SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR
For Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Sick Headache, Chronic Diarrhœa, Jaundice, Impurity of the Blood, Fever and Ague, Malaria, and all Diseases caused by Derangement of Liver, Bowels and Kidneys.
SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.
Bad Breath, Pain in the Side, sometimes the pain is felt under the left shoulder, sometimes followed by a general loss of appetite. Bowels generally costive, sometimes alternating with light and loose stools, with pain in them and heavy, with considerable gas of more or less acrimony, accompanied with a painful sensation of having neglected some duty which could not have been done if you felt as you should feel. Urine at times scanty and high colored, and after it has cooled a sediment settles to the bottom of the vessel, which is sometimes of a brick dust color, and sometimes a portion of it is of the dark color, spoken of above, and sometimes a portion of it is of the pale color, spoken of above, and sometimes it is ropy and stringy, and sometimes it is thick and ropy, yet one can hardly summon up resolution enough to do it, and yet it is a fact, that after one has taken a few doses of this medicine, the use of it becomes a pleasure, instead of a disagreeable duty, and the system is so much benefited that one feels like a new person. Sick Headache is one of the most distressing symptoms of a disordered Liver, and yet it is a fact, that after the Liver is put right, the Headache will not return, unless the system is put out of order by some other cause.
It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the above symptoms appear.
Persons Traveling or Living in Unhealthy Localities, by taking a dose or two occasionally to keep the Liver in healthy action, will be free from Malaria, Bilious attacks, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Dyspepsia, Depression of Spirits, etc. It is free from injurious ingredients, and may be taken by the most delicate without fear of any injurious effect, and is as harmless as a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage.
If You have eaten anything hard of digestion, or feel heavy after meals, or sleepless at night, take a dose and you will be relieved.
Time and Doctors' Bills will be saved by always keeping the Regulator in the House!
For, whatever the ailment may be, a thoroughly safe purgative, alterative and tonic will never be out of place. Regulator is harmless and does not interfere with business or pleasure.
IT IS PURELY VEGETABLE.
And combines the best medicinal properties of the vegetable kingdom.
A Governor's Testimony.
Have used Simmons Liver Regulator in my family for the past year, and find it a valuable medicine. I shall use it in future.
J. Gill Shannon, Governor of Ala.
Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Ga., says: Have derived much benefit from the use of Simmons Liver Regulator, and take pleasure in giving it my testimony in its favor.
"The only Thing that never fails to Relieve."—I have used Simmons Liver Regulator, Dear Sir, for a long time, and find it the only thing that never fails to relieve me. I shall always keep it in the house as the only thing that never fails to relieve.
P. M. Jones, Macon, Ga.
Dr. T. W. Mason says: From my own experience in the use of Simmons Liver Regulator, I can say it is a valuable medicine.

GENERAL NEWS.

A Boston paper laments the decline of baked beans in the city of their former glory.

Frederic A. Potts is among the subscribers who have given $500 each to the fund for the pedestal for Bartholdi's statue of Liberty.

The Winchester (Ill.) jail cost $40,000 with all modern improvements. Three prisoners escaped within twenty-four hours after its dedication.

The reduction of postage to two cents is considered practically certain. Hon. John Hill, who has given the matter more attention than almost any other person, says he is now sure the reduction will be made.

The cable brings information of the destruction Thursday morning of the Royal Alhambra Theatre, London. Fortunately the fire took place after the audience had been dismissed, and there are no accidents to record, although three hundred people are thrown out of employment.

Robert H. Rathbone, Superintendent of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, died at South Amboy on Tuesday, aged forty-two years. Mr. Rathbone was prominently named for Port for the Republican Senatorial nomination in Middlesex county, but declined, owing to his ill health.

Minister Hamlin was impressed with the informal politeness with which he was received at the Court of Madrid. At his first presentation King Alfonso, who speaks English, though not so fluently as the Queen, said to him: "Now, Mr. Hamlin, come into the next room and let me hear what you to say with me," meaning not the Queen.

A frightful accident occurred to the paddle-wheel Mouline Star on the Mississippi river, at Belleisle Plantation, above New Orleans, Wednesday morning. The boiler of the boat exploded, and of the twenty-nine persons on board three were killed outright, eight died soon after, and six badly if not fatally scalded. The steamer Sunbeam was sent by wire to the scene of the accident, and at once went to the rescue and transport the wounded to the city. They were sent to the hospital. Most of the sufferers are Germans, and several reduced to rags were dressed.

