is a finely engraved representation of the Truck. The trumpet is a very handsome one, and the chief highly appreciates the compliment. After the ceremony all repaired to the room below to partake of refreshments.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board was held Monday evening, with all the members present. Minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved.

Reports of the teachers were read and placed on file.

Communications from teachers requesting the use of a room in the Franklin and Columbian schools, for the teachers drawing class. Request granted.

The salaries of the teachers and janitors for the month of September were ordered paid.

Mr. Isaac Townsend was present in behalf of the parents who were displeased with suspension of the children at Franklin school, but as he could make no definite charges against Principal Banks, the Board declined to take any action in the matter.

The following bills were ordered paid: Ayres & Lafferty, $18.90; Geo. M. Freise, $432.50; John Bernhardt, $23.98; W. L. Mershon & Co., $2.50; A. Lovell & Co., $21.80; Painter Bros. & Co., $24.70; Harper Bros., $7.20; C. H. Tice, $27.70; J. T. Moore, $30.93.

Mr. Silvers of the teachers' committee, together with the Supt. reported a visit to the several schools, and that they found them in good working order.

The Committee on Books and Supplies reported a few necessary articles for the Third Ward School which were ordered to be procured by the Supt.

The Committee on special revision of the rules and regulations reported some important changes which were unanimously adopted and a number of the same ordered to be printed.

WHAT IS THIS DARK SHADOW

That follows us wherever we go? It is the fear of mental exhaustion that terminates either in Insanity or Death.
We as a people live fast. We are overworked, so that old age comes upon us when quite young in years. We pass sleepless nights, or with a sleep that gives no rest. This is nervous exhaustion, and we require a tonic that will restore the brain and nervous system to its normal condition, bringing back youth and vigor. The NEW QUININE, called KASKINE, is the most powerful tonic known. It removes that tired and depressed feeling, gives us a good appetite, makes us feel strong and healthy, gives quiet sleep that refreshes the languid and weary.
Bellevue Hospital, N. Y., "Universally successful."
St. Francis Hospital, N. Y., "Every patient treated with Kaskine has been discharged cured."
Rev. Jos. Dearie, Chaplain of Charity Hospital, writes: "I will be surely, on every occasion, through a conviction a most devoted promoter of Kaskine."
St. Joseph's Hospital, N. Y.: "Its use is considered indispensable. It acts perfectly."
Dr. L. R. White, U. S. Examining Surgeon, writes: "Kaskine is the best medicine made."
Dr. L. M. Glessner, has cured over 200 patients with Kaskine after quinine and all other drugs had failed. He says: "It is undoubtedly the best medicine ever discovered."
Prof. W. F. Holcombe, M. D., writes: "Kaskine is superior to quinine in its specific power, and never produces the slightest injury to the heart—ingior constitution."
Kaskine is pleasant to take, and can be used without special medical counsel. Pamphlets giving information, &c., sent on application.
Send for the great list of testimonials unparalleled in the history of medicine. Price $1.00 per bottle.
Sold by Dr. F. W. Oliver, Rahway, N. J., or sent by mail on receipt of price.

LOUIS F. WADSWORTH,
Chairman of last Convention.

The Plainfield Times (Republican) referring to the nomination of Hon. Robert S. Green says—"There is little doubt that he will be the next Governor of New Jersey."

Judge Green is undoubtedly the strongest of those named in the convention. His election is practically assured, and his name at the head of the ticket will give strength to the local tickets and help in the very necessary work of carrying the State Legislature for the Democratic party this fall.—Hudson Co. Dem. Adv.

Republican headquarters for the city appear to have been established in the anteroom of the Advocate office. It being on the ground floor some bad boys have been looking through the orifices to make observations. A prominent figure at a recent gathering was that of a well known ex magistrate sitting on the floor and embracing his lower extremities.

The nomination of Mr. Wm. McMahon by the Democrats of the Third District was the natural thing to do. Two years ago Mr. McMahon had good reason to believe that he had been nominated, but when the question was raised he submitted the case to a peaceful arbitration, and accepted the result, supporting his late opponent loyally to the end. On both occasions Mr. McMahon owed his strength to the support which the workingmen gave to his cause. His nomination should be a source of strength to the Gubernatorial and Legislative tickets, and will certainly result in his election.—Trenton True American.

The convention to nominate a Prohibition candidate for Assemblyman in this district was held at Plainfield on Tuesday evening. There was quite a good representation of delegates. U. M. Osborn was made chairman and Ira Osborn secretary, both of this city, and the former received the unanimous nomination for Assemblyman. Uzal will no doubt make things lively. He and Billy Chamberlain on a former occasion were candidates for office at the same time, but they were then on the same ticket, for Chosen Freeholders, and were both elected. History cannot repeat itself in that respect, and if the Democrats nominate a strong and popular candidate they may be both left.

P. S.—We have since learned that Mr. Osborn positively declines to accept the nomination. He says he has refused that honor from the Republican party in the past and does not desire it now. It is probable that Hon. Chauncey Schaffer, of Plainfield, will be selected by the executive committee to fill the vacancy.

The contest is over. The fight is lost and won, and all Democrats, bowing to the will of the majority, should rally to the support of the nominee of the convention. Fortunately that nominee is a man of undoubted ability and integrity, amply endowed by nature and education for the important office to which he is named. Robert S. Green is known to the people of the State as one who has been an unswerving Democrat, a good citizen, faithful to all the obligations of citizenship, and above suspicion and reproach in any of the relations of public and private life. He has filled important positions of public trust, with a desire to best serve those whom he represented, and, it must be said, to their satisfaction. As Governor of New Jersey we believe that he will be upright and zealous for the public welfare; clear of mind and right of purpose; and will make an Executive of whom the State will be proud. As such he should receive the support of every Democrat.—Trenton True American.

