THE ROSE.

A the rose, an chil baby,
Blumbering in the summer bank,
Heard my lady pass by.
"I'll wear this rose of fragrance sweet
When I my queen invited serve."
Ah, kiddoo, for, but I should pluck
Such beauty as my lady's face!
And she will plant her soft cheek
With fragrance tough upon her breath.
Greeting my lady, bade her read
She kip in fair and dancy whole,
Wit million lips. The rose monitight
They measured sheen, eies sound sequent,
And had no sclip on her bound.
And kissed her cheek so every white
The rose, sin and sensible.

Ida M. Davis.

LOCATING THE TRAITOR.

One bitterly cold winter's evening five men were seated together in a small room in a house situated in the Jewish quarter of a busy and largely populated Russian city. The appearance of the room was so wretched as to the external aspect of the house itself. The solitary window was totally concealed by a heavy faded curtain hanging from the roof, and as the wind moaned dismally through the broken panes of glass its somber folds swayed to and fro. The inmates of this mournful abode were seated round the table, standing their pipes and talking, as if furtively, in whispers. As the feeble rays of the candle fell full upon the company they formed a group the youthful faces of four students. The chief spokesman, however, was a much older man, apparently about fifty, with a short, pointed beard, shaggy brows and keen, penetrating eyes of the darkest hue. The other deferentially addressed the speaker as "professor," and, indeed, he was at that time, at a well known school of medicine in Moscow.

On the present occasion, however, he was speaking, not of science, but of the terrible doctrine of assassination.

Professor V—— was a nihilist, a respected Colossus of craft in the dissemination of revolutionary doctrines, and on the particular evening in question he was engaged in unfolding with fiery eloquence the assassination of a certain colonel who had lately been promoted to the rank of chief commissioner of the secret police. As the night wore on their whispered conversation was suddenly interrupted by a knock heard at the outer door. In a moment the conspirators sprang noiselessly to their feet and stood with bated breath. The sound was repeated—a peculiar whistle was heard from without, and the listeners exchanged significant glances and quietly resumed their seats. Presently a minute footfall was heard in the outer room, the door was opened and a young man hastily entered. His face was pale, his manner agitated, and as he saluted his companions salutations he regarded them with a fixed and angry stare.

"You have been waiting for something," exclaimed the professor, pulling calmly at his pipe. "Tell us we are almost frozen, for the air of this wretched place is quite Siberian. But now to business. We will, ourselves settled, listen to what you have with the prospect of revenge."

There was a murmur of approval. It was noticed, however, that the young man who had just appeared upon the scene took his seat in the chimney and rolling his elbows upon the table slowly scrutinized the faces of his comrades.

"My dear professor," he said at last, "we cannot possibly proceed at present with this business."

"Why not?" asked an unanimously asked.

"Because," replied the latest comer as he quietly snuffed the candle, "because one of us is a traitor!"

"A traitor!" exclaimed the men, starting to their feet.

"Yes, comrades, we are betrayed; and as no one knows of this plot of ours except ourselves, I, for one, think that one of us has turned informant."

"You are mad to say so!" hoarsely asked the professor; "but in heaven's name what has happened? Come, tell us quickly. This is no jesting matter."

"Lately, then, I was in a public house, and I entered a Cafe de Paris to sip a cup of tea and smoke a cigarette. I happened to sit down beside two officers of the secret police, and, as one of them was somewhat tipsy, I could distinctly hear his conversation. I found it rather interesting. He told his companion that he was under orders to warrant this old deserted house at midnight—it is now—and to arrest all persons found within. He mentioned, moreover, all our names, and added with a mumbling laugh that a certain person, to whom the administration is certainly indebted, would be found in our midst playing the part of conspirator. Now, comrades, I have done. What shall we do?"

The men looked at each other in dismay. A dead silence filled the room, for the mere suspicion of treachery among the men who had solemnly dedicated their lives to the sacred cause of liberty seemed to hold them dumb. Such villainy in their midst—among men banded together in sacred brotherhood—was a greater crime than the merciless acts of a degraded administration.

"If this is true," said the professor, in a voice of suppressed rage, "then I will no longer believe in human fidelity or the future of our cause. But—death! if the story is true. Which of us is the informant?" added the speaker, fiercely as the pale faces of his companions.

"Bah! it is useless to ask that, my dear professor," exclaimed Ivan—such was his name—"for the man who has brought the strange intelligence—as he advanced to the door of the room, locked it and placed the key in his pocket. Now, no one will assert his innocence, of course. But, comrades, suppose we endeavor to find him out? Let us search each other. The traitor, whoever he may be, must doubtless have in his possession some proof of his guilt. Let us search the document is worth trying. What say you?"

"Agreed! agreed!" exclaimed the nihilists, as with one accord they sprang concitovately to their feet. One of the students, a tall, lank youth, with a somewhat foppish appearance, objected, however, to the proposal.

"But why?" hotly demanded the professor, "because it is unnecessary. Our word of honor ought to be enough. Besides, there is something degrading in the idea of searching one another, for, indeed, we were a lot of pickpockets. So let us break up the meeting. This excitement is absurd, and makes the discussion of our plot impossible. As for the story told by the drunken soldier in the cafe I don't believe a word of it."

These words produced an angry murmur among the excited conspirators. The protest seemed so righteous, and as the speaker turned to leave the room the speaker and warmly exclaimed: "Very well; we shall abstain from searching one another, you are right, it, but remember this, that if we fail to find a clue to the informant among those who willingly submit to the examination we shall then know upon whom to fix our suspicions. Bah, the impudence of a drunken soldier! Comrades, search me first! I am ready."

It is the moment the speaker's pockets were emptied of their contents and even the lining of his clothes were carefully searched, but beyond a few old letters, some political pamphlets and an English newspaper with a paragraph obliterated with lampblack, nothing of a incriminating character was found. A second student really submitted to the test—if test it were—with mixed results. Then a third stepped forward and placed himself in the hands of his companions. But at this moment a curious incident occurred. An invisible hand suddenly extinguished the light of the candle, and in a second the room was plunged in utter darkness.

What did it mean? Who had quenched the light? For a moment the nihilists remained motionless, as if rooted to the spot. As they listened in alarm, they heard a stealthy crushing sound in the direction of the curtained window.

Suddenly the voice of Ivan exclaimed in the darkness: "Comrades, this is a trick! Listen! Some one is endeavoring to escape by the window! It is the traitor at last. His attempt to escape betrays his guilt. Stand back! I know how to deal with him!"

In an instant the report of three revolver shots rang through the room, and was followed by an agonizing yell as some one fell heavily upon the floor.

A profound silence then ensued.

It was an awful situation.

At length Ivan spoke—in his terrified whispering.

"Strike a light, my lad," he said in a trembling voice; "and let us look upon the face of a traitor. Will no one move? Have you all died down upon the dead body of a miscreant who has betrayed us to our enemies? Come, professor, where are the matches? You had them last. But hasten! Want sound is that? Listen! By heaven, comrades, the police are upon us already! The house is surrounded! Quick! Here is a tinder-box, known only to myself. It is hidden in the main sewer, and is our only hope of escape. Follow me!"

Leaping hand in hand in the dark, the affrighted men followed the speaker's direction, and after some momentary confusion, succeeded in gaining the sewer. Now too soon. In another instant the door of the room was battered to pieces and a company of gendarmes entered. Lights were then kindled in every direction, but it was obvious to all the gendarmes that the conspirators had escaped. The officer in charge swore long and deeply, and ordered his men to make a thorough search from top to bottom. Then, advancing toward the window, he stumbled over a human form.

"What's this?" he exclaimed, examining the dead man's features with a lantern. "Hi! so they have brought you at last, my friend, have they? Well, you played the spy long and well, but it always comes to this in the end."

And tearing down the window curtain the officer threw it over the rigid body of the informant.—A. Melbourne in Fell Mell Budget.

Photographic Developing Frames.

A new developing frame has been designed for amateur photographers. It consists of two parts, the frame and changing bag. The frame is constructed of wood and tin, with a window of other substance, having two colored glasses, one fixed and the other movable, and supported by four springs. There is a slot through the top of the frame through which to pass the plates; this is made light and waterproof by a strip of metal, valvulous, etc. Partly in and projecting from this is a metal tube, hence the mouth of the changing bag over and pass the plate.

The chemicals are passed in through an aperture, which is made lightproof by a shield. The changing bag is made of rubber or lightproof material, and is fitted shaped, with an open top through which to insert the slide containing the exposed plate; it has an elastic band hole, and the mouth is partly protected by a metal case, and fits over the slot in the frame. The device for this apparatus will be of especial service where it is desired to develop a picture on the spot, without the trouble of going to return to his house or studio.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

All Explained.

