Schools to open amid fund crisis

By PAUL STERN

No decision on impending staff layoffs and possible transportation cutbacks in the Belleville school system will be made until September 2 — one day before the official opening of school, The Times/News learned this week.

The Belleville Board of Education has scheduled a special public meeting for 8 p.m. September 2, when it will decide whether students will be bused to school the next day, and whether teacher, secretarial, custodial and administrative layoffs will be necessary to make up a $187,000 loss in State aid.

Monday night an aborted Board caucus session left the school fund crisis exactly as it had been before, but increased chances that the opening of Belleville's 11 public schools September 3 would be marred with uncertainty and possible confusion.

Last week the Board postponed implementation of a $50,000 intro-district busing system, and warned of imminent staff layoffs following receipt of word from Trenton that a total of $217,000 in anticipated State aid would not be forthcoming.

According to Board vice-president Matthew Pica, who ultimately called off the Monday session when only three Board members showed up, there is still "no Board consensus" on the best means to make up the revenue loss. Pica said he was disappointed about the cancelled meeting because "the longer we stall, the more money will have to be paid out." Pica predicted a "chaotic" meeting next Tuesday as a result of the Board's failure to attain a quorum Monday night.

Clearly, the delay will confuse busing on the first day of school. Last week the Board postponed signing a contract for buses with Community Coach, Inc., and may have jeopardized obtaining that company's service if the school transportation system is fully funded. If the Board decides to revert to State minimum transportation standards, many Junior and Senior High School students will have to walk the next day.

The transportation program, however, is one of several at the center of still divided Board debate. While the entire Board seems determined to keep staff reductions to a minimum, some give more priority to transportation than others.

Meanwhile, school system employee unions have so far refused to take a voluntary two to three percent cut in pay, and have also refused to give up any fringe benefits — the most controversial of which is Blue Tooth dental insurance currently provided by the Board. The Blue Tooth costs the Board $31,000 annually, said Pica.

When and if layoffs are made, the school system will have to give 60 days notice to all terminated employees according to their contracts.

Chief advocate of reducing school transportation, it seems, is Board member Lawrence Schwartz, who this week told the Times/News "staff is as low as it can go" without damaging education. Schwartz supports closing School Two as a long range way to bridge the financial gap:

"You have to look out for the town as a whole," he said. "Spending in excess of $100,000 per year to keep a school open for 112 kids is a travesty. We have more elementary schools than any town with our size student population." Schwartz noted, however, that abandoning the Mill Street building now would be "too much of a hardship on everyone."

Board president Mahmarian had earlier this month said "the neighborhood school concept may be in danger." Still other Board members have indicated possible support of administrative cost cutbacks, but consider safe transportation for students to and from school, in Michael Chieffo's words, "a moral responsibility."

Saint Bartolomeo was honored last weekend as the residents of Silver Lake celebrated the annual feast. Festivities got started Saturday at 4 p.m. when the traditional rockets were ignited and members of the Newark Symphonic Band, like the one below, burst into music. Unfortunately, rain on Sunday delayed the annual procession, but on Monday, residents carried forth the statue of Saint Bartolomeo (below). The image was palced on a rolling stand, and the people and the band followed it on its route, offering their gifts of money as it passed.

Reaction positive to Grand Union

Reaction has been generally favorable this week to the Grand Union Company's announcement last week that it would build an ultra-modern supermarket at the corner of Main and Joralemon Streets.

How the sale of the Grand Union site by the Active Oil Service Company will affect one of the hottest legal battles in recent town history, however, still remains unclear.

"It's good," said Mayor Michael Marotti this week after hearing of Grand Union's plans to locate in the Valley section of town. "We need it down there."

Though some Belleville merchants may have initially feared retail development not on Washington Avenue, according to Stanley Slavin — Chamber of Commerce president and a member of the town's Commercial and Industrial Development Committee — many have been "relieved" that no satellite retail stores are scheduled to accompany the supermarket.

"Generally," said Slavin, "I think it will take pressure off the drive to get a market on the Avenue. Now we can forget about a market and start thinking about something else." Locating a food store on Washington Avenue, said the Chamber president, is now almost impossible, if it wasn't in the past.

Slavin said he felt the Grand Union in the Valley "will fill a great need."

Belleville consumers, many of whom now do their shopping in other towns, apparently feel the same way, though several regretted that Grand Union's prices are slightly higher than those of some other food chains.

The store, which is to be one of the largest in the Grand Union chain, will offer a complete line of meat, produce and

Two more parking law changes pass reading

By CHUCK JACKSON

The Belleville Commission unanimously approved on first reading Tuesday two more ordinances designed to "aid traffic flow" on the town's streets, and Public Safety Commissioner Rocco Saletta said there will be more in the future. At their August 12 meeting, the Commissioners gave the collective nod to the first reading of an ordinance affecting parking on Stephens Street.

The proposed laws voted on this week concerned parking on Newark Avenue near Magnolia Street and on Nolton Street from Greylock Parkway to Division Avenue.

Saletta said that some of the changes were not new, but in fact had been approved by the state years ago. He said that for various reasons, these changes had not been implemented.

The change on Newark Avenue will consist of extending the no parking zone from the corner of Magnolia Street. Saletta said that now, a motorist coming out of Magnolia cannot see approaching traffic on Newark without edging out into the street. Extension of the yellow curb area, said Saletta, would allow cars to stop at the stop sign safely. No parking on Nolton will be extended all the way to Division Avenue, again for safety reasons, said Saletta.

The Commissioner also said that his department is studying plans to change some streets to one way thoroughfares. He said that right now, he is looking at plans to change Cedar Hill and Mt. Prospect Avenue into one way streets.

Saletta said the studies are being made by Captain Robert Russomano, who is in charge of the traffic division of the Belleville Police Department. According to Saletta, "Captain Russomano is well versed in writing up laws and regulations. He has been checking them up and making suggestions."

Saletta said that though many of the ordinances now taking effect were approved by the state "years ago," he believes that they were neglected because of what he calls "political pressure." There are some traffic signs around town that I would call "political" signs. Some of them may be illegal, and if they can't be enforced, we will remove them."

Saletta said he was also studying the possibility of altering signs that prohibit parking during certain hours for street cleaning. He said that he was considering a reduction in the prohibited hours so that more parking would be available for people in town.

Three firemen are appointed

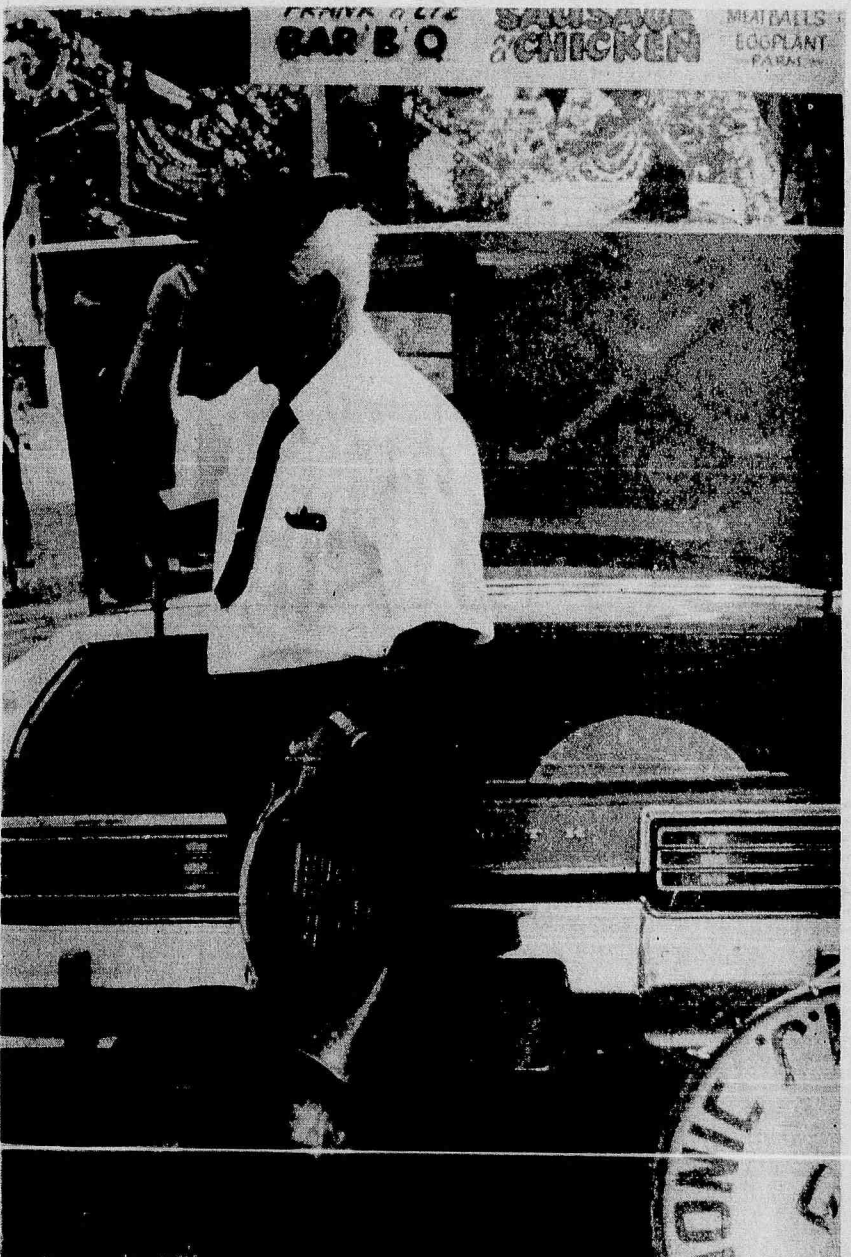

In an apparent effort to cut back on overtime expenses, the Public Safety Commissioner, Tuesday, added three more men to the Belleville Fire Department's payroll.