The Republicans at their state convention on Tuesday, nominated Benjamin F. Howey, of Warren, as their candidate for Governor, after a long series of declinations from prominent members of the party who refused to be set up for a trouncing by Judge Green. Howey was accidently elected to Congress some years ago, on account of a split in the Democratic party, and that appears to be the only reason that can be assigned for his nomination at this time, except to fill out the ticket. The convention was sorely troubled over the temperance question, and the committee on platform worked for hours to get some kind of a straddling plank in which would imply "we do and we don't" at the same time. South Jersey wanted a strong temperance plank and North Jersey wanted only a very mild one, if any. Finally it was agreed to put in a local option plank, in favor of the submission of the question of the regulation, control or prohibition of the liquor traffic to the votes of the people at elections especially provided for the purpose. Willie Waltah Phelps with his red neck tie (we presume) was permanent chairman, and made one of his highfaluting speeches in which he falsified Judge Green's record in Congress, for which misstatements he has no excuse, as he was a member at the same time. Judge Green will address the citizens of Newark, on Monday night, and, to use an expression of the boys, he will doubtless go for Willie's neck-tie. Our space will not admit of a full report of the convention.

The little six years old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roston Westervelt was severely bitten in the cheek by the family dog on Tuesday. The dog was in the act of getting a drink, and the little boy was playing it by pulling it away, when it suddenly turned and caught the boy by the cheek, tearing it entirely through. It bled profusely and a doctor was called, who cauterized and dressed the wound. The family was so incensed at the dog that they caused it to be at once shot. There is no idea that it had hydrophobia, the cause of its being in the act of drinking water would prove that.

WM. McMAHON FOR CONGRESS.

Last week we barely had time to announce the news received by telephone from New Brunswick, of the nomination of Wm. McMahon, of this city, for Congress. Mr. McMahon is no stranger to the people of this district. Two years ago he was a candidate before the convention, and it was a disputed question whether he or Judge Green had really received the nomination at the first assembling of the delegates, though the chairman, after much changing in the delegations, declared the latter had received a majority and was, therefore, the nominee. Many of Mr. McMahon's friends insisted that he had fairly received the nomination at that time, and he and Judge Green agreed to leave it to the delegates, who were again called together, when Mr. Green was clearly nominated, and Mr. McMahon patriotically submitted and worked arduously for his election and that of the whole ticket.

At the convention last Thursday these circumstances were referred; Judge Green having been more highly honored by the nomination for Governor, it was but fitting that Mr. McMahon should be tendered the nomination for Congress, which was gracefully done. He has been a resident of Rahway for several years, is an active and successful business man, and, owning considerable property in this city, he is particularly interested in the welfare of this section and the district generally. All who know him can testify to his perseverence in all undertakings, and if elected to Congress, on that account, together with his wide acquaintance with prominent public men, he will be in a position to do much for his district and state.

He also has a great hold of the hearts of the laboring classes, having frequently befriended their organizations when necessarily required, though he is opposed to any of the tendencies to anarchy or communism, as displayed by some of the misguided so-called workingmen. The working classes, therefore, are flocking to his support and he will doubtless be elected by a good old fashioned majority. He is now the regular Democratic nominee, and on that account, of course, will also receive the support of all loyal Democrats.

Mr. McMahon celebrated his 34 birthday last June. He was born in Charlestown, New Hampshire, and when a small boy determined to earn his own livelihood. He was just thirteen years of age when he left the humble home of his parents to seek the fortunes of life, unaided and alone. Like most ambitious New England lads, young McMahon struck out for Boston. He found employment in a mercantile house, and after remaing there several years, was induced by a New York merchant to come to that city and accept employment in his establishment at a largely increased salary. Mr McMahon grew up in the mercantile business, but ill-health forced him to abandon it, and by order of his physician he spent a year or two in the West and South west, where he investigated the mining interests. Returning east with recuperated health and new vigor he again made a start in life. He became interested in a Connecticut firm stone, and feld-spar mine, which had several New Jersey potteries for customers. Since then Mr. McMahon has been interested in various business pursuits. He is a director in several large manufacturing enterprises, and is associated with many of the most prominent manufacturers of New York, New Jersey and New England. Mr. McMahon has resided in Rahway eleven years. Eight years ago he was tendered the unanimous nomination of the Democracy for the Mayoralty of the city, which honor he respectfully declined, owing to press of private business.

THE CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.

The delegates from the counties of Middlesex, Monmouth and Union assembled at Turn Hall, New Brunswick, on Thursday last, to nominate a candidate for Congress in this district, to be supported by the Democrats at the approaching election. L. F. Wadsworth, of Plainfield, called the convention to order and asked for nominations for a temporary chairman.

Judge John L. Wheeler, of Monmouth, and Frank J. Vogel, of Elizabeth, were nominated, but the name of Wheeler was withdrawn and Vogel was chosen; secretary, Daniel H. Applegate, of Monmouth. Committees on permanent organization—Thos. Powers, Monmouth, G. R. Lindsay, Union, W. G. Compton, Middlesex; rules, Theodore Wood, Middlesex, J. C. Conover, Monmouth, L. F. Wadsworth, Union; credentials, Jacob Sutcliffe, Middlesex, Frank E. Heyer, Monmouth, J. A. Fay, jr., Union; resolutions, Michael Burke, Middlesex, John L. Wheeler, Monmouth, W. M. Chapman, Union; vice presidents, Michael Taylor of Monmouth, J. W. Hayes, of Middlesex, P. Blancke, of Union. Joseph F. McCormick of Middlesex and James Walsh of Union, were elected assistant secretaries, and the convention adjourned until two o'clock.

Upon reassembling the committee on permanent organization presented the names of the temporary officers as permanent which was concurred in.

The committee on credentials reported no contests and their report was approved.

The committee on resolutions recommended that the convention adopt the platform adopted at Trenton, which was concurred in.

The committee on rules reported in favor of adopting the rules of the last congressional convention and the report was adopted. There was considerable debate on the question as to whether the vote for the nominees should be by wards and townships or by counties. It was decided that it should be by wards and townships.

On motion, the convention then went into nomination for candidates.

Middlesex nominated William McMahon.

Monmouth county nominated Charles Haight.

Union county, through Mr. Gilhooly, of Elizabeth, nominated William McMahon.

Dr. Silvers of Rahway presented the name of Joseph W. Yates.

A telegram was then read by the secretary from Gen. Haight, positively declining the candidacy.

Col. Hendrickson, chairman of the Monmouth delegation, received a like telegram and withdrew the name.