It is propounded that explains why handsome men are so apt to marry ugly women and vice versa. Beauty is only the bait, so we have been taught, to draw the prey within reach. Contingently once established, by accidental or other means, the rest naturally follows. We know it all, you see—because I am a bachelor.—Cor. Washington Star.

A Pig's Revenge.

George Billyer, a Pennsylvania farmer, lost a hog in his pen weighing 230 pounds. A black bear climbed into the pen, killed the hog and had carried the body eighty rods and over two rail fences with it. It was a lucky thing for Mr. Billyer, as he was about to butchered—bear could lift half its own weight.—Detroit Free Press.

Setting a Duel.

An amusing story used to be told of a wag who accepted a challenge to fight a duel. In the appointed place he sent word to his opponent to chalk on a board an outline of his (the challenged party's) head, if the challenger, in his turn, would consider himself wounded or dead, as the case might be.

The story may possibly have originated from one told of a certain irascible Irishman named Bardwell.

He was often at variance with his neighbors, and once he and a guest, having quarreled, agreed to fight a duel. At the appointed hour the adversary appeared armed with a gun. Bardwell [illegible] to him:

"Tom, I'll tell you what I'll do. You go up and set up a board about my size and shoot at it, and if you hit it I'll acknowledge myself killed, and invite the whole crowd to dinner."

The ludicrous proposition made every one laugh, and thus ended a farce.—The Bits.

Sassafras is the great painter and artist, and no lightning of flame can match the air in a north room like that in a south.

The Hottest Lava.

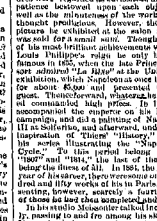
The earliest known lava is one made by a crystal, beautiful, but terrible, at Nineveh. In this lava, the age of which is to be measured by thousands of years, the fire lies in the British Museum with its surface as bright as when it left the maker's hands. By the side of it are other recent specimens, which, if they have been ruined by exposure to London's fogs and smoke.—St. Louis Republic.

YOUNG FOLKS' COLUMN.

INSTRUCTIVE AND ENTERTAINING READING FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

A Short Chapter About Jean Louis Ernest Meissonier, the Eminent French Painter, whose Pictures Are the Admiration of the Whole Civilized World.

Meissonier, the eminent French painter, who died in Paris on Jan. 31, was born in Lyons, the son of a druggist and grocer at Lyons. The boy seemed to have inherited his mother's taste for drawing, and when his father removed to Paris, to set up a shop, he sent his son to school, and afterward permitted him to study art, first with Potier and then with Leon Cogniet.



MEISSONIER IS HIS STUDIO.

He began by illustrating books. By studying the small pictures of the Dutch school in the Louvre he struck upon the twin of minutest execution which he ever afterward persevered in. His early pictures were rejected at exhibition, and the patronage bestowed upon each object, as well as the minuteness of the work, were thought prodigious. However, the first pictures he exhibited at the salon in 1834 was sold for a small sum. Though some of his most brilliant achievements were in Louis Philippe's reign he only became famous in 1855, when the late Prince Consort admired "Le Rêve" at the Universal exhibition, which Napoleon at once bought for about $500 and presented to his guest. Thenceforward, whatever he painted commanded high prices. In 1862 he accompanied the emperor in his Italian campaigns, and did a painting of Napoleon III at Solferino, and afterward, under the inspiration of "Diane" "History," began the series illustrating the "Napoleonic Cycle." To this period belong "1806" "1807" and "1814," the last of the three being three of all. In 1881, the 25th anniversary of his career, there were some one hundred and fifty works of his in Paris, representing, however, scarcely a fourth part of those he had then completed and sold.

In his studio Meissonier talked pleasantly, passing to and fro among his sketches. He retained the extraordinary strength of his eyesight till the very last. It was his minutest vision which enabled him to produce, without the help of glasses, effects of trifles unknown in the faces of the size of a thumbnail which occur in some of his pictures. His consciousness of his own genius. When he painted a masterpiece, he entitled "1814," representing Napoleon returning from Moscow at the head of his staff, he naturally had a road made down an incline, walled for the snow in colne, and then represented a blizzard blowing to make the ruts be set himself to copy.

Humanum-ism.

Said little brown Bee to his brown Bee:
"Oh! hurry here and see, and see
The lovelier man in the world was ever
That in the garden grew, amain, grown
Humanum-ism—humanum-ism—
Said little brown Bee to his brown Bee.

Said little brown Bee to big brown Bee:
"Which honey was he here, and he
Should beg a portion while we may,
Far said more bees will come this way.
Humanum-ism—humanum-ism."
Said little brown Bee to big brown Bee.

Said big brown Bee to little brown Bee:
"The rose is not for me, for me,
Though she is lovelier far
Than many other flowers are,
Humanum-ism—humanum-ism."
Said big brown Bee to little brown Bee.

Said big brown Bee to little brown Bee:
"No honey can we take, take we,
But many cups, all brimming over,
Has poor little purple flower,
And that's the flower for me, for me.
Humanum-ism—humanum-ism."
Said big brown Bee to little brown Bee.

The Cat's Toilet.

As a rule, animals are clean by nature. Birds and insects are constantly busied with them. Cats, lions and small, make the most careful toilets of any class of animals, with the exception of some of the opossums. The lions and tigers wash themselves in exactly the same manner as the cat, wetting the dark, India rubber like ball of the fore foot and the inner leg, and using it for washing the face and behind the ears. The foot is thus at the same time a fine sponge and brush. The rough tongue combs the rest of the body.

Why?

Why can't boys go to be great men?
Then taking like to prove
And what's the good of birthdays
And, alas, I'd like to know
Why can't I have some pennies
With lots of pockets in?

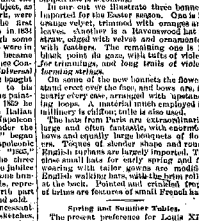
IT'S NOT MUCH FUN TO BE A BOY.

But what's the use of horses when
They're only fit for plows?
And why do folks 'most always say,
"Look out!" or "Don't!" or "Stop!"
It's not much fun to be a boy
When people are so cross!
—Little Men and Women.

EASTER HATS AND BONNETS.

Delight in illustrating fancies. By studying the small pictures of the Dutch school in the Louvre he struck upon the twin of minutest execution which he ever afterward persevered in. His early pictures were rejected at exhibition, and the patronage bestowed upon each object, as well as the minuteness of the work, were thought prodigious. However, the first pictures he exhibited at the salon in 1834 was sold for a small sum. Though some of his most brilliant achievements were in Louis Philippe's reign he only became famous in 1855, when the late Prince Consort admired "Le Rêve" at the Universal exhibition, which Napoleon at once bought for about $500 and presented to his guest. Thenceforward, whatever he painted commanded high prices. In 1862 he accompanied the emperor in his Italian campaigns, and did a painting of Napoleon III at Solferino, and afterward, under the inspiration of "Diane" "History," began the series illustrating the "Napoleonic Cycle." To this period belong "1806" "1807" and "1814," the last of the three being three of all. In 1881, the 25th anniversary of his career, there were some one hundred and fifty works of his in Paris, representing, however, scarcely a fourth part of those he had then completed and sold.

In his studio Meissonier talked pleasantly, passing to and fro among his sketches. He retained the extraordinary strength of his eyesight till the very last. It was his minutest vision which enabled him to produce, without the help of glasses, effects of trifles unknown in the faces of the size of a thumbnail which occur in some of his pictures. His consciousness of his own genius. When he painted a masterpiece, he entitled "1814," representing Napoleon returning from Moscow at the head of his staff, he naturally had a road made down an incline, walled for the snow in colne, and then represented a blizzard blowing to make the ruts be set himself to copy.



EASTER HATS AND BONNETS.

The three centuriest "Thyrensewood" hat, introduced by Ellen Terry in the play of "Thyrensewood," is likely to have quite a run. It is suited to any woman to whom a long chignon is become.

In our cut we illustrate three bonnets imported for the Easter season. One is in orange velvet, trimmed with oranges and leaves. Another is a Rembrandt hat in straw, edged with velvet and ornamented with feathers. The remaining one is in black velvet in gros grain, with tufts of violets for trimmings, and long ends of violet forming strings.

On some of the new bonnets the flowers stand erect over the front, and bows are in many styles, one arranged with spectacular long loops. A material much employed in millinery is chiffon, only in white shade.

The hats from Paris are extraordinarily large and still fantastic, with enormous bows and equally large bouquets of flowers. Toques of slender shape and round English outlines are largely favored. Two close small hats for early spring and for wearing with tailor gowns are modeled English walking hats, with the brim rolled at the back. Painted and crinkled chiffon of lemon are features of small French hats.

