OVER THE BROOK.

The Stroller Rideures from the Gulp, and Takes a Walk Around.

SPRINGER'S GROCERY, Jan. 12.

A freeholder is to be elected at the spring town meeting.

Mr. Fritz is erecting three more cottages on Fritz avenue.

August Trost expects to occupy the residence on the corner of Mountain avenue and Somerset street presently.

Mr. Van Cleaving propos of upper Somerset street can be seen on the lea on Demier's and Wilson's ponds nowadays.

Benson & Young, the leading lathers of this section of the State, are pressed with business.

Edward E. Vail, father of A. R. Vail of Dunellen, who resides on the Quaker road, is dangerously ill with pneumonia.

Ira G. Hurlburt and Horatio M. Clark are pushing the new residence that they are erecting on Fairview avenue rapidly along.

The borough Council should order Brook avenue widened. Down opposite the Presbyterian cemetery there is no sidewalk at all.

Skating on the ice on Demier's pond has been freely indulged in, the past week. Hudson's pond also was well patronized by the young people.

The salary of the treasurer of the borough is nothin'. He serves without pay. His whole name is Henry Newton Spencer, and he's a jewel.

Jed Smalley and Lyman Spencer are contemplating a trip to the California Mid-Winter Fair. Perhaps it's only visionary. It's a long walk.

Edward Leland is an applicant for the position of night marshal. Mr. Leland is a resident and property owner of Grandview avenue, and if appointed would make a good officer.

Ed. Conahay, clerk in the Arlington Hotel, has connected a new drink which he styles No. 15. The last man who sampled it walked in Murchison and was absent from home thirteen days.

Considerable bustling is being done under the direction of Street Commissioner Gavit on the Grove st. extension. They'll need a few more dollars to finish, so, if you feel that way, Chip! How much? Oh, a tenner'll do!

Ex-Chief Engineer Kelly has, or did have, a black and white shepherd dog that has a fondness for losing himself. He's about so high and his name was Mino. Bring him home and he manse will treat you to cider—vinegar.

Adolph Steger, clerk at the Crescent Hotel, and Cornelius Taylor, of Taylor's Dunellen Wayside Inn, are selling many tickets for an entertainment for the benefit of Henry Widemeyer, who is crippled with rheumatism and unable to work.

Tweedle n't be a bad idea to ask the New York Mutual Life Insurance Company and uncle Peter Wooden to contribute a few dollars towards defraying the expenses of the Grove street improvement. Both own considerable land along the street, and would undoubtedly contribute if the matter were brought to their generous attention.

The funeral of Margaret Keenan of Manning avenue took place at St. Joseph's church this morning at 10, when a requiem mass was offered for the repose of her soul. The funeral was largely attended. Mrs. Keenan was mother-in-law of Andrew E. Kenney, and, besides Mr. Kenney's wife, leaves another daughter, a son, and husband.

Stick a pin right here. It didn't cost the taxpayers one sou for the grading of upper Grove street. All credit to the business Mayor, William L. Saunders, whose reign of government has been the best he borough ever had. Anything he undertakes he accomplishes. The borough has advanced more under his administration than all previous ones combined.

The backwoods apology for a bridge crossing the stream which passes through Somerset street in front of the Hillman property, is one of the mistakes that sometimes occur for no excuse whatever. Why the arch bridge was removed that stale nuisance of an affair has replaced is beyond the Stroller's comprehension. The proper course was to build another arch alongside of it, and, if the old one could not carry off all the water. A bridge like that now in service will do up on Long Hill, where they plant corn with a shotgun—but not in this enlightened community.

Councilman Needham's brass-band and grand-stand resolution at the last meeting of the Council was all for a bluff. The resolution says the saloons in the borough keep open until 12 o'clock, and call on the excise board of Somerset county (whose name, as the introducer well knew) to increase the license fee to $500. The court grants all licenses, and the fee is fixed at $250 annually. A quintuple sum passed of Herbert Schutt, Ed. Smith, Geo. Westerfield, Bradley Hall and Ed Clark smug. A piano solo was played by Miss Ida Bonnell, a recitation was given by Miss Jessie Coddington, Miss Fannie Mattison and Robert Clark sang a duet, and each sang a solo. The Misses Smalley and Maurice Steiner played a duet, Benjamin Lavers a cornet solo, a piano solo was given by Miss May McLaughlin, and William Martin played an autoharp solo. The participants were frequently encored.

