Nationally Known Authorities Will Judge Recipes Contest

Dr. Minna C. Denton

Dr. Lillian B. Storms

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—Three nationally known authorities on home economics and food chemistry will assist Miss Marion Harris in the $500 Cash Prizes Recipes Contest being conducted by the National Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages in connection with the industry's national advertising campaign to 'reach 20,000,000 people.

The judges, as announced today by National Secretary Junior Owens of the bottlers' association, are Dr. Milna C. Denton, head of the Home Economics Department, George Washington University, Washington, D. C. Dr. Lillian B. Storms, director, Home Economics Department, American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages, and Prof. J. H. Buchman, professor of food chemistry, Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa.

Advertisements appearing in this and more than 500 newspapers carry announcements of the contest, which is nation wide in scope and is open to anyone, anywhere except anyone connected with the bottled carbonated beverages industry. It will close at Midnight, August 31, 1928, and the names of the winners will be announced December 1, in the newspapers in which the industry's national advertising is appearing.

The purpose of the contest is to obtain from housewives, dietitians, economic teachers and their pupils and others as many new ideas as possible for the use of these "soft drinks" in the home, in hotels, restaurants, school lunchrooms, hospitals and elsewhere. Ninety-six cash prizes will be distributed as follows:

First prize $100.00; second prize, $75.00; third prize, $50.00; fourth prize, $25.00; fifth prize, $10.00; prizes 6th to 10th inclusive, each $5.00; prizes seventh to ninety-six inclusive, each $3.00.

Recipes should be submitted to American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages, 730-732 Bond Building, Washington, D. C. Anyone may enter as many recipes in which bottled carbonated beverages are used as they desire. It is announced, but no recipe postmarked after midnight, August 31, 1928, when the contest closes, will be considered for a prize.

Recipes selected as probable prize winners will be tested at the George Washington University Home Economics Department so that, under the rules for the contest, the judges may be assured that the recipes chosen are "durable and practical for general use."

Widespread interest in the contest is reported by the bottlers' national headquarters. Hundreds of recipes already have been received from every section of the United States, including many from this vicinity.

ON STAGE AND SCREEN

REGENT THEATER, ELIZABETH.

Agnes Ayres has recieved a big success as a comedian and film producer. She takes "Speedy" on tires at the Regent Theater Sunday, June 24, for a week's run, and from all accounts, it surpasses anything yet attempted in the versatile film star—if there is possible.

Characteristic of all Lloyd comedies, and perhaps the biggest factor of the entertainment, is the uncanny line in his ability to inject good, wholesome and clean laughter into his films. In "Speedy" Harold has come up to his wonderful reputation and the consequences are features of the picture. Everything is new, and treated in a typically Lloyd manner.

One of the surprises in this latest Lloyd effort is the appearance of Babe Ruth, himself, who figures in one of the baseball sequences. His appearance and subsequent performance adds to the already lustful luster of the comedy.

The great laugh in store for all those who see the picture, is the highly amusing sight of a horse drawn street car traveling through the heavy traffic of Manhattan Island, with Harold at the Helm, or in this case, the Whip. Incidentally, the congratulations of the fans are flying around Harold Lloyd's built his "Speedy" car.

Ann Christy is Harold Lloyd's new leading lady and as accomplished actress she is. There is every reason to believe she will fill all the shoes expected of her in the future.

William Haines in "The Smart Set" and "Under the Black Eagle" are the features now showing until Sunday.

Coming Saturday, June 24, John Gilbert and Greta Garbo in "Love" will be the feature attraction. The two greatest lovers of the screen in the world's greatest love story.

RITZ THEATER, ELIZABETH

An all Irish bill will be presented at the Ritz Theater, Elizabeth, today and Saturday of this week, with the finest talent from the Emerald Isle presented by talented sons and daughters of old Erin, including the old-time favorite Irish comedian Jackie C. Morton in "Irish Talks and Songs." Wynn McMorrow with Sr. Cassidy and Lew Alt Grant, Byron Lee and Mary Carson in Marriage and Life, Fritz and Bronie, Fritz and Mortie, Impersonations of the Celebrities of the Laughland Union. Alecia Kildrone, talented, afterpiece, Irish Jubilee.