Spring and Summer Tubes.

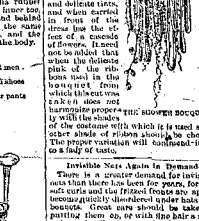
The present preference for Louis XIV, XV and XVI periods is evidenced in the style of the new cotton fabrics. These are printed in floral designs of great beauty. They nearly all cover the entire ground, or large bouquets are scattered at square intervals on white that accords with them, but on navy blue and darker tones the flowers are printed in white combinations, designs on peach or gray, lilac or red are most effective. Stripes formed of flowers, and flowers formed of stripes are shown. The most curious innovation this season is the conventional bouquet of flowers, thrown upon shaded moonsac large and half a brown.

Lace Bodices Once More.

Evening bodices are once more, as a rule, to be low cut in the back, and many morning ones also, where the bodice and skirt are cut in one, or are sewn together, as many are. The plait is not convenient for pucking, but it is worn. The long waists to low bodices have only been accepted as yet in diaphanous materials by English women, and in fabrics are cut mostly on the cross and wrinkled. Black lace and spotted net frosted are those most used, have most frequently a light lining cut in white net, which is perfectly invisible when worn, but proves most becoming to the skin of the arm.

A New Style of Bouquet.

The accompanying cut shows an exceedingly pretty and original arrangement of flowers known as the "shower" bouquet. The top part of this bouquet is entirely of red and brown, and the grasses, ferns, etc., are tied up with a mass of silk ribbons of a delicate pink color. The whole represents a most realistic emotion of long, entwined stalks, and when carried in the hand of the dress the effect is the fresh pink of the ribbons and the bouquet from the delicate pink of the ribbons and the harmonize properly with the shade of the costume with which it is used some other shade of ribbon would be chosen. The proper variation will commend itself to a lady of taste.



THE SHOWER BOUQUET.

Invisible Nets Again in Demand.

There is a greater demand for invisible nets than there has been for years, for the silk cords of the Fifteen Twenties are becoming quickly disordered under hats and bonnets. Great care should be taken in putting them on, and if there is a mere unbecoming line is apt to be formed over the forehead, as it will show on the back of the hair, and other curious varieties known to the past generation and in favor when middle aged women were young ladies. Dressmakers.

Hints About Skirts.

The present style of dress skirts look well on a tall, but a stout figure is at a great disadvantage in a clinging skirt. In gowns for matinee wearers the straight pulleys should be entered by the introduction of a few folds in front or a panel of the same, or a row of some skirts are all open on either side to reveal a glimpse of a silk petticoat in a contrasting color.

Cream of tartar is the tartaric acid of grapes and is used by many bakers in place of sugar as a substitute for grape juice. It is the substitution of inferior acid for cream of tartar that has made many baking powders injurious to health: for instance, sulphuric acid in vinegar and vinegar for the natural fruit acid.

THOMAS F. LANE
Editor and Publisher,
Summit, N. J.

THE PEOPLE of Summit are to be warmly congratulated upon the fact that at last there is the highest prospect of the early introduction of a lighting system adequate to the needs of the town. The terms upon which the Township Committee have secured the gas plant are such as will commend the action of that body to every taxpayer with whom economy in the expenditure of public money is an important consideration.

A gas plant capable of supplying the needs of private consumers will add but another to the list of important public improvements established within the past five years. Whatever may be the individual preference of the residents of our town as to a system to be used for public lighting there can be no question that the overwhelming majority of the people prefer gas for the illumination of private residences. The quality of the gas will be above criticism and it is certain to aid materially in the growth and development of the town, already so greatly promoted by the improvements introduced. The course of Chairman Page in sinking his personal preference for electricity and adopting the most feasible plan for the benefit of the town furnishes an example worthy of imitation by other public officials. This incident also furnishes another vindication of the wisdom displayed by our citizens in the election of Town Committeeman Kelly. Since his election Mr. Kelly has shown a warm desire to aid every worthy public improvement. On the question of public lighting his course has been unequivocal. He recognized the advantages to be derived from a gas lighting plant and has favored that system throughout. The people of Summit will not soon forget the service to the town performed by the Town Committee that have been in office for the past four years.

THE DISTINGUISHED EDITOR of our esteemed Contemporary, the Elizabeth Journal, is officially displeased at the new problem to disturb his mental equipoise. The latest subject of his mental activity seems to be the question of the availability of Senator John R. McPherson as a presidential candidate of the Democratic party in 1892. The JOURNAL's interest in this subject has been stimulated by the very general discussion of McPherson's merits, recently indulged in by the public newspapers of the country. The greatest difficulty about the situation in the opinion of the JOURNAL, is the possibility that Senator McPherson might not be unanimously elected. This fear need not longer haunt the editorial sanctum of the JOURNAL, nor prevent it from giving its cordial support to New Jersey's most conspicuous representative. If the National Democratic Convention should display the pluck and good judgment to make McPherson the party standard-bearer in the contest of next year, his nomination would be hailed with delight by the rank and file of the party, and by the conservative business interests of the country, irrespective of political affiliation. He has proven himself the ablest of the long line of noted men whom New Jersey has given to the service of the Nation, and his career in the Senate has stamped him a statesman of the broadest calibre and a party leader of the soundest judgment and most unflinching courage. No intelligent observer of political events doubts that with any one of a half dozen candidates the Democratic ticket will sweep the country in the next campaign, but with McPherson as a candidate, this assurance would be doubly sure. New Jersey has long awaited recognition in the making of the National ticket, and the time has arrived when she can demand this recognition both as a reward for many years of loyalty to the interests of the Democratic party, and by reason of the conspicuous ability of her recent representatives in public life.

We do not know that the Senator McPherson is a candidate for the Presidential nomination, but if he should determine to enter the field we have little doubt of his power to carry off the prize, and his nomination would be equivalent to an election.

THE LADIES OF SUMMIT have on every occasion shown their broad charity and public spirit by their zeal for the encouragement of every undertaking for bettering the condition of suffering humanity, and the recent exhibitions of their skill in this direction, are no exception to an already well established rule. At the same time one cannot avoid commending the work performed by the ladies who conducted the successful fair on Thursday evening for the benefit of the new church edifice now established in Summit: the Fresh Air and Convalescent Home.

THE ELIZABETH JOURNAL comes to the support of Mayor Rankin in his effort to secure an arbitrary increase of the valuations in the various townships of the County, and in a lengthy article attempts to justify the recent appointment of a committee of investigation, through the instrumentality of which, the Mayor of Elizabeth,—at whose instance the appointment was made,—hopes to impose on the townships, hardens that properly should be borne by the City of Elizabeth. The JOURNAL seems to have singled out Summit as the special object of this hostile inquisition. The JOURNAL says:

"Now that a committee is appointed, the same is just your, to visit the different towns, cities and townships, to ascertain if property is valued fairly and if not, upon upon an equitable basis, it is in very bad grace for anyone from Summit to offer any obstruction. For in the first place it will give the rest of the County the impression that there is vastly more than was suspected in the claim that Summit is undervalued. If a committee is appointed to secure equitable assessments and Summit opposes it, then the only inference is that equitable valuations are just what Summit does not want."

The JOURNAL's reasoning on this subject is as absurd as the argument it advances to justify the necessity for a committee of any sort to carry on this offensive form of investigation.

There does not exist the slightest public necessity for the appointment of this committee this year, and the sole purpose it is expected to serve, is the strengthening of the political fences of John C. Rankin, Jr., who is mindful of the fact that his successor is to be chosen next December. Mr. Rankin's rather unfortunate experience in November last, has apparently convinced him that he need have no political aspirations in the fulfilment of which the townships of Union County are a factor. Therefore he hopes by throwing the dust in the eyes of the people of Elizabeth to convince them that he is a jealous champion of their rights in the expectation that they will generously respond to his transparent bid for their votes.

This purpose being apparent, it becomes the duty of the taxpayers in every township of the County to present a firm front to this hostile attack on their property interests. No honest man can claim that there exists the least reason for the appointment of this Committee this year. Their investigations a year ago, furnished them with all needful information as to the proper valuation of real estate in the various parts of the County, and there is not the slightest necessity for the tour of the county by these officials that is now proposed. The appointment is a menace to every township in the County and their visitation is expected to coerce local assessors into fixing a higher valuation than the condition of affairs warrants, solely for the purpose of benefitting Elizabeth, which now bears only its just proportion of the expenses of the County.

