TRICKS OF BATTERS

Peculiar Antics and Attitudes to Distract Opposing Pitchers

Batters have their peculiar mannerisms about taking their position at bat, and most of them have some little oddities of body indulge in that before stepping into the batsmen's box. It is safe to believe that by going through a certain set of motions and ridiculous didos it will bring good luck. Others do it for effect, a premeditated plan for their own amusement.

However, the great batsman of the game, with a few exceptions, rarely indulge in any of this fancy stuff either before or after getting to the plate. Sam Crawford, N. Lajoie, Shoeless Joe Jackson, Home Run Baker and a few others of our famous batsmen have a very businesslike air about them when taking their positions at the plate. The fact that they are there is sufficient to worry any pitcher.

A chap by the name of Lavan, who used to play with Kansas City, had a habit he always pulled off before biting at a ball that ranipled one of an infant medicine man going through his mysterious incantations invoking aid from the Father of the Great Waters. Just before his turn came to face the pitcher Lavan would take his place in the batter's box, swing his bat three times, would take the same time to assume a position that looked as if it were stiffened almost every way, pitching from a 15-foot greater distance and hurling under increased speed, due to more scientifically developed attack at bat and on the base lines. It is no wonder the wonder the modern hurler is not able to work more than once in four days.

HALLEN PITCHES WELL

Tom Hallen, of the city, twirled for the West Side A. C. in a sensational game at Peddie Anbury on Sunday against the Glades A. C. of that city. The game went sixteen innings to the Glades, Hallen allowed only nine hits and the Glades failed to score in the first seven innings, the game ended only five passes. Fred Dauth, outfielder of this city, also played with the West Side aggregation. The local in the defeat for the West Siders was in the fact that Moore, one of their pitchers, who is now with the Glades, not only brought in the tying run in the ninth inning, but made the winning tally in the sixteenth.

GOLF FOR INSANE

Golf as a treatment for insanity is to be tried at the Eight State Hospital for Insane, it is announced. H. J. Gahagan, Superintendent of the hospital, is having a nine-hole course laid out as his latest innovation in the application of the theory that kindness and gentleness of thetics form the most effective cure for mental ills. He believes the outdoor exercise and the concentration of the game will have an amazing effect on the patients.

EASIER PITCHING CONDITIONS

Oldtime Twirlers Were Favored Than Present Women

Occasionally the oldest inhabitant begins "barking back" to the days when pitchers worked every other day and played in the outfield when not performing in the box. It is natural to ask the question, "Why is the modern flinger able to work but once in four or five days, resting from all labor in shortstop?" The answer is easy—pitching conditions are entirely different. Those are some of the conditions under which the hurlers worked in 1870, the first year of the National league's existence:

Pitching distance, 45 feet.

Three strikes out, nine balls allowed.

Pitcher's box six feet square.

Pitcher could take more than one step in delivering the ball.

Batter could not take base when hit by pitched ball.

No balk rule entitled for feints to ward first base.

Imagine Walter Johnson shooting fastball at a batsman only 45 feet distant, and with practically no restriction on the movements of his body in delivering the same.

Imagine the efforts of a batsman to "wait him out" until Walter walked him home.

ANIMALS IN PAWN.

Tame or Wild, They Are Good For a Loan in This New York Shop.

Among the curious industries or sources of livelihood in New York city is an animal pawnshop. As you take a watch to an ordinary pawnshop to raise money on it, so you may take a watchdog to the animal pawnshop. Recently a man did this, getting $10 on a dog that was easily worth $50, the pawnbroker said. But he was a rare one which had been caught in open doors. So in the time he opened for and let himself out while letting the pawnbroker in.

A well known animal trainer owns the shop. He takes other lions, elephants—any animals. There are no charges for interest on the loan, but only charge being for the keep of the animals, among which at almost any time are dogs, monkeys, bears, goats, cats, cocoa, foxes, parrots, catarins. At one time he had forty trick donkeys to pawn. The profits arising from charges for feed and care are sought to make the institution pay.

Once he had a lion in pawn which broke his chain in the stable and went roaming around, scared almost to death. But it was only after beside affords that they mustered courage to capture him. As a matter of fact the animal was a decrepit beast that had served his time in vaudeville and was entitled to get away—Exchange.

A CLEW TO HER PAST.

She Knew Entirely Too Much, As a "Close Observer" Discovered.

"She looked rich and spoke like a lady, and had everything that she was entitled to, and had nothing to hide, but I discovered that she had once been poor," said a "close observer" of a lady who there was a time, and that not so very long ago, when she was poor and in the rest of us.

"Marvelous!" exclaimed the owner four girls. "How did you discover that?"

"Through her knowing so much about where I took all my meals—at Childs. She knew that the oddly was in the writing desk, that the chance, biscuits and sinkers, that the cured by mice were in that the box under the cupboard, that the best coffee store was in the corner behind the weatherod. She knew that the best eggs were on the window ledge and that the cream was in the refrigerator, and that boot-on the bottom shelf of the weardobe.

"When we were cooking she went straight to the spot and got every one of those things. She knew just where they were, which is something that a person who had not had a wide experience of boardinghouse in an room could never gain," Exchange New York Times.

Erratic Record in Golf.

The world's record for unsuccessful putting goes to a Scotch Caledonian golfer. There was a team match wheel lied between two either sides, which ended in five bad putts. When the matter started it was discovered that only four men had reported one one of the teams. The captain of the team that had a missing man was asked to play the other with a handicap—some who was another of the lightest strokes. His average game was about 56. As a rule he could manage to get up out to 50 and come back in 45. Two, five P. M.—Small cup of tea, two slices of cut-and-dried bread-and-butter, one poached egg, two digestive biscuits, one-half pint of claret; stewed fruit (pears, apples); cheese and a cracker.

"That's enough food for any one during hot weather. Dr. Robinson believes and the man is an accomplished golf fanatic, calculated to be in the effort at reduction. Even if it does not aid in reducing, it will make sure that he will not overexercise, it certainly will keep one from getting fatter.

HOPE FOR OBESE PERSONS

New York Physician Prescribes Diet to Reduce Superfluous Flesh.

Here's real hope for the fat man—and likewise the obese woman. Not only need they no longer fear the accumulation of additional avoirdupois but by the exercise of a little restraint and persistency are promised the pleasure of holding a forceful conversation for a large portion of that to which they at present are acting as auditor.

Of course each fat man—or woman—furnishes an individual problem and eight reducing, but the general rules are nearly always the same when no sudden attempt at immediate great reductions are made. First of all, the best way to go about getting rid of superfluous flesh is to talk the matter over with a physician. Then follow his instructions.

What the physician is expected to know about helping fat people is the subject of a long article in the current issue of the New York Medical Journal, written by Dr. Beverly Robinson. "It is manifestly useless to lay down hard and rigid rules of habits and dietary which will not be adhered to," says Dr. Robinson. "Moderation in diet seems to me the first and great consideration of any treatment which may be considered upon an ambulatory basis. Starvation, long continued, is not to be thought of. Nor should not be taken at all or in very small quantities. First of these is sugar, pastries, too, are fattening, and their loss will not be felt so much if a little bolted bread, or toast, is taken in place of fresh bread. Eat crisp, brown toast, or zwieback. But dont touch brandy or whisky, and yet you might do very well give yourself on for lost if you insist upon a glass of beer.

"Dr. Robinson believes fat persons are a model means for the person who is angry enough at his girth to attempt to do something about it.

"Breakfast, Seven to Nine A. M.—Two thin slices of toast with one pat—a very little butter; one or two eggs; a little broiled bacon or lean ham—Coffee, with little cream, no sugar.

Luncheon or Dinner, Twelve M. to Five P. M.—A slice of two of mutton, beef or chicken—cold or hot—if hot, a very little, simple sauce preferred; vegetables of the meat; one vegetable such as spinach, string beans, asparagus, cauliflower, tomatoes; sago or tapioca pudding or orange marmalade in small quantity; small tumbler of claret or a little light ale, and water.

Tea, Five P. M.—Small cup of tea with a saltine or one-or two-crackers.

Dinner or Supper, Half-past Seven P. M.—A little thin soup—chicken, mutton or beef broth; broiled fish, moderate quantity, or two eggs; two small slices of toast; a little wine or water or a small cup of tea; stewed fruit (pears, apples); cheese and a cracker.

"That's enough food for any one during hot weather. Dr. Robinson believes and the man is an accomplished golf fanatic, calculated to be in the effort at reduction. Even if it does not aid in reducing, it will make sure that he will not overexercise, it certainly will keep one from getting fatter.

Concerning Suffrage

JAMES NUGENT ANSWERED!

New Jersey has among its suffrage leaders Mrs. Minnie J. Reynolds who hails from the same state as the Rocky Ford melon and is able from personal experience to refute slanders about the voting women of her home state. So when the other day a certain James Nugent, politician, who is doing what he can to keep the flood of democracy out of New Jersey, mourefully said that the women in our state "are a burden to the taxpayers" because they have increased strength, due to more scientifically developed attacks at bat and on the base lines, it is no wonder the wonder the modern hurler is not able to work more than once in four days.

Mrs. Reynolds retorted by comparing the per capita wealth of the two states, the number of unmortgaged homes, larger cost of the school system, the number of college students, and so forth, and in each and all, Colorado where women vote outranked New Jersey where they do not.

How little politics cares about the homemaker was again shown at the State Association of Water and Measures convention the other day at the city hall in New York.

Using the short weight of a pound of coffee as a basis it was estimated that short weights cost the people of New York state $60,000,000 annually. This simmers down to organized fleecing of New York state homemakers.

Commissioner Hartigan reported that he had sent many cases of violation of the law to the Attorney General's office, but that, up-to-date, not one had been prosecuted. He was told to take a back-to-the-farmer attorney who in turn told him to "take his troubles to the corporation counsel."

Mrs. Heath, the president of the Housewives' League, can be counted on to find in this another argument to induce her half a million members to follow her into the camp of the woman suffragists.