America's Favorite Famous Family. The Bates of comic strip renown will bring their riotous squabbles and reconciliations when the Ritz Theater presents them on the screen in "Bringing Up Father." It is a delighting comedy and brings to big audiences the popular female comedy team, Polly Moran and Marie Dressler, who are warranted to be even funnier in this picture than they were in The Caveman Matinee.

The picture is a literal adaptation of George McManus famous cartoons. Polly Moran plays Maggie, the ex-washerwoman of Jiggs and Marie Dressler takes the role of Mrs. Dinty Moore. Farrell MacDonald, well known character actor is Jiggs.

Sunday, June 17, Polly Negri and Jean Hersholt in the Secret Hour have the screen attraction and a specialist bill of vaudeville will be presented for the benefit of Elizabeth Hospital and Building Fund. The performance will be continuous from 1 to 11 p. m. with the exception of his Theater prior preceding.

Hen Lays 303 Eggs in Year, Gets Rest

Orono, Maine.—A plain Rhode Island red hen without a name—but with something better, a total production of 303 eggs a year—has disrupted all Maine egg-laying records.

"Lady" is the number on her aluminum garter, and she lives in the poultry houses of the University of Maine. She might have done more, but the specialists at the college say, but they consider her record a record and a change of feed. By further breeding it is hoped that among her daughters and granddaughters there will be descendants who will exceed her record.

The college-bred biddie combs from blue-blooded ancestry on both sides of her family. She was hatched in 1926. In September of this year she had 25 eggs, slacked up a "possible" in October with 15, then struck a steady pace of 22 to 26 eggs a month.

Bow-Legs Are Sign of Brains, Physician Says

New York.—Bow legs are a sign of both brains and health, Dr. Joseph Ingraham said in a speech before the pediatrics forum of the American medical association here. Basing his talk on a study of 1,000 school children, he said that bow legs, knock knees and flat feet are signs of better than average intelligence or stop a pig in an alley. His estimate is that one man in every twenty-five is bow-legged.

Julius Caesar, William the Conqueror, George Washington, Theodore Roosevelt, Kaiser Wilhelm, Benito Mussolini, Charlie Chaplin, Florenz Ziegfeld, Will Rogers and Babe Ruth are bow legged, he said, and Napoleon Bonaparte of bow legs, said Doctor Ingraham.

Lake Erie Rapidly Being Depleted of Fish Stock

Cleveland, Ohio.—Lake Erie, once considered among the most heavily stocked fresh-water lakes in the country, is fast being depleted of its fish, causing alarm to fishermen and engineers and scientists.

Experts from Western Reserve university, University of Michigan, Ohio State university, the Ohio fish and game commission, and the province of Ontario, Canada, convened recently to plan for a scientific investigation that may reveal the cause of constantly decreasing fish haul. Many Lake Erie fishermen, who have strung their nets for a half century with heavy hauls of their prize, have quit the business in recent years.

Physical and chemical variations in the lake waters due to pollution, as well as commercial fishing practices now in use, were studied.

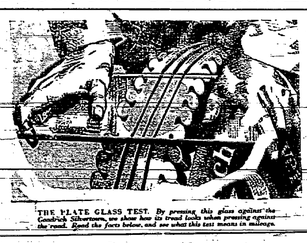
Goodrich Silvertowns



THE PLATE GLASS TEST. By presenting this plate against the Goodrich Silvertowns, we show how it would behave pressing against the road. Read the facts below, and see what this test means to mileage.

This one minute test shows how you can get months of extra service from your next tires! . . .

BALLOON tires are soft. They yield. Their tread flattens against the road. The center compresses, letting the shoulders of the tread come down to the ground.

Simple facts—but what a tremendous effect they can have on mileage!

Suppose the center had bulky masses of rubber where it should be flexible. Tires pressure would crowd the tread out of shape—distorting the shoulder rubber—and uneven, choppy wear would shorten the life of the tire.

But Goodrich Silvertowns are molded to the shape of the famous hinge-center tread design.