The JOURNAL cannot have forgotten the howl of righteous indignation that went up throughout the State a few months ago, when the original taxation bill was introduced. The feature of that bill, to which the most strenuous objection was made, was that investing the Board of Taxation with inquisitorial powers. Nothing is more offensive to the citizens of any township than an attempt to regulate local taxation by a board composed of those who of right should not be given a voice in the adjustment of a tax levy. The townships of this County should not permit this ludicious attack to be carried to a successful issue until they have exhausted every energy in warding off an attack fraught with such dangerous consequences.

THE Mercer County Board of Freeholders have just shown that it is a power great at which two cents count. At the recent election the Democrats carried that hitherto Republican County by an overwhelming majority, in the hope of retaining control of the office. The Republican Board at once forced the Republican warden of the County Jail, to resign, and elected in his stead a Republican ex-soldier, in the hope that he would be continued in office by the operation of the Vet-eran's Act. When the Democratic Board organized, they very properly fixed this Warden's salary at $25 per annum, and elected two Democratic Assistants at $720.

The Republican Solicitor was voted a salary of $50 per annum, and a Democratic Attorney was chosen at $300 per annum. When our Republican friends resort to "peanut politics" of so despicable a character, they should be certain the game is all in their own hands.

LUCY CARTER.

TOO MUCH PRAISE cannot be bestowed upon those who have labored so earnestly, so perseveringly, and in the end so successfully to induce the Trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, to open the doors of that institution to the public on Sundays. The benefit likely to be derived by the residents of New York from this concession to public sentiment, cannot be estimated, but it is certain to vindicate the wisdom of the Trustees' course. Among those who must find good cause for self congratulation on this occasion, none is more clearly entitled to it than LEV. HIST sprightly weekly journal of wit, which has maintained the fight unceasingly for a number of years.

THOSE who see in the proposed coalition of the Democratic party and the Farmer's Alliance in the West, grave dangers of the result of the next Presidential election in case there is no choice of President by the people, may perhaps be encouraged by knowing that in such an event the election would fall to the House of Representatives chosen at the last election, and the choice of a Democratic Executive is thereby assured. But at the same time even this consideration should not be sufficient to induce the leaders in the West to abandon the time-honored principles of their party for the doubtful advantage of the passing power and fleeting glory of a successful campaign. The party is not yet old enough to permit the "tail to wag the dog."

IT MAY HARDLY be necessary to call the attention of our readers to the steady increase in the number of our short advertisements cutting forth the wants of our patrons. There is no surer test of the value of a newspaper as an advertising medium than is found by the number of its short advertisements. In this respect the Record enjoys a well-deserved popularity among those who are able to recognize its numerous advantages.

IT IS TO BE HOPED the residents of Summit will take some steps to promote the permanent organization of an amateur company that may be relied on to provide some form of entertainment or amusement at frequent intervals during the year. The attendance at the minstrel show last week shows very clearly that our town will give a generous support to such venture. This inducement, of itself, should be sufficient incentive to insure the inauguration of such an enterprise, and the advantage to the town would more than warrant the people of Summit in taking active steps for its advancement

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

TRIMMINGS, MILLINERY—NOTES AND ANSWERS.

The prominence of tan and coffee cream shades, has caused a prolonged use of black trimmings. They not only make an excellent show on such pale backgrounds, but by means of them, many women can wear these stylish colors that otherwise, would be absolutely impossibilities. Bands around the bottom of skirts, extending all the way up perpendicular are in great favor and make elegant ones are of broad passementerie in close patterns, yet the majority are of silk or velvet, black or cream and not a few are of the material if plain. In the latter case it is on the bias and bended by a narrow galoon or piping, often of gold. Often too, the entire skirt is made on the bias and this is prominently true in respect to wools of large, loose, diagonal weave in tan, coffee, green or gray. Two narrow ruffles of the material are very popular for light goods as also two narrow falls of lace but a single fall of wide lace is so elegant, that it becomes almost inevitably and instead dresses show a wide lace flounce around the lower edge that corresponds to one about the bacque, with puffed sace sleeves over plain ones, may just mention with a lace ruffle or jabot at the throat. The possibility of renovating a last season's dress by means of basque skirtings and trimming at the bottom, are easily recognized and utilized by thrifty women.

FINE LEGHORN STRAW

is an exception to the rule against plain weave in millinery and some of the most stylish hats which even now are being sold against the summer resort season, are of this stuff. The material is fashioned elegantly by broad ribbon loops and flowers that contend the low crowns and sweep the brims of the back and turn up at the sides, in a striking example above a wide, soft brim puckered in the embroidery and hung sleeve that quite recently it is said from which extends a spray of roses. A crown and tie begin by a small circle of several very large and very showy roses that are the prettiest to a crescent shaped brim of puffed chiffon which forms the support to a beautiful array of small flowers and bright berries and a third unique example has the items well wisely composed in large stems, the outer one forming an exceeded circle with inner ones branching at wide intervals. A deal of white lace on mauve, seems to have taken ecstatically into public and competition is afforded by four wide open roses. Such hats of course come under the head of expensive caprices.

NOTES AND ANSWERS.

"Eleanor." A pretty prefer a watering place, would be of chiffon made in two full ruffles, the lowering one reaching to the waist and with lace in the ruffling about the throat. Such caper ruffles are sold for 65 a piece or if ingenious, you could make one for yourself. Delicate examples in white, not charming gone, are in pale blue, yellow or pink.

"Mrs. L." There is great choice in Florida water and if you wish the best sold, ask for Murray and Lanman's, which none can compare for fragrance, purity or durability of aroma. Its popularity increases every season, since all who make trial of it, must perceive its superiority.

Gingham, batiste and similar light cotton fabrics are trimmed with lace or open work embroidery. Russian applique bands in cream color and brier stitching gimps as well, are also employed in finish.

Petticoats of taffeta silk trimmed with ruffles are in style because the long skirts require to be lifted. Taffeta silk is also quite fashionable for dresses and for either petticoats or dresses, the change silk is very pretty. Changeable silk parasols may correspond.

ANOTHER NEW YORK HIT.

"THE MERCHANT" AT THE MADISON SQUARE THEATRE.

The even success of Miss Morton's play "The Merchant" at the Madison Square Theatre since the opening night is completely fulfilling Manager's expectations. Plays that can call out big audiences every night are not common now-a-days. "The Merchant is the talk of the day in theatrical circles (and outside as well) and as a distinctly American play by an American author and produced by an American Manager is a matter of common congratulation. To the critic worry while comes to and some people who are tailed farce comedy and the utterly mindless sensationalism of the realistic melodrama there is something infinitely refreshing in a delicate comedy, depending in this lovely play as of a breeze upon the forehead or a stream murmuring sweet sounds in the ear. Advance sale continues steadily increasing as is attest the "The Merchant's" popularity. The play is going to stay quite a while. A considerable share of the distinguished success that greeted the performances during the week was due to the admirable manner in which the drama was acted.

Summit Record

SUMMIT, N. J., SATURDAY, MAY 23, '91.

Local Brevities.

—Mrs. John Thompson, called for Simpson a week ago, and will spend the summer at her old home—Leeds.

—Mr. Hamilton W. Mabie addressed a meeting of the Outlook Club of Montclair last night on the subject of "The Impulse Behind Universities."

—Monday morning the pastor of the Baptist Church will preach on the inspiration of the Bible. There will be no morning service in the evening.

—Henry Bowers, formerly with E. D. Beach, 22nd street and Broadway, New York, has opened a business store on Chestnut avenue near Springfield avenue.

—Miss Ella Mattlely, an old lady who has been suffering for the past three weeks with pleuro-neumonia, died on Thursday night at her residence on Park avenue.

—On Monday, at the death of Mrs. W. B. Crosby, the entertainment arranged to be given by the Princeton Club club at the Casino last night was indefinitely postponed.

—Anthony Comstock was one of the speakers at the fifth annual meeting of the Law and Order League, of Newark, held in St. Paul's Church on Tuesday evening.

—Mr. Parker W. Page, and family, on Thursday moved into their handsome new residence on Springfield avenue. The house vacated by them on Norwood avenue will be occupied during the summer by Mr. F. F. Hoagst of New York.

—Mr. Charles Decker, of Springfield, has been appointed a member of the finance committee of the New York Industrial Garden. Among his associates on the committee are such well-known business men as J. Pierpont Morgan, Andrew Carnegie, Eugene Kelly, Jesse Seligman, and several others.

—A team of horses owned by Col. Martin, and driven by Jerry Lee became frightened in the Park on Monday, and ran away throwing Lee out of the wagon. The horses were hitched to a heavy farm wagon and ran down Springfield avenue as far as High Street before stopping. The wagon was entirely smashed, one coddling with the runway rails. Lee escaped with a slight cut on the knee.