The three men, Sam Alvino, 26, of 35 Frederick Street, Belleville; William K. Hands, 27, 44 Thomas Street, Bloomfield, and Joseph T. La'Bruzza, 27, of 111 Margaret Avenue, Nutley, were all sworn in by Town Clerk Eugene Barnett during a brief ceremony held at Town Hall.

According to Saletta, in addition to bolstering the firefighting force, hiring the new men will save the town money. He said now, the town spends approximately $160,000 a year in overtime for firemen, and he added, "It makes more sense to have a full complement in the department than to pay all that overtime."

The Commissioner also said he was considering other moves to save money in the department, but said he did not wish to comment on what measures might be taken at this time. He hinted that some of the planned moves might not be popular with all the members of the department.

Initially, at least four men were scheduled to be sworn in at the Tuesday ceremonies, but Saletta said one of the candidates accepted employment elsewhere.

New firemen

There will be three new men at the firehouse next week, following swearing-in ceremonies held Tuesday at Town Hall. The new appointees and two of their new bosses got together for a group picture after the swearings in. Left to right, Deputy Fire Chief William Fabian, Sam Alvino, Joseph T. La'Bruzza, Jr., William K. Hands, and Commissioner Rocco Saletta. Saletta welcomed the men to his department with a brief party in his office. All three men will start work next Tuesday.

Cop conference is rated 'success'

Members of the Belleville Police Department and residents of the Silver Lake section of town met last week to discuss recent charges of improper police conduct. According to town officials, the meeting was a success.

Commissioner of Public Safety Rocco Saletta said the residents and the police officers met for about two hours last Wednesday. He said he felt both sides came away from the conference with a better understanding of each other.

Lake residents had presented Saletta with a petition at the August 12 meeting of the Commission charging police officers with harassing juveniles in the area. It was Saletta who suggested the meeting as an opportunity for the police officers and the residents to meet as an opportunity for the police officers and the residents to meet face to face.

Saletta said that when the officers presented their side of the story, the Silver Lake officers and the people appeared to have reached an understanding as to why the lawmen acted in specific incidents.

One of the complaints voiced by the residents was that police officers chased people away from Number Four School and off street corners. They said that they felt this was unfair, since they had nowhere else to go. Saletta recommended that the people form a committee and ask Mayor Michael Marotti to provide recreational facilities for the youths.

Belleville Police Chief Joseph Smith attended the meeting, and said he was pleased with the way it went. He also said he felt the people better understood the circumstances leading up to a police action. He added, however, that he was still looking into some of the charges and said he would be some time before his investigation was complete.

Actors ask for aid in finding a home

Members of a group called the Drama Theater Workshop of Belleville met with Mayor Michael Marotti after Tuesday's Commission meeting and discussed the possibility of obtaining a town building for the actors' use.

Immediately after the session, held in the Mayor's office, about 15 members of the Workshop went to the Recreation House on Joralemon Street to tour the building. Marotti told the people it might be possible for them to take the second floor of the structure and use it as their base of operations. He asked them to notify them as soon as possible if it was acceptable.

Donna Iacobelli, 17, of 11 Division Avenue brought up the question of using a town building at the regular Commission meeting when she presented Marotti with a petition signed by 300 people favoring the establishment of a workshop. Miss Iacobelli addressed the Commission, asking for the building and saying, "Every other town in this area has a workshop." She asked the Commissioners to, "Give us a chance to achieve this goal."

Miss Iacobelli said there are about 60 members in the newly formed group, and she added that while many of the actors were high school students, members of the Belleville Senior Citizens Club had also expressed an interest in the project. She stressed the fact that people of all ages would be involved.

At the meeting in his office, Marotti promised the group he would do all he could for them, adding, "I'm not here just to take care of people who want sports. Whatever the people want, and if there is enough interest, I will try and get it."

Westinghouse brighter

The dark threat of an impending shutdown that loomed over the Westinghouse plant in Belleville has lifted, and a union spokesman says the morale of workers there is picking up.

Fred Stecher, a shop steward with the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (IUE) says the manpower cuts that have come at the plant have been about what workers there expected. According to Stecher, "Things are stable at the plant. We've lost some people, but we anticipated that. There are about 150 people there now, so we have lost about 60, including early retirees."

Stecher said there have been more early retirees this year than in the past, but he says many have just taken advantage of new provisions in the IUE contract which allow the workers to obtain certain benefits. He also adds, however, "I am sure some did it rather than look for another job."

Stecher says the management of the Westinghouse plant has also done a lot to improve morale. He said the company is sponsoring bus trips for the worker to baseball games and theater outings.

Recent improvement made to the machinery and interior of the plant have also done much to boost morale, said Stecher, since improve-groceries, along with general merchandise items and a delicatessen.

Current zoning of the area near the future site of the new Grand Union supermarket (shaded area) is an unusual mix of industrial and residential zones as shown on this portion of the Belleville zoning map. Some Bellevilleites speculate that much of the Joralemon and Main Street area will be sought by retailers, thus causing future zoning changes or variances.

According to unofficial reports, Active Oil agreed to sell the 6.14 acre site to the R.A.Y. Development Company for more than $600,000 per acre. Active bought the land about two years ago for $275,000, it was reported.

Though the sale will most likely influence the progress of litigation between Active Oil and Commissioner of Public Works Mrs. Mary Senatore, the nature of impending legal developments remains unclear.

Mrs. Senatore's attorney Lawrence Schwartz was reluctant to comment on his plans "before papers are filed," but did indicate "there are a few avenues open at this point." Schwartz said he would decide how to proceed "in the next week or so."

Active Oil attorney John Schepisi again this week failed to return numerous Times/News telephone calls, but so far, said Schwartz, the litigation is proceeding as though the sale had not occurred.

At least one part of Active's three-part suit filed against the town and the Commissioner may have become irrelevant following the agreement by Active to sell the land. The oil reclamation company, in its complaint before Judge Nicholas Scalera, is seeking building permits Mrs. Senatore allegedly used her influence to illegally deny. Though Active may have no further need for the permits, it still may pursue its complaint against the Commissioner.

In any event, more than filling a specific need for a centrally located grocery store, the Grand Union has apparently become a symbol for revitalization of the Valley, sparking varied ideas throughout town on what will or could happen in that part of town.

Complicating most visions of rejuvenation in that portion of town, however, is an unusual zoning pattern that many speculate will be challenged in the future. Across the street from the future food store lot are "A" residence zones, small patches of industrial usage, and "B" residential areas.

A grand union?

The announcement last week that Grand Union will locate an ultra-modern supermarket in the Valley has sent a few heads spinning around town. As the months and years wear on, the store's presence at Main Street and Joralemon is likely to do a lot more than that.

For years, since the demise of the Washington Avenue supermarkets, Belleville has been screaming for a replacement food store. Without question, the long-awaited, business-generating supermarket is here. Though it is not where a lot of merchants would have liked, it is as close to Washington Avenue as is practically possible under prevailing conditions.

Some Bellevilleites—business people included—have said the feel the Grand Union will fill a "great need," as one person put it, for a community grocery store.

To many Washington Avenue merchants, however, the Grand Union will be anything but a godsend. Chances that another food store/business magnet will locate on the Avenue proper are now almost nil. A long-standing pipe dream is dead.

Perhaps it is time now to recognize that there is nothing sacred about

Washington Avenue. Indeed, it is readily apparent to most people that the Avenue has been treated as anything but hallowed ground. Years of haphazard building and neglect by town officials (aided and abetted by local Avenue merchants) have created a massive economic and aesthetic problem.

By contrast, Joralemon Street east of Washington Avenue, though also poorly used, will now become prime territory for retailing; and even though Grand Union has been planned without satellite stores, it is obvious that portion of the Valley is destined to be taken advantage of by enterprising business people who know a good location when they see one.

It is therefore time to consider using the intersection of Joralemon Street and Washington Avenue as the axis for a more centralized business hub; and to start providing for controlled growth of the Main and Joralemon Street area.

Perhaps careful thought and planning, coupled with renewed efforts to secure the future prosperity of Washington Avenue, can create a grand union between our current business area and a new one that is apparently on its way.

Orechio makes sense

Last week State Senator Carmen Orechio, who represents the 27th Legislative District, publicly announced that he was recommending to the New Jersey Legislature the need to revise state statutes governing municipal employee negotiations to provide for "Fair and Final Offer Arbitration."

Fair and Final Offer Arbitration simply means that either one arbitrator or a panel of arbitrators would receive a proposal from the municipal employees' bargaining unit and another from the governing body. According to the rules, the fairest offer would be considered as serving the best interests of the community, and the action of the arbitrator or arbitrators would be binding upon both parties.