To be sure of extra months service from your tires—and cheerful service from your dealer—see us when you need new tires.

Keeping Informed a Personal Duty

A well-known political economist declared recently that if our America popular government really is to be made effective, each stockholder in the public business, which is of course each and every citizen interested in the welfare of his country—must "be intelligently informed on the assets and liabilities of modern government are too varied to permit each citizen to know how each tax dollar is spent or to judge the effectiveness or inefficiveness of the methods by which each public function is carried on, without the aid of some organized interpreting agency.

Public understanding and support of tax measures is necessary as a check on public affairs. Public administrators very often fail to figret out and apply changes in procedure which would improve economy and efficiency. Changes in methods are usually impossible without organized activity and demand from citizens.

Personal interest in and knowledge of tax problems are sentiper at the tax exit gate. It is the means by which the public is kept informed on the progress of public business. Individual interest in the problems of government and taxation will bear fruit a hundred fold in improved governmental services to the people.

There is food for serious thought in this contention, and could with profit be assimilated by every Rahway citizen and property owner. While it is true that every citizen does not have time to go into the records of the municipal government to see just what is being done with the taxpayers money, yet there is available ample opportunity for intelligent acquisition of understanding by attendance at common Council meetings, as well as access to other sources through the various departments at the city hall, in lieu of the inner workings of our municipal government. We all should be better acquainted, not only with each other as stockholders of our city government, but also with those whom we select to administer our civic affairs. It would be but a good business policy and if adopted generally would greatly encourage and be a real inspiration to those responsible to us for properly conducting the city's business.

We must admit many of our civic societies and commercial organizations are now doing good service along this line, but this does not give it the personal touch and the individual responsibility spirit that would emphasize from citizens direct. With the approach of November, the 1928 campaign is coming on and it is to be hoped that it will be a campaign of education rather than vilification. One of the best kinds of education the public can get is education on the management of local affairs. After all most of the taxes Rahwayans pay are spent at home for local improvement and local necessities and the people who pay ought to have something to say about what is done with their money. And they can have something to say if they will only keep in close touch with the subject. That cooperation will be encouraged by the men who are striving to give conscientious service to their constituents, in performing their obligations on behalf of our city.

Cupid's Busy Month

June brings a flutter in many circles where prospective bride and bridegrooms are on the verge of exciting events. Newspaper reporters are hard put to it to find adjectives adequate to describe these various and diverse wedding affairs.

The women invariably bring home the report that the ceremony was the most beautiful ever, and the bride was most charming. The bridegroom (if the gets mentioned at all) is called very handsome and distinguished. It is not surprising that the guests are thus impressed, as the most ordinary looking girl is so dressed up with her fine feathers that she looks like a Venus.

Such an event means that the fruitions of life are near reached. If the choice has been well made, the young people can feel very proud and happy that they have found some congenial and worthy mate, and that they have secured the companionship of a good helpmate person needs.

Nature contributes her loveliness in the form of floral decorations, birds bring her tribute with inspiring strains of familiar wedding music. Literature and religion bring their contribution, in the form of a noble marriage service of classic beauty. The art of dressmakers and tailors comes in to make the spectacle a picture of dignity and beauty.

The people should not be so charmed by this setting to overlook the real beauty that they fail to recognize the true meaning of the occasion; that it is a lifelong pledge of affection, loyalty and mutual service, calling for sacrifice and devotion. Here in Rahway we all give our heartiest best wishes to those who enter this new relation, and hope that they take very seriously the vow they are making.

Marriage is a weird and wonderful thing. If you don't believe it just consider two news items in the papers recently.

A New Jersey woman is on her way to Reno to get a divorce. She is 87 years old. The object of her divorce is another marriage, this time with her son-in-law, who recently divorced her daughter. The prospective bride is about 45. He is young for the job but you will have to admit he has courage. The marriage urge makes all that way.