Miss Beatrice Emmons of Prospect place was tendered a surprise party by a large number of friends, Thursday evening, at the residence of her parents. A very enjoyable evening was spent in which dancing was included in until an early hour in the morning. Among those present were the Misses Mazel and Edna Francis, Emma Balmer, Kitty Balmer, Mabel Ladd, Nellie Schutt, Lillian Glenn, Grace Emmons, Stella Feytel, Florence Dunn, Ada Winston and Rosa Vanderlek. Also the Messrs Cornwall, Green, Tisworth, Runyon, Brower, Schutt, Moore, VanDeynter, Smith, Feytel and Crane. Music was furnished by Miss Buckley.

At an evening party of young people at the residence of a young jeline up Somerset street, the other evening, Herbert Schutt placed his derby hat on the plate, the hat-rack being more than loaded with coats and hats, and passed it through to the parlors. What was the result? Why the excellent J. E. Emmons entertainment given by the manager of Music Hall a few evenings ago, with a dozen other young jeline, a young woman coming down stairs expressly planted her dainty foot on Herb's hat. The other green young man, who was on Herb for a week, had he is no longer dissatisfied, because the young lady injured an umbrella in the new hat. She'll make it stake, at Herb's request.

Guests and discussed, Barry chorus and barrel band was occupied. The member barrel was the mouth piece of a painter man the night before and the efforts of new-moon hay and timothy seed reminded one of boyhood days when we still sat on the knee of mother and indelicately good Mount Rubbed cigarette. Clouds of smoke observed every member of the assembly, and it was thought that the brass buttons on Zach Wilson's and Jim Lloss's coats looked like the stars in the heavens. The meeting was called to order and the accord of first sniffs of the cloth from the Sandwich Islands, who was slaughtered there by a former member of the Plainfield Science Club—Mr. Stevenson, of Fulton Street—Pipe in a solemn and bumphacked manner the president announced the subjects to be discussed during the evening, and among them were: "Why do some members of the Reform Club carry sorehead?" "What you must do to be a good, a borough and a Christian." "Why I quit smoking." "Why label soap was served in the cool scuttle and colluted pumpkin pie boiled dinner was served in the bugle in the barrel "worked" its own self. Of course, I must confess that my recollectory is a bit weak as to the doings of the intellectual light of the "Live and Let and I was initiated! Oh, my! Why were I born! Of all idiotic and unhuman individuals, the secretary of the Science savages take the space out a doughnut. The novitiate for the honors of this infamous club is required to answer several questions touching his faith in such kind. Solemn sounds on the wall of the wind, waft from the anvil of Sharkey's blacksmith shop; departing time drags slowly at the vital pack of life. Day appeared more fresh—except when John Stone caught me in a hickory nut tree—intellectual light shone for the last time in this club with an axe, and their survey of nature is of the chicken coop variety. Numerous emblems are worn to impart to the social the value of seeing in the dark. The great C. D. C is now in session and the gossip members have all brought their ballots. I never saw such an assemblage nor heard so much noise. "Hoist is the sacred tin that binds" is sung and the lights are put out. When the lights are out and the sap from the maple tree ceases to flow the members of this club will learn why it costs as much for a bon ton in spring as it does in the fall. Shades of departed citizens who built the old school-house down at the end of Mul lane! First class in gossiping stand up! Cousins march, by file left. Mark time! Form a triangle! The Wilson bill is fast making calamity howlers and prophets of evil of many of the members, and the wheel around at the electric light station had spirited the current to the Dunellen dynamo while the janitor for the third time is sweeping out. The stage around at Hoffy's is ready to start for Morristown and I guess I'll go along up and see my old friend, Lieutenant Governor E. Kearney, the manager. The club's busted and so am I. Drive along to the promised land.

THE STROLLER.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

In the Old Days Plainfield's Sunday Papers Were Brought by Express, and Sold for First Morning Mail Out Here at 9:15.

Wm. H. Williams, the veteran newsdealer, is a busy man, and works long hours. When most Plainfielders are still enjoying the happiness of sleep, he is at his post in E-ell's buckeyes arranging for distribution the papers without which the morning cup of coffee would be as flat as it is now. The profit of one Sunday's entire sales was about $3 to $4. After one year, Mr. Williams gave it up, and devoted himself to the dailies and select periodicals.

Plainfield has enjoyed the daily paper train service, says Mr. Williams, for a few years. For a long time the daily morning papers did not get here till 7:30, and for years Plainfield's first mail left at New York at 7:30 and got to Plainfield at 9:15.