Monmouth county tried to secure 15 minutes for consultation, but it was declared out of order, and the roll of the wards and townships went on. It was however, interrupted while Middlesex was being called, by a demand of Monmouth that they be allowed to consult, which was finally granted, and the five minutes asked by them was given.

Upon coming to order again, after considerable trouble in seating the assembly, the roll-call proceeded.

When the ballot had proceeded a little farther Col. Hendrickson, chairman of the Monmouth county delegation, moved, in behalf of his delegation, that the nomination of William McMahon be made unanimous, which was carried amid great enthusiasm.

A motion was made and carried that a committee of three be appointed to inform Mr. McMahon of his nomination.

Messrs. Fay, Hayes and Kinmouth were appointed the committee.

Then followed speeches by Gen. Fay, Hon John T. Dunn, G. R. Lindsay, esq., Judge John L. Wheeler and others, which were attentively listened to and applauded.

THE VACANCY IN COUNCIL.—As there was a doubt about the requisite vote to fill a vacancy in the Common Council, on Tuesday night, we quote the law on the subject, passed especially for Rahway, approved March 6, 1873, as follows:—"Whenever a vacancy occurs in said Council, the remaining members by a vote of a majority thereof may fill such vacancy during that official year." Mr. Denike, was therefore, legally elected on Tuesday night.

The New York World publishes a long trade review, showing an extraordinary revival of business in most lines in all of the principal cities of the country.

The business boom and the Democratic Administration are traveling along the same road and in company.

JUDGE GREEN'S ACCEPTANCE.

Allan McDermott, chairman of the recent gubernational convention appointed the following committee of one from each county to wait upon Hon. Robert S. Green and officially notify him of his nomination for Governor:

Atlantic, James S. Beckwith; Bergen, Henry D. Winton; Burlington, Theodore Budd; Camden, Charles S. Rigdway; Cape May, Thomas E. Ludlam; Cumberland, Judge Jona. S. Whitaker; Essex, James F. Connelly; Gloucester, Clement Reeves; Hudson, ex-Senator R. V. Paxton, Temperary Chairman; Hunterdon, Assemblyman Chester Woolverton; Mercer, Joseph L. Naar; Middlesex, Senator D. C. Chase; Monmouth, Assemblyman William S. Throckmorton; Morris, Edward W. Quayle; Ocean, Clifford Horner; Passaic, Prosecutor William H. Courtney; Salem, William J. Casper; Somerset, John T. Van Cleef; Sussex, Judge Lewis J. Martin; Union, James E. Martine; Warren, W. M. Baird.

The committee fixed last Monday as the day upon which to perform the duty, and assembled at the Sheridan House just before noon, nearly all being present. Hon. E. T. Paxton of Hudson, was chosen as chairman, and the committee with a few friends proceeded to Judge Green's pleasant residence, corner of West Jersey and Cherry streets, where they were cordially greeted by him and his pleasant wife. After the greetings and congratulations Judge Paxton briefly addressed Judge Green, tendering him the nomination for Governor—to which he made the following eloquent response:

I am deeply sensible of the high honor which has been conferred on me by the convention, whose representatives you are. I trust I appreciate the responsibilities which its acceptance entails.

The resolutions adopted by the convention have been the subject of careful consideration and meet my cordial and unqualified approval.

I may avail myself, in the near future, of the opportunity to give a more formal and extended consideration to the declarations of the platform, but cannot omit at once to declare my earnest purpose, if elected, to carry out its two prominent features—equal taxation of property, regulated by value and not by ownership, and the PROTECTION OF THE WAGE-WORKMAN from insidious legislative distinctions, and protection to them in their right to fair compensation. The policy of requiring aggregated capital to bear its just proportion of the burdens of government, so successfully inaugurated, should be pursued to its proper conclusion and rendered permanent.

The duties of government to labor are two-fold—one as employer, the other as sovereign. As employer it should not degrade or reduce the honest wage-worker by competition from convict labor. As sovereign it should absolutely protect him from imported pauper and contract competition. It should see that the laws already passed for the amelioration of the condition of labor are enforced in their letter and spirit, and that other just measures are enacted to ensure to the sons of toil their equal rights under the Constitution. Labor, satisfied and contented, without injustice to the rights of capital, is the nation's prosperity.

This nomination comes through you from the convention, as you have said, of the Democratic party to one, who unidentified in any divisions in the party in the past, is to day untrammeled by pledge or promise to any one—a position of independence acquiesced in and approved of by friends; persevered in to the present time to simple justice to those good and true Democrats whose judgment led them in the convention to prefer some other candidate, and to be resolutely maintained at all hazards as demanded by the dignity and honor of the high position for which I have been nominated.

I am, therefore, in the position to and do accept the nomination as the representative of the whole party, with no pledges given or to be given, save to be fair and just, to labor earnestly, zealously, unflinchingly, honestly for the success of the party which has so honored me, and if elected, to administer the affairs of state committed to me under the Constitution and the laws in accordance with the principles enunciated in the platform, endeavoring to secure the greatest good to the greatest number; equal laws, equal rights, equal taxation; maintaining the laws which have so far been enacted to effect those ends, especially carrying out the policy of taxation already established, and using all proper means to secure the just and equitable settlement by law and through law of the relative rights and responsibilities of labor and capital.

Let me thank you, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, for the pleasant manner in which the action of the convention has been communicated and assure you, one and all, of my personal esteem and friendship.

During the delivery of his address, Mr. Green was interrupted by applause, evoked by the earnestness as well as the form of his declarations on the subject of labor and taxation.

"I want no better platform than that," was the expression of more than one of the committee, and the whole body joined in congratulations at having so able and outspoken a candidate, whose words showed how thoroughly he appreciated the situation, and how plainly and candidly he met it.

An adjournment to the dining room proved the Judge as pleasant and appreciative a host as he had shown himself an orator, and after a few minutes spent in conversation and refreshment, the party broke up, all well pleased with their reception.

Among those present, besides the committee, were noticed Attorney General Stockton, Judges McCormack and Hyer, Drs. Lewis M. Oakley and James S. Green, County Collector Sheridan, Surrogate Gerber, General Fay, of Elizabeth, Comptroller Carlton, City Treasurer Whelan, and General Robert F. Stockton and ex-Senator Blackwell, of Trenton.