Senator Orechio said, "Our state statutes prohibit municipal employees from striking. This economic weapon is available in the private sector. The prohibition ultimately leads to frustrations on the part of the municipal employees, and out of that incubator arises community ill-will. When public employees are denied the right to strike, they should at least have the right to know that a labor dispute will be subject to binding arbitration."

We believe Senator Orechio's proposal is a major step forward in public employee-public official relations. Everything possible should be done to retain the peace and quiet of community life. The recent rash of community disorders arising from the behavior of unhappy public employees must come to an end. Senator Orechio's solution seems to be the best way to achieve that goal.

Even though it may take time before the New Jersey Legislature gets around to passing laws to put into effect a fair and final offer binding arbitration statute, certainly at the municipal level both Town Hall and the School Board should consider this common sense approach to the solution of problems arising from municipal employee labor negotiations.

Eulogy to an elder sister

Mrs. Josephine Statas of Nutley died recently, and among her survivors is a sister, Mrs. Jennie Corino. To mark the sad occasion, Mrs. Jennie Corino wrote a stirring tribute to her sister which we would like to share with our readers:

I have lost a precious someone, my eldest Sister. Now, she is heaven's gain.

For me, Josie was always there. She must have held my hand as I learned to walk, she held it too on my first day of school. She stood beside me at the altar when I married, she held my first born son in baptism. She smiled with me at the good times and we cried together through the bad. I loved her dearly and she openly returned my love.

Now, as she walked through the valley of the shadow of death she needed me to hold her hand, to comfort her and to strengthen and console her.

Actually, she was still the stronger of the two. As I tried to give her comfort by holding her hand, the tight squeeze of hand she returned comforted me; when I tried to give her courage, the look in her eyes encouraged me; when I tried to give her strength, her frail body strengthened me. When I sought words of consolation, hers consoled me; when I thought my heart would break to see such pain, her strong heart mended mine.

Never will I forget her months of illness which robbed her of so much, yet, gave her so much sanctifying grace. Each day through tears I saw my Sister die a little, but each day she gave me a reason to live. As I gave, I also received.

She was truly a "Profile in Courage." She was the stuff soldiers and angels, too, are made of. Her will to live was her rod and her love of family was her staff. She never asked for anything, but she always gave. The brightest part of her life was her love for her children and grandchildren, and she always carried an arsenal of photos to prove it.

She loved so much to live and she lived to love. Death won, but only after she lost a difficult battle. Though her body is gone, her spirit will always stay. The tears I shed are for me because I have lost the gift God gave me, a Sister whose memory I'll treasure, who has triumphantly found her eternal rest in heaven. Love, Jennie

Board forfeiting responsibility by pre-screening for Super

To the Editor:

According to the Times/News articles last week, the Belleville Board of Education is in the process of appointing a screening committee for the purpose of selecting a new superintendent of schools.

Citizen participation in all levels of government can be extremely helpful, as witnessed by the committee which investigated aspects of the Belleville school busing policy.

However, it appears that this new screening committee is going to do all the screening, without participation by any members of the Board. I feel that this is a forfeiture of the Board's responsibility, notwithstanding the impracticality of depriving any screening group the benefit of input from Board members concerning the type of person they are seeking.

I would hope that one of the lessons learned from Watergate is that those persons who are directly responsible to the people, i.e. the voting process, will be more responsive to the needs of the people. Conversely, those persons, i.e. Erlichmann, Haldeman, Hunt, Mitchell, etc., who held positions in which they had no obligation to be responsible to any other party except their appointing authority, were directly responsible for the entire Watergate mess.

I strongly suggest that any screening process include some members of the Board of Education at all times. For the Board to do less and for the public to accept less would only cast another gray cloud over the education system in Belleville.

From the heart

To the Editor:

I have before me the issue of the Belleville Times/News of July 24, in which you wrote about "Troubled Israel."

It does my heart good to have a publisher of a newspaper to show sympathy for a tiny nation struggling against all odds, surrounded by enemies as the world stands by.

The hatred for Israel is so overwhelming even in this country that when someone shows understanding, it is so refreshing. I do hope more people like you could open their hearts.

Keep up the good work.

The first mourning of school

By PAUL STERN

September 3, 1975 — the children were dressed in black as they walked down the street to school. They didn't know why. Their mothers, peering out their front doors, didn't know why.

There were fewer school children than in years past. The Evanses and the Morellis and the Walkers had moved out of town. Nobody knew why. The buses to St. Mary's and St. Peter's and Essex Catholic were more crowded than in years past. Nobody knew why.

The children, chattering nervously, were anxious on their way down the block. Their stomachs, full of breakfast, had butterflies. So did their mothers'. They didn't know why.

At the corner the children passed three people who had last year been teachers. The people were waiting for a bus to take them to the unemployment office. The children didn't know why.

The ex-teachers, all in their 20's, were surprised to see the children wearing black. They didn't know why, and one of them didn't care. Though they, too, were wearing black, they were not unhappy, nor did their stomachs have butterflies.

The teachers in the school house were also dressed in black, but their children in the next town over were not. Many of the teachers had suntans. The books they handed out to the children in black were tattered, but they would have to do. The children squirmed in their seats and threw spitballs and looked out the window and carved their names. Nobody knew why.

One teacher noticed that the Evans and Morelli and Walker child were missing, but didn't know why. The room was very crowded. The ceiling was cracked.

In his office down the hall, the principal looked over some bills. They were very high. He didn't know why. His secretary had been laid off and his desk was piled with papers. His stomach had butterflies.

Under section nine of the United States Constitution, which all states had to subscribe to to attain statehood, it is clearly and plainly stated and no bill of attainder or ex-post-facto law will be passed.

Rogot's Thesaurus, which is an authority on words, defines ex-post-facto as retroactive. It isn't legal, yet, if we read the press stories we learn that the new unearned income levy on dividends, interest, royalties and capital gains, is retroactive to January 1, 1975, and is payable on April 15, 1976.

Likewise, the news stories state that the measure, expected to yield the State $55 million, was amended by the Legislature to exempt individuals earning less than $15,000 and families less than $30,000. The measure passed August 4 will become law when signed by the Governor.

However, the news stories relate, because Byrne has not yet signed the amendments into law, the earning limits stand at the previous level of $7,500 for individuals and $15,000 for families.

The news stories say an administrative spokesman said the Governor wants to determine the fiscal impact of the increase in earning limits before enacting the amendments. He also should review section VII.3 of the State Constitution which also bans ex-post-facto laws.

Since all revenue measures must be initiated by the House of Assembly and approved by both houses, including the Senate, as amended this measure which was properly amended and sent to the Senate with the amended provision exempting individuals earning up to $15,000 and families earning up to $30,000 and approved in the amended manner by the Senate, the Governor has no choice under the law. He must sign the bill in its amended and approved form or else he will be his failure to sign the measure lose entire the anticipated $55 million revenue expected to be exact from the rich.

Who do these birds think they are trying to interpret the statutes to serve their own best advantage at the colossal expense of the uninformed public? Nobody who might be affected by these new laws should pay retroactively nor pay beyond the amended exemptions as finally passed by the Legislature.

Some of our high school students will be happy to learn that a new law allows boards of education to conduct driver education during the entire year thus permitting a greater opportunity to the students to participate in the behind-the-wheel automobile program.

The special learner's permit which may be issued to persons over 16 years and six months of age must be retained in the office of the school principal at all times, except during such time as the person to whom the permit is issued is undergoing behind-the-wheel driving instruction.

Counties, municipalities, school and other districts, State agencies and other public authorities may now, in few of prevailing economic conditions, exceed the six percent interest limitations which constituted the maximum rate of interest that previously had been established.

The temporary suspending of the six percent limitation will be effect June 30, 1978. The suspension is necessary in order to enable municipalities, school districts and autonomous authorities to compete in the municipal bond market.

Higher interest rates paid on these bonds means higher taxes along the line.

In light of our straitened times, isn't it most paradoxical that our lawmakers "slap us" with "belt-tightening" warnings accompanied by layoffs of essential police and fire personnel and otherwise effect economies by reduced staffs, except those of the politicians, while plaguing us with new taxes to make up for the deficits they engendered by their generosity in spending the taxpayer's money and then have the effrontery to, in spite of these hard times, VOTE THEMSELVES an eight and a half percent pay raise.

Some nerve! If they took half as good care of the people's needs as they do of their own things would be a damn sight better all around. Don't you really think so?

FLIGHT 897

Strange things seen in magazines

By FRANK A. ORECHIO

FRIDAY'S Eastern Flight 759 to Fort Lauderdale ended up being one of my best. Charlie Milmo, a former Nutleyite now living in Cedar Grove, was the unlucky guy who sat next to me on the flight south. After a couple of Bloody Marys, we seemed to have discovered each other, and for the next hour and a half, it was New Year's Eve.

In the process, Charlie asked me, "Do you know Fred Weber?"

With a shrug of the shoulders and a quizzical look on my face, I looked at Charlie Milmo and asked, "Who is Fred Weber?"

"Get me the stewardess, and I'll tell you who Fred Weber is," replied Charlie Milmo.

The question took me by surprise because I couldn't figure out how a stewardess on Flight 759 would have a connection with a Fred Weber, who I didn't even know existed. Charlie asked the stewardess to fetch a copy of TIME magazine, and thumbing through the pages, Charlie Milmo opened the magazine to a full-page cigarette ad. "Do you recognize this guy?" asked Charlie.