Mr. Williams was in service all through the war, and says that the Sunday papers were a great boon to the soldiers in camp. They got them from both New York and Philadelphia, and the Philadelphia Inquirer was held in great esteem. Boys have the advantage for news gathering they now enjoy, but to the veterans soldiers they were mighty interesting reading.

Railroad Notes.

The Jersey Central Railroad Company is tearing up the stone flooring in the passenger house at Jersey City. It had been noticed of late that the floor was settling and, on investigation, it was seen that the floor beams were rotting. They will be replaced by iron girders. It will take about two months to complete the work.

The Central officials were somewhat surprised to see a parallel track from Somerville to Lamington and Bridge a few mornings ago, built in the night by the Lehigh Valley Railroad. Both companies claimed the property, and have been in possession of it for some time. The Central has since built a piece of track on the east side of the canal to cut of the Lehigh.

The Jersey Central Railroad Company is hearing on a change which will improve the service between New York and Princeton.

Fascinating Bible Credentials.

(From The Home Test Journal.)

There is not the slightest doubt but in the Senate investigation of the purchase of Senator Bradley's credentials, at times of any other Senatorial contest, it will be found that in fact it would be the hottest party to make a Senatorial contest and a majority to decide in favor of himself.

A Long Term, of Service in Single Men.

During his four years as Chief of Police, Charles W. Dodd arrested subjects for high crime, and for petty larceny, and the Sheriff's office has arrested and held for hard offenders aggregated 347 years and 11 months.

THE SCHEPFLIN ASSIGNMENT.

Lack of Ready Cash the Cause—The Embarrassment only Temporary.

(From The Press of January 11.)

Elias S. Pope, assignee for C. Schepflin & Co., has taken charge of the shoe factory, and is making up invoices. The works are in operation as usual. Mr. Pope said that it had been intended to make a statement for the creditors, but that it is necessarily delayed until to-morrow. It is firmly believed that the creditors will lose nothing and that the embarrassment is only temporary. The failure is attributed to the inability of the firm to secure renewal of paper in New York banks.

The following statement was published in the New Brunswick Home News yesterday:

The record of a big assignment was filed in the office of the county clerk of Middlesex this morning by Craig A. Marsh of Plainfield, counsel for C. Schepflin & Co., who have been doing a large manufacturers of Front street, Plainfield.

The assignment of this well-known firm was made to Elias S. Pope, of Plainfield, who filed in the Surrogate's office a bond in $250,000. The members of the firm are Christian Schepflin and Peter Schepflin.

The inventory filed this morning shows the assets to amount to $286,186 43 and the liabilities to $177,148 43. The items are as follows:

ASSETS.

Real estate, including two brick buildings on West Front street, valued at $66,000, and mortgaged for $32,500, machinery, furniture, etc.	$46,200 43
Stock of clothing	67,773 33
Accounts receivable	119,261 16
Notes "	39,952 51
	$286,186 43

LIABILITIES.

Claims of creditors	$177,148 43

The clothing firm of Schepflin & Co., is one of the best known in the country. The deed of assignment was filed here because Mr. Schepflin is a resident of Dunellen, this county. His assets, it will be noted, honor his liabilities by over $100,000. The firm has been in business for over 30 years, and has always been rated high. The assignment also was caused by the firm's failure to collect outstanding accounts in the South and West.

Mr. Schepflin is well known here as a generous entertainer and host at his fine country home in Dunellen. He owns the handsome bowling green courts on which the Dunellen and Middlesex teams play. He has many friends here, who will be deeply regretting the suspension, feel that the business will soon be placed on its feet again.

WESTFIELD INNOCENCE.

Here's a Clergyman Who Thought Applejack Was Rice Sweet Cider.

WESTFIELD, N. J., Jan. 11.—January 9 will be a great heardwhich anniversary in the ecclesiastical circles of this town. Great preparations have been made to celebrate the event, the date of the parts of the programme contemplated a banquet, and several clergymen had taken a strong stand against the use of wine.

Numerous conferences were held and all sorts of propositions were made as to the best way to have the banquet and stiff cuisine wine and at the same time please those who wanted the cheering beverage. One solution which knowledge of liquors appears to be very familiar, made a curious proposition which rather shocked his friends. His proposition was that applejack be substituted. This met with the hearty approval of the advocates of wine. The anti-abstainers is solid opposition.

The minister was doubtful at first. Somebody told him applejack was far worse than wine, and he explained that he was innocent of any evil intent, but had used what he thought was the strong stuff for sweet cider. There may be two banquets.

CAN'T HAVE SECOND PLACE.

