MAYOR'S MESSAGE

partment it would be well to call your attention to the glaring need of improvement of the police headquarters. This condition of the cells condemned as unfit for the housing of those charged with crime. I recommend the council's attention be respectfully made by the State authorities.

"The present accommodations and those already prepared for the immediate future are inadequate to care for the needs of the younger generation in the western and northern parts of our city and will undoubtedly lead to a development of this territory, but if we continue to neglect the needs of the young since because of the inadequate and unsanitary conditions to hamper the healthy growth of our children, either mentally or physically.

"Parks and Playgrounds.

"I am definitely in favor of an extension of our parks and playgrounds system. Development along these lines is only keeping pace with our neighbors. There is plenty of opportunity for such development, which, when completed, will be an asset to our city.

"The municipal records, consisting of our books, deeds and assessments, records, records pertaining to our municipal courts, our City Clerk's department, are housed in a very unsatisfactory manner, and should be given a fireproof depository because of the usefulness and so recommend that immediate steps be taken for the proper care and housing of the records and papers of the municipal government.

"The matter is an abuse which has been permitted for many years.

Government.

"The government is the product of the city's affairs, to which we are interested and are expected to be and one in which it is difficult, by reason of its complexity, to fix responsibility. My experience, covering two years in the office of the Mayor and Council and four years as Mayor of your city, together with the recommendations made during the past years, confirms my belief that it is a mistake to concentrate the conducting of the affairs of the city.

"Eleven councilmen are too many. Five or six, with a Mayor having a veto power, would be sufficient. The power of veto would centralize the responsibility.

I recommend that Council seek some relief from the legislative halls of the State to change this situation. It is in the minds of many citizens who have called about for the purpose of bringing about such a change.

"Perhaps it is not out of place to comment on the legislative recommendations herein contained may be treated with greater consideration than those contained in the annual message of some of my predecessors. They seem to have met with little or no response from the halls to which they were respectively addressed.

"I urge most earnestly upon each member of your honorable body the sense of responsibility. It is not necessary for the Mayor, Mayor, either to initiate or to adopt a constructive program of legislation for your honorable body, practically the sole trustees of most of the public funds, should use all your individual and collective power to prevent waste and to spend the city's money as conscientiously and to as good advantage as you do your private funds.

"In the foregoing suggestions do not meet with your approval or if they are not practicable, I urge that you make such suggestions and take such steps as will bring about a satisfactory condition of affairs.

"I assure you of my hearty support in any measure tending to the city's development.

"Let there of and pride to our city prompt us to tireless efforts in its behalf.

Important matters were discussed at the meeting Tuesday night at the J. M. C. A. Hall, by the Rahway American Legion, but nothing definite was done.

PRAYER WEEK'S SERVICES OPEN

Noted Brooklyn Preacher Talks On "Modern Sin" At Big Union Meeting

DR. SHAW IS AGAINST PREACHING "HELL-FIRE"

The Week of Prayer held under the auspices of the Federation of Churches opened Sunday evening with a service in the First Methodist Church. Over five hundred persons composed the congregation of five of the Churches of the Federation were present at the service and hear Rev. Avery A. Shaw, D. D., pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church, Brooklyn, deliver a powerful message on "Modern Sin."

The New York minister declared that although the world spoke of a decline of preaching without having a step for cross roads, the church was of the "Golden Rule" to on the whole better today than ever before. Dr. Shaw considered modern sin as a development from the mind which said it is in the mind where one must, in a sense, be a law unto itself but he was not H. IWOT to the old "Hell-Fire" preaching. Dr. Shaw pointed out that "sin is not a matter of the mind, but of the heart and soul."

"No one cannot eliminate sin by law," said Dr. Shaw, "we have laws for our hospitals, yet strong diseases but merely cause most hospitals to be built. Today there are those in favor of war, but are trying to get back to the state of the heart. You can't take all out the world that way either.

The Week of Prayer was introduced by Rev. Wilbur E. Saunders, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who put the whole to the standing of the Rev. Dr. Shaw, who was the Rev. Wallace H. Carver, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, who was New Year's visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Cook, of 79 Central ave.

Mrs. Mary Davy and Miss Ruth Davy of Brooklyn and Benjamin Chambers, of New York City, were New Year's visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Cook, of 79 Central ave.

Digest of Current Events Given Before Woman's Club

Instructive Analysis of Conferences and Elections Made by Mrs. M. G. Atwill in First of Series of Three Lectures

Mrs. Marion Gaylord Atwill, of New York City, an authority on Current Events, made a deep impression at the meeting of the Woman's Club of Rahway last Tuesday afternoon in the first of a series of three lectures on current events. Her subject "Digest of Current Events" was a digest of the events of 1924 and 1925. In her talk she outlined the work done by the club again in January 16 and the Woman's Club. People in the world wide weather, the speaker was greeted with a hearty applause.

