Mayor Wants Township Narcotics Unit In County

Mayor Thomas A. Kaczmarek of Clark has announced that he is urging members of the municipal council to vote approval for Clark's participation in a county-wide narcotics strike force.

The U.S. Department of Justice has approved a $110,000 grant to the State Law Enforcement Planning Agency for use by the Union County Board of Freeholders in the formation of a county crime control unit, Mayor Kaczmarek said.

The county-wide narcotics strike force would operate within the crime control unit, the mayor noted. A condition of membership in this strike force is that each participating municipality must pledge that "at least one member of its police department will devote 100 per cent of his time to narcotics enforcement at the municipal and county level."

In his letter to council members urging their approval, Kaczmarek stated, "This proposal has been reviewed by our director of public safety and police chief and they are in complete accord with it. They are prepared to designate a member of our Police Department to work with the county narcotics strike force."

"It is, therefore, my recommendation that the municipal council adopt the required resolution as suggested by the office of the county counsel."

Mayor Kaczmarek, Democratic candidate for freeholder, pledged that if he is elected, he will be in the forefront of programs designed to halt the drug menace which is ruining so many of young people's lives.

"I believe the formation of this county-wide narcotics strike force would represent an all-important step forward in solving this most critical social problem," Mayor Kaczmarek said.

Subjects to be offered are Remedial Reading and Remedial Mathematics. Remedial Reading is designed to expand ability in reading, writing, and English usage. Individual weakness will be stressed. Remedial Mathematics will consist of a basic review of mathematics, relevant to each grade level.

Each class session is one and one-half hours per day during this period at a cost of $30 per child per course. If there are more than two children from the same family enrolling, the cost for all subsequent children from that family will be $20 per child per course.

The schedule of classes is arranged with all subjects being offered twice each morning in order that students who wish to do so may enroll in two classes. Each class offering depends upon enrollment; if it is insufficient for the formulation of a class, the fee will be returned. In all other cases, no fee will be returned after the first meeting of a class. Registration is open to all regardless of residence, and may be made in person or through the mail.

Mail registrations may be made by sending check or money order, made payable to the Rahway Board of Education, to Edward Hirschman, c/o Summer Enrichment Program, Franklin School, 1809 St. George Ave., Rahway 07065.

In-person registration may be made during school hours at any Rahway elementary school or the Rahway Junior High School.

The registration period is from June 1 to June 16. Deadline for in-person or mail registrations is June 16.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Mr. Hirschman at 388-8500.

He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa at Rutgers and was graduated summa cum laude. He is employed by the University of Massachusetts.

No Reason for Flag Desecration

Approximately 100 American flags, placed on the graves of veterans in Rahway Cemetery, were removed last Saturday. A flag also was taken from the grave of Abraham Clark, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Police, alerted to the desecration of the graves by a Rahway citizen, apprehended three juvenile males. One cannot help but wonder why such an act is committed even though such vandalism seems to be growing in popularity these days. The removal of the flags seems all the more despicable, coming as it did between our observances of Memorial Day and Flag Day, which is next Monday.

Disrespect toward the American flag apparently is growing, judging from reports of the conduct of the spectators at the Memorial Day parade and at ceremonies where the salute to the flag is a part. Spectators at the parade permitted the American flag to pass by without notice and without any sign of respect. When the salute to the flag takes place, the gesture of respect often is half-hearted and not infrequently ignored by teen-age students.

There certainly is no reason to make respect to the flag a fetish and that has never been done in this country. The flag, however, is a symbol of our nation and as such should not be the object of disrespect, desecration and vandalism even some individuals or organizations believe everything in the nation is not 100 per cent to their liking.

Let us hope that the incident in Rahway Cemetery is the last such act we will have to record in this area. It might help if parents, schools and patriotic organizations emphasize the reasons for respect to our flag. It might be pointed out that the liberties we enjoy do not include the "right" to desecrate the flag or even the "right" to steal the property of other individuals.

Learn Early About Safety

Today there is great concern about the loss of life in Vietnam but little concern about the fact that motor vehicle accidents are killing Americans at the rate of approximately 50,000 per year.