Park Club Drops a Game to Epsilon, and Slides Down the List.

On Friday the Park bowlers journeyed to Rossmie to play their first league game this year with the Rossmie Casino team. They were soundly thrashed for their trouble, to the tune of 179 pins. The Rossmies put up the highest ten-men game of the year. Capt. Matthews and Dr. Theiss endeavored to pull the Parks through, but to no purpose. Mr. Matthews beat the record of the alleys, held by Warner, by 1 pin. The Parks by this defeat lose all hope of second place.

The Rossmie Casino is a handsome building, and the alleys are perfection.

PENNED IN THE PLAINS.

Latest News from Our Neighbors in the Old Dutch Settlement.

SCOTCH PLAINS, Jan. 12.

Frank R. Allen, the popular and accommodating druggist, who has been dangerously ill with pneumonia, is convalescing.

Judge G. R. Nichols has been confined to his residence for nearly four weeks with an attack of grip. It is pleasant to state that he is on the way to recovery.

Extensive improvements are being made on Mike Walker's homestead property. Augustus Fraatz, the architect and builder, is adding two large extensions at a cost of $6,000.

The wife of Thomas M. Paff has sold the John L. Spencer mountain cottage place for John R. Marsh to H. C. Meyer of New York, who intends to remodel it into a prodigious bungalow for himself. There is no healthier or prettier location in the country.

James Lambert, our genial purveyor of ice, has had the sidewalks to fall and break his ankle. It will break Jim's heart if he does not recuperate sufficiently to be around when his ice-house are being filled with the crystal blocks from the Lambert Lake.

Bill Foster and Boss Campbell say that the damp, dull, chilly weather, the previous week, of which the light grip on money make pretty slow times at the Plains; but it is a noticeable fact that they continue to keep fat, ragged and impudent, and are able and willing to eat ten dollars worth of grub for the equivalent of ten cents worth of work. CRACKLEJAW.

ANOTHER BOTTOMLESS LAKE.

It's in Cornelison Fisk's Back Yard, But It Won't Hold Water.

Anyone who of late has traversed Madison avenue between Seventh and Eighth streets, must have noticed the solitary figure that is often seen standing in the garden at the rear of Councilman Fisk's house.

This lone sentinel holds in his hand the nozzle of a hose, whence stream he devotedly plays on the ground, over and soon varying the monotony of his occupation by directing the stream heavenward, and watching the beautiful effects of the spray playing on his im-prompts fountain. The curious passer-by wears what is the meaning of it all, and speculates if Councilman Fisk is experimenting with a new mode of fertilizing. As one looks closer, an embankment of earth is seen running round the plot, and a short distance away something that looks like a moat. He becomes more and more mystified, and asks himself is this a new system of irrigation or a model of earthwork fortification? Finally, as he hears the crash, crash of the falling water, sees the disgusted look on the face of him who is disbursing the expense, and again recalls the embankment, he endeavors to put two and two together and the idea is forced upon him that these efforts are being put forth to produce a skating pond for Councilman Fisk's boys.

But Dame Nature has been too warm in her disapproval. In a dooryard not a hundred miles from Dunellen, attempts have been begun to appear above the ground, as if to emphasize that an attempt to manufacture a skating pond, when such a fortune, must be given over for next spring, will not be a success; and the water slinks through the gravelly soil, and flows into Plainfield's subterranean lake.

THAT CHEMICAL ENGINE.

It Is Bound to Come Soon, and It Will Be Manned by Veteran Volunteers.

That much-needed chemical engine is among the purchases soon to be made by the city. The crew will be picked one, of five men trained men. Excepts who are still in shape for service, and who are done a job, will have first choice. They will be paid $40 apiece, and have to be ready for call at Hook's store, day and night, sleeping in cots prepared on the second floor, the same as the drivers and some of the men of the other companies.

Architectural Description of the Handsome New Church to the Dedicated Today.

SCOTCH PLAINS, Jan. 12.

(From The Press of January 12.)