—The American Mineral Company which gave such a decidedly successful entertainment at the Casino last Friday evening, will probably repeat the performance in Morristown in a short time. The managers of the Company are at present negotiating for a hall in that place for an early date as possible, and if they succeed in securing the hall they desire the entertainment will be given for the benefit of the Fresh Air Home.

—Sunday morning in the Methodist Church, the pastor will preach on "Hard Sayings in our Songs." In the evening, right o'clock in place of the usual evening service, a Hymn Service will be held, similar to the special services held last Sunday in the Church. On this occasion, only Anger can hymns will be sung. Some avenue will be given for the Hymns and their authors, and there will be special instrumental music.

—At a meeting held in Congress Hall on Monday evening the members of the Fire Company decided to adopt as their uniform, for the present, a cone hat. A belt and shirt will be added to the uniform by a few months. The hat cost, at present, 75 cents, and is very serviceable, made of strong material, and not only serves as a protection against any heavy article falling from the burning buildings but it can be used to shield the face from heat, during a fire.

—Burglars attempted to enter the residence of Mr. Robert Phillips, in South Summit, last Friday evening, but were frightened away before they succeeded. Mrs. John T. Sherrer, who occupies one part of the house in which Mr. Phillips resides, heard a noise at one of the windows of the first floor about one A. M. and she opened her bedroom and saw Mr. Phillips. They reached the window in time to see two men running across the yard in the rear of the house.

—Among the guests at the Blackburn House on Saturday night: Mr. Armour, of Stanley; Mr. and Mrs. John McClellan, of New York; Miss Julia Stout, of Philadelphia; Mr. N. S. Elston, family, of Summit; Miss S. Johnson, of Newark; Mrs. and Miss Gertrude Lewis, of Flushing; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Maclean, of Chicago; Mr. Thomas Ward, of Summit; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Seward, of New York; Mrs. London, of Guilford, Conn.; Miss Lipphoard, of New York; Mr. C. H. LeFevre and family, of New York.

—Mrs. James Reeves and Miss Rella Franks narrowly escaped serious injury from a runaway horse on Wednesday evening. They were visiting Mrs. Reeves son Charles, on Union Avenue and had just entered their carriage and were waiting for James Reeve Jr. who had driven them there to follow them and drive home when the horse became frightened and started up Union Avenue. At the corner of Maple Street and Railroad Ave, the wagon upset, throwing the ladies out, but fortunately they escaped uninjured except for the severe nervous shock which they suffered.

—Rev. J. F. Butterworth, A. F. Dalrman and Robert Morrell represented the Calvary Episcopal Church of Summit, at the seventeenth annual convention of the Episcopal Churches of the diocese of Newark, which opened in Trinity Church, Newark, on Tuesday. The standing Committee reported to the convention on Tuesday that they refused their consent to the consecration of Rev. Dr. Phillips Brooks, to Bishop of Massachusetts. The delegates from Summit were among those who signed a protest, on Tuesday dissenting from the decision of the Standing Committee.

—The work of taking the census in School District 16 and 20 was finished this week. The returns of District 19, compiled by William H. Shaler, show the total number of children in that district between the ages of five and 19 years to be 601 an increase of 23 over last year—Of this number 57 were classed as work and the remainder attend school. William Cogeshall, the enumerator of District 20, found in that district 167 children, an increase of six over last year. Three returns include all children attending either public or parochial schools.

—On Wednesday Mr. I. E. Daying, and family removed to the cottage on Summit avenue recently vacated by Mr. D. D. Mindell.

—Ralph Long, 16 year old son of James Long, sprained his ankle on Wednesday while jumping from the high platform at the freight depot.

—The residence of Mr. W. Whittredge on Summit avenue, has been rented for the summer from June 1, by Mr. L. W. Bliss, of the firm of Shiddy & Milford, office Broker, of New York.

—The Lawn Tennis grounds on Prospect street were opened for play this week. Members of the club are singularly unfortunate in the choice of the month in their membership. The grounds under the supervision of Mr. Hardwick have been put in excellent condition and the season bids fair to be a prosperous one.

—The convention of the Young People's Christian Endeavor Society, of Essex County, which will be held in Summit, to be held in Minneapolis July 9—12 and promises to be one of the largest religious gatherings ever held in this country. Thousands of people in all parts of the country have reduced the fare the fair to the Twin Cities during the time of the convention. The rate will be one-half what it would be at any other time and good for six weeks. It is probable that delegates will be present to represent the Summit branch but the number has not definitely been decided upon.

—Real Estate Agent Potter, has rented the residence of Mrs. Marshall B. Smith, on Summit avenue for the summer to Mr. Charles Wemple, of Newark. Mrs. Wemple will reside in Summit permanently. Mr. Henry Sayre, of New York, who spent the summer in Summit two years ago occupying at that time Mr. Sargent's present residence, has rented Mr. Comstock's house on Kent Place, for the summer, Mr. Sayre is in England awaiting for the summer from June 1.

—Mr. A. A. Taylor has decided to extend the curbing on Springfield avenue from the Presbyterian Church at D. Kitchel's store, around the corner to Maple street. This will afford some protection for children who are in imminent danger of running against the lightpost at the corner. The large boulder which was formerly used to protect that lightpost which was dragged from its place by a runaway horse almost a month ago still lies directly in front of Mr. Taylor's door and neither the Township Committee nor the Water Company show any inclination to remove it although it is a constant source of danger to both drivers and pedestrians.

—The syndicate, that purchased a large tract of property at Berkley Heights and immediately began to colonize it with Italians, appear to be doing a thriving business. Every Monday and Thursday the Passaic & Delaware train leaving Summit at 1.19 has one and sometimes two extra cars at the end for those Italians who are settling at Berkley. The syndicate owning the property have staked it out into lots 25x100 and an auction sale of these lots is held every Monday and Thursday afternoon. The lots sell readily, prices ranging from $25 up, hardly any selling more than $125. A small sum is paid down and the balance is to be paid in installments. It is said that no attempt is made to sell to any but Italians.

—No elaborate preparations are as yet being made for the celebration of Decoration Day, next Saturday. In former years it was customary to have one or more speeches but all seem to be intent on enjoying the holiday, but as Summit is without a ball team this year, that form of "amusement" will be sadly missed. There will however be a Tennis Tournament for gentlemen's singles and, doubles at the grounds of the Casino Club on that day and it should prove very interesting, as there are a large number of fine amateur players among the members of the Casino Club and their families to whom only, the tournament is open. Play will begin at 9:30 A. M. and there will be prizes for first and second in each event.

—The Grand Jury in session at Elizabeth brought in their bills on Thursday and among the indictments found were two for crimes committed in Summit. James Martin was indicted for assulting Hiram Searles. The assault was committed during a row about three weeks ago in which Searles was badly pummeled. Martin was arrested yesterday by Constable Mettrath and taken to Elizabeth to await trial. Four indictments were brought in against Joseph Malwith, the burglar arrested last week by Detective Kelly, for robbing the residence of George H. Le Hurey. Nearly all the silverware and jewelry in the estate, taken from Malwith, when captured by Detective Kelly, has been identified and sufficient evidence has been obtained against Malwith to convict him on each of the indictments found. The indictments were for the robbery of the residence of Leslie Lupton, City Counsel of Galway, on April 13; the residence of George J. Dey, of Cranford; the residence of Postmaster Whitaker of Westfield on May 10 and the residence of George H. Le Hurey on May 11. Each indictment contained two counts, one for breaking and entering, and the other for grand larceny.

—About six months ago a girl eight years of age was taken away from an unworthy mother in Newark and brought to Summit, by Mrs. G. K. Holmes. A female friend of the girls was an inmate of Arthur's House and after staying with Mrs. Holmes about a month the girl ran away inducing her brother to go with her, and returned to her mother. Notwithstanding the fact that she had been treated very kindly and furnished with everything that she needed, the girl told a sensational story of how she had been cruelly beaten, and some of the New York daily papers published the story. The girl was recently again taken by the Children's Society of Newark from her mother, who is incapable of taking proper care of her, and sent to Summit. Mrs. Holmes found a home for her with a family in Millburn, was adopted her and she was to be taught music and otherwise educated, and eventually to inherit the possessions of the family adopting her. She started continually for her mother however and so was returned to Mrs. Holmes. On Friday she ran away again and no trace of her can be found. Her brother is at the Arthur's Home perfectly contented and shows no disposition to follow his sister.

—The Orange Medical Society held a meeting last night at the residence of Doctor W. H. Bell.

—Next Saturday being Decoration Day the Record will be published the preceding Day, Friday.

—I. S. Plant & Co., of Newark, will place their establishment next Saturday afternoon, Decoration Day.

