Organized Crime Tie To Be Probed In N.J.

TRENTON (AP)—The state legislature plans another inquiry into organized crime in the wake of a controversy over whether members of the legislature are linked to the underworld.

State Senate President Edwin B. Forsythe, R-Burlington, said Thursday there would be some kind of new legislative look following charges by Asst. Atty. Gen. William J. Brennan III that "three legislators are entirely too comfortable with members of organized crime."

Brennan, who heads a grand jury investigating allegations of official corruption in New Jersey, spoke Wednesday night at a meeting of Sigma Delta Xi, a journalism society. He replied to a question from the audience.

In a written statement issued Thursday evening, Brennan said he did not mean to imply that "three or any number of legislators are criminally involved with Mafia members."

And State Atty. Gen. Arthur J. Sills, in an accompanying written statement, called Brennan's remarks "unfortunate."

"I would not have made this same statement," he said.

Sills also held an impromptu hallway news conference as he was being pushed in his wheelchair back to his office after meeting with Forsythe.

That meeting was highlighted by a clash between Sills and Ronald Sullivan, a reporter for The New York Times.

Sills accused Sullivan of misquoting him and at one point apparently knocked a notebook from Sullivan's hand while emphasizing a point.

"Don't you ever put your hands on me again. You're lucky I don't sue you for assault," Sullivan said.

Sills retorted "You just do that." The attorney general at that point entered an elevator, ending the meeting.

The joint statements by Sills and Brennan followed a daylong barrage by legislative leaders who said the charges had cast a cloud over the legislature.

"It's an irresponsible statement which casts a pernicious smear over the entire state," said Asst. Senate Majority Leader Raymond H. Bateman, R-Somerset. In slightly different language, many legislators — both Democrats and Republicans, said they agreed with him.

Forsythe said he would call for "some kind of legislative investigation" when the legislature reconvenes. He said at this point that he was not sure what kind.

But Majority Leader Frank X. McDermott, who will rotate into Forsythe's post in the new legislature, said he wants to reopen hearings by the Senate's Committee on Public Law and Safety, which heard lengthy testimony on the subject in September.

McDermott dashed off a telegram to Sills demanding the names to remove what he called a cloud over the legislature.

Draws Sills' fire.

But, he added, he was convinced that Brennan's charges had truth in them.

"I do not doubt the authenticity of Mr. Brennan's statement," McDermott said, and added he might hold up committee appointments in the next session unless he got the names.

In his written statement, Brennan said he did not disclose the names because "it would impute guilt by association on the individuals concerned."

Gov. Richard J. Hughes, recuperating in Hawaii from the flu he contracted at a conference there, said he would meet with Sills on the matter when he returned.

"I can't really comment until I've talked to him," Hughes said. "I personally have no knowledge of any members of the legislature who are connected with organized crime."

Brennan, whose father is Justice William Brennan of the U. S. Supreme Court, has been conducting an investigation before a special Mercer County grand jury empaneled to investigate charges of official corruption in New Jersey.

In the main part of his speech before the journalism society Brennan dealt with ways he thinks organized crime has infiltrated legitimate businesses. Afterwards, he was asked "What about the Legislature?"

His reply was that there are "three legislators who are entirely too comfortable with members of organized crime." He did not identify them by party, said they were "prominent," but then added that any member of the 40-member senate or 80-member assembly might be considered prominent.

Report Blast In Air

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — A Pan American 707 jet exploded over the Caribbean sea and plunged into the water Thursday night 16 miles from Venezuela's international airport north of Caracas.

Fifty-one persons were reported aboard, 42 passengers and a crew of nine, including a trainee stewardess. A search for survivors was continuing, but none was reported.

Officials said it was possible not all the bodies would be recovered.

Seven bodies were reported recovered before dawn.

A passenger list released by Pan American in New York listed 13 persons from addresses in the United States but six of these had Latin names and it was not immediately known whether they had been residing or visiting there.

Another five passengers were listed from addresses in Canada, one was from Italy, one from Ireland and one from Switzerland. The airline listed the other 21 passengers from Venezuela.

The pilot was Capt. Sidney E. Stillwaugh, 50, of West Islip, N.Y.

Among wreckage recovered were interior cabin fittings and some life rafts that inflate automatically upon contact with water.

The big jet was ending a nonstop flight from New York to Caracas. The airport control tower said it lost contact after the plane reported its approach one minute before it was due to land at 10 p.m.

"I heard a strong noise and then I saw a red ball fall towards the sea," said a guard at the La Guaira Naval Base, 12 miles north of Caracas.

Other residents near the shore also reported seeing the explosion. The wreckage was reported scattered over a wide area.

Radio Aeropuerto, a commercial station at the airport, said the plane reported it was in trouble before its radio went dead, but an airline spokesman said the pilot radioed the airport only "no maintenance," a routine transmission indicating no service would be required on the ground.

The plane had left New York's Kennedy Airport at 4:40 p.m.

Among the passengers was Mrs. Olga Antonetti de Dugarte, who had been "Miss Venezuela" in 1962. A resident of New York, she and her 4-year-old daughter were coming to spend Christmas with relatives.

A prominent Venezuelan advertising executive, Luis Beltran Gonzalez was also on the plane returning from a business trip to New York.

Pipeline Wasn't OKd, Reporter Tells Jury

By ROBERT K. TEDDER
Journal Staff Writer

NEWARK — A former newspaper reporter testified in the Colonial Pipeline bribery and conspiracy trial Thursday that he covered the Feb. 5, 1964 meeting of the Woodbridge Planning Board and approval of a Colonial building permit application for a tank field did not occur.

Henry J. Price, now an administrative assistant to newly elected Rep. Lowell Weicker Jr., R-4th District, Conn., said the original minutes of the Feb. 5 meeting showed no reference of action on the Colonial permit. He said the minutes were amended in May to include reference to board approval of the permit.

Price said he read the original minutes of the Feb. 5 meeting in April after being told by Louis Cyktor, board chairman, that the permit was approved at the Feb. 5 meeting.

Price said he asked Cyktor why the entry wasn't made and Cyktor explained it was an oversight. Cyktor said a record of the Colonial permit approval was in the notebook of Mrs. Marie Dagenhardt, planning board clerk.

WROTE STORIES

Price, who was a reporter for the Perth Amboy Evening News during 1964, said he wrote stories about the permit controversy on April 13 and April 21.

On cross-examination, Simon Rifkind, counsel for Ben D. Leuty, former Colonial president, asked Price if he had written inthe April 21 story that the permit was approved on Feb. 5.

When Price said he had written such a story, Rifkind wanted to know which was the truth, his testimony in court that the permit had not been approved on that date or the newspaper story.

"Both stories are the truth," Price replied.

HEARD RUMORS

Price said he heard rumors about a petrileum tank farm before the November, 1963 election. Theformer newsman said he asked Mayor Walter Zirpolo about the rumors and Zirpolo denied such a project was being planned.

Prize said Zirpolo categorized the rumors as "Republican hogwash."

Price identified a political flyer distributed during the 1963 councilmanic campaign. It bore the heading "Tanks? No Thanks." It was a statement by Zirpolo and then Council President Robert E. Jacks vowing opposition to additional petroleum tanks. The closing line was "This is the solemn pledge of men you can trust."

Under cross-examination by Adrian Foley, attorney for defendant Karl T. Feldman, a Colonial executive, Price denied that his conclusion that no action was taken at the Feb. 5 meeting was reached after reading his own story of the meeting in which Colonial was not mentioned.

John E. Toolan, counsel for Jacks, asked Price if he ever left early when covering plannong board meetings.

"Not with that board, I didn't," Price said.

4 Suspects Rest Cases In Gleason Death Trial

By JOAN B. HAGGERTY
and JAMES McCOMBE
Journal Staff Writers

Four of the remaining 10 defendants charged with the riot murder of Plainfield Patrolman John V. Gleason Jr. rested their cases Thursday, with only one, George Merritt Jr., choosing to testify on his own behalf.

Merritt, 24, of 540 W. Second St., Plainfield, took the witness stand in the afternoon after six persons, including his mother, borther and sister-in-law, testified for him. He denied taking part in the fatal beating of Gleason July 16, 1967, at Plainfield Ave. and W. Second St., Plainfield.

James Toland, 32, of 420 John St., Plainfield, concluded his case before Merritt without resuming the witness stand. Earlier in the trial, which is in its 14th week, Toland testified about a statement he allegedly gave detectives and denied throwing a stone at Gleason.

Two other defendants, Donald Jones, 23, of 834 W. Third St., and Miss Gail Madden, 21, of 1197 S. Second St., both Plainfield, rested their cases Thursday night without testifying on their own behalf.

Lawrence Brown, 20, of 433 W. Fourth St., Plainfield, was acquitted by Superior Court Judge Chester A. Weidenburner Tuesday on a motion made by his attorney.

FIVE TO GO

Still to be presented are the cases of the remaining five defendants, Wayne Streater, 21, 1213 W. Third St.; Clement Johnson, 32, 1227 W. Sixth St.; James Gary, 29, 918 W. Sixth St.; Robert Toy, 29, 1358 Willever St., and George Casey, 36, 1404 Willever St., all Plainfield.

Merritt, who served four years with the Marine Corps, said he was standing with five to eight others by a car in front of the apartment of his brother, Joe Louis Hollis, at 569 W. Third St., at about 8 p.m. July 16, 1967, when shouts about a policeman being at W. Third St. and Plainfield Ave. attracted his attention.

Merritt said he went to the intersection and witnessed a confrontation between Bobbie Lee Williams and Patrolman Gleason from a point about 15 feet behind the policeman.

He said Gleason fired two shots at Williams and someone in the crowd yelled, "He's firing blanks." He said Gleason then fired three more shots at Williams, who bent over, clutched his tomach and backed up.

Merritt said he watched two men pick up Williams and that he then heard his sister-in-law, Mrs. Marjorie Hollis, shout from a parking lot some 50 to 75 feet away that his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Merritt, wanted to speak to him on the telephone. Merritt claimed he took the call at the Hollis apartment and then spent an hour or more talking with a group outside the apartment before going home.

Under cross-examination by Asst. Prosecutor Raymond S. Londa, Merritt said Mrs. Hollis was about 40 feet from her apartment door when she called him to the telephone.

SHOCKED BY SHOOTING

Merritt told Londa that he was "shocked" and "amazed" at the shooting of Williams but that he was not angry at Gleason. He also told Londa that he had had not trouble with either Donald Frazier or Louis Alers, state witnesses who testified against him.

Frazier identified Merritt as the man who attacked Gleason with a meat cleaver.

Merritt claimed that the only person he recognized near the shooting site was Mrs. Nora Cabbell, his brother's neighbor, who, he said, was going toward the intersection as he was returning to the Hollis apartment.

Mrs. Cabbell testified that Merritt was standing by a car in the Elmwood Gardens parking lot before Williams, her cousin was shot. She claimed Merritt was on his way into his brother's apartment when she left for the intersection, where she saw her cousin shot by Gleason.

Mrs. Hollis contended that Merritt was outside the apartment, near a car, when his mother called him on the telephone. She claimed the call came about 8 p.m. but admitted that she had no watch, did not look at a clock and that no one had told her the time. She said the call was the only thing she remembered happening that day.

TESTIMONY CONTRADICTED

David Cabbell, husband of Nora Cabbell, also contradicted Merritt's testimony. He claimed that Merritt was three feet away from him, on his brother's front porch, when the shots were fired. He said Mrs. Hollis just stuck her head out of the door to call Merritt before he heard the shots.

Mrs. Merritt said she telephone to ask her son to come home and that her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Hollis, told her George was sitting outside the apartment. She said it took her son five or 10 minutes to answer the call.

Hollis claimed that he walked halfway to the W. Third St. and Plainfield Ave. intersection, where Williams and Gleason met, but that he was returning home as the shots were fired. He claimed that his half-brother, Merritt, was near the Hollis porch and did not accompany him on his walk toward the intersection. He also claimed his wife put her head out of the door to call Merritt to the telephone.

Capt. John T. Spruiell of Long Valley, Merritt's former commanding officer at the Nike Missile Base, South Plainfield, described him as a competent employe and said he was "cleared" for the job through a security investigation.

In Miss Madden's case, no witnesses were produced on her behalf. She also indicated that she declined to tesetify on the advice of her attorney.

High Road Plan Stirs Dissent

A proposal for an elevated highway across Union County from Linden to Springfield by Freeholder Charles S. Tracy has met with stiff opposition by two of his colleagues on the board of freeholders.

Tracy made the suggestion for a limited access highway linking Route 78 in Springfield with the Route 278 junction at Route 1 in Linden in a letter to State Transportation Commissioner David J. Goldberg.

The Republican's proposal involves the air rights over the tracks of the Staten Island Rapid Transit Co. and the Rahway Valley Railroad.

In his letter, Tracy noted the need for a north-south highway has not diminished since the Route 278 proposal was rejected.

Admitting elevation over the tracks is "unusual," Tracy wrote the method wouldn't involve the losses in ratables that were involved in the Route 278 proposal.

At Thursday night's meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders, opposition to Tracy's proposal was expressed by Democrat William J. Ahern, and Republican Edward H. Tiller, freeholder-director.

Ahern said he felt such a proposal would "open the door" for an interstate highway through the county. Ahern said the proposal, sent by Tracy to David Goldberg, state commissioner of transportation, could be construed "as an invitation to take another look at Rt. 278."

Tiller said he concurred with Ahern's opposition. "I violently oppose any such road," Tiller commented.

14 Feared Dead In Tanker Blast

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Fourteen crewmen are feared dead following an explosion aboard the Liberian-registered tanker Diane, Amsterdam harbor police reported today. Two bodies have been recovered.

Colonia Fence Is Down

COLONIA — Eugene Kelly took down his fence at 7:30 this morning rather than face charges for contempt of court.

But Kelly, who lives at 218 Continental Ave., said he would replace the fence at 4 p.m., thus keeping the pathway open across his property just long enough to allow children to go to and from School 20.

The path is protected by a permanent easement granted by a previous owner, and Kelly has been recently served with a temporary restraining order forbidding him to block the path. Until today, he has not complied with the order.

Kelly is due in Middlesex Superior Court on Friday to show cause why the pathway should not stay open.

"If we lose on Friday," he vowed this morning, "we move — that's the story in a nutshell. I'll make one last statement on what I think of the city and the politicians and that'll be it — I'll go."

President Johnson and President-elect Richard Nixon go through a sheaf of papers during a 65-minute meeting in the President's office.

Nixon Turns His Attention To U.S. Foreign Problems

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Nixon, back from Washington after naming a Cabinet and meeting with President Johnson, is turning now to more specific problems of government at home and abroad.

To emphasize the shifting of gears within his still-building administration, Nixon confers today with representatives of the Urban Coalition, concerned with poverty and city problems, and with former Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, who has returned from a sometimes-controversial tour of the Middle East.

Leading a delegation from the Urban Coalition was the group's chairman, John W. Gardner, former secretary of health, education and welfare in the Johnson administration. The organization is composed of private and gomernment leaders concerned about the plight of the cities.

Scranton, who visited Israel and five Arab neighbors at Nixon's behest, was to give a personal report in the privacy of the president-elect's Fifth Amenue apartment. 5

After spending more than eight hours with his new Cabinet in a series of briefings, Nixon drove to the White House for a 65-minute private session in Johnson's office that dealt with the Middle East, Vietnam and other problems.

Johnson, during the meeting, informed Nixon he was available to meet individually with members of the incoming Cabinet and that he would confer first with William P. Rogers, Nixon's choice for secretary of state and thus, by protocol, the ranking member of the new Cabinet team.

White House press secretary George Christian was asked if a possible summit meeting with Soviet leaders was discussed. "It was not listed in their summary, he said.

Christian sadi the two men did discuss the state of the union, budget and economic messages which Johnson will deliver to Congress next month; various housekeeping matters and the relationships between Cabinet designates and present Cabinet members.

While the two men met in the presidential office, Mrs. Nixon, daughter Tricia and wives of the incoming Cabinet members were entertained in the executive mansion by Mrs. Johnson and daughter Luci.

The men of the new Cabinet simultaneously were being honored at a State Department reception given by members of the Johnson Cabinet.

Trustee Acts To Bar McCoy From Office

NEW YORK (AP) — The state trustee for Brooklyn's Ocean Hill-Brownsville decentralized school district says its suspended administrator, Rhody McCoy, will be barred from his office—by police if necessary—if he tries to return.

McCoy was suspended from his post by trustee William Firman Wednesday but he ignored the order to report to central headquarters for reassignment and went to his office as usual Thursday.

Firman then ordered that McCoy be barred from the office today and in future. He also took steps to stem a budding parent and teacher boycott in the district aimed at protesting McCoy's suspension.

Firman said any teacher who stayed out of school without an acceptable reason would face disciplinary action including possible dismissal. He warned that any persons encouraging a child to stay away from school was violating the state law.

In another development, Schools Supt. Bernard Donovan announced formation of a 12-member committee to recommend citywide guidelines for enlisting the participation of high school students in making administrative and policy decisions in their schools.

School officials denied that the move stemmed from recent student outbreaks but said it recognized growing high school student unrest.

The group, called the Committee on Student Participation in School Management, includes four high school principals, three students, two teachers, two representatives of parents groups and Seelig L. Lester, a deputy superintendent of schools.

Lester said the committee would deal with involving students as advisers in the decision making process but emphasized the principals would continue to have final authority.

In the Ocean Hill dispute, McCoy was relieved of his post after being arrested on trespass charges inside Junior High School 271. He was trying to reopen the embattled school contrary to Firman's orders.

It was not the first time he has been suspended. During the series of citywide teachers' strikes this fall he was relieved of duty by the Board of Education but he never heeded that order and it was never enforced.

Colleges, Plants Closed By Flu

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The spreading Hong Kong flu epidemic has forced the closing of some schools and colleges and raised absenteeism in business and industry.

It even prevented a New York City woman from being present when her husband was named a member of the new Cabinet.

The absent Cabinet wife was Mrs. Maurice Stans, whose husband was named secretary of commerce Wednesday night by President-elect Nixon.

Reached at her home Thursday and asked about the Washington events, Mrs. Stans said, I didn't make it. I have the Hong Kong flu. I am one very sick cookie."

The new strain of flu has spread from Los Angeles—where officials say almost 300,000 adults and children are absent from work or school—to New York City where Adelphi University in suburban Garden City canceled undergraduate classes until Jan. 5, saying, The Hong Kong flu has hit." The Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point began Christmas vacation eight days early after about half the 728 midshipmen were stricken.

DEATHS INCREASE

The National Communicable Disease Center said deaths from pneumonia and influenza have exceeded normal expectations and termed the flu outbreak an epidemic. The center said outbreaks of flu and respiratory diseases from 30 states have been reported, with Hong Kong flu confirmed in 14 states, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia.

Actress Tallulah Bankhead, 65, died Thursday of pneumonia, which developed after she came down with the flu.

Here's a rundown on what effect the flu has had on some areas of the country:

California—Los Angeles county health officials say the epidemic is expected to reach a peak between Dec. 17 and Christmas. Gov. Ronald Reagan's voice is husky and he's coughing frequently. All members of the police department have been immunized. In San Diego, four judges, eight court clerks and five court reporters are out sick. Schools reported absentee rates of 10 to 25 per cent, instead of the normal 5 to 6 per cent.

STUDENTS ABSENCE

Michigan—Two Catholic schools in Detroit were closed because of flu and a spokesman for the public school system said 13 per cent of the students were absent Thursday. The normal absenteeism rate is 5 to 10 per cent. Chrysler Corp. reported a significant increase in absenteeism," and a General Motors Corp. employe said, You could tell something was wrong. The expressway traffic was too light this morning." Classes at public schools in suburban Livonia, Mich., were canceled after 150 students came down with

Illinois—Hospital administrators in Chicago said employe absentee rates were four times as high as normal and warned outpatient services at some hospitals might have to be curtailed. Wheaton College in Wheaton, Ill., said it would close for Christmas vacation Friday—five days early—because of the flu.

Massachusetts—College infirmaries are reported filling up, although no schools or colleges are closed. Dr. Nicholas J. Fiumara, director of the state's division of communicable diseases, predicted 30 per cent of the people in the greater Boston area would get the flu when the epidemic reaches its peak—expected around the first of the year.

Strong New Teeth Put Into Gun Control Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service has reversed an earlier interpretation of the 1968 Gun Control Act, putting strong new teeth into the controversial measure four days before it becomes law.

"This is going to disappoint a lot of these gun people," said a spokesman for the IRS which is charged with enforcing firearms control.

Over-all, the bill that was prompted by the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy last June and cleared Congress Oct. 10 bans the interstate mail order sales of all guns and ammunition.

It also bans over-the-counter sales to nonresidents of a state unless the states are adjacent and the law in each state "permits" such sales.

When the IRS issued proposed regulations embodying the law last month, it said the adjacent-state sales would be legal unless one or both states enacted laws specifically prohibiting them.

But Thursday the IRS said it had been wrong—that such sales would be permitted after the over-all bill takes effect Monday only when states pass laws permitting them.

The effect, said an IRS attorney, is to shut off at least temporarily all individual sales of firearms across state lines.

The section of the gun control act that applies says a sale to a resident of a contiguous state is to be legal "if the purchasers' state of residence permits such a sale or delivery by law, . . . (and) the sale fully complies with the legal conditions in both contiguous states."

However, a Senate attorney who worked on the legislation when it was in House-Senate conference committee, said "What it means is that sales are permitted if lawful in each state. It doesn't say there is to be positive action."

The IRS said it reviewed its interpretation after objections by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., just before a public hearing on the proposed regulations Nov. 21.

STOCK MARKET— Prices Slip Moderately

(AP) — The stock market went through another "nervous Thursday," with an irregularly lower drift and trading heavy.

Volume swelled to 18.16 million shares from 14.5 million Tuesday, a typical increase because of an accumulation of orders taken Wednesday when markets were closed to allow for a catchup in the paperwork jam.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed with a loss of .56 at 977.13. At its best reading in the morning, the average was up 1.80. At its worst, an hour before the close, it was diwn 2.24. So there was considerable paring of losse sin the last 60 minutes.

Atlas Corp. up on 294.600 shares was the most active stock.

The stock list was enlivened by some special situationissues. and fifth most-actives-tock-was Sinclair Oil, which rose 11¾ to 136.

Sinclair was spurred by news that Atlantic Richfield had made a tender offer to buy up to 2.5 million shares of Sinclair of $145 a share in cash. Atlantic Richfield rose 3½ to 124¾.

American Smelting, also among the most-active issues, rose 6to 97¾. American Smelting confirmed that it had received an acquisition offer from Pan American Sulphur whose stock gained ½ at 36¾.

IBM lost 7 at 321 and Control Data dropped 2⅝ to 155.

Among other wide moves, Cities Service rose 6½, Rapid American 3¾, American Tobacco 1,⅜ and Pan American World Airways, 1⅞.

Du Pont lost 3½, Ford 1, Jones & Laughlin 1⅞ and Alcoa 1¾.

Constitutional Ban On Income Tax Under Fire By Taxpayers Group

TRENTON (AP) — The New Jersey Taxpayers Association (NJTA) said Thursday a proposed constitutional amendment to bar imposition of a state income tax was not representative of a "sound long-range enlightened fiscal policy."

The NJTA, the New Jersey League of Municipalities, the State Federation of District Boards of Education, the New Jersey Education Association (NJEA) and the State League of Women Voters all testified at a public hearing against the proposed constitutional amendment which is backed by the New Jersey Farm Bureau and various local taxpayer groups.

Assemblyman Walter L. Smith, R-Burlington, chief sponsor of the proposal, conducted the hearing. He conceded later that it is unlikely that the legislature can consider the resolution before the new term begins Jan. 14. If it does not, the resolution would have to be reintroduced in the 1969 session and another public hearing would have to be held.

"The amendment, if enacted, could have a serious effect on New Jersey fiscal policy," Clarence J. Ziegler, NJTA executive director, said. "Our association has considered the amendment from the viewpoint of fiscal management, not from the aspect of whether New Jersey should or should not have a personal income tax per se."

The League of Municipalities, represented by Hackensack City Assessor Russel T. Wilson, chairman of its tax study committee, said that in the face of clearly demonstrated spiralling state costs it would be "extremely unwise" to deny to New Jersey a major source of tax revenue.

"But the hard facts are that we don't live in a dream world where that would be possible," he stated. "We must face up honestly to the harsh realities of financing the costs of governmental services on both the state and municipal levels to the citizens of New Jersey."

Heavy B52 Strike Seeks To Avert Red Offensive

SAIGON (AP) — American B52 bombers made their heaviest attacks in two months during the past 48 hours, striking at enemy troops north of Saigon amid strong indications today that the Communist command is preparing a new offensive there.

More than 100 of the big high-altitude bombers dropped 3,000 tons of explosives from noon Wednesday to noon today. A U.S. spokesman said it was the heaviest B52 effort since mid-October.

Reports from field commanders said there are strong indications that the North Vietnamese are preparing thrusts into key areas leading toward Saigon. But no significant ground fight was reported anywhere today.

In the latest B52 missions Thursday night and today waves of the eight-jet Stratofortresses blasted base camps, bunkers, supply depots and infiltration corridors, and maneuvering troops.

Aerial observers reported one strike set off 11 secondary explosions, indicating direct hits on ammunition stores.

The raids were in an umbrella pattern stretching from jungle infiltration routes 75 miles northwest of Saigon to within 27 miles northeast of the capital.

U.S. intelligence sources say 15,000 to 25,000 North Vietnamese troops, and perhaps even 30,000 are deployed along a 100-mile stretch of the Cambodian border in the arc.

U.S. analysts in Washington reported Thursday north of Saigon that there are strong indications these troops are preparing for a new winter offensive, while another 20,000 to 25,000 North Vietnamese detected moving in from Laos are believed setting their sights on Hue, the old imperial capital at the northern end of South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, Vietnamese police and military staffs in Saigon remained on 100 per cent alert after intelligence reports indicated the enemy may step up terrorism and attempt suicide squad attacks on allied installations to commemorate an anniversary.

The Communists celebrate Dec. 19, the anniversary of the first Viet Minh attack in 1946 on the French in Hanol.

Money-Seeking Boy Punches Lad's Nose

William De Paolo, 16, of 23 John St., Elizabeth, suffered a fracture of the nose Thursday when he was hit by a youth, about 15, who demanded money from him.

The assault came to the attention of the juvenile aid bureau at 2:30 p.m. when Mrs. Dora De Paolo reported the assault and gave police the name of the assailant.

Monmouth County Site Considered For Jetport

TRENTON (AP) — State Transportation Commissioner David J. Goldberg said Thursday his department in evaluating a stretch of rolling farmland in Monmouth County as a possible site for a fourth metropolitan jetport.

Albert E. Blomquist, consultant to Gov. Richard J. Hughes' jetport study committee, recommended a site east of Allentown in western Monmouth County. It is about 60 miles from New York City.

The committee recommended the Brulington-Ocean pinelands on Sept. 9 as a jetport site but major airlines and the Port of New York Authority ruled it out on grounds that it is too far from the metropolitan area.

Goldberg said subsequent discussions with Blomquist have indicated that Blomquist now favors the Allentown area site. The transportation commissioner said his department is studying a number of sites and that it would forward its evaluation to the governor. Goldberg said he hoped the transportation department's report would be ready within a month.

As envisioned by the governor's jetport study committee, the jetport would be the world's largest—five times the size of Kennedy International in New York. The 10-runway airport would cover 34 square miles.

But Blomquist said the committee switched it srecommendation for two reasons:

—The Allentown site would permit large-scale industrial and commercial development of the surrounding area.

—The Allentown site would be closer from the stand point of travel time to metropolitan New York and Philadelphia.

Apollo Paves Way For Future Astronauts

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — "We'll be blazing the trail for future astronauts, making it easier to land on the moon."

That's how Air Force Col. Frank Borman sums up the Apollo 8 mission scheduled to blast off Dec. 21, headed for an historic orbit around the moon.

Borman will command the six-day flight. With him will be Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. William A. Anders.

"You must keep in mind," Anders explained, "that this will be, for us, the first eyeball connected to a brain, connected to an arm that can write and a tongue that can speak, in this vicinity of the solar system.

"We think that by having a man up there, we can really do a job that you cannot possibly do with unmanned vehicles."

Lovell commented:

"A manned moon orbit flight before a manned lunar landing mission will provide us with experience in sending a spacecraft out to that distance and operating it in lunar orbit. It will enable us to better understand the problems that might arise, to determine our precise orbits about the moon, to determine the operation of the thrusters, life support, communications and other systems in that environment.

"If we know these things, then you have confidence you can land the next time out."

Apollo 8 is to circle the moon 10 times in 20 hours at an altitude of 69 miles on Christmas Eve and part of Christmas Day.

The flight path will take the astronauts over an area near the crater Censorinus in the Sea of Tranquillity which is considered a prime spot for the first astronaut landing on the moon.

PHOTOGRAPH AREA

"We'll photograph it and other areas extensively," Anders said. "We'll get a stereo effect that will be a valuable tool for training moon landing astronauts. It will show them exactly what their approach will look like, what boulders, craters and so on are there."

Lovell, the naviagtion expert, said location of features on the front side of the moon facing earth are well known because they have been extensively studied. But he noted locations on the hidden backside, photographed by cameras in the unmanned Lunar Orbiter series, are not known accurately.

"We must know where certain key backside features are to help us navigate," Lovell said. "We'll attempt with our sextant, telescope, computer and cameras to get exact fixes on at least three backside positions."

Navigation and ground tracking are two major goals of the mission. Tracking stations particularly want to know how the path of Apollo 8 will be altered by large metallic objects imbedded beneath the surface like raisins in a loaf of bread.

The objects affect the moon's weak gravitational field and cause subtle changes in the orbital path of a spaceship. This was disclosed by tracking of the five Lunar Orbiters.

Each time an orbiter passed over one of five large ringed maria, or dry seas, changes in frequency of radio signals showed it dipped 15 to 30 feet, increasing its 4,500-mile-an-hour speed by about one mile an hour. The five seas are Imbrium, Serenitatis, Crisium, Nectaris and Humorum.

Last of 3 articles

There was no such effect when the vehicles passed over irregular unringed seas such as Tranquillitatis, Fecunditatis and Oceanus Procellarum.

In each of the five ringed areas, scientists at the space agency's Jet Propulsion Laboratory reported there are mass concentrations of dense material called mascons in the lunar crust. The makeup of these "raisins" is not known, but they could be nickel-iron meteorites that buried themselves about 30 miles below the surface.

DEBRIS IMPACT

Such an impact, the scientists said, could have thrown out enough debris to create the rings around the five seas. If so, the mascons could be up to 50 miles in diameter and thus exert a great gravitational pull on a ship orbiting the moon.

Anders said that based on current information about the gravitational field, moon landing astronauts could miss their target by as much as 48 miles.

"The more we learn about the moon's gravitational field," he said, "the less will be our error when astronauts land."

He said knowledge of the field will be vital when two astronauts launch themselves off the moon next year in their Lunar Module and rendezvous with the third astronaut who has been circling the moon in the main Apollo ship.

"If we don't know the characteristics of the field," Anders said, "the two vehicles might have a difficult time with the rendezvous."