The style of the new Seventh-Day Baptist church which is to be dedicated tomorrow is Gothic, a modification of the type known as the "Perpendicular" which prevailed in England during the 14th and 15th centuries. It represents a type of Gothic which was a development of the Romanesque architecture of a period between the early Gothic, and the Transitional styles. This church, is perhaps one of the best of this peculiar character, if not the only one in this country. The interior of the main room or south portion of the church proper, partakes of the form now frequently used, and that adjunct to the cathedrals of the early ages, known as the "Baptistery", which generally partook of the circular or polygonal form, with a domed roof, and often with a circular aisle next the outer wall. Such is the architecture of the Baptistery of Constantine, at Rome. It is polygonal, a room with twelve sides. Twelve "clustered" columns, with moulded bases and richly foliated capitals, surround the space of the central dome, and the chancel and organ chamber. All these converge near the crown of the dome, or rather at a point in the crown of the dome, from which they units with a large boss richly ornamented, and form the central figure of a perforated arrangement of tracery, which serves for ventilating purposes. Twelve spandrels of the dome formed by the main ribs are filled with Gothic tracery in relief. The ceiling to the circular aisle, between the columns and outer walls, is vaulted, and here, as in the dome, moulded ribs are employed to decorate. The ceiling of the main room or dome is covered with stalloted and reticulated patterns. These ceiling ribs are embellished with Gothic tracery representing of ball flowers, and leaves projecting beautifully the corners, and overlapping the more prominent members. A Mediæval idea of symbolic symmetry was the handmaid of early Christian art; by it the very walls preached sermons, and every detail was made to suggest a text. Such symbolism is usually neglected at the present time. Perhaps it is little appreciated by the average Christian of today because of lack of understanding of its significance; and this may be the explanation why such characteristically beautiling style of church architecture is fast becoming obsolete.

It is impossible to reproduce Gothic architecture without recalling the significance of sculpted church symbolism.

The Seventh-Day Baptist church building we have a combination of forms which render it a typical symbol of The Church of Christ. The twelve sides room representing the twelve apostles; the columns, the pillars of the church which are dependent upon unity, and converging to one common centre. But we will not dilate on symbolism further than to say that the church under consideration, offers full opportunity for study in early Christian art.

The organ, which is placed back of the pulpit platform, is a prominent feature of the main room, and is designed in accord with the style of the building. Its architectural beauty is much above the average, and its tone is usually sweet, seldom equaled, if ever surpassed. The case is of oak, corresponding with the interior of the room, and the pipes "stack up" in successive tiers. These are decorated with such modulating and gradation of color as to produce an extending effect, and appreciable foreground and setting for the exquisite pomegranate panel of stained glass which crowns the niche that constitutes the organ loft. This monumental panel representing "Holy Holy Christ", was the gift of the late Geo. H. Babcock. It is in the form of a "round burst", representing the glory, fading away into darkness as it recedes from the central point, until utterly lost in the heavy surrounding shapes. This is possible, highly transparent at the point, fades away to complete opacity, terminating in the darkly painted representation of Mount Calvary, which owing to the dome of the niche, follows the curve of the old masters, the central and most prominent figures in the group represent the Saviour, Holy Ghost, are actual portraits.

The interior wood finishings of the church are of oak, and the color decorations are of a light

The Plainfield Leader speaks of Plainfield as "one of our nearby towns".

What does Chauncer Riley mean when he says it cost $30,000 to secure an extension of time in the building of the Plainfield electric railway?

They say that the appointment for Chief of Police this year will be given to Charles W. Dodd. This is the recording of a rumor, not a prediction.

Commissioner Sam Ireland and fourteen street girls within two months and is now ready to employ the Fifteenth on principle. "This" said Sam, "is a good joke." It is a good joke too! and not a more newspaper pun. I guess that what the Elizabeth woman really wants is not a second girl, but an angel."

Sunny-hearted Tom Nevins has lost his temper at last. As promoter of the ragged Welsh operatic Fitchburg's street railway, he sought to get the electric system into New Brunswick. The Aldermen, however, will not let Mr. Nevins's nationalities and when Greek meets Greek, you know! Only now it is a case of Ireland against Ireland, and New Brunswick won't go an electric road till the Rillroad war is over.

The Flying Post flew the night. It started in the morning with a flight of papers, and laid out big money for new-fangled machinery which old-established country dailies can't afford. It flew too high, and fell flat. Better follow the example of James Gordon Bennett, who started The Herald in a cellar, and wrote its early editorials on a barrel-head. Let the Post begin in newspapers as with top of a barrel. In newspapers as with men, it is best for one to be sure of his platform before he soars.

There is talk of another new fire department building in the business centre of the town. Better a hose house in the West End and an unexpectable police station to replace the present disgraceful lock up. The Plainfield jail is positively indecent for a city which has spent so much money in improvements and which boasts of its wealth and culture. Dog kennels of private houses are more habitable than the foul, miasmatic wretched cesspools into which Plainfield prisoners are cast.