Mrs. Atwill's message was one of hope and encouragement which have been the keynote of her lectures. She said that because the world is in a turmoil, it is not to be expected that it will be at the point of view of the Dr. Shaw. "Today's world is in a state of flux," said Mrs. Atwill, "and it is the usual fee is charged to assist Events and is adding for a planning delivery.

According to the speaker, there was a wonderful outlook during the past twelve months and the period just ahead. Peace was the keynote. Peace was manifested and will be manifest. Peace is a state of mind, and it is a state of spirit among the nations. She felt the Dawes plan was on the upgrade that Germany hasn't lived up to all her obligations. France has asked for help and should be accorded cooperation in Cologne, Mrs. Atwill maintained. The speaker dwelled at some length on the Geneva Protocol brought up at the last session of the Council of the League of Nations.

Mrs. Atwill outlined the famous "America" to the U. S. Griffith made in the stretching of the Rahway New Empire Theater on next Monday under the auspices of Mulvey-Dinsmore Post, American Legion, of the World War. This picture will be shown twice in one day, the first time has been booked at a great expense for the benefit of the Rahway Legion Post "Vets" Relief Fund" and will take the place of the Sunday show, which were planned by the post for which the Vets have had great respect for the wishes of numerous organizations in the Woman's Club and the Rotary Club. The Vets are begin that the public will be asked to cooperate with the Legion.

Tickets for the Sunday show may be secured from Wilbur Dinsmore, Chairman, John J. Reger, or 11 Charlotte place, as well as any other member of the Post.

Under the auspices of the Legion the installation of officers of the Rahway Post will be held in the Legion Post rooms, the Roberts building. Plans are being formulated for the installation of officers of the Rahway Post rooms, the Roberts building. It is obligated and a banner year is being looked forward to.

REFUSES BOOST IN 'PHONE RATES

Public Utilities Board's Rule Against Request for Higher Charges Effects City

Proposed increased telephone rates in New Jersey are refused the New York Telephone Co., but granted to the Delaware & Atlantic Telegraph & Telephone Co., in decisions announced Wednesday at Trenton by the Public Utilities Commission.

In the New York company case, the board gave the following reasons for disallowing the new schedule of rates:

First, the company has not shown reason to be burdened upon it by the law to justify the board that the proposed increase in rates is reasonable.

Second, that at this time, with a proper allocation of expense for Jersey business, the proposed rates would result in the company earning more than a reasonable return upon the fair value of its property devoted to the public use.

Third, that the fair value of the company's property and land owned to the public is $76,270,000, and that it is entitled to earn a fair return a fair return of approximately $3,000,000.

The gist of the decision is that, inasmuch as there is in the accrued depreciation reserve of the company allocated to the New Jersey division an excess of at least $300,000 over the amount required to meet the depreciation accrued on the 7-per-cent. basis, the company should cut down its rates so that it will just net, at which time the company can apply to the board for an increase again for increased depreciation expense.

The rates decisions are the result of an examination into the value and earnings of the two companies, undertaken by the board following service of the filing of the increased rate schedule last March. The rates proposed increase might be fully investigated, portions of the proposed new schedule was suspended.

As a case of this kind has taken place in the company the Independent Telephone Association, which represents several hundred independent companies in an effort to secure a decision, notwithstanding the increase, following a report of a report of a report of

by ROBERT LA MAR

"All men are born free and equal," are the beautiful words of the United States. However, the very world we live in tells us that some are Mighty, others are well off, while the vast majority live or starve.

Therefore, we do not spend our money without looking before we leap. As a rule, the majority of us look for the most inexpensive article that will do the work well. Radio is no exception to the rule.

If you be desirous of purchasing a radio set that will do the work of the more costly ones, and yet be inexpensive, I think I know of the set you are looking for. The receiver costs but a few dollars to construct, yet appears as good as the best. Of course it may not look as well as the more expensive sets.

Now for the set. A few things about it won't harm you a bit; in fact they may help materially.

The wiring is of the good old regenerative type, and so be more specific, it is what is known as the "three-circuit" hook-up. For efficient means of obtaining regeneration, as discovered by Dr. Lee De Forest, "as few contacts as could be wished for are employed; to wit, but one. Strangely, it is not a condenser, a coupler, or even a variometer. Indeed, it is quite different. A metal ring! Strange, but true.

So much for the tuning unit. Now let us determine by actual results if the receiver is good, bad or indifferent—not by theory, but by practice.

Actual Results Obtained.

The writer made a receiver of this type some time ago. The set was constructed very poorly, connections being shackled, and all parts laid on a board. A two-stage audio-amplifier of standard design was connected after the set, that the use of head phones might be avoided.