Oliver Wendell Holmes' letter accepting the loving cup of silver that was made and the farewell to popular admiration in Boston hard was pathetic. They say: "The cup is to me a sacred thing, because to the last I was glad to see the cup with which the life of silver." Dr. Holmes says: "The silver lasted which serves the longest years of my beautiful life. It has endeared upon it the date of 1882. This piece of silver was given by his Harvard College pupils to the famous tutor Henry Ephraim Jackson, and that man of rare parts after his death to his nieces. Dorothy Quincy, who did not the high honor of becoming my ancestor, and whether I hope that when another hundred and fifty years have passed away, some kind soul will make will say, as he sits by the cup and looks the name it bears: He, for a long time, lived among those for whom he lived, and the silver lasted and the silver lasted."

Sarah Bernhardt courtesy to London has been as laudably as gracefully, as pointedly as the young of the earlier Elizabethan century to London and called Father Thames the prince of our Harvard and rivers.

David Dudley Field, the author of the New York Code, which was so flagrantly enforced last Sunday in the observance of the Sabbath, says that the police have strangely misinterpreted the law. Mr. Field says that the Code was intended to prohibit only those things which are "religious interruptions of the peace and religious liberty of the community," and that it permits everything to be done on Sunday which can reasonably be regarded as a work of necessity or charity. A work of necessity is defined as "what is done for the convenience and comfort of the community." He expressly says that in a great metropolis the New York rules shaved, cutting hair, shoes, shining, and traveling are matters of convenience and comfort, and therefore things of necessity within the meaning of the law. His definition of lawful business will include the publication and sale of newspapers, the transaction of telegraph business, the letting of livery horses, the running of omnibuses and the sale of fresh provisions, for these things are for the convenience and comfort of the community. Respectable and orderly Sunday evening concerts must fall in the same category.

The astronomers should be congratulated. Their observations of the transit of Venus on Wednesday seem to have been in the whole remarkably successful. In only a few places was the sky so cloudy as to prevent any observation of the phenomena. Even where clouds interfered with the work good results were nevertheless obtained. The photographic plates are said to be of great excellence, and in fact all the methods of observation used appear to have given satisfactory results. The observers sent to the southern hemisphere were no less successful than those in the northern hemisphere. There is every indication that when the records of the observations have been combined, and the mathematical computations made, the result will show a gratifying advance in the accuracy of astronomical measurements.

As was anticipated, some interesting observations relating to the planet Venus were made. Careful measurements of her diameter were obtained, and the analytic powers of the spectroscope were successfully applied to her atmosphere, in which Prof. Young detected indications of the existence of aqueous vapor. This, so far as it goes, may be regarded as showing a resemblance between the atmosphere of Venus and that of the earth.

A very curious observation was made by Prof. S. P. Langley at Pittsburgh. When Venus had entered about half way upon the sun's disk, he saw near the circumference of the dark body of the planet outside the sun's disk a bright point of light. This could not have been caused by the refraction of the sun's rays, for the place where it appeared was out of the reach of sunshine. Prof. Langley says it was certainly not a phenomenon of irradiation nor a result of any defect in the observing instrument. If the observation had been made by an astronomer of less skill and experience than Prof. Langley, it would probably be looked upon as an optical illusion. What there can be upon the surface of Venus capable of causing such a phenomenon must remain a matter of conjecture.

ABOUT WOMEN.

Mary Gray Lyon, the cranky person who shot at Edwin Booth, now proposes to "rid" the Hamlet. Poor Hamlet!

Annie Allen, of Rockford, Ill., a girl hired by her employer at Washington, N. J., to sit up with the sick while the machine which gave her purchased two watches and a sewing circle. Some women never lose their possession of mind.

Madame Albani, the singer, is expected to arrive in New York on January 8th or 9th. She will give her concert on January 16th and then joins Mapleson's troupe in the West, returning to New York and Boston to open there at a later date.

Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe expects to pass the winter on her plantation at Mandarin, Fla. Her health is now which she attributes to the change over one hundred miles from the sea, and the fact that she is now in the open air of 1,500 a year. She added a few days ago for the South.

The divided skirt and the hydraulic press having proved hopeless failures, the Women's Dress Reform Association of London will offer prizes this winter for a dress which shall be free from the inconveniences of the present styles, without making the wearer a departure from the dignity of a lady, and yet shall be comfortable and formal at all times. The problem is believed to be a difficult one to solve.