The New York Sun is still accumulating odd names for the Democratic cabinet. New Jersey can supply some. What, for instance, is the matter with Alten Wizzig, the Westfield artist whose sign swings from the Broad street hotel? Wizzig was copied by Mrs. Darah? And what's the matter with Sid Sunkle, the hose carpenter of Rahway? Sunkle is a good name for a county politico and may yet be sent to Washington? Will Editor Dana kindly investigate the possibilities ahead of men with such names as Alten Wizzig and Sid Sunkle?

The suggestion is made by a taxpayer that if the city is looking for opportunities to save needless expense it may very properly begin by cutting off its free supply of uniforms for policemen and firemen. He argues that in other cities, as on railroads, the man in municipal employ have to pay for their uniforms. He believes that Plainfield municipal wages are as high as elsewhere and entirely adequate to enable the men to provide for themselves. The Press does not advocate this policy, but suggests the matter as something worthy of investigation.

While it is true that Charles W. Dodd is being prominently endorsed for Chief of Police, there are many who feel that it would be unjust to turn down the present incumbent, Mr. Dunn, who for years has spent the best part of his life in the service of the city, on the police force. In that service he has risked his health and best energies for 20 years, and since he has been Chief the city has enjoyed excellent order. His conduct of police affairs has been beyond reproach, and he is an excellent man to appoint for another term. If years of unremitting faithfulness count for anything, George W. Dunn will continue to be Chief of Police another year.

The Press sincerely hopes that the Mayor will reconsider his opposition to the appointment of additional policemen. The policemen are overworked and demands that the police force shall be increased now. Large sections of Plainfield are badly protected at night, crimes are prevalent, and dwellings are at the mercy of housebreakers and women on the streets in the power of footpads. This truth has already been brought home to the people with startling force, by the repeated bold depredations committed. Surely the money that has been spent for years, and this present demand, to hire at least three additional officers. They are an absolute necessity, if taxpayers are to have their rights.

Through the devotion of Councilman Frazee to their cause, the real workers of the Plainfield fire department, the men and drivers who are responsible for the wonderfully quick service Plainfield enjoys, were granted an increase in pay. Some months ago, Mr. Frazee's friends were to be required to work their horses on the streets three days a week when the weather permits, there is again talk of increasing the pay, from $40 to $50 a month. This would be the same wages as a patrolman gets, and is perhaps a just amount. The firemen are entitled to a different honest recompense to all its employes, for money expended in wages is money spent in the circulation through the channels of local trade when money is so greatly needed.

If the Press Reporter to investigate the charge made against Policeman Conroy of interfering with a fireman in the discharge of his duty, outdoor-cigar is likely to be lighted. The reporter will be arrested was under the influence of liquor. The policeman says, as reported in another column, that the fireman was not only been drinking but had still more liquor in a flask in his pocket, and that he was ugly, continuous and abusive. The fireman denies the charge, and says he was arrested language and violence. There are serious statements of two city employees against one of the same. The Press will, with the best ones and in justice to the two men, ought to investigate thoroughly, find who is to blame, and discipline accordingly. Whether the character of fireman, nor policemen of policemen, should be tolerated.

When the Bible Fields in Trenton is ended, and we find out who's who, the Legislature can do no better work than to adopt Senator Bogert's resolution of the purchasing power. Very often private companies have employed Bogert's business methods and saved long sums their terms expense, much to the amusement of the stockholders, and their officers were dismissed, and taken from the public purse. Bogert's work in the public press and in the Senate proved expertness in arithmetic. Bogert's work in the Senate proved expertness in arithmetic. A WORLD-FAMED INSTITUTION.

From The Buffalo Sunday News.

Dr. Ray Vespie Pierce, famous among the benefactors of the age, established himself in Buffalo in 1876, and having acquired a world-wide reputation in the treatment of chronic diseases far removed the idea of his ability to consult, for several years ago induced several medical gentlemen of high professional standing to associate themselves with him as the faculty of the World's Dispensary, the consulting department of which has since been merged into the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute. The organization is incorporated with a capital of $150,000, and the officers are Dr. Ray V. Pierce, President; Jas. H. Smith, M. D., Vice-President; Dr. T. H. Callaha, Treasurer; V. Mott Pierce, M. D., Secretary and General Manager.