HYPOCRITICAL PRETENSE.

MR. EDITOR: Will you allow me to explode the claim put forth all over the land that the Republican party is the only and truly great temperance party—that the Democratic party has never legislated favorably to the temperance cause—and that if the prohibitionists desire to succeed they can best do it within the ranks of the Republican party? Here is the record:

Prohibitory laws were enacted in Maine in 1846, Minnesota 1849, Rhode Island 1852, Michigan 1853, Connecticut 1854, Indiana 1855, Nebraska 1855—seven states and territories by Democratic legislatures. Massachusetts 1852, Free soil; Vermont 1852 Whig; Deleware 1855 American; Iowa 1855 Whig; New York 1855 Whig; New Hampshire 1855 American; Illinois 1855 Whig. Thus all the prohibitory laws were passed before the Republican party was organized in 1856. But stronger facts come to light. The Republican party as a temperance party repealed the prohibitory laws in Massachusetts in 1868; Rhode Island 1868; Connecticut 1873; Michigan 1875; Nebraska 1880; Iowa 1880; thus showing that the great claimant of moral ideas is dominated by the rum power and have done all the repealing. They are the great promisers but never the doers. They put it in the platforms but do nothing to redeem their pledges made before election. The Democrats promise nothing, say they are opposed to this measure, but often have answered the demands of the people. Which is the most consistent?

REFORM CLUB DOINGS.—The Thursday evening meeting was as well attended as usual, the business duly transacted and the later portions of the evening devoted to matters relative to the good of the cause. Humor and jollity having taken the place of bickerings and wrangling, all things go on smoothly and satisfactorily. The Glee Club are arranging a series of entertainments; the Fair committee is laying the foundation for a successful entertainment and the prospects for the coming year are brighter than they have been for months. At the Sunday afternoon meeting Rev. J. A. Liggett delivered a most attractive and interesting address founded on the description of Belshazzar's feast. His comparisons of this noted character of scripture with the rum power of to-day, and the "handwriting on the wall" were vivid, and his audience was highly pleased. He was followed by Rev. Mr. Clark, of Pennsylvania, (son of Rev. C. Clark, of this city) in a short address, aptly and pleasingly making the application based on the previous speaker's remarks. On Sunday next Rev. C. E. Dutcher, of Elizabeth, will address the meeting.

MT. HOLLY FAIR.—The management of the Burlington County Agricultural Society has for some time past been actively engaged in perfecting arrangements which shall place the exhibition of this year far in advance of its thirty-nine predecessors. The Fair will open on Monday next, October 11th, and close on Saturday night, October 17th, and each day will be replete with its own special attractions. The special train service of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will be increased over last year and will cover four days at least, thus affording better facilities than ever for visiting the great New Jersey show. The usual low rate of excursion tickets will be maintained.

Independence Hook and Ladder Co., headed by Columbia Drum and Fife Corps, enlivened the streets by a parade before departure for, and in returning from New Brunswick, on Tuesday, to participate in the firemen's celebration there. They are enthusiastic in their praises of the handsome manner in which they were received and entertained by Raritan Engine Co., and by the firemen and citizens generally.

THE THIRD PARTY.

MR. EDITOR: I have been intensely amused since the syndicate of youths have taken hold of the Advocate, to read their tin-pan thunderings at the Prohibitionists. They seem to be scared out of their wits and to have concluded, that we of that party were about to swallow them up. I know of no one who makes sufficient claim to immediate success for our party, (except it be the N. Y. World which has an object in so doing) to cause any great terror to spread over the minds of the G. O. P. But I started out, with your permission to make a few selections from a most timely and sensible article written by Mr. J. C. Fernald of Ohio, on the origin of the Republican as a third party, just thirty years ago. It was most emphatically a party of one idea, that of anti-slavery. It gathered in and was made up of men of all views and opinions on every other subject than that one idea.

At the first National Convention of the Republican party at Philadelphia, in June, 1856. Among other things it was resolved to demand in relation to slavery in the territories—"positive legislation prohibiting its existence and extension therein; that the Constitution confers upon Congress sovereign power over the territories of the United States for their government; and that, in the exercise of this power, it is both the right and the duty of Congress to prohibit in the territories those twin relics of barbarism, Polygamy and Slavery."

Thus it will be seen that the Republican party was organized as a prohibition party. They were so fond of the word "prohibit" that they repeated it, and stamped it upon two successive planks of their national platform. It will be objected that this was prohibition only for the territories. The answer is, it was prohibition to the utmost reach of Constitutional power. It was to prohibit as far as prohibition was possible without war.

How was the party formed that was to do it?

"Two years ago [in 1856] the Republicans of this nation mustered thirteen hundred thousand strong. We did this under the single impulse of resistance to a common danger, with every external circumstance against us. Of strange discordant, and even hostile elements, we gathered from the four winds, and formed and fought the battle through under the constant lash of a disciplined, proud and pampered enemy. Did we brave all then to falter now—now, when the enemy is wavering, dissevered and belligerent? The result is not doubtful. We shall not fail—if we stand firm, we shall not fail. Wise counsels may accelerate it, or mistakes may delay it, but, sooner or later, the victory is sure to come."

A party made up of "strange, discordant, and even hostile elements gathered from the four winds," "under the single impulse of resistance to a common danger," confident of "victory," and that victory, the "ultimate extinction" of slavery—such is Abraham Lincoln's description of the origin of the Republican party.

James G. Blaine. In his "Twenty Years of Congress" (Vol. I. p. 127), says of the Fremont campaign:

"The principles enunciated by the Democratic and Republican parties on the slavery question formed the only subject of celeberation during the canvass in the free States."

Of the Philadelphia Convention he says:

In its ranks were all shades of anti-slavery opinion; the patient Abolitionist, the Free-Soiler of the Buffalo platform, the Democrats who had supported the Wilmot Proviso, the Whigs who had followed Seward. There was no strife about candidates."

The very history of the Republican party then, as recited by Mr. Blaine, is one of the strongest arguments possible in favor of calling out from parties formed on old issues a new party, when a new moral issue demands decision. By the change of a few words, his description would be a strikingly life like picture of a Prohibition Convention of 1886.