SCIENTIFIC TARGETS

Anders noted that while the mission this month is primarily an operational one, the astronauts will look for scientific targets if time permits. Among the possibilities:

—"We'll look at fault zones called rills that don't have an explanation. They almost look erosional and we'll look for flow features and for a beginning and an end."

—"Some craters are obviously impacts, others caused by something internal on the moon. We'll look at those in the middle that we can't tell about."

—The so-called red spots near the crater Aristarchus which have been reported by Russian and other scientists and which some believe could be active volcanoes.

—"A good spot is when you come out of darkness into sunlight, where something that might have been frozen in the cold night might be vaporizing as it is heated by the sun."

If Students Cheat, It's A Science

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Some science students in Calcutta University are putting their skill to unscientific use.

Vice-chancellor S.N. Sen has complained that some students use chemicals to erase failing marks on their report cards. They then apply for admission to higher courses after inserting qualifying grades.

Students' Federal Aid Plan Gets Carnegie Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal that the federal government provide direct financial aid to students has drawn opposition from an organization representing many of the nation's state universities and colleges.

In a report issued in New York Thursday, the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education proposed that the federal government increase its spending for education from its present annual level of $3.5 billion to $13 billion by 1976, partly to provide direct aid to students through a loan bank.

Officials of the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges said the report was disappointing. Any increased federal spending for education should go directly to the schools, who could then pass the benefits on to the students, they said.

Russell I. Thackery, executive director of the association, which represents 100 public colleges and universities, said his group is sympathetic to the report's hope for providing aid to disadvantaged students.

But he said the Carnegie plan ignores the institutions themselves for the purpose of widening educational opportunities for all qualified students.

He said that increasing federal aid to the schools themselves would enable them to cut the costs for students.

"That would mean that a vast majority of qualified students could go to college without the bureaucracy which will be essential to administer any program of direct financial assistance to students," Thackery declared.

"If funds are channelled through individuals, there is a chance that many institutions which already are operating at substantial losses will be inclined to raise costs and charges more rapidly," Thackery said.

The reaction to the direct federal aid proposal from other educators was uncertain.

Norman Topping, president of the University of Southern California, a private school, said "I think there's merit in the idea . . . But whether or not this (financial) burden should be placed on the federal government, or state and local government, I don't know."

The president of another private school, Paul R. Anderson of Temple University, indicated he thought increased federal spending should be allocated between the colleges and the students, but with the students getting the larger share.

The opposition to the loan plan was supported by Wisconsin University President Fred Harvey Harring. "It's a good report," he said, "but a great many of us (university presidents) feel it should have included institutional grants."

The proposed student bank would be designed to enable students to obtain loans for educational needs with repayment to be made after graduation on a percentage of earnings basis.

"The bank proposal," commented Thackery, "raises the question of where its funds are going to come from. It would seem that they would either have to be drawn from higher taxes or from money freed by a cut in federal support in some other area."

Error In Addition Bares $500,000 Bank Swindle

NEW YORK (AP) — An alleged con man who made out two $50,000 checks for deposit and listed the total as $110,000 has enabled authorities to nip a half-million-dollar bank swindle.

It was only a simple arithmetic mistake—as simple as 5 plus 5. As any schoolboy knows, that makes 10. And if Carmine Apuzzo had been depositing two $5 checks, he probably wouldn't have made the catastrophic error he did.

But those two $50,000 checks threw him. He apparently added 5 plus 5, and put down $110,000 on the deposit slip. And that, said the Bronx district attorney's office, was the beginning of the end.

Detectives from Dist. Atty. Burton Roberts' office arrested five men Thursday including Apuzzo, and charged them with attempting to defraud several banks of more than half a million dollars. Roberts said four other men were being sought in connection with the alleged fraud. Two others were arrested earlier this year.

The D.A. said the men involved netted $178,000 that has not been recovered. More than $400,000 in other fraudulently obtained funds is frozen in a dozen banks in which the gang deposited its ill-gotten gains, Roberts said.

He gave this example of how the purported scheme worked.

Apuzzo deposited $10,000 cash at a Chase Manhattan Bank branch on Westchester Avenue in the Bronx. He followed that with deposits of forged checks totaling $380,000, drawn on the Chemical Bank & Trust Co. account of Gilligan Will & Co., a legitimate Manhattan firm. The checks were made out to M&S Factors, which Roberts termed a fictitious firm set up by the con men.

The confidence team then withdrew $20,000 at a time from the M&S Factors account and redeposited the cash in a dozen banks in three boroughs Roberts said.

Then Apuzzo filled out his incorrectly added deposit slip at Chase Manhattan's Soundview office in the Bronx last Sept. 16.

Besides Apuzzo, 37, others arrested Thursday, and ordered held in bail ranging from $25,000 to $200,000, were Warren J. King, 40, Carmine "Sonny" Lavia, 40, Angelo Leonardi, 37, and Nicholas Lasorsa, 33, all from the Bronx.

Humphrey Expected To Teach

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The University of Minnesota and Macalester College are expected to offer Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey a dual professorship and he is expected to accept.

There are strong indications the offer wil be made at a meeting of the university Board of Regents today. Humphrey, a Minnesota graduate and former teacher at Macalester, will visit Minneapolis-St. Paul during the weekend.

The Minneapolis Tribune, in a copyright story from Washington, said that Humphrey also has signed a contract with Doubleday and Co., New York, to write one or more books on his career and political philosophy. The contract was said to call for a fee of more than $100,000.

Humphrey graduated from the university here in 1939 with a bachelor if arts degree and magna cum laude honors. Later he earned a pharmacy degree from the Denver College of Pharmacy and a masters degree from the University of Louisiana.

In 1943 and 1944 he taught political science at Macalester College in St. Paul before launching a political career as mayor of Minneapolis in 1945.

Officials of the university and Macalester declined to confirm the reports about the faculty post in advance of today's meeting.

Humphrey, who has a home at Waverly, Minn., 40 miles west of Minneapolis, has not renounced his own political ambitions nor his leadership of the Democratic party.

Many political observers expect him to remain in close touch with politics in his own state and work a healing touch in the Democratic-Farmer-Labor party here. The DFL has had two hectic internal struggles in as many years, the latest coming this year when Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy challenged the Johnson-Humphrey administration in the presidential nomination campaign.

Error of opinion may be tolerated where reason is left free to combat it. — Thomas Jefferson

The Nixon Team

President-elect Richard M. Nixon's choice of advisers reflects the middle of the road pragmatism that the new President pursued during the campaign and apparently believes can unite the nation during the next four years.

Philosophically, the cabinet has no strong political leanings that tend to label it as conservative or liberal. Mr. Nixon acknowledges that many of the issues do not fit neatly into such categories, and he probably is right. The chief goal of the new administration, judging by this attitude, will be one of problem solving and not of arranging new political dogmas. Mr. Nixon is not a political theoritician and neither will his administration seek to formulate any version of the Great Society.

It's brightest problem solver and idea man, to this date, is Dr. Daniel P. Moynihan, an expert on urban affairs who both served and criticized the Kennedy and Johnson administrations. Dr. Moynihan recognizes the need to clear away the double-talk infecting programs dealing with our urban centers and to get down to some effective action. He has long recognized the duty of the private sector to involve itself with the cities and the poor.

Mr. Nixon's choice of William P. Rogers for secretary of state reflects the new President's desire to play a direct role in foreign policy. Mr. Nixon has long felt that foreign affairs are his area of strength. Mr. Rogers, a close friend, will have little difficulty in fathoming Mr. Nixon's feelings on important issues. Mr. Rogers comes into the office unencumbered by rigid views on Vietnam, leaving the new secretary of state free to examine all of the options for ending the war.

The choice of Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin as secretary of defense is the most difficult to swallow. Laird's hard-line views on military preparedness and his anti-McNamara policy positions point toward more power for the military and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and a substantial increase in defense spending, including the anti-ballistic missile system.

It may not be possible for someone with the views of Dr. Moynihan or even Gov. George Romney, the new secretary of housing and urban development, to mount effective domestic programs while so much of the national budget is geared to military spending. It looks, however, as if Laird and the Defense Department will play a more prominent role in the Nixon policies than either Gov. Romney or Dr. Moynihan. And that would be too bad.

Mr. Nixon's other cabinet appointments are neither startling nor revealing. All of those selected have impressive business and professional credentials. Whether they have the talent and patience to master Washington's bureaucracy is another matter. In any event, the Nixon team takes office with few commitments and a free hand to prove itself.

Weary Mailman

And now a good word for the mailman.

Estimates are that some 10 billion pieces of Christmas mail will have been delivered on time and reasonably intact by the overburdened couriers by the time the holiday season comes to its merciful end. That is as much mail as a major country such as France moves in an entire year. Put another way, it is 50 gifts, cards and letters for every man, woman and toddler in the nation.

This may be the season to be merry for the rest of us, but for the mailman it's a month of the miseries.

Radical Heroes A Joke

By ROBERT G. SPIVACK

Joan Baez said recently that, in her opinion, the Chicago demonstrations against the Democrats were "filthy", that thousands of young people were misled and misused by a handful of publicity hounds and status seekers.

A young friend of mine put it differently. "What's happening with the Yippies and Hippies is the greatest put-on in history. You older folks take these so-called 'revolutionary' leaders seriously. Most kids think they're a joke. But it amuses them to see the older folks so frightened."

Like Stokely Carmichael, Eldridge Cleaver, Rap Brown, Tom Hayden of the Students for a Democratic Society is now having his moment of glory.

The fact is that Tom Hayden is no "hero" to many of his young compatriots. And the reason is not hard to find. In the months preceding the Chicago convention Hayden was one of the most vigorous advocates of a "confrontation". He was talking it up while cooler heads tried to avert a physical clash with the security authorities. The young McCarthyites thought it a terrible idea.

TOM HAYDEN

But the day before the great showdown in Chicago Hayden decided that his own well-being and safety were more important than anything to be gained by standing up to the police. This is from the Walker Report:

"As the misty night pushed on toward dawn, the crowd gradually quieted and groups began slowly drifting away. At about 4:30 a.m. Tom Hayden grabbed the microphone briefly and explained that he had 'gone underground, to get the pig (police) off my back . . .'"

All during the day of the confrontation he was nowhere to be found and presumably in hiding, while thousands of innocent youngsters were led to what might have been a slaughter.

But Thursday morning after the events of the night before Hayden emerged from his place of hiding, unscathed and untouched. He addressed the Innocents in Grant Park.

"We should be happy we came here, fought and survived," he said. "If we can survive here, we can survive in any city in the country. When they injure us we will be warriors. When they gas us, they will gas the rooms in their own hotels. And when they smash blood from our heads there will be blood from a lot of other heads."

With many young people his escalation of rhetoric after the event had a hollow ring.

Racial Turbulence Spreading Through The Nation's Schools

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

It will surprise no one that racial disorders in American schools are on a sharp increase. Discouragingly, experts studying violence say the rise may prove to be a long-range phenomenon.

The Lemberg Center for the Study of Violence, based at Brandeis University in Massachusetts, reports that in the whole of 1967 some 17 per cent of all civil disorders recorded involved schools at various levels.

In the first four months of 1968, the only part of the current year for which data is reasonably complete, 44 per cent of all recorded civil disorders involved the schools.

There is no need to dwell here in detail on the nature of racial disorders in the schools. They run the gamut from interracial fighting to disruption of classes and administration to vandalism to boycotts. The outbreaks tend to be fairly evenly distributed among the North, the Midwest and the South, but are less common in border sectors, the Southwest and West.

Clearly the schools have become a major battleground in the racial struggle. The traveler across the country can hardly pick up a newspaper in any city of substantial size without finding fresh account of trouble.

In all 1967, some 42 outbreaks of racial nature occurred in colleges and pre-college schools. In 1968, even before the rash of disturbances which followed the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the January-through-March total had reached 31.

King's murder on April 4 touched off a nationwide explosion of riot and disorder which inevitably engulfed the schools as well as the streets.

Through the whole of that turbulent month, 91 disorders took place which were either centered on schools or related to them. Some 20 of these evidently were not connected with the King affair, but a whopping 71 instances occurred between the night of April 4 and April 9, the day of King's funeral.

Authorities at the Lemberg Center, while making place for the extraordinary consequences of the assassination, nevertheless stress the fact that 20 disorders unrelated to it happened in that month. In April of the previous year there were only seven in the nation's schools.

Lemberg Center correctly forecast that a continuation of the heavier incidence of racial violence in schools would mark the fall term in 1968. The recent closing of San Francisco State College and the new disruptions following its reopening only underscore the heightening problem.

In a periodic report called "Riot Data Review," the center solemnly warns:

"The 'tinder-box' status of some communities is higher than others, but all are at a sufficiently high level to be considered potential sites for disorders."

Neither this well-motivated center at Brandeis or any other scholarly undertaking seems yet to have come up with any profound and truly comprehensive explanations for the precipitate growth of racial disorder in the schools.

The obvious things are suggested—tension between whites and blacks, real or imagined grievances related to the quality of education and school facilities, a search for action and excitement by youths of whatever color.

But there may well be deeper strains of disorientation running not just through the schools but through the whole of American and even western society. The free world is in obvious crisis. Its people are having great difficulty in accepting the necessary role of authority as they demand enlarged liberties and ever-more material assurances.

If the causes of disorder are being barely hinted at, so is it true that the consequences for education are not yet really being measured. Sound schooling thrives on continuity and control and discipline. All these are lost if new "freedoms" are quested after at the cost of recurring disorder, racial or other. Disruption is not the ally but the enemy of the real learning process.

Nixon Strategy For Ghetto Aid

By RAY CROMLEY

In his campaign, candidate Richard Nixon made little attempt to win the Negro voter. But if plans being worked on by President-elect's men are carried out, the Negro will get a much better deal than many black leaders have predicted.

—HOUSING — The men in the new administration want to radically change regulations that require FHA (Federal Housing Administration) mortgages to be "safe." They want the FHA to take greater risks, move firmly into Negro slum-area homes.

Ways are being sought to encourage federal and state banking authorities to give technical and capital aid for new black-controlled banks that would help finance Negro homes and Negro businesses.

These two financing programs would be combined with a strong enforcement of fair housing programs.

—NEGRO-OWNED businesses — The Nixon thesis here is that if black capitalism is successful, ghettos will gradually disappear.

Nixon men now working on the Negro's problems favor a Domestic Development Bank which would, as part of its function, give preference to businesses with whole or part slum-resident ownership. They favor giving tax incentives to successful firms which train Negroes in business management. The Small Business Administration's loan program would be expanded with Negro business in mind. Over-all loan guarantee programs and reinsurance programs would be expanded to cover the greater risks inherent in backing Negro slum business ventures. As mentioned above, aid would be given to establishing new Negro banks.

—EDUCATION — Nixon aides see the need of a "paid volunteer" National Student Teachers Corps modeled after the New York City Homework Helpers program in which supervised high school seniors tutor fourth-, fifth- and sixth-grade students. The Nixon administration plan, as now seen, would include both high school and college students as tutors and concentrate in slum areas.

To attract better teachers to the slums, the Nixon men favor higher pay commensurate with the difficulties the teacher faces on the job. They also are seeking ways to attract more Negro teachers into the slum school systems. They are studying school local control concepts being tried out in several large cities to see if they offer possible guides for action. They favor a priority expansion of preschool slum programs for four- and five-year-olds.

—JOBS — Some Nixon planners favor incentive tax credits for hiring and for on-the-job training of the slum unemployed and direct tax credits or accelerated depreciation for businesses that locate branch offices or new plants in the slums.

They're looking into the practicability of exceptions to minimum wage laws that would make it feasible for employers to hire unskilled teen-agers, where Negro unemployment is exceedingly high.

These efforts to increase the number of slum Negro jobs would be combined with stricter enforcement of the antidiscrimination provisions of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

Synthetic Food Answer To Famine

By JOAN S. GIMLIN

WASHINGTON — The people who inhabit the world of 2000 A.D. will be fed by the food factory rather than the farmer—if many of them are fed at all. That is the state of present scientific thinking. Those who engage in making these forecasts differ only on whether world famine can be averted that long.

Reflecting the pessimistic viewpoint, the English philosopher C. P. Snow finds it impossible to believe that the rich nations will make the great sacrifices required to prevent the poor nations from starving. Lecturing at Westminster College in Fulton, Mo., he predicted that "we shall, in the rich countries, be surrounded by a sea of famine, involving hundreds of millions of human beings."

All sides concede that traditional methods of agriculture probably cannot keep pace with world population, which is expected to about double within the next 30 years—to more than 6 billion people. In contrast to Snow, men like William S. Gaud, U.S. foreign aid administrator, are hopeful that all is not lost. They place much of their faith in a developing food technology. Synthetic foods have already appeared in American supermarkets, and promise to become a staple in protein-deficient lands abroad.

Soybeans are currently the prime filler for the world's great protein gap. Long valued as a food in China, they now rank as the second largest farm crop in the United States. Some 250 to 300 million pounds of soy flour are being used in food products this year. The dull yellow seeds are processed to make realistic imitations of meat and several other foods. American food companies, several of which previously catered to vegetarians, are entering the mass market with meat-like products made from soybeans. General Mills, for example, is marketing a soy simulation of bacon bits as a snack food. Thomas J. Lipton has a main-dish meal known as beef stroganoff, although the "beef" is mostly soy protein.

The market success of margarine as a butter replacement suggests that such items may well succeed with the consumer. If so, it would help to remove any stigma of their being "poor people's food." Not only are soybeans a cheaper source of protein than animal products, but they are accepted by people like the Hindus of food-short India who refuse to eat meat on religious grounds.

The success of soybeans on land is being matched by "fish flour" from the sea. It is a protein concentrate in powder form made from raw, whole fish. When used as an additive to rice or wheat flour—or even soybean products—it enriches them in amino acids to the level of meat, eggs or milk.

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization reports that about 30 per cent of the world fish catch is used for fish flour and oil, though much is fed to animals rather than humans. The Food and Drug Administration in January 1962 banned sales in the United States on grounds consumers would "regard the product . . . as filthy." But five years later F.D.A. lifted the ban, greatly relieving the embarrassment of American officials who had been urging Asians and Africans to make greater use of fish flour.

Aside from finding new food sources, a major problem in feeding the world's billions is getting it to them in edible condition. Here again, technology holds vast promise. Canning, freezing, drying—all these are well known and widely used methods of preserving food. But now such new techniques as irradiation and oxygen-free storage are being explored.

Fresh fruits and vegetables are currently being preserved for much longer periods by packing them in trailer trucks that have controlled atmospheres. Oxygen, which causes food to decay, is pumped out of the interiors of refrigerated trucks and replaced with inert nitrogen. A head of lettuce will emerge fresh from this atmosphere after a three-week storage.

In the meantime, some "far out" experimentation is being conducted with food factories which concoct an artificial diet. Research specialists of Standard Oil Co., for one, are feeding laboratory-grown protein food to rats as a substitute for food from the land or the sea. This food is formed by micro-organisms such as yeast and bacteria, algae and fungus, which are grown in oxygen-enriched solutions of hydrocarbons derived from petroleum. Test results show a tasteless, buff-colored powder containing up to 70 per cent protein. Such progress seems to confirm the prevailing scientific view that, technically at least, the world should be able to solve the protein shortage problem before large-scale famine strikes.

Shoplifter

Editor, Journal:

You just don't think about this until it happens to you. I was shopping for the children's Christmas stockings and while choosing items a thief niftily lifted my shopping bag in which there was much typing material and Christmas music which I am having a difficult time replacing at my own expense. Of course he also received a warm pair of leather gloves, a scarf, and a pair of curtains, just purchased.

As it is always said, "You should have known better." But I say congratulations thief; I hope you enjoy your spoils.

Chicago Perspective

Editor, Journal:

All of us have a job to do. That job is having regard for all of the people of our country, not just some of them. It is having a feeling of fellowship and brotherhood for all of them, not just some of them. It is giving kindly and considerate judgment towards all of them, not just some of them. Our job is individual self control which leads to progress, because it shall be based on the grounds of reason, which leaves no room for prejudice.

Each day it becomes more and more apparent that all questions of just what caused the recent riots and disturbances in this country of ours, most noteworthy is Chicago, must be settled at the bar of public opinion. The public has the right to as much information concerning the riots as is known, the public has the right to know just what is being done, and it is through the public that many of our present difficulties will disappear.

This is a time for soul searching, a time in which we all must do our best. We cannot magnify trifling troubles, we must look resolutely. We cannot look at the bright side of things, but at things as they really are. We must avail ourselves of the manifold blessings which are around us.

Deathless Quote By Vinegar Bend

NEW YORK — Sportswriter Herb Goren was pleased when he discovered that a character named Vinegar Bend had got himself elected to Congress in the last election. The elation was due to the fact that Vinegar Bend used to be a baseball player—a sore-armed pitcher who worked for the Pittsburgh Pirates, and previously for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Herb figured (and so far as I can determine, he's right) that Vinegar Bend is the first baseball player who ever got elected to Congress. Certainly the first sore-armed pitcher.

Norton Mockridge

Anyway, Herb wanted to get hold of Vinegar Bend by phone so he could write a piece about him.

But nobody knew just where Vinegar Bend was. Herb called the office of the commissioner of baseball and gave them Vinegar Bend's square handle—Wilmer Mizell—and asked for his address.

"Vinegar Bend, Alabama," said a secretary. (It was because Wilmer came from that town that he got the nickname.) But the secretary was wrong.

"Ain't no Vinegar Bend in Vinegar Bend," said the Vinegar Bend operator when Herb called from New York. "Ain't no Wilmer Mizell either, or no Wilmer Vinegar Bend, or no Vinegar Bend Mizell. But in Fruitdale, Alabama, there's a Gilbert Mizell."

RUNNING FOR OFFICE

So, Herb called Gilbert Mizell but there was no answer. Herb asked the operator to connect him with the courthouse. A man answered and he had heard about Vinegar Bend but, he said: "He ain't here. Last I heard he was off somewhere, running for office or something. I think it was in the Carolinas."

Herb called an old friend, Irwin Smallwood, managing editor of the Greensboro, N.C., News. Irwin knew about Vinegar Bend. "Yep," he said, "he just got elected to Congress from the Fifth District of North Carolina. Ran on the Republican ticket and beat out Smith Bagley, the heir to an R. J. Reynolds fortune. I think you can call him at G.O.P. headquarters in Winston-Salem."

Herb tried the G.O.P. headquarters, and tried it again, and again and again. It never answered. Then, he asked the operator if there was a Wilmer Mizell listed in Winston-Salem and, sure enough, there was. In a short time Vinegar Bend, once reputed to be just about the wildest pitcher in baseball, was on the phone—Congressman Vinegar Bend.

"Vinegar," asked Herb, "are you gonna throw any curves in Washington?"

Vinegar cleared his throat, as do all good Congressmen before they answer a question, and then he said:

DEATHLESS QUOTE

"Son, in the course of my successful campaign, I been often asked if I was gonna throw any curves, and I always answered as follows: If I throw any curves, you can be sure of one thing—they're all gonna be in the strike zone!"

And that's how Herb found Congressman Vinegar Bend, and got that deathless quote.

Sometime ago I told you about some zany economies practiced by well-to-do and rich people—like saving 200,000 paper clips for which nobody has any use, and saving stubs of pencils which are too short to write with—and quite a few people have written in to say that they, too, have strange economies.

Mrs. Harold A. Kipp of Quaquanantuck (honest) Lane, Quogue, N.Y., says that her major obsession is washing out used plastic baggies, hanging them on a line and using them again when they're dry. She also reuses old kitchen matches, lighting them at one flame to torch another.

She saves thousands of yards of string, old Christmas wrappings and tons of tissue paper. And boxes—"Gosh," she says, "I have boxes within boxes within boxes." And she never has been able to bring herself to throw away a single jar. With Mrs. Kipp, I guess, you could say she regards these things as Kippsakes!

FRORIDA FRORIC

Some months ago, an official of the Florida Aerospace division of Honeywell Inc., Clearwater, Fla., telephoned a Japanese manufacturing company and ordered 500 inexpensive cigarette lighters to be given to sales prospects. Over the phone he spelled out what he wanted inscribed on the lighters.

And when the lighters arrived, the sales inscription was just fine, except that it said that the company was located in "Frorida." Naturally, the lighters were a big hit and customers who got them bought more readily. Or at least, it seemed that they did.

Since then the company has been capitalizing on that mistake, and much of its advertising and promotion material states quite baldly that the best products come from Frorida. I would suggest that sometime soon, the Honeywerr company enter into a merger with "Herro Dorry" and transprant the jorriest musicar to Frorida. That Certainry ought to stimurate serring!

Slowed Train To 35, Penn Engineer Testifies

NEWARK (AP)—The engineer of the train that killed two and injured five of the mourners waiting for the Kennedy funeral train in Elizabeth last June testified before the state Public Utility Commission Thursday that he reduced the train's speed from 55 to 35 miles per hour near the Elizabeth station.

Stanley P. Moskowitz of 496 E. Grand Ave., Rahway, said he knew the Kennedy train would be on the Penn-Central Railroad that day, June 8, but added he did not know its specific location.

He said he was instructed to ring the train bell and blow the train whistle as he approached Elizabeth where the waiting crowd had poured onto the eastbound track as it watched for the westbound Kennedy train.

Moskowitz said he reduced the speed of his eastbound train number 50 from 55 to 35 miles per hour because of a sharp curve in the track just before the Elizabeth station.

He said he applied his emergency brake when he saw the crowd on the tracks and came to a stop after traveling about 300 or 400 feet more.

The engineer said if the train had been going at 15 miles per hour he could have stopped it within 100 feet.

Moskowitz's testimony before the PUC was part of the board's investigation in a continued hearing to adopt rules and regulations for safer railroad operations at Elizabeth. The investigation was begun at the suggestion of the Union County grand jury that examined the incident last summer but found no cause for indictments against anyone.

Moskowitz said he was not going slow enough to prevent the accident that took the lives of Mrs. Antoinette Severini, 56, of 37B Mravlag Manor, and John F. Curia, 56, of 44J Mravlag Manor, both of Elizabeth, and injured five others.

He said he did not know if a 15 mile per hour speed could have prevented the accident, adding such events as the Kennedy funeral and mourner's train occur "only once in a lifetime."

Another witness, James D. Robbins, supervisor of the Eastern region of the Penn-Central, testified the engineer, Moskowitz had been instructed to reduce speeds near Elizabeth.

Hundreds Pay Last Tribute To Enoch (Nucky) Johnson

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — It was "the last hurrah" for Nucky Johnson Thursday night as hundreds came to pay final respects to the man who gave to many of them their jobs and political life.

Mourners — politicians by the dozens, friends, city and county workers—filed through the flower-filled Gormley Funeral Home for two hours to view the body of Enoch L. (Nucky) Johnson, for 30 years the political overlord of Atlantic City and the last of the flamboyant, plush-living political bosses of the roaring twenties.

Nucky, as he was known to all, died Monday in a nursing home. He was 85 and lived out his last years in relative obscurity.

His widow, Flossie, whom he married just before he went to jail in 1941 on an income tax evasion conviction, stood by the bronze casket.

In death as in life, the "Czar of the Ritz"—so-called because he ruled from the penthouse of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel — was dressed in a dark blue suit with a crisp red carnation—his personal trademark—tucked in the lapel.

State Sen. Frank S. (Hap) Farley was the first to pay his respects. It was Farley who took over the powerful GOP machine when Johnson went to jail. He remains in power today as Atlantic County Republican leader and dean of the state Senate.

Among others who stopped in were Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr., R-N.J., an announced candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, and Assemblyman Albert S. Smith, former speaker of the house.

Johnson, whose salad days lasted from 1911 to 1941 when Atlantic City was what Miami Beach is today, will be entombed Friday in Zion Cemetery in nearby Bargaintown.

Mr. Anginoli retired in 1962 after 25 years as metal finisher with the Heil Co., Woodbridge, where he was a member of the United Steel Workers Union. Earlier, he was employed many years by the Aeolian Organ Co., Garwood.

A communicant of St. Michael's R.C. Church, he was a member of parish Holy Name Society.

Surviving also are a son Joseph of Cranford; four daughters, Mrs. Anthony Lettini and Mrs. Raymond Zambito, both of Cranford, and Mrs. Joseph Cannariato and Mrs. John Soney, both of Garwood; a sister, Mrs. Maria Marrano of Lackawanna, N.Y.; a brother, Augustine, in Italy, 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Arrangements have been made by the Dooley Funeral Home, 218 W. North Ave., Cranford.

State College Presidents Demand More Power

TRENTON (AP) — Trenton State College President Robert Heussler said Thursday he and three other presidents have formed an alliance in an effort to get more power for the six state colleges.

"We don't have enough local discretion to begin making significant changes," said Heussler who took over leadership of the college in August and has expressed serious dissatisfaction with controls imposed by the State Budget Office and the Department of Higher Education.

Heussler said he wasn't making any threats, but if the college is not given more control over its own destiny, "I just won't be able to stay here."

"One of our trustees said to me recently, 'I feel like an ennich,' and he is right to feel that way," Heussler remarked.

The 44-year-old educator said Thomas Richardson, James Olsen of Paterson and James Mullen of Jersey City are the state college presidents supporting his stand. Both Olsen and Mullen are in their first year as president of their respective institutions.

Heussler said he plans to meet soon with legislative leaders in an opening move to win passage of a bill giving the colleges the kind of fiscal autonomy now enjoyed by Rutgers University.

Heussler said he was prepared to ask the Council of State Colleges, which is composed of the presidents and chairmen of the individual college boards of trustees, to adopt as policy a resolution declaring that the state colleges are more capable of running their affairs than the Department of Higher Education.

At its November meeting, the council laid the groundwork for more independence by declaring that it and not Chancellor of Higher Education Ralph A. Dungan would draw up future meeting agendas.

Dungan said he and Heussler are in basic agreement. "I believe, and I think the Board of Higher Education believes, that greater autonomy should be afforded the state colleges in ways similar to that accorded Rutgers and the Newark College of Engineering," he said.

"However, I also believe that the inability to operate efficiently under the existing system is somewhat exaggerated," the chancellor added.

Driver's Wife Killed In Left-Turn Crash

WAYNE, N. J. (AP) — Mrs. Margaret Wiegand, 76, of Cedar Grove, was killed Thursday in a two-car collision at Route 23 and Van Ness Place.

Police said she was riding in a car driven by her husband, Gerhard, 79, who was making a left turn across the highway when the collision occurred. He was unhurt.

The other car was driven by Miss Louise A. Baldinger, 18, of Pompton Plains, who was taken, with her passenger, Miss Debbie Wolke, 18, of Pequannock, to Chilton Memorial Hospital, Pequannock, for treatment of minor injuries, police said.

Wilkins 'Surprised'

UNION — Dr. Eugene G. Wilkins, president of the Newark State College at Union, today expressed surprise that Dr. Robert Heussler, president of Trenton State College, had failed to contact him concerning the alliance of four state college presidents to get more power for the six state colleges.

Dr. Wilkins, senior president in point of service, noted that the college presidents and the budget office both have been working for several years to revise the administrative organization of the six state colleges to keep pace with their rapid growth.

The NSC board of trustees is scheduled to meet next Thursday to take final action in the creation of a new post, vice president for administration.

This new vice president will work with the state budget office, handle all NSC fiscal affairs, budgets, finances, new building programs, college security and other things dealing with the school plant.