"No," I replied.

"You mean to tell me you don't know who this fellow is?" pointing his finger to an attractive face on a four-color reproduction of a Winston cigarette ad.

"No, I still don't know who the guy is," I replied. I later found out the model in the Winston ad was Fred Weber, one of Nutley High School's baseball greats. Fred Weber played centerfield long after my time, and during his years at Nutley High, Fred Weber gained fame as a running-back on Nutley High football teams.

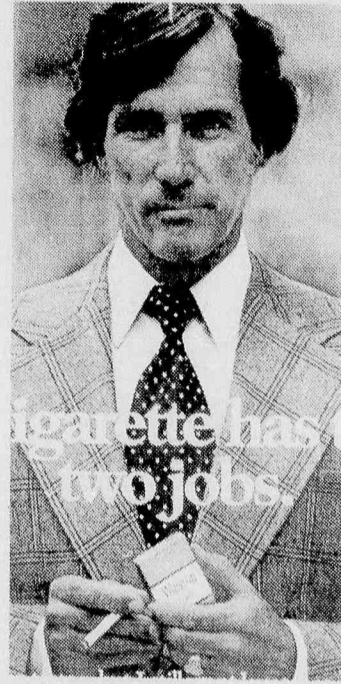

Upon my return to the office this week, I showed Fred Weber's picture to my brother, Carmen, who said, "Oh, I went to school with Fred Weber and played softball against him. He was a helluva softball pitcher. It was hard to hit his fastball. Yes, Fred Weber is a great guy, and I'm happy that another Nutleyite has met with such outstanding success."

WELL, on the subject of the return trip to Nutley from Fort Lauderdale, I flew an unusual midnight flight, Eastern's 406, and the stewardesses aboard were just great. Senior Danielle Boveri, a cute little French girl, moved around in such an efficient way that one would think her very job depended upon her performance. Not to be outdone were her first-rate assistants, Colleen Kradzinski of Woodbridge, New Jersey, and Karen White of Brick Town. Colleen confided she is hoping to save enough money so that someday in the far distant future she can invest her hard-earned money in a boutique. Although I rarely fly nights, Eastern's Flight 406 was the best night flight I could remember.

OUR OWN Phil White, the boss of our newspapers, is ailing and should remain in bed until fully recovered—which should take all of four to six weeks. Phil is determined to prove the doctor's diagnosis is too extreme—so if you see him around or talk to him, please take it easy on the chap. He is not perking on all cylinders.

THIS WEEK'S mail brought an advanced copy of the 58th Annual Report of the Nutley Chapter of the American Red Cross. The report is a product of the nimble, brilliant mind of Betty Richards, the local Chapter's Executive Director. With due respect to the quality of annual reports promulgated by other local organizations, the work of Betty Richards is truly outstanding. Many annual reports come across my desk, but considering the meager resources and limited assistance available to Betty Richards, I must rate her product at the top of the line. Betty Richards, I salute you and pray that the good Lord will manage to keep you in good health to enjoy happiness for as long as you want.

THE STATE WE'RE IN

Good news for air breathers

By DAVID F. MOORE

I've been critical here occasionally about actions and inactions of the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection, which at times has made me wonder if it was living up to its name.

So it's a pleasure to compliment DEP's Commissioner David J. Bardin for his recent proposal to the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency that it establish interstate air quality regions. That's an obvious need, because a breath of pollution heeds no political boundaries.

Bardin has asked Russell Train, EPA administrator, to call a meeting between EPA and equivalent state agencies in the northeast by January, so that work can begin on a coordinated system of state air pollution rules. The only better thing would be federal rules.

New Jersey's air monitoring stations are showing that ozone, a poisonous gas caused by interaction of hydrocarbon and nitrogen oxides in the presence of sunlight, is moving from state to state, along with hydrocarbons. In other words, to give a hypothetical example, New Jersey's air pollution regulations aren't too effective if the pollution floats in from Pennsylvania. Ozone in the stratosphere shields us from ultraviolet light, but we don't want it down here.

Bardin makes a very important point when he says that equally stringent (I hope) laws in various states will erase the argument of an industry which pleads that it will be rendered non-competitive if it has to spend money to clean up its pollution.

The Commissioner hastens to stress in his letter to Train that New Jersey won't shirk its own air pollution duties while awaiting a federal move. But he says also that "given the complexity of this topic, however, we believe it wise to defer the promulgation or even proposal of further regulations on hydrocarbon emissions (particularly from industrial operations) in New Jersey pending the development of a coordinated, comprehensive and coherent regional approach to the oxidant/ozone problem for the air shed in which New Jersey is located.

I sure hope it doesn't take long for Uncle Sam and the numerous states to work something out!

For perspective, I should add that Bardin wrote that New Jersey is "moving ahead toward the adoption of certain hydrocarbon emission regulations for petroleum and petrochemical storage facilities and certain bulk transfer operations."

It was discovered several years ago that hydrocarbons (which most often originate from petroleum and its byproducts, such as gasoline) are thick in New Jersey, not just because of its glut of cars but because of evaporation of fuel in storage tanks, of which the state has plenty.

Bardin writes also that "we have begun implementing the second, more stringent, phase of our motor vehicle inspection/maintenance program." That's good news for all of us air-breathing creatures!

Gonnello: a regular fireball

The pace of life today, at least here on the East Coast, often seems rushed and harried. People always have something to do, whether it's work or recreation, and too often, people say they can't find enough time to do all the things they would like to do or should do.

There are some people, however, who do manage to find time out to do a little extra. The members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club make up part of that pleasing elite, and club president Larry Gonnello seems to be a prototype for that kind of individual.

Gonnello, 54, is a lifelong Bellevilleite. He was born and raised here, went through the town's school system, and set up his business, Gonnello Brothers Construction Company in town at 3 Montgomery Street.

It takes a lot of hustle to be a success in the construction business, and Gonnello has got it. But he also finds time to head up the Kiwanis Club and lend some direction to that groups wide number of activities. Gonnello seems to be a regular fireball of energy, but he doesn't seem to think its such a trick balancing his time between business, leisure, and Kiwanis work.

"You know," says Gonnello, "people always say they don't have the time to do something. But if you try, it always seems to work out. It's not hard to find the time to do something for other people. It may seem a little difficult at first, but it's a nice gesture, and it's also very satisfying."

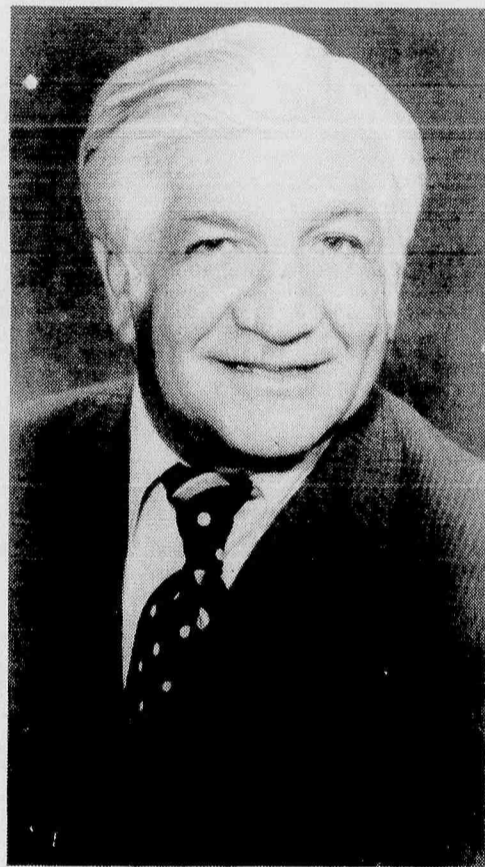

As president of the Kiwanis Club, Gonnello should have his hands full as far as working for the people of Belleville goes. The club is involved in a myriad of activities, ranging all the way from scholarships for Belleville High students all the way to throwing an annual Christmas party for the needy kids in town. Right now, the club is engaged in a fund drive designed to bring enough money into the organization's coffers to keep them going on their charitable path. Right now, the group is selling coloring books — to raise some money. The books are on sale at the DeWitt Savings and Loan, and Gonnello says sales are brisk, adding, "We're actually doing a little better than I expected. We are very pleased with the fund drive so far."

In line with his work as a Kiwanis Club member, Gonnello is also what you might call a "Belleville booster." He trumpets the praises of the community, saying, "I think we have a good town. All the departments in town government seem to be doing a fine job. We have fairly good recreation programs, what I think is one of the best school systems around, a fine police department, and the roads and public utilities in Belleville are in good shape. Also, the majority of people in Belleville are good people. They would go out of their way to help another person, and they are all intelligent."

Gonnello says that no matter how good things are, there always areas to improve in, "Progress," he says, "is the best thing for any town." He also says he feels that Belleville is progressing, and will continue to do so, making it an even better community.

Gonnello lives at 26 Wallace Street with his wife, Mildred. The Gonnellos have three children, Larry, 25; Georgeann, 20 and Darlene, 15. They also have one granddaughter.

SEEMS ONLY YESTERDAY

They would lay across Erie's tracks

By JODI MASSONE

One year ago

It was Belleville against the State! The town was moving to the courts in order to reverse the decision by State Transportation Commissioner Alan Sagner to allow Erie Lackawanna to dismantle crossing gates at Heckel Street and Franklin Avenue, and also to discontinue the use of watchmen there.