John Sanders, with her sister Susan, lived together in quiet style at No. 1464 Spruce street, Philadelphia. They had considerable property, but to no needs so was expended by their relatives, who were greatly surprised at the death of Susan Sanders, when it was found that all which belonged to the sister was entered in the will of the deceased. Susan had left her property to the old woman, who was left to her sister, who was left to her relatives.

A Mysterious Beauty.—Yet I cannot help thinking that there is something in the mysterious. Will Mrs. Mallock, whose book is so full of the practical, be able to tell us why the practical is so much in the ascendant? Why need every thing have its use? Why need every thing be so practical? Why need we be so practical? Why need we be so practical? Why need we

SUNDAY LAWS.

How far the State should interfere with private habits and pursuits, generally considered as legitimate during six days of the week, but deemed by a majority of the people as improper when engaged in "on the first day of the week commonly called Sunday," as our statute styles it, has become quite an exciting topic for discussion. The public press, political bodies and the pulpit are giving the matter a good deal of attention. So far there is a great want of harmony among these leaders of public opinion, even among themselves.

Long before the organization of our system of State government, laws were passed forbidding certain pursuits on Sunday, on account of a belief that they would be a desecration of the day. These laws were greatly favored by the Puritans, who founded their legislation upon moral ideas. Bancroft says, "Religious enthusiasm colonized New England. Puritanism gave New England its worship and its schools." As a result, the Puritans so far as it was possible naturally, imparted a religious color to all matters of legislation. Especially did they impress their radical piety upon laws relating to Sunday observances. The influence of their extreme notions culminated in what are known as the "Connecticut Blue Laws." East New Jersey and New York, although not entirely Puritan States, were to great extent colonized by New England people. Both New York and New Jersey have Sunday laws practically identical, and they were evidently borrowed from Puritan ideas.

These laws have obtained for nearly a century. They forbid every one on Sunday to engage in traveling, in worldly or servile employment or in any diversion. Certain exceptions are made, such as going to church, or for a physician, or attending to works of charity or necessity. For many years, at least, they have not been enforced. They were passed long before steamboats, railroads, telegraphs or the daily newspapers were dreamed of. Since then religious notions have become much more liberal. The law is so very general in its terms, that it seems impossible, in many cases, to determine whether the alleged offenses may not really be works of necessity or charity. The punishment therefore, has been only a dollar, and no one was charged with the duty of arresting the offender. For these reasons the law has become a dead letter.

Last winter the Legislature of New York adopted a new "Penal Code," as it is called. It was drawn by distinguished scientists in codifying statutes, at the head of whom was David Dudley Field. These gentlemen, in codifying the old Sunday laws, made no new offences. They, however, made violations of them punishable in the discretion of the Court with imprisonment. They also required the police department to arrest known violators without waiting for a complaint to be made. Last Sunday the law went into effect. Orders were issued to the police to make arrests in compliance with the law. As every one can see, the police, in making them, were obliged to rely on their own judgment to decide upon the question whether the law in any case justified an arrest. They had to construe what the law meant themselves. What was worldly employment, or civil labor, works of charity and necessity is quite a serious question. Well, some judgments construed the meaning one way and some another. The result was that the drivers of express wagons, newspaper carriers, legal sellers, barbers and boot blacks were passed by or arrested according to the statutory views of the particular policemen who might be witnesses of their labor.

If a strict construction is to be put upon the law it must lead to very ridiculous conclusions. Suppose for instance on any Sunday morning you get your shoes blacked and your face shaved. They who perform the work are liable to be arrested and imprisoned. But by every moral principle you ought to be equally punished for employing them as they for performing the service. Again as the statute forbids worldly employment, in your desire to attest your belief in the Bible doctrine that "Cleanliness is next to Godliness" will you not by every legal principle equally violate the statute by blacking your own shoes or shaving your own face?

The reasoning upon the propriety of laws of this class is very embarrassing. The trouble arises from the fact that the things prohibited are forbidden not because they are immoral in themselves, but because at the time when the law forbids them public sentiment is opposed to their being engaged in on Sunday. But public sentiment on this very subject is capricious. What it finds fault with at one time it favors in another. Only a few years ago the proposed running on Sunday of horse cars created almost a social revolution. To day the running of them is favored by the religiously as well as by the worldly minded. That some companies donot run their cars on Sunday is solely due to the fact that they would lose money by doing so. Even our steam railroads run passenger and freight trains on Sunday far beyond what the laws permit, yet no one finds fault. The fact is that what when first discovered are conveniences become by use necessities in public estimation.