John Wesper, supervisor of new building and development at Newark State College, will be assigned to the new vice president, Dr. Wilkins said.

Dr. Wilkins observed, "The difficulties the colleges are experiencing are all part of the growth and adjustment of a new era in education and the creation of the new Department of Higher Education."

Newark State College moved to Union from Newark 10 years ago with about 750 students. The enrollment now is 3,500 and the goal within the next five years is 7,000 students.

Boom Sills' Candidacy

EAST BRUNSWICK, N. J. (AP) — A promoter of State Atty. Gen. Arthur J. Sills as a candidate for governor says Sills is willing to be a candidate if there is a "groundswell of support" for him.

George J. Haney, a Newark stockbroker and co-chairman of a Sills for New Jersey Committee that met here Thursday night, said the attorney general told him he had "no objection if we created a groundswell of support."

About 250 people turned out for the meeting to promote Sills for the Democratic Party nomination in 1969 to succeed Gov. Richard J. Hughes.

Approximately 300 invitations to prominent New Jersey citizens were sent. More than a dozen of Sills' own staff attended but the attorney general was not present.

No prominent leaders of the Democratic Party were present and organizers claimed that 80 to 90 per cent of those who did attend were not connected with politics."

Former Metuchen mayor Karl Metzger, now secretary of Rutgers University and another co-chairman of the committee, said Sills had "toughness, superior intellect, wit and sensitiveness to the needs of the people — qualities which will make him a great governor."

Philip Lax, a Maplewood interior designer, and the third co-chairman, told the rally: "Arthur Sills doesn't need to be governor, we need him."

He described Sills as "the one man who can lead this state and face the issues squarely," and noted that neither the attorney general's crowded schedule nor his physical handicap had prevented him from working diligently on numerous educational and civic projects. Sills suffered a polio attack at age four and gets about in a wheelchair.

Haney said committees for Sills would be organized in each of the state's 21 counties after Jan. 1.

H. BRUCE PALMER

Justice Unit Gets Support

NEW YORK (AP) — About 10,000 letters have been received in response to an appeal by Citizens for Justice with Irder, a new group seeking to involve millions of Americans in the war against crime.

H. Bruce Palmer, founder of the movement, said Thursday letters have been pouring in and that his phone has been ringing all week with inquiries or offers of help.

The drive to involve all Americans was kicked off last week in a television announcement by comedian Bob Hope.

Hope was not permitted to ask for contributions because of a network rule, Palmer said, adding: "But we're going to ask for money. I think we'll raise our initial goal of $25 million by next May."

Palmer announced the appointment of Samuel T. Ishmael, 36, as a full-time aide who will travel about the country helping individuals and groups with anticrime projects.

Ishmael, a former city attorney of Rawlins, Wyo., now lives in Phoenix, Ariz. As city attorney, he had asserted that Rawlins was headquarters for the Wyoming narcotics traffic. After a number of threats against himself and his family, the Ishmael home was blown up while the family was away on vacation.

GI's Yule Card Follows Death

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. John E. Moore of Maryland Heights, a St. Louis suburb, received a Christmas card from Marine Pfc. Paul Dains Thursday.

Moore, Dains' brother-in-law, said the card followed a telegram informing them of the 19-year-old Marine's death in Vietnam.

Reservoir Poses Threat To Rt. 78 In Warren

SOMERVILLE, N.J. (AP) — While one state agency is busy constructing a new interstate highway, another state department is planning a reservoir that would flood the highway.

Route 78, the interstate highway, is now under construction in Warren County. Spokesmen for the Transportation Department said engineers finished designing the highway two years ago.

Because the reservoir was only proposed this year, the spokesman said the department is constructing the highway as though there will be no reservoir. They expect the reservoir planners to make allowances for their highway.

But maps of the Army Corps of Engineers show that Route 78 is along the south edge of the proposed Millington reservoir near Mountain Avenue in Warren. The maps indicate that the highway would be in the reservoir at that point.

Alternatives being mentioned by the reservoir planners include realigning the highway, raising it on a causeway or viaduct, or placing it in a tunnel.

The Millington reservoir has been jointly proposed by the Army Corps of Engineers and the State Department of Conservation and Economic Development. It would entail constructing a one-mile wide dam across the Passaic River just west of Myers Road in Warren and Passaic, creating a 2,700-acre lake.

Conservation Commissioner Robert Roe said the possible inundation of the highway in Warren is a question of critical elevations. The situation is so flexible," he added, that it is difficult to plan at this time."

Rockefeller Center Yule Tree Lit

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rockefeller Center Christmas tree was lit Thursday night, continuing a tradition begun 36 years ago.

Archbishop Terence J. Cooke of New York pushed the button that turned on 800 illuminated Christmas bells and 6,000 seven-watt lamps strung on the 55-foot spruce from Holland, Vt.

Suspects Held For Jury On Motel Holdup Count

Elizabeth Municipal Judge John T. Soja on Thursday remanded two men to the Union County Jail without bail and held them for the Grand Jury on holdup charges.

The suspects are Edward R. Howard, 35, of 1065 Inman Ave., Edison and Alvin Best, 27, of 619 Fulton St., Elizabeth.

Detective Chester Paterek charged that on Nov. 6, the two suspects held up the Redwood Motel, Elizabeth, where $150 was taken from Richard Ackley.

In other complaints signed by Detective Austin Farrell, Best and Lester Hodge, 26, of 1100 Morris St., Roselle, are accused of holding up the Joseph Cory Delivery Service, 600 S. Front St., Elizabeth, on two occasions. These also were referred to the grand jury.

In the first holdup, Detective Farrell charged the suspects obtained $4,500 in cash and $2,000 in checks Oct. 15. Nothing was taken in the second holdup Nov. 1.

Hodge also was committed to the county jail without bail.

Welfare Cost For Month Tops $32,000; 1,193 Aided

The Elizabeth Local Assistance Board spent $32,302 last month to help 399 cases involving 1,193 persons, George Cushing, board chairman, announced Wednesday.

The amount exceeded by $2,134 expenditures of the preceding month, when the board served 400 cases involving 1,173 persons.

A total of $317,563 was spent on welfare recipients during the first 11 months of 1968, an increase of $20,245 over the amount dispersed during the same period of 1967.

The main areas in which financial help was given, listed in order, were: To those awaiting aid from the county, those with insufficient income (underemployed), persons suffering temporary illness, and those awaiting disability benefits.

The total dispersed in November reflects decreases of $1,309 paid by other municipalities for cases served in Elizabeth, and approximately $9,000 in earnings of welfare recipients.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Clean Shower Curtains With Care

By POLLY CRAMER

Dear Polly — C. V. R. wanted to know how to clean a plastic shower curtain. I wash mine in the machine along with my white clothes and use bleach in the water. I put them in the dryer for a few minutes, also, along with other clothes. Do watch carefully and don't leave one in too long. I no longer have dirty- or yellow-looking shower curtains and change them oftem.

—Viola

Dear Polly — have used the following method for washing a shower curtain for years. Put it in the washing machine with hot water and at least two bath towels. Add one-third cup each of detergent and bleach. Run through the entire cycle but do not allow it to spin dry. Rinse in plain hot water to which you have added a cup of vinegar. Do not rinse the vinegar out. This will not work without using the bath towels and may leave some wrinkles in some types of curtains.

—S. M.

Dear Readers — there are shower curtain materials and shower curtain materials so you must try a small spot on any of them before trying any method. Bleach might affect some colored curtains. Some wash the shower curtain and then hang it out of doors, rinse with the hose and then let it dripdry.

POLLY PROBLEM

Dear Polly — Do you know how to dye Dacron? I tried to dye a Dacron dress fuchsia but it came out a sickly pink.

—Landonia

Dear Landonia — Directions on the boxes of one of the best-known brands of dye say if is not recommended for Dacron, Orlon, glass or metal fibers.

—Polly

Dear Polly — I always want to have so many things at hand before retiring at night that my bedside table was always in disorder. I now have a dress box on the floor under the bed below my pillow. When I get ready for bed, I just pull the box out like a drawer. There is my cream, facial tissues, diary, flashlight, transistor radio with ear phones, note paper, peincil and maybe even a fly swatter or fan. I use what I need and, in the morning, just push the "drawer" back under the bed. No mess, just convenience. —Mrs. I .B.

Dear Polly — When I was a cheerleader I had to make "Booster Badges" for the students to pin on their clothes. I found that putting the pins in the badges was quite a job so I tried using a skirt marker. It worked beautifully. The pins went in so easily with a double hold and the job took a lot less time. This idea could be used when making name tags for parties and club meetings.

—Tara

Dear Polly —The vacuum bottle that I have always carried to work no longer keeps drinks cold but does hold liquids without leaking. Now I fill it with my favorite cold drink and put it in the freezer the night before. In the morning, I slip the vacuum bottle into a plastic bread bag and leave it in my car until noon. By that time it has thawed to a refreshing icy consistency and the bag keeps it from sweating on to the car seat cover.

Dear Abby Answers Readers

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Dear Abby: Yesterday was our ninth anniversary and my husband didn't remember it. I was heartsick all day. I suppose I should have gotten over it by now, but I still feel very hurt about it.

He is a good provider and otherwise a good husband and father, but he's very serious-minded and isn't given to sentimentality. He just doesn't have any "soul." Birthdays, anniversaries and most holidays are overlooked. If the children didn't make such a big fuss about Christmas, I'm sure he'd forget that, too.

Last year I tried giving him a taste of his own medicine and I "forgot" his brithday, but it didn't work because he forgot it, too. I am so hurt, Abby, I have even considered leaving him. Any suggestions?

Hurt Again

Dear Hurt: Yes. Create a festive mood by planing in advance to celebrate "occasions." On his birthday, bake him a cake and invite some friends in. Or arrange to go out to celebrate. On yours, do the same.

This goes for Mother's Day, Father's Day, anniversaries, St. Valentine's Day, and any other day about which you're sentimental. But if you sit in silence feeling sorry for yourself, you have no one to blame but yourself.

MARRIED AT 16

Dear Abby: My daughter, 16 and a junior in high school, slipped off the other day and got married to her 19-year-old boy friend.

To beat all, his mother went with them! She didn't even have the courage to tell her husband. The children had gone together for two years. I thought for sure his mother was on my side and didn't want an early marriage either, because she had even told me so. And now this, with her blessings! I am so mad at her I just don't know what to do.

I am not going to show my anger because I don't want the children to start off married life with parents who are mad at each other, but I want you to tell me what you think of this whole sneaky deal. Thank you.

Boiling Over

Dear Boiling: I think it's pretty sneaky. But simmer down. There may be a little "sequel" to that story.

PROBLEMS SOLVED

Dear Abby: For several years I have wanted to write problems, but other people have done it for me. Now I just want to thank you for probably saving my children's lives, my marriage, and my sanity.

I don't leave my children (ages 2 and 4) in the tub alone anymore. Or in the car either.

My mother-in-law's visits are much nicer. I tolerate her taking over my kitchen and spoiling the kids. I now keep quiet and take what she says with a grain of salt.

My husband can now watch all the baseball, football, and golf he likes without being nagged to death. And on his golf days I take my children to the park or to visit a friend instead of sulking.

But most important, I finally realized thru your column that I myself was the problem — not my husband. Our marriage still isn't a bed of roses, but things are getting better. So thanks a million, Abby. Just keep telling people the truth about themselves.

Thankful

Dr. Brady Comments

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY

Now and then, someone writes, believe it or not, just to tell me how grateful she is and how happy she is since she received my instructions and reduced so many pounds.

No one has ever expressed gratitude for instructions on keeping slender. For that matter, I guess very few have ever asked for any such instructions.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure only quixotically: Actually no one wants any.

Whatever I say here about keeping slender will probably interest only people who are already too stout.

Ten, 20 years hence, probably a good many who should have been interested in it will wish they had been. That's always the way of human nature.

Let grandma say it:

"Women inclined to be stout should keep their feet on the floor while fastening or unfastening their shoes, and stand up, not sit down, to do it. They should pick up everything they drop by bending at the waist. I am a grandmother but it is as easy for me to stand with palms on the floor as to stand erect. I have free hip action, or as they say nowadays, I have no hips.

"A habit I believe has kept my ankles slender is rising on the toes, what you call the heel and toe drill, for a few minutes every morning and every evening. It keeps my ankles strong, flexible and slender. When I see young girls with flabby, thick, obviously weak ankles, and a tendency to run over the shoes I wish I could tell them about this exercise, for I am sure it helps one to carry herself lightly and gracefully."

Right, grandma. The problem is how to persuade them to adopt the exercise into their everyday way of life.

Freezer Helps With Yule Preparations

By ANNE L. SHEELEN
Union County
Home Economist

Let your freezer play a vital role in your food preparations for the holiday season.

After you have decided on the type of hospitality you hope to have for the holidays, plan what foods you hope to serve, prepare them and place them in your freezer, all set for the occasion.

Besides choosing recipes which freeze well, take special care when selecting the wrapping materials used for freezing. The containers or wrapping papers must be moisture-vapor resistant to prevent freezer burn.

The labels on the materials you select will guide you in this area because they should clearly state that they are suitable for freezing. In addition, the containers should be easy to fill, seal and open, easy to label, not too bulky, and not impart an odor or taste to the food.

On the label of the packages of food you freeze, include the type of food, date frozen, number of servings, final preparation directions and the storage time limit. Such information will help you to be a relaxed hostess and promote freezer management.

Check your favorite cookbook for recipe ideas which freeze well. Perhaps the following suggestions also will give you some ideas:

Angel Food Cake

Prepare your favorite angel food cake recipe or store mix. When the angel food cake is cool, slice it into individual servings, place them on a tray and freeze. When frozen, wrap each one separately in packaging material, place in a plastic bag, and return to your freezer. Any desired number of servings can be taken out when they are needed. The cake thaws very quickly. Top with hot fudge sauce or fruit preserves for a fancy dessert on a minute's notice.

Stuffed Baked Potatoes

Prepare and stuff as usual but do not brown. Cool quickly; place in flat containers and wrap, seal, label and date. Or freeze on trays; store in plastic bags. Recommended storage time: 1 month.

To serve, bake unthawed in moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes; brown last few minutes at 400 degrees.

Hot Cheese Dip

2 (5-ounce) jars sharp cheese spread
1 (8-ounce) can minced clams, not drained
1 tablespoon chopped green onion
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon paprika

Thoroughly mix together all ingredients. Put in freezer container or ovenproof dish. Makes about 2 cups. Wrap, seal, label, date and freeze. Recommended storage time: 2 to 4 weeks.

To use, thaw enough to remove from container or leave in ovenproof container. Heat in a slow oven (325 degrees) about 45 minutes.

Serve in chafing dish or casserole over candle warmer with crackers or cubes of French bread on toothpicks.

Party Treats For Tree Trimmers

Gather round the tree and toast the holidays. This year make it a "tree of snacks" for everyone to enjoy.

Ever-ready convenience foods bake into delicious tiny meat cups in minutes. Make shells with refrigerated crescent rolls. Fill with a savory deviled ham mix or an exotic chicken spread blend.

Arrange the baked warm cups in a triangular tree shape. Trim the snack tree with sour cream snow caps. Then bring on the egg nog and cheers!

Deviled Mushroom Cups

1 can (4½ oz.) deviled ham
1 tsp. prepared mustard
1 tsp. instant minced onion
1 3-oz. can broiled mushrooms, drained and chopped
1 8-oz. can refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
Sour cream
Paprika

Chicken-Nut Cups

1 can (4¾ oz.) chicken spread
½ tsp. soy sauce
½ cup chopped almonds
1 8-oz can refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
Sour cream
Paprika

Combine meat spreads with their seasonings. Separate dough into four rectangles, cut each into 6 equal pieces. Roll each piece into a ball between palms of hands, place one in each of 24 small (1¾-inch) ungreased muffin pan cups. Press dough out to uniform thickness to cover bottom and sides of muffin cup, nearly to top of cup. Fill with about 1 tsp. meat spread mixture, level with edge of dough. Top each with ¼ tsp. sour cream and paprika, if desired. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 minutes. Serve warm. Makes 24 servings.

Two Special Dips Offered

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Nutrition Editor

The appetizer course for Christmas dinner is important. Here are two recipes for special dips, one for artichokes, the other for celery. Both are special.

Artichokes With Wipped Bacon Butter

4 artichokes, prepared as directed
½ cup butter, softened
½ cup heavy cream
½ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon each: dry mustard, thyme
4 slices bacon, cooked crisp and crumbled
Paprika

Cream butter until light and fluffy; gradually beat in cream. Stir in onion powder, mustard, thyme and bacon. Sprinkle with paprika. Serve as dip with hot artichokes. Four servings.

Party Celery Dip

1 pound cream-style cottage cheese
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
½ cup finely chopped celery
2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh chives
½ cup minced green pepper
½ cup finely grated carrot
Celery sticks

Combine cottage cheese and seasoned salt; beat well with electric mixer. Stir chopped celery, chives, green pepper and carrot into cottage cheese. Chill. Serve as a dip with celery sticks. Makes about 2½ cups dip.

Rich Girl Look Prevails In Hair Styles

This is the year of simplicity —simple, functional clothes and hair styles that look great, feel marvelous and are easy to care for. And the most popular hair style this holiday season will be the "rich girl look."

This hair style is called "rich girl" because members of the jet set were the first to wear it. It consists of hair that is pulled back from hairline to crown and then allowed to flow casually down — no matter how long your hair is! A variation of this is pulling the hair back and tying it with ribbons. For more formal occasions hanging Grecian curls add a glamorous accent.

If you plan to wear your hair a la "rich girl" take these tips from a top stylist. Because this style is so simple the emphasis will be on the hair itself rather than on the style so make sure it shines! And the more often you wash it, the shinier it will be. Frequent shampooing can be harsh on a sensitive scalp so using a gentle baby shampoo is in order. Baby shampoo doesn't dry out your hair and scalp but leaves it with young shine and bounce—the "rich girl look."

Spices Flavor Hanukkah Dishes

By GAYNOR MADDOX

The generous use of spices in preparing traditional dishes for Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights, reminds us that aromatic spices have been used in Jewish religious rituals for many centuries. As Jewish legend has it, "when Adam and Eve were driven from Paradise they were permitted to take with them only spices and aromatic plants. With the departure from Paradise went the consolation of fragrant spices.

The Jewish religion forbids the lighting of fires on the Sabbath. Therefore, in place of fire, incense spices were placed in beautiful open-work containers and passed from worshiper to worshiper.

The flavor of Festival Ginger Sweet Potatoes is one version of tzimmes and may be served in holiday meals.

Festival Ginger Sweet Potatoes

- 4 medium-sized sweet potatoes
- Salt to taste
- Ground white pepper to taste
- ¼ cup margarine or butter
- 1-3 cup sugar
- ¼ cup orange juice
- 2 tablespoons honey
- ¾ teaspoon ground ginger

Cook scrubbed sweet potatoes until almost done. Peel and cut into ½-inch-thick slices. Layer in greased casserole, sprinkling each layer with salt and white pepper to taste and dot with margarine or butter. Mix sugar, orange juice, ¼-cup water, honey and ginger. Pour over potatoes. Bake in a 350-degree oven 30 minutes. Four to 6 portions.

The Lyons Den — By LEONARD LYONS

Princess Ashraf, twin sister of the Shah of Iran, came to New York last week. Her Royal Highness was escorted by our municipal officials, and told them a few things about her Royal Role: There are advantages, of course, in being the twin of the Shah. But, she added there also is one disadvantage: Everyone celebrates the Shah's birthday.

Her Royal Highness therefore never can enjoy the luxury of lying about her age.

Lou Antonio stood in line for his unemployment insurance check, in Los Angeles. Behind him stood a major film star, who's between films. Antonio mentioned that he's been devoting his time to the Actors Studio, raising funds.

The film star gave him a $2,500 check for the Studio, then drew his unemployment insurance money, $75.

FRED CLARK, who died last week, started his career in Mt. Vernon at $2.50 a performance plus carfare. It took him eight years from the time he received his first paycheck to the time he paid his first income tax. He refused to wear a hairpiece over his bald spot: "A hairpiece makes it hard for me to nap."

Because of a family friendship Clark was invited to the dedication of the CIT Building in New York. He was the lone actor among the bankers and corporate executives. At first they frowned when he reported which company he was with by saying, "I'm an actor." He solved it by revising his answer to "I'm with Loew's, Inc."

Harold Clurman directed Shelley Winters in a scene, and became exasperated by her interruptions. He shouted: "Not a word out of you from now on, unless it's in the script. Not even 'Good Morning.'" Miss Winters obeyed.

The next day she told him: "My analyst says you're handling me the right way."

AT COLUMBIA PICTURES they tell of their late vice president, Sam Briskin. He heard that a studio executive had invested in a company whose stock was worthless. Briskin told the executive he'd arranged for a visiting banker to buy that stock from the executive, at a profit, too . . .The banker was brought into the studio for an elegant lunch.

Then, with the purchase contract on the desk in front of him, the "banker" asked for a pen. The "banker" leaned back, with his feet on the desk — revealing the holes in the soles of each shoe.

Kazan Happy Directing His Own Best-Seller

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Film makers dearly love the million-seller novel. Whether the movie version is good ("Rosemary's Baby") or bad ("Valley of the Dolls"), it usually does fine business because of the "presold" audience of book readers.

Elia Kazan is unique among film makers by having created his own presold best-seller. His novel, "The Arrangement," proved an immense success, totalling sales of a million in hard- cover and three million in paperback. It was a phenomenal achievement for a man who had never had a book published until he was in his fifties.

Why did "The Arrangement" sell so well?

"It must have struck a note of empathy with a helluva lot of readers," the author analyzes. He admitted also that the publishers, Stein and Day, did a rousing job of promotion and he himself hit the book-selling trail —"The first time I had gone out and sold anything, and the last time."

Now Kazan is deeply involved in bringing "The Arrangement" to life on film. He is producing and directing his own script, with Kirk Douglas, Deborah Kerr, Faye Dunaway and Richard Boone as stars.

"It feels good," he said confidently between scenes at Warner Brothers-Seven Arts. "I think this can be an excellent picture, an important picture. And I don't always think that about projects I am involved in. Kirk Douglas is doing a fantastic job.

"Every day he comes in with new ideas to help the scenes. I myself am always changing the script; even though I wrote it, I treat it as though someone else had. Kirk and I discuss the scenes and where we disagree, we do it my way. But often I go along with his suggestions."

Douglas is the second star to be cast as the adulterous ad man, Eddie Anderson, born Evangelos Arness. Earlier this year Marlon Brando was set for the role.

"But as we got into the preparations, I noticed that Marlon was getting more and more distracted by his outside activities," said Kazan. "Then Martin Luther King was murdered and Marlon simply couldn't function. I suggested that he drop out of the picture, and he agreed."

The Brando drop-out postponed "The Arrangement" for six months, and Kazan feared he would have trouble re-establishing his zest for the project. But he used the recess to start another novel, and he found he was even more enthused about "The Arrangement" when he returned to it.

He is a man of vast enthusiasms, as the vitality of his films ("A Streetcar Named Desire," "Viva Zapata," "On the Waterfront") attests. One thing bores him: suggestions that "The Arrangement" is autobiographical.

"Look—I've had two very happy marriages," said the director, widower of Molly Kazan and now wed to the actress Barbara Loden. "Both have been wonderful women, so the marital situation certainly couldn't be about me. Actually many of the things are taken from the lives of friends of mine.

"'The Arrangement' is a story of self-disgust, of a man who dislikes what he is doing (advertising). I'm completely pleased with my work. I wanted to be a director since I was 14."

Kazan is immensely pleased with the arrangement of being complete boss of his film, without the need to plead with a producer or apologize to a writer. On the other hand, it was pointed out, he must take the total blame if "The Arrangement" fails.

"If it fails, I'll go on to something else," he shrugged. "I'm a tough old guy."

Volunteers To Spread Yule Cheer At Lyons

More than 1,800 gifts will be distributed in the Christmas program for Lyons Veterans Hospital patients, it was announced today by Mrs. Rosalie Misiur of the Ladies Auxiliary, Elizabeth Chapter 91, Polish Legion of American Veterans.

Mrs. Misiur said volunteers from the following organizations assisted with the venture: American Legion Ladies Auxiliary, B'nai B'rith, Military Order of the Cootie and its auxiliary, and the PLAV post and auxiliary.

The gifts will be wrapped by volunteers Wednesday at the hospital and will be distributed to patients Dec. 23. Each patient will receive a $5 gift and ice cream and cookies through the generosity of more than 50 organizations which contributed money, time and effort toward Lyons' annual Yule project.

Mrs. Misiur said 32 volunteers from Post 91 and its auxiliary will help with the distribution. The post and auxiliary will hold their monthly ward party for 65 patients at Lyons Saturday night, Dec. 21. Post Commander Edward L. Demsia will impersonate Santa Claus. Christmas cards were prepared for the occasion by Mrs. Virginia Novak.

Mrs. Misiur and Demsia are coordinators of Christmas activities for the post and auxiliary, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Miksiewicz and Mrs. Adam Sokolowski.

CALM NERVES

The fact that nervousness has increased alarmingly during recent years is proven from the Selective Service examinations during World War II. Rejections from nervous disability were twice as high as for World War I. The frightening number of sleeping tablets sold, the cigarettes smoked, the coffee, tea and colas drunk, and the gum chewed are other signs of our national nerves. The signs of nervousness in our children are fretfulness, tantrums, so-called bad dispositions, and nail biting. The study of geriatrics has pointed out that those in the last half of life are deplorably deficient in calcium, iron, iodine, vitamin D, and the B complex. These are our most important feeding values for nerve stability.

Chiropractic is the science specializing in restoring normal nerve function, and, consequently, the logical corrective method of nervousness. See your Chiropractor for the irritated nerves when they make their appearance. Do not permit an acute condition to develop into a chronic disabling disorder.

Yule Light Ceremony At Hospital

Heralded by the pealing bells of neighboring St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Elizabeth General Hospital held its annual Christmas tree lighting ceremony Thursday afternoon at the building's main entrance on E. Jersey St.

The children's choir of St. Michael's School entertained with Christmas songs under the direction of Mrs. Sandra Cram, and carols were sung by the Vail-Deane Glee Club, directed by James R. McCarthy.

Mrs. Benjamin Priest, president of the Ladies Aid Society, introduced George F. Billington, hospital director, who gave the annual Christmas message. The ceremony was broadcast over the hospital's call system for the benefit of patients and others inside the building.

Guests, including employes, volunteers and neighbors, visited Shangle Hall for refreshments after the ceremony. The program was arranged by Mrs. John C. Bentley, Mrs. Karl Kapp, Mrs. Jesse Morgan, Mrs. Frank Mastroianni and Mrs. Emil Prazak.

Banner Time At Museum

An exhibition of banners and a talk on dinosaurs will be held at the Newark Museum, 49 Washington St., Newark.

The exhibition of banners by modern artists opens Saturday and will continue through February 16.

The ancient banner has been adapted as a new art form. Banners have had a long history in rites and pageantry.

In medieval and renaissance times, knights carried banners into battle. They also were used by noblemen to signify rank and by merchants to identify their trade guilds.

Banners are popular today because they lend themselves to bold, abstract designs and to the Pop and Op styles of art.

Robert Salkin, paleontologist, will discuss "Dinosaurs in New Jersey" at 3:30 p.m. Sunday in the museum's science department.

Holy Name To Plan For Convention

The coordinating committee of the Holy Name Societies of the State of New Jersey will meet at 8 o'clock tonight at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, to plan the spring convention.

Members from the dioceses of Trenton, Camden, Paterson and the Archdiocese of Newark will hear a report by Hugh X. Connell, chairman.

Christmas Party Planned By Council

The Community Action Neighborhood Council will plan a Christmas party and distribute toys to youngster in Tract 12 of CAFEO (Community Action for Economic Opportunity).

The council, an affiliate of CAFEO, will meet at 4:30 p.m. Saturday at 1017 Magnolia Ave., Elizabeth. The session has been called by Napolean McKissick, president of the tract. The area takes in E. Jersey St. to Madison Ave. and Bond St. to Division St.

3 Contracts Awarded On Garage Job

Acting in opposition to a recommendation of the county attorney, the Republican majority on the Union County Board of Freeholders cast the needed votes Thursday night to award the general construction contract for repair of the courthouse parking garage to the lone bidder.

Contracts on two other aspects of the repair project, structural steel and plumbing and heating, were approved unanimously. There were multiple bids on each.

Dominick A. Mirabelli, county attorney appointed by a Democratic controlled board, advised the freeholders that by accepting the lone general construction bid of $189,224 from Ali Building Construction Co., 319-331 Spencer St., Elizabeth, the county's position regarding arbitration would be weakened.

The county is engaged in arbitration for the costs of the repair work with principals in the original construction. These are Joseph Allan, the architect; Ingvald Moe, structural engineer; Bryan Construction Co., the general contractor, and the Reliance Insurance Co.

UNTENABLE POSITION

Mirabelli told the board that awarding the general construction contract to Ali Building Construction Co., the lone bidder, "would place the county in the untenable and embarrassing position of attempting to justify the reasonableness of the bid without having the all important ingredient of competitiveness."

The vote in favor of giving Ali the contract was 6-2. The dissenting ballots were cast by the two Democrats, William J. Ahern Jr., and Hugh Caldwell. The third Democrat, Arthur E. Fried, was absent.

Freeholder Director Edward H. Tiller, a Republican, said that because of the single bid, he voted to award Ali the contract "with great reluctance." However, he said he felt it important that the long delayed job be completed as soon as possible.

Tiller was joined by Republicans Jerome Epstein, Arthur A. Manner, Charles S. Tracy, Walter E. Ulrich, and Harry V. Osborne Jr.

The plumbing and heating contract, for $28,835, went to the Nubel Co., of Belleville. The structural steel contract was awared to Oltmer Iron Works, Jersey City, in the amount of $142,439.

The three contracts total $360,498.

CLOSED 1½ YEARS

The $1.5 million building houses a ramp-type garage topped by the seventh story juvenile detention center. Because of alleged structural hazards, including sagging floors and cracked walls, the building has been closed for more than a year and a half.

Tiller called on the board to urge the county's state assembly delegation to oppose the passage of Senate Bill 965, which provides the allocation of funds for highway construction and purchase of equipment for railroad transportation. The funds would be drawn bond issues approved by voters.

Tiller pointed out that the bill apparently fails to allocate sufficient funds for the improvement of Rt. 1-9, and for equipment purchases for the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

The bill has been passed by the state Senate but needs assembly approval. The freeholders will oppose it unless more priority is given the projects that affect Union County.

Bids Police Reconsider Rights Plan

James D. Coffee, executive director of the Union County Legal Services Corp., has urged the Elizabeth Police Department to reconsider its rejection of a proposal for a continuing police-community relations program.

Coffee, in a letter to Police Chief Michael D. Roy, expressed regret that the program proposed by Scientific Resources Inc. of Union, had been rejected by the department.

The program was recommended in a survey prepared by SRI under a federal grant. Generally, it would have involved establishment of an in-service training program.

Roy and Police Director John F. Brennan, in recommending to Mayor Thomas G. Dunn that the proposal be rejected, cited the department's manpower shortage, the initial cost of setting up the program and citizen apathy.

In addition, Brennan said the department's primary function is the prevention and repression of crime.

The consultants placed a $30,000 price tag on setting up the program.