Hunger knows no sex; want knows no sex; law knows no sex; property knows no sex; only the ballot box knows sex. But the ballot box once knew rank; it once knew land and primo-geniture; it once knew income, and wrote laws for the benefit of the few who had the privilege to be born swaddled in the purple. In the steady sweep of democracy the disability of sex will follow.—New York World.

CONTRACT GIVEN FOR FIRE HOSE

Eureka Company of Jersey City, Will Supply 1500 Feet for $1,275

GEO. H. FRIESE SECURES COAL CONTRACT

Bids were opened at the meeting of the Commissioners Tuesday afternoon for the purchase of 1,500 feet of new hose for the fire department and the contract was awarded to the Eureka Fire Hose Company, of Jersey City, at 85 cents per lineal foot. Twelve firms bid on the hose, all of second brand, samples of which were exhibited to the commissioners. Bids were based on the quality of the hose from 45 cents to $1 and the contract was awarded to the lowest bidders. Eureka Fire Hose Company, Jersey City; United Globe Rubber Manufacturing Company, Newark; Voorhees Rubber Manufacturing Company, Jersey City; New Jersey Carbon Company, Newark; Newark Belting Company, Newark; Fabric Fire Hose Company, New York; Diamond Rubber Company, Akron, O.; Quaker City Rubber Company, Philadelphia; Republic Rubber Company, Youngstown, O.; Yosemite Fire Hose Company, New York; Thomas H. Birmingham Company, Philadelphia. The contract was a bid clad, but not the necessary guarantee check and the bid was rejected.

Following the opening of the bids the council had a recess of three-quarters of an hour during which the various brands of hose were discussed and explanations heard from the various representatives of the concerns present. Upon coming between the Commissioners Hartigan and Stillman reported recommending the awarding of the contract to the Eureka company, which was the lowest bidder, and Commissioner Stillman in a communication called attention to an important feature of the contract, that it becomes my duty as city treasurer to call the attention of your honorable body to the fact that the matter was overlooked in the making of the budget in January last.

"The sum derived from second class railroad property—which this year will be approximately $1,500—is used by ordinance for the retirement fund of the adjustment bonds and cannot be used for other purposes and as our tax rate is fixed, based upon our valuations, including the second class railroad property; this estimated amount of $4,000 should be included in our budget. If this is not done the amount of money to be raised by tax will not be sufficient to meet the full amount of the budget as now appropriated.

"This matter can be adjusted by amending the budget you have already adopted and treated in the same manner as the poll and dog taxes are treated."

City Treasurer Stillman was present at the meeting and explained that the matter had never been included in the budget as it properly should, but has been attended had been treated by the city since 1894. He stated that the second class railroad property is assessed by the State and the amount sent to the sinking fund commissioners to be applied on the retirement fund of the adjustment bonds. It was also stated that the adding of it to the present budget would not interfere with the tax rate about four points and it was the general sentiment of the council that the matter should wait until the next budget is made up. Upon motion of Mr. Gross the matter was dropped until the next meeting.

The finance committee reported the installation of the kiln received at the last meeting for burnishing coal to the various city departments, except the Board of Education, and Board of Water Commissioners. The contract was awarded to George M. Friese at $605.25 per ton. The bidders were C. E. Oliver and the Rahway Coal & Ice Company.

Councilman Buckley took title to an ordinance for the pensioning of police officers. Councilman Gunn took title to an ordinance supplementing the tax ordinance passed last night.

OWNER REGAINS HIS HORSE

The special to the S. P. C. A. case recently, in which Abe Morris of Brooklyn and Louis Mosgrick of New York figured, and were fined $20 and $10 and costs respectively, for abusing two horses attached to a furniture truck they were driving, came yesterday, when M. Switler of New-Brunswick, member of the firm of Switler Bros. of New Brunswick and New York, appeared at police headquarters, and paid the fines of the two men.

Mr. Switler claimed the horses as the property of his firm, and stated that he had hired them out to Morris, the owner of the truck, to carry furniture to Elizabeth, and that the mortgage on the truck, which is still held at Roerke and Weinmann's livery stable in Irving street, Rahway, expired yesterday through the cause. He was the unknowing victim of the Elizabeth man with the treatment the horses got. Mr. Switler intends to obtain an injunction against the Rahway "Society," and states positively that he was ignorant of the manner in which the horses were treated.

MISCREANTS SPOIL PROPERTY

Idlers, probably mischievous boys, broke several panes of glass in the window of the Jaral Silk Company's plant in Elizabeth avenue on Tuesday night. The police are endeavoring to find the miscreants responsible for the damage. James Thompson made an investigation early Tuesday morning and found several large stones in the inside of the shop, which had been thrown through the windows. The damage will amount to only a few dollars, but Karl von Todenwarth and the other members of the firm want the guilty persons brought to book, as it would easily be possible for a large amount of damage to be done in this way.

Some time ago a similar incident occurred, when a county automobile was damaged by boys throwing a stone through the windows of the wind shield was broken by a stone thrown through the windows of the

CLADEK LOCATED AT ALLENHURST

Missing Since November 11th Former School Commissioner Is Identified

VICTIM OF APHASIA AFTER ACCIDENT

George B. Cladek, who formerly owned the Clark livery stables in Irving street, and who has in past years served the city efficiently in common council and as commissioner of finance, on the board of freeholders, has been found, and will be back at his home in Rahway within a few days, possibly by Saturday. Mr. Cladek left Rahway on November 11, with expressed intention of going on a hunting trip. From that day until Tuesday of his week no clear trace of his whereabouts could be established, although more rigorous search was carried out by his wife and relatives, and by the distribution of printed descriptions of him throughout the neighborhoods. The case seems to be clearly one of aphasia, or some form of mental disturbance, temporarily indexed by brooding over business depression, as Mr. Cladek waited for his wife that Tuesday—he left the city until Jan. 27th, his mind was a total blank. No one was able to obtain the slightest clue as to his whereabouts, and various conjectures were abroad as to what had happened to him. It was generally accepted that he had met with mishap to some extent, wherever he was, wandering, or that he had met with a fatal accident and had been injured.

During his absence many changes occurred. Mrs. Cladek, with the business depression confronted the business depression for several months, finally disposing of it to Roerke and Weinmann only a few weeks ago.

The Mr. Cladek was finally located by his family is largely due to accident. Mrs. Mary Harmon, mother of Mrs. Cladek, recently expressed the desire to spending a week in Asbury Park, and Mrs. Cladek, in a casual remark dropped by William Reicon, formerly a resident of Rahway, but now employed at Asbury Park, the remark led to further investigation, with the result that Mr. Cladek was finally located at the Allenhurst Gardens, where he was employed.

On Tuesday Mrs. Cladek, who was recovering from the weather of the facts, went to Asbury Park, and the Dail Hill, where she found her husband. Mr. Cladek was at the Allenhurst Gardens. There she had a long conversation with him, with the result that he will return to his home in Seminary avenue within a few days.

From Mr. Cladek's statements to his wife, it is gathered that so far as he can recollect, his mind was a blank during the time he left home on November 11, until he found himself in Middletown, Pennsylvania, where he was employed at the Cornelius Bakery. He remained there for a few days, when he moved to the hotel at Dover, which is Cranford, and finally to the hotel at Cranford, and to have been occupied in fixing up and repairing the hotel, working part of the time at his own trade of carpenter or paper hanger.

A part of the season he was employed at the hotel as cashier. When the hotel closed, he went to Asbury Park and the working force was reduced Mr. Cladek left the hotel and took up his work at the Allenhurst Gardens, where he was located on Tuesday.

Upon Mr. Cladek's return to Seminary avenue in November, it was stated that he intended to go to Philadelphia, N. J., for a hunting trip. According to all inquiries at that time, he never reached Pennsylvania. Very little was seen of him after the time that he was seen in Washington, and other places, but by accident, it was ascertained that he was in Middletown, Pennsylvania, at the time of the accident.

Mr. Cladek's long and unexplained absence, other than that of mental depression, as his home life was always one of a happy character, and his social relations with his fellow citizens were of the most cordial character.

There was a good attendance at the union prayer meeting in the First Presbyterian church on Wednesday evening, the pastor, Rev. M. M. Westfield officiating.

18 HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Lester Freeman Goes to County Jail For Chicken Theft.

For the theft of two fowls, Lester Freeman, colored, of 134 Maple avenue was committed to the county jail yesterday, by Judge Harry W. Kiblett, in default of bail of $1,000. The police are of opinion that they have other charges which they may be able to bring home to Freeman when they have had an opportunity to make a more close investigation into his actions in recent months.

Freeman pleaded guilty to the charge preferred against him, that very little testimony was required to establish a clear case against him.

He hired a livery rig from the Roerke and Weinmann stable in Irving street, and "hot foot" it from the "big town" to "Mill Town," where he entered the premises of Mr. Meisinger, and purloined two fowls. Thereupon he afterwards disposed of to L. H. Parker, proprietor of the Lincoln Hotel, the "P. T. B." waiting for Freeman thought he got away with the fowls without being seen, but he was mistaken, for Mr. Mollie Brown, who lives close by, and she got the people on his trail. He was arrested Wednesday night by officers Batts and Hoffman.

WAR RELIEF COMMITTEE

The War Relief Committee, a branch of the Society of Mercy of Plainfield, will be in session Wednesday afternoon at the homes of Mrs. W. H. Hollinsion 157 Milton avenue. Thirty garments, part of the 100 to be sold, "Tailles" were finished during the meeting. Mrs. Hollinsion served light refreshments after the session.

Twenty members of the committee were present, and the organization is making it a point to have the least that number at each meeting. The next meeting on Wednesday, Aug. 24, will be held at the residence of Mrs. A. E. Woodruff, in Jefferson avenue.