A week before, Senator Anthony Imperiale, about one hundred Silver Lake residents, and a group of bi-partisan officials went before television cameras to criticize what they called "inadequate" safety precautions at the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad crossing.

In the meanwhile, Governor Brendan Byrne backed up the ruling by Sagner, further infuriating Senator Imperiale, who vowed to lay across the tracks if he had to halt train traffic through the Lake.

Sagner went along with an Erie plan to use a "stop and flag" system whereby trains approaching the crossing would halt while a crew member flagged down traffic to stop during crossings.

A new fire code was adopted in Town. The last code adopted was in 1965, and with the new code businesses are expected to be affected more than residence.

The most notable feature of the code calls for the establishment of sprinkler systems in all new structures or additions to buildings which hold 20 or more people, excluding residential buildings, and any structures designed as fireproof.

Also, basements over 2,000 square feet and used for the manufacture, sale, or storage of combustible goods or merchandise.

Two years ago

Everyone knows Belleville isn't Paris, and it's a good thing it isn't, and there aren't any sidewalk cafes in town.

The Belleville Board of Commissioners unanimously approved a new ordinance to outlaw the consumption of alcoholic beverages on sidewalks or other public property.

The new law, sponsored by Public Safety Director Robert Laterza, was aimed at eliminating public drinking at Playgrounds and on Street corners.

As every year, St. Bartolomeo took a walk through the streets of Silver Lake.

As the statue was carried by people throughout designated streets. Others pinned money to streamers attached to the saint.

The money went to St. Anthony's Church.

Four year ago

There was flooding in Belleville! What? Even then!

The tropical storm Doria left the Town pumping its way out from under a record rainfall.

Damage to both public and private property was estimated well into the tens of thousands. Public works employees worked for more than two days straight in assisting residents in supplying sandbags to halt the rising water that was flooding their homes.

Thirteen years ago

Peter A. Torre Jr. was named tax assessor by the Town Council for a period of four years.

The Council's action followed the rescinding order of Essex County Judge Jacob Glickenhau who has restrained the appointment.

Torre had been appointed to fill the post, replacing Emanuel DiNoia, who had contested the move, claiming that he was entitled to remain in office until 1963. Judge Glickenhau settled the dispute by ruling that DiNoia had never legally held the position.

Eighteen years ago

Raymond O. Smith, head of the Belleville High School Social studies department, was appointed vice-principal of the high school at a special meeting of the Board of Education.

Smith, who was to receive a salary of $8,300 per year in his new post succeeded Carl Henisinger, who had resigned.

Twenty-eight years ago

Two ordinances were passed on first reading by the Board of Commissioners. One reduced the license fee for holding wrestling and boxing matches from $250 to $150.

The other ordinance provided for improvements for an unnamed street from Garden Avenue to Crescent Terrace.

More than 1,700 Belleville youngsters were carted off by the Belleville Police Department to Doerr's Grove, Millburn. There they were guests of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association.

The outing, which first began with 500 youngsters grew within a week to a crowd of such great proportion that 13 buses, donated by bus companies, and 13 private cars were needed to transport the boys to and from the Millburn location.

Forty-three years ago

Ada Simon, a newly graduated teacher from the State Normal School, Newark, claimed Belleville was prejudiced against local residents teaching in its school system.

As a result, the Town Council recommended to the School Board that residents who were qualified be given first preference in teaching jobs, all other things being equal with other applicants.

Dedicated solely to a two and a half hour program, the school is located at 617 Washington Ave., Belleville.

Wis Owl was founded seven years ago by three elementary teachers. The teaching staff at the school are all experienced qualified teachers. Carol Casale, director, taught in the Belleville school system, while her partners Connie Rossi and Claire Klem taught in Newark and Clifton. Bellevilleite attends Press Institute

Marianne Regina O'Neill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Neill, 179 Hornblower Avenue, was one of 78 high school students from 12 states who was chosen to attend the 17th Annual School Press Institute August 10 through 23 on the Syracuse University campus, Syracuse, New York.

Sponsored by the S.I. Newhouse School of Public Communications and the University's Division of Summer Sessions, the workshops, under the direction of C. Marshall Matlock, institute director and instructor in the Newhouse School, helped students develop their skills in both collecting and disseminating information.

The sessions, which involved both classroom and laboratory newswriting experience, also included editing, newspaper production, business and staff management, yearbook design and production, typography and creative feature and editorial writing. Besides these, the students also gained practical experience by producing several newspapers with SPI news and a "yearbook" which was presented at the graduation banquet on the last day of the seminar.

Library hours switching

The Belleville Public Library will return to its regular winter hours beginning September 2, director Gerald Hickey announced this week.

Tomatoes, curtains and paste

GAVIN HAS returned from camp. He and I both learned something. I learned not to send a son off into the "wilderness" with white socks and he learned not to pack a ripe tomato in his duffle bag.

The socks were in an unbelievable state. It took a long soaking in a hot tub of soap and Clorox and two washings to get them presentable enough to wear. The sneakers went through the machine three times and they still are slightly odoriferous. I believe him when he tells me he stepped into a swamp.

As for the tomato, it was part of the produce grown in the camp garden, ripe and red and presumably whole when the boy added it to the contents of the bag accompanied by a cucumber and some string beans. The cucumber and beans were none the worse for wear. The tomato was almost beyond hope but mama managed to salvage what was left of it for salad that evening.

HE HAD a great time despite the fact that the counselor, true to his word, made them eat everything that was served. The everything included oatmeal, chili ("good thing it was weak!"), cole slaw and a few other things he wouldn't look at at home, much less taste.

The girls were delighted to see big brother back home. I don't know how thrilled Ryan was. I think he rather enjoyed being the oldest for a time. It must be hard being a middle child especially when the child younger than you turns out to be a duet which delights in making your life anything but peaceful.

I, who have been known to select a wedding dress from a catalogue, purchase a new couch and chair in roughly ten minutes and buy a house after looking at only one other, am having a terrible time finding something as simple as curtains for the kitchen and back hall.

I know what I want, exactly. Unfortunately, my taste and that of the buyer in every store I have hit so far, does not agree. If they have the style, they have it in the wrong material and if they have the right material, they don't have the right style.

I AM DETERMINED not to do what I did in the dining room, i.e.: purchase something as close as I could get to what I wanted and then replace 21 yards of white lace with 21 yards of red rick-rack. That caper bordered on insanity. We are changing bedrooms around over here, a process which occurs with some regularity. The boys are moving downstairs, necessitating the repainting of what is now the toy room. The first thing that had to be done was to get all the art work off the walls and in her eagerness to help, Nora misjudged her step and plunked one foot squarely in the bucket of wallpaper paste which her father was saving until he was sure his latest effort was firmly adhered to the wall. Thankfully, she was barefooted and a quick trip in the kitchen sink took care of the damage to her foot if not her pride.

However, the thumbtack she had just removed from the wall prior to her foot dunk had been deposited point up on the very chair she chose to sit in moments later. It wasn't the little girl's day.

Michael also doubled as chorus director for the show, and has played various other leads in plays including "Hello Dolly," "Guys and Dolls," "West Side Story," and "Music Man."

"Talent Time," a Bloomfield based organization in operation for the past 26 years, devotes itself to putting on Broadway plays for the benefit of seriously ill Bloomfield residents.

Mrs. Alfred Good, department president, and her staff of officers officiated at the installation, after which a dinner-dance at Livingston Post 201, was held in honor of retiring county president Mrs. Edward Januszewski and county commander Carmine G. Petti.

Guest speakers at the affair were Honorable Millicent Fenwick, Mayor Doris Beck of Livingston, and newly elected Essex County Commander John Denkinger of Post 70, Nutley.

Peoples co-sponsoring TV special on Lincoln

The Peoples National Bank and Trust Company of Belleville, through its membership in the American Bankers Association (ABA), will co-sponsor "Lincoln, the Unwilling Warrior" next Wednesday, September 3 at 10 p.m. on NBC-TV channel four.

Television viewers will gain new insights into the life of Abraham Lincoln as Commander-in-Chief during the Civil War in this fourth hour-long special, based on Carl Sandburg's Pulitzer Prize winning biography of the 16th president.

The first three programs sponsored by the ABA have already won awards from TV Guide, the American Better Broadcasters, and the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge. Two more ABA sponsored programs will be shown as part of its Bicentennial contribution.

Broadway Tony Award winner Hal Holbrook plays the title role of the series in full make-up to resemble Lincoln.

In "Lincoln, the Unwilling Warrior," Holbrook portrays this man of peace thrust into the role of Commander-in-Chief. The period covered begins with Lincoln's journey to Washington for his inauguration and ends with the bitter-sweet victory over the Confederate forces. The transformation of the man and the nation, caused by the Civil War, is vividly depicted.

Each of the six programs in the series concentrates on a personal aspect of Lincoln, as depicted in Sandburg's six-volume biography. The remaining two programs in the series will be aired in February and April of 1976.