PERSONNEL SHORTAGE

Brennan and Roy, in comments on the personnel shortages, pointed out that the recommendation that 10 officers participate for two weeks at a time would cause a serious drain on the existing manpower.

Coffee, noting the "growing interest in such projects," wrote, "It does seem unfortunate that this city is not going to take advantage of this interest by implementing a program of the type proposed."

He cited congressional passage of the Omnibus Crime Bill and the Safe Streets Act as evidence of interest in the police-community relations area.

"Elizabeth has been fortunate in escaping the disorders that have plagued many cities in our country," Coffee wrote.

"One cannot help but think that a project, such as the one proposed, would go a long way towards keeping Elizabeth free of such problems," he added.

A breakdown in "law and order," Coffee wrote, could hopefully be eliminated if the project were implemented.

DIRECT LINK

He noted the Kerner Commission report indicates the existence of a direct link between police-citizen hostility and breakdowns in law and order.

Commenting on the cost of the program, Coffee suggested that the police officials examine the availability of state and federal funds.

He said that funds for projects such as the SRI proposal are available in the crime act and the safe streets legislation.

On the shortage of manpower, Coffee wrote, "Perhaps this could be partially alleviated by cooperating with Community Action for Economic Opportunity in implementing a police cadet program."

Such a program was proposed for 1968 in the department's budget, but it was cut out by city council.

A proposal for five cadets in 1969 has been submitted to Dunn by Brennan in his budget request.

"I don't think past citizen apathy should prevent implementation of this project," Coffee wrote.

"Behind apathy may lurk discontent and hostility. To not embark on a bold and imaginative project such as this may be disartrous," Coffee warned.

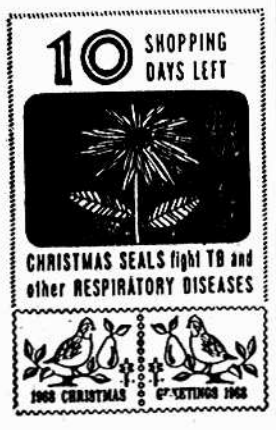
Man Indicted For Holdups

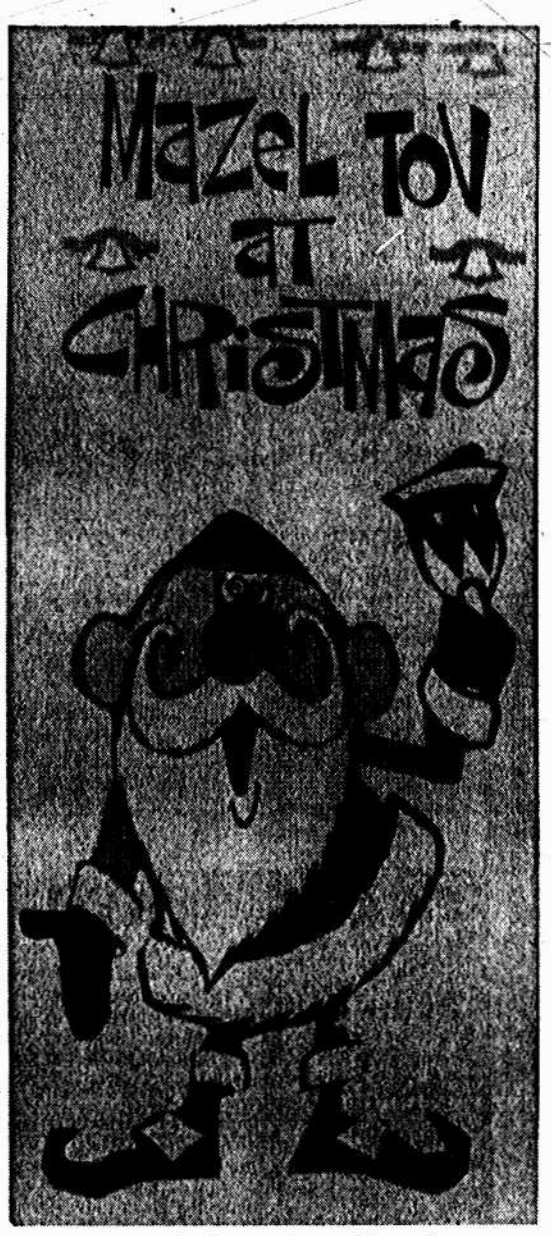
Conrell Brooks Jr., 22, of 116 Hampton Place, Elizabeth, has been indicted on armed robbery charges in connection with holdups at three Cranford gas stations.

Also named in an indictment is Darnell Johnson, 22, of 1053 William St., Elizabeth, who is charged with participating in a holdup with Brooks. Johnson is accused of robbery and armed robbery.

Brooks is charged with robbing Lomonaco's American Station, 517 Centennial Ave.; the Centennial Atlantic Station, 300 South Ave. and the Lehigh Esso Station, 310 Centennial Ave. Johnson is accused of participating in the hold up at the American ntation.

A total of $684 was taken in the robberies which took place earlier this year.





A Jewish phrase adorns this card.

New Epidemic?

Rabbit's Foot Or Horseshoe Antidotes For Cases Of Triskaidekaphobia

By EVELYN KIPNESS
Journal Staff Writer

An epidemic of triskaidekaphobia will fell superstitious persons today, Friday, the 13th. The rest of us will carry a rabbit's foot and ignore the portents of a potentially unlucky day.

Unreasonable fear of the number 13 reveals itself in the jests that supposedly unsuperstitious persons make. Don't give a black cat the right-of-way, especially today, is one of them.

How Friday the 13th got such a bad press in the first place is a question debated by sociologists and folklore fanciers. The most common explanation has to do with the fact that hangings were done in England on Friday.

And some religious historians contend that Christ was crucified on a Friday the 13th. Whatever the cause, which is buried somewhere in the subconscious of western civilization, nobody is convinced that Friday the 13th is a regular day.

For some strange reason the arrival of the day brings to mind every superstition of which anyone has ever heard.

On Friday's the 13th everyone is especially careful not to break a mirror, not to open an umbrella in a room or light three cigarettes on one match.

Kids won't step on sidewalk cracks and grownups avoid walking under ladders. It wouldn't be surprising if the odor of garlic is wasted on the breeze today.

Horseshoes are scarcer than they were when people were more superstitious, but there is no cause to be concerned. We have plenty of salt. Just be sure to throw it over your left shoulder with your right hand—or is it the other way around?

For those of you who have to work on the 13th floor, live at No. 13 something street or have 13 in your car registration or plates, beg, borrow or steal a four-leaf clover before you take another step.

Something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue—you aren't getting married today, are you?

Make sure your socks aren't on inside-out. It could be bad luck. Also, it would be dangerous today to leave a book open facedown.

Have a nice day.

NEW TREND IN CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Yule Cards Going 'Mod'

By JAMES McHUGH
Journal Staff Writer

Dogs and cats are getting the Christmas spirit this year.

The latest form of specialized Christmas card reads:

"Merry Christmas from Our Dog to Your Dog."

The feline equivalent expresses greetings from cat-to-cat.

MOD PICKING UP

Owners of greeting card shops say the traditional Christmas cards will always hold their own but the "mod" style is making inroads.

Arthur Schlesinger, the owner of Cardville in Elizabeth's Elmora section, said the trend is going more toward religious cards and "way out" things.

The younger element wants the mod look cards, Schlesinger said. "The card makers are taking typical religious scenes and making them into mod cards."

The difference is in the background. A scene of the three wise men will be set against unusual color combinations, Schlesinger explained.

Christmas is a religious holiday so the spiritual theme will always play heavily in card sales, shop owners feel.

RELIGION STRONG

George Berman, owner of The Linden Tree on Wood Ave. in Linden, said religion has been strong for the last five years.

He didn't want to make generalizations on the popularity of religious cards but he said it coincides with the war in Vietnam.

The National Association of Greeting Card Publishers have selected "peace" as the theme for 1968 Christmas cards.

"Peace on Earth" and "Joy to the World" are typical sentiments for religious and cards which have no religious boundaries.

"People are pretty serious about Christmas," said a clerk at Cardtown on Broad St., Elizabeth. "They are not interested so much in humorous cards."

The seriousness doesn't extend to a demand for religious cards, said Cardtwon owner, Samuel Goldman.

HUMOR THEMES

"We don't have as much demand for religious cards," Goldman said. "People would rather have humorous themes."

Goldman's wife, Sophie, said:

"One woman said with the world the way it is she couldn't send cards that said 'Peace on Earth'."

Foreign language Christmas cards are increasingly in demand, Goldman said.

Mrs. Joan Katz, a saleswoman at Card-o-Rama on Broad St., Elizabeth, said there has been a run on Polish language Christmas cards this year.

"We've run out twice," Mrs. Katz said. "They never really stay in the store."

FACE CENSORSHIP

Goldman said censorship is a problem for people who want to send foreign language Christmas cards to friends or relatives in Communist countries.

"Communist governments have restrictions against religious items," Goldman said.

Boxed collections of cards are purchased for general mailing.

The specialized cards are sent to immediate family, wife, aunt, uncle, grandmother, dog, or to the mailman, newsboy and doctor among others.

The humorous cards with way-out messages are becoming more in favor with young people.

INFORMATIVE CARD

A sing-along card has been designed for people who don't know the words of Christmas carols. Inside the card gives the first few words of various carols like "Deck the Halls with Boughs of Holly." The rest of the words "hum, hum, hum."

A wintry setting is the backdrop of a card with the message, "Over the hill and through the woods to grandmother's house we go. She's got the booze."

The most outstanding cards because of size are three foot high cutouts of cartoon characters, Charley Brown, Snoopy and Lucy from "Peanuts." They are mailed in heavy cardboard backings.

Holly, tinsel and snow are the prime items appearing in Christmas card designs.

The religious cards have the typical nativity scene or star shining over a small ancient town.

And don't forget the animal cards.

"Merry Christmas from our Cat to Your Cat."

Assessor Job Accepted By Mottley

John F. Mottley, Union County purchasing agent, will take over as Elizabeth assessor Jan. 1.

Mottley submitted his resignation Thursday, effective Jan. 17, from the county post, informing Freeholder Director Edward H. Tiller he has accepted the Elizabeth post.

Mayor Thomas G. Dunn today confirmed Mottley had been offered the post through Finance Director William G. Dowd Jr. Mottley will succeed John G. Lloyd, who recently retired from the $10,500-a-year post.

"Through a series of unfortunate incidents — illnesses and retirements — the need to rebuild the assessments division department has developed," the mayor commented.

Dunn pointed out that Mottley has experience in the area, explaining he has worked in the division and in real estate.

Calling the division a "vital city agency," Dunn said that the offer was made in the hopes that Mottley will "inject some vigor into its operation."

Narcotics Charges Hold Four Men

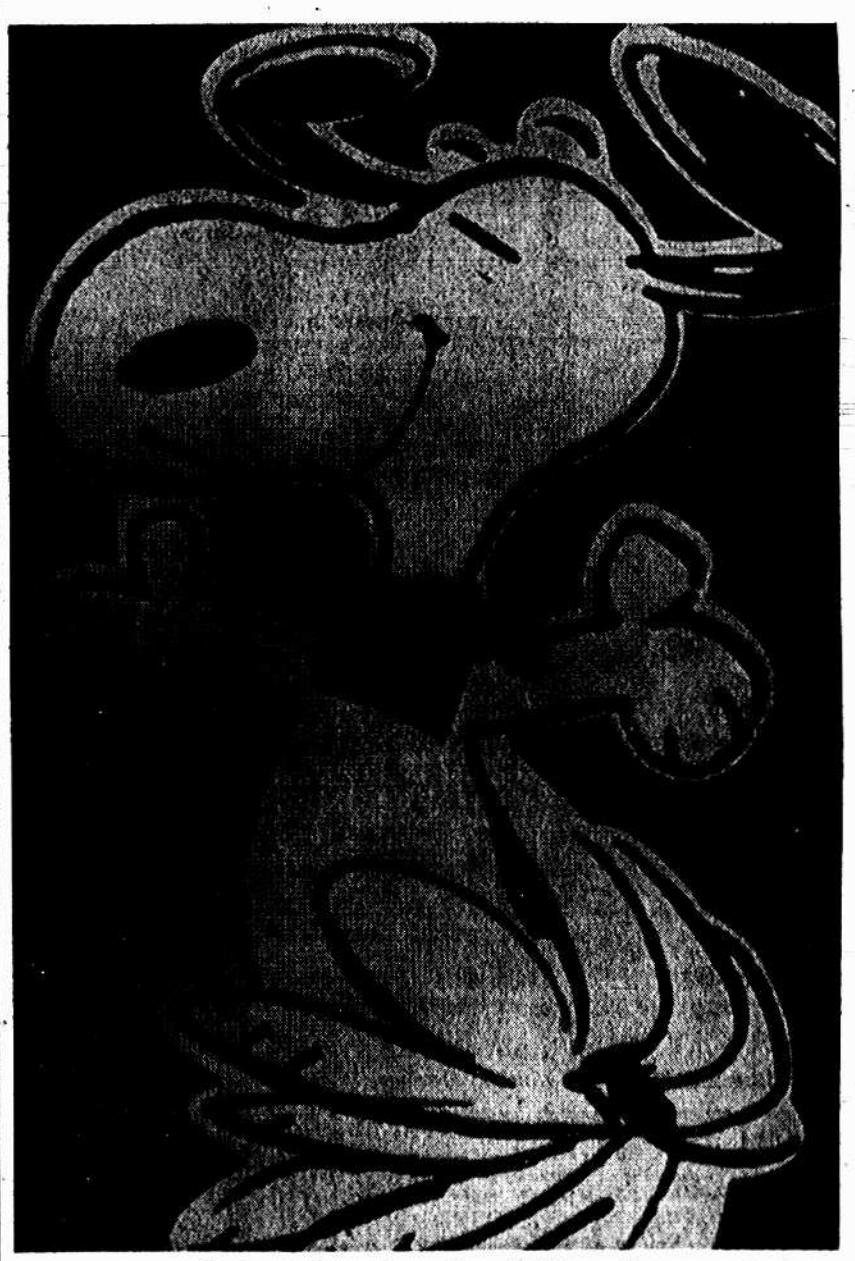
Members of the Elizabeth Police Department Narcotics Squad arrested four men Thursday night on narcotics charges.

Apprehended at 952 E. Grand St., were Gil Coley, 23, of 863 Elizabeth Ave., on charges of possession and unlawful use of narcotics; Joseph Blue, 22, of Manhattan, possession of narcotics and consorting for unlawful purposes and Leroy Barnett, 25, of 1162 Magnolia Ave., Elizabeth, possession and use of narcotics.

William Williamson, 26, of 946 E. Grand St., was arrested at his home with the aid of a search warrant. He was charged with use and possession of narcotics.

Office Ransacked

The office of the Union County Welfare Board, 7 Bridge St., Elizabeth, was ransacked Thursday night but it has not been determined what if anything is missing.



Snoopy is featured on a huge holiday card.

Radio Greetings For Men In Vietnam

Mrs. Daniel Gallagher, communications officer of the Rahway Civil Defense, sends message to Pfc. David Horton who is at a convalescent center at Cam Rahn Bay, Vietnam listening in is his fiancee, Miss Janet Ditzel of 40 Winthrop Road, Clark. Observing are Phil Harris, Richard Voynick, civil defense director and Mayor John Marsh. The project was set by the CD as a community service. About 100 persons sent messages Thursday night.

Clark Board Asks Hearing For Plan

CLARK — The board of education will disclose its plans for addition of classrooms and gymnasiums to Mildred Ter. and Frank K. Hehnly Schools at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

The board is urging residents to attend to make suggestions in hopes that the final plan will have public support. Two previous proposals were defeated. The one under consideration is not as large. t

Plans were agreed on in an executive session with the architect, Thomas Lehman of William Lehman Associates, Newark, and the two principals involved, John Conlon of Hehnly and Philip Forster of Mildred Ter. They would add two classrooms and a gym to Hehnly and eight regular classrooms, two kindergarten rooms and a gym to Mildred Ter. The Mildred Terrace cafeteria would be expaned as well.

Cost has not been discolosed but it is expected to be less than $1 million.

Another session on the proposal will be held Jan. 16 as well.

The referendum probably will be held in late January, contingent on when the State Department of Education approves plans.

Board members may present plans in Trenton next week.

Board member Michael Truss said the plans are designed only to meet present needs. They represent a two-classroom decrease from the previous referendum.

At present, sixth graders who normally would attend Mildred Ter. School are being bused to Valley Road School. Mildred Ter. serves the Madison Hill Road section, the one area still open to residential development.

Pupils at Mildred Ter. and Hehnly are having classes in such places as stages and art rooms, Truss said. In one case, a custodial closet is being used for music classes.

Valley Road enrollment is expected to increase by next year, he said, creating overcrowded conditions that eventually will make it impossible to accommodate those who should attend Mildred Ter.

State Chops Two Pleas For Funds

Linden's bid for state highway funds has been chopped in half by the State Department of Transportation and Rahway's has been reduced to less than a third. They were the only two in Union County which requested the special funds.

Linden asked for $20,000 in road reconstruction funds and has been approved for a $10,000 allocation. Rahway sought $90,000 and got approval for $25,000.

The trimming was made to fit the amount appropriated by the state legislature. Legislators reduced this year's appropriation to $200,000.

A total of 41 municipalities and counties asked the state for funds for the reconstruction of municipal and county roads destroyed by heavy construction trucks and equipment.

Their request total came to $3.5 million.

Of the 41, ten communities and three counties received grants.

The most drastically cut application was Sayreville's. Their $400,000 request was chopped to $37,000.

Flood Control Measure Moved By Park Council

ROSELLE PARK — Warren Ave. residents cheered Thursday night when borough council introduced an ordinance to appropriate $24,000 for a flood control project involving West Brook.

Councilman Salvatore Cacosa, chairman of the flood committee, said the brook would be widened and a wall constructed along the waterway a short distance on either side of Westfield Ave.

He said the money would finance the first phase of the project and indicated Jerome Ave. and Lincoln Ave. will be included in the next proposal. The work is expected to start in early spring, Cacosa said.

Alfonso Pisano, borough attorney, said under terms of the ordinance council may decide whether to finance the improvement through bonds or from capital improvement funds over a two or three-year period.

Joseph Martinoni of 110 Jerome St. asked if the proposed project would coincide with future work to be done in the flooding areas. Councilman Leonard Genova assured Martinoni and other residents the project would be permanent.

Walter Stanko, a spokesman for the group, was concerned over possible difficulty in obtaining funds for the project.

The money will be available when the project gets under way," explained Mayor Henry W. Decker.

Council adopted a ordinance authorizing paving and improving of Valley Road from Westfield Ave. at a cost of $35,000.

In other business, council approved the tax sale of a lot on Faitoute Ave. to Attilo Venturo of Roselle Park, for $1,000. Venturo was the highest of six bidders.

Councilman Genova said much talked about'' construction of sidewalks on Faitoute Ave. at previous meetings, prompted the county to become involved and aided in the sale of the property on which there were back taxes amounting of $3,772.96.

A three-year refuse collection contract for $309,700 was awarded to Peter Roselle & Sons and Fereday & Meyer Co., the lower of two firms submitting proposals.

The other bid, from White Bros., Roselle, was $372,500 for theee years. The new contract is an increase of about $110,000 over the pact which expires in January.

Councilman Eugene J. Carmody offered a motion that would authorize building inspector, A. Stephen Orlando, to grant a temporary certificate of occupancy to Rose Hill Garden Inc. for 28 family apartments in F building, 529 W. Westfield Ave. The motion carried.

Council approved another motion by Carmody that Orlando be authorized to notify Rose Hill Garden Inc. of violations in a topographical survey submitted. He said there are paving violations.

Stone Says He Advised Outside Tax Collection

RAHWAY — City Business Administrator Sidney H. Stone identified himself today as the person chiefly responsible for recommending that a private collection agency be hired by the city last spring to recover more than $91,000 in delinquent municipal taxes.

The city council authorized an investigation Wednesday into the procedures followed in the hiring of the agency, the Crest Adjustment service of Rahway.

Stone said he abandoned the collection agreement with Crest Sept. 17 after City Solicitor William Gurkin ruled there was validity to an appeal from a citizen who claimed the collection agreement was in violation of a state law forbidding non-municipal agencies from gathering taxes.

Mayor John C. Marsh emphasized today the investigation will not probe matters of personal conduct, but only the question of whether "proper" procedures were used.

"I would never question the conduct of anyone who is trying to do the best possible job for the municipality," he said.

PROBLEM CITED

As of last January, Stone said, delinquent personal and business taxes, much of which had been incurred by firms which went bankrupt or relocated out of state, amounted to $91,802.

After conferring with the mayor on possible means to collect these taxes, Stone said he decided using an "outside" firm with "know-how, contacts and experience" would result in greater collections in a shorter period of time than using municipal employes.

He investigated several prospective agencies and recommended to city council May 14 that it engage the Crest Adjustment service.

At that time, Stone said, Gurkin raised no objections and he accepted this as a "tacit approval."

City council authorized an "emergency" $2,000 appropriation June 12 to cover the commissions that would be paid to to Crest. Under the agreement, Crest would be entitled to one-third of the delinquent collected.

'VERY SUCCESSFUL'

Crest's methods proved "very successful" last summer, the business administrator said on Sept. 11, city council authorized an additional $3,000 appropriation to cover the collection agency's commissions.

About that same time, however, Alonzo W. Lawrence, a civil engineer and self-appointed watchdog of municipal spending, protested the tax collecting scheme to City Attorney Walter Pryga.

Lawrence maintained the city could hire a private tax collector only if it had exhausted its own resources, and even then, it would not pay a commission on the collectios of more than 5 per cent.

The attorneys for city hall reviewed the state law Lawrence cited, and they concluded it would be best to scrap the agreement with Crest.

In three months, Stone said Crest collected $15,615 of the $91,802 owed the city.

DEPUTIES NAMED

Since the arrangement with Crest was discontinued on Sept. 11 Charles A. Battista, the principal bookkeeper and business machine operator in the tax office, has been appointed deputy tax collector.

But the issue was raised at Wednesday's council meeting once again when Lawrence asked for an explanation and inquiry into the "illegal" deal the city made with Crest.

The matter then was given over to the council investigating committee of two Republicans. Councilman John J. Gilgannon and George Vanso and Democrat Councilman Rafflio Giacobbe.

Mayor Marsh said he regretted the end of the city's agreement with Crest and said he will lobby for state legislation so that the city will be able to use the services of a private collection agency again — and the next time, he said, it will be for keeps.

Berkeley Heights Student Wears Top Hat, Tails–Refuses Induction

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Clad in top hat and tails, Raymond Frenchman, 21, of Berkley Heights, N.J., twice refused induction into the Army while his girl friend waited outside in a full-length gown and carrying flowers.

Frenchman and Sue Calautti, 19, a student at Brown University, where Frenchman is a former student, arrived at the center Thursday in a small foreign car decorated with streamers and carrying sign which said, "Just Refused."

Maj. Nicholson S. Ellis, the center's commander, said Frenchman was informed of his rights and the penalties under the law for refusing induction, but still declined to take the oath.

Miss Calautti said she was "Ray's girl friend." About 15 persons accompanied her, but instead of conducting a demonstration they planned, they left the center's entrance after they were asked to leave.

The girl said Frechman is classified 1-A, but awaits a decision from an appeal to his New Jersey draft board.

After processing, Frenchman left the center, telling newsmen he and the girl plan to enroll at Southern Illinois University. An Army spokesman said any prosecution for the refusal to take the oath is up to the U.S. Attorney's office.

Maurice Ave. Homeowners Fight 12-Home Development

RAHWAY — Objecting residents of Maurice Ave. turned out in force Thursday night at a planning board public hearing on a proposed major subdivision. The hearing was adjourned after three hours without any decision announced.

The site of the proposed 12-home development (previous plans were for 17 homes) is a 3.3.-acre wooded plot adjoining Clark on one side and a Union County Park on another. The developer is Paul Lomakin Jr. of 49 E. Sumner Ave., Union.

Lomakin owns the tract with Ronald N. and Rudi D. Wadle. The development appears on architect's drawings as "Park Estates."

Robert Sheldon, Roselle Park attorney, represented the applicant. He had two witnesses, an engineer and a real estate broker. Both were subjected to extended cross-questioning by objectors.

3-YEAR EFFORT

Interest in developing the tract dates back at least three years, when there was an unsuccessful attempt to gain planning board approval for construction of homes on the land.

The key problem facing Lomakin is access to his property. In order to gain such access, he purchased the property between 996 and 974 Maurice Ave., intending to demolish the home and create a street. The street created would then connect Maurice Ave. with the development.

The 40 members of the audience heard the developer's engineer, Alonzo Lawrnce, describe the engineering features of the subdivision, including aspects of road width and surfacing, and drainage plans to lead away storm water and sewage.

TRAFFIC IMPACT

In response to a question about the impact of additional traffic, Lawrence offered his opinion that Maurice Ave. could easily carry the added load of vehicles. To another question, about the danger of flooding in the area, the engineer said, "I guarantee there will be no flooding."

Plans for flood control include the intention of the developer to install more than 600 feet of additional storm sewer pipe.

At one point, there was prolonged discussion about the right-of-way requirements for a street in Rahway. Sheldon cited a state statute specifying that no street need be more than 50 feet wide within the right-of-way lines. Citation by Raffio Giacobbe, board member, of a counter-requirement in a Rahway ordinance set off a discussion about what width is actually required.

ISSUE RESOLVED

Finally, the attorney for the planning board, Walter Pryga, resolved the difference by explaining that streets specified as 60-foot streets on a city master plan must be that dimension. Otherwise the 50-foot maximum prevails, Pryga said.

Another argument over flooding danger in the area also developed. Lawrence's contention that no flooding would occur was challenged by Giacobbe. He told the engineer, "I ought to know, I grew up in the area."

Sheldon also presented the testimony of Arthur J. Sanders, real estate broker. Sanders testified about conversations conducted with George Bachman, 974 Maurice Ave. and Joseph M. Probus about purchasing portions of their properties.

Both individuals indicated they had no interest in selling.

LIST OBJECTIONS

Later, Probus read a lenthy statement reviewing his and his neighbors' objections to the application. He pointed out the effect of creating a street alongside his property, creating a lot with insufficient setback for his garage.

Creation of a street would make Probus' property a corner property, increasing traffic hazards to his children, he said. Another effect of creating a corner property, he said, would be maintenance of an additional 120 feet of sidewalk, especially to keep it free of snow, an increase in insurance rates for personal liability, and a tax increase because of the change in value of the property.

When the public hearing ended, Giacobbe moved postponement of any decision until a later date, which was passed by the board.

Pharmacist Guilty Of Receiving

Herbert Gelmine, 33, of 98 Madison Ave., New Providence, was found guilty Thursday of receiving stolen drugs valued at $37,000.

Gelmine, owner of the Berkeley Pharmacy in Berkeley Heights, received the drugs from an employe of the Ciba Pharmaceutical Co. of Summit.

The Ciba employe, Frank Gandolfo of 7 Edgar St., Summit, was the chief state witness. He tesitfied he took cases of drugs known as Serpasil and Serapes and delivered them to the pharmacy. The drugs are used for reducing blood pressure.

Gandolfo is awaiting sentencing on a charge of embezzlement.

Gelmine, in testifying, said Gandolfo formerly worked part-time at the pharmacy but was fired for stealing vitamins and selling them to fellow workers at Ciba.

Gelmine, who is under $10,000 bail will be sentenced Jan. 17 by Superior Court Judge John E. Barger, before whom the jury trial was held. He could receive a maximum penalty of seven years in prison, a $3,000 fine or both.

Need For Drug Education Program Cited By Pharmaceutical Official

The symptoms of drug abuse, the work of the drug industry and the need for straightforward education programs were outlined to Union County law enforcement officials Thursday by Donald K. Fletcher, manager of distribution protection for Smith, Kline and French Laboratories at a seminar on drug abuse.

The seminar, held at the Elizabethtown Gas Co., Elizabeth, was sponsored by the Union County prosecutor's and sheriff's offices and the Union County Narcotics Commission.

Fletcher, a former member of the Texas State Police, asked police officers "to keep learning about the new ways to drug abuse." He warned against misinformation and pointed out that much of today's thinking by youth concerning drug abuse is based on misinformation.

"Education has as much possibility in prevention as any other tool we've got. Prevention works before the fact and enforcement and rehabilitation after the fact. You've got to talk to the young people as straightforward, unemotionally and factual as possible about the drug abuse problem," he added.

CORRECT INFORMATION

He said doctors, pharmacists, teachers and other authorities must give "correct information."

Many police at the seminar had had no previous in depthof coffee is just a wide awake training in narcotics and Fletcher discussed symptoms of some of the most commonly used drugs and hallucinogens.

He told them to have ideas and signposts that "raise your suspicions" and said amphetmines (stiumulants) and barbituates (depressants) are among the most common used by young people. He said "medicines stop being a blessing when they are misused" and added that the drug industry was copperative in getting drug abuse control act passed in 1965.

Fletcher said there are at least 2000 amphetmines on the market. He talked about a youngster who might "freak-out" of "flip" and said this is similar to paranoid personality.

He said that the barbituates cause an intoxication virtually identical to an alcohol high without the odor of alcohol. Sometimes the youngsters use the depressant barbituate and the depressant alcohol together and the two "kick each other."

DESCRIBES STIMULANTS

Fletcher said mixing stimulants and depressants "one to fly and one to bring you down" are not uncommon, but there is a definite hazard because they do not effectively counterbalance each other. He likened it to the drunk who fills himself full of coffee . . . "a drunk full

On hallucinogens he said that "we still don't know enough about LSD" although there are many theories that are worthwhile listening to. He said that five minutes after LSD is ingested into the blood stream it disappears and "very little is known about where it goes."

Other speakers were Edward T. Guy, former Federal narcotics agent who showed slides and spoke on identification of drugs; Arthur J. Timins, assistant prosecutor on "Search and Seizure", and John N. Surmay, president of Union County Pharmaceutical Society who spoke on the effects of drugs.

Surmay told the audience of a pharmacy alert program that informs all Union County stores (drug stores) within 45 minutes if a person is trying to obtain drugs under false pretenses. He told the police that pharmacists are willing and able to help the police and can often identify pills and other drugs within minutes if needed in a hurry.

Harvard Offers CAFEO Assist

The financial and administrative woes of Community Action For Economic Opportunity (CAFEO) can be corrected without too much effort, John C. Harvard, former executive director of the Plainfield antipoverty agency, said today.

Harvard, reacting to a move by Elizabeth Mayor Thomas G. Dunn which could result in the death of CAFEO, today offered his services to help straighten out the agency's problems.

Dunn, in comments Thursday on an audit of the agency's finances for the fiscal year ending April 30, 1966, said he will withhold the city's contribution of $5,000 to the agency unless there is a "house cleaning" of CAFEO. He said the city must make the appropriation in the 1969 budget for CAFEO to remain eligible for federal funds.

Harvard, voicing oppsition to the omission of the funds, said, "This program shouldn't be thrown out because of mechanical or administrative mistakes."

Harvard offerred to "objectively appraise" the operations of CAFEO with Dunn and the agency's director, Thomas E. Highsmith Jr.

He called the problems cited in the audit, among them the fact that Highsmith functions both as director and finance officer, as being "mechanical and personnel failures which cannot be attributed to the overall philosophy and objectives of CAFEO."