The log of stations heard after a few nights looked like a page torn from the telephone directory. Stations from Chicago, Cleveland, Canada, Michigan, Tennessee, Memphis and from places too numerous to mention, came in all over the room wonderfully well.

So to show that the results were not "freaky," the amplifier was disconnected, and the headphones placed in the plate circuit of the detector, using one tube only. Still the distant stations came in as clearly as before, but with about one-hundredth of the former volume. This satisfied me that the set was not good, despite its simplicity.

Necessary Parts.

While your local radio store and profession the following:

One piece of cardboard tubing two inches in diameter and six inches long.

One-fourth pound of No. 24 D. C. C. wire.

One rheostat.

One seven by ten-inch panel.

One baseboard, seven by nine inches.

One socket.

One .00025 fixed condenser (mica or micanite).

One variable grid-leak.

Eight binding posts.

One .001 fixed condenser.

One fourteen-foot aerial.

Necessary bus bar, screws and sundries.

With this apparatus on hand, well, better prepare the coil, which is the "secret" of the set.

Wind 300 turns of the wire on the coil, leaving short a half inch from one end before starting to wind. Do not use shellack, water glass (sodium silicate), or any other liquid to secure the wires. If you wind the coil carefully, there will be no need of the various adhesives. An old "kink" should be remembered when winding the coil. That is to have the wire passing over a warm stove before being wound on. Then wind the wire on tightly, being sure that each turn is close to the previous one. Now assume that two ends with a little more wire. You will find that when the wire cools the stress will hold in place one of the wires glued there.

Next, wind fifty turns of the same wire on top of the 300 turns. These turns should be wound in the same direction as the secondary, that is, in the center of it. This is very important.

Secure a piece of thin sheet brass or copper, six inches by four. Bend the brass or copper, as the case may be, in the form of a cheese, using the wire frame for the mold, and the coil as the cheese. Place the sheet of

The Mayor's Message

Mayor Thomas A. Fyffe's initial oratorical bow, at the organization of Common Council rather answered a long-felt wants of general criticism upon all city departments as they passed from under commission rule. It was a comprehensive and most interesting one-hour address, spoiled (its as viewed by his honor the mayor. His message also embraced several problems of more or less moment as pertains if other matters aside from governmental bureaus. To many the message was somewhat amusing, from others severely criticised, while still others approved of its contents and hailed it as the redex of a man deeply interested in the city of which he is chief executive.

But to the citizen who has been in close touch with municipal government, and familiar with the trend of affairs for the past seven years, Mayor Fyffe's message contained nothing new. It appears to be but a rehash of existing ills in various departments of our city government, lacking real constructive features which the public as a whole, were in hope would be forthcoming. It is not criticism our community ills are in need of but a prescription for their cure. There's no use of the physician telling his patient he is blind. The patient knows that much. But how to get rid of the blindness is what most interests the patient.

Taking Mayor Fyffe's "wants" as they appear in their order, the first of which is at the Board of Assessors, we take the opportunity of supplementing the mayor's outline by referring him to our editorial of Tuesday's issue of The Record. The crux for the inequality of assessments is for the appointment of a Tax Commission of not less than three men thoroughly familiar with realty values of the city and have a complete re-assessing of every one of the 18,000 parcels of land on the tax books. This is not a boy's job and the best men obtainable are necessary for this work. If this were done it would mean equitable distribution of the tax burden, an increase of revenue and a lowering of the tax rate.

Mayor Fyffe says "the water question is a serious one." We thoroughly agree with him, but it is not an impossible problem. The securing of a good supply of potable water is a physical problem only. We have an abundant supply and all that is needed is intelligent handling of the supply to extract its occasional pollution by the means of ample filtration at the pumping station. Similar conditions as exist here have been overcome by other municipalities, and there is no reason why Rahway cannot succeed in its efforts.

In the matter of lights the mayor offers the proposition for improvement is that he recommend the trimming of branches on trees obscuring the rays of street lights. This is all well and good, but would not the installation of more and higher power lamps come nearer dispelling the gloom the mayor refers to.

The—item of streets is referred to in the past tense. Rahway already has a street commission, also a program for permanent street paving, which if carried out will put us in the front rank of modern paved cities.

A good point taken by the mayor is the matter of existing drain pipes in streets upon which permanent pavement is to be laid. They should be replaced with new ones. It would be foolish to permanently pave a street, and in the course of a year rip it up to relay broken drain pipes.