—Mr. Henry E. Simmons attended the Presbyterian Convention in session in Detroit this week as delegate from the Presbytery of Morris.

—Rev. G. A. Vassalo has engaged the Chimes Hall for the annual exhibition by the Summit Public Schools, which will be held on Friday June 26.

—"Children's Day" will be observed at the Presbyterian Church to-morrow. At the evening services at 7:30 P. M. the anniversary of the Sunday School will be celebrated.

—At the afternoon session of the Essex County Branch of the W. C. T. U. held at the Methodist Episcopal Church, East Orange, Mrs. E. H. Humphreys delivered an address. The meeting was well attended and Mrs. Humphrey's lecture proved very interesting.

—The Morris & Essex Railroad Company is preparing a new time-table which will contain a number of important changes in the passenger service. It is said there are to be a number of new trains added and there will be one fast line from Summit at 8:00 A. M. This time table will probably go into operation a week from Monday.

—A clever swindler who represented himself as a priest succeeded in victimizing a young man of seventy years, in the houses along the Boulevard this week. He claimed to be a priest and to have authority from the Archbishop of Newark to forward a contract for the approval of the Committee. Chairman Page stated that although he favored the contract he was unable to see anything that this offer of Mr. Sunlley's was the fairest the Committee had yet received for the street lighting, and he was heartily in favor of the contract being let.

The terms for each lamp $18 per year is 90 less than charged per year for each of the present lamps, as there will probably be about 300 lamps this means a saving of $1,200 a year to the tax-payers besides providing them with a much better light. It is highly likely that a contract will be established in Summit at the start. The Company will erect a "holder" which they will find from the gas low so of the Company located in South Orange. A contract will probably be signed at the next meeting of the Township Committee.

The Committee received a complaint about the Park Avenue road at the old saffin factory. They decided to engage Lewis Vogel to make an examination to test to whether the road bed runs into the old the old quarry and if so it will be repaired. Appropriations for water and lights for the ensuing year were voted upon. The amount voted for water was $3,000 and for lights $6,500 there being a large balance in the water account.

A petition was presented to the Committee by Doctor William H. Bisk containing the recommendation of the Citizens Committee on Sewerage appointed at some months ago and requesting that the Township Committee decide the sewerage question at as early a date as possible. This petition was signed by over two-thirds of the property owners in the Township.

During the past week death has cast its deepest shadow over our township. Never before has it been our sad duty to announce the death of the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Crosby, a child beloved by all who knew her, and whose loss excited the sympathy of the entire community. To the parents her death was a bereavement which few are called upon to bear; and so great was it that Mrs. Crosby has not survived the burden and have called to join her daughter beyond that veil which no human eye has pierced. The sudden death of Mrs. Crosby following so closely that of her daughter has cast a deep gloom over our village. She was a lady of rare intellectual gifts, most charming social qualities and very positive character. She possessed in a high degree qualities which easily entitled her to rank among the most useful and influential of our residents. As a christian worker in the many fields of local activities her influence predominated and her frank, intelligent and independent as well as courteous and sympathetic spirit pervaded every undertaking with which she was associated. In her death neighbors and friends will suffer a great personal loss, and the village miss an energetic and enthusiastic worker in all its charitable and social movements.

It is impossible to offer any consolation to mitigate the sorrow that is universally felt for the bereaved family; but it is some comfort to believe that the decease has been spared the intense affliction which she was suffering and to suffer, and has been called to join the dear one who so recently preceded her only to welcome her to that bourne from which no traveller returns.

The manifestations of sorrow on every hand are but a meagre tribute to a beautiful life of a most lovely woman.

Mrs. Crosby will be buried to-day. Funeral services will be held in the Central Presbyterian Church, and will consist of the singing of the hymns "For all the saints who from their labor rest" "Oh Master let me walk with thee" "Abide with me, fast falls the even tide" and the chant "Lord make me to know mine own." There will also be readings from the Scriptures and a few remarks by the pastor Rev. T. F. White.

LIGHTING THE STREETS.

THE COMMITTEE ACT FAVORABLY ON A PROPOSAL FROM SOMMIT GAS LIGHT COMPANY.

At their meeting on Tuesday evening the Township Committee received a proposal from Mr. A. A. Smalley, President of the Summit Gas Light Company, for lighting the streets of the town with gas and the proposal was acted upon favorably by the Committee. Following is the communication:

NEWARK May 15, 1891.

To the members of the Township Committee Summit, New Jersey.

GENTLEMEN:—

The Summit Gas Light Company propose to lay six miles more or less of street mains in the principal streets of Summit and to supply lights for the term of three years from October 1, 1891, at the following rates on the Bray and Maine and at such places as may be designated by your Committee also to light an equivalent, clean and keep in order said lamps, and supply burners required to consume not more than five feet of gas per hour each lamp to be lighted for 3,000 hours per year or per schedule herein-after mentioned, gas to be of good quality and supplied under suitable pressure, burners required beyond the limits of our street mains we propose to light with gasoline, the cost of which will be paid for by those now in use or owned by the town; to remove and replace the lamps and do other work needed to be furnished by us for the sum of Twenty Five Dollars ($18) per year per lamp. If our proposal meets with your approval we will at once forward contract on duplicate for execution on receipt of your reply.

Respectfully yours,

SUMMIT GAS LIGHT COMPANY,
A. A. SMALLEY,
President.

The Committee decided unanimously to accept the proposal and to allow the Company to forward a contract for the approval of the Committee. Chairman Page stated that although he favored the contract he was unable to see anything that this offer of Mr. Sunlley's was the fairest the Committee had yet received for the street lighting, and he was heartily in favor of the contract being let.

The terms for each lamp $18 per year is 90 less than charged per year for each of the present lamps, as there will probably be about 300 lamps this means a saving of $1,200 a year to the tax-payers besides providing them with a much better light. It is highly likely that a contract will be established in Summit at the start. The Company will erect a "holder" which they will find from the gas low so of the Company located in South Orange. A contract will probably be signed at the next meeting of the Township Committee.

THE "KING'S DAUGHTERS."

REMARKABLE SUCCESS OF THEIR FAIR AT THE Y. M. C. A. HALL.

Notwithstanding the threatening weather of Thursday afternoon and evening, the fair held by the "King's Daughters" at the Y. M. C. A.-Hall was well attended, and proved a decided success. Too much credit cannot be accorded to the individual members of the society, for the zeal displayed in the cause of Charity. Mrs. Wendelken, President of the Society, Mrs. Charles J. Fisher, Jr., and Mrs. Theodore C. Littell had charge of nearly all the preliminary arrangements, and the smoothness with which the affair was conducted showed how well their share of the work had been performed. During the intervals between the showers in the afternoon the hall was filled and the contents of the tables quickly were nearly disposed of. The room was prettily decorated with flags and banners, and presented a very attractive appearance. The tables were laden with articles of every description both useful and ornamental. Every article displayed was donated, so that all money received was clear profit, and over $200 will be turned into the treasury of the Fresh Air Home as the result. The first table was covered with kitchen utensils donated by Mr. S. O. Burnett, of Brooklyn, a brother of Mrs. Fisher, and on this table could be found many articles of great use and value in a modern household. Miss Paterson had charge of this table. The fancy table or perfumery on the next table were donated by Isabel & Cotlin, of New York, and the table was in charge of Mrs. Fisher. Mrs. F. R. Littell, Miss Corbin and Miss Cooper had charge of the fancy table on which was displayed many very pretty novelties. One of the handsomest articles offered for sale was a slumber robe crocheted by Mrs. Fisher, but the ladies were unable to find a purchaser for it. The flower table was taken charge of by Misses Mary Williams, H. DeForest's and Mr. John N. May's greenhouses and a splendid lot of cut-flowers were donated by Mr. Robert MacDonald. Miss Strong and Miss Westlake had charge of this table. The candy table was watched over by Miss Howell and Miss Day and the cake table by Miss Lafleury Mrs. Cornell and Miss Julia Littell. The ice-cream which discovered the clear profit was in charge of A. N. Martin, Mrs. H. L. Pierson and Mrs. W. R. DeForest.

PETITION OF THE W. C. T. U.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of this place, expect to hold a special meeting on Sunday next, May 24, in unison with the "World's Christian Temperance Union," for the signing and circulating of a petition, which is to be presented to every government in the world, assembled. In a so ambitious effort, with worthy intent, and taken up with so much enthusiasm by organized communities, that no effort can be in vain, even though the final purpose should not be accomplished. The petition reads as follows:

TO THE GOVERNORS OF THE WORLD.