Harvard said, "It doesn't matter whether you have the best administrator in the world if there isn't a total community committment to participation in the program and to its objectives."

He added that Highsmith's administrative abilities and experience "were both for naught" when he was named director.

He pointed to a lack of meaningful citizen involvement and an "immoral apathy" as being the keys to CAFEO's problems regarding its effectiveness.

"What is wrong is that CAFEO is isolated and left to its own means," he explained.

Dunn, commenting on Harvard's offer, said, "I would prefer a committee approach, with perhaps Harvard as its chairman.

"I welcome Harvard's offer and his interest, but I want others to show a willingness to come forth."

Union Firm Leases Plant

Ariston Inc., silk-screen printing firm on Lousons Road, Union, is having a 42,000 square foot plant built for its occupancy in the Hillside Industrial Park, Route 22, Hillside.
Long-term lease of the new facility, involving aggregate rentals of $765,000, was negotiated by the J.I. Kislak Organization of Newark, exclusive broker for the new industrial center.
Permanent financing on the new plant has been arranged by Kislak's mortgage division for the builder-owner, Associated Developers, Inc., headed by Saul Cantor and Herbert Iris.
The one-story, brick and steel structure, located at Bloy Street and Mundet Place, is scheduled for completion this January. It will have 4,000 square feet of air-conditioned office space and two truck loading docks. More than 100 persons are expected to be employed there.

HAL BOYLE'S COLUMN—

Head Of House Gets New Earful Every Day

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that the average husband and father gets tired of hearing:

"You never hear a single word I say. I might as well be talking to a stone fence."

"You answer the phone, Daddy. If it's a girl, I'll take the call, but if it's a boy, hang up. I'm mad at all boys."

"Don't sit down on the sofa yet. First, you have to take out the garbage—and then you'll have to go to the store and pick up a few things I forgot."

"When the football season is finally over, will you then turn off that television set and just say a few words to me?"

"You'll have to make up your mind one way or the other. What do you want me to keep in the refrigerator—food or beer? There simply isn't room for both."

"Jim and Nell are celebrating their 20th wedding anniversary next week. They're going to Florida, and he is surprising her with a fur coat. What do you plan to give me on our anniversary—the Hong Kong flu?"

"You're so old-fashioned, Daddy. Do you expect me to wear a skirt so long it hangs clear down to my knees?"

LIKE CHIMNEY

"Do you have to sit around the house every Saturday smoking like a chimney? I know at least three husbands in this very block who have given up smoking. If they can act like men, why can't you?"

"If it's all right with you, Daddy, I'd like to get married when I'm 18. No girl wants to stay an old maid forever."

"Ye gods and little fishes, what can a woman expect out of life—married to a man like you?"

"I hate to have to ask you for money all the time, Daddy. Since you and mother have a joint bank account, why don't you and I open one, too? "It would be easier for all parties concerned if I could just write my own checks."

"Are you a husband or a barnacle? It might interest you to know, Mr. Bigshot, that it has been three full weeks since you took me out of this house—and even then all we did was go to a cocktail party where I had the pleasure of listening to you brag for three straight hours about how much you won betting on Nixon. And by the way, just what did you do with what you say you won? I never saw a penny of it."

"Why sure, Maide. You and Harry come over right now. Then, if I can manage to scrape my husband off the sofa, we can sit around the table after dinner and play a little bridge."

"Myrtle phoned and said her husband got another raise, his third in two years. When are you going to demand one? We've been living on peanuts so long that I'm beginning to feel like an elephant in the zoo."

"I know it would cost a lot of money to have all my teeth capped, Daddy. But, who knows, in the long run it might turn out to be a good investment. Maybe then I could get a job as a model posing in a toothpaste ad."

"Of course, my eyes are red. I've been crying all afternoon—ever since that daughter of ours you spoil so much brought home her report card. Wait until I show it to you, and maybe you'll feel like crying, too."

"Why can't I go to Europe this summer, Daddy: Three girls in my school are going. You don't expect me to keep going to camp every summer until my hair turns gray, do you?"

"I wouldn't go down in the basement right now if I were you—that is unless you feel like playing Dr. Kildare. The cat is having kittens."

"For all the pleasure I get out of trying to talk to you I might as well try to give advice to a stone statue."

SECURITY FOR YOU—

Marriage Effect

—VETERANS' GUIDE

By MARTIN E. SEGAL

Many widows are troubled by what will happen to their Social Security benefits if they remarry. They wonder whether remarriage will affect the Social Security benefits they receive from their late husband's accounts.

Mrs. M. L. asks about this: "My husband passed on and I am getting his Social Security of $120.80 per month. I have no income of my own. What I want to know is how much money I will get if I remarry? Will I lose it? What happens if the marriage does not work out?"

There are two answers, Mrs. L., depending on how old you are when you remarry. If the second marriage occurs after you reach age 60 — which is your situation, since you are already receiving widow's benefits — then your monthly benefit amount would be reduced from 82½ per cent of your husband's benefit to 50 per cent of his benefit.

If your second marriage should terminate for any reason whatever — through death, divorce or annulment — you would go back to the full widow's benefit you are now receiving. Incidentally, it doesn't matter how many times one remarries after age 60; as long as each marriage was legally terminted, you will be re-entitled to the full 82½ per cent of your first husband's benefit

NOT ELIGIBLE

If a widow younger than age 60 remarries, she would not be eligible to receive any widow's benefits until or unless her second marriage was terminated. If the second marriage were terminated, she would be entitled to a full widow's benefit based on her first husband's account.

Mrs. M. H. writes: "Back in 1962, my husband left home and has not been heard from since. It is my intention to go to court, next year, to have him declared legally dead. I have two young children. Will they be entitled to Social Security payments then?"

Once the Social Security Administration is satisfied that your husband is "dead," then survivor benefits will be paid to your two children — and to you, if you are eligible. However, more proof will probably be required than the court's declaration of death. This additional evidence may include statements from persons having knowledge of the situation, or the results of insurance or police investigation.

Of course, should the Social Security Administration have any evidence that your husband is still alive — for instance, if any earnings under his account number were reported during the time you mentioned — then no benefits would be payable.

SEEKS AID

Mrs. D. S. asks: "Because of an earlier case of active tuberculosis, which is now under control, I was let go from my former position in 1949. Can I receive any benefits through Social Security because of my inability to gain employment?"

Social Security is not unemployment insurance, Mrs. S. The fact that a person is unable to gain employment does not make her automatically eligible for Social Security benefits. Only if a person is unemployed due to a medically determinable severe physical or mental impairment, lasting at least one year, is she eligible for disability benefits.

P.A. Awards Contracts

Construction contracts for the elevated roadway system and covered parking areas for the two new passenger terminals now being built at Newark Airport were awarded Thursday by the commissioners of the Port of New York Authority.

The work will be done under two contracts totaling $4,425,000. Kenvil-Newcrete Products Co. Inc. of Kenvil and New Enterprise Stone & Lime Co. of New Enterprise, Pa., a joint venture, will manufacture and furnish prestressed concrete box beams for the basic roadway structure under a $1,150,000.

Cayuga Construction Corp. of New York City will assemble the concrete beams and pave the roadways under a $3,275,000 contract. Paving the auto parking areas beneath the roadways and terminal buildings also is called for in the contract.

TELEVISION REPORT

Nixon Cabinet Showing Attracts 60 Million

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — When President-elect Nixon introduced his Cabinet to the nation's television audience Wednesday night on a three-network broadcast, about one-quarter of the entire population was watching.

Both CBS and NBC ordered audience samples from the same research company, but since the research department of each used a different set of total estimates—they are usually broken down by audience that watched a portion and audience that tuned in during any average five minutes—each network came up with a different projection of the total. NBC's was 60-million viewers and CBS' was 50 million. But even with a 10-million difference, they are awesome statistics.

And, while on the subject of statistics, the program that recently drew the greatest amount of anger from viewers—"Heidi," which started its broadcast on schedule Nov. 17 at the expense of the windup of the NBC pro football game—continues to justify itself. According to the authoritative Nielsen ratings, the program was the most popular special broadcast of the season, and attracted almost half the viewing audience.

TOP SHOWS

In a list of specials published in the trade paper, Variety, the season's top 10 specials included Bob Hope's three shows, and shows starring some other old favorites, Jack Benny, Frank Sinatra and Tennessee Ernie Ford. Also on the list were the Ann-Margret show and the Miss Teen-age America Pageant.

Midseason is a time to repair weak spots in the TV network fabric by getting rid of shows without popular appeal and replacing them with new ones.

It is also a time to try to remodel other shows in hopes that change will improve ratings—although historically it rarely has.

NBC will attempt some repairs on its day-time game show, "Snap Judgment," by an unusual method. The format will be changed so that it will become exactly like old "Password." Password was a long-playing CBS game show that was dropped last season—because its ratings were dropping.

Funny business, television.

ABC reluctantly abandoning its highly-praised, low rated "Dick Cavett Show" at the year's end, is not expected to try to find substitute material for the morning spot.

NASON ON EDUCATION

An 'A' Student Stumbles First Year In College

By LESLIE J. NASON Ed. D.
University of Southern Calif.

Dear Dr. Nason:

Our daughter is in the her freshman year at a university. She writes that her scores on the first test were D's and F's. This is a shock to her and to us since she was an honor student through high school.

Is it her fault or that of the high school or university? What can she do about it now?

Q.N., Sonoma, Calif.

Answer:

Don't be too shocked. Your daughter was probably trapped by her own superior intelligence. It is neither her fault nor that of the school that she has this ability.

Several such situations have come to my attention over the years. In these cases, the students made A's in high school with little study. When they were faced suddenly with the severe competition at the university, they failed to realize how much independent study was required. Since it had been necessary in high school to set up definite study plans, they all needed help in solving their problems.

I suggest that your daughter talk with a counselor, with each instructor and with at least one successful student in each course.

With well-laid plans and a burst of energy the holiday vacation, she can salvage this semester. In the future she should start each semester with carefully devised study plans.

Dear Dr. Nason:

I am back in school after several years, taking a night course in sociology.

I find myself dissagreeing with many statements in the texbook. After each evening in the classroom, I want to stay after class and argue with the instructor.

I was given an F grade on the first examination merely because my ideas differ from the instructor's.

Should I be a hypocrite and give him the answer he wants in order to pass the course?

B.P., Butte, Montana

Answer:

In writing examinations, you are not a hypocrite when you give answers acceptable to the instructor.

You are merely saying in effect "I understood what you said and I understand what the book says." This is what the instructor is trying to find out. He is not asking for your opinion.

You should listen to learn, not to argue and criticize. You are entiltled to your opinion, but the author of the textbook and instructor are also entiled to theirs, which are based upon more study and experience in the field than yours.

Dear Dr. Nason:

Is there a system that works in studying a subject like welding?

In the shop, I make welds perfectly and carry out all of the assignments without difficulty. However, I get failing grades on every writen examination.

I study the textbook and think that I understand the ideas presented, but evidently I am missing something as I cannot demonstrate this knowledge on a test. Please come to my rescue.

J.J., Oceanside, Calif.

Answer:

It would be differcult without seeing your paper to pinpoint the reasons for your failure on written tests. However, I can give you some hints.

Do not attempt to master the book material by memorizing the words. Visualize each statement in the textbook as it applies to a specific weld. Hold this picture in your mind as you study the idea. By association the book material with mental picture of actual welding, you will be able to recall the ideas as needed on examinations.

Use this approach to study in all situation involving tools and machines.

(You can write to Dr. Nason in care of The Daily Journal.)

YOUR PERSONAL FINANCE

Big Bargains Require Long Suspicious Look

By CARLTON SMITH and RICHARD PUTNAM

"Save Up to $1,000 on Your 1969 Car!" we were invited by a flyer that came in the mail recently. This was, we learned as we read on avidly, one of the extra bonuses we'd get if we joined a "wholesalers buying club" by paying a $3 membership fee to, let's call them, Coast-to-Coast Wholesalers.

Being a member of the club would entitle us also to buy almost anything — nationally advertised furniture, appliances, clothing, sporting goods, etc. — at savings of "up to 60 per cent and more." Also very appealing, but it was "Chevrolets, Plymouths, Dodges & Fords Below Wholesale" that got our attention.

Our extra bonus as a club member would be "information from Transcontinental Auto Wholesalers, Inc. (let's call them) on where and how to buy your next car with savings of up to $1,000." Delivery to door trade-ins OK, factory service policy and warranty in your name. The works.

This got our attention, not because we're in the market for a car, but because we remembered a mail-order catalogue that had come to us, again by mail, some time before. Because we never throw anything away (yes, dear lady, all husbands are like that), we dug around and found it. And there, just as we remembered, were 1968-model Chevrolets, Plymouths, Dodges and Fords for $999.

SMALL PRINT

Slightly used, to be sure. "Carefully maintained fleet autos," they were labeled in big, easy-to-read type. Serviced a lot better than the average car owner can afford, it was pointed out. We read the four pages of copy carefully, word by word, and finally we found it: "These top quality ex-taxis have been carefully selected . . ."

We were looking for that because we recalled (drat such a memory!) a legal proceeding not long ago in which New York Atty. Gen. Louis Lefkowitz had haled into court someone selling used taxis — by mail order, all over the country — who was forgetting to mention that they were used taxis. They were being merchandised simply as beautifully reconditioned fleet cars.

In the catalogue we'd dug up, the gorgeous current-year cars (ex-taxis if you looked carefully) at $999 were not being sold by the mail-order firm itself, but by (let's call them) Transcontinental Car Distributors Corp.

Just as the wholesalers buying club wasn't, itself, getting 1969 cars for you at savings up to $1,000. They would see that you got the dope from Transcontinental Auto Wholesalers, Inc.

NO MENTION OF USE

Nowhere, in the "wholesale club" flyer, was there any mention of these 1969 cars, at $1,000 off, being used cars. The clear implication, what with the factory warranty and service policy and all, was that you could buy a new car "below wholesale."

A sameness of addresses, and other matters, lead us to suspect that when club members get the information they're promised as a bonus, they'll find they can buy carefully maintained fleet cars for around $999 — and that if they read all the material carefully, they'll find it mentioned in passing that they're ex-taxis.

We give you this case history not to warn you away from buying a used taxi. You might get a great car bargain that way, for all we know. But it's a classical illustration of one of the basic principles of taking care of your personal finances. It goes: "If anything sounds too good to be true, it probably is."

Learn to be skeptical about all the unbelievable bargains you're offered, and you'll be a lot happier where you carry your wallet.

TUCKER FREDERICKSON

Sports Review

Injured Knees Leave Scars

By Ira Berkow

NEW YORK (NEA)—Nowadays, it is eminently simple to spot a football player in a crowd. He is either wearing shoulder pads or he is on crutches.

Football has always been a ducky endeavor for those who like to limp. Lately, however, knee injuries in particular are becoming as common as cleat marks on a fullback's face. If a player has not had at least one knee operation, teammates scorn him like a goldbrick.

Few people who earn their living in the maimed and maiming world of professional football are as expert on knee disintegration as Tucker Frederickson, running back for the New York Giants.

"He is a 25-year-old with the legs of a 45-year-old," noted one observer.

"That's not altogether true," recoiled Frederickson. "Sometimes I feel like a 45-year-old with 65-year-old legs."

LONG SCARS course hither and yon on both of Frederickson's knees, like highway markings on a road map. He has had two serious knee operations in two years. In training camp in 1966, his second year in pro ball, Frederickson ripped up things like the medial ligament, cartilages and the cruciate — all dwelling in his left knee — and was out for the season. The next season he played 10 league games, then incurred another jarring tackle and repaired once again to the operating table; this time for excavation of his right knee.

The medical scroll on Frederickson is well known. Football enthusiasts are also aware that Frederickson, the one-time All-American from Auburn, has returned to the Giants this season — after much barroom discussion whether he could ever come back — and is again running with authority, though not with the speed and power of former afternoons.

"I've lost a step, at least," he said. "I don't come out of the backfield as quick and I don't hit the line with as much power as I used to. The physical things can be overcome to a great extent, it's the mental part that hangs you up.

"It was hardest of course coming back after the first operation, I didn't know how I would react to being hit. Would I be scared? Would I be flinching? Would I have the desire? I never really got over it last year.

"I feel much better this year. What made a big difference was passing the New York stock broker's test.

"I guess it needs an explanation. Before, all I had was football. I had to play. This year I knew that I could do something else. So I played with more abandon. Now, if I play, I play. If I don't, well, I don't."

COINCIDENTALLY, the most headlined knee injury of the season was Gale Sayers', the elusive and illustrious back of the Chicago Bears. Sayers, now on crutches and out for the season, is also in New York City studying to be a stock broker.

"I can't speak for Sayers, as far as how he'll react next season," said Fredeerickson, but I'm sure it'll be different for him. It's a helluva lot harder to adjust to than one might think. First, he's going to be running with his knee taped. That will cut down mobility some. He's more shifty than I, and it will affect him more, I think. I see the same holes I used to, but I can't take advantage as I used to. Maybe it will be the same for Gale.

"Then there's the mental aspect. I really don't think it's fear exactly. I mean I don't fear anything on the field. But, well, take pass catching. I still don't like to get in the middle. Unconsciously there is now more of a concern of what's coming up behind you.

FREDERICKSON said that rival players do not intentionally set sights on a vulnerable spot, as a boxer might toward a swelling eye or a vampire toward a tempting throat.

"There is a camaraderie," he said. "Defensive players want to win, not send you back to the hospital. When I was hurt, guys all over the league called and wrote me.

"Some of my best friends are people like Dick Butkus and Tommy Nobis and Ray Nitschke and Lee Roy Caffey. When you are a running back on the other team they are very good friends to have, I might add."

Rutgers' Stewart A Shooting Star

By MIKE RECHT

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Stewart doesn't get around much anymore, but in return he is the only player on the Rutgers basketball team with two coaches and his own cook.

"She turned into a coach when we got married said the only married man on the team of his wife, Charlene. "I started the season shooting badly at the foul line and I'd come home and she'd tell me I wasn't following through, or that I was pointing my finger while shooting.

"It helps, though, and she's a pretty good cook, too. We invite the rest of the team to dinner, one or two at a time because we can't fit them all into our two-room apartment."

30 CAREER HIGH

Whether it's the extra coaching, or the cooking, Stewart has turned into quite a basketball player, and he showed it Thursday night when he pumped in 30 points, a career high, to lead Rutgers to a surprisingly easy 91-67 victory over St. Louis U.

The performance represented quite a change from Stewart, the bachelor sophomore of two years ago who was told to leave the shooting to All-American Bob Lloyd.

He averaged only 4.6 points a game as a starter that year, climbed to "11 or 12" last season and now is breezing along at 19 a game, including a 58 per cent shooting percentage from the field.

His 14 of 20 from the field helped the Scarlet Knights pull away from a 40-39 halftime lead to a 62-45 bulge that clinched their fourth victory in five games.

TOLEDO WINS

Toledo, using an 18-4 run at the start of the second half, upset 15th-ranked Western Kentucky 88-65 behind Bob Miller's 28 points and Steve Mix' 25 in the nightcap of the doubleheader at Mudison Square Garden.

"I think I also have an advantage of being able to go home to my wife instead of the dorm," Stewart said. "There are always front runners in the dorm who don't say much when we lose, but my wife always pats me on the back."

But being married to his high school sweetheart, a senior at nearby Seton Hall, does have it's disadvantages. He takes a lot of ribbing from the rest of the team.

"She makes him come home at night," chuckled teammate Bob Greacen.

"They tell me about the good times I'm missing," smiled the 21-year-old Stewart. "It's not that I don't like going home, but I have to turn the other way instead of going out with the fellas."

Wilhelm Still Ace

BOSTON (AP) — Old Man River could take a pointer or two from Hoyt Wilhelm when it comes to rolling along.

The rubber-armed 45-year-old relief specialist accounted for six major league records and three American League records this past season, according to figures released today by Joe Cronin, American League president.

His contributions to the major league record section were: most consecutive errorless games for a pitcher (319), most games as a relief pitcher (885), most career victories in relief (11), most games finished in career (587), most innings pitched in relief (1,664) and most games pitched (937).

The right-hander also extended three of his own league records. They were: most games finished (404), most games as a relief pitcher (526) and most games won as a relief pitcher (68).

St. Louis Blue? Yes, Indeed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Louis is learning how the other half lives.

The expansionist Blues went through 13 National Hockey League games—one full month—between defeats and had the best goals against mark in the league.

But that all changed in 48 hours with the Blues absorbing consecutive losses—the latest a 5-4 decision at Montreal Thursday night.

In Thursday's other NHL action, Toronto shut out Philadelphia 1-0 and Oakland blanked Detroit 6-0.

Despite the 11 goals allowed in two games, the Blues' total of 62 surrendered for the season matches Boston for the league lead.

St. Louis fought the good fight against the Canadiens, battling from behind. But two goals by Henri Richard put Montreal in front to start.

The Canadiens opened a four-point lead over idle New York and Boston in the East Division race. Craig Cameron scored twice for the Blues, who still lead the West Division by eight points over idle Los Angeles.

The Blues held a 2-1 edge and had just fought off a two-man Montreal advantage when Richard scored the tying goal with seven seconds left in the first period. Then the veteran center scored the go-ahead goal early in the second period and Gilles Tremblay made it 4-2.

St. Louis battled back in the final period but the Canadiens checked the rally and hung on to the victory.

Toronto got airtight goaltending from Johnny Bower and extended Philadelphia's winless string to 10 games. The 44-year-old Bower kicked out 27 shots for his second shutout in eight games this season.

Goalie Gary Smith and rookie Norm Ferguson triggered Oakland's blanking of Detroit.

Hazzard Swishes Winner

SEATTLE (AP) — Walt Hazzard hit a jumper with two seconds left to hand his former teammates a defeat as Atlanta beat Seattle 93-91 in a National Bsketball Association action Thursday night.

The Hawks led most of the game, but were ahead only 46-45 at the half. They stretched the margin to 80-70 on Zelmo Beaty's jumper with 10:32 left in the fourth quarter.

Seattle came back to tie it at 86-86 on a free throw by Bob Rule and made it 91-all on Rule's 15-foot jump shot with 25 seconds to play.

Beaty was high for the game with 32 points. Lenny Wilkens led Seattle with 25.

The Sonics lost center Dorie Murrey for about 10 days when he suffered a shoulder separation going for a rebound in the second quarter.

Protests Threat To Bout

By EDWARD MAGRI

SAN REMO, Italy (AP) — Police are girding for possible fighting outside as well as inside the ring when Italy's Nino Benvenuit defends his world middleweight championship against Don Fullmer of Utah Suturday Night.

Italy's protest-conscious students have denounced the event as a capitalistic feast and say they expect colleagues to swarm in from Genoa and other cities for a demonstration to outdo the chanting, egg-throwing rally students staged last week at the opening of Milan's La Scala opera house.

Angered because most of the slim total of 2,500 seats in the Ariston Theater went on sale at $80, students labeled the fight as an evening of discrimination against the have-nots.

Heavies Box In New York

NEW YORK — Two co-featured 10-round fights and a special eight-round bout highlight the boxing program tonight at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum.

The first of the twin 10-rounders will feature welterweights Miguel Barreto of The Bronx and C. L. Lewis of Philadelphia, while the second pairs heavyweights Chuck Wepner of Bayonne, N.J., and Jerry Tomasetti of Scranton, Pa.

Elks Club Site (Last Time) Of Golden Gloves Event

By MILT FARB

There will be just one more New Jersey Golden Gloves tournament in the Elizabeth Elks Club.

George Cron, tournament director, said today the annual tourney will be held in the Elks auditorium for the 11th — and last — time in January and February. The eight-week amateur boxing competition will get under way Jan. 10 and wind up Feb. 28.

Shortly thereafter the 100-year-old Elks building will be razed for expansion of the Post Office. The Armory is being considered as the site of the 1970 tournament.

The Golden Gloves scrappers will be screened and examined Sunday afternoon, Jan. 4, in the Elks Club. Cron said he expects more than 150 boxers to check in. Last year's tournament attracted 175 mittsters.

There will be eight classes in each the novice and open divisions — 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160, 175 and heavyweight.

A team award again will be given, with Trenton PAL defending the title it won in the 1968 tournament. Tony Orlando's Elizabeth Recreation Club and Newark Parksbranch Club tied for second place.

BROWN CHAMPION

Elizabeth's lone champion last year was Mike Brown, winner of the novice 132-pound title. Five of his teammates — Al August, Ed Scott, Bob Wheeler, Jerry Holloway and Bob Cardamone — had to settle for runnerup spots.

Ray Hoagland, New Jersey AAU secretary, again is handling registrations at his office, 1670 Irving St., Rahway. Joe LaVista, AAU boxing champion, will be in charge of the boxers and matchmaking, while George Forrester, former pro boxing star, handles the announcing.

The committeemen are Joe Lombardi, tickets; Dr. Peter Erhardt, treasurer; Exalted Ruler Harry Fadde and Fred Moore, arrangements; Ernie Erickson, ushers; Don Moore, hall; James MacLaren and Edward Heskin, prizes and supplies; Robert Roden, referees and judges, and Milt Farb, publicity.

O'Rourke Named Scout Of Year

"They knocked me off my feet," said Elizabeth's Frank O'Rourke of his selection by the New York Professional Baseball Scouts as Scout of the Year.

FRANK O'ROURKE

The organization of 85 major league scouts will honor the talent hunter at their Hot Stove Dinner Friday, Jan. 31, at the Downtown A. C. in New York.

O'Rourke, a former big league player and minor league manager, has been scouting since 1940, the first 11 years with Cincinnati and thereafter for the Yankees.

He is assigned to cover New Jersey and Delaware and part of Pennsylvania as well as keeping tabs on the Eastern League.

O'Rourke is the fourth recipient of the group's award, which was first given to Gil Hodges, then manager of the Senators. The purpose of the award then was changed to honor a scout, with Bill McCarren of the Red Sox and Benny Borgmann of the Twins (now with Seattle) being honored the last two years.

O'Rourke has been treasurer of the scouting group since it was formed five years ago.

O.J. Hard Man To Pin Down

By Duffy Daugherty

Even on the banquet circuit Southern California's O.J. Simpson is a hard man to pin down.

Simpson was so mobbed by tuxedo draped autograph seekers during the recent National Football Foundation dinner in New York that Chicago's Jay Berwanger, winner of the first Heisman Award in 1935, had trouble getting near him.

"I don't even want his autograph," Berwanger complained. "I just want to meet him and shake his hand."

Berwanger made a second effort later and congratulated Simpson for winning football's No. 1 individual award. There is only one thing wrong with Simpson. He has to use four fingers to sign O. Jay and his surname because he gets writer's cramp.

When the Philadelphia Eagles had lost their first 11 games it looked like Joe Kuharich's hapless team would get first pick in next month's pro draft of college seniors.

PHILLY APATHY?

Someone asked Simpson what he thought about playing in Philadelphia and O.J. replied that he didn't like the town. He quickly amended that by saying that on his one trip there he was too tired to enjoy the city of Brotherly Love.

However, when O.J. went from New York to Washington to accept the Pigskin Club award he was smart. He flew right over Philadelphia.

Simpson is no accident. With his swivel hips, jukes, speed and high stepping moves he scored 54 TDs in two years for San Francisco City College. Last year he scored 14 TDs for the USC Trojans and this year he crossed the alumni stripe 22 times.

It'll be worth the price of admission just to see him play in the Rose Bowl against unbeaten and untied Ohio State on New Year's Day. After that it's the Hula Bowl on Jan. 4 in Honolulu then it's the pro draft with practically every team trying to deal for his services.

O.J. is the greatest runner I have ever seen in college football. Purdue's Leroy Keyes is as fine an all around back as I've ever seen. And Notre Dame's Terry Hanratty is the finest quarterback.

No pro team could go wrong making any of these three their No. 1 draft choice.

BILLS PICK FIRST

The Buffalo Bills won only one game in the AFL and as the least successful pro team this year they get the No. 1 pick. Maybe they won't take Simpson but the phone lines to upstate New York must be busy because the team that gets a Simpson could trade him for half a dozen good players to build a winner.

New Jeff, Lion Looks

By ARNOLD SAMUELSEN
Journal Sports Writer

Two big winners of last season, Jefferson and Roselle Catholic, put on brand new faces for the start of the scholastic basketball season today.

Graduation has stripped both teams of starting fives that gave the Jeffs a 21-7 record and the Lions a 19-4 mark, but neither is pushing the panic button.

They start the ball bouncing in the Roselle Catholic gym at 8 tonight. Last year the Lions took the opener, 69-64, but Jeff reversed the result in the semi-finals of the Union County Conference tournament.

Jeff's John Wilson, who scored 17 points in the opener against Roselle Catholic but saw little action later in the season, and Joe Drylewicz of the Lions lead their teams into action.

St. Mary's, which posted a 17-10 record and lost in the final of the state tournament last season, and Linden, the Union County Conference champion with a 20-5 record, are on the road for their annual openers against Cranford and Rahway, respectively.

There is only one starter back for the Hilltoppers, but the Elizabeth school has height, strength and talent in 6-4 John Sadlosca, 6-6 Ken Tanke, Jack Moran and Ben Candelino.

INDIAN MATINEES

Rahway, which plays all its home games in the afternoon, entertains a Linden team which has three 1967-68 starters out with injuries and the smallest back court in the county with Earl Cokley and Dennis Caton both standing 5-2.

Roselle, last year's state Group 2 champ with a 25-2 mark, opens Saturday night against Union Catholic at Scotch Plains.

It ranks as the best game of the wekend, matching another strong Roselle cast led by 6-7 Gary Woodruff and 6-3 Ed Matthews and a promising Terrier five with 6-4 Mike Allocco heading the attack.

Westfield begins defense of its Watchung Conference championship against visiting Berkeley Heights in one of three league games tonight. Clark is at Springfield and Hillside visits Scotch Plains in the other Watchung matches.

Scholastic basketball season starts this weekend and these three Elizabeth performers will be out to help bring their teams victories. Left to right: Bob O'Brien of Jefferson, who was quarterback on crack Jeff football team; Bruno Iannone of St. Patrick's and Johnny Sadolsca of St. Mary's. Jeff and St. Mary's play tonight at Roselle Catholic and Cranford, respectively, while St. Patrick's opens Saturday night against Edison Tech at School 23.

Roselle High Cagers Seen Potent Again

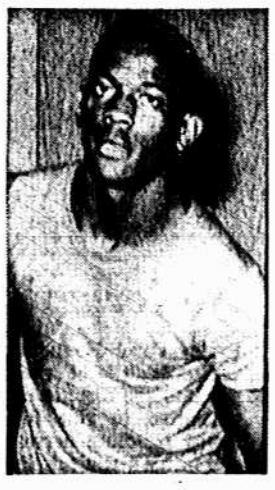
By GENE PICKER
Journal Sports Writer

The football fortunes at Roselle High may be at a low ebb, but things never have been better on the hardcourt.

Last season Coach Dick Young's Rams captured a state championship — and his current aggregation again should be among the leaders in Group 2. Roselle may find some of its stiffest competition in the Garden State Conference.

The county's other GSC member, Roselle Park, may come along late to be a spoiler. Coach Tom Turney's group has only one senior among the leading eight hands.