Mr. Field has been interviewed in order to get his views. He replied that the whole trouble comes from a misconstruction of the meaning of the law. He thinks if one will properly understand what "works of necessity" mean all difficulty will be removed. His definition of the term is, "all work of necessity is that done for the convenience and comfort of the community." With that definition we think nobody has reason to complain of the law. The chief object of the law is to forbid any conduct unnecessary for the people's convenience and comfort that will interfere with the full exercise of religious worship. Certainly no reasonable person has a right to obstruct that object. What does or does not do so may be a serious question. But if our courts will make that the test of duty in construing Sunday laws we think public sentiment will approve any punishment as appropriate that will enforce their observance.

If the most recent rumors from Plainfield are true, the politicians there are abandoning the familiar and quiet and orderly trial by newspaper of little differences of opinion or fact as to the qualifications of individuals for public trusts, and are resorting to the turbulent methods of courts of law.

No less than two libel suits against different individuals are now threatened or actually progressing. The former tribunal is thus relieved at the expense of the latter. Of the merits of either case, between libellers and libelled, we are not sufficiently acquainted with the alleged libellous matter to express an opinion. The situation, however, is suggestive of Judge Jeremiah Black's comment on the last phase of the old time Albany and Susquehanna railroad war in the Fisk and Gould regime, that, the combatants for the possession of the road having exhausted the processes of the Court in vain, at last sought the peaceful arbitration of pike and gun. As in that case the last resort was effectively to bringing some settlement, so in this it may be something will be determined. As a most liberal discount is usually given to political praise, it may fix the premium to be added for political detraction. It may elicit honorable retraction for impetuous and unwarrantable language and wholly false and mistaken assertions. It may prove some truth uttered with good motives. It can hardly give any new or startling interpretation to the law of libel.

If it concludes anything it will do more—if it be not high treason to the guild to say in a newspaper—than a journalistic fight, which,

Once begun,
Bequeathed from bleeding sire to son,
Is baffled oft and never won.

CONVERSATION CARRIED THREE THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED MILES.—A wonderful thing was performed over the line of the Western Union Telegraph Company a few days ago, says the Kansas City Journal, at which time President W. B. Strong of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway, talked by telegraph from Boston with C.C. Wheeler, general manager of the company at Guaymas, on the Gulf of California, a distance of about 3,500 miles. The circuit, it is claimed by telegraph experts, was one of the longest ever undertaken in America during daylight, and was from Boston to Chicago, thence to Kansas City and Pueblo, Col., from which point the wire ran south to ancient Santa Fe, N. M., the home of the fire worshiping Pueblos, and then to Benson, in the southern portion of Arizona. At Benson the wire fell south across the line into New Mexico, through Sonora to Guaymas, on the Gulf of California, where some day a line of railroad will connect with Chihuahua. At Guaymas, General Manager Wheeler and party, who a few hours before had driven a silver spike into a mahogany tie, completing the line of the Santa Fe road from Kansas City to the Pacific Ocean, were in waiting, and about 12 o'clock by Pacific coast time the announcement was made that Boston was "O. K."

"Tick tick-tick-tick," clicked the little instrument beneath the telegrapher's hand at Guaymas. "tick tick-tick-tick," though very faintly, spoke the instrument as the sound passed through the Kansas City office and the same instrument was heard in Boston. In less than five seconds came the reply from Boston where President Strong was in waiting. The answer being heard at Guaymas, the two chief executive officers of the longest continuous line of railway in the world under one management talked with each other, receiving and sending congratulatory messages over the completion of the road, one with the Atlantic Ocean as its direct, and the other on a shore washed by the Pacific, 3,500 miles away. At stations between the two points, in State and Territories through which the wire passed, operators listened at the instruments for the first sound, and when at last the circuit was in good working order, all that was being said was heard at different points as the sound passed over the wire. The last was one which operators from one end of the country to the other watched with interest, and, at the conclusion of the five hours' test, they might truly have said, one to another, "What hath God wrought?"