Lakers celebrate their annual feast

The people in Silver Lake celebrated the feast of Saint Bartolomeo the Apostle last weekend. The joyful event officially started Saturday when rockets were set off, marking the opening of the feast. With one whole block set off for booths, the people of the Lake and the surrounding area flocked to the area. Clockwise, starting upper left: All kinds of items were on sale Saturday, including hats of all sorts. This gentleman made sure of the wide selection, since he ran the hat concession. The streets were gaily decorated in honor of the feast day (upper right), with decorations like this one spanning the area at regular intervals. These kids (above) seemed to be having a good time, strolling from booth to booth, "window" shopping and sampling the food-wares. As soon as the traditional rockets were set off, the band struck up (right and left) marking the official beginning of St. Bartolomeo's feast. Food vendors, like the one below, did a booming business in the sunshine on Saturday. Unfortunately, it rained Sunday.

Bruins move to finals

The Belleville Bruins moved into the finals of their Essex County league play, as they brushed by the Maplewood Maples last weekend, taking the first two games of the three game semi-finals series. They took the first game on Saturday, 7-3 in Maplewood, and smashed the Maples Sunday in a home stand, 15-2. Details of the final championship match-up were unavailable at press time, and as of late last Sunday, team manager Mike Welsh said he didn't even know who the Bruins would be playing for the title. Welsh did say, however, that the Bruins would be hosting the last two games of the series on Sunday. The games will be played at Belleville Memorial Stadium.

The Maples didn't have a chance Sunday, as the Bruins mauled their guests right from the start, piling up five runs in the first inning, a total that in itself would have been enough to win the game.

Joe Papisidero started things cooking when he led off the game with a single. Jim Rake followed him to the plate and made it safely to first on a fielding error by the Maplewood shortstop. Bob DeJianne socked a sacrifice fly to left, and Papisidero took the opportunity to rush home for the first run of the game. Dan Dunn drew a base on balls, and Scull followed him to the plate, scooting to first safely after a fielding error by the second baseman. Meanwhile, Rake rushed home for the run.

With Dunn and Scull on the bags, Rich SanFillipo cracked a double to left, allowing Dunn to go home. Rocco Guarino then pounded out a double tonight, and Scull and SanFillipo made it safely home.

Maplewood went on the scoreboard in the top of the second, managing to get one run across the plate. That run matched one in the top of the inning for the Bruins, when DeJianne singled to drive in Papisidero.

Both teams went scoreless in the third inning, but jumped back on the scoring bandwagon in the fourth. Unfortunately for the Maples, they only scored one run in the inning, and that was it for the rest of the game. The Bruins scored in the fourth when Papisidero and Tony Leopoldi drew walks. DeJianne singled in Papisidero and Scull singled in Leopoldi.

The hometown diamonders kept pecking away at their opponents, picking up one run in the fifth, two in the sixth, two in the seventh, and another pair in the eighth. Mike Zayac was the winning pitcher, going seven innings, striking out nine, walking two, and allowing seven hits. He was relieved by D'Alessandro, who struck out one, gave up two hits and didn't walk a soul.

The highlights of Saturday's game in Maplewood were a homer by Papisidero, the first batter to the plate, and a two run blast by Dunn in the fifth. Paul Mirabella was the pitcher of record for the Bruins, striking out eight, walking seven, and allowing eight hits. He was relieved in the eighth by Steve Wacker, who sent one down swinging, walked one, and held the Maples hitless.

The coaching staff of the Broncos, Rich Luzzi, head coach, Lenny Lungo offensive line coach and Mike Limongelli, defensive line coach, is looking forward to a strong season. Last year, the first year the team was together, the Belleville boys finished fourth in the Essex County Junior Football League, comprised of 10 teams. The Broncos wrapped up the season with 6-4 record. This year, the squad can look forward to at least nine returning veterans to flesh out the team and provide a solid nucleus for the coaches to work around.

The scrimmages this week should serve the dual purpose of firming up the decision on who must be cut, and also give the boys a good idea of just where their specific and team strengths and weaknesses lie.

Firing a few warm-up balls, Belleville Bruin pitcher Greg D'Alessandro gets ready to face the Maplewood batters in last Sunday's game. D'Alessandro came in during the late innings of the game, and held the Maples scoreless. The victory moved the Bruins into the finals for the Essex County title. It seemed as though the game was barely a workout for the hometown boys, as they won easily, 15-3.

High stepper— Bruin pitcher Mike Zayac stretches it out as he pitches his way to a victory over the Maples in Sunday's game.

Physicals today for all fall sports

Physicals for all candidates to Belleville High School Fall sports will be held today in the high school at 9 a.m., it was announced this week.

All athletes going out for football, soccer, or cross country should report to the high school for the required check-up.

Practicing for both soccer and football will start Monday, and head football coach Tom Testa said all his men can expect double sessions for two days, then normal after school practice beginning Wednesday.

Soccer coach Tony Cahill said he expected the first practice to have a light turnout, since it was a holiday weekend, but he added that he was sure the school would produce a full crop of players for the sport. This will be the first year BHS has competed on a varsity level in soccer.

Local Jaycees offer annual classic tickets

The 14th Annual Jaycee Classic, on August 30, will be the only NFL game played in New Jersey during the 1975 season. The Super Bowl Champion Pittsburgh Steelers are making their Classic debut at Princeton's Palmer Stadium, while the Classic veteran New York Giants are coming out for their 14th appearance in what promises to be a tougher-than-usual battle.

The Classic has always been unpredictable, ignoring previous statistics. Regardless of the outcome, one thing is certain — there will be sixty minutes of top NFL action to thrill the fans on both sides of the field.

The Classic, dubbed as Super Saturday, is one of the state's major charitable activities. In the past 13 years, over two million dollars have been earned, all for New Jersey charities. Proceeds are allocated to each of the more than two hundred Jaycee chapters across the state, based on active participation by thousands of individual members.

This summer is special, with Camp New Jersey Jaycee opening in Effort, Pennsylvania. The camp, which is for New Jersey's more than 250,000 mentally retarded children, is a new statewide project, in addition to each chapter's local programs. Jaycee activities at all levels depend on the support provided by such events as the Annual Football Classic.

Michael Losito, Belleville's ticket chairman, still has tickets available for $6 and $12 apiece, which can be purchased by calling 751-1611.

Domenick bros. pace swim team to victory

Aided by the water-skimming skill of Belleville's Domenick brothers, the Montclair YMCA Boys' Swim Team struck gold, silver and bronze at the NjAAU Long Course Junior Olympic Championships last week. The team brought in 32 individual championship medals and produced 11 medalist relays.

Anthony Domenick, racing in the 13-14 age group finals, finished second for a silver medal in the 200-meter backstroke event, clocking 2:33.3. Bronze medals were won by Domenick as he placed fourth in the 100-meter backstroke at 1:12.0 and fifth in the 200-meter individual medley (all four strokes) timed at 2:41.0.

At the relay championship, sixth-place medals were won as Anthony's 13-14 400-meter medley relay clocked 4:57.2 (Domenick teamed 4:23.0).

Angelo Domenick grabbed his share of medals, too, as the young sprinter finished third in the 50-meter backstroke at 42.3, fourth in the 50-meter butterfly at 40.2, and fifth in the 200-meter freestyle at 2:54.6. He raced in the 10-and-under age group.

Broncos revving up

The Belleville Broncos football team is revving up its engines and getting ready for the opening kickoff of the season, coming up on September 13.

More than 100 kids tried out for the team this year, and the necessary but unpleasant task of making cuts has been slowly whittling down the squad. There are now 37 boys on the team, but one final cut will drop the number even lower and give the coaching staff a workable number of gridders to handle.

According to Fred Puleo, manager of the Broncos, interest in the team has been running high, not just with the boys participating, but also with fans around town. Puleo says many people have been asking how the team is doing, and he says he has high hopes for large crowds at the Broncos' home stands.

The team has two scrimmages scheduled for this week, as the boys travel to Clifton and North Arlington to size up future opponents in pre-season play. Next week, the helmeted heroes make yet another road trip to meet Garfield in an away scrimmage. The team's first game of the season will see the Broncos pitted against Queen of Peace in an away game in North Arlington. Puleo said the team will sponsor a pep rally for Friday, September 12 to get the season started right.

Next Saturday, September 6 is the date set for the official weigh-in, with all the boys working out ahead of time to make sure they make it under the 135 pound limit.

 Every once in a while we hear somebody say that he fixes the TV set himself. As it turns out, the "fixing" consists of taking all the tubes out of the set and checking them on one of those frequently gimmicked up tube testers which one finds in drug stores, stationary or candy stores etc.
 One customer called us for service after he found 11 tubes "defective", according to the drug store tube tester, and replaced them, paying about $35. The set still did not work after replacing tubes and then he called us. We repaired the set. His trouble had nothing to do with tubes. Then the customer put the old tubes back in the set and they worked perfectly well. He went to the drug store and wanted to return the tubes. Of course the store did not take the tubes back. These apparatus are placed and maintained the same as the cigarette vending machines, by companies who are just allocated space in the respective locations. These companies pay the stores a certain amount of commission. The stores where these machines are placed disclaim any responsibility for the merchandise which the apparatus dispenses as in the case of tubes which the customers request. It is strictly a self service operation. As a general rule it is best to replace only those tubes, which the drug store tester show to be burned out. Some testers show a light indicating a "short". More often than not this does not mean anything. This much is sure, thousands of tubes have been sold through these tube testers which did not have to be replaced. The best suggestion we can make is to buy and try one tube at a time, if several show defective. If the defect is due to a really bad tube, perhaps you are lucky that the first one you buy may remedy your problem. On the other hand you may buy all of them which show bad and wind up, as the customer mentioned above, still needing a repairman.
 We service what we sell.