Two other combines that are members of far-flung loops, Edison Tech and Kenilworth, have limited experience — but will not be overshadowed in their organizations. Edison is in the New Jersey Vocational Schools League while the Bears will be starting their initial campaign in the Mountain Valley Conference.



ED MATTHEWS

ROSELLE

The Rams have been almost unbelievable during their two Garden State campaigns, capturing both titles with an the ground in 83 carries and overall 26-1 record. But ready to push Roselle for honors is a Clifford Scott combine rated the strongest in four years by Coach Ed Lyons. Highland Park may be tough with high-scoring Joe Polito.

Roselle's strength will be up front where veterans Ed Matthews (6-3) and Gary Woodruff (6-7) should be outstanding. "Matthews is one of the best all-around players I've ever had," said Young. He's rugged off the boards, can shoot with consistency on either the outside or far out and excels on defense.

Woodruff, who will be working out of the pivot, is vastly improved. He's been showing fine strength in rebounding during scrimmages and has a good eye to 20 feet. Non-lettermen are among five other hands rated a good shot at a starting job.

Sophomore Roger Banks (6-0) needs experience, but he features an excellent outside shot. The backcourt situation is up in the air with Bill Blackshear (5-7), Ralph Crosby (5-9) and juniors John Symczak (5-8) and Jeff Boyd (5-11) the chief candidates.

ROSELLE PARK

Youth and depth are the big pluses for Roselle Park. Turney expects his club to win its share of games this season and be very tought next year.

The lone letterman is "Butch" Dunn (6-2), who features an outside jumper. Four juniors and a sophomore are in the picture for first-team berths.

Ball-handling chores will be handled by Rex Allen (6-1), a fine shooter. Another good playmaker is Pat Agoglia (5-7). Counted upon to handle the boards are sophomore Walt Addie (6-2), Carl Rossbach and Joe Burry, both 6-3. The reserve list is headed by juniors Walt Bogota (6-1) and defensive specialist Jay Vaccarino (5-8).

EDISON TECH

Although graduation took away most hands, Coach Gene York refuses to be pessimistic as he starts his 17th season. The Yellow Jackets should hold their own around the boards via lettermen Ron Komar and Larry Paige, both 6-3, and junior Carl Cascarelli. The latter was the scoring leader for the jayvees last year.

Seven other players are battling for the other two starting roles, which gives Tech a good bench. Will Ballard (5-8), who has varsity experience, Bill Robinson (5-9), Mark Neely (5-10), Ismael Olivero (5-6) and Barry Shumate (6-2) along with juniors Jack Hernandez (5-6) and Dave Taylor (5-11) comprise the group.

KENILWORTH

Kenilworth's hopes received a major jolt when the team's expected mainstay, George Brokaw, suffered a broken leg during the football campaign. He probably will be lost for most of the cage season. Brokaw boasted a 17.4 scoring average the previous year.

The borough also lacks a summer program. The only non-school program was on Saturday morning, started last season by Coach Tom Santaguida. The mentor has only one senior slated to start — 6-4 John Wills — which bodes well for the future. Wills, although inexperienced, is expected to do well in the rebound department.

Also listed as starters are sophomore Steve Krupinski (6-1½), strong board player and inside shooter who has been hampered by an ankle injury, and juniors Bob Sico (6-0) and Jim Lenhoff (5-8). The fifth spot will be shared by sophomore Jim Brokaw (5-9), George's brother, and junior John Raimondi (5-9).

Rhodes Scholarship Awaiting Huckel?

DAVIDSON, N.C. — Davidson's nationally third-ranked Wildcats, with a 3-0 record, are taking a week off for the examination break, but play twice next week possibly minus Wayne Huckel, star from Cranford, N.J., who will be interviewed for a Rhodes Scholarship at Princeton.

"We know that he will be interviewed on Tuesday. That's the day we play Richmond," said Coach Lefty Driesell. "We are hoping he will be able to leave in time to reach Richmond. We will have a private plane waiting for him.

"If he does well in his interview on the first day, the interviews could last until Friday. We play South Carolina that day. We will be making the same plans to fly Wayne in for the game, if possible."

Huckel averaged in double figures the last two seasons. Thus far he is averaging only 5.7 points in the Wildcats' first three games.

"He still may not have all his strength back from that ulcer attack before practice began," Driesell said. "And he's such an intense young man that I know he has spent a lot of time worrying about studies and the Rhodes Scholarship interviews."

Huckel, a senior, carries 2.7 of a possible 3.0 grade average at academically tough Davidson. If he should win a Rhodes Scholarship, he would be the second player in Driesell's tenure here to be so honored. Danny Garrell was a Rhodes Scholar in 1963.

Smith Stops Aussie Ace

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., a member of the U.S. Davis Cup tennis team, defeated second-seeded Bill Bowrey, a top Australian amateur, 8-6, 6-3, 6-3 in the men's singles semifinals of the Queensland Championships today.

Smith's victory for the United States was a blow to the Australian Davis Cup Challenge Round hopes in Adelaide Dec. 26-28. Bowrey is considered Australia's leading amateur in defense of the Cup.

The victory gave Smith an edge in the race to fill the U.S. second singles vacancy for the Davis Ctup.

Arhur Ashe, the No. 1 U.S. singles choice, meets Australian Ray Ruffels in the other semifinal match Saturday.

William McGlade, 23-year-old Elizabeth hunter, accounted for this eight-point, 175-pound buck near Whitehouse in Hunterdon County. It was his first deer kill in seven years of hunting.

Fish And Game

Pressure Mounts As Season Ends

By Bill Backus

Milder weather should help bring out deer hunters in quantity today and tomorrow. That applies particularly to the deer clubs. Many clubs have perfected elaborate plans for drives which always flush out even the smartest bucks, whether it be swamps or pine barrens.

Early part of the week wasn't nearly as productive as had been expected. We heard from sources as widely separated as Spruce Run, Swartswood Lake and Lakehurst that hunters preferred to do most of their hunting in diners and taverns the first two days especially.

Now that winter has declared a brief moratorium the picture changes. Only the bucks which crawl into the toughest tangles in the deepest swamps can be called reasonably safe. Few sections of the state have not been combed so that when the hunting enters its final phases the location of most bucks is rather well known.

BECAUSE OF the cold weather, however, it's faintly possible that the deer kill this season may not measure up to the totals of 1966 and 1967. But then both hunters and deer have surprised before this and a big kill would upset the tabulations and predictions. It will be at least a week and nearer 10 days before satisfactory totals are submited by Trenton.

To most hunters tomorrow night marks the end of all hunting for '68, but there are many especially those with dogs, who will go right on hunting for rabbits and birds. The woods and fields will be less crowded, the dogs will be in less danger and have more room in which to run and the hunting, while tough, should be productive.

Small game hunting begins Monday at sunrise and ends daily half hour after sunset on all species for the remainder of 1968. That is, with exception of Saturday, Dec. 21, the special one-day permit deer season. Best of the picture is that pheasant and quail will continue to be stocked.

PETE RICHKUS SR. of Roselle Park, hunting with his nephew, Ray, occupied the same tree stand near Haney's Mill in Sussex County from which he shot a fine buck last year. "The deer have a runway near there," he said and "it's a natural either to stand on post or be up a tree."

Pete hadn't been there more than half an hour when he caught sight of a movement from the corner of his eye. He moved slowly and precisely while the deer came to within 45 yards of the tree.

The buck dropped at the shot. Pete climbed down out of the tree and ran toward the deer. The buck got to its feet and started to run when Pete shot again, hitting it in the neck. This time it stayed down.

"It wasn't a large deer," said Pete, "but it had a perfectly symmetrical eight-point rack."

Cards' Crenshaw Cited For Wrecking Giants

NEW YORK (AP) — Willis Crenshaw's best wasn't enough to save the St. Louis Cardinals from elimination Sunday but it was enough to make him The Associated Press' offensive player of the week in the National Football League.

Crenshaw cruised through the New York Giants' defense for 162 yards and three touchdowns on 26 carries in the Cards' futile 28-21 win. Despite the victory, they were knocked out of the Century Division race by Cleveland's win at Washington.

The 6-foot-1, 230-pound fullback from Kansas State, had the biggest day of his five-year pro career, raising his total to 744 yards for the year, good enough for seventh place on the list of NFL rushers.

Because he is a solid blocker, Crenshaw appreciated the help he gets from others, especially on his 66-yard touchdown run.

"They really cleared out the right side for me," said Crenshaw. "And Jackie Smith convoyed me all the way in. Nobody touched me."

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP — Carmine Abbatellio drove three winners at Roosevelt Raceway Thursday night, including both ends of a $27 daily double.

Schneider, Maffey Trail

Roselle Catholic High's Barney Schneider placed fourth in the shot-put, the opening event of the Bishop Laughlin track meet Thursday in Brooklyn.

The rest of the meet will be held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the 168th St. Armory in Manhattan.

Schneider threw 54 feet, one-half inch in the event won by Steve Adams, a junior from St. Joseph's of Montvale, whose toss was 56-3. Charlie Maffey of Roselle Catholic took sixth with 52-5½.

The Lions placed 1-2 in the novice shot-put with Bob Parducci throwing 48-7½ and John Allen trailing at 47-5½.

Two-milers Fred Geiger and Ed Brennan, miler Joe Savage and hurdler John Abiante head Roselle Catholic's cast in Saturday's running events. Union Catholic, the area's only other school entered, is led by John Wyrough in the 600-yard race and Bill Sieben in the mile.

Meredith Regains Lead In Passes

NEW YORK (AP) —Dallas' Don Meredith has regained the passing lead from Earl Morrall of Baltimore in the National Football League, according to statistics released Wednesday.

Meredith, who slipped to second a week ago, took over the top spot with 170 of 330 completions for 2,494 yards, 21 touchdowns and an average of 8.31 yards per pass.

Morrall has connected on 177 of 303 tries for 2,812 yards, 25 touchdowns and an average of 9.28 yards.

The lead is based on completion and interception percentages, touchdown passes and average gain. Morrall has had 17 passes intercepted while Meredith has lost only 11.

Meanwhile, Cleveland's bruising running back, Leroy Kelly, maintained his big rushing lead and increased his scoring lead.

Kelly has picked up 1,172 yards in 238 attempts for a 4.9 average. Philadelphia's Tom Woodeshick moved from fourth to a distant second with 867 yards in 193 carries for a 4.5 average. Injured Gale Sayers dropped to third with 856 yards.

Kelly, who took over the scoring lead from Dallas' Mike Clark a week ago, widened the margin to 13 points.

Kelly has 114 points on 19 touchdowns while Clark has 101 on 17 field goals and 50 of 50 conversion attempts. Lou Michaels of Baltimore is third with 98.

Clifton McNeil of San Francisco kept his big lead in pass receiving with 69 catches. Roy Jefferson of Pittsburgh remained second with 52.

ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

GOLDBRICK? WELL WHY NOT . . .

"My grandfather called dirty little jobs 'chores,' and he tried to make them sound good for a body . . . but now that I think of it, mine was the body that benefitted. He gave me an allowance for stopping by and heave-ho-ing with the shovel to keep the steam heat hissing all winter long. Something about his aching back wouldn't let him do it himself, etc., etc. . . .

"Well, compared to that my kid is a gold brick. Born and bred . . . comes by it naturally because so am I so is my wife. Ever since we bought an electrically heated house. Bobby's never known anything else. We've had the house eight years and he is seven.

"And everybody, including Bobby, with the new math and everything — has all the problems anybody needs without adding bumbling home equipment to the list."

Bobby's dad could add that his eight-year-old complete-home heating system is, to all evidence, as young as the day he and Midge came to terms about which thermostat was set where that first winter.

"Because people aren't perfect — even if the electric heating system is," Midge philosophizes. "Some like it hot, some like it cool. Although big Bob was right. At my parents home we needed 85 degrees just to keep comfortable. Well, our electric baseboard heat is so even that a room in our house today is warmer at 72 than mom's place at 85. No cold spots that have to be evened off. No drafts in fact. So that compromise wasn't too rough after all. I just need a little experience to find electrical living is better. More comfortable, and no trouble. I don't even re-adjust the thermostats on cold nights because it's always just right.

Bob's ham shack (that's what he calls the corner of the basement where he keeps his radio transmitter), being all his, stays at 65 degrees.

In addition to raves the smooth-running electric heating system there's some inside information that should be passed along too, according to home heating authorities. "Insulation. Thermostats give you pin-point control of the heat within the room, the house. Providing you keep it in the house." That means double sash for the windows, proper vapor barriers, so forth. All of which is conveniently spelled out in the standards for Gold Medallion Homes. (Local utilities have brochures available on this free.)

QUESTION BOX

Q. Where should you place thermostats?

A. Well away from sources of heat. That means that your own system's units as well as sunlight. Well away, too from blasts of cold outdoor air . . . (not in line with the door to the porch, for instance). Five feet from the floor is the recommended height.

• • •

Q. Our contractor suggests setting thermostats where I want them then "forgetting them." But I can't do that, I think a cool bedroom is healthier. My mother used to open the window even on winter nights.

A. The option is strictly yours. If you like a cooler bedroom turn your thermostat down every night. Incidentally, just to show how opinions vary, our doctor recommends a uniform temperature day and night. Says the body at rest needs the warmth even more than when we're rushing around during the day . . . and besides — he reasons — there are only a few months a year when all that "fresh" (i.e. icy) air is available anyway from the outdoors. Rest of the year it's a decision we don't have to make!

• • •

Q. How does a radiant ceiling work? Could you tell me if it's the best kind of electric heat to get? My sister and brother-in-law claim it is.

A. First off, there are now several highly successful different methods of electric heating available today and all highly perfected. The ceiling method is one. Discuss your preference with your contractor. One advantage (in addition to comfort, of course) is that it is completely invisible. The network of wires transmitting the heat is concealed by plaster.

• • •

Q. Does an electric heating system air condition, too?

A. The heat pump does reverse itself automatically . . . and air-conditioning is an easy adaptation with the electric furnace. Some people, on the other hand, opt for separate electric heating systems and separate air-conditioning.

Immutable in folklore is the saying, "In spring, a young man's fancy turns to love."

Junior Editors Quiz On

SEAHORSE

QUESTION: How does a seahorse swim?

ANSWER: The seahorse is a very small creature, only 6 to 10 inches long. The resemblance of its head to that of a real horse (1) is one of the coincidences of nature. The snout, location of the eyes, the bumps on the forehead and the back of the neck where a horse's mane is located, the arching of the neck — all suggest the appearance of a horse's head. But this resemblance goes no further than the head and neck. The reason seahorses don't have legs is that they are not land animals requiring legs; they are fish. They have only a slight resemblance to regular fish. However, look closely at (2) and you will see a fin on the seahorse's back which he beats back and forth to move along with, and a fin is the sign of a fish. There is another small fin back of the gills, almost suggesting an ear. The seahorse has a remarkable tail which he can curl in different directions, often wrapping it around a water weed to anchor himself in place. An equally strange seahorse relative is (2) the pipefish.

(Sandy Filsinger of Richland, Wash., wins a prize for this question. You can win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World Yearbook if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Daily Journal, is selected for a prize.)

TV KEY PREVIEWS

Today's top television shows as previewed and selected by TV KEY'S staff of experts who attend rehearsals, watch screenings, and analyse scripts in New York and Hollywood.

7:30—2—THE WILD WILD WEST: Tiny Dr. Loveless returns, full of revenge and visions of greatness. He conducts a trial in a circus setting using clowns for the jury and judges seven enemies including agent West. The highlights of the hour are the flashing circus backgrounds, a big cast, and the creation of a ventriloquist's dummy exactly like Dr. Loveless. (Color).

7—SPECIAL: "Beauty and the Beast." Your youngsters have actress Hayley Mills on view tonight to tell them the story of "Beauty and the Beast," while the members of the talented San Francisco Ballet company bring the fairy tale characters to life in dance-pantomime array. (Color).

8:30—2—GOMER PYLE: A solid episode has Pyle assigned to MP duty in town. Naturally, Gomer's problem is his soft heart — he'll excuse all Marines. After being chewed out, Pyle tries to be tough, but there's really not much hope there — fans would rebel if the goofy Marine changed one whit. (Color).

4—THE NAME OF THE GAME: "The Black Answer." Good show. After a friend of his, the editor of an outspoken Negro newspaper, is killed when the paper's editorial office is bombed, Dillon (Tony Franciosa) becomes emotionally involved in finding the assailants. The investigation brings him face to face with several leaders of the Black Community, one militant and another a successful businessman. Many of the bases touched here have become old hat this season since TV drama has discovered the Negro, but an interesting script and a superb cast headed by Ivan Dixon, Raymond St. Jacques, Abbey Lincoln and Herb Jeffries, make this one a cut above most of the others. (Color).

13—NET PLAYHOUSE: "A Crack in the Ice." A fascinating satire on military and bureaucratic life in 19th century Czarist Russia, written with consummate skill by Nikolai Leskov, a contemporary of Chekhov and Gogol. After a slow and possibly too deliberate a start, this BBC production turns into a tour-de-force for a cast of pros, each of whom etches an indelible portrait of a wide range of characters involved in a blundering, self-righteous, hypocritical mess.

9:00—2—FRIDAY NIGHT MOVIE: "Advance to the Rear." (1964). This is a broad Civil War comedy about a band of Union Army goldbricks who are transferred to the wild and woolly West. Though it plays like three or four segments of a weekly situation comedy all rolled into one and relies heavily on slapstick, its professional cast led by Glen Ford, Melvyn Douglas, Jim Backus and Joan Blondell, deliver the lines in a spirit of fun.

A number of people who love New York at night, their subjective choices combined, contribute a mood piece on the varied sights that make New York so infinitely fascinating a place. Whether or not their choices are yours, tune in for a glimpse of the people and places that move producer-director Marc Brugnoni, narrator Long John Nebel, Jean Shepherd, food editor Craig Claiborne, and poet Frank Conroy. 7—JUDD FOR THE DEFENSE: "Thou Shalt Not Suffer a Witch to Live." An offbeat yarn maintains interest up until excessively melodramatic end. Judd defends a friend who's charged with felonious assault when he breaks up a modern day witches' ceremony which has attracted his susceptible wife. (Color).

Sticky Going In Muddy Vietnam Field

U.S. Marines find themselves immersed in their work as they encounter an unexpectedly gooey situation in a muddy field south of Danang during a sweep of local villages. Their patrol was part of a two-week operation by marines and South Vietnamese in the enemy stronghold area of Dien Ban.

Organized Crime Tie To Be Probed In N.J.

TRENTON (AP)—The state legislature plans another inquiry into organized crime in the wake of a controversy over whether members of the legislature are linked to the underworld.

State Senate President Edwin B. Forsythe, R-Burlington, said Thursday there would be some kind of new legislative look following charges by Asst. Atty. Gen. William J. Brennan 3rd that "three legislators are entirely too comfortable with members of organized crime."

Brennan, who heads a grand jury investigating allegations of official corruption in New Jersey, spoke Wednesday night at a meeting of Sigma Delta Chi, a journalism society. He replied to a question from the audience.

In a written statement issued Thursday evening, Brennan said he did not mean to imply that "three or any number of legislators are criminally involved with Mafia members."

And State Atty. Gen. Arthur J. Sills, in an accompanying written statement, called Brennan's remarks "unfortunate."

"I would not have made this same statement," he said.

Sills also held an impromptu hallway news conference as he was being pushed in his wheelchair back to his office after meeting with Forsythe.

That meeting was highlighted by a clash between Sills and Ronald Sullivan, a reporter for The New York Times.

Sills accused Sullivan of misquoting him and at one point apparently knocked a notebook from Sullivan's hand while emphasizing a point.

"Don't you ever put your hands on me again. You're lucky I don't sue you for assault," Sullivan said.

Sills retorted "You just do that." The attorney general at that point entered an elevator, ending the meeting.

The joint statements by Sills and Brennan followed a daylong barrage by legislative leaders who said the charges had cast a cloud over the legislature.

"It's an irresponsible statement which casts a pernicious smear over the entire state," said Asst. Senate Majority Leader Raymond H. Bateman, R-Somerset. In slightly different language, many legislators — both Democrats and Republicans, said they agreed with him.

Forsythe said he would call for "some kind of legislative investigation" when the legislature reconvenes. He said at this point that he was not sure what kind.

But Majority Leader Frank X. McDermott, who will rotate into Forsythe's post in the new legislature, said he wants to reopen hearings by the Senate's Committee on Public Law and Safety, which heard lengthy testimony on the subject in September.

McDermott dashed off a telegram to Sills demanding the names to remove what he called a cloud over the legislature.

WILLIAM J. BRENNAN, 3RD
Draws Sills' fire.

But, he added, he was convinced that Brennan's charges had truth in them.

"I do not doubt the authenticity of Mr. Brennan's statement," McDermott said, and added he might hold up committee appointments in the next session unless he got the names.

In his written statement, Brennan said he did not disclose the names because "it would impute guilt by association on the individuals concerned."

Gov. Richard J. Hughes, recuperating in Hawaii from the flu he contracted at a conference there, said he would meet with Sills on the matter when he returned.

"I can't really comment until I've talked to him," Hughes said. "I personally have no knowledge of any members of the legislature who are connected with organized crime."

Brennan, whose father is Justice William Brennan of the U. S. Supreme Court, has been conducting an investigation before a special Mercer County grand jury empaneled to investigate charges of official corruption in New Jersey.

In the main part of his speech before the journalism society Brennan dealt with ways he thinks organized crime has infiltrated legitimate businesses. Afterwards, he was asked "What about the Legislature?"

His reply was that there are "three legislators who are entirely too comfortable with members of organized crime." He did not identify them by party, said they were "prominent," but then added that any member of the 40-member senate or 80-member assembly might be considered prominent.

Linden Couple Aboard

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — A Pan American 707 jet exploded over the Caribbean Sea and plunged into the water Thursday night 16 miles from Venezuela's international airport north of Caracas.

(Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kantor of 219 Thelma Ter., Linden, N.J., were listed as passengers on the plane.

(Arthur Kasper of 2210 Orchard Ter., Linden, son-in-law of the couple, confirmed that they were aboard the flight. He said he is awaiting further information from the airline. Kantor is a partner in a New York City accounting firm.)

Fifty-one persons were reported aboard, 42 passengers and a crew of nine, including a trainee stewardess. A search for survivors was continuing, but none were reported found.

Officials said it was possible not all the bodies would be recovered.

Seven bodies were reported recovered before dawn.

A passenger list released by Pan American in New York listed 13 persons from addresses in the United States but six of these had Latin names and it was not immediately known whether they had been residing or visiting there.

Another five passengers were listed from addresses in Canada, one was from Italy, one from Ireland and one from Switzerland. The airline listed the other 21 passengers from Venezuela.

The pilot was Capt. Sidney E. Stillwaugh, 50, of West Islip, N.Y.

Among wreckage recovered were interior cabin fittings and some life rafts that inflate automatically upon contact with water.

The big jet was ending a nonstop flight from New York to Caracas. The airport control tower said it lost contact after the plane reported its approach one minute before it was due to land at 10 p.m.

"I heard a strong noise and then I saw a red ball fall towards the sea," said a guard at the La Guaira Naval Base, 12 miles north of Caracas.

Other residents near the shore also reported seeing the explosion. The wreckage was reported scattered over a wide area.

Radio Aeropuerto, a commercial station at the airport, said the plane reported it was in trouble before its radio went dead, but an airline spokesman said the pilot radioed the airport only "no maintenance," a routine transmission indicating no service would be required on the ground.

The plane had left New York's Kennedy Airport at 4:40 p.m.

Among the passengers was Mrs. Olga Antonetti de Dugarte, who had been "Miss Venezuela" in 1962. A resident of New York, she and her 4-year-old daughter were coming to spend Christmas with relatives.

Upsala Students' Vigil Goes Into 2nd Day

EAST ORANGE, N.J. (AP)—Students at Upsala College seeking greater participation in policy-making labelled administration concessions insufficient Thursday and staged a second all-night vigil in front of the school's main office and inside the college chapel.

Wrapped in blankets, students huddled on the steps of the building early today, after a meeting between student leaders and college President Carl Fjellman failed to resolve the dispute.

Student leaders said that administration and faculty spokesmen at the meeting Thursday night told them that no definite answer to the students' proposals could be formulated until a faculty liaison committee meets this afternoon.

Student leaders said the vigil would continue until the meeting.

Today's vigil was the second straight day of the protest. Student Senate President James W. Consolloy and Vice President Gary L. Heard had presented a petition signed by 750 of the school's approximately 1,500 students earlier this week to Fjellman and Dean of Students C. Alfred Perkins.

The petition called for greater student voice in determining courses, budget expenditures and faculty cutbacks.

Late Wednesday afternoon, the college issued a statement agreeing in principle to the first two demands and recommending the faculty question to a special committee.

The students, who had stood in front of the president's office all day, were not satisfied with the concessions, and decided to stage an all-night vigil Wednesday.

High Road Plan Stirs Dissent

A proposal for an elevated highway across Union County from Linden to Springfield by Freeholder Charles S. Tracy has met with stiff opposition by two of his colleagues on the board of freeholders.

Tracy made the suggestion for a limited access highway linking Route 78 in Springfield with the Route 278 junction at Route 1 in Linden in a letter to State Transportation Commissioner David J. Goldberg.

The Republican's proposal involves the air rights over the tracks of the Staten Island Rapid Transit Co. and the Rahway Valley Railroad.

In his letter, Tracy noted the need for a north-south highway has not diminished since the Route 278 proposal was rejected.

Admitting elevation over the tracks is "unusual," Tracy wrote the method wouldn't involve the losses in ratables that were involved in the Route 278 proposal.

At Thursday night's meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders, opposition to Tracy's proposal was expressed by Democrat William J. Ahern, and Republican Edward H. Tiller, freeholder-director.

Ahern said he felt such a proposal would "open the door" for an interstate highway through the county. Ahern said the proposal, sent by Tracy to David Goldberg, state commissioner of transportation, could be construed "as an invitation to take another look at Rt. 278."

Tiller said he concurred with Ahern's opposition. "I violently oppose any such road," Tiller commented.

Santa Claus 'Unzipped'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Post Office Department, which urges use of zip codes, acknowledged today an embarrassing situation: it doesn't have a zip code number for Santa Claus.

The issue arose with a letter received from a father in Roanoke, Va., who said he was helping his 5-year-old boy write a letter to Santa Claus. The boy reminded his dad not to forget the zip code.

What was the zip code? "Ho, ho, ho," the boy replied, according to his father, who sent it on as wisdom from the mouths of babes.

The Post Office hasn't replied —the matter is under consideration. At any rate, it would have to be "Ho, ho, ho, ho, ho." A zip code have five numbers—or ho's.

N.J. Flu Epidemic

TRENTON (AP)—The State Health Department said today the flu has reached epidemic proportions in New Jersey.

Dr. Roscoe P. Kandle, state health commissioner, said that illnesses and absenteeism from work and school have been reported in 14 counties.

He said an extremely small amount of vaccine has been received by the state health department to protect those at risk in public institutions.

He said those who already have contracted the flu probably won't get the same kind again this winter.

The so-called "Hong Kong" strain of flu has been most prevalent in New Jersey.

Four Escape Flash Fire

LINDEN — Four persons — including a mother and her six-year-old son — escaped injury today when a flash fire roared through the first floor of a home at 1021 Georgian Drive.

In the building were Mrs. Pearl Rakin, her son, Stephen, 6, an unidentified cleaning woman and William Engel, a contractor who was installing splash panels at the kitchen sink.

Firemen said the blaze apparently stemmed from adhesive being used. Engel was in the midst of the fire but was not hurt.

The fumes, from the adhesive cement, apparently filed the rooms then ignited, possibly from a stove pilot light.

The kitchen and a porch were burned out. An adjacent dining room, hall and den suffered severe fire damage while the remainder of the house sustained smoke damage.

14 Feared Dead In Tanker Blast

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Fourteen crewmen are feared dead following an explosion aboard the Liberian-registered tanker Diane, Amsterdam harbor police reported today. Two bodies have been recovered.

Czech Workers Threaten Strike

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovak workers today threatened a general strike for the first time since the Soviet invasion in August.

Prace, newspaper of the nation's trade unions, carried a letter from Prague workers threatening the use of all means available to the working class, including a general strike," if the progressive president of the National Assembly, Josef Smrkovsky, is ousted from the Communist party leadership.

The paper reviewed recent Soviet actions snubbing Smrkovsky and expressed fear that his position was being undermined.

University students also planned strikes and other protest actions if Smrkovsky is ousted.

Smrkovsky was missing from the list of leaders who attended a reception Thursday night at the Soviet Embassy honoring the 25th anniversary of the Soviet-Czechoslovak friendship treaty. The assembly president was among the local leaders who signed a congratulatory telegram to the Soviets, but the Soviets left his name off their reply.

Smrkovsky also was not present at the Soviet-Czechoslovak summit meeting in Kiev last weekend. He pledged in a television speech earlier this week that he would not quit his office.

Reports also circulated that the Soviets would withdraw their remaining troops before the world Communist meeting scheduled for Moscow in May.

It snowed felt in Elizabethport this morning.

Robert Travisano, a city air pollution control inspector, said the source of the fibers is the Supreme Felt Corp., 666 S. Front St.

Travisano said the fibers apparently came through a leak in ductwork on the roof of the firm's building.

He said he has issued a verbal order to the firm to correct the situation or face municipal court action.

While leading a tour of incoming cabinet members' children around Washington, Tricia Nixon, left, arrived at the White House and was met by Luci Johnson Nugent. The daughters of the incoming and outgoing President stood side by side forming this cameo of profiles.

Nixon Turns His Attention To U.S. Foreign Problems

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Nixon, back from Washington after naming a Cabinet and meeting with President Johnson, is turning now to more specific problems of government at home and abroad.

To emphasize the shifting of gears within his still-building administration, Nixon confers today wth representatives of the Urban Coalition, concerned with poverty and city problems, and with former Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, who has returned from a sometimes-controversial tour of the Middle East.

Leading a delegation from the Urban Coalition was the group's chairman, John W. Gardner, former secretary of health, education and welfare in the Johnson administration. The organization is composed of private and gomernment leaders concerned about the plight of the cities.

Scranton, who visited Israel and five Arab neighbors at Nixon's behest, was to give a personal report in the privacy of the president-elect's Fifth Avenue apartment.

After spending more than eight hours with his new Cabinet in a series of briefings, Nixon drove to the White House for a 65-minute private session in Johnson's office that dealt with the Middle East, Vietnam and other problems.

Johnson, during the meeting, informed Nixon he was available to meet individually with members of the incoming Cabinet and that he would confer first with William P. Rogers, Nixon's choice for secretary of state and thus, by protocol, the ranking member of the new Cabinet team.

White House press secretary George Christian was asked if a possible summit meeting with Soviet leaders was discussed. "It was not listed in their summary, he said.

Christian said the two men did discuss the state of the union, budget and economic messages which Johnson will deliver to Congress next month; various housekeeping matters and the relationships between Cabinet designates and present Cabinet members.

While the two men met in the presidential office, Mrs. Nixon, daughter Tricia and wives of the incoming Cabinet members were entertained in the executive mansion by Mrs. Johnson and daughter Luci.

The men of the new Cabinet simultaneously were being honored at a State Department reception given by members of the Johnson Cabinet.