THE COURT OF ERRORS.—A Philadelphia Press correspondent, writing from Trenton about the Court of Errors, says: The array of legal magnates is something formidable. The Chancellor, Runyon, occupies a seat which may be simply characterized as "a peg higher" than that of anybody else. At his right, a little lower down, sits the Chief Justice, Beasley, looking the cold, bloodless embodiment of Jersey law and justice in one. In addition to these are the mere "Justices," Depue, Dixon, Knapp, Magie, Reed, Scudder, Parker and Van-syckle. The lay element, which does not appear to grow much, consists of Judges Clement, Cole, Green, Kirk, Paterson and Whitaker.

Of course on general principles, one would rather be saluted as "Judge" than "Justice" anywhere except in Jersey or down in Washington. "Judge," in this case, means a man who may know all the law inside the court room, but he need not be a lawyer. In fact, he had better not be, for he is supposed to represent the lay element of the right tight little State and to have a level head for the consideration of all the Gradgrind "facts." But still he may know a heap of law. There, for instance, is a round faced, English-looking gentleman who sits off to the left of the keen little Chancellor. That is Judge John Clement of Haddonfield. He has been on this Bench almost as long as one can remember. He is regarded as about the best posted authority on New-Jersey history, and the store of black-letter Coke-on-Littleton literature he has packed away on his shelves is said to be enormous. Judge Green, of Trenton, comes out strong when any question of "banks" or "banking" comes up. Cole, of Sussex, and Dr. Whitaker, of Cumberland, are recent appointments. Kirk, ex-Senator from Essex, is one of the largest builders in the State, and comes as near being an Englishman as Edinburgh comes to London. Judge William Paterson, of Middlesex, is the poet of the Bench. He has been known to make a Democratic stump speech two hours long in which he improvised verses that illustrated all the various metres that are found in any literature from Pindar down to Walt Whitman.

THE TARIFF COMMISSION'S REPORT.—A Washington dispatch to the Philadelphia Inquirer says: The Democrats are pleasantly surprised in the character of the report, and many of the revenue reformers say it would be wise policy to accept what they can get now, and settle the question on the basis of the report, instead of keeping up agitation for future party purposes. One of the leading free traders in Congress—Mr. Beck of Kentucky—has read half of the report, and declares that he is greatly pleased with it. At present there appears to be a tendency on the part of the members to rally to the Commission scheme as a compromise and practical measure for reducing taxation and getting rid of the surplus revenue; but this development of opinion has not gone far enough yet to warrant positive statements as to what will be done. Much will depend on the action to be taken on the Tobacco bill if it shall come up first in order. Mr. Dunnell tells me that this bill cannot pass as it is, and that other features will be added to it. Mr. Randall's opinion is that all the Democrats will vote for the abolition of the tobacco duties. In this case the bill will pass without a doubt. It is especially strong in Pennsylvania, which is becoming a tobacco growing State. It is reasonably certain that the taxes on proprietary medicines will be abolished, also the duty on matches and most of the taxes affecting the banks. The aggregate of these reductions and the tobacco tax, Mr. Kelley puts at $60,000,000. There is very little apparent sentiment for abolishing the tax on whiskey, but a good many members favor a reduction of the tax to 60 or 50 cents per gallon. It is evident that the tariff tax question will be the leading topic of the session.

RAILROAD TAXATION.—The Legislative Committee on Railroad Taxation in New Jersey met on Wednesday, at the City Hall in Newark. The committee consists of Assemblyman William McAdoo of Hudson; William H. F. Fiedler, of Newark; and E. B. Smith, of Newark. Ex-Governor Bedle appeared in behalf of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad. The meeting was held especially with a view of investigating the assessments of the New Jersey Central, the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and the Pennsylvania railroads to the city of Newark in the matter of municipal taxation. The Comptroller of the city testified that the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad was in arrears of taxes since 1872 on real estate. The taxes of the Central railroad were upon all their property, at the city tax rate, and had been fully paid. The Pennsylvania railroad had paid the municipal taxes at the local rate also on a portion of its property. Ex-Governor Bedle exploited the privileges of exemption of the railroads, and of points of law involved. On Monday next President Sloan, of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, will appear before the Commission at Newark.

GIFTS FOR EDUCATION.—The statistics given below are furnished by General Eaton, United States Commissioner of Education, to show the amounts given by private benevolence for education during a period of ten years:

|---|---|
| 1871 | $8,435,990 |
| 1872 | 9,967,394 |
| 1873 | 11,238,077 |
| 1874 | 6,135,294 |
| 1875 | 4,126,562 |
| 1876 | 4,091,815 |
| 1877 | 5,015,256 |
| 1878 | 3,905,886 |
| 1879 | 5,249,810 |
| 1880 | 5,518,505 |
| Total | $61,574,023 |

Add to this sum the recent gifts of Messrs. Tulane, Slater, Seney, Amasa Stone, Governor Brown, and others, and it is evident that during the last twelve years the gifts of private individuals in the United States to education amounts to at least $70,000,000.