The afternoon at the meeting this week were Miss Mary Shotwell, Mrs. F. C. Snyder, Mrs. Charles Collins, Miss Ruth Stillman and Miss Ruth Miss Emily Leach of Scotchtown, N. J., Miss Emma Wilson, Miss Ethel Gordon, Miss Matilda Edgar, Mrs. Legrand Hedges, Mrs. Willard C. Brown, Mrs. W. H. Peterson Jr., Mrs. Edward R. Savage, Mrs. F. H. Cone, Mrs. H. Mrs. Thomas Baskerville, Mrs. W. H. Hollinsion, Miss Grace Cone, Mrs. Waldo Berry, and Mrs. Wiel.

DARK SEPTEMBER MORN

The Rahway Yacht Club announced that there was no need to search Rahway river for the man in the "dark September morn" where the Mitcom avenue drawbridge. The suit, or the footprints of it that were found in the "dark" of whiskey, were taken to police headquarters, to await the policing inquiry by the coroner's physicians.

The corpse turned up, however, without the aid of an undertaker's wagon, and marched boldly up to Sergeant Jacob Ramer with a demand for "man cloes" Tom Foreman, he's the chap, had managed to get home in the dark, he's pretty dark himself, without being seen. Tom acknowledged that he didn't wear much clse this time, he had a little on, but not much, and he also acknowledged that he had been pretty drunk and didn't know how he got home.

Sergeant Ramer asked him what he looked like when he got home, and all Tom could relied was "An eyesore" looked lec like September Morn."

Begin Series of Meetings in this City Yesterday—To Continue Three Days

SPEAKERS FROM ABROAD DO TALKING

The three days campaign by the suffragists in this city commenced yesterday with a noon meeting at the Quinn and Boden factory, where a short talk was made. In the evening a meeting was held at 7 o'clock, at Grand, bond and Monroe streets, and at 8 o'clock, a large crowd heard an eloquent address at Main and Lewis streets, by Mrs. Lucy Stillman Churchill of Denver, Col. Miss Agnes Campbell of Short Hills, N. J., also addressed a good-sized gathering of the audience. They were accompanied by Miss Violet Dean of England and Miss Gertrude Crotz of this city.

At noon today, addresses were made at the Merck Co. factory, and tonight meetings will be held at Grand and Newton streets at 7 p. m. and at Main and Lewis streets at 8 p. m. Women will be addressed at Main and Lewis streets at 3 p. m.

Mrs. Churchill is a prominent speaker tonight in her address she emphasized the fact that while women were considered capable in every branch of life and business, men did not consider them capable to assist in making the laws of the country, or by any who should make these laws. Mrs. Churchill showed signs of the effects of the campaign slightly last night in her voice, which was at times weak.

Miss Agnes Campbell, who is the chauffeur of the campaign automobile, made a good impression last night in her brief address, and urged on the voters of Rahway to be sure to vote yes on the suffrage amendment at the polls on October 19.

REPUBLICANS ON EXCURSION

It is expected that at least thirty members of the Republican party from Rahway will take part in the annual excursion of Union County Republican Committee, to Coney Island, tomorrow.

This year the program has been slightly changed. In previous years the excursion has been made in Lehigh Valley Coal Company's barges, but this year the committee decided to go to Coney Island. The steamer Isabella has been chartered for the outing, and will leave the Pennsylvania R. R. dock at 9.30 a. m. The landing will be made at Dreamland Park.

TREMBLEY FOR FREEHOLDER

Freeholder David H. Trembley will be again for the nomination for the office on the Democratic ticket. Mr. Trembley has not had time to get his petition filed yet, but he stated today that he would have it completed and filed by the proper time.

There is a dearth of aspirants for the position of freeholder in the city of Democratic side of politics, and as yet no other candidate but Mr. Trembley has been announced.

Rahway City Circle No. 11 Lady Foresters will meet at the usual place and time for business and social meeting last night, in G. A. R. hall.

Runaway Team Creates Excitement

The fire part of black horses owned by Roerke and Weinsman of Irving street came to life yesterday afternoon about 10 o'clock at the corner of New Brunswick avenue and Irving street. The animals started to run away at the freight house, and at the intersection of the two streets they swerved and collided with the telegraph pole there.

One horse of the pair was thrown when the pole was hit, but the other broke loose from the harness, and ran down New Brunswick avenue, where it was finally brought to a stop by John Vanderwende on Main street. He rushed into the street and managed to seize the bridle.

Both animals were scratched and bruised up, one especially so. The wagon was badly damaged, and the harness was broken considerably.

The telegraph pole was shaved strong enough to present the appearance of the powerful horses, and appears to be in as unsafe condition now, to fact looks nearly to topple over at any minute.

The horses, attached to a heavy six horse truck, were in charge of driver Howard Vincent Acker. Louis Weinsman, one of the partners in the Roerke and Weinsman firm was also with the truck, but was not on the seat at the time of the runaway.

The team was at the freight station, taking on a load of bathtubs and pipe, to be delivered in Westfield avenue, where Harry Tash of New York is building several new houses.

Driver Acker was at the rear end of the wagon, loading the bathtubs, when the horses suddenly started off at top speed. Aaron was after the disappearing rig as fast as he could, but they reached Hazelwood avenue and had collided with the pole before he could overtake them.

Fortunately there were no other vehicles or any pedestrians in the way of the horses. The team is a particularly fine one, and has only recently purchased by the firm. But for the plucky stopping of the one that ran up New Brunswick avenue by John Vanderwende, it is extremely probable that some one would have been killed.

Councilman Buckley called attention to the fact that several of the city streets are being macadamized and thought that William street should be treated in like manner as the sewer work has now been completed and the street is in a very unsatisfactory condition. Councilman Schaefer wanted to know by William street should be selected in preference to other streets. Councilman Morton asked a similar question and pointed to the great need of improving Bond and Lafferty streets and Scott avenue. After some discussion the matter was finally dropped.

He suggested instead of having a hearing that evening he would like an ordinance is not included among the city ordinances. The matter was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Councilman Motley called attention to the fact that efforts had been made for over a year to have a fire alarm located downtown where it could be heard by the firemen. He suggested having a large gong placed at Milton avenue and Main street. Councilman Chas. President pro tem. and chairman of the fire and water committee, stated that plans are now being considered for mounting sirens on the various fire houses and suggested that the matter be laid over until a report on both matters can be made. Councilman Buckley favored having a satisfactory whistle in the center of the town or changing the one now in use at the water works so that it will be of more service to the city. No definite action was taken.

That a motorcycle cop would be a valuable adjunct to the present police force was asserted by Councilman Chas. and he called attention to the fact that Officer Hartz owns a motorcycle and could be used for that purpose and could thereby cover the whole city throughout the day, which he considered an improvement over the present plan of having the center of the city patrolled. Councilman Schaefer and Buckley opposed the plan, the latter stating that the police department appropriation is not sufficient to provide for the increased expense during the present year. The police committee was authorized to investigate the matter and report.

A communication that gave considerable consideration was received from the Main street merchants on the east side of the street between Monroe and Cherry streets, in which they asked to improve the bank of the Rahway river in the rear of their properties, provided the city would keep the grass and weeds cut and have the water pipes removed that are lying near the corner of Monroe and Bell streets. Upon motion of Councilman Trembley the communication was received and request complied with as far as possible. The merchants were authorized to do this work included by Engineer Harry Hornbrook and Jos. J. McCartney.

Franklin Engine Company announced Charles Dicone as its candidate for assistant chief.

From the fire and water committee a report was received recommending the acceptance of the resignation of Thomas Holland from Independence Hook and Ladder Company and the election of C. W. Proprietor Pettingill of the Lyric theatre, Main street, asked permission to hang a canvas sign in front of his theatre over the sidewalk. This was referred to the street committee with power.

The New York Telephone Company asked for the privilege of tearing up the new pavement in Milton avenue near the Pennsylvania Railroad station in order to install a new duct leading to the station. The request was refused as several of the councilmen stated that thirty days' notice was given everybody to have all work done before the pavement was laid in order not to have it torn up and that the company should have made the improvements at that time.

Contracts signed by the Hastings Pavement Company for the small amount of work to be done in Vail place and in Main street were received and referred to City Attorney Dobbins.

Councilman Schaefer, of the assessment committee, reported recommending the refunding of $1 to A. B. Calvin for a dog tax paid when Calvin had no dog in his possession. A similar tax against C. W. Mintel, of Elm avenue, was declared abated for the same reason.

For the lamps and police committee Councilman Buckley stated that the charges made by Chief of Police Ramsey against Chairaman John Bissy were being investigated and that one meeting had been held and that probably a full report would be ready at the next meeting of the council. The committee also recommended the installation of a light in Scott avenue between Whittier and Church streets and also that the light at the corner of Farrell place and Cherry street be transferred to the Daly municipal fountain. The report was received and recommendations adopted.

Councilman Trembley called attention to poor drainage conditions at the corner of Harrison and Whittier streets. He recommended two basins at this point and one at Union and Whittier streets and the recommendation was adopted and the city engineer instructed to receive bids for the installation of same. the bids to be received at the meeting of the council on August 31. Upon motion of Mr Trembley the engineer was also authorized to advertise for bids for the building of the sewer in Tottenville street the bids to be received at the meeting on August 31. Councilman Guhl advocated the settlement of the Meadlan bill for the sewer work in Elizabeth avenue as soon as the extent of broken sidewalk can be ascertained.

The city property committee recommended repairs to several fire houses, including Washington and Protection Hose, Independence Hook and Ladder and Franklin Engine hose quarters. Councilman Morton reported that Washington Chemical Engine Company might be unable to respond to an alarm at the present time owing to one of the tires of the apparatus being nearly out of commission. It was decided to notify Portage Rubber Company, who supplied the tires, that one of them had not come up to the guarantee.

The street commissioner was authorized to grant permission to M. Daly to open Main street for the purpose of making sewer connections.

The report of Street Commissioner Gallagher showed that bills had been paid for work in his department.

HE ASKED FOR DONALD.

And Much to His Surprise He Got the Answer He Sought.

The Nonesuch, Method, the famous Scottish divine, before visiting India, called on an old Highland woman in Glasgow, says a writer in the Scottish Amerikan. "When you going tae India," he said, "you'll be seein' my Donal' that went awa' tae India ten years ago an' never sent the scrapie o' a pen tae his mither since?"