Trustee Acts To Bar McCoy From Office

NEW YORK (AP) — The state trustee for Brooklyn's Ocean Hill-Brownsville decentralized school district says its suspended administrator, Rhody McCoy, will be barred from his office—by police if necessary—if he tries to return.

McCoy was suspended from his post by trustee William Firman Wednesday but he ignored the order to report to central headquarters for reassignment and went to his office as usual Thursday.

Firman then ordered that McCoy be barred from the office today and in future. He also took steps to stem a budding parent and teacher boycott in the district aimed at protesting McCoy's suspension.

Firman said any teacher who stayed out of school without an acceptable reason would face disciplinary action including possible dismissal. He warned that any persons encouraging a child to stay away from school was violating the state law.

In another development, Schools Supt. Bernard Donovan announced formation of a 12-member committee to recommend citywide guidelines for enlisting the participation of high school students in making administrative and policy decisions in their schools.

School officials denied that the move stemmed from recent student outbreaks but said it recognized growing high school student unrest.

The group, called the Committee on Student Participation in School Management, includes four high school principals, three students, two teachers, two representatives of parents groups and Seelig L. Lester, a deputy superintendent of schools.

Lester said the committee would deal with involving students as advisers in the decision making process but emphasized the principals would continue to have final authority.

In the Ocean Hill dispute, McCoy was relieved of his post after being arrested on trespass charges inside Junior High School 271. He was trying to reopen the embattled school contrary to Firman's orders.

It was not the first time he has been suspended. During the series of citywide teachers' strikes this fall he was relieved of duty by the Board of Education but he never heeded that order and it was never enforced.

Colleges, Plants Closed By Flu

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The spreading Hong Kong flu epidemic has forced the closing of some schools and colleges and raised absenteeism in business and industry.

It even prevented a New York City woman from being present when her husband was named a member of the new Cabinet.

The absent Cabinet wife was Mrs. Maurice Stans, whose husband was named secretary of commerce Wednesday night by President-elect Nixon.

Reached at her home Thursday and asked about the Washington events, Mrs. Stans said, I didn't make it. I have the Hong Kong flu. I am one very sick cookie."

The new strain of flu has spread from Los Angeles—where officials say almost 300,000 adults and children are absent from work or school—to New York City where Adelphi University in suburban Garden City canceled undergraduate classes until Jan. 5, saying, The Hong Kong flu has hit." The Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point began Christmas vacation eight days early after about half the 728 midshipmen were stricken.

DEATHS INCREASE

The National Communicable Disease Center said deaths from pneumonia and influenza have exceeded normal expectations and termed the flu outbreak an epidemic. The center said outbreaks of flu and respiratory diseases from 30 states have been reported, with Hong Kong flu confirmed in 14 states, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia.

Actress Tallulah Bankhead, 65, died Thursday of pneumonia, which developed after she came down with the flu.

Here's a rundown on what effect the flu has had on some areas of the country:

California—Los Angeles county health officials say the epidemic is expected to reach a peak between Dec. 17 and Christmas. Gov. Ronald Reagan's voice is husky and he's coughing frequently. All members of the police department have been immunized. In San Diego, four judges, eight court clerks and five court reporters are out sick. Schools reported absentee rates of 10 to 25 per cent, instead of the normal 5 to 6 per cent.

STUDENTS ABSENCE

Michigan—Two Catholic schools in Detroit were closed because of flu and a spokesman for the public school system said 13 per cent of the students were absent Thursday. The normal absenteeism rate is 5 to 10 per cent. Chrysler Corp. reported a significant increase in absenteeism," and a General Motors Corp. employe said, You could tell something was wrong. The expressway traffic was too light this morning." Classes at public schools in suburban Livonia, Mich., were canceled after 150 students came down with the flu.

Illinois—Hospital administrators in Chicago said employe absentee rates were four times as high as normal and warned outpatient services at some hospitals might have to be curtailed. Wheaton College in Wheaton, Ill., said it would close for Christmas vacation Friday—five days early—because of the flu.

Massachusetts—College infirmaries are reported filling up, although no schools or colleges are closed. Dr. Nicholas J. Fiumara, director of the state's division of communicable diseases, predicted 30 per cent of the people in the greater Boston area would get the flu when the epidemic reaches its peak—expected around the first of the year.

Strong New Teeth Put Into Gun Control Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service has reversed an earlier interpretation of the 1968 Gun Control Act, putting strong new teeth into the controversial measure four days before it becomes law.

"This is going to disappoint a lot of these gun people," said a spokesman for the IRS which is charged with enforcing firearms control.

Over-all, the bill that was prompted by the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy last June and cleared Congress Oct. 10 bans the interstate mail order sales of all guns and ammunition.

It also bans over-the-counter sales to nonresidents of a state unless the states are adjacent and the law in each state "permits" such sales.

When the IRS issued proposed regulations embodying the law last month, it said the adjacent-state sales would be legal unless one or both states enacted laws specifically prohibiting them.

But Thursday the IRS said it had been wrong—that such sales would be permitted after the over-all bill takes effect Monday only when states pass laws permitting them.

The effect, said an IRS attorney, is to shut off at least temporarily all individual sales of firearms across state lines.

The section of the gun control act that applies says a sale to a resident of a contiguous state is to be legal "if the purchasers' state of residence permits such a sale or delivery by law, . . . (and) the sale fully complies with the legal conditions in both contiguous states."

However, a Senate attorney who worked on the legislation when it was in House-Senate conference committee, said "What it means is that sales are permitted if lawful in each state. It doesn't say there is to be positive action."

The IRS said it reviewed its interpretation after objections by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., just before a public hearing on the proposed regulations Nov. 21.

STOCK MARKET— Dow Rises, Trade Active

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market perked up early Friday, advancing in active trading.

Gains outnumbered losses by about 160 issues on the New York Stock Exchange and the Dow Jones industrial average climbed well over 3 points.

Gains of fractions to a point were scattered through the list, but most changes were fractional. Wider moves were made by some of the higher-priced issues.

A definitely higher trend appeared among steels, motors and nonferrous metals.

Most airlines were fractionally higher except for Pan American, recently in a strong upsurge, which dipped a fraction, following news of the crash of one of its airliners. The plane was a Boeing 707. A fractional loss also was taken by Boeing's stock, but most of the aerospace issues declined similarly.

Rubbers also were fractionally to the downside. Chemicals were mixed, with Du Pont recovering about a point.

Gains of about a point were scored by Cities Service, Talcott National and Alcoa.

Money-Seeking Boy Punches Lad's Nose

William De Paolo, 16, of 23 John St., Elizabeth, suffered a fracture of the nose Thursday when he was hit by a youth, about 15, who demanded money from him.

The assault came to the attention of the juvenile aid bureau at 2:30 p.m. when Mrs. Dora De Paolo reported the assault and gave police the name of the assailant.

Heavy B52 Strike Seeks To Avert Red Offensive

SAIGON (AP) — American B52 bombers made their heaviest attacks in two months during the past 48 hours, striking at enemy troops north of Saigon amid strong indications today that the Communist command is preparing a new offensive there.

More than 100 of the big high-altitude bombers dropped 3,000 tons of explosives from noon Wednesday to noon today. A U.S. spokesman said it was the heaviest B52 effort since mid-October.

Reports from field commanders said there are strong indications that the North Vietnamese are preparing thrusts into key areas leading toward Saigon. But no significant ground fight was reported anywhere today.

In the latest B52 missions Thursday night and today waves of the eight-jet Stratofortresses blasted base camps, bunkers, supply depots and infiltration corridors, and maneuvering troops.

Aerial observers reported one strike set off 11 secondary explosions, indicating direct hits on ammunition stores.

The raids were in an umbrella pattern stretching from jungle infiltration routes 75 miles northwest of Saigon to within 27 miles northeast of the capital.

U.S. intelligence sources say 15,000 to 25,000 North Vietnamese troops, and perhaps even 30,000 are deployed along a 100-mile stretch of the Cambodian border in the arc.

U.S. analysts in Washington reported Thursday north of Saigon that there are strong indications these troops are preparing for a new winter offensive, while another 20,000 to 25,000 North Vietnamese detected moving in from Laos are believed setting their sights on Hue, the old imperial capital at the northern end of South Vietnam.

Rutgers-Delaware Called Off—Flu

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. (AP)—A spokesman for Rutgers University said today the school's basketball game against the University of Delaware, set for Saturday in Delaware, has been canceled.

He said the cancelation is a result of 10 of the 14 players on Delaware's varsity squad contracting the flu.

Eban Decries Arabs For Not Negotiating

LONDON (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban declared today "a solid year of efforts" to get the Arab world around a peace table have been completely fruitless. But he expressed hope that a new round of talks in January would break the ice.

Eban told a news conference he is ready to meet after mid-January "anywhere, anytime" that U.N. Ambassador Gunnar V. Jarring can arrange it.

Whether the Arabs would agree is conjectural, he added.

Earlier in the day, Eban called on Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart and then on Prime Minister Harold Wilson. He gave them a run-down on Israel's position but emphasized there was nothing essentially new in it.

The foreign minister blamed the United Arab Republic for what he called "the deadlock generated and maintained" by President Gamal Abdel Nasser's leading role in the Arab world.

Eban recited his nation's position as roughly this:

Arab threats and blockade measures forced Israel to attack.

Israel has obeyed U.N. cease fire directives but Iraqi troops based in Jordan and what he called "terrorist organizations" have repeatedly refused to acknowledge that a cease-fire exists. Jordan, signatory to the cease-fire, has failed to dominate, control and suppress these cease-fire violations.

NEEDN'T WITHDRAW

The U.N. resolution for peace in the Middle East "does not require Israel to withdraw to the old armistice lines before peace is organized," he said, contending it is a false impression that such a withdrawal must be the first step.

Israel has submitted nine points of controversy to the United Nations negotiator and claims it is up to the Arabs to do the same so that discussions can get started.

Constitutional Ban On Income Tax Under Fire By Taxpayers Group

TRENTON (AP) — The New Jersey Taxpayers Association (NJTA) said Thursday a proposed constitutional amendment to bar imposition of a state income tax was not representative of a "sound long-range enlightened fiscal policy."

The NJTA, the New Jersey League of Municipalities, the State Federation of District Boards of Education, the New Jersey Education Association (NJEA) and the State League of Women Voters all testified at a public hearing against the proposed constitutional amendment which is backed by the New Jersey Farm Bureau and various local taxpayer groups.

Assemblyman Walter L. Smith, R-Burlington, chief sponsor of the proposal, conducted the hearing. He conceded later that it is unlikely that the legislature can consider the resolution before the new term begins Jan. 14. If it does not, the resolution would have to be reintroduced in the 1969 session and another public hearing would have to be held.

"The amendment, if enacted, could have a serious effect on New Jersey fiscal policy," Clarence J. Ziegler, NJTA executive director, said. "Our association has considered the amendment from the viewpoint of fiscal management, not from the aspect of whether New Jersey should or should not have a personal income tax per se."

The League of Municipalities, represented by Hackensack City Assessor Russel T. Wilson, chairman of its tax study committee, said that in the face of clearly demonstrated spiralling state costs it would be "extremely unwise" to deny to New Jersey a major source of tax revenue.

"But the hard facts are that we don't live in a dream world where that would be possible," he stated. "We must face up honestly to the harsh realities of financing the costs of governmental services on both the state and municipal levels to the citizens of New Jersey."

Hundreds Pay Last Tribute To Enoch (Nucky) Johnson

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — It was "the last hurrah" for Nucky Johnson Thursday night as hundreds came to pay final respects to the man who gave to many of them their jobs and political life.

Mourners — politicians by the dozens, friends, city and county workers—filed through the flower-filled Gormley Funeral Home for two hours to view the body of Enoch L. (Nucky) Johnson, for 30 years the political overlord of Atlantic City and the last of the flamboyant, plush-living political bosses of the roaring twenties.

Nucky, as he was known to all, died Monday in a nursing home. He was 85 and lived out his last years in relative obscurity.

His widow, Flossie, whom he married just before he went to jail in 1941 on an income tax evasion conviction, stood by the bronze casket.

In death as in life, the "Czar of the Ritz"—so-called because he ruled from the penthouse of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel — was dressed in a dark blue suit with a crisp red carnation—his personal trademark—tucked in the lapel.

State Sen. Frank S. (Hap) Farley was the first to pay his respects. It was Farley who took over the powerful GOP machine when Johnson went to jail. He remains in power today as Atlantic County Republican leader and dean of the state Senate.

Grab Youth As Suspect In Holdup

Elizabeth police Thursday afternoon arrested a 17-year-old youth in connection with an attempted holdup at a barbershop.

Thomas Di Maggio, 61, owner of Tom's Barber Shop at 1006 Magnolia Ave., told police a youth walked into his shop at 2:37 p.m., grabbed him by the neck and demanded his money.

Di Maggio said he managed to get away from the suspect and ran out of the shop. The youth also fled.

The barber called police headquarters.

A youth of the given description was seen running from the railroad tracks into a house on Oak St. He was found by Patrolman Keith White lying under a bed in a front bedroom, police said. He does not live there, police added.

Kazan Happy Directing His Own Best-Seller

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Film makers dearly love the million-seller novel. Whether the movie version is good ("Rosemary's Baby") or bad ("Valley of the Dolls"), it usually does fine business because of the "presold" audience of book readers.

Elia Kazan is unique among film makers by having created his own presold best-seller. His novel, "The Arrangement," proved an immense success, totalling sales of a million in hard- cover and three million in paperback. It was a phenomenal achievement for a man who had never had a book published until he was in his fifties.

Why did "The Arrangement" sell so well?

"It must have struck a note of empathy with a helluva lot of readers," the author analyzes. He admitted also that the publishers, Stein and Day, did a rousing job of promotion and he himself hit the book-selling trail —"The first time I had gone out and sold anything, and the last time."

Now Kazan is deeply involved in bringing "The Arrangement" to life on film. He is producing and directing his own script, with Kirk Douglas, Deborah Kerr, Faye Dunaway and Richard Boone as stars.

"It feels good," he said confidently between scenes at Warner Brothers-Seven Arts. "I think this can be an excellent picture, an important picture. And I don't always think that about projects I am involved in. Kirk Douglas is doing a fantastic job.

"Every day he comes in with new ideas to help the scenes. I myself am always changing the script; even though I wrote it, I treat it as though someone else had. Kirk and I discuss the scenes and where we disagree, we do it my way. But often I go along with his suggestions."

Douglas is the second star to be cast as the adulterous ad man, Eddie Anderson, born Evangelos Arness. Earlier this year Marlon Brando was set for the role.

"But as we got into the preparations, I noticed that Marlon was getting more and more distracted by his outside activities," said Kazan. "Then Martin Luther King was murdered and Marlon simply couldn't function. I suggested that he drop out of the picture, and he agreed."

The Brando drop-out postponed "The Arrangement" for six months, and Kazan feared he would have trouble re-establishing his zest for the project. But he used the recess to start another novel, and he found he was even more enthused about "The Arrangement" when he returned to it.

He is a man of vast enthusiasms, as the vitality of his films ("A Streetcar Named Desire," "Viva Zapata," "On the Waterfront") attests. One thing bores him: suggestions that "The Arrangement" is autobiographical.

"Look—I've had two very happy marriages," said the director, widower of Molly Kazan and now wed to the actress Barbara Loden. "Both have been wonderful women, so the marital situation certainly couldn't be about me. Actually many of the things are taken from the lives of friends of mine.

"'The Arrangement' is a story of self-disgust, of a man who dislikes what he is doing (advertising). I'm completely pleased with my work. I wanted to be a director since I was 14."

Kazan is immensely pleased with the arrangement of being complete boss of his film, without the need to plead with a producer or apologize to a writer. On the other hand, it was pointed out, he must take the total blame if "The Arrangement" fails.

"If it fails, I'll go on to something else," he shrugged. "I'm a tough old guy."

Volunteers To Spread Yule Cheer At Lyons

More than 1,800 gifts will be distributed in the Christmas program for Lyons Veterans Hospital patients, it was announced today by Mrs. Rosalie Misiur of the Ladies Auxiliary, Elizabeth Chapter 91, Polish Legion of American Veterans.

Mrs. Misiur said volunteers from the following organizations assisted with the venture: American Legion Ladies Auxiliary, B'nai B'rith, Military Order of the Cootie and its auxiliary, and the PLAV post and auxiliary.

The gifts will be wrapped by volunteers Wednesday at the hospital and will be distributed to patients Dec. 23. Each patient will receive a $5 gift and ice cream and cookies through the generosity of more than 50 organizations which contributed money, time and effort toward Lyons' annual Yule project.

Mrs. Misiur said 32 volunteers from Post 91 and its auxiliary will help with the distribution. The post and auxiliary will hold their monthly ward party for 65 patients at Lyons Saturday night, Dec. 21. Post Commander Edward L. Demsia will impersonate Santa Claus. Christmas cards were prepared for the occasion by Mrs. Virginia Novak.

Mrs. Misiur and Demsia are coordinators of Christmas activities for the post and auxiliary, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Miksiewicz and Mrs. Adam Sokolowski.

CALM NERVES

The fact that nervousness has increased alarmingly during recent years is proven from the Selective Service examinations during World War II. Rejections from nervous disability were twice as high as for World War I. The frightening number of sleeping tablets sold, the cigarettes smoked, the coffee, tea and colas drunk, and the gum chewed are other signs of our national nerves. The signs of nervousness in our children are fretfulness, tantrums, so-called bad dispositions, and nail biting. The study of geriatrics has pointed out that those in the last half of life are deplorably deficient in calcium, iron, iodine, vitamin D, and the B complex. These are our most important feeding values for nerve stability.

Chiropractic is the science specializing in restoring normal nerve function, and, consequently, the logical corrective method of nervousness. See your Chiropractor for the irritated nerves when they make their appearance. Do not permit an acute condition to develop into a chronic disabling disorder.

One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the practice of Chiropractic by Dr. K. Hoffer, whose office is located at 146 Murray St., Elizabeth. Call 353-1366.

Yule Light Ceremony At Hospital

Heralded by the pealing bells of neighboring St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Elizabeth General Hospital held its annual Christmas tree lighting ceremony Thursday afternoon at the building's main entrance on E. Jersey St.

The children's choir of St. Michael's School entertained with Christmas songs under the direction of Mrs. Sandra Cram, and carols were sung by the Vail-Deane Glee Club, directed by James R. McCarthy.

Mrs. Benjamin Priest, president of the Ladies Aid Society, introduced George F. Billington, hospital director, who gave the annual Christmas message. The ceremony was broadcast over the hospital's call system for the benefit of patients and others inside the building.

Guests, including employes, volunteers and neighbors, visited Shangle Hall for refreshments after the ceremony. The program was arranged by Mrs. John C. Bentley, Mrs. Karl Kapp, Mrs. Jesse Morgan, Mrs. Frank Mastroianni and Mrs. Emil Prazak.

Banner Time At Museum

An exhibition of banners and a talk on dinosaurs will be held at the Newark Museum, 49 Washington St., Newark.

The exhibition of banners by modern artists opens Saturday and will continue through February 16.

The ancient banner has been adapted as a new art form. Banners have had a long history in rites and pageantry.

In medieval and renaissance times, knights carried banners into battle. They also were used by noblemen to signify rank and by merchants to identify their trade guilds.

Banners are popular today because they lend themselves to bold, abstract designs and to the Pop and Op styles of art.

Robert Salkin, paleontologist, will discuss "Dinosaurs in New Jersey" at 3:30 p.m. Sunday in the museum's science department.

Holy Name To Plan For Convention

The coordinating committee of the Holy Name Societies of the State of New Jersey will meet at 8 o'clock tonight at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, to plan the spring convention.

Members from the dioceses of Trenton, Camden, Paterson and the Archdiocese of Newark will hear a report by Hugh X. Connell, chairman.

Christmas Party Planned By Council

The Community Action Neighborhood Council will plan a Christmas party and distribute toys to youngster in Tract 12 of CAFEO (Community Action for Economic Opportunity).

The council, an affiliate of CAFEO, will meet at 4:30 p.m. Saturday at 1017 Magnolia Ave., Elizabeth. The session has been called by Napolean McKissick, president of the tract. The area takes in E. Jersey St. to Madison Ave. and Bond St. to Division St.

3 Contracts Awarded On Garage Job

Acting in opposition to a recommendation of the county attorney, the Republican majority on the Union County Board of Freeholders cast the needed votes Thursday night to award the general construction contract for repair of the courthouse parking garage to the lone bidder.

Contracts on two other aspects of the repair project, structural steel and plumbing and heating, were approved unanimously. There were multiple bids on each.

Dominick A. Mirabelli, county attorney appointed by a Democratic controlled board, advised the freeholders that by accepting the lone general construction bid of $189,224 from Ali Building Construction Co., 319-331 Spencer St., Elizabeth, the county's position regarding arbitration would be weakened.

The county is engaged in arbitration for the costs of the repair work with principals in the original construction. These are Joseph Allan, the architect; Ingvald Moe, structural engineer; Bryan Construction Co., the general contractor, and the Reliance Insurance Co.

UNTENABLE POSITION

Mirabelli told the board that awarding the general construction contract to Ali Building Construction Co., the lone bidder, "would place the county in the untenable and embarrassing position of attempting to justify the reasonableness of the bid without having the all important ingredient of competitiveness."

The vote in favor of giving Ali the contract was 6-2. The dissenting ballots were cast by the two Democrats, William J. Ahern Jr., and Hugh Caldwell. The third Democrat, Arthur E. Fried, was absent.

Freeholder Director Edward H. Tiller, a Republican, said that because of the single bid, he voted to award Ali the contract "with great reluctance." However, he said he felt it important that the long delayed job be completed as soon as possible.

Tiller was joined by Republicans Jerome Epstein, Arthur A. Manner, Charles S. Tracy, Walter E. Ulrich, and Harry V. Osborne Jr.

The plumbing and heating contract, for $28,835, went to the Nubel Co., of Belleville. The structural steel contract was awared to Oltmer Iron Works, Jersey City, in the amount of $142,439.

The three contracts total $360,498.

CLOSED 1½ YEARS

The $1.5 million building houses a ramp-type garage topped by the seventh story juvenile detention center. Because of alleged structural hazards, including sagging floors and cracked walls, the building has been closed for more than a year and a half.

Tiller called on the board to urge the county's state assembly delegation to oppose the passage of Senate Bill 965, which provides the allocation of funds for highway construction and purchase of equipment for railroad transportation. The funds would be drawn from bond issues approved by voters.

Tiller pointed out that the bill apparently fails to allocate sufficient funds for the improvement of Rt. 1-9, and for equipment purchases for the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

The bill has been passed by the state Senate but needs assembly approval. The freeholders will oppose it unless more priority is given the projects that affect Union County.

Bids Police Reconsider Rights Plan

James D. Coffee, executive director of the Union County Legal Services Corp., has urged the Elizabeth Police Department to reconsider its rejection of a proposal for a continuing police-community relations program.

Coffee, in a letter to Police Chief Michael D. Roy, expressed regret that the program proposed by Scientific Resources Inc. of Union, had been rejected by the department.

The program was recommended in a survey prepared by SRI under a federal grant. Generally, it would have involved establishment of an in-service training program.

Roy and Police Director John F. Brennan, in recommending to Mayor Thomas G. Dunn that the proposal be rejected, cited the department's manpower shortage, the initial cost of setting up the program and citizen apathy.

In addition, Brennan said the department's primary function is the prevention and repression of crime.

The consultants placed a $30,000 price tag on setting up the program.

PERSONNEL SHORTAGE

Brennan and Roy, in comments on the personnel shortages, pointed out that the recommendation that 10 officers participate for two weeks at a time would cause a serious drain on the existing manpower.

Coffee, noting the "growing interest in such projects," wrote, "it does seem unfortunate that this city is not going to take advantage of this interest by implementing a program of the type proposed."

He cited congressional passage of the Omnibus Crime Bill and the Safe Streets Act as evidence of interest in the police-community relations area.

"Elizabeth has been fortunate in escaping the disorders that have plagued many cities in our country," Coffee wrote.

"One cannot help but think that a project, such as the one proposed, would go a long way towards keeping Elizabeth free of such problems," he added.

A breakdown in "law and order," Coffee wrote, could hopefully be eliminated if the project were implemented.

DIRECT LINK

He noted the Kerner Commission report indicates the existence of a direct link between police-citizen hostility and breakdowns in law and order.

Commenting on the cost of the program, Coffee suggested that the police officials examine the availability of state and federal funds.

He said that funds for projects such as the SRI proposal are available in the crime act and the safe streets legislation.

On the shortage of manpower, Coffee wrote, "Perhaps this could be partially alleviated by cooperating with Community Action for Economic Opportunity in implementing a police cadet program."

Such a program was proposed for 1968 in the department's budget, but it was cut out by city council.

A proposal for five cadets in 1969 has been submitted to Dunn by Brennan in his budget request.

"I don't think past citizen apathy should prevent implementation of this project," Coffee wrote.

"Behind apathy may lurk discontent and hostility. To not embark on a bold and imaginative project such as this may be disastrous," Coffee warned.

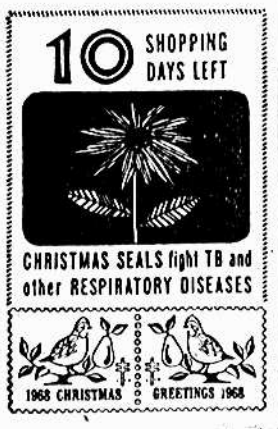
Man Indicted For Holdups

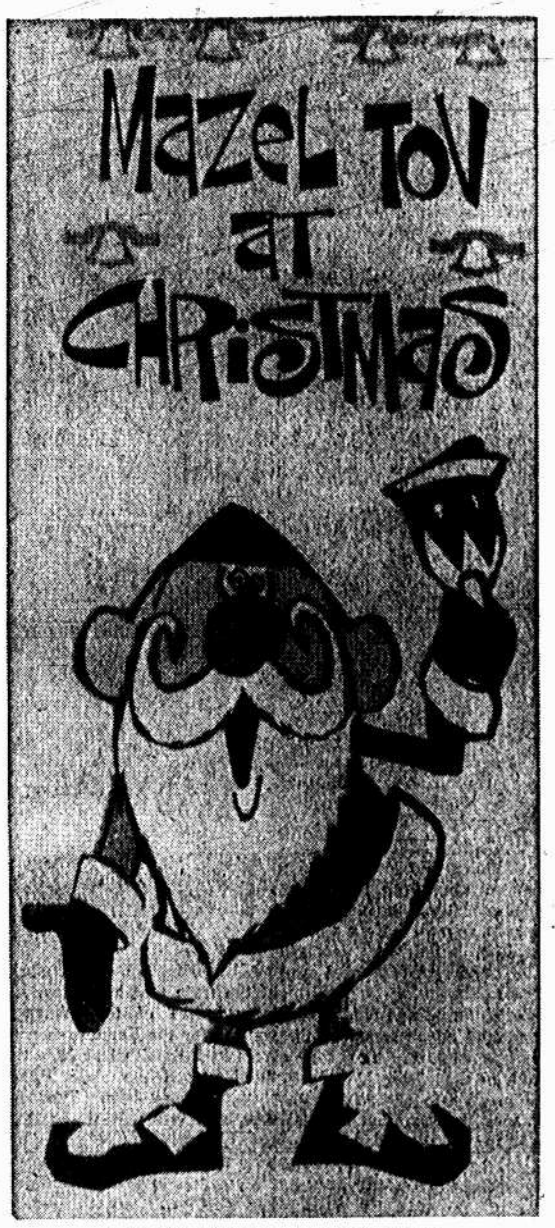
Conrell Brooks Jr., 22, of 116 Hampton Place, Elizabeth, has been indicted on armed robbery charges in connection with holdups at three Cranford gas stations.

Also named in an indictment is Darnell Johnson, 22, of 1053 William St., Elizabeth, who is charged with participating in a holdup with Brooks. Johnson is accused of robbery and armed robbery.

Brooks is charged with robbing Lomonaco's American Station, 517 Centennial Ave.; the Centennial Atlantic Station, 300 South Ave. and the Lehigh Esso Station, 310 Centennial Ave. Johnson is accused of participating in the hold up at the American station.

A total of $684 was taken in the robberies which took place earlier this year.





A Jewish phrase adorns this card.

New Epidemic?

Rabbit's Foot Or Horseshoe Antidotes For Cases Of Triskaidekaphobia

By EVELYN KIPNESS
Journal Staff Writer

An epidemic of triskaidekaphobia will fell superstitious persons today, Friday, the 13th. The rest of us will carry a rabbit's foot and ignore the portents of a potentially unlucky day.

Unreasonable fear of the number 13 reveals itself in the jests that supposedly unsuperstitious persons make. Don't give a black cat the right-of-way, especially today, is one of them.

How Friday the 13th got such a bad press in the first place is a question debated by sociologists and folklore fanciers. The most common explanation has to do with the fact that hangings were done in England on Friday.

And some religious historians contend that Christ was crucified on a Friday the 13th. Whatever the cause, which is buried somewhere in the subconscious of western civilization, nobody is convinced that Friday the 13th is a regular day.

For some strange reason the arrival of the day brings to mind every superstition of which anyone has ever heard.

On Friday's the 13th everyone is especially careful not to break a mirror, not to open an umbrella in a room or light three cigarettes on one match.

Kids won't step on sidewalk cracks and grownups avoid walking under ladders. It wouldn't be surprising if the odor of garlic is wafted on the breeze today.

Horseshoes are scarcer than they were when people were more superstitious, but there is no cause to be concerned. We have plenty of salt. Just be sure to throw it over your left shoulder with your right hand—or is it the other way around?

For those of you who have to work on the 13th floor, live at No. 13 something street or have 13 in your car registration or plates, beg, borrow or steal a four-leaf clover before you take another step.

Something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue—you aren't getting married today, are you?

Make sure your socks aren't on inside-out. It could be bad luck. Also, it would be dangerous today to leave a book open facedown.

Have a nice day.

NEW TREND IN CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Yule Cards Going 'Mod'

By JAMES McHUGH
Journal Staff Writer

Dogs and cats are getting the Christmas spirit this year.

The latest form of specialized Christmas card reads:

"Merry Christmas from Our Dog to Your Dog."

The feline equivalent expresses greetings from cat-to-cat.

MOD PICKING UP

Owners of greeting card shops say the traditional Christmas cards will always hold their own but the "mod" style is making inroads.

Arthur Schlesinger, the owner of Cardville in Elizabeth's Elmora section, said the trend is going more toward religious cards and "way out" things.

The younger element wants the mod look cards, Schlesinger said. "The card makers are taking typical religious scenes and making them into mod cards."

The difference is in the background. A scene of the three wise men will be set against unusual color combinations, Schlesinger explained.

Christmas is a religious holiday so the spiritual theme will always play heavily in card sales, shop owners feel.

RELIGION STRONG

George Berman, owner of The Linden Tree on Wood Ave. in Linden, said religion has been strong for the last five years.

He didn't want to make generalizations on the popularity of religious cards but he said it coincides with the war in Vietnam.

The National Association of Greeting Card Publishers have selected "peace" as the theme for 1968 Christmas cards.

"Peace on Earth" and "Joy to the World" are typical sentiments for religious and cards which have no religious boundaries.

"People are pretty serious about Christmas," said a clerk at Cardtown on Broad St., Elizabeth. "They are not interested so much in humorous cards."