In the 1961-1970 period there were 36,866 American servicemen killed in the Vietnam conflict.

It might be well to examine the attitude of today's children when looking for reasons why the accidental deaths on the streets are increasing in this country. Automobile or truck drivers are familiar with the contempt with which today's children treat the motor vehicle. The children move reluctantly from the path of cars and trucks, try to see how close they can stand to the vehicle while it passes and cross streets without looking.

Young bicyclists ride on the wrong side of the street, turn in front of vehicles without looking and ride recklessly, often with a passenger on the bike.

Older children --- and adults --- have been operating gasoline-powered mini bikes illegally on the streets. This has prompted Police Chief Anthony T. Smar of Clark to issue a warning to mini bike users that such action will not be tolerated.

There should be a greater control of bicyclists for their own good and for the protection of motorists who usually face the blame when fatalities occur. Regulations should be enforced and parents should give their children instruction in how to ride a bicycle safely and by conforming to the laws.

The Clark Police Department has had bicycle safety programs and the effort is commendable. There cannot be too much emphasis on safety.

Hold Yourself Ready

By Rev. Robert C. Powley

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of sermons by Rahway clergymen. This week's sermon is by the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church

"Be ready for action, with belts fastened and lamps alight. Be like men who wait for their master's return from a wedding-party, ready to let him in the moment he arrives and knocks. Happy are those servants whom the master finds on the alert when he comes. I tell you this; he will buckle his belt, seat them at table, and come and wait on them. Even if it is in the middle of the night or before dawn when he comes, happy they be if he finds them alert. And remember, if the householder had known what time the burglar was coming, he would not have let his house be broken into. Hold yourselves ready; then, because the Son of Man is coming at the time you least expect him."

"Peter said, 'Lord, do you intend this parable especially for us or is it for everyone?' (Luke 12: 35-41 NEB)

Peter never really received an answer to his question. Not directly at least. But indirectly the answer was, "Yes, it is for everyone."

"Be ready for action....." Preparedness, readiness, alertness, expectation are the call of this parable. The Son of Man can break into life at a time when you least expect it, so alertness is mandatory for the Christian. To be touched by the eternal means that nothing in life is meaningless or purposeless for the Christian. We are called to live all our moments with a sense of the possibility that the infinite can break in on the finite. The material can be penetrated by the spiritual. The eternal can cut through the temporal. It is what happened when God became incarnate in Jesus Christ. It is what makes for "miracle." It is what makes the ordinary become extraordinary. It is what makes the commonplace become dramatic.

It is what we bring of alertness that makes worship something in which we participate and something in which "we meet" the Master. It is what we bring by way of preparedness that makes bread and wine "the body and blood of Christ." It is what we display of the expectancy of receiving that permits the Lord of life to come through teacher and curriculum. It is how we "hold ourselves ready" that allows us to find in another person, a daily chore, a regular group, a repeated act, - the love, truth, and will of the infinite God breaking in upon our lives.

Someone has said that there are no such persons who are strangers. They are merely friends you have not yet met. Such an attitude exhibits expectancy and readiness, an openness to new experience.

"Be ready for action....." The first century Christians lived with a sense of the ever-present, almost imminent, coming of Christ into their lives. Their lives were open to every eventuality: New knowledge, new relationships, growing maturity, expanding horizons, greater vision and insight, broader understanding, and increasing faith for themselves, the church and the world.

"Yes, Peter, the parable is for everyone - in everything - every day."

SMALL BUSINESS ADVISOR

Friendly Attitude Builds Clientele

By Ronald J. Orlick

Learning the names of your steady customers and accompanying them with a sincere and cheerful "good morning" can be worth thousands of dollars a year to the owner of a small neighborhood store.

Naturally, however, it is important to get the name and its pronunciation right. If you are not sure you can pronounce it correctly, it is better to stick to the "good morning" and, of course, "have a good day" or "have a good evening," when they leave.

If parents come in with their small children, you will find it especially worthwhile to learn their names and also to pay special attention to them. (You will find it makes you feel good, too.) Give them a small gift, if you can. Their "thank you" will cheer you up and be remembered by both the child and his parents. A butcher who has made a point throughout the years of giving each child a piece of bologna now has built up a clientele of three generations.