"But, Rattie," said the doctor, "India is a big place, and how can I expect to find him?"

"Oh, but ye'll just be askin' for Donal'. What for no?"

Made to please the old woman, he promised to ask for Donald, and he conscientiously kept his word.

Some 8 months later, among Hottentots, although it seemed very unlikely looking for a needle in a haystack, but it is the unexpected that happens. At Dr. Macleod's station went up the Hogli river an outward bound vessel passed close by. A sailor was leaning over her bulwark, and, moved by a sudden impulse, the doctor shouted out:

"Are you Donald Mactavish?"

To his intense surprise the man answered, "Yes."

Dr. Macleod had only time to shout, "You're to write to your mother!" as the vessels drew apart. The result of his amazing meeting was that the old lady received a pasthant letter from her long neglected son.

POSTAGE STAMPS.

All Europe Laughed When Their Use Was First Suggested.

LOOKED UPON AS A HUGE JOKE

Rowland Hill Was Ridiculed For His Wild Postal Reform Idea, but He Persisted and Finally Won the Day For the Little Friend of Humanity.

Not since the days of the discovery of printing hat there come to human beings such a boon as was inaugurated in England on May 6, 1840, when the first postage stamps, the little friends of humanity, were used. That date in history marked the beginning of popular communication, placing within the reach of the poorest peasant the means of writing to relatives and friends. It put the people of the world into closer touch, it encouraged the art of writing as no other agency had done. But, greatest of all, it spread civilization.

Millions of people who today open their mail scarcely glance at the little stamp that adorns the wrapper. It has represents to them the cost of transporting and handling by the government.

Few indeed realize that the postage stamp is a modern contrivance, that the great aid to modern life has played a remarkable part in the world's development during the past three centuries of a century.

It was in 1840 that Rowland Hill, an English schoolmaster, stirred all Europe to laughter by declaring that James Chalmers and himself had devised a system whereby a two-ounce letter could be sent from London to Edinburgh for two cents and yet leave the government a fair profit on the transaction. At that time the fee was 64 cents for that distance for a single letter.

Such a radical idea as Hill's seemed ridiculous to the public, which had looked upon the sending of communications as an expensive luxury. And so the joke went around, and the poor laughed with the others at the idea of any means that would place them on a par with the aristocracy.

Hill persisted despite the ridicule. He worked diligently on his scheme, and when the time was ripe he flashed the project on parliament and the public. Hill offered proof that was incontrovertible that the actual cost of the government for carrying each letter averaged only a small fraction of a cent.

He proved that the expense of hiring men to figure out postal rates on the system then existing, based on distance and the number of sheets, was greater than the profit gained, and he urged the adoption of a flat rate for all letters under a certain weight, no matter how short or long a journey they were to make.

He criticized the idea of pasting a label on every letter, to show that the cost had been prepaid to the government, and pointed out that this would save the expense and time of collecting at point of delivery, which custom was then in general use.

The idea sprung by Hill and his friend, James Chalmers, met a hard reception at the first venue, of laughter had died away. The government was persuaded to make the experiment, however, and the public was asked to adopt the system. And so on May 6, 1840, postage stamps, "Mulready labels" as they were called at the time, were inaugurated. On the first day there was a peculiar picture of the Queen of Britain, Victoria, on the stamps. The postmaster was instantaneous. Within two years—all they were made—the Mulready labels were withdrawn and nearly twenty other stamps were issued in the United States in 1847, seven years after Great Britain had adopted it. Five and ten cent stamps were the first American postage stamps, and they carried the heads of Franklin and Washington. Four years later the rate of tax was lowered to 3 cents and in 1863 to 2 cents.

HE ASKED FOR DONALD.

And Made Is His Surprise He Got the Answer He Sought.

Dr. Norman Macleod, the famous Scottish divine, before visiting India, called on an old highland woman in Glasgow, says a writer in the Scottish American. "When ye gang to India," he said, "yell be sayin' to Donal' that weel awa' the Indian ye'rs ago an' never sant the scrapse of a pen to his mither since."

"But, Kattie," said the doctor, "India is a very big place, and how cud I expect to find him?"

"Oh, hut-tut! just be sayin' to Donal'. What for no?"

So, to please the old woman, he promised to say for Donald—and he conscientiously kept his word. At various ports he made inquiry among British ships, although it seemed very much like looking for a needle in a bale of hay. But it is the unexpected that happens. As Dr. Macleod's steamer went up the Hugli river an outward bound vessel passed close by. A sailor was leaning over her bulwark, and, moved by a sudden impulse, the doctor shouted out:

"Are you Donald Macleod?"

To his intense surprise the man answered, "Yes."

Dr. Macleod had only time to shout, "You're to write to your mother" as the vessels drew apart. The result of his amazing meeting was that the old lady received a pencilled letter from her long neglected son.

POSTAGE STAMPS.

All Europe Laughed When Their Use Was First Suggested.

LOOKED UPON AS A HUGE JOKE

Rowland Hill Was Ridiculed For His Wild Postal Reform Idea, but He Persisted and Finally Won the Day For the Little Friend of Humanity.

Not since the days of the discovery of printing had there come to human beings such a boon as was launched in England on May 6, 1840, when the first postage stamps, the little friends of humanity, were sent. That date in history marked the beginning of popular communication, placing within the reach of the poorest peasant the means of writing to relatives and friends. It put the people of the world into closer touch, it encouraged the art of writing as no other agency had done. But, greatest of all, it speeded civilization.

Millions of people who today open their mail scarcely glance at the little stamp that adorns the wrapper. It has grown so common that the cost of transporting and handling by the government.

Few indeed realize that the postage stamp is a modern contrivance, and that its great and its modern life has played a remarkable part in the world's development during the past three quarters of a century.

It was in 1840 that Rowland Hill, an English schoolmaster, astonished all Europe by laughing to declaring that James Chalmers and himself had devised a system whereby a two-ounce letter could be sent from London to Edinburgh for two cents and yet leave the government a fair profit on the transaction. At that time the fee was 54 cents for that distance for a two ounce letter.

Hill's second idea so Hill's second ridiculous to the public, which had looked upon the sending of communications as an expensive luxury. And so the joke went around, and the poor laughed with the others at the idea of any means that would place them on a par with the aristocracy.

Hill persisted despite the ridicule. He worked diligently on his schedule, and when the time was ripe he dashed the system on parliament and the public. Hill offered proof that was incontrovertible that the actual cost of the government for carrying each letter at present only a small fraction of a cent.

He proved that the expense of hiring men to figure out postal rates on the system then existing, based on distance and the number of sheets, was greater than the profit gained, and he urged the adoption of a flat rate for all letters under a certain weight, no matter how short or long a journey they were to make.

He articulated the idea of pasting a label on every letter, to show that the fee had been prepaid to the government, and pointed out that this would save the expense and time of collecting at point of delivery, which custom was then in general use.

The idea sprung by Hill and his friend, James Chalmers, aroused friends after the first years of laughter had died away. The government was pressed to the point of adopting the plan to adopt the system. And so on May 6, 1840, postage stamps, or "stamped labels" as they were called at the time, were issued. The first stamp was a twenty penny piece of the young Queen Victoria. There was no perforation in those days. Within the postage stamp came into use in the United States in 1847, seven years after Great Britain had adopted it. Five and ten cent stamps were the first issued by the United States, and they carried the heads of Franklin and Washington. Four years later the letter rate was lowered to 3 cents, and in 1883 to 2 cents.

Acting deck sergeant John A. Kilduff celebrated his annual vacation Thursday morning.

On or before this date also the designations by candidates for any office must be filed with the municipal clerk.

The first registry day is Tuesday, September 14. In municipalities of more than 5,000 population the Boards of Registry and Election will sit for their usual places. In municipalities of less than 5,000 inhabitants these boards will make the registry by a house-to-house canvass.

The house-to-house registration in municipalities of less than 5,000 inhabitants begins on September 16 and be completed on or before September 17. On September 21, also, the Election Boards in these municipalities shall sit for the purpose of revising and correcting the registry lists.

On or before noon of Wednesday, September 22, the Election Boards must mail to every voter a copy of the primary election ballot.

The State conventions of the Republicans and Democrats will be held in Trenton, Tuesday, October 5 and the call for these conventions will be issued by the respective State Committees on or before Thursday, September 30. GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

Failure of Railway Management in Canada

The Canadian government has recently assumed the operation of the National Transcontinental Railway extending from Moncton, N. B., to Winnipeg, Man., 1,804 miles, because the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, which had been expected to lease and operate the road on its completion, declined to do so. The refusal of the Grand Trunk Pacific was based on the ground that the road was "half finished," and that because of the enormous expense which the government had incurred in completion, it could not afford to lease the line and operate it at a rental of 3 per cent on its cost.

This marks the climax of the failure of the Canadian government as a railway builder, advocates of government ownership in this country have made much of the argument that governments can borrow money at lower rates than private companies are obliged to pay and thereby reduce the cost of transportation.

The experience with this Canadian railway show that while the government was able to raise capital more cheaply than a corporation, it spent so much more in building a mile of railway than a private corporation would have, that the total interest charges upon the money were far greater, and than they would have been if the line had been built by a private company.

Early this year the Canadian government took over the Grand Trunk Pacific railway for "operation" pending completion and high operation. This the company refused to do unless the figures on which the interest charge should be paid were reduced by the amount of the water items in the government's own commission. It is no claimed that the road was not completed even after the expenditure of such great sums of money in 10 years. It became necessary therefore, for the government to assume the business of operating so big a thing as gain to do on May 1, turning the management over to the government railways managing board, which has had charge of the intercolonial and other roads owned by the Canadian government. The government will also have to equip the lines, which will add many millions more to its cost.

It is not difficult to understand why the Grand Trunk Pacific should hesitate to take over the operation of a road which would cost it a rental of nearly $2,000 a mile in addition to operating expenses, even without the showing that the government's own commission has made of the waste in its construction. The line extends for almost its entire length through unsettled country, which will produce little local traffic. It must for a long time depend for revenue mainly on through traffic in competition with the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Northern, and it does no business in traffic centers except Winnipeg. Moreover, the Grand Trunk Pacific on its own line, which has only recently been opened for through traffic, is the present business depression, is not earning anything it could contribute to meet a deficit on the eastern division.