The vast patronage enjoyed by the World's Dispensary Medical Association have frightened so Main and Washington streets as to necessitate the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute occupies a five-story brick building, 175x100 feet, and is not to be classed with hospitals but is exclusively devoted to the treatment of chronic diseases, having a staff of four men physicians and surgeons, with skilled nurses in attendance. The World's Dispensary, occupying the immense six-story building, Main to feet, at 663 to 670 Washington street, is used for the manufacture of Dr. Pierce's standard family medicines: Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets and Dr. Pierce's Compound Extract of Smartweed, also Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

The basement is occupied by the shipping department. The large advertising, mailing and counting room department occupy the main or second floor, third floor, printing and binding department, fourth floor, drug mills and paper warerooms, fifth floor, bottling, wrapping and packing department, sixth floor is occupied by one of the best planned laboratories in the country, in charge of a thoroughly scientific chemist, a graduate of Harvard Medical School.

THE BAD MATTER, of this enormous establishment amounts to from 30,000 to 40,000 pounds daily, postage alone costs, $18,000 a year, and more than half a million dollars is spent each year in advertising the proprietary medicines in all the newspapers and periodicals of the United States and Canada. These believes in advertising and in making the public thoroughly familiar with the name and qualities of his standard remedies. A branch establishment (the only one) is conducted at 4 New Oxford street, London. Dr. Ray V. Pierce is a native of New York, and a graduate of the Cincinnati Medical College. He has been honored by his fellow citizens by election to a seat in the State Senate and in Congress, and is a member of the American Engine Company of Round Brook, N. J. His son, Dr. Valentine Mott Pierce, is a graduate of Harvard University and Buffalo University Medical Department, and Dr. Smith, Vice-president, is a graduate of Buffalo University and College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York.

OBITUARY.

Augustus G. Richey.

The death of Augustus G. Richey, one of the most eminent lawyers in the State, and who was prominently identified with numerous business concerns and religious enterprises, occurred at his home in Orange in Trenton Monday. He was father of Mrs. Charles J. Fisk. Mr. Richey was the oldest practising member of the bar. He was an ex-senator of New Jersey.

He was identified with the temperance organization of the State. He was one of the oldest elders in the First Presbyterian church. He was New Jersey counsel for the Philadelphia and Reading railroad, a Trustee of Lafayette College, and of the American Sunday-school Union, and was in office in many corporations. Mr. Richey was devoted to the Presbyterian church, and contributed largely to its many benevolences. He gave $1,000 to the Young Men's Christian Association of Trenton. As a lawyer he was noted for his business methods and almost unerring judgment of men and their qualifications. He is said to have acquired more than any other lawyer in this State.

A Good Indication.

Medical practitioners of prominence are prescribing for the cure of diseases resulting from derangement of the digestive organs Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. Such professional endorsement is justified by the fact that no other proprietary medicine has been found so efficacious in that class of disorders, even in the most advanced and severe cases. It has cured hallucination of the kidneys where all other medicines had failed. It can be purchased of druggists everywhere. A book is wrapped about each bottle, explaining its use in the different diseases.

DEDICATED FREE OF DEBT.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS WORSHIP IN THEIR NEW HOME.

Former Services Upon the Sabbath Dedicatory Sermon by Rev. Frank R. Peterson, Pastor of the Church, and of Eighteenth-avenue.

THE Sabbath-day spent upon the Sabbath Dedicatory Sermon by Rev. Frank R. Peterson, Pastor of the Church, and of Eighteenth-avenue.

With rejoicing marred only by the thought of recent bereavements, the people of the Seventh-Day Baptist Church of Christ of Plainfield dedicated their new place of worship Saturday morning.

Having declared their debt cancelled, the Sabbath, January 6, 1894, their second March 14, 1887; and into the corner-stone of the present building Rev. Samuel Davis, the congregation marked the final completion of a costly and almost impalpable structure with ceremonies of thankfulness and consecration.

The pastor's memorial window was unveiled for the first time. The building was described at length in The Press of yesterday.

Congratulations were present from the churches of the same denomination in New Market, New York, Milton, Alfred, Lewis and Shiloh.

The service consisted of responsive readings led by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, (phonography will singing) The Sabbath lesson was 1 Kings, viii, 12-60, and was read by the Rev. Frank R. Peterson, the pastor of the mother church in New Market. The story of the planning of Solomon's temple was peculiarly appropriate.

The prayer was made by Rev. L. A. Livingston, editor of The Sabbath Recorder.

The pastor and the people joined in the dedicatory words: "And now O Lord, abide with us, that we may be enlightened to know Thy will, and strengthened to keep Thy commandments, and to be established, and our children's children, throughout all generations. Accept us now in Christ, and be pleased to bless or abundantly bless our offerings, and hence unto Thy service, and unto the cause of truth and righteousness, from this time forth, and for evermore.—Amen."