It is just as important to give special attention to people at the other end of the age spectrum. Most people don't mind waiting a few minutes while you help an older person to make up her mind or to find the right change.

If a customer seems to invite it, there's seldom any harm, and often much good, to come from establishing a casual friendship. Don't, however, become too involved. And if a customer one day lets slip something he may regret having said, be careful not to bring up the subject again.

Of course, to maintain good relationships you must give good service. This means plenty of help. If you are too busy at some hours and not busy enough at others, plan for parttime help. Be sure that your stock is well arranged so that all your salespeople know where it is. Keep your stock up to date, so that you never have to tell a prospective customer you don't have what he wants. Keep all your stock dusted and fresh-looking.

Don't try to oversell. If a customer asks for a small quantity of something, don't try to sell him a larger one. It is good to ask, when he has finished his purchase, if there is anything else he would like or to point out a special bargain you may have. But don't press him; he's probably in a hurry. If you see that this approach annoys him, don't use it the next time he comes in.

You can be of great service to a busy and hurried customer if you look to be sure he is not leaving a parcel behind him.

Of course, it is essential in any business to keep good accounts. No matter how many apologies you make, you can never quite make up for the loss of faith caused by billing a customer for something he has already paid for.

When a customer complains, make every effort to satisfy him—even if you feel his complaint is unjustified. A few pennies lost today may be dollars earned tomorrow if you send a customer away with regained faith in you and your store.

Letters to the Editor

Asks If Dreams Are Outmoded

When I observe today's youth, I wonder what has become of the art of dreaming and imagining.

Many a boy (whose counterpart of 20 years ago dreamed of flying to the moon or becoming a hometown hero) now can't walk out of the house without taking along a transistor radio or a tape recorder.

When does he dream his dreams of the future? Surely not while someone is screaming, "Yeh yeh, baby!"

I'll never forget the times I spent with my brother looking at cloud formations---picking out shapes of lambs, bears and castles in the sky. Or the sunny New York State (Adirondack area) afternoons when we dug worms and headed for the creek. The idea of needing other "entertainment" never occurred to me.

Wind rustling through the trees overhead and the slap, slap of water against the bank provided all the music I needed for dreaming and thinking. A bellowing vocalist would have been an unwelcome invasion of my privacy.

Today I see too many youngsters half-hypnotized by blaring music and (to me) senseless lyrics. I hope that somewhere in the United States there is still a boy or girl who knows how to dig bait and make a fishing pole--one who values the solitude and privacy of an afternoon at the creek.

Backs Anti-Red Efforts in US Of Birch Group

I wonder if E. Sidman Wachter has every heard of the John Birch Society? That organization of patriotic Americans has dedicated their "lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor" to abolishing communism in America. They have survived through vicious attacks and smears from the liberal press, the communist press and badly misinformed people for 12 years.

The communists in America have stepped up their program to engulf us, and if the people of America do not wake up in time, they will see their country plunged into the dark ages such as never before seen or known by man.

I am sure that Lady Hamilton's organization is a good one and the feeling behind it patriotic, but there is only one anti-communist organization in this country which can effectively fight communism on a nationwide basis. That organization is the John Birch Society. It has the tools and know-how. If any good American wants to fight communism effectively, let him get in touch with myself or Mrs. Robert Steffan of Colonia, or write to the John Birch Society of Belmont, Mass.

What have you done lately to save your country?

After Postal Strike, Britain's Still Lovely

By Eileen Woodward

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following column was written by Mrs. Eileen Woodward, a former Rahway resident now living in Newton Abbot, Devon, England. Mrs. Woodward and her husband, Douglas, moved to England nearly a year ago after about 20 years in Rahway.

The British postal workers have returned to work. What, if anything, has been gained from the weeks of hardship and frustration remains to be seen.

One thing is certain, though. The victims aren't the Post Office, the strikers, or the government. No, the real sufferer is the populace -- that impersonal thing so often referred to as "the masses."

Pity Britain's hapless majority, whose dismay at rapidly rising prices, and fear of further financial imposition resulting from membership in the Common Market, have spawned disparate twins.