Nor is the prospect of operating the line an especially inviting one for the Canadian government. It has failed to earn operating expenses from its management of the Intercolonial. This road, which has long been owned and managed by the government, has a capitalization of $65,000 a mile, while the net capitalization of the Canadian private railways is only about $31,000. The Intercolonial's earnings in 1912 were $161,860 less than its operating expenses. Calculating interest on its capital cost at 3½ per cent, it had in that year a total deficit of $2,500,000 which had to be paid by the taxpayers of Canada.

RAMBLERS STILL ON THE JOB

The Ramblers will tackle the Wheatsuville team on Saturday afternoon. The game will be played off on the West End diamond. Thomas and Springer will be the batteries for the Ramblers. This will be the second game between these two teams. The Ramblers won the initial bout.

On Sunday the Ramblers will travel to Jonesville, where they will play the Woodlands on the Atlantic Oval. Hill and Springer will officiate for the local nine. The team and rooters will leave Rahway on the 12.40 p. m. trolley.

Thomas M. Ball of Pierce street has a few notable examples of lactiferne under hand at present. One is a fine specimen of Florida alligator, another is a large hawk from Dexter, Maine, and still another is a large and exceptionally well plumaged mallard duck which was shot in California. These are all being set up for Rahway people.

Women and Suffrage.

On October 19, 1915, the voters of New Jersey will have a chance to decide whether or not suffrage—the right to vote—shall be extended to women. It is an important question. Suffrage is better than the alternative. We will answer the question thoughtfully, without fear, without rancorous or socialistic motives, but with the knowledge that we should be on good cau come by—standing the vote to woman at the present time and will devote effort and influence (which are sadly needed by the Anti-Suffrage forces) to defeating the measure.

We realize that the Suffrage forces will at once accuse us of being influenced by selfish "interests," having some axe to grind or having some improper influence brought to bear upon us. We therefore state here and now that our attitude is opposed to the Suffrage cause is due solely to a careful study of the question, by a combination of the arguments advanced by both sides, and not but least by observation of the acts and utterances of those bearing the banners "Votes for Women" here and in other cities.

We cite a few of our observations. In the first place it is only a few women who demand the right to vote. The great mass of women are either indifferent or are opposed to the extension of the suffrage to the entire female sex. But their thoughts are drowned by the blatant shouts of militant suffragettes clamoring for their "rights." Surely in any well ordered community of intelligent human beings it should be ascertained before making such a radical change in the vital power that those upon whom this invertant privilege would be conferred are substantially in accord in their desire for such.

We refer to horse in mind too, that what the Suffragettes wish is not to extend the vote to those women who can show themselves qualified to receive it but to ALL women regardless of experience, desire or ability to employ it intelligently or carefully.

Social and political conditions in this and all other civilized countries the world over today are in a serious, disrupted and uncertain state. The future is dark and no man knowth what the morrow will bring forth. It is not a time to make radical changes or to inject into our voting power a mass of inexperienced amateurs ex-parte persons.

It is undeniable that many men now exercising the right to vote are unfit for that privilege and perhaps dangerous. But before devoting some measure to eliminate that element it is wise, or is it right to make the electorate twice as large by injecting into it those who have yet to show by actual experience and knowledge of worldly things that they can improve affairs?

Before this city, this state and this nation today are many delicate problems of finance, of governance, of improvement—problems which require the keenest, most capable minds of the age. It has yet to be shown that the votes of women will solve these problems—make better or quicker. Furthermore it should be remembered that for centuries woman's place has been the home and the great majority of women have had no first hand knowledge of the intricacies of modern business and the numberless incidents of life outside the home which are encountered hourly and daily by men in their work and life. It therefore seems far from prudent or wise to submit to an inexperienced body of human beings such problems for intelligent and not impulsive solution.

Woman has privileges in the eyes of the law over man. Properly so. Woman is free from jury duty and by necessity or "hearing" are she has not been subjected to the rough and tumble of life and business. Woman has been shielded from the world. Woman has been and is the cultured, refined, influence in home and in other circles.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

Julius Kruttschnitt On the Business Pond

Mr. Julius Kruttschnitt was asked to give his views on the business outlook of the ballon from the railroad standpoint said in part:

"Business, as today organized, may be likened to a great pond, in which numerous wares are started, one after another, by the purchases and sales of the many individuals and companies, these wares spreading in all directions, crossing and recrossing until their force is spent.

"Everybody appreciates what would happen if a great bowider like the European war should suddenly be dropped into the business pond, but not everybody appreciates the effect of the slackening of activity at some important center of wave force. The effect of a reduction in the purchasing power of farmers, following a season of bad crops, is generally understood. But how about the purchasing power of the great transportation industry? With the steady march of operating expenses upon revenues, without corresponding increases in railway charges, the railways have been driven to curtail all expenditures, and even stop entirely many customary purchases for extending and improving their facilities. The business pond is too big and its wave activity too complex for any one to place, to say that this is the sole cause of the present quiescent state of the surface, but it unquestionably is a cause of the greatest importance. How important this cause will appear from the amount of railway expenditures, it may be stated, for example, the year 1913, the last for which complete figures are available. In that year the railroads spent $3,170,000,000 in expenditures for operation, of which $1,197,000,000 was for wages and salaries; $1,473,000,000 for materials, they spent $456,000,000 for interest, $150,000,000 for dividends, and $290,000,000 for new tracks, locomotives and cars, or for additions or betterments to property already in existence. The total expenditures for 1913 amounted, therefore, to about $3,610,000,000.

"Some details of railway purchases of materials and supplies for 1913 are as follows: Purchases of lumber, $75,000,000; for fuel, $100,000,000; for rails, $40,000,000; for ties, $40,000,000; for locomotives, $40,000,000; for car repairs, $40,000,000; for station supplies, $20,000,000; for signals, $10,000,000; for rails, ties and other materials for repairing and renewing track, $100,000,000. It should be noted that the total expenditures of actual purchases cover only that part of the total which is needed to keep the railway plant in the minimum of working condition. Some abundant traffic requires not only repair in higher and more expensive form, but the addition of new facilities to the public facilities.

"A question deserving thoughtful attention is if railways should be allowed a slight increase in charges and relief from costly restrictions upon profits of operation, would not the increased buying power that would be precipitated by the addition to their available revenues agitate the business pond to a desirable degree of wave activity?"

What the Records Show in Matter of Remedial Labor Laws

The following facts are taken from the Monthly Review of the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics issued July 1912. They are reform measures that have been passed by the legislature bodies of the different States during this current year, and plainly show how far to advance the male suffrage States are over the Equal Suffrage States in these remedial laws affecting woman and children.

The States are taken in alphabetical order, first the male and afterwards the Equal Suffrage States.

The Alabama Legislature enacted a more effective law relating to child labor, covering all occupations. The child labor law provides for the employment of children between the ages of 14 and 16 years, inclusive, in any occupation except those specifically prohibited, and fixing a minimum wage for girls of not less than $3 per week for those of six months experience.

The Delaware Legislature established a law compelling to have charge of the appointment of the woman and child labor inspectors.

The Illinois Legislature enacted a compulsory education law, strengthened the child labor law of the State and provided for a commission on the subject of mother's pensions.

A new child labor law passed its the hours of labor of children under 16 to 8 per day, and regulates street trades. Semi-annual "Week" are abolished.

In Maine, new laws relating to the hours of labor of women and children, and the employment of children in canneries. Ex-fire chief Gin. Lanser claims the title of champion at prayer, but he is likely to be challenged soon.

The membership roll will be closed on Tuesday night, when the regular weekly meeting will take place.

J. J. McCarter is making efforts to arrange for a duck pin tournament, to be pulled off on his alleys in Main street. Anyone desiring to practice will have heavy artillery to get down to work. All the old timers are going to, but with that baby arm, but only the best of them are making anything like a showing, and they are not in the ring. The best score up-to-date with one ball, was by George Nolan, 57.

The Y. M. C. A. new alleys will be opened in a few weeks, and when ready for the first ball to be thrown down the chutes, they will be second to none in the county that are open to all bowlers. Of course the best alleys in the city and perhaps in the State are those at the Elderan Club, but the Y. M. C. A. will have a pair of alleys that will be true.

It is the intention of the Y. M. C. A. to make an effort to carry out a duck pin tournament as a sort of "interlude between the outdoor and indoor season. The alleys will be cool enough for use in September, even if a few warm days come along, and practice with the lighter ball will be a good an advantage when the regular tournaments start.

Pride of Union Council No. 47, Daughters of Liberty, had only regular business at the meeting last night. Refreshments and a social hour were enjoyed afterwards. Nelson P. Brower has been appointed doorkeeper for the council, by the State Councilor.

PLAN GROUP MEETINGS

A delegation of officers and members from each of the Royal Arcanum councils in this district met last night at Elizabeth with Union Council No. 1607, R. A., in Odd Fellows hall, Cherry street and made all arrangements for a series of group of "get together" meetings which will be held during the month of September.

These meetings will be of both a business and social character, and will be held in rotation at each council's lodge room. The first meeting will be held with Assembly Council No. 1607 of this city, on October 7.

The second meeting will be held with Lincoln Council, No. 1015 of New Brunswick, on November 12. The third will be held with Woodbridge Council of Woodbridge, on December 6. The fourth will be held with Metuchen Council No. 1677, of Metuchen, on January 10. The fifth will be with Middlesex Council No. 1100 of Perth Amboy, on February 7, and the sixth will be with Rahway Council (formerly Carteret Council) No. 884, of Rahway, on March 7.