A prayer of dedication and consecration by Dr. Lewis followed. The service closed with a hymn of benediction.

The pastor's sermon was in the nature of a report of the progress of the building operations and a declaration of the faith in which it was dedicated. He said:

The necessity for more and better accommodations for Sabbath-school work, and for the social features of our church life than the basement of the old house had usually afforded, led to the movement for a new building.

In December, 1889, a committee consisting of Dr. A. H. Lewis, Jos. F. Wells, and H. Thorworth was appointed to report on the feasibility of building a chapel which would furnish the additional facilities that were desired. At a meeting of the 1st of February, 1890, this committee reported in favor of building such a chapel, and a Building Committee was appointed, with Dr. Lewis, Dr. H. Babcock, Chas. Potter, Rudolph M Thworth, Joseph A. Hubbard and E. R. Pope, with J. F. Wells as chairman of the committee, and was appointed and instructed to raise funds and procure plans and estimates for the building. When the committee was appointed and instructed to raise funds and procure plans and estimates for the building. When the committee was appointed and instructed to raise funds and procure plans and estimates for the building. When the committee had finished the chapel came up, it was found that it would not be convenient, and consequently the former committee was discharged and a new one appointed in the day when the ground was to be broken for the foundation.

On the 20th of April, 1891, the Building Committee reported in favor of moving the old church to the back end of the lot on which it stood, and facing it on Park avenue, and the brethren voted to accept building on the old site. The discussion of this report developed the new plan of purchasing the adjoining lot and constructing the old church on the present position on Madison avenue, all of which was determined upon promptly and unanimously by a large and enthusiastic meeting. It is a cause for thankfulness that this unanimity has continued from that inception of the work until now. The Building Committee was instructed to procure plans and estimates for the building, and on the 11th of May, 1890, the plans were adopted, and the work was ordered forward. The moving of the old church was begun about May 19, 1890, and our worship was continued in the old Seventh-Day Baptist Church until July 6, of that year. Place were protected, the main contracts made, and ground was broken for the new building early in August, 1890. The corner stone was laid on the 8th of November, and a supplemental service in which the New Market church joined, was held on the following Sabbath, November 29, 1890. We did not desire to build rapidly, so much as permanently and well, for we believed that work was not for our convenience, but for a single generation. The work of building has been delayed from time to time by causes sought for and prayed for, but it has never waited an hour for hands, and we do not have complaint because of these delays. Now that it is finished we are devoutly thankful that we are able to consecrate a house to the Lord said to be cause of righteousness, more beautiful and more suitable for the ends of the house in which we dwell. Our deepest satisfaction at this hour is that we can give unto God and to His service this house, yet free from debt.

The money for this building has all been raised within the church and congregation and without incumbrance in any way, we commend church work, or contributions to the Lord's work outside the local church. There have been three special efforts made for the raising of the expenses as they have exceeded the estimates, from time to time; but all these efforts have been promptly met by very liberal subscriptions, and without delay. All bills are paid or fully provided for, and we dedicate this house without debt and without anxiety, ready for Christ and such other for what we have thus been enabled to do.

The erection of the building is O. S. Thorp's contracting season, I. W. Pingham; the contracting carpenter, John Cassidy; the doors, sash, etc., were made by Hyatt & Hubbard; the door-casing and the relief ornaments are by Rud. Boyer; the painting and graining by Jos. Hubbard; the finish, the glass work, including memorial window, is by Arnold and Lodge of Brooklyn. The organ is by Roy Kilgore of Brooklyn. The organ is a gift in the gift of George H. Babcock; we think thought that he would be with the dedicated ones because it could be only a gift. The bell, hung upon chimes, known as the "Westchester Chimes", are the gift of Charles Potter. The pulpit furniture is presented by the Woman's Society for Christian Work, of this church.

Our thanksgiving and joy are mingled with a deep sorrow that some can not enter within our house, to see what we have wrought, and long for the sleep of vanished hands, whose skill and ingenuity have been "equal to any higher" since the building of this house begun. Two of these, E. M. Thworth and Oscar H. Babcock, were trustees, pastors and officers of the Building Committee, and were deeply in love with the work which is now covered with completion. Other hands, equally skillful, and our prief inconsolable, if we did not know that they, and all of the precious dead, have entered into the sanctuary and the rest of the Sabbath-day of God, and are now fellow-laborers with us in the Lord, and with us in the Lord, and with us in the Lord, and