Then we have the case of the advocate of compassionate marriage who met an entertainment girl. He is Warren E. Fitzgerald, manager of Judge Ben Lindsey's debating club on companionate marriage. In Rochester, N. Y., he met one Thelma Smith, member of the staff of a minister who defeated Judge Lindsey. Miss Smith had written ideas pro for her grandmother had. Now Mr. Fitzgerald has resigned his job with Judge Lindsey and has gone into the real estate business with Miss Smith as his boss. He manages for the rest of his life. And there is no companionate nonsense about the affair, either. Fitzgerald is backed in the good old fashioned way and it should be said that "good" is spelled with a capital "B" when it comes to matrimony.

Whether we approve of such marriages as the old-fashioned girl or one of the ultra-moderns you are mad, the light of pure reason should be turned on the subject.

Whether we like it or not, many young people are contemplating marriage. Some are hesitating because of the uncertainty of the future. Is it right for us to bring children into the world, or to deliver our loved ones into the hands of a world so full of uncertainty? Some have completed particular courses in their schooling to go on further in preparing for their chosen life work. Others will step into the ranks of the world's workers to carve a career for themselves.

To all graduation time is a great turning point. Students gives majors under the experience of few weeks before they have been sheltered within comfortable, foolish, and girlish, not quite realizing that life brings responsibilities. All graduates have their eyes on the future, hoping to boom before them. Resolves of serious ness and achievement enter their minds.

The diplomas that will be handed to the Class of 1928 on next Tuesday night will stand for effort and sacrifice. In the hours when friends are enjoying their pastime the successful ones are digging at their books and papers. But their reward will be in the form of a statement that they have performed a certain work in the acquisition of knowledge, and are better fitted to meet the problems of life.

The more young people are the Record heartily extends its congratulations upon their ambition and success in the future may they aim to achieve that which is worthy of the mark in whatever calling they may enlist. The world is before them, and their destiny, in a great measure, is in their own hands.

Plenty of Leisure Time

The American people have more leisure than ever before, and what to do with it is probably the most important question in America today, according to L. R. Alderman, a specialist of the United States Board of Education.

Hours of labor have been considerably reduced since the World War. Many people have more spare time than formerly. The industrious old timers of Rahway would have said that it should be put into thrifty work. If they had had any such new leisure, you would have been most of it spent in their gardens or on household jobs of various kinds.

And the lazy crowd of some years ago, would simply have taken it out in loafing at the curbstones and idling places. The modern world finds life too interesting to hang around much on curbstones. But it will not work every spare minute, as the old timers did.

Instead it seems an end of sports and pastimes are to be enjoyed. Rahwayans have available plenty of local ball games at Riverside. There are also tennis, motoring, yachting, movies, etc. There are many attractions for our people to do.

All these brilliant sports do us good, if not overdone, but they should not take all of that leisure time. Taking it all for pleasure is about like spending all our income. Some day some new need comes up and we have not provided for it.

Just as the man without any savings is stamped about some new need comes for money, so the person who has never put any time into self improvement is stumped when at when some demand calling for greater intelligence comes to him. If he does not take a regular "taste" of his leisure for quiet reading and acquiring intelligence, he will someday be like the man without a bank account.

Flaming Youth

Former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, in addressing the Graduating class of the American University in Washington, observed that "we hear a great deal about the 'flaming youth' of today," but he said that he appealed for the reasons to do all they could to make youth more inflammable, because that youth that flames, like Phoenix, rises from the ashes of the destruction of the future. It is to such youth we can look to serve the cause of the world. The aggressive young men and women who flame with the desire to make the world a little better by reason of their having lived in it, are the ones who will make the most success of life, according to the ballet of Mr. Daniels.

The Zoning Muddle

There seems to be considerable difference of opinion among members of Common Council and city officials as to whether the new zoning ordinance passed by the last state Legislature is at present operative or whether it does not become effective until January 1, 1929. Also, the good it is to appoint members of the zoning commission for local administration. Mayor Pyle, on several occasions, has taken opportunity to advise the commission, laying stress upon the fact that it was Council's prerogative through its body president to appoint to membership. As an offset to the mayor's attitude, it is advanced in some quarters that the mayor himself has the appointing power, and he alone.