In addition to the members and officers of Assembly Council who were present at the meeting last night were Past Grand Regent Charles Herring of Resolute Council of Elizabeth; Arthur Harder of Adelphia Council No. 1015, New Brunswick; Deputy Supreme Regent F. M. Wood of Elizabeth Council No. 170, Supervising Deputy Robert Willmont and committee on law; Thomas M. Barr of Metuchen Council No. 1677; L. J. Hope, O. Larsen and John Gago of Middlesex Council 1100; John Ferguson of Perth Amboy; and M. Challiet and J. Rose of Rahway Council No. 884.

EMPIRE THEATRE

"The Commuters", which ran for many months at the Hudson Theatre, New York City, has been selected as the opening play of the James Keneddy Co. for their weeks engagement at the Empire Theatre, Rahway. This play by Jaber Forbes was not a hitter of its success to the fact that it is clean and wholesome in theme and treatment. It is in four acts and deals with Larry and Betty Brice suburbanites, and Sammy Fletcher a New York bachelor friend of Larry's who has been the boon companion of Brice. The opening scene where Larry is about to miss his train is a laughable bit, especially to those who have had similar experiences. James Kennedy will be seen as Sammy Fletcher and during the action of the play will introduce his famous specialty. Popular prices will prevail.

For the Children

Wild Lamb Which Looks Like Its Tame Relatives.

Nearly every child has seen at one time or another the gentle little lamb which frolics so merrily in the pastures with its mother. But here is a wild lamb that was captured in the mountains of Spain and which is said by its relatives to be a member of the family from which our domestic sheep are descended. A beautiful and innocent little creature it is and differs slightly from the playful little fellows we all know so well. This lambkin is said to be of the Museum family, which has its origin, so far as history is known, in southern Europe. Whether this is true or not, the fact remains that any lamb, whether it be wild or tame, which works up into a playful little animal to be a baby member of the family is a very wild animal. When wild animals are treated kindly they soon become tame and love those who are gentle with them.

Amusements

You know there are many things always mentioned together, such as "Jack and Gill", "Ham and the Lamb," "Stars and Stripes," and so on. A pleasant little game has been based on this and plays itself quite comfortably in a corner of a book. Assuming that twenty guests are expected to present, it is easy to prepare twenty sheets of paper, on which the first half of a well known phrase is written, the guests being required to complete them and so effect a reconciliation.

The following list of twenty will illustrate the idea. The left-hand column of each sentence appearing only on the key, which the hostess will have to hand the competition is closed to correct papers.

A prize may be given to the person with the most correct sentences:

1. Ancient and modern
2. Bacon and eggs
3. Bell and book
4. The lion and the lamb
5. Cakes and ale
6. Darby and Joan
7. Dots and dashes
8. Go further and fare worse
9. Jack and Jill
10. Jacky and Gill
11. Jack and Jill
12. David and Goliath
13. Hide and seek
14. Knife and fork
15. Bat and ball
16. Head and tail
17. Knife and fork
18. Ups and downs

Children have a good time in Japan. They are blessed by inheritance with a cheerful nature that makes them lovably, yet warmly; they are out of doors as much as they can be, and their homes there is so little furniture they never stumble over it, and are never warned against crawling up on the sacred mountains by tumbling into the brie-a-brac. The houses are always open to visitors, even in "cold weather." They are built dovetailed together, no "nails being used, and are mounted on wooden pillars, so that when an earthquake occurs they will not tumble down, but merely shake and settle down again.

SPECIAL TRIPS TO FAIR

That the attendance at the San Francisco Exposition is increasing daily and shows every indication of continuing so is the statement of J. J. Burke, traffic manager of the Trans-Continental Tourist Company, whose offices are at 140 Broad street, Newark.

Mr. Burke has just returned from California, having been conducting a large party of Newarkers and the Philadelphia Elks through the Golden West. He says that July was unusually quiet in the Golden West on account of school vacations, and the fact that the Elks and Shriners held their annual conventions during July. September will probably find the attendance far greater than August.

"You see," said Mr. Burke, "the people who visited California during the summer months did not choose that period for such visiting thinking that the heat then would be too great. They had to go then on account of their vacations being limited to those months. Yuba-City director of the Trans-Continental Tourist Company, that September and October are the ideal months in the Golden West. I think we have more people booked down, you're bound to land somewhere."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Concerning Suffrage

Isn't it a wiser use of public money to help keep people out of jail than to help put them in?

That is what the legislature was thinking in equal suffrage California when on May 11 it authorized any county to employ a public defender as well as a public prosecutor.

It was Alice Chittenden, anti-Suffrage leader, who said that women were too ignorant of municipal finance to be safely intrusted with the municipal vote.

"It is to be hoped," said a civil service examiner of New York city recently, "that when we get the Bureau of Municipal Research to be adjusted that one department will not pay $1800 for what another department pays $300." It is difficult to see just how women could do worse.

In equal suffrage Norway a law was recently enacted eliminating the disabilities of illegitimate children. The right to the father's name, the right to inherit his property, the right to be supported by him; this justice was accorded to the illegitimate child, not in New York where men alone vote, but in Norway where mothers vote as well.

"Talking about 'mother's day,'" said the Indiana Times, "why not make election day mother's as well as father's day?"

FEES OF LAWYERS

Modern Legal Lights Would Scorn Webster's Retainers.

FORTUNES IN SINGLE CASES.

Many of the Leaders of the Bar of Today Receive Far One Piece of Work Ten Times the Amount the Great Senator Made in a Year.

What is the biggest fee ever paid a lawyer?

There is nothing certain about it, but it is the opinion of some of Boston's most widely known lawyers that Robert M. Morse has received the largest fee ever paid to a Boston lawyer.

In the famous Wentworth will case of a dozen or so years ago he is reputed to have been paid $250,000, while on the opposing side Samuel J. Elder and John H. Long are generally credited with having added $100,000 each to their bank accounts.

Another fee for that almost singular belief is now awarded by the courts of Massachusetts to Sherman L. Whipple in the Bay State tax litigation, wherein he is credited with having got $200,000, although he said it did not all go to him.

There is a tremendous difference between the fees which lawyers receive today and those which the legal lights of a generation ago were paid.

Daniel Webster is as good an illustration of this as any one, and Samuel J. Elder is authority for the statement that Webster's best year netted him only $15,000.

"I have seen Webster's books," Mr. Elder said, "and there was not a year that he earned more than $15,000, usually much less."

It has often been said that the great senator from Massachusetts did not average $10,000 a year, and yet today a man with his abilities could and someone who did not earn half a million dollars a year would have only himself to blame.

Horace Choate, a very great lawyer in his day, practiced more than Webster.

His average receipts from 1840 to 1852, inclusive, were nearly $18,000 yearly.

The largest receipts in a single year during that period were a little more than twenty-two-thousand-dollars, and his smallest $15,000. His largest single fee was $2,000, and he had four more of the same amount. Once he had a retainer fee of $1,500. Choate was probably the equal in eloquence and learning of any lawyer living today.

Hundreds of men at the Illinois bar was another whose low charges have caused no critical comment. Lincoln received two or three fees of $50 each. Yet facts were usually entered in his memoirs took payment in trade.

The largest fee he ever received was earned from the Illinois Central railroad, the Illinois corporation in question and he had to sue to collect it. Today he would get $50,000 or $100,000 for the same work.

Coming down to our present day, it is said that the late James B. Dill received $1,500,000 for his services in connection with the formation of the United States steel trust.

William H. Taft received $50,000 for his work in breaking the will of Henry H. Platt.

John H. Parsons' work in connection with the formation of the sugar trust is said to have netted him $250,000.

Joseph H. Choate received many enormous fees. He is said to have been paid $500,000 for his argument before the United States supreme court successfully attacking the constitutionality of the income tax. His work for the United States Machinery company also netted him large fees.

Joseph Choate's law practice netted at least one fee of three-quarters of a million dollars with the consent of both parties and with the approval of the court. Another fee of a quarter of a million dollars is also credited to him.

FITTING FOR CITIZENSHIP

Bureau of Naturalization Finds Problem in Handling Aliens

Nearly 2,500,000 foreigners have asked for citizenship during the first eight and three-quarter years of Federal supervision of the Naturalization Law, according to a statement issued by the Bureau of Naturalization of the Department of Labor. Nearly 1,750,000 of these have declared their intention or taken out their first papers. Something over 750,000 have asked for final papers, and of these about 610,000 have been admitted to citizenship. During the same period upward of 35,000 foreigners have been refused naturalization to citizenship, over one half of these because of mental and moral outlines.

While the foregoing figures indicate a large number coming forward for citizenship, says the bureau, the number does not appear relatively very large when it is known that in 1910 there were nearly 14,000,000 foreigners in this country; that of this number 9,000,000 were not citizens, and that the foreign body has been increased nearly 1,000,000 annually since then.

Many foreigners who have taken out their papers have retained their allegiance to the sovereignty of their birth, and, as it appears many of these are ready to respond to the call of these sovereignties. Many have gone back who had declared their intention. Some of them afterward returned and presented themselves for admission. Judges of the naturalization courts have said that such absence from this country in the armies and fighting under their native allegiance broke the continuity of residence for naturalization purposes, and denied their applications.

Among the approximately 14,000,000 foreign born residents, 7,852,987 are classed as illiterate. These are the natural prey of the designing and scheming foreigners and natives as well at every turn. They compel them to pay tribute, both in cash and blood, for every service, both real and imagined, and in the gratification of their desires, however unscrupulous or unnatural. For years this condition has been studied by the Bureau of Naturalization in the application to the administration of law. It is safe to say that although 610,000 foreigners have been refused citizenship because of mental and moral unfitness, at least that many have been admitted in spite of these deficiencies during the period of federal supervision. The courts have been reluctant to refuse citizenship to a candidate, even though he be ignorant of our institutions or of the privileges conferred upon him. Especially is this so where there are no facilities offered by the cities and towns where the petitioners live for overcoming these defects. In many places the public schools have, under the inspiration of the bureau, opened their doors to the foreigner and taught him the duties of citizenship, and in these places the courts have refused citizenship unless the candidates could come up to the higher standard brought about by Federal supervision. These have been tried out and with success in various localities throughout the country. There is scarcely a State that does not now have citizenship classes.