THE DEACON OBJECTS.—Ben Butler's reported belief that Grover Cleveland will not make the run for the Democratic Presidential sweepstakes, year after next, is funny. It suggests the good old story of the deacon who, when the pastor—looking over the heads of the two young people—asked if anybody knew any "just cause or impediment," said not that he did. The astonished pastor demanded an explanation. "I had intended Hannah for myself," answered the deacon.—Hartford Courant, Rep.

Anthony Trollope, the author, died Wednesday of congestion of the lungs and heart trouble. He was the second son of the late T. A. Trollope, barrister-at-law, and Mrs. Frances Milton Trollope, the novelist. He was born in 1815 and was educated at Winchester and at Harrow. He was connected with the English Post Office from 1834 to 1868, and in 1867 he became the editor of St. Paul's Magazine, in which several of his stories appeared as serials. He visited the United States several times, and in 1871 and 1875 he visited Australia. In 1868 he was an unsuccessful candidate for Parliament. He was a frequent contributor to periodical literature, and several of his works appeared originally in the Cornhill Magazine. He was a prolific writer, mostly of novels. One of his last works was "Ayala's Angel," and among his most successful were "He Knew He was Right," "Phineas Finn," "The Eustace Diamonds," "Sir Harry Hotspur," "The Bertrams," and "The Golden Lion of Granpere."

No man knows what a ministering angel his wife is until he comes home one day, suffering with a dreadful Cold and she happens to have a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in the house.

Miss Risley Seward, the adopted daughter of Wm. H. Seward, and who accompanied him in his tour around the world, is now in Italy studying the old mysteries of Tuscany. Mr. Seward left her by will thirty thousand dollars on condition that she should keep his name. She has certainly complied with the conditions of the will, and it is reported that she now refuses to marry, for she will not consent to change her name.

ALMOST AS BAD.

What the Perplexed Physicians do in Cases of Emergency.

"I'll tell you the honest truth," answered the doctor. "Bright's Disease baffles the medical profession as badly as cancer does. Having passed a certain stage both prove equally incurable. It may be impossible to let out the secret, but at least one patient comes to mind with Bright's Disease of the kidneys pronounced incurable. He had time to put his affairs in order. He took BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER without delay.

"The doctor spoke by the card. The Capcine powers to the people. If you can, be prepared. Get the Capcine. Look out for frauds. The word CAPCINE is in the middle of the plaster. If you can't get it, inclose $1 to Benson, Sailer & Johnson, Chemists, New York. Illustrated circular.

EIGHT BATTLES.

Having Passed Through the War, an Old Soldier Conquers One Enemy More.

Kindled with enthusiasm as he recalled the grand struggle twenty years ago, Capt. E. B. Sandford of Newark, who raised Company B of 3rd N. J. Zouaves, and went to the front with them, said to a correspondent one day last January:

"Yes, I was in eight of the hottest battles of the late war, viz.: Fair Oaks, Malvern Hill, Savage Station, Hanover, Hill and Bottom's Bridge, and Fredericksburg. I started to provide St. Mary's Church, Newark, my right leg was shattered by a ball at the first engagement, and at the great march to Richmond. After the amputation I was taken twenty-five miles and left in a hotel at Ringgold, Ga. A relapse came on, and my life was despaired of. Then I was started on my way to Chattanooga, 28 miles distant, but they to take me to the Lookout, that journey was a matter of confidence. For years afterward I was shaken with every other day. Yes, the doctors gave me up, and I also gave it up when, you see, I did not. I began to use Kidney-Wort, and he is our opposite Libertyville."

"A decided convert to the efficacy of Kidney-Wort."

"Yes, decidedly so, as my family can testify, for they have spent no money for doctors' bills since I first used Kidney-Wort. Anything that will do what Kidney-Wort did for me, I think, must be good for the ills it claims to cure."

Dr. Baird's Celebrated FAVORITE REMEDY is the great Kidney and Liver Medicine. Ask your druggist for it. Price, $1. Dry Pint, $1.25.