According to Legislative Bulletin No. 11, issued April 9, 1928, in which it speaks of a zoning commission, we find that the zoning bill is listed as Senate Bill No. 65, signed by Governor Moore and is now Chapter 147 P. L. 1928. This would unquestionably put the zoning measure forward for immediate operation upon its signing by the Governor, as it specifically states that this "law shall take effect immediately."

It is entirely to the city generally to permit inactivity upon zoning matters. There are numerous cases before the Adjustment Board awaiting decision. This body refuses, and justly so it would seem, to act upon any of these until the local municipal body acts toward a zoning of the city which cannot be done until after the creation of a zoning commission. If the appointment of the members composing such commission, as Mayor Pyle says, is a criterion to appointments on a zoning commission, it devolves upon City Council to assume the responsibility, because according to minutes of December, 1925 when the adjustment board was created, it was done through resolution of City Council. This procedure would be a guide for the successful and early consideration of the present perplexing question as now hovers over our City Fathers. It is past time for passing the buck between the many politics. Subject needs a leading commission and a complete zoning, and needs both badly.

The encouraging way in which reasonable zoning has been affected recently was illustrated in Paterson. A man obtained a permit several years ago for a three-car garage in a residential section. In advance of the work being done, he decided not to erect the house he started to house trucks used in his business in the garage.

Although residents of the neighborhood protested over a period of two years nothing happened, for he had received permission to house trucks there presumably for use in conspicuous work on the residence. But the Adjustment Board took up the case and decided to give him until December 1 to erect another garage for his trucks and restore the surroundings to a residential place to those suitable for a residential zone.

This action is interesting because it is a review of a violation which has been put through during the upset conditions of the last few years, and is now taken up and cured after becoming established. Unfortunately most of the violations of that period are of such a permanent character that it seems impossible to undo them or cure them.

The 1928 High School Class

Tuesday night next the members of the 1928 high school class receive their diplomas, and their commencement days are now doing good service along this line, but this does not give it the personal touch and the individual responsibility spirit that would emphasize from citizens direct. With the approach of November, the 1928 campaign is coming on and it is to be hoped that it will be a campaign of education rather than vilification. One of the best kinds of education the public can get is education on the management of local affairs. After all most of the taxes Rahwayans pay are spent at home for local improvement and local necessities and the people who pay ought to have something to say about what is done with their money. And they can have something to say if they will only keep in close touch with the subject. That cooperation will be encouraged by the men who are striving to give conscientious service to their constituents, in performing their obligations on behalf of our city.

As per order of Council, our streets were lighted by gas lamps for the first time Monday night for the first, and again Tuesday night, for the second time, with success. THE EDITOR'S MAIL BOX

It's Safe to Make Faces In Dark Says J. P. Malloy

Editor, Record:

In your issue of June 5th you announced rules for letter writers which invited fakirs to get every thing off their chests. You also gave assurance of a good place to hide for all who desire to be heard and not seen, calling attention to the need of a signature, but that it would be safely concealed in your secret cellar if necessary and the readers would only know the author by a nom de plume.

Writers of letters intended for the reading public who request their name to be concealed differ little from writers of anonymous letters. They usually have no character and what is more they have little intelligence. The expressing of honest opinion never has to emanate from ambush unless it is grounded in hatred or based on what is hatred from one to another.

In view of the approaching campaign and the certainty of a Catholic nominee for the presidency, it will be interesting to note kind of letters we shall presently see.

Yours very truly,

J. P. MALLOY.

Wage Earner Seeks Only Opportunity for Full, Free, Comprehensive Life

By WILLIAM GREEN, President A. F. of L.

Organized labor considers wages of first importance because wages are the basis of human activity and human enjoyment. The working man must depend upon wages for the adoration of his children, for old-age protection, for the care of dependents when he is incapacitated.

He seeks reasonable hours of employment that he may relax from exacting toil, so that he may have time to think, that the better part of his life may be devoted to the things that are worth while in life. There is something better in life. He must be given opportunity to live a full, free and comprehensive life.

We have increased wages, shorter hours, improved work conditions, but, in addition, we have secured enactment of laws that have brought many benefits not only to wage workers directly concerned, but to the community.

We were the pioneers for compulsory education for children, the pioneers for free American children in the school houses and playgrounds rather than toiling in factory, mill and mine.