Last winter the bureau brought to the attention of the Mayor of Philadelphia the fact that about 4,000 petitions for naturalization would be heard during the spring months, and that approximately 2,500 new citizens would be made at that time in the persons of the candidates and their wives and children. This resulted in the first reception extended by any municipality to citizens of foreign birth.

The law permits an illiterate alien to declare his intention, and in from two to five years he is eligible to petition for naturalization. During that period nothing has been done to help his claim except in a meagre way. The bureau has been the only Government agency to extend him the helping hand. It has now perfected plans for the helping hand to be extended to the nearly half a million foreigners who each year ask for citizenship.

During the last year over 225,000 foreigners declared their intention and petitioned for naturalization. This is the highest-water mark since Federal supervision. The Federal census shows that the foreign population is many times greater than the number who come forward for citizenship; in many States the proportion of candidates for citizenship is at the lowest ebb; in no State does it exceed 50 per cent., while in some States it is as low as 3 per cent. This is true of the number of foreigners who take out their first papers and those who become citizens. In some States there are more foreigners living outside of the large cities than in them and yet the largest number of candidates for citizenship are found among those living in the cities. In many parts of the country there have been more candidates admitted to citizenship in given localities than is represented by the entire number of registered voters. In many places they represent a majority of those of voting age. A goodly percentage of the candidates for first papers come from the early arrival immigrants. Many who are admitted to citizenship are unable to inscribe their names in the English language, but do so in foreign characters unintelligible to the American born. Many who are admitted to citizenship have only the most meagre ability to speak our tongue and but slight ability to comprehend it.

HIGH VELOCITY STARS.

Their Fearful Rate of Speed in Space is Somewhat Puzzling.

The average velocity of stars ranges from about six kilometers, of between three and four miles, per second for "young" stars to about thirty kilometers per second for "old" ones. But notable exceptions occur. At Mount Wilson solar observatory of the Carnegie institution, some stars have been found to move with velocities of 141, 180, 179, 228, 256 and even 320 kilometers per second, the highest speed yet known.

These high velocity stars are sometimes described as runaways because they seem to be quite beyond the control of the gravitational power of the universe. At their speed the attraction of the entire known stellar system would be wholly insufficient to check the stars course through space.

The astronomer, Simon Newcomb, once calculated that the maximum velocity attained by a body starting with velocity zero at an infinite distance and passing through a sidereal system containing 100,000,000 stars such fire times as massive as our sun and distributed throughout a spherical space of equal extent cannot exceed 40 kilometers per second. Yet the star "Groombridge 1830" has a speed nearly nine times this value, and the massive star Arcturus has a speed probably four times this value.

Speculation concerning the their magnitudes to the gravitation of the system the wonders of astronomy would be to be kept exactly within that, assumed by the calculation of Simon Newcomb. Baltimore Sun.

The Colossus of Rhodes.

The remains of the Colossus of Rhodes have been dispersed beyond recovery by the earthquake of Friday. It stood for little more than half a century, from 292 B. C. to 224 B. C., when it was overthrown by an earthquake. The Rhodians raised their magnificent statue out of the proceeds of the siege of Rhodes by the Greeks, and they divided the total among themselves, asserting that the oracle of Delphi had ordered them to set it up again. So there the ruin lay until 672 A. D., when the Saracens sold it to a Jewish merchant, who loaded 900 camels and went away—literally with the bronze.—London Spectator.

DO YOUR VERY BEST.

Be Earnest and Thorough and You Are Bound to Succeed.

There is a feature of Dickens' character which cannot be too often or too seriously insisted upon, and that is the intense earnestness and thoroughness in everything he did. He said to the young men:

"My dear boy, do everything at your best. If you do that neither I nor anyone else can find fault with you, even if you fail. For myself, I can honestly say that I have taken as great pains with the smallest thing I ever did as with the biggest."

In giving advice to a young author he said on one occasion:

"If you want your public to believe in what you write you must believe in it yourself. When I am describing a scene I can be distinctly see what I am describing as I can see you now. So real are my characters to me that on one occasion I had fixed upon the house which one of them was to purchase. The character, however, got hold of me and made me do exactly the opposite to what I had intended, but I was so sure that he was right and I was wrong that I let him have his own way."

Whatever he did either in work or at play he always gave of his very best. He hated slovenly work and hated any sort of shape or form.—Harper's Weekly.

This Genius Whistler.

Of Whistler Lady Burnham in her "Recollections of Three Years" tells this: "He was a genius and had all the charms and qualities of one. To him everything was a joke, the subject of a lecture, the picture had to undergo a set of penalties was what he devised for the sake of a laugh. He was always late for dinner, arranging the immortal work of art, he said, for the proper place to be come into the room, with absolutely no warning of his arrival, the chuckling laugh would be heard all over the house, he would stand right and left into the joints of the armor of those who were standing by him. It was great surprise and almost a shock when he appeared as a benedict."

The Limit.

"I shall never speak to her again as long as I live."

"But you've said that often before."

"I know, but what else is there to do when a woman deliberately lies to you as she makes me?"—Detroit Free Press.

Increase in Population Increases Salaries of County Officers

While it was stated at first that Union county's growth in population above 150,000, as shown by the recent state census, would result in increases in salaries for only Prosecutor Stelz, Judge Connolly and Assistant Prosecutor O'Connor, it was learned today that members of the County Board of Freeholders will also be affected.

According to the law, tax commissioners in counties having more than 150,000 shall be paid salaries of $1,000 each. Members of the Union county board are now receiving $1,500 a year each. Those to be affected by the increase will be Commissioners Lloyd Thompson, the chairman, and William S. Coddington, both of Plainfield, and John J. Collins of Elizabeth.

None of the increases will be payable until Governor Fielder promulgates the census, which he is not expected to do until about the first of next year. The Census figures have to be gone over and certified by Secretary of State Lansing to the Governor, as John says any action.

In any event it is certain that the tax board members will receive the increased salaries for the balance of the coming session of the Legislature, which adjourns early in December. Only the state and no appropriation was made by the last Legislature for such a contingency. However, it is usually the practice for the legislature body to appropriate a sufficient sum to pay the increases from the date of the promulgation of the census.

The salaries of the other three officials, who will get increases, are paid by the county, so that they will not be affected in the same way.

FUNERAL OF MRS. WALKER

The funeral of Mrs. Beatrice Walker who died in the Elizabeth General Hospital on Tuesday, was held from her late residence, 52 Cherry street, yesterday afternoon. Rev. R. W. Wimer rector of Holy Comforter church officiated. The interment was in Rahway cemetery.

Mrs. Walker who was 30 years of age was married less than a year ago. She is survived by her husband, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sully of 23 Leesville avenue, one brother, Austin Sully of New York and another brother, Horace Sully of Detroit, Mich.

WILL KEEP AWAY FROM POLLS

Anti-Suffragists Do Not Want to Be Watchers at October Election

Miss Clara Vesin, of Elizabeth, who is the chairman of the legislative committee of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, says that the idea of women watchers at the polls on October 19, the day of the special election on the three proposed amendments to the state Constitution, is obnoxious to anti-suffragists and that they will leave it to the men to see that justice is done.

The law providing for women watchers at the polls is similar to that in use in other states where equal suffrage amendments have come before the voters, and it extends to the proponents and opponents the customary watching privileges at the polling districts.

Judge Connolly, of the Court of Common Pleas, has fixed August 24 as the day upon which will be drawn members of the district boards of election and registry. They will be chosen by lot in open court from the civil service list of eligibles.

THE PUBLIC MARKET

Mr. A. L. Chance of the New Jersey Department of Conservation states that the question of public markets is one that should have the serious consideration of those who would see some solution to the high cost of living. Anything that can induce closer intercourse between the producer and the consumer is of the most vital importance to the nation at large and thickly populated communities in particular. The public market is intended to foster these very conditions. In other words, it is intended to promote a cheaper and more satisfactory system of food stuff distribution.

A public market place should encourage and promote direct buying from the producer by the housewife. The habit of attending market places and personally selecting the required goods cannot help but teach the value and quality of whole-and-satisfactory food stuffs. A market also should encourage farmers to sell direct to housewives, an object which is too frequently entirely overlooked in considering the establishment. Many of the best vegetable growers have no inclination to sell in small quantities. It is extremely doubtful whether extensive growers will ever find it profitable. Modern farming has many and most trying complications to take up the farmer's mind. Labor is unsatisfactory and needs constant direction. A farmer's real place is on the farm. However, present methods of selling are often so unsatisfactory for small growers that a public market place should offer many advantages to them. The market place facilities are brought into closer contact with each other and their various ways of preparing, grading and packing. Competition develops better methods and the farmer sees just what the consumers want. This contact with each other and between producer and consumer cannot be overvalued.

MILK LARGEST MORTGAGE

Probably the biggest mortgage in milk ever filed in Union county Register Smith's office was recorded there yesterday afternoon from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to the Guaranty Trust Company and William N. Kly, trustees, of Philadelphia. The mortgage is a copy of the original, which is on file in Philadelphia, and is printed in book form, containing 111 pages. The cost of recording the instrument here amounted to $45 as the document contained 450 folios of 100 words each, which are charged for at the rate of ten cents for each folio.

The mortgage is also said to be the largest ever recorded here so far as financial values are concerned. It is known as a "General Mortgage," which was authorized at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the railroad company on June 15, to secure bonds to be designated as general mortgage bonds, the authorized total issue of which at any one time is limited to the aggregate par value of the outstanding paid-up capital stock of the railroad.

The recording of the instrument in this county is coincident with the filing of similar copies wherever the company owns property, as the mortgage covers practically all the railroad holdings. It is set forth in the instrument that the proceeds of a bond issue to be known as "Series A" will be devoted to the purpose of retiring twenty-year convertible three and one-half per cent. gold bonds, due October 1, of which $59,918,000 was outstanding at the date of the indenture. Another section provides for a bond issue of $165,185,000 to retire other previous bond issues of the Pennsylvania Railroad and its subsidiary lines.