Yet another— Maria Calabrese displays her scholarship certificate with Pisano, Saletta and her proud parents.

Local Elks visit Bloomfield friends

One of the last summer outings attended by Belleville Lodge 1123 B.P.O. Elks exalted ruler Raymond MacDonald and Donald Grewcock was last week when they attended the Crippled Childrens Picnic at the Elks Bloomfield Lodge.

Also, last week, MacDonald, Warren Natusch and August Mitsche of the local Elks attended the State District Deputy Clinic at the lodge in Nutley.

Word has come from MacDonald that August 25 was the last summer meeting of the local lodge and that starting September 8 the membership meetings will resume the second and fourth Monday of each month at their regular quarters at 254 Washington Avenue.

AARP charter to be presented

Belleville Chapter 2051 of the American Association of Retired Persons, Inc., will meet Thursday, September 4 at 1 p.m. at Fewsmith Church on Union Avenue, its officials announced this week.

At the first fall meeting, Mrs. Emily Darmer, assistant state director of AARP, will present the local chapter's charter.

The meeting will also serve as the final time to make reservations for the foliage trip to Woodloch Pines, Pa., on October 15.

The Elaine Garrabrant Scholarship Award— Donna Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stone of Belleville, was the recipient recently of the first Elaine Garrabrant Scholarship Award. Charles Garrabrant, left, a founder and vice-president of the Cerebral Palsy School and Treatment Center in Belleville, and Viola Vernick, executive director of the center, presented the $1,000 scholarship. Garrabrant established the special fund in memory of his daughter Elaine, a cerebral palsy child. The fund is restricted to students who seek a career as a physical or occupational therapist, and will continue for a 25-year period. Donna will enroll in New York University for the September college semester. A June graduate of Belleville High School, she was a member of the National Honor Society, Captain of the varsity basketball team and participated in varsity softball and the ski club.

Candy striper travels 3,000 miles to work

Miss Cindi Hogenbirk of Lakeside, California, who recently graduated from Tierra Del Sol Junior High School, enrolled as a Candy Striper Volunteer at Clara Maass Memorial Hospital in Belleville. Cindi is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hogenbirk, formerly of New Jersey.

Although the minimum age for teen-age volunteers is 14, over the past year, Cindi found every opportunity to spend numerous hours with various hospital disciplines and learn more of hospital life during her visits to New Jersey. She is interested in pursuing a career in the hospital field.

During her last tour of duty, Miss Hogenbirk willingly donated her leisure hours in order to seek assignments in the hospital's School of Nursing, Laboratory, Pathology, Rehabilitation and Physical Medicine Departments. In addition, she assisted in several of the offices, delivered flowers and get-well cards to patients, escorted patients to and from their rooms, and assisted nurses in the Pediatrics Department.

Asked why she was so willing to give up her vacation, Cindi said: "I first became interested in a medical career about eight months ago, when I realized how much self-satisfaction one can get in helping people, who are less fortunate than me, regain their health." She further commented that "the counseling which I received from the various hospital officials has helped me to plan my high school courses so that I can be accepted in a college or an accredited certificate school of my choice."

100 hours— 6,000 miles — Cindi Hogenbirk of Lakeside, California, is pinned by Donald Hoch, Assistant to the Director of Volunteer Services of Clara Maass Memorial Hospital, for contributing 100 hours as a teenage volunteer. Cindi used her summer vacation to visit the Belleville hospital and pitch in, despite the long distance between here and her home.

Swiss Torte Is Very Special

At holiday time, or for any special day, bake this elegant European-type cake. It may be baked the day before serving.

- Swiss Broyage Torte
- 1 (9-inch) sponge or yellow cake layer
 - 1/4 cup cognac
 - 3 egg whites
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla
 - 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
 - Dash salt
 - 3/4 cup sugar
 - 1/2 cup sifted Argo corn starch
 - 1/4 cup blanched almonds, ground
 - 3/4 cup apricot jam
 - 1/2 cup coarsely chopped toasted almonds
 - 1 cup chocolate frosting
 - Confectioners sugar

Sprinkle cake with cognac. Let stand while preparing Broyage layers. Grease and flour 2 cookie sheets. Press rim of 9-inch layer cake pan lightly into flour to make a guide circle on each. Mix together egg whites, vanilla, cream of tartar and salt in large bowl. Beat until soft peaks form when beater is raised. Gradually add 1/2 cup sugar, beating until stiff peaks form. Mix remaining 1/4 cup sugar, corn starch and ground almonds. Fold into egg white mixture. Place half in each circle on cookie sheets and spread evenly to within 1/2 inch of circle edges. Bake in a 325° F oven 25 minutes or until sandy colored and dry. Remove from sheet carefully. Cool on rack. To assemble Torte, place 1 Broyage layer on plate. Spread with apricot jam. Top with second Broyage layer. Spread sides of torte with frosting, saving some for rosettes. Press chopped almonds on sides. Decorate top with frosting rosettes. Dust with confectioners sugar. Makes 12 servings.

Training Your Dog For Tracking

The dog moves through an open field, intently following her nose along an invisible path of a scent. Her master follows some 20 yards behind.

Suddenly she pauses, sniffing the light breeze from one point to another. Recapturing the scent, stronger now, she's eagerly moving again on an altered course. Minutes later she finds the object she's been tracking and brings it happily to her master, who praises her highly for finding the old glove he had hidden there.

The man is Milo Pearsall, and that was a brief scene from "Training for Tracking," a film in which Milo and Margaret Pearsall show you how to train your dog in tracking.

The Pearsalls are two of America's foremost dog trainers and teachers. That film is one in a series of five they recently made for ALPO to help owners train their dog.

Obedience Training Films
 Entitled "Dog Obedience Training," this film series also teaches Puppy Training, Basic & Novice, Open, and Utility training. They were filmed outdoors on location in 16 mm. full color/sound, with excellent photography and expert camera work.

Best of all, this series of five 15-minute films is available on loan to interested groups without charge.

According to scientific research, a dog's sense of smell is a million times greater than human's. Tracking, in a way, becomes a game or contest whereby your dog uses that ability, on your command, to follow one particular scent path over a tricky course to find a certain object.

Turnpike's service areas have historic N.J. names

New Jersey has long been called the "Crossroads of the American Revolution," but when the Turnpike Authority began its policy of naming its service areas, the people of the state came first.

In 1965 the Turnpike Authority honored Molly Pitcher, Alexander Hamilton and Richard Stockton by naming three of the toll road's 13 service areas after them and thereby acknowledging their contribution during America's fight for independence. The ceremony also pointed out the importance of New Jersey as a people.

"Historians are quick to point out the geographic importance of New Jersey but they sometimes overlook the people behind the events," said Turnpike Authority Chairman Francis G. Fitzpatrick.

"If the naming of the Turnpike's service areas has accomplished anything it has served to illustrate the contributions of New Jerseyans, both native and adopted, that have helped shape this country."

The Richard Stockton service area, located in Hamilton Township in Mercer County, was named in honor of one of the five New Jersey delegates who signed the Declaration of Independence in 1776, Chairman Fitzpatrick stated.

It was Stockton's family that built and resided in "Morven," the present-day governor's home in Princeton, Fitzpatrick noted, but it was his pro-self-government stance and his position as a member of the colony's Supreme Court that made Stockton a perfect representative to the Philadelphia congress.

Further north on the Turnpike, about 12 miles from the site of her "well", is the Molly Pitcher service area, located in Cranbury.

"The story of 'Molly Pitcher' is quite a bit different from Stockton's but just as significant," the Turnpike

Chairman said of the New Jersey heroine. Born Mary Ludwig in Trenton, she left for Pennsylvania at the age of 15. She married and followed her husband, John Hayes, into battle when the war began.

"It was at the Battle of Monmouth that she earned the name 'Molly Pitcher,' said Fitzpatrick. While the battle continued in 96 degree heat, Mary carried water to the soldiers in a pitcher. Her duties switched to loading cannon when her husband fell wounded and she took over his position on the artillery line, he added. For her role in the battle she earned the name, Molly Pitcher.

"Alexander Hamilton was another who left his mark on New Jersey," stated Fitzpatrick. When he was preparing for college at the Elizabethtown Academy he began a long association with both William Livingston and Elias Boudinot, one of the future governor of the state and the latter a future president of the Continental Congress.

Hamilton, as an artillery captain and aide-de-camp to General Washington, was responsible for holding off the pursuing British troops at the Raritan River during the American retreat in late 1775, allowing Washington's troops a margin for escape.

"But New Jersey must also claim to be the scene of Hamilton's death as well as the scene of his professional birth," Chairman Fitzpatrick said. It was on the Weehawken Heights in 1804 that he was mortally wounded by Aaron Burr in a duel brought on by their political differences.

The Alexander Hamilton service area, located in Secaucus is, ironically, located closer to Weehawken than any of the other sites where Hamilton left his mark on New Jersey, Fitzpatrick noted.

Union College announces six-part lecture series

A six-part lecture series will be hosted by Union College's Student Government Association during the coming academic year.