Honored Rulers, Representatives and Brothers:

We, your petitioners, although belonging to the physically weaker sex, are strong of hearts to love our homes, our native lands, and the world's family of nations.

We know that clear brains and pure hearts make honest lives and happy homes, and that by these the nations prosper, and the time is hourly hastened when the world shall be at peace.

We know that indulgence in alcohol and opium, and in other vices which dishonor our social life prevent peace in the world, and most of all for us and for our children.

We also know that stimulants and opiates are sold under legal guarantees which make the Governments partners in the traffic, by receiving as revenue a portion of the profits, and we know, too, that unless that they are often forced by treaty upon populations, either ignorant or unwilling.

We know that the law might do much, now left undone, to lessen the evil in some of society and render vice difficult.

We have no power to prevent these things, but we believe that if the rulers of world governments, but you have power to redeem the honor of the nations from an indefensible complicity.

We therefore come to you with the united voices of representative women of every land, beseeching you to lift the standard of the law to that of christian duty, by giving to the safeguards and sanctions of the law from the drink traffic and the opium trade, and in protect our homes by the total prohibition of these curses of civilization throughout every territory over which your Government extends.

AN INTERESTING REPORT.

The Fresh Air Home was visited a few weeks ago by Mr. George S. Baker, Superintendent of St. Luke's Hospital, New York, and after a close inspection of the workings of the Institution he made his report commending the appeal of the managers of the Home to the patronage and friends of St. Luke's Hospital. The report is very interesting, and coming from an authority, as Mr Baker undoubtedly is, on a subject of this kind, should result in collecting many friends for the Institution, more of the charitable citizens, not only of Summit, but also of New York, to whom the report is especially directed. There are at present thirty patients at the Home under the care of the matron and the number is steadily increasing. Following is Mr. Baker's report:

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL,
5th, street & 5th, avenue,
New York, May 19, 1891.

Trustees it may concern:

The managers of the Fresh Air and Convalescent Home at Summit, N. J., invited me at their request, to visit some for quite a number of the convalescent infants from St. Luke's Hospital, all of whom were greatly benefitted thereby, and also to see the Home and the of the kind care and treatment they received. I have personally visited the institution this summer and find it admirably furnished in every particular for the purpose of convalescent children recovering from the New York hospitals. The Institution is most beautifully situated in a beautiful locality. It has lawn furnished with steam heating apparatus throughout, and is well provided with hot and cold water throughout the year, and with the new improvements which have been made for a competent resident physician, the Institution will become a valuable auxiliary to our large hospitals of New York.

As the patients are almost exclusively from the City, and are generally sent out without charge to themselves, the managers of the Institution have a strong and just claim upon the charitable citizens of New York for contributions towards the support of this most worthy work, and I most cordially commend the Institution to the kind friends of this institution.

A shadowy room, a jar of roses,
An oaken settle, broad and low,
A rug on oaken floor, and
And fluttering curtains white as snow.

A quaint old chest with dragons sprawling,
Brought from the East long years ago,
A dainty lass with shepherd calling
Her sheep. The artist was Watteau.

The breeze blown gently perfume bringing,
Gathered from flowers far and near,
And through the casement, upon entering,
A robin's note comes, sweet and clear.

CITIZEN'S LEAGUE MEETING.

A meeting of "The Citizens' League of the State of New Jersey," formed at Trenton, May 2, 1891, will be held in Library Hall, in the city of Elizabeth, on Tuesday the 26, day of May, at 2 P. M. The object of this meeting is a free conference upon the matter of opposing future legislation in favor of legalizing gambling upon race tracks in New Jersey, and Sunday liquor selling. From what has been accomplished in this direction, we may well thank God, and take courage in this work, which is now to be done. Final success will be attained only by unceasing vigilance and unwearied effort. We must expect a renewal of the battle in the next Legislature of our State. For this we should be prepared beforehand. The pick is "A minister's movement" it spans north and westward to the land and to Highland people of New Jersey. All who are interested in this work, which is of such vast interest to our homes, our commonwealth, and the whole State, are earnestly invited to attend this meeting, whether as presently members of the League or not.

IMPORTANT FACTS.

M'Kohn has extensively increased his stock of groceries, and his store on Springfield avenue presents a very attractive appearance filled as it is with everything in the line of groceries necessary for a first class establishment. Mr. Kohn was obliged to fill up his stock owing to the increase in his business during the past few months, but he has not forgotten the fact that people demand low prices, and he has reduced accordingly.

H. TRAVELL.

Those who are in the habit of purchasing their dry-goods Co. in Newark and New York, would be considerably surprised if they knew the low price at which Mrs. Rapelyea of Springfield avenue, and see the large assortment of dress goods she has on hand, and which those people imagine are not obtainable outside of the cities. Mrs. Rapelyea has just put in a large stock of fine dress goods in stock.

The lockwalnut on Railroad avenue recently vacated by Theodore Fulton, will hereafter be under the management of a first-class barber from New York, where Charles Hermann, the owner of the shop, has engaged to explect the business for him.

The store of M. D. Kitchel on Springfield avenue presents a very pretty sight at this season, filled as it is, with all sorts of novelties and fine goods for summer wear. Miss Kitchel has secured the services of an experienced milliner and has added a millinery department to her store. Some fine work in the way of hats, trimming has been done by this milliner, and there is no doubt, but Miss Kitchel will be amply repaid for the enterprise she has undertaken. Miss Kitchel has also in this store some very pretty bicycle and lawn tennis caps and blazers for which there has been a great demand for the past few weeks.

This chapter of our advertising book is to be devoted to MUSLIN UNDERWEAR—not a long one, but highly important and entertaining. Underwear is a delicate subject, but clothing is something here to interest you. Perhaps its a Night Dress in Mother Hubbard style with sailor collar or with surplice neck, lace trimmed. Prices 75c. to $2.60, with a very pretty line at $1.20. Perhaps its a plain Skirt with tucks, tucked ruffles, embroidered ruffles or lace trimmed, at 70c. to $2.85. If these fail to attract, the Combination Suits will, anyhow. Think of its Corset Covers and Skirts combined; surplice back and front, high, square, or low neck well adapted to the present style of dressing because they fit so snugly—the whole for $1.40 to $3, a bargain in every way. Perhaps you have, like many others, discarded the Chemise. True, its a trifle old-fashioned, but we find plenty who wear it and the best Chemises, plain and trimmed styles at 38c. to $1.20. Muslin Drawers with tucks or embroidered ruffles are 45c. to $1.20 the pair here, and Underskirts sell as low as 38c.—good, too. Pretty and new styles of Corset Covers at 25c.; and a complete Corset $1.00. Its a great stock.

IN THE NIGHT.

As I enter the shadowy parlors of night,
To stroll in her starlight-lit vest,
First Memory whispers a ravished delight,
And summons a blush from the past.

Let Marjorie pipe; the great painter and poet
Shall
Thus we loved speak again in her art.
How the strains of her violin sound, at her will,
Like the chords of a human heart!

It is only a dream, such as travelers say
Thirst gives in the lands of the sun;
And the cool, sweet tone and the form pass away—
The music and story are done!

I call on my love in grief's passionate words,
If only one footfall I hear;
But all time I hear is the twitter of birds
That wake in her morning grey.

Where the far distant Alps seem a cloud land of snow,
Are a lake and a valley so fair,
As a sentimental, wise, with the record of woe,
To tell she is sleeping there.

A CALIFORNIA MUSTANG.

The other day a Kern county rancher telegraphed to the best horse doctor in San Francisco:

"Take the next train, come out to my farm, and do what you can for my mustang."

The doctor went, found an old saddle horse, long past usefulness, in fact dying, and returned, wondering what made the rancher so anxious about the animal.

Others wondered, too, until the story was one day told to a few friends who were visiting at the old ranch house near the foothills. There is perhaps nothing in the affair which merits it as different from many occurrences on the frontier, where homes are far apart, and where life itself may sometimes depend upon a saddle-horse's speed and bottom. But, told in the rambling fashion in which it was given to me, it has a story that long clung to the memory.

"It was more than thirty years ago," he said. "I was 18 years old, and had been away from home attending school. When I came back to the ranch it layout near the foothills, my mother came crying to the door to meet me.

"My little sister was very ill. She was only 6 years old, my pet and delight, and my mother was a widow. An older sister was in Pentland teaching school; my brother, who managed the ranch, had gone to Stockton to buy sheep, and mother and baby were alone. It was eight miles to the nearest village and stage station, from which place I had walked, reaching the house at dark. I went in and found little Mary unconscious; my mother could not tell what was the matter. I ran down to the pasture and called my colt, Major, the best horse I ever owned. He came at once, and I saddled him and rode off at a gallop.