Of the Convention of 1860, at Chicago, Mr. Blaine says (p. 104):

"It was a representative meeting of the able and active men of both the old parties in the North, who had come together on the one overshadowing issue of the hour. Differing widely on many other points, inheriting their creeds from antagonistic organizations of the past, they thought alike, on the one subject of putting a stop to the extension of slavery."

Here Mr. Blaine distinctly describes the Republican party as a third party, gathered from "both the old parties."

This Prohibition third party of 1856—60, was organized according to its most eminent expounder on a moral idea.

In view of these facts of historical events of thirty years ago, Mr. Editor, of all of which you and I, as well as many others who were actors therein, on one side or the other, is it not only amusing but extremely ridiculous to witness the egotistical superiority of intelligence, and the question of the right of men to think and act for themselves, exhibited by these fellows. If the ideas of this clique of political tinkers who do up the Advocate's articles on prohibition are correct, then the Republican party and its principles of which they claim to be exponents is, and has been for the whole period of its existence, radically wrong. It appears that some of the parents in the Franklin school district last week became indignant because of the suspension of a number of school children for ill behavior during the absence of Principal Banks, and an indignation meeting was called for last Friday evening to announce the action. The application of Charles A. Diebold for license was granted viva voce.

NEW BUSINESS.

Mr. Tufts moved to go into nomination of a Councilman from the 4th Ward, to fill vacancy occasioned by resignation of Mr. Dacon. Mr. Carman wanted to know whether it required a majority of the Council or a majority of the members present for an election; the chair decided a majority present. Mr. Tufts then nominated Ex-councilman Denike and Mr. Rollinson nominated Mr. Geo. Miller. Mr. Shipman said that he thought it should be the representatives from the 4th Ward to make the nomination. Mr. Rollinson said with much personal concern for Mr. Denike, that he would decline to vote for him as he did not wish to draw him away from the peace and comfort of his family. (laughter). A vote was then taken on the two candidates, when all the Democrats (6), except Mr. Shipman, voted for Mr. Denike, and three Republicans present for Miller.

The president hesitated about deciding as to the election, thinking it might require a majority of the Council, or seven votes, and Mr. Carman called for the opinion of the City attorney. He was not prepared to decide, on account of the absence of the law, and on motion the matter was laid over until next meeting.

Mr. Lohmiller gave notice of an amendment to Section 4 of the supplement to the License ordinance for Inns and Taverns. Mr. Carman became excited because it was not exactly the usual way of introducing a little to a new ordinance and wandered off into all sorts of remarks which did not relate to the subject.

Mr. Rollinson moved that it be received and placed on file; the chair was unable to decide the result of the motion and called for the ayes and nays, when it was lost, the Republicans voting for and the Democrats against the motion. No further action was taken.

The following bills as audited and approved were ordered paid:

J. O. Tunison, $19.50, L. M. Brown, $61.93, H. S. Langstaff, $84.22, John C. Blore, $33.33, J. A. Van Orwick, $25.50, J. W. Slack, $33.33, Geo. W. Lawrence, $21.32, William Tooker, $55.00, George Congar, $45.00, salaries: John H. Hughes, Special Policee, $54.00; J. O. Tunison, $13.23, collecting taxes: Railway Savings Institution for rent of offices, $225.00; Joseph Bast, $17.50, Wm. O. Morss, $18.00, Timothy O'Connell, $15.00, John Walsh, $15.37, Patrick Welch, $16.88 and $17.25, John McVey, $15.00, Michael Cook, $16.88 and $18.00, Benj. Clark, $18.00, work on streets; Louis Deitz, $11.29, Abram Turner, $11.00, Mrs. Frank Tunison, $4.00, Poor and Alms, were ordered paid.

Four Bills from Mr. F. T. Cladek, amounting to $272.86 were read. Mr. Carman said that the bills had not been audited as they had not been signed in time for the Treasurer, but had since been signed and he moved that the said bills having been found to be correct, be ordered paid, which was agreed to. Mr. Lohmiller also presented a bill from the Fabric Fire Hose Company for $11.72 and moved that as it had been found correct and signed by the proper committee it be paid, which was so ordered. Mr. Lohmiller then moved to adjourn. Mr. McManus said that before adjourning, he would move to go into secret session, which was seconded by Mr. Carman and was carried. A lengthy session was held, after which Council adjourned.

FIREMEN'S ELECTION.—As stated in our last, no nominations were made at the regular convention for Chief and Assistant Engineers of the Rahway Fire Department. Subsequently the following ticket was placed in the field and the candidates were elected practically without opposition; For Chief, Samuel Lake; Assistant, 1st and 4th Wards, Edward C. Fox; 2d and 3d Wards, Frederick Frank. An independent ticket with Isaac Ayres for Chief, and C. W. Ward and J. D. Fyffe for Assistants, was printed, but those candidates say it was done without their consent, and they used all efforts to keep them from being voted. The following was the result in the different companies: Independence H. & L. Co., 35 votes for the regular ticket; Washington Engine Co. cast only one vote, for the independent ticket, and Washington Hose Co. did not cast any votes—these down town companies appearing to take no interest in the election; Franklin Engine Co. No. 2, 49 for regular ticket; Franklin Hose 2, 21 for regular ticket; Protection Hose 3, 16 for independent ticket and 2 for the regular. A procession of the uptown companies with the apparatuses was formed and marched through the principle streets, headed by martial music, in honor of the victories, after which refreshments were served at 2's house. Mr. Lake, the newly elected Chief, is a steady, straightforward gentleman, and an experienced fireman and will doubtless make an efficient officer. He has for a long time been an employee in the DEMOCRAT office, which is honored by his election. His assistants are also good men, and they will doubtless enforce discipline in the department.

Last Thursday Judge Scudder rendered his decision in the two cases of the township of Woodbridge vs. Chas. C. Dally and Jacob Stell. The Judge says that the two cases were tried together and were defended by Jacob Stell, who claims in both cases that he was not liable upon the bonds, because the name of Samuel Dally, his co-security, was forged to the bond, and that he, the defendant, signed, supposing the signature to be genuine. The Court holds "that this is not a legal defense and does not release the defendant from liabilities. In the first case, which is brought up on the bond of March 16, 1883, I find that the sum of $3,000 was misappropriated by the collector, Chas. C. Daly, during his term in office in 1883, being the amount claimed to have been paid by him to the collector of Middlesex county in excess of taxes levied in the township of Woodbridge in 1882." The court finds for the township in the sum of $3,485, being principal and interest sued for, and on the second case on the bond of March 15, 1884, the court finds the plaintiff is entitled to $3,300.97, with interest from April 0, 1884, being the amount remaining in Mr. Dally's hands, when he vacated his office and which sum was not paid over by him."