The series, which opens with the humor of Lenny Bruce and concludes with a dialogue on American foreign policy and the future of Israel, is intended to meet the divergent interest of all students at Union College, he said.

"The World of Lenny Bruce" as interpreted by actor Frank Speiser will open the 1975-76 lecture series on Friday, September 12.

Comedian Robert Klein will speak to the collegiate audience on "Comedy" on Monday, September 22. Frederick Storka, director of the National Organization for the Prevention of Rape, will make a return visit to Union College on Friday, October 10, when he will speak on "How to Say No to a Rapist and Survive."

Chris White and the Brotherhood will follow the course of jazz from Africa to America today in a lecture-concert on Thursday, February 12. Author Charles Berlitz will discuss his best-selling book "The Bermuda Triangle" on Tuesday, March 2.

Elie Wiesel, novelist and poet, and John G. Stoessinger, political scientist, both refugees from Nazism, will share the podium on Wednesday, April 28, when they engage in a discussion on "American Foreign Policy, The Middle East and the Future of Israel."

All lectures are at 8-p.m. in the Campus Center Theatre on Union College's Cranford campus.

Union College expecting enrollment over 5,000

Union College will open its 42nd academic year next Tuesday with a record enrollment of more than 5,000 students, the expansion of programs serving non-English speaking adults, and the scheduling of courses at off-campus locations in Cranford, Elizabeth, and New Providence, according to Dr. Saul Orkin, president.

Union College will not increase tuition for the fall semester, Dr. Orkin said.

"Despite some budget cutbacks, Union college will maintain its current tuition rate, which is one of the lowest in New Jersey," Dr. Orkin commented.

Tuition at Union College is $175 per semester or $14 per credit per semester. Dr. Orkin stated that although the economic picture for the coming year is uncertain Union College will not sacrifice its quality or commitment to serve the community college needs of Union County residents.

This is the SGA's fifth annual lecture series and is funded by student activity fees, Mr. Fantani stated.

Previous speakers have included Vincent Price, columnist Jack Anderson, Ralph Nader, Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm and actor Geoffrey Holder.

"While intended primarily for the enjoyment of students and staff," Mr. Fantani added, "it has been the SGA's policy to welcome the public when seats are available."

Tickets are sold at the door on a first come — first serve basis and are free to those holding a Union College identification card and $2 to the general public.

Newarker fined $50 for shoplifting

A 26-year-old Newark woman was fined $50 and given a 10 day suspended sentence in Municipal Court last Thursday for shoplifting.

Linda L. Wright of 348 North 5th Street pleaded guilty to charges of taking $18.49 of non-food items from the Belmont Avenue Pathmark on August 6.

The complaint was filed by a Pathmark employee and Judge Edward Abramson presided over the case.

Playhosue '1776' tickets on sale

Tickets are now on sale for "1776" the first fall production of Family Playhouse's amateur theater group.

Opening October 3, "1776" will run two weekends, director Ray Napolitano announced.

Tickets may be reserved by calling 997-5626, and are $3 each, though student and group rates are available.

OSHA opens four offices to service Garden State

Four new Federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) Area offices have been opened in New Jersey.

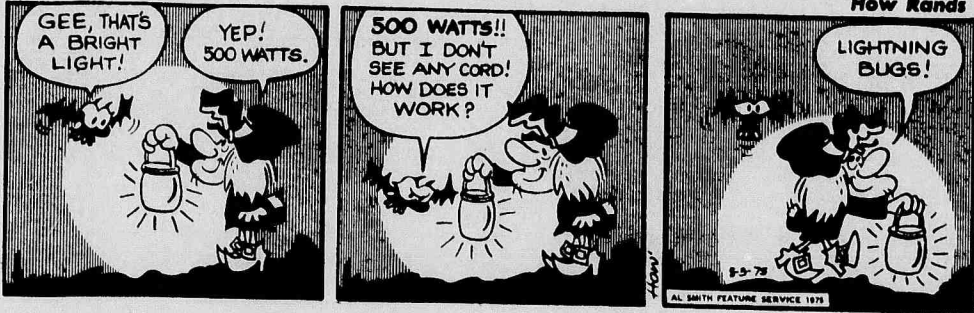

New area offices in Belle Mead, Camden, Dover and Hasbrouck Heights have been added to the existing Newark Area office to handle the increased workload.

The State of New Jersey has not passed the legislation required to take over a Federally approved safety and health program.

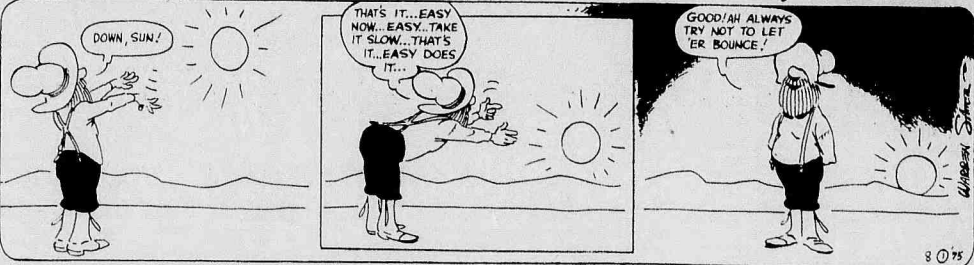

New Jersey employers and employees needing information or assistance concerning any of OSHA's regulations are urged to consult the OSHA Area offices.

N.J. Bell staff can help stop those annoying calls

If you're the victim of persistent obscene, harassing or abusive calls, New Jersey Bell can help put a stop to them.

The first step is to call your local telephone business office, which will put you in touch with a specially trained service representative at one of New Jersey Bell's seven annoyance call bureaus.

A representative at the annoyance call bureau can usually help solve your annoyance call problem — if it really is persistent case.

Everett Davey, Belleville community relations manager, said, "Most complaints simply disappear. Either the calls stop or they're found to have a harmless origin. They frequently turn out to be the result of neighborhood disputes or even just misdialed numbers. The misdialer was just too embarrassed to say anything before hanging up. No harm is meant by misdialers, but it can be very disturbing to someone answering the phone.

"People who make abusive, annoying and obscene calls have a problem and they need an audience. Don't give them one. Use the phone on your terms — not the caller's. If there's no answer when you pick up the phone or the caller makes an obscene remark, hang up without saying anything. That just may discourage an annoyance caller. Make the caller identify himself immediately or hang up. "But if the calls continue, call your local business office for help. The number is listed in the front of the telephone directory on page 2."

An annoyance call specialist will then contact you and try to establish a pattern that might indicate where the calls are coming from. You will be encouraged to listen for any telltale background noises.

In some cases, you might be asked to log the time and day of each call. A log helps pinpoint calling patterns — such as teenage pranksters making calls after school. Or a love-struck teenager calling a boy or girlfriend but too embarrassed to talk to the parent.

If the problem continues, the telephone company will in many cases begin line identification. Special equipment placed in the central office is used to track down the calling number.

As the name implies, line identification equipment identifies the line calls are being made from. At no time does anyone listen in or any conversations, nor does New Jersey Bell identify the caller. Once the phone company knows where the calls are coming from, the matter is turned over to local police. It's their job to identify and arrest the caller, and it's up to the customer to sign a complaint.

When the case comes to court, a New Jersey Bell witness will testify to the accuracy of equipment used to identify the line the calls came from.

Line identification won't work every time, but in many cases it is successful in identifying the calling number and in helping police catch annoyance callers.

In the first six months of 1975, more than 120 persons were convicted of making obscene, annoying or harassing telephone calls. Conviction is a serious crime, with a maximum penalty of up to $500 fine and/or six months' imprisonment. Similar laws exist in all 50 states and it's a federal offense to place such calls across state lines.

While there is usually no need to go directly to the police about annoyance calls, they should be contacted immediately if a threatening call is received. Threatening calls can be a deadly serious matter, and that's a job for the police.

Because the police have no authority to order line identification, it's important that the customer then contact the phone company.

Line I.D.

Ralph Estelle, a switchman in New Jersey Bell's central office, checks a circuit pack that will be used to identify the line from which annoyance calls are being placed.

This sophisticated device is installed to aid local police in finding annoyance callers. Maximum penalty for making obscene phone calls is $500 and/or six months, imprisonment.

NLT slates tryouts for 'Prisoner' soon

Tryouts for Nutley Little Theater's fall production "Prisoner of Second Avenue" have been scheduled for 8 p.m. September 3 and 4 at the NLT Barn on Erie Place, Nutley, the amateur theater group announced this week.

NLT will present Neil Simon's comedy hit on October 31, and November 1 and 2 at the Nutley American Legion Post 70 building on Franklin Avenue. The group's fall production will benefit the Clifton Chapter of Deborah.

"Prisoner of Second Avenue" will be directed by Sharon Baumann, a long time member of Nutley Little Theater. She most recently played the role of Bunny Flingus in NLT's spring production, "House of Blue Leaves."

According to the director, six roles are to be cast for "Prisoner." They are: Mel Edison, a man in his 40's; Edna Edison, Mel's wife; Harry Edison, Mel's older brother who is very successful in life; and Pearl, Jessie and Pauline Edison, Mel's three older sisters.

Everyone is welcome to come to tryouts, and people interested in working behind the scenes are also welcome on tryout nights. Volunteers may also contact Marlene Cocchiola at 667-8189.