The firstborn is the question, "What can we do?" And the twin is the answer, "Nothing." Paradoxically, the listless secondborn is stifling its sanguine twin. For the truth is that neither major political party has been able, or willing, to halt either strikes or inflation. And disregarding public sentiment and the protests of the few Members of Parliament who advocate individualism, both these parties seem hell-bent on entering the Market. So even a general election -- purging or otherwise -- would be unlikely to prevent this fratricide.

The government and all would-be-strikers should recognize and fear the smoldering resentment of the British public before this subdued muttering -- apparently mistaken for a sheepish Baa -- becomes an angry bellow.

In the past, Britons, while grumbling much as people do in the U.S.A., have frequently accepted hardship as a necessary means to a beneficial end. But now, though conceding that strikes often seem to result in gains to the participants, they see these gains gobbled up by inflationary costs which -- in part -- result from the strikes and the so-called gains.

Aware, as they are, that prices prevailing on the continent are generally higher than those in Britain, very few of the populace expect to benefit from Common Market entry. Tongue in cheek, they read and hear of the initial burdens this entry will impose on their Government. Experience has taught them that all such burdens finally come to rest on the shoulders of the governed.

But despite grave domestic problems, Britain is still a good place to visit. Incredible as it may seem, battles for survival -- domestic and foreign -- have left most beauty-spots lovely as ever. And, except in winter, should visitors tire of the glut of more vaunted attractions, even a leisurely stroll through the residential districts of the smaller towns and the suburbs can be a joy. Gardens, large or small; formally conservative or imaginatively unconventional, reveal much of the owner's personality while delighting the beholder's eye with subtle tints or blazing color.

In these gardens, many Britishers work off their frustration and express themselves with artistic freedom. Alas, even that freedom is threatened! Garden supplies, too, cost more these days. If ever that cost becomes prohibitive -- well, Heaven help the inhabitants of this hither to "green and pleasant land." Surely the nation's gardeners would seek -- and find -- some alternative means for coping with their frustration and giving vent to self-expression. And garden tools in the hands of an aroused populace.

As the British would say, the mind boggles.

State Repair Job Botched by City

After seven years of fruitless telephone calls and letters to the city officials of Rahway, we were finally able to get the gutters in front of our home fixed.

For seven years the water has laid in the gutter in front of our driveway. In the summer the water would become stagnant. Trying to keep my children and others from playing in this water was a real problem. Most people know how little children love puddles. In the winter the water would freeze to about three feet out in the street. As we have no sidewalks, this made it very difficult to gain access to our home without falling on the ice.

Thanks to the efforts of our councilman, Richard Vovnik, work was started in April. We were told the job would take about a week. As of now, the job is still not done to our satisfaction.

They messed up our lawn and our driveway and we still have water in the gutters! If this was a private contractor we would refuse to pay him and maybe try to sue him. After pouring the concrete for the curbing, they left a trench about a foot deep and the whole width of our property. No protective barricades or blinker lights were placed near the opening to warn of the danger. It was only after my son was hurt and Mr. Vovnik made a few phone calls that the great City of Rahway placed one blinker light by the trench.

The next day they threw some dirt in the trench and fixed our driveway. Our lawn is still a mess and we were told the stuff they used on the driveway is only for temporary patching jobs.

We felt Mr. Vovnik had

Speaker to Reveal How Red Agitators Foment Revolution

County Spending

In NJ Exceeds

One Half-Billion

Spending by New Jersey's county governments will exceed a half-billion dollars this year.

An annual tabulation of budgets of the 21 counties reported by the New Jersey Taxpayers Association shows aggregate planned 1971 spending of $553,451,381. This is 13 1/2 per cent higher than actual expenditures of $487,758,187 last year and almost double the $280.4 million total of county budgets in New Jersey in 1965.

A county-by-county comparison of adopted 1971 county budget totals with 1970 expenditures shows increases for all counties ranging from 0.6 per cent in Hudson to 24.9 per cent in Sussex. Largest dollar increase was a rise of more than $17 1/2 million in Essex County to a 1971 budget total of $111 million. The percentage increase of 18.9 per cent in Essex was second largest in the state. Smallest dollar increase was a $129,298 rise in Salem County to a total budget of less than $5 million this year.