The Rahway Teacher's Reading Circle met at the residence of Miss Clara Ellis, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 5th. The meeting was called to order by the Vice President, Miss Maggie Burdon. Mr. Banks reported the result of his correspondence with Supt. Pease, and the committee on drawing. Arrangements have been made for the class to meet twice each month at Rahway, said class open to all teachers holding a State or County certificate. The essays were clear, concise and practical, and showed that their writers had diligently studied their subject. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Hazard, Chamberlin's Hotel, on Monday evening, Oct. 18th. Subject for discussion, first ten chapters of Parker's Talks on Teaching.

COUNTY COURTS.

The October term of the Union County Courts commenced on Tuesday, Judge VanSyckle presiding, with associates McCormick, Harper and Dyer. The first business was the swearing of the grand jury. There was nothing to call their special attention to. The following is the list:

Seth B. Ryder, foreman, Fred. Bender, Jr., Daniel Wolfskiel, Thomas Terrill, Jr., John Engel, Frederick Foster, David W. Odiorne, Peter O'Dyke, Elizabeth; Daniel D. VanBuren, Wm. H. Sterling, Geo. W. Cole, Wm. J. Leonard, Plainfield; Linus High, John D. Belmer, Jas. Vandehoven, Clarkson Wright, Rahway; Lewis T. Terry, Springfield; Robert Morrell, Summit; J. Ackerman Coles, Fanwood; Wm. W. Connolly, Westfield; Philip Shangle, Linden; David Potter, Union; William D. Bigelow, Cranford; Matthias Doty, New Providence, (excused.)

The list of supreme and circuit cases was called and dates fixed for trial. The following are those relating to parties in Rahway:

In the supreme court—Samuel Ayers vs. the Pennsylvania R. R.; Vail & Ward and Mercer Beasley, lawyers. (This is the suit for encroachment by the railroad, which has been once tried and appealed, from Judge VanSyckle's decision, and the appeal sustained; it is now down for retrial.) Mr. Beasley being absent, the time for trial of the railroad cases was not fixed.

The cases of Catharine and Philip Geyer vs. John Fetter, went off for the term, on account of the recent death of Mr. Stone who was attorney for Mr. Fetter. Mr. Berry appearing on the other side.

The Jardine cases against the railroad are all on the calender.

The case of John U. Underhill vs. Matthew T. Gay, for libel, growing out of some publications made by Mr. Gay during the last charter election campaign, was set down for Oct. 8th. Mr. Berry appears for the plaintiff and F. W. Ward for defendant.

Geo. M. Spidell vs. Wm. L. Mershon & Co.; Garret Berry and E. S. Savage, Oct. 7th.

The following licenses were granted: Edward G. Delaney, Michael Kenney, Summit; Louis Nees, Wm. Ryan, Louis Vonah, Linden; Albert W. Morfett, Clark; Emanuel Eckle, Martin Hess, Cranford; August Kline, Jacob Wenzel, Union. The applications for the old hotels at Westfield and Springfield were objected to and laid over for a hearing on Saturday—the applicants being new parties.

The appeals in the other courts were set down by Judge McCormick as follows:

Henry G. Bunch vs. Eden Laing (reported in course of settlement) Nov. 8th.

Emil Tolger vs. Mary Remer, William Gilby vs. Ira LaPorge, Sophia Spear vs. Simeon Olmstead—all for Nov. 10th.

REMEMBERING THE CHIEF.

Last Friday evening the members of Independence Hook and Ladder Co. No. 1 and some friends met in the Company's parlor, where they had invited Chief Engineer Keller to join them. After enjoying a social conversation for a time, ex-Chief R. H. Kinsey called the attention of those present to the important part of the programme of the evening, and in a brief speech, in his usual happy manner, said that he had been called upon by the members of the Truck and their friends to present to the Chief a trumpet, (which he then held up) as a token of appreciation of him as a competant and faithful officer and fireman. The chief was somewhat embarrassed by the action, but recovered enough to make an appropriate acknowledgement. The trumpet is a fine silver, one 20 inches in height, lined with gold. The outside is handsomely decorated with the usual hook and ladder emblems, and the following inscription:

to
JACOB A. KELLER,
Chief of the R. F. D.,
by the
Members and Friends of
Independence H. & L. Co. No. 1.
October 4th, 1886.
C. B. Haley,
R. H. Kinsey, } Committee.
O. D. Sherwood.

On the bell of the trumpet is a finely engraved representation of the Truck. The trumpet is a very handsome one, and the Chief highly appreciates the compliment. After the ceremony all repaired to the room below to partake of refreshments.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board was held Monday evening, with all the members present. Minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved.

Reports of the teachers were read and placed on file.

Communications from teachers requesting the use of a room in the Franklin and Columbian schools, for the teachers drawing class. Request granted.

The salaries of the teachers and janitors for the month of September were ordered paid.

Mr. Isaac Townsend was present in behalf of the parents who were displeased with suspension of the children at Franklin school, but as he could make no definite charges against Principal Banks, the Board declined to take any action in the matter.

The following bills were ordered paid: Ayres & Lafbery, $18.90; Geo. M. Freise, $432.50; John Bernhardt, $23.08; W. L. Mershon & Co., $2.50; A. Lowell & Co., $21.80; Taintor Bros. & Co., $24.70; Harper Bros., $7.20; C. H. Tice, $27.70; J. T. Moore, $30.93.

Mr. Silvers of the teachers' committee, together with the Supt. reported a visit to the several schools, and that they found them in good working order.

The Committee on Books and Supplies reported a few necessary articles for the Third Ward School which were ordered to be procured by the Supt.

The Committee on special revision of the rules and regulations reported some important changes which were unanimously adopted and a number of the same ordered to be printed.