The mayor's rap at the newly organized fire department, to us seems, rather severe, since it is but positively as latest is its present status. We think we will have the backing of most citizens of Rahway when we state that Chief Ritzman and his small band of firefighters have proven themselves to be all that could be expected. They have handled some very threatening conflagrations in an admirable manner, deserving of the heartiest commendation. The fact that the fire chief, in his judgment, thought best to ask for outside assistance on two occasions, when the possibilities of a serious conflagration threatened because of the inflammable conditions of surrounding properties, should be commended. Preventive measures are now more sensible and commendable.

The mayor's reference to lack of inspections by the paid firemen hardly dovetails with Fire Chief Ritzman's reports as presented regularly to the city commissioners. These show an average of 175 inspections each month.

Granting that Mayor Fyffe has some "inside" information on the condition of the police department, his statement that "he will be able to bring about a change in the morale of the men on the force and instilled in them a true conception of what it means by loyalty to the head of the department, and by such loyalty to give true service to the citizens of Rahway as policemen will be received by the public with cut arms."

Schools, parks and playgrounds are given passing mention in the message. The recommendation for property housing municipal records of their power to compel destruction by fire or other causes is worthy of immediate attention.

has claims to "the cumbersome, recommending necessary State legislation to reduce the number of councilmen from eleven to five or six, with a mayor having a veto, and some responsibility of the power to veto." This is a subject which has received more or less attention from political experts on municipal government. But it is safe to expect that unless those who composed a councilmanic body of this type did their duty, no better success would be attained. It is not in numbers, but in loyalty success is measured.

The mayor's concluding admonition to his colleagues would make a charming motto for the new regime, and if kept in mind should prove an inspiration to each and every one. We print it in full:

"LET LOVE OF ONLY AND PRIDE IN OUR CITY PROMPT US TO TIRELESS EFFORTS IN ITS BEHALF."

What Is Thrift?

What is thrift? This is a pertinent question in view of the forthcoming annual observance of Thrift Week beginning with the anniversary of Benjamin Franklin, Sunday, January 18.

"Care and prudence in the management of one's resources" is the answer given by one of the standard dictionaries.

Resources consist not only of present material possessions, but one's energy and mental faculties are exercised to obtain them.

A man can become thrifty before he has saved a single dollar or put it to work. He becomes thrifty when he has transformed into habit the practice of utilizing his resources in such ways as his best judgment directs. The spendthrift can become thrifty before he has succeeded in paying on all the debts he may have incurred.

Thrift is an imperative word. It applies equally well to citizens of the mind and of morals as to material things—but the man who practices thrift in any phase of it will find the long discovery that it is a contagious virtue. It finds its way into other or his acquaintances, bringing poise and peace of mind and many benefits.

Thrift may also be defined as efficiency, for certainly a thrifty man is an efficient man. When he is thrifty and saves for a worthy purpose, he exercises intelligence and vitality to the whole advantage. Thrifty men are usually dependable, dependable upon themselves because it broadens and fortifies our opportunities.

Thrift is as truly a matter of national and international importance as of individual strength. Great resources must be developed and administered wisely and economically if they are to be of real benefit to the people. Thrift is the nation's greatest defense against the practice of thrift by its citizens.

Dawes System Working

History will probably record that the greatest piece of work ever performed by three men following a great world war was the working out of the reparations plan by Legal Advisor Owen D. Young of New York, Business Dawes, now our Vice-President, and Banker Robinson of Los Angeles.

Their report on reparations due the various nations following four years of world war cataclysm, and then adopted and agreed to at the London Conference, is being lived up to by the various nations and carried into effect.

Germany, owing the largest bill of reparations of any nation in the world, has for 47 months been paying her regular installments to Great Britain, France and other allied nations, according to the Dawes plan of 22 cents gold marks, even paying for the Americas are occupying her soil.

One plain young American business man, Brigadier Parker Gilbert, Agent-General for Reparations payments for our country, is administering the reparations payments in Germany in such a way as to demonstrate to the conservative American business men the methods of world politicians, leaders and diplomats.

Whacks the Myth

Commenting on President Coolidge's message to Congress which urges further tax reduction and economy in public affairs, the New York Times points out that "Economy reaches everywhere. It carries a blessing to everybody.

"The Times then says, editorially, "We cannot have too much economy. We are more likely to get too much economy of it." Mr. Coolidge whacks the myth that the "cost of both made process, has to be made to pay the cost of government. By the Jewel of our faces, in one way or another, we all pay taxes. Whether we shall come to us or "Economy is proper to reduce the high surtaxes was a contention of the minority. Mr. Mellon reiterates his recommendation that productive enterprise have the benefit of the capital that will remain withdrawn from it until the surtax rates are scientifically scaled down to a reasonable, not to the confiscatory, basis. Investment of the rich.

"If the national tax burden is reduced, 1st cities, counties and states profit by the example and lower the burden of local taxation.