In Union County, last year's actual expenditures of $28,663,510 compared with a spending budget of $33,273,334 adopted for 1971, a rise of $4,609,824. This 16.1 per cent increase placed the county ninth in rank according to percentage of rise among the 21 counties.

The tabulations compare last year's expenditures -- including amounts paid, charged and reserved -- with adopted 1971 budget totals. The latter are subject to change according to actual spending experience this year. The totals do not include capital spending from bond and reserve funds.

The speech, "Civil Rights--A Cover For Revolution," will be presented by the Support Your Local Police Committee of Union County.

Mr. Smith, a native of Pittsburgh, Pa., moved to Los Angeles in 1960 and was recruited into several groups supposedly promoting freedom and civil rights. He was active in the Fair Play for Cuba Committee before it was cited as a Communist front, and he later helped organize the Los Angeles Freedom Now Committee.

According to Mr. Smith, many Americans, both white and black, have been deceived by revolutionary groups that operate behind a facade of appealing slogans and high-sounding phrases.

"The Fair Play for Cuba Committee," he explains, "founded great in the early 1960's because nobody wanted to be against fair play."

Mr. Smith says he started realizing that something was wrong when he learned that Lee Harvey Oswald had belonged to the Los Angeles

Hyatt Workers in Clark Win a Round

In Effort to Keep Jobless Benefits

Another round in the battle to collect $1.25 million in unemployment benefits was won last week by more than 1,500 workers at the New Departure-Hyatt Bearings Division plant of the General Motors Corporation in Clark.

The battle for the benefits was begun by the workers after a layoff last fall when the automobile manufacturing concern was struck.

Lester Weiner of Linden, attorney for Local 736, United Auto Workers, said a review board of the State Division of Employment Security has ruled that the workers are entitled to benefits even though General Motors has protested.

Workers were awarded benefits last January by Morton Goldblatt, an examiner for the state agency. GM appealed the ruling.

Mr. Weiner said the employees have collected their chapter of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee and when he heard the slogans of the Freedom Now Committee shouted as the battle cries for revolution during the crucial stages of the Watts riot.

In 1968, Mr. Smith started publishing "The Voice of Watts." It was a modest start, and Mr. Smith says he wrote the newsletters on a used typewriter and paid most of the printing costs himself. But with the help of a few friends, he explains that he was able to distribute several hundred copies of the first crude editions. Today, "The Voice of Watts" is circulated in 32 of the 50 states.

"This business of racism," Mr. Smith insists, "is a tool of the demagogue and the political opportunist." He calls Martin Luther King's civil rights movement a cover for revolution. He also maintains that the riots that have swept our cities were planned to appear as "spontaneous uprisings, --when in fact there was nothing spontaneous about them at all."

Mr. Smith's speech is sponsored by the Support Your Local Police Committee of Union County, which is part of a nationwide network formed to encourage local law enforcement personnel and to expose the attacks against our police.

Tickets for the speech are $1 in advance of the meeting or $2 at the door. They may be obtained by calling 382-0096, by writing Box 672, Rahway, or at the auditorium the night of the speech.

Ban on Dumping Sludge Offshore Attacked by Dietz

The ban on dumping sewage sludge within 100 miles of the New Jersey shore, which was signed into law by Gov. William T. Cahill last week, was attacked by the Democratic state senatorial candidate, Christopher Dietz, who charged the governor with making a political maneuver without regard for the citizens or environment of the state.

Mr. Dietz, in attacking the law, said he agrees completely that sludge dumping as it is now being practiced must be halted to protect the environment.

"I want it understood," Mr. Dietz said, "that I am in favor of very stringent laws to protect our environment." He added, however, that the Republican governor has failed to alert the state's residents to the true ramifications of the new law.

"The bill cannot be compared with the state's sewage treatment facilities," Mr. Dietz said. "Either the governor knows this and is using the public's concern about pollution as a political tool, or he does not know it and should secure better advice."