Old Time Distinctions Between Right and Wrong Becoming Sadly Confused

By BISHOP MANNING (Episcopal), New York.

This old sanctions have lost their meaning for great numbers, who are today adrift—both spiritually and morally. Often they have gathered eight and what was wrong; now they are confused. They see things perverted, excused, defended by those in high places, by some even calling themselves Christians, which a short time ago would have been condemned. We see such things as free love, companionate marriage so-called, easy divorce discussed, presented in popular papers and magazines, as though there were two sides to those things.

We need a clear call to the standards of Jesus Christ. He leaves us in no doubt as to where we stand on those questions and others like them. Christ himself is our moral standard.

People cannot advocate, defend and practice such things as companionate marriage and easy divorce and still be respectable members of society.

HERE 'N THERE WITH RAHWAY BOY SCOUTS

Orders have been issued to each scout patrol to provide themselves at the scout office, 45 Irving street, on Tuesday night, at 8 o'clock, to receive final instructions for their activities during the programs of Foreign Wars encampment. These boys will be used as aides and orderlies and will assist in every possible way to make the visitors welcome. On Saturday, June 23, they will do a similar service under the leadership of Assistant Deputy Commissioner Richard J. Morton, who has been appointed in the place of the field executive.

On July 4, the scouts will have a field day, through the courtesy of the Elks Parade of July celebration committee, who have authorized the expenditure of $25 to cover expenses. The field day will start at 9:30 a. m. The field day will consist of a hike, followed with eight boys from each troop. It is planned at present to give each of the troops a separate competition and one a guide rope and third, whistles. There will also be a first and second contest, rope vaulting contest, missing race and fire-building contest, each of these contests a gold, silver and bronze medal will be given as well as watch fobs to the fourth and fifth contestants. There will be a well scaling, knot tying and signaling. Each patrol will have a flag and any scout who desires to enter, there will be a special competition for entries from any one troop. It is expected that there will be about 150 in a short time.

Troop 46

The attendance this week, there was a shortage of boys at most of the meetings. Field Executive Jack J. Scoutmaster Smith reviewed the boys on pack making and packing, which was the study taken up the week before. Scout Robert Andrews related several of the adventures of the boys on the week-end hike for the benefit of the boys who were not present. One of the stories was regarding Willis Hoch who managed to get hold of the beefsteak intended for Scoutmaster Smith's supper. The contestor, who reported at the camp rather late, had to satisfy the hungry old-timer by cooking the meat for him, but it seems that Willis got the remainder of the night so the joke was on him.

Vets' Finance Committee Lacks $300 of Budget

Harry Slammon, chairman of the finance committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Rahway Encampment, which will get under way here Thursday, announced today that the committee is $300 short of the amount needed to finance the encampment.

This sum is requested from the citizens, who may mail or leave contributions with Mr. Slammon at the Post Office, Cornelius A. C. Pinkos, treasurer, at 194 East Milton avenue, or at the Rahway Savings Institution.

Business men have already contributed to the encampment fund, and the committee is now soliciting programs and advertisements from the manufacturers in Rahway and vicinity.

Therefore those citizens who have not been approached and want to help the committee at this time by contributing, may leave the amount needed to complete the fund.

DECORATIONS DRAW FIRE OF CITIZENS

Vets' Flags Are Illegally Displayed, It Is Said

Hosts of protest are echoing in the ears of the officers of Multnomah Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, for the manner in which the flags were displayed and decorated for the forthcoming convention. The flags are drawn, reversed, with the stars after dark, etc., etc., it is said by a citizen who claims that he was fastened by some officers of the post and asked to remove his flag. It is said by others of the Veterans organization that a citizen of the town was present to a violation of the flag ordinance at the Woman's Club in connection with the Better Homes demonstration, and he was fined and he was bawled out. It was left out forever, no doubt, that the citizen, in the eyes of the police, at the instigation of the Vets, took to court a few members of the aforesaid members of the Woman's Club.

What's sauce for the goose isn't sauce for the gander, it seems, and the Vets' organization, which is composed of ex-service men, is not generally enforced upon others, according to others.