"It was early winter, and rain had made the road heavy; cloudy all day, a drizzle began before I had been five minutes in the saddle. I had neither whip nor spur. Now and then I spoke to Major, and he knew them was work before him. Two miles we went without a pause, the road dead level and so slippery that I could feel Major slide like a log on a frosted sidewalk; but he managed to keep his feet and resume his wild pace. He took the bit in his teeth and ran, snorting with excitement; for a year he had not been ridden, and his muscles were steel, his lungs like a steam engine. I let him walk for a few moments, then he ran into his long again and again, until he swept into the village in a tearing gallop.

"Not here, was the answer, as I hammered at the doctor's door. 'Gone ten miles into the foothills to the old Belmont place.'

"That was such in a direct line, and three miles south was another village where perhaps a doctor could be found. If not it was but a few minutes lost, for another road could be taken to Belmont's.

"Again the wild pace under the clouds sky and cold rain, the thoughts of my lone mother and little sister urging me to yet greater haste. The road was hard, with a thin coating of ice that splintered from heat to foot, and the wind blew sharply in my face. I lived over in memory every scene of our brief life, my word said to my sister, every act done in the past—her arms about my neck in thanks for some simple gift; long rides behind the plow, with her toddling feet in the furrow; a child asleep in the summer grass, a bunch of wild poppies in her chubby hand, the college graduation tassel back from her curly head. Then I remembered that when I went away mother wrote me that every day little Mary asked: 'When brother Tom come home to-night? I want to see brother Tom.'

"Well, I reached the village and found that the doctor, who lived there, was sick himself. Nothing to do but to start for Belmont's. Again the gallop, no longer on level road, but through rolling hills and under a darkness that was Egyptian. We were descending into a hollow between two hills. The road was narrow, dark, slippery, and the soft patter of the rain drowned the noise of wheels. Through a break in the storm clouds the stars alone cast above the hill crest. Suddenly, instantly, without a stroke of warning, there loomed up before me, dreadful as De Quincey's "Vision of Sudden Death," a huge mass of pile, six mules, a Carson wagon crawlers to the brim, a sleepy driver nodding on his seat—and tearing into that mass of wood, iron, stone and animal life was a tired horse with a heartsick rider.

"Simultaneously the discovery came upon us all. The driver awoke with a hoarse, affrighted cry, the scowling mules sprang back in a wild group; I heard whiffletree and harness snap, and a sudden flash of lightning lighted up the dark hollow between the hills to the very feet of the frightened animals. Of myself I could no more remember or narrow—the space between, so brief the time left for thought. But the instinct of the horse I rode was my salvation. On one side of the road was a shallow ditch, on the other a steep wall of rock. Major gathered himself up and made a leap sideways, swerving as he sprang, and we landed safely below, clearing by a few inches the scattered loads and the great wheel of the ore wagon. Wild with terror still, Major began to run as he had never run before. He climbed the hill again, and resumed the tearing pace along the roadway, his lung mane blown back by the force of the wind of his terrific flight.

"That night in the village the teamster told his story to a crowd of listeners; Mexican highwayman had ridden down upon him, frightened his mules and fired several shots as he galloped past. The sheriff heard the story and gathered up a posse of pioneers to look for Joaquin Murieta, and his desperate gang, and for weeks the players up in the hills saw a guard with their ore wagons. Not my chum's father, however, for he had that the doctor had returned to the valley, by another road, and was shocked at not my chum's father, for particular for the condition of my horse now began to show the effects of the terrible long pace. I hired a rancher and sent him on a fresh horse after the doctor, while I took the shortest way back across the wide unbroken country.

"When I reached home Mary had been dead an hour. No human power could have prolonged her life. She revived a little once after I had gone and spoke to my mother, for the last time, and again. I found it very hard to bear the thoughts of my little sister that came up when I was riding over the hills with the mustang, so I turned the loose in the pasture, and he never has saddlemark but once since, though I have had dozens of men come to see and offer to buy him at any price. It was a great ride we had—the longest and hardest gallop on record in this part of the country, and though I never said much about it, the horse had his reputation.

"When was he ridden again? It was about four years afterward, when he was at his best. There came word from Calliente that a Merced horse had beaten every mustang in the San Joaquin valley. The boys along the Kern county cattle ranges for twenty-five miles tried to beat the Merced mustang, but all that summer he swept the stakes at every sleep shearing and rodeo. One day a dozen of them came for my mustang, and I lent him for one race, to save the credit of the county. He dusted them all, and for months after horsemen came to see him and get him on the racetrack, but I never let him go again. One time and another I have been called a great many different kinds of a fool for letting the best horse in the valley rest in the pasture."—Charles Howard Shinn in Independent.

College Societies in New York.

The college fraternities bind men together for life in ties that are never broken. I think you will be surprised to know some of our leading men who belong to them, and still in their later years take great delight in assisting to keep up the organizations and the old spirit. Associations or chapters of graduate members of the fraternities are maintained in New York city by fifteen of the orders, and some of the clubs are in a flourishing condition. Alpha Delta Phi has a club house near Columbia college, and the Manhattan chapter of this order keeps up a summer camp at Lake George, called Camp Alashabeth. The Beta Theta Pi fraternity has a summer resort at Lake Ciuntuqua called Woodlawn. The D. K. E. order has the largest graduate club in the United States in this city, with a fine clubhouse and an excellent restaurant.

Several other of the clubs do not own their houses, but rent quarters. There are a good many papers devoted to these associations printed in this city. I know of Tau Phi of Alpha Tau Omega; the Old Psi Quarterly, the Delta Kappa Epsilon Quarterly, and the Delta Upsilon Quarterly. The first college fraternity that ever unfurled to the wind was run up on the top of the Aster House in 1776 by the boys of the Theta Delta Chi. It was black, white and blue, and since that time nearly all the fraternities have adopted flags showing their colors.—New York Star.

Whose Face Was It?

A few years ago while a workman at Pueblo, Colo., was dressing a block of stone his chisel suddenly uncovered a perfection near the surface of the block. Presently this concavity, which was rounded on the back, dropped from the cavity in which it rested, disclosing a perfect model of a human face in another surface, every outline perfect, nature and unmarked by the tool which had dislodged it. The imprint in the block was as perfect as the model on the concretion, and many plaster casts were taken from it by archæologists and local curiosity seekers. Some of these casts found their way to the museums of the learned societies of Europe, where they created much excitement and were the subject of many debates. Many scientists were inclined to take it as a perfect human fossil, but the majority insist upon it being merely a freak of prehistoric times. The stone in which it was found was from eighty feet below the surface.—St. Louis Republic.

Pine Tree Soap.

An American inventor has brought out a process for making soap from the resinous matter in the needles of the pine tree. The resin is extracted by means of alkali, and the woody fiber is removed from the product, which on addition of fat yields an ordinary soap containing rosinous and fatty acids.—New York Journal.

Octave Feuillet, the French novelist. Octave Feuillet, whose death occurred on Dec. 30, was one of the most prominent of French novelists. Feuillet's sales for the party of his French and the high tone which prevailed in his works. He was the exact opposite of his brother, and was considered a family novelist. His best known work, the "Roman d'un Jeune Homme Pauvre," is used as a text book in English schools. It was, we believe, first published in England in a cheap form many years ago by Cassell & Co., and acquired popularity. M. Feuillet was 86 years of age.

Some New Machines for Wheelmen.

A gentleman wheelman who attended the recent Stanley bicycle show in England were much disappointed to find that most of the new styles of bicycles and tricycles are cumbersome and complex. And in their opinion none of the new folding devices will be used to any extent in this country. Of course many fine machines were shown, four or five of which were especially noticeable. The improvement in one of these, called the "Zimer," consist of a movable handle bar provided with a lever. The lever is attached to rods running to some mechanism concealed in a box near the axle. And the object of the contrivance is to render hill climbing easy and to relieve the upward pressure on the handle. While it is said to give the wheelman some little relief when climbing a hill, the facility with which the complex machinery will work is hard actual service is a matter of speculation.

Another new machine is a tricycle provided with an electric battery. The battery is placed amid wheels, and it is claimed that it will propel the machine on a smooth road at a speed of from eight to twelve miles an hour. But it is not at all certain that it would be serviceable on an average rough road in this country. Another machine, a bicycle, was exhibited, the chief novelty of which was a rubber tire made in the form of a spring. It is called the "Martin." The highest honors exhibited was a 24-pound cushion tired safety, and the most complicated and cumbersome was one called the "Bicycle." It has some new ideas in the shape of a spring in the handle bar, and most of the American wheelmen who saw it believe that its popularity are not likely to be greater than heretofore.—New York Tribune.