WHAT IS THIS DARK SHADOW

That follows us wherever we go? It is the fear of mental exhaustion that terminates either in Insanity or Death.
We as a people live fast. We are overworked, so that old age comes upon us when quite young in years. We pass sleepless nights, or with a sleep that gives no rest. This is nervous exhaustion, and we require a tonic that will restore the brain and nervous system to its normal condition, bringing back youth and vigor. The NEW QUININE, called KASKINE, is the most powerful tonic known. It removes that tired and depressed feeling, gives us a good appetite, makes us feel strong and healthy, gives quiet sleep that revitalizes the languid and weary.
Bellevue Hospital, N. Y., "Universally successful."
St. Francis Hospital, N. Y., "Every patient treated with Kaskine has been discharged cured."
Rev. Jos. Dearlies, Chaplain of Charity Hospital, writes: "It will be surely, on every occasion, through conviction a most devoted promoter of Kaskine."
St. Joseph's Hospital, N. Y.: "Its use is considered indispensable. It acts perfectly."
Dr. L. R. White, U. S. Examining Surgeon, writes: "Kaskine is the best medicine made."
Dr. L. M. Glessner, has cured over 300 patients with Kaskine after quinine and all other drugs had failed. He says: "It is undoubtedly the best medicine ever discovered."
Prof. W. F. Holcombe, M. D., writes: "Kaskine is superior to quinine in its specific power, and never produces the slightest injury to the hearing or constitution."
Kaskine is pleasant to take, and can be used without special medical counsel. Pamphlets giving information, &c., sent on application.
Send for the great list of testimonials unparalleled in the history of medicine. Price $1.00 per bottle.

Special Correspondence of the DEMOCRAT.

EUROPEAN LETTER.

LATEST FROM LONDON, ODDITIES FROM THE EXPOSITION—FARE AND COSTLY SOUVENIRS OF STYLE.

After a seven or eight days sail and a remarkably fine voyage we arrived at Liverpool and the Americans of our party caught their first glimpse of the old country. After seeing our trunks safely through the Custom House, a performance which we did not find nearly as tedious as we had expected, we drove off to one of the principal hotels to breakfast. Was it fancy, or was our soft footed Ganymede an intermarriable time bringing the coffee and fried sole forward? And was it because he was a dumb waiter in a double sense, having to bring his own supplies from the kitchen, owing to the absence of a mechanical substitute, that he was so slow and observed such a stolid indifference to us. I felt seriously sorry for the poor fellow, for it really seemed that his collar must be choking him, and yet his imperturbable gravity remained unshaken. I think he could have died in that impassive state without wincing at all. Napkins he seemed to regard as superfluous and when I reminded him of the omission he simply handed me one, leaving the others to get along without any. The supercilious ness of the man was insufferable, and the only way I could account for it was that he had formerly been employed in some aristocratic family and there acquired these snobish sentiments which are entertained sometimes with regard to foreigners. By rewarding his churlishness with a rather large doneeur I expected to overcome his scruples, but without looking at it he pushed the money into his pocket with a deprecating glance and glided away.

After breakfast we paid a hurried visit to the exhibition which owing to its natural character has been christened the "Shipperes." The view on entering the building is rather imposing, the entire length of the structure, 250 feet, being visible at a glance. As I intend to devote more time to it on my return I shall send you better details of it in a later letter.

The section occupied with American exhibits is very small. Waterbury watches forming the most conspicuous feature in it, and that stolen joy of the school misses' existence, chewing gum. Why cannot we keep our national weaknesses hidden from the eyes of these hyper critical Britishers? The stuff which gave me pleasure, for well I knew how some sweet mouths would water at the tempting vision, is to the uninitiated Anglo Saxon, but another weapon with which to attack the country, which he believes to be one half dynamite and the other half Irish.

I lingered for a moment in the Belgian section, noticed by some specimens of rare Valenciennes, Brussells, Venetian and Maltese laces, which I knew some of my lady friends would have gone fairly wild over. The French section which is near by and is one of the largest allotted to foreign exhibits, contains some fine specimens of Louis XV and Louis XVI furniture, one mahogany cabinet valued at $4,000 decorated with bronze, secretes, medallions and devices being a superb specimen; there were also some lovely designs in porcelain and china from Paris.

To illustrate the erroneous impressions current on this side with regard to things American I copy a paragraph from a recent number of a weekly society paper published in London:

"Just to show the Yankee idea of "form" and the regime of swagger and vulgarity which threatens if the American idol is to be set up and worshipped in high places here, we give an extract from a New York "Society" paper. It is a description of the way in which two "diamond queens," as American leaders of fashion are called, comfort themselves at a seaside resort:

The evening of all eyes, as they sat on the Stockton porch the other evening in the full glare of the electric light, and literally ablaze with diamonds was Mrs. Albert Moore, of Philadelphia. The evening in question the lady who dresses most gorgeously, and has never so far this season repeated a costume, wore a pale blue silk shrouded with old point lace. About her neck was a superb chain of diamonds; diamonds of equal splendor glistened in her ears, on her wrists and fingers, and amid the dark tresses of her hair. At her feet as she sat, lay the famous Irish wolf-hound which has taken so many blue prizes and which Mr. Moore values at five thousand dollars and on her lap was a graceful Italian greyhound. It was on the whole, a picture that caused most strollers by to pause and admire. It is said that Mrs. Moore has selected from her jewel case, leaving it by no means empty, eighty thousand dollars worth of diamonds alone which she has brought with her."

Felix, of Paris, has just completed for Mme. Patti some beautiful dresses for home and concert wear. There are several white linen costumes, striped alternately with thick and transparent lines. The skirts are trimmed with fine kiltings and white lace; the gathered bodices have yokes, the sleeves are short. There is a dress entirely in Madeira embroidery; the skirt is in deep flounces gathered all round. The wide sash tied at the side is in pale blue Surah; the V shaped bodice has a blue silk lining. There is an evening dress in Nile green moire with pleated panels and quilles, veiled in green tulle with emerald spangles. The pretty bodice is trimmed with an ample fichu of this spangled tulle fastened at the side under a ribbon bow at the waist. An evening toilette was of embroidered pink gauze draped over a satin jablier; the block breadths were worked in full blown roses with their foliage. The low Louis XV bodice had a cordon of roses arranged as an order. The Queen met with a very hearty reception from her Scotch subjects when she visited the Edinburgh exhibition. She wore a black silk dress and lace shawl; in her bonnet was a black and white feather.