The proceeds of the balance of the bond issue, up to the limit of the aggregate paid-up capital stock, are to be devoted to the general improvement of the railroad's lines, the purchase of new rolling stock, erection of new stations, etc. Under this head are included the proposed improvements in this city.

Naval Gunners' Pay.

The chief gunners in the United States navy receive $1,600 a year; the gunner's mates of the first class, $40 per month; second class, $36; third class, $30. A seaman gunner is paid $30 per month. An electrician 1st is first-class petty officer, $36; second class, $40; third class, $30, while the chief electrician is paid $60 per month.

Domestic Peace and Felicity

is generally a result of mutual consideration of tastes and comforts. Many disorders are traceable to a disregard of this principle.

For instance, practically every man likes his bottle of beer. He would often rather drink it at home than outside.

The wise wife will note the pleasure with which he greets its appearance on the table and be solicitous of its wholesome qualities.

Moreover, his nature benefits so that he becomes more agreeable and considerate.

Incidentally, the "better half" should improve her personal condition and temper as the result of sharing with him a bottle or two of a beer of unusual merit.

One cannot be safer than in ordering Schlitz's Beer, made in a plant famous for eighty years for the purity of its malt beverages. It savors of Flavor.

VOL. V. SERIAL NO. 613. RAHWAY, UNION COUNTY, N. J., TUESDAY AFTERNOON, AUGUST 24, 1915. EIGHT PAGES PRICE TWO CENTS

LOSES FIRST GAME OF SEASON

Brighton A. C. of Brooklyn, Defeats Rahway Baseball Club 1 to 0.

POOR JUDGMENT LOSES GAME IN FIFTH

Failure to hit the ball at opportune time and poor fielding judgment in the fifth inning lost the game and the first defeat of the season for the Rahway Baseball Club by the Brighton A. C. of Brooklyn, by the score of 1 to 0, at Brighton Park on Saturday afternoon. Although Rahway outbatted their opponents their hits were not so timely. Olde pitched well, but not as superbly as he had many other times this season. Deutsch, the Brighton boatman, was fully as good as the home twirler and with the exception of the eighth inning kept the hits well scattered, in fact, the locals did not get a hit until the fifth inning.

There was a high wind blowing throughout the game and it considerably favored the pitchers shortening all of the fly balls by the batsmen of both sides and gave the fielders some difficulty in handling fly balls. On the whole the fielding was the best seen on the local grounds this season. The outfields of both sides made some brilliant catches, Boehner excelling with a sensational one-hand catch after falling down.

For the first three innings it was almost one, two, three for the two teams but in the fourth both sides got a number on the bases, but could not send him around the circuit.

In the initial inning the visitors were retired on flies. W. Mohr popped up a high one which Tommy Mullen smothered, while Boehner made magnificent catches of the next two flies by Schmitz and Conover. In Rahway's half of the opening session Miller filed out to Klein at first base; Brooks to Colclough in left field. Capt. Jim Davis managed to get a hold on his grounder to Schultz, who made a wild throw. Davis was thrown out by Schultz.

The second session was similar to the first. Klein filed out to Brooks; G. Mohr hit a fast grounder to Brooks and was out at first. Neison filed out to Erxleben. In Rahway's second inning Miller filed out to W. Mohr in center field and Boettner to Nelson in right field. Jim Davis reached first on a fielder's choice to first baseman Klein, who threw wild and Davis stole second. Davis scored on a long fly to Brooks, the ball being caught by Schultz, who made a wild throw. Davis was thrown out by Schultz.

The second session was similar to the first. Klein filed out to Brooks; G. Mohr hit a fast grounder to Brooks and was out at first. Nelson filed out to Erxleben. In Rahway's second inning Miller filed out to W. Mohr in center field and Boettner to Nelson in right field. Jim Davis reached first on a fielder's choice to first baseman Klein, who threw wild and Davis stole second. Davis scored on a long fly to Brooks, the ball being caught by Schultz, who made a wild throw. Davis was thrown out by Schultz.

The third inning was very propitious for the visitors, Brooks distances for the home nine. G. Mohr was thrown out at first on a grounder to Durand. Neison was hit by a pitched ball and stole second when Deutsch sent a grounder between first and second bases. Capitain Dave Robertson came to the plate and sent a long fly to the ball and Olde and Brooks failed to cover it long, both runners tagging their bases. Erxleben flied out to Olde and the latter made a miserable throw to Durand to head off Nelson. Durand got the ball on the bound, but Nelson had overrun the base and was tagged by Durand before he could get back. Deutsch went to second on the play and Erxleben was safe on Durand's error. Deutsch scored on a bad right field and Deutsch scored the only run of the game. W. Mohr went out at first on a grounder to Olde.

In Rahway's half of the fifth Boettner made a strong hit for Rahway. He singled to left field and then registered the only stolen base of the game, being assisted by a wild throw to second. With a runner on second the next three batters could not drive him home. Miller struck out first. Elmer Armstrong to Lesinger, Durand to W. Mohr and Olde to Brooks.

STRONGEST TEAM OF SEASON

Probably the strongest team that will face the Rahway Baseball Club this season will be at Riverside Park next Saturday afternoon in the form of the Inwood Baseball Club of the National Biscuit Company, who will have several ex-leaguers and two Cuban players in their lineup. The two Cuban players are Perez, shortstop and Gonzales, pitcher, both formerly of the Havana Reds. Another twirler is Kalisher, formerly of the Yetch Albany team in the Atlantic League, and either of these hommes may do the twirling. F. Smith, catcher, formerly of the New York Yankees, is another star slated for Saturday's game. Inwood will act as capitals for the home team, the line-up and batting order of the team will be as follows: White, second base; Wallstein, third base; Houn, center field; J. Smith, right field; F. Smith, catcher; Twomey, first base; Kalisher or Gonzales, pitcher. Owing to their previous appearances in this city the line-ups are one of the most popular organizations that have visited this city and one of the largest crowds of the season is anticipated next Saturday.

GRUENERS CANDIDATE

Announcement was made yesterday by former Freeholder A. H. Gruener, of Jaques avenue, that he would again enter the race for the Senate. Mr. Gruener, who has been seriously ill, is steadily improving in health and will be about again in a short time. Mr. Gruener's efficient service on the county board will make him a strong candidate at the approaching primary election. His work along many lines for the betterment of the city and its various institutions won him many friends who will undoubtedly support him at the polls. He is a strong Republican. There is evidently no dearth of candidates in the Republican ranks. Freeholder William H. Hamilton, former Councilman Edwin T. Valentine, George E. White and Clifford B. Gehring having already announced their candidacy.

NARROW ESCAPE

There was a narrow escape from a serious accident in Irving street, near the corner of Central avenue on Monday afternoon, when Glenn Dunkell, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Dunkell, of 102 Cherry street, was run down by a tandem bicycle ridden by George Weber, of Cherry street, and John Kleiling, of Central avenue. Young Dunkell had just alighted from a trolley car when the tandem approached him. He was considerably bruised about his right hip. Weber and Kleiling were thrown from the tandem upon the hard pavement. Weber received bruises on the arms and limbs, while Kleiling was bruised on the chest and hip.

SURPRISE PARTY

Miss Helen Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hughes of 52 East Milton avenue, was tendered a pleasant surprise party by a company of young folks on Wednesday evening. Various games, vocal and instrumental music and refreshments made the time pass quickly. Among those present were: The Misses Gladys Crowell, Hilda Tomer, Jessie Hoffman, Margaret Terrill, Lucy Bell, Helen Avery, Elizabeth McMichael, Lois Melbourne, Alice and Hilda Jones, Helen Hughes, Herbert Melbourne, Addison Mundy, Raymond Avery, Fred C. Crowell, George Crowell and Frederick Crowell.

ENGLISH SPEAKER MAKES A HIT

At the open air suffrage meeting Friday night, at the corner of Main and Lewis streets, Miss Violet Dean, of England, made a distinct hit. Miss Dean, who hails from Dunstable, one of the pottery district, told succinctly of home conditions there as she found them before the outbreak of the European war, and carried with her, during her few minutes narration, her audience with her.

The meeting on Saturday night at the corner of Main and Lewis streets was well attended and Mrs. Linda Sullivan Cherchill had a large crowd to listen to her. At any rate Miss Anna Campbell of Short Hills, N. J., and Miss Violet Dean also spoke.

NEW INSURANCE RATE

A new fire insurance rate will be put into effect in Rahway, Monday, September 1, 1915, providing a new rate of insurance on parcel post matter as follows: Fourth class or parcel post mail may be insured against loss or damage contributed to its actual value, but not to exceed $5 in any one case, on payment of a fee of three cents to-exceed $25 on payment of a fee of five cents; not to exceed $50 on payment of a fee of ten cents; or not to exceed $100 on payment of a fee of twenty-five cents. In addition to the postage both to be prepaid by stamps affixed.

DIVERSITY OF POLICE CASES

Charles Chalconas, of 86 Irving Street, Fined $50 for Gambling

OTHER OFFENDERS BEFORE JUDGE RIBLETT

Upon charges of gambling, Charles Chalconas, of 86 Irving street, was arraigned before Judge M. W. Riblett in police court today and pleaded guilty. A fine of $50 was imposed upon the defendant. The complainant was Alice Dexter, wife of Charles Dexter, of Leesville avenue, whose house was destroyed by fire on August 8. The complaint did not appear in court. The papers were served by Detective Sergeant George Conger and Sergeant James Thompson.

According to remarks made by the various parties concerned in the case Dexter lost $150 at the Chalconas establishment, but the proprietor, it is said, claims the loss was only $22. It is further said by those familiar with the case that Dexter is still several hundred dollars ahead of the game for the period that the alleged gambling took place. At any rate the complaint could hardly be due without a murmur of a single statement in defense in open court.

Another chapter in the marital troubles between Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Korbely, of Main street, was enacted in police court today, when Mrs. Korbely appeared to answer to charges made by her husband to which it was alleged that she had met Korbely's servant girl in Meeker's store in Main street and had called her vile names. The complaint did not