The seriousness doesn't extend to a demand for religious cards, said Cardtown owner, Samuel Goldman.

HUMOR THEMES

"We don't have as much demand for religious cards," Goldman said. "People would rather have humorous themes."

Goldman's wife, Sophie, said:

"One woman said with the world the way it is she couldn't send cards that said 'Peace on Earth'."

Foreign language Christmas cards are increasingly in demand, Goldman said.

Mrs. Joan Katz, a saleswoman at Card-o-Rama on Broad St., Elizabeth, said there has been a run on Polish language Christmas cards this year.

"We've run out twice," Mrs. Katz said. "They never really stay in the store."

FACE CENSORSHIP

Goldman said censorship is a problem for people who want to send foreign language Christmas cards to friends or relatives in Communist countries.

"Communist governments have restrictions against religious items," Goldman said.

Boxed collections of cards are purchased for general mailing.

The specialized cards are sent to immediate family, wife, aunt, uncle, grandmother, dog, or to the mailman, newsboy and doctor among others.

The humorous cards with way-out messages are becoming more in favor with young people.

INFORMATIVE CARD

A sing-along card has been designed for people who don't know the words of Christmas carols. Inside the card gives the first few words of various carols like "Deck the Halls with Boughs of Holly." The rest of the words "hum, hum, hum."

A wintry setting is the backdrop of a card with the message, "Over the hill and through the woods to grandmother's house we go. She's got the booze."

The most outstanding cards because of size are three foot high cutouts of cartoon characters, Charley Brown, Snoopy and Lucy from "Peanuts." They are mailed in heavy cardboard backings.

Holly, tinsel and snow are the prime items appearing in Christmas card designs.

The religious cards have the typical nativity scene or star shining over a small ancient town.

And don't forget the animal cards.

"Merry Christmas from our Cat to Your Cat."

Assessor Job Accepted By Mottley

John F. Mottley, Union County purchasing agent, will take over as Elizabeth assessor Jan. 1.

Mottley submitted his resignation Thursday, effective Jan. 17, from the county post, informing Freeholder Director Edward H. Tiller he has accepted the Elizabeth post.

Mayor Thomas G. Dunn today confirmed Mottley had been offered the post through Finance Director William G. Dowd Jr. Mottley will succeed John G. Lloyd, who recently retired from the $10,500-a-year post.

"Through a series of unfortunate incidents — illnesses and retirements — the need to rebuild the assessments division department has developed," the mayor commented.

Dunn pointed out that Mottley has experience in the area, explaining he has worked in the division and in real estate.

Calling the division a "vital city agency," Dunn said that the offer was made in the hopes that Mottley will "inject some vigor into its operation."

Narcotics Charges Hold Four Men

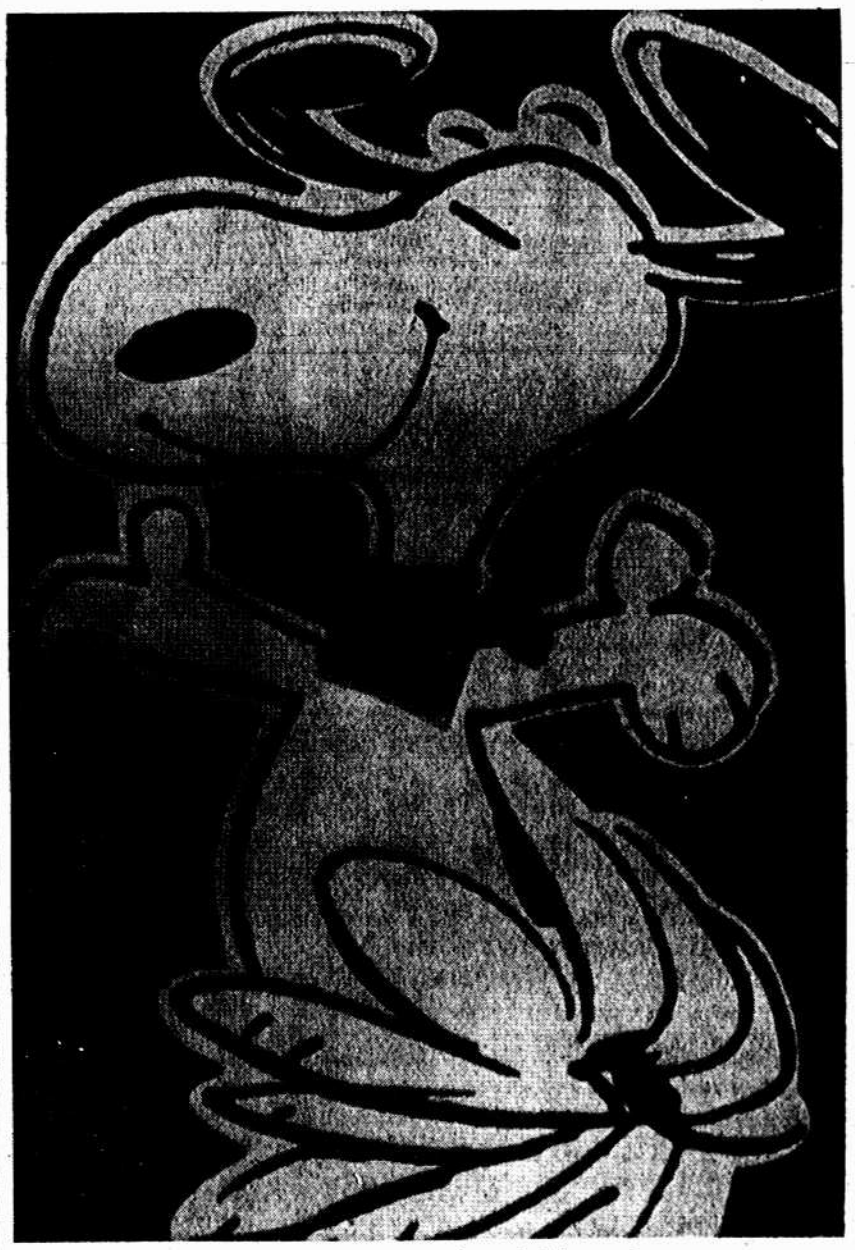
Members of the Elizabeth Police Department Narcotics Squad arrested four men Thursday night on narcotics charges.

Apprehended at 952 E. Grand St., were Gil Coley, 23, of 863 Elizabeth Ave., on charges of possession and unlawful use of narcotics; Joseph Blue, 22, of Manhattan, possession of narcotics and consorting for unlawful purposes and Leroy Barnett, 25, of 1162 Magnolia Ave., Elizabeth, possession and use of narcotics.

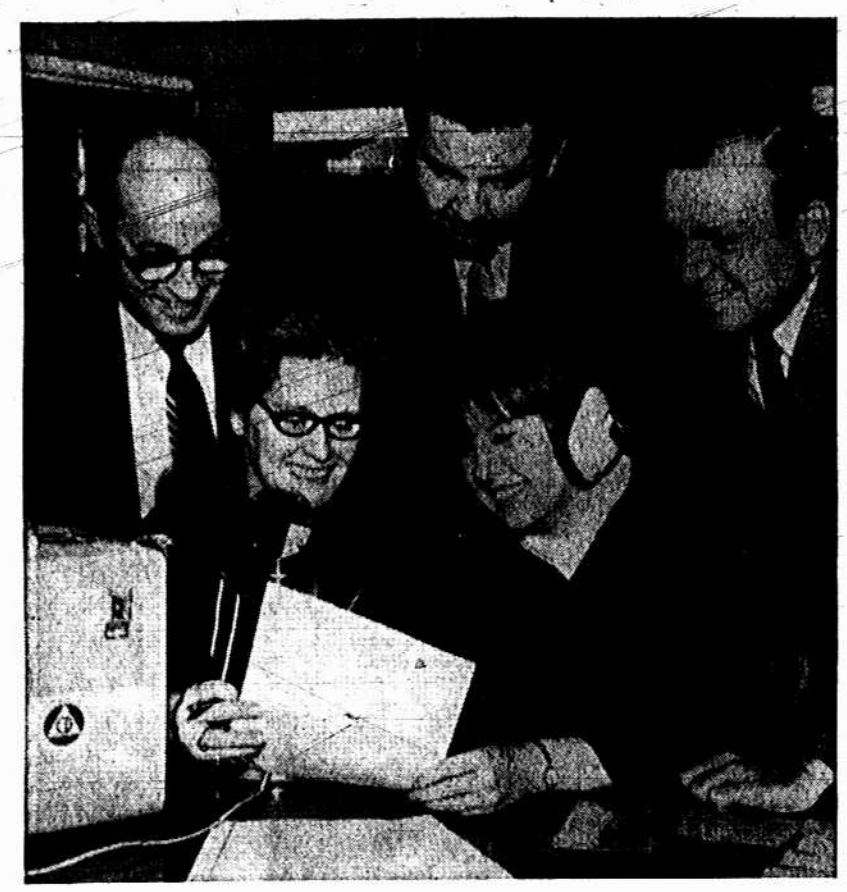
William Williamson, 26, of 946 E. Grand St., was arrested at his home with the aid of a search warrant. He was charged with use and possession of narcotics.

Office Ransacked

The office of the Union County Welfare Board, 7 Bridge St., Elizabeth, was ransacked Thursday night but it has not been determined what if anything is missing.



Snoopy is featured on a huge holiday card.



Radio Greetings For Men In Vietnam

Mrs. Daniel Gallagher, communications officer of the Rahway Civil Defense, sends message to Pfc. David Horton who is at a convalescent center at Cam Rahn Bay, Vietnam listening in is his fiancee, Miss Janet Ditzel of 40 Winthrop Road, Clark. Observing are Phil Harris, Richard Voynick, civil defense director and Mayor John Marsh. The project was set by the CD as a community service. About 100 persons sent messages Thursday night.

Monmouth County Site Considered For Jetport

TRENTON (AP) — State Transportation Commissioner David J. Goldberg said Thursday his department in evaluating a stretch of rolling farmland in Monmouth County as a possible site for a fourth metropolitan jetport.

Albert E. Blomquist, consultant to Gov. Richard J. Hughes' jetport study committee, recommended a site east of Allentown in western Monmouth County. It is about 60 miles from New York City.

The committee recommended the Brulington-Ocean pinelands on Sept. 9 as a jetport site but major airlines and the Port of New York Authority ruled it out on grounds that it is too far from the metropolitan area.

Goldberg said subsequent discussions with Blomquist have indicated that Blomquist now favors the Allentown area site. The transportation commissioner said his department is studying a number of sites and that it would forward its evaluation to the governor. Goldberg said he hoped the transportation department's report would be ready within a month.

As envisioned by the governor's jetport study committee, the jetport would be the world's largest—five times the size of Kennedy International in New York. The 10-runway airport would cover 34 square miles.

But Blomquist said the committee switched it srecommendation for two reasons:

—The Allentown site would permit large-scale industrial and commercial development of the surrounding area.

—The Allentown site would be closer from the stand point of travel time to metropolitan New York and Philadelphia.

State Chops Two Pleas For Funds

Linden's bid for state highway funds has been chopped in half by the State Department of Transportation and Rahway's has been reduced to less than a third. They were the only two in Union County which requested the special funds.

Linden asked for $20,000 in road reconstruction funds and has been approved for a $10,000 allocation. Rahway sought $90,000 and got approval for $25,000.

The trimming was made to fit the amount appropriated by the state legislature. Legislators reduced this year's appropriation to $200,000.

A total of 41 municipalities and counties asked the state for funds for the reconstruction of municipal and county roads destroyed by heavy construction trucks and equipment.

Their request total came to $3.5 million.

Of the 41, ten communities and three counties received grants.

The most drastically cut application was Sayreville's. Their $400,000 request was chopped to $37,000.

Slowed Train To 35, Penn Engineer Testifies

NEWARK (AP)—The engineer of the train that killed two and injured five of the mourners waiting for the Kennedy funeral train in Elizabeth last June testified before the state Public Utility Commission Thursday that he reduced the train's speed from 55 to 35 miles per hour near the Elizabeth station.

Stanley P. Moskowitz of 496 E. Grand Ave., Rahway, said he knew the Kennedy train would be on the Penn-Central Railroad that day, June 8, but added he did not know its specific location.

He said he was instructed to ring the train bell and blow the train whistle as he approached Elizabeth where the waiting crowd had poured onto the eastbound track as it watched for the westbound Kennedy train.

Moskowitz said he reduced the speed of his eastbound train number 50 from 55 to 35 miles per hour because of a sharp curve in the track just before the Elizabeth station.

He said he applied his emergency brake when he saw the crowd on the tracks and came to a stop after traveling about 300 or 400 feet more.

The engineer said if the train had been going at 15 miles per hour he could have stopped it within 100 feet.

Moskowitz's testimony before the PUC was part of the board's investigation in a continued hearing to adopt rules and regulations for safer railroad operations at Elizabeth. The investigation was begun at the suggestion of the Union County grand jury that examined the incident last summer but found no cause for indictments against anyone.

Moskowitz said he was not going slow enough to prevent the accident that took the lives of Mrs. Antoinette Severini, 56, of 37B Mravlag Manor, and John F. Curia, 56, of 44J Mravlag Manor, both of Elizabeth, and injured five others.

He said he did not know if a 15 mile per hour speed could have prevented the accident, a ling such events as the Kennedy funeral and mourner's train occur "only once in a lifetime."

Another witness, James D. Robbins, supervisor of the Eastern region of the Penn-Central, testified the engineer, Moskowitz had been instructed to reduce speeds near Elizabeth.

4 Suspects Rest Cases In Gleason Death Trial

By JOAN B. HAGGERTY and JAMES McCOMBE
Journal Staff Writers

Four of the remaining 10 defendants charged with the riot murder of Plainfield Patrolman John V. Gleason Jr. rested their cases Thursday, with only one, George Merritt Jr., choosing to testify on his own behalf.

Merritt, 24, of 540 W. Second St., Plainfield, took the witness stand in the afternoon after six persons, including his mother, brother and sister-in-law, testified for him. He denied taking part in the fatal beating of Gleason July 16, 1967, at Plainfield Ave. and W. Second St., Plainfield.

James Toland, 32, of 420 John St., Plainfield, concluded his case before Merritt without resuming the witness stand. Earlier in the trial, which is in its 14th week, Toland testified about a statement he allegedly gave detectives and denied throwing a stone at Gleason.

Two other defendants, Donald Jones, 23, of 834 W. Third St., and Miss Gail Madden, 21, of 1197 S. Second St., both Plainfield, rested their cases Thursday night without testifying on their own behalf.

Lawrence Brown, 20, of 433 W. Fourth St., Plainfield, was acquitted by Superior Court Judge Chester A. Weidenburner Tuesday on a motion made by his attorney.

FIVE TO GO

Still to be presented are the cases of the remaining five defendants, Wayne Streater, 21, 1213 W. Third St.; Clement Johnson, 32, 1227 W. Sixth St.; James Gary, 29, 918 W. Sixth St.; Robert Toy, 29, 1358 Willever St., and George Casey, 36, 1404 Willever St., all Plainfield.

Merritt, who served four years with the Marine Corps, said he was standing with five to eight others by a car in front of the apartment of his brother, Joe Louis Hollis, at 569 W. Third St., at about 8 p.m. July 16, 1967, when shouts about a policeman being at W. Third St. and Plainfield Ave. attracted his attention.

Merritt said he went to the intersection and witnessed a confrontation between Bobbie Lee Williams and Patrolman Gleason from a point about 15 feet behind the policeman.

He said Gleason fired two shots at Williams and someone in the crowd yelled, "He's firing blanks." He said Gleason then fired three more shots at Williams, who bent over, clutched his stomach and backed up.

Merritt said he watched two men pick up Williams and that he then heard his sister-in-law, Mrs. Marjorie Hollis, shout from a parking lot some 50 to 75 feet away that his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Merritt, wanted to speak to him on the telephone. Merritt claimed he took the call at the Hollis apartment and then spent an hour or more talking with a group outside the apartment before going home.

Under cross-examination by Asst. Prosecutor Raymond S. Londa, Merritt said Mrs. Hollis was about 40 feet from her apartment door when she called him to the telephone.

SHOCKED BY SHOOTING

Merritt told Londa that he was "shocked" and "amazed" at the shooting of Williams but that he was not angry at Gleason. He also told Londa that he had had no trouble with either Donald Frazier or Louis Alers, state witnesses who testified against him.

Frazier identified Merritt as the man who attacked Gleason with a meat cleaver.

Merritt claimed that the only person he recognized near the shooting site was Mrs. Nora Cabbell, his brother's neighbor, who, he said, was going toward the intersection as he was returning to the Hollis apartment.

Mrs. Cabbell testified that Merritt was standing by a car in the Elmwood Gardens parking lot before Williams, her cousin was shot. She claimed Merritt was on his way into his brother's apartment when she left for the intersection, where she saw her cousin shot by Gleason.

Mrs. Hollis contended that Merritt was outside the apartment, near a car, when his mother called him on the telephone. She claimed the call came about 8 p.m. but admitted that she had no watch, did not look at a clock and that no one had told her the time. She said the call was the only thing she remembered happening that day.

TESTIMONY CONTRADICTED

David Cabbell, husband of Nora Cabbell, also contradicted Merritt's testimony. He claimed that Merritt was three feet away from him, on his brother's front porch, when the shots were fired. He said Mrs. Hollis just stuck her head out of the door to call Merritt before he heard the shots.

Mrs. Merritt said she telephoned to ask her son to come home and that her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Hollis, told her George was sitting outside the apartment. She said it took her son five or 10 minutes to answer the call.

Hollis claimed that he walked halfway to the W. Third St. and Plainfield Ave. intersection, where Williams and Gleason met, but that he was returning home as the shots were fired. He claimed that his half-brother, Merritt, was near the Hollis porch and did not accompany him on his walk toward the intersection. He also claimed his wife put her head out of the door to call Merritt to the telephone.

Capt. John T. Spruiell of Long Valley, Merritt's former commanding officer at the Nike Missile Base, South Plainfield, described him as a competent employe and said he was "cleared" for the job through a security investigation.

In Miss Madden's case, no witnesses were produced on her behalf. She also indicated that she declined to testify on the advice of her attorney.

Pipeline Wasn't OKd, Reporter Tells Jury

By ROBERT K. TEDDER
Journal Staff Writer

NEWARK — A former newspaper reporter testified in the Colonial Pipeline bribery and conspiracy trial Thursday that he covered the Feb. 5, 1964, meeting of the Woodbridge Planning Board and approval of a Colonial building permit application for a tank field did not occur.

Henry J. Price, now an administrative assistant to newly elected Rep. Lowell Weicker Jr., R-4th District, Conn., said the original minutes of the Feb. 5 meeting showed no reference of action on the Colonial permit. He said the minutes were amended in May to include reference to board approval of the permit.

Price said he read the original minutes of the Feb. 5 meeting in April after being told by Louis Cyktor, board chairman, that the permit was approved at the Feb. 5 meeting.

Price said he asked Cyktor why the entry wasn't made and Cyktor explained it was an oversight. Cyktor said a record of the Colonial permit approval was in the notebook of Mrs. Marie Dagenhardt, planning board clerk.

Price, who was a reporter for the Perth Amboy Evening News during 1964, said he wrote stories about the permit controversy on April 13 and April 21.

On cross-examination, Simon Rifkind, counsel for Ben D. Leuty, former Colonial president, asked Price if he had written in the April 21 story that the permit was approved on Feb. 5.

When Price said he had written such a story, Rifkind wanted to know which was the truth, his testimony in court that the permit had not been approved on that date or the newspaper story.

"Both stories are the truth," Price replied.

HEARD RUMORS

Price said he heard rumors about a petroleum tank farm before the November, 1963 election. The former newsman said he asked Mayor Walter Zirpolo about the rumors and Zirpolo denied such a project was being planned.

Prize said Zirpolo categorized the rumors as "Republican hogwash."

Price said Zirpolo categorized flyer distributed during the 1963 councilmanic campaign. It bore the heading "Tanks? No Thanks." It was a statement by Zirpolo and then Council President Robert E. Jacks vowing opposition to additional petroleum tanks. The closing line was "This is the solemn pledge of men you can trust."

Under cross-examination by Adrian Foley, attorney for defendant Karl T. Feldman, a Colonial executive, Price denied that his conclusion that no action was taken at the Feb. 5 meeting was reached after reading his own story of the meeting in which Colonial was not mentioned.

John E. Toolan, counsel for Jacks, asked Price if he ever left early when covering plannong board meetings.

"Not with that board, I didn't," Price said.

Kiwanians To Moon

Members of the Elizabeth Kiwanis Club went on a simulated trip to the moon Thursday following their luncheon in the Winfield Scott Hotel.

The program was sponsored by the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. and the lecture and slide presentation was presented by George Young of Belleville, a public relations supervisor.

Covered were the general flight plan from count down to the opening of three 85-foot parachutes which will float the spacecraft back to earth.

The touchdown on the moon's surface will take place about 75 hours after launching, Young said. Scientific exploration of the moon will be limited, not no much by the payload capacity of the spacecraft, but by the fatigue problems confronting the astronauts, the speaker added.

He was introduced by Frank Helfrich.

Colonia Fence Is Down

COLONIA — Eugene Kelly took down his fence at 7:30 this morning rather than face charges for contempt of court.

But Kelly, who lives at 218 Continental Ave., said he would replace the fence at 4 p.m., thus keeping the pathway open across his property just long enough to allow children to go to and from School 20.

The path is protected by a permanent easement granted by a previous owner, and Kelly has been recently served with a temporary restraining order forbidding him to block the path. Until today, he has not complied with the order.

Kelly is due in Middlesex Superior Court on Friday to show cause why the pathway should not stay open.

"If we lose on Friday," he vowed this morning, "we move — that's the story in a nutshell. I'll make one last statement on what I think of the city and the politicians and that'll be it — I'll go."

Berkeley Heights Student Wears Top Hat, Tails–Refuses Induction

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Clad in top hat and tails, Raymond Frenchman, 21, of Berkley Heights, N.J., twice refused induction into the Army while his girl friend waited outside in a full-length gown and carrying flowers.

Frenchman and Sue Calautti, 19, a student at Brown University, where Frenchman is a former student, arrived at the center Thursday in a small foreign car decorated with streamers and carrying sign which said, "Just Refused."

Maj. Nicholson S. Ellis, the center's commander, said Frenchman was informed of his rights and the penalties under the law for refusing induction, but still declined to take the oath.

Miss Calautti said she was "Ray's girl friend." About 15 persons accompanied her, but instead of conducting a demonstration they planned, they left the center's entrance after they were asked to leave.

The girl said Frechman is classified 1-A, but awaits a decision from an appeal to his New Jersey draft board.

After processing, Frenchman left the center, telling newsmen he and the girl plan to enroll at Southern Illinois University. An Army spokesman said any prosecution for the refusal to take the oath is up to the U.S. Attorney's office.

Maurice Ave. Homeowners Fight 12-Home Development

RAHWAY — Objecting residents of Maurice Ave. turned out in force Thursday night at a planning board public hearing on a proposed major subdivision. The hearing was adjourned after three hours without any decision announced.

The site of the proposed 12-home development (previous plans were for 17 homes) is a 3.3.-acre wooded plot adjoining Clark on one side and a Union County Park on another. The developer is Paul Lomakin Jr. of 49 E. Sumner Ave., Union.

Lomakin owns the tract with Ronald N. and Rudi D. Wadle. The development appears on architect's drawings as "Park Estates."

Robert Sheldon, Roselle Park attorney, represented the applicant. He had two witnesses, an engineer and a real estate broker. Both were subjected to extended cross-questioning by objectors.

3-YEAR EFFORT

Interest in developing the tract dates back at least three years, when there was an unsuccessful attempt to gain planning board approval for construction of homes on the land.

The key problem facing Lomakin is access to his property. In order to gain such access, he purchased the property between 996 and 974 Maurice Ave., intending to demolish the home and create a street. The street created would then connect Maurice Ave. with the development.

The 40 members of the audience heard the developer's enginer, Alonzo Lawrnce, describe the engineering features of the subdivision, including aspects of road width and surfacing, and drainage plans to lead away storm water and sewage.

TRAFFIC IMPACT

In response to a question about the impact of additional traffic, Lawrence offered his opinion that Maurice Ave. could easily carry the added load of vehicles. To another question, about the danger of flooding in the area, the engineer said, "I guarantee there will be no flooding."

Plans for flood control include the intention of the developer to install more than 600 feet of additional storm sewer pipe.

At one point, there was prolonged discussion about the right-of-way requirements for a street in Rahway. Sheldon cited a state statute specifying that no street need be more than 50 feet wide within the right-of-way lines. Citation by Raffio Giacobbe, board member, of a counter-requirement in a Rahway ordinance set off a discussion about what width is actually required.

ISSUE RESOLVED

Finally, the attorney for the planning board, Walter Pryga, resolved the difference by explaining that streets specified as 60-foot streets on a city master plan must be that dimension. Otherwise the 50-foot maximum prevails, Pryga said.

Another argument over flooding danger in the area also developed. Lawrence's contention that no flooding would occur was challenged by Giacobbe. He told the engineer, "I ought to know, I grew up in the area."

Sheldon also presented the testimony of Arthur J. Sanders, real estate broker. Sanders testified about conversations conducted with George Bachman, 974 Maurice Ave. and Joseph M. Probus about purchasing portions of their properties.

Both individuals indicated they had no interest in selling.

LIST OBJECTIONS

Later, Probus read a lenthy statement reviewing his and his neighbors' objections to the application. He pointed out the effect of creating a street alongside his property, creating a lot with insufficient setback for his garage.

Creation of a street would make Probus' property a corner property, increasing traffic hazards to his children, he said. Another effect of creating a corner property, he said, would be maintenance of an additional 120 feet of sidewalk, especially to keep it free of snow, an increase in insurance rates for personal liability, and a tax increase because of the change in value of the property.

When the public hearing ended, Giacobbe moved postponement of any decision until a later date, which was passed by the board.

Need For Drug Education Program Cited By Pharmaceutical Official

The symptoms of drug abuse, the work of the drug industry and the need for straightforward education programs were outlined to Union County law enforcement officials Thursday by Donald K. Fletcher, manager of distribution protection for Smith, Kline and French Laboratories at a seminar on drug abuse.

The seminar, held at the Elizabethtown Gas Co., Elizabeth, was sponsored by the Union County prosecutor's and sheriff's offices and the Union County Narcotics Commission.

Fletcher, a former member of the Texas State Police, asked police officers "to keep learning about the new ways to drug abuse." He warned against misinformation and pointed out that much of today's thinking by youth concerning drug abuse is based on misinformation.

"Education has as much possibility in prevention as any other tool we've got. Prevention works before the fact and enforcement and rehabilitation after the fact. You've got to talk to the young people as straightforward, unemotionally and factual as possible about the drug abuse problem," he added.

CORRECT INFORMATION

He said doctors, pharmacists, teachers and other authorities must give "correct information."

Many police at the seminar had had no previous in depth training in narcotics and Fletcher discussed symptoms of some of the most commonly used drugs and hallucinogens.

He told them to have ideas and signposts that "raise your suspicions" and said amphetmines (stiumulants) and barbituates (depressants) are among the most common used by young people. He said "medicines stop being a blessing when they are misused" and added that the drug industry was copperative in getting drug abuse control act passed in 1965.

Fletcher said there are at least 2000 amphetmines on the market. He talked about a youngster who might "freak-out" of "flip" and said this is similar to paranoid personality.

He said that the barbituates cause an intoxication virtually identical to an alcohol high without the odor of alcohol. Sometimes the youngsters use the depressant barbituate and the depressant alcohol together and the two "kick each other."

DESCRIBES STIMULANTS

Fletcher said mixing stimulants and depressants "one to fly and one to bring you down" are not uncommon, but there is a definite hazard because they do not effectively counterbalance each other. He likened it to the drunk who fills himself full of coffee . . . "a drunk full of coffee is just a wide awake drunk."

On hallucinogens he said that "we still don't know enough about LSD" although there are many theories that are worthwhile listening to. He said that five minutes after LSD is ingested into the blood stream it disappears and "very little is known about where it goes."

Other speakers were Edward T. Guy, former Federal narcotics agent who showed slides and spoke on identification of drugs; Arthur J. Timins, assistant prosecutor on "Search and Seizure", and John N. Surmay, president of Union County Pharmaceutical Society who spoke on the effects of drugs.

Surmay told the audience of a pharmacy alert program that informs all Union County stores (drug stores) within 45 minutes if a person is trying to obtain drugs under false pretenses. He told the police that pharmacists are willing and able to help the police and can often identify pills and other drugs within minutes if needed in a hurry.

Harvard Offers CAFEO Assist

The financial and administrative woes of Community Action For Economic Opportunity (CAFEO) can be corrected without too much effort, John C. Harvard, former executive director of the Plainfield antipoverty agency, said today.

Harvard, reacting to a move by Elizabeth Mayor Thomas G. Dunn which could result in the death of CAFEO, today offered his services to help straighten out the agency's problems.

Dunn, in comments Thursday on an audit of the agency's finances for the fiscal year ending April 30, 1966, said he will withhold the city's contribution of $5,000 to the agency unless there is a "house cleaning" of CAFEO. He said the city must make the appropriation in the 1969 budget for CAFEO to remain eligible for federal funds.

Harvard, voicing oppsition to the omission of the funds, said, "This program shouldn't be thrown out because of mechanical or administrative mistakes."

Harvard offerred to "objectively appraise" the operations of CAFEO with Dunn and the agency's director, Thomas E. Highsmith Jr.

He called the problems cited in the audit, among them the fact that Highsmith functions both as director and finance officer, as being "mechanical and personnel failures which cannot be attributed to the overall philosophy and objectives of CAFEO."

Harvard said, "It doesn't matter whether you have the best administrator in the world if there isn't a total community committment to participation in the program and to its objectives."

He added that Highsmith's administrative abilities and experience "were both for naught" when he was named director.

He pointed to a lack of meaningful citizen involvement and an "immoral apathy" as being the keys to CAFEO's problems regarding its effectiveness.

"What is wrong is that CAFEO is isolated and left to its own means," he explained.

Dunn, commenting on Harvard's offer, said, "I would prefer a committee approach, with perhaps Harvard as its chairman.

"I welcome Harvard's offer and his interest, but I want others to show a willingness to come forth."

Pharmacist Guilty Of Receiving

Herbert Gelmine, 33, of 98 Madison Ave., New Providence, was found guilty Thursday of receiving stolen drugs valued at $37,000.

Gelmine, owner of the Berkeley Pharmacy in Berkeley Heights, received the drugs from an employe of the Ciba Pharmaceutical Co. of Summit.

The Ciba employe, Frank Gandolfo of 7 Edgar St., Summit, was the chief state witness. He tesitfied he took cases of drugs known as Serpasil and Serapes and delivered them to the pharmacy. The drugs are used for reducing blood pressure.

Gandolfo is awaiting sentencing on a charge of embezzlement.

Gelmine, in testifying, said Gandolfo formerly worked part-time at the pharmacy but was fired for stealing vitamins and selling them to fellow workers at Ciba.

Gelmine, who is under $10,000 bail will be sentenced Jan. 17 by Superior Court Judge John E. Barger, before whom the jury trial was held. He could receive a maximum penalty of seven years in prison, a $3,000 fine or both.