The Duchess of Connaught was dressed in a Salmon pink costume with bonnet to match; the dress of the Princess Beatrice was a light green bronze, with velvet plastrons of a darker hue.

MRS. S. J. BATTEY.

FOR THE DEMOCRAT.

REASON VERSUS INCLINATION.

What a strange and complex thing is human nature. We may have attained to mature years, yet we are like children in our longings and desires to obtain possession of coveted objects. That which we most long for and desire may be almost within our grasp. The exalted position which to obtain has occupied our very thoughts for years, and filled our hearts with anxious care, is about being offered to us. Our spirits are jubilant as we see that our prayers are on the eve of being answered, yea, are answered. The objects desired are within our reach, the position longed for is held out for acceptance. We have only to reach forth and take possession of the prize. Our cup of happiness is full to overflowing. When in an unguarded for moment the blow falls. Disappointment, that thorn in many a flower unseen, steps across our path and not only confronts us, but crushes us to the earth. The supreme happiness and joy that had so recently come to us, is swept away in an instant, and we are left desolate; we cry out, "Oh, how can I bear this great sorrow? my life is worse than useless; I have nothing left to live for now." We take up the burden of life with heavy hearts, and almost long for the end to come. After a few days or weeks we begin to examine our hearts and seek for the causes which led to the overthrow of our cherished hopes. It is now that Reason comes forward, and it is not long before we have to admit (Oh, how reluctantly) that it was best for us that our wishes and desires were not realized. Our Heavenly Father to whom we went for light and guidance saw that if our requests were granted, that wretchedness instead of happiness would be the result.

Reason retires and inclination takes the stand, bringing so vividly to our minds the great loss we have sustained, that the wounds which Reason had begun to heal are open afresh and bleed again, causing us to exclaim O, wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from this longing and yearning that make our nights sleepless and our daylight hours, hours of torture. And, as there are times when the excess of joy or sorrow cannot wholly be concealed even though every muscle is rigid, and the face marble, some dear friend may come to us and laying his or her hand upon our shoulder, say don't give way to this grief, the blackest cloud, you know, always has a silver lining. Time, the great soother of all ills, will bring a feeling of resignation, and ere long you will regain your wonted peace of mind. Though all forsake you, I will stand by you to the end. You feel somewhat encouraged and say to yourself there may be something to live for yet. I doubt if there be one whose eyes may glance over this who has arrived to maturity, that when some trouble or disappointment has overtaken him or her, will find Reason and Inclination entirely antagonistic for many days, week, months and perhaps years. There may be those who cannot endorse the foregoing. I can only say to them, wait till trouble and sorrow comes to you then and then only will you be qualified to pass judgment.

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then, Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of High Living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

To all enlisted musicians and privates, one dollar and fifty cents;

To all corporals, one dollar and fifty cents;

To all company sergeants, one dollar and seventy-five cents;

To all first sergeants and non-commissioned staff officers, two dollars;

To all commissioned officers below the rank of captain, except when said officers are in command of companies, two dollars and fifty cents;

To all captains, adjutants and other commanding companies, three dollars;

To all field officers below the rank of colonel, except when in command of a regiment or battalion, four dollars;

To all commanding officers of regiments or battalions, five dollars;

To all brigadier generals, six dollars;

2. And be it enacted, That the commanding officer of an encampment of a regiment, shall have power to convene and order courts martial for the trial of enlisted men for offences without leave, and other offences specified in the rules and articles of war, or military offences, which shall be punishable by the usages of war, according to the nature and degree of the offence, and to inflict such punishments as are usually or may be inflicted upon persons convicted of such offences, except in the case of the infliction of the death penalty or of imprisonment for a term exceeding one year, and to order the proceeds of any such fine or forfeiture to be applied to the use of the company, troop or battery, upon which the fine or forfeiture may be imposed; and the officers composing such court martial shall be sworn to the impartial discharge of their duties by any officer authorized to administer an oath; and any witness before such court martial may be required to give evidence by the order of such court, which order may be enforced by any officer authorized to issue a military order; and any witness who shall be required to give such evidence, and shall refuse to be sworn or affirmed, or to give such evidence, shall be liable to the same penalties and to be proceeded against in the same manner as is provided by the military laws of this state for like offences; and any witness who shall be required to give such evidence, and who shall give false evidence, shall be liable to the same penalties and be subject to the same proceedings as are provided by the military laws of this state for like offences; and the judge advocate of such court martial shall have power to administer the oath to witnesses; and the proceedings of such courts martial shall be recorded in such manner as the rules and articles of war, or military law, may prescribe; and the sentence of such court martial, after the same shall have been approved by the officer ordering the same, or by the officer commanding the regiment, or by the officer commanding the brigade, or by the officer commanding the division, according to the nature of the case, and the rules and articles of war, or military law, may prescribe, shall be duly executed by the officer commanding the regiment, or by the officer commanding the brigade, or by the officer commanding the division, according to the nature of the case, and the rules and articles of war, or military law, may prescribe; and the officer commanding the regiment, or the officer commanding the brigade, or the officer commanding the division, may, in his discretion, remit or mitigate any such punishment; and no sentence of any such court martial, which shall be approved by the officer ordering the same, or by the officer commanding the regiment, or by the officer commanding the brigade, or by the officer commanding the division, according to the nature of the case, and the rules and articles of war, or military law, may prescribe, shall be deemed to have been duly approved, or to be valid, until the same shall have been so approved; and the officer who shall approve any such sentence may also remit the whole or any part of the fine or forfeiture imposed by such sentence, or may remit the whole or any part of the punishment adjudged by such sentence, or may change the nature of the punishment adjudged by such sentence to any other punishment mentioned in this act, but he shall not have power to increase the fine or other punishment so adjudged; and no such sentence shall be executed until the same shall have been approved by the officer ordering the same, or by the officer commanding the regiment, or by the officer commanding the brigade, or by the officer commanding the division, according to the nature of the case, and the rules and articles of war, or military law, may prescribe