Regional sewage treatment facilities now give primary treatment to sewage, separating it into solid and liquid components. The solid portion is the sludge. The sewage authorities have it barged about 12 miles to sea for dumping.

New Drive-In Facility For SETCO Started

Gavin Spofford, president of Summit and Elizabeth Trust Company, has announced that the ground-breaking for the new drive-in facility at the Raritan Road office in Clark took place on June 1.

A. Charles Walano, president of the municipal council of Clark and member of the Clark advisory board of the Summit and Elizabeth Trust Company, broke the ground. Assisting him were C. William Braden, branch administrator; Donald Emblerly, branch manager of the Raritan Road office, and Raymond Best of the purchasing department.

The drive-in, designed by Kuhn, Drake and Hesserberger of Summit, will be completed by early fall.

The facility will utilize pneumatic tubes and will give drive-in customers an additional three windows for their transactions.

Mechanical and electrical consultants will be the Professional Engineering Consultants of Summit. Edwin M. Ragold Associates, Bloomfield, will be structural consultant and Sam S. Graham Inc., Hanover, will be general contractor.

Unlike other remote-control drive-in operations, the SETCO system maintains direct eye-to-eye contact between customer and teller, with no intervening closed-circuit television.

This system is intended to provide a faster service for SETCO customers, since one teller can serve two lanes simultaneously.

First-Quarter Sales Up 4 Per Cent at Merck's

Merck & Co., Inc., reported that 1971 first-quarter sales rose to $192,194,000, an increase of four per cent over sales of $184,512,000 for the first quarter of 1970.

Net income after taxes was $29,193,000, or 80 cents per share of common stock, rising four per cent over earnings of $28,014,000, or 77 cents per share, for the 1970 first quarter. Both sales and earnings set highs for any first quarter, according to Henry W. Gadsden, president of the health products firm.

A slowdown in federal, state, and local programs of vaccination against rubella (German measles), for which Merck provides a vaccine, affected first-quarter sales and earnings, Mr. Gadsden said. Another adverse factor was the negative reaction of many wholesalers to the company's elimination of wholesaler allowances on the price of prescription drugs, which was announced in mid-January.

Mr. Gadsden said that restoration of the allowances in April 5 led to a renewed harmony between the company and its wholesale druggist customers.

Start-up and other costs of introducing Merck's vaccine for controlling Marek's disease in chickens more than offset this product's contributions to income in the first quarter, Mr. Gadsden reported. He noted that Merck moved rapidly to introduce this vaccine,

"Deptavac-HVT" across the nation as soon as it was licensed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Merck was one of three companies licensed on March 1 to market vaccines against this economically-important disease of poultry.

Mr. Gadsden said he anticipates that both sales and earnings for the full year 1971 will show "quite a good rate of growth." He added that Merck expects to introduce two combination vaccines in the near future which will facilitate acceleration of public and private immunization programs. The first is a triple vaccine combining measles, mumps, and rubella vaccine; the other combines measles and rubella vaccines.

Referring to the slowdown in rubella vaccination programs and the continuing low level of measles vaccination programs, Mr. Gadsden said: "Failure to make full and timely use of tools of preventive medicine, such as existing vaccines against rubella and measles, is tragic and wasteful."

"It is tragic in human terms, because it means that some children may be born crippled by rubella contracted by their mothers during pregnancy and that some children may unnecessarily suffer serious illnesses and permanent aftereffects from measles. It is wasteful in economic terms because some victims of these diseases will require long-term medical care, simply for lack of thorough vaccination programs."

Here is a pointer on how to save money on out-of-state phone calls: Dial them yourself without the services of an operator.

No matter what other state you call (except faraway Alaska and Hawaii), it always costs less when you dial station calls yourself. Especially on weeknights and weekends when savings are big.

For example. During weekend bargain-calling times*, a 3-minute coast-to-coast station call costs $1.40 plus tax—if you use the services of an operator.

But the same call is reduced even more—way down to 70¢ plus tax—if you dial it yourself without the services of an operator.

So, dial your own station calls without an operator. And save.

Inflation: An Economic Pollutant and Loop-Hole

By Hannibal Cundari

What is inflation? To many, it is a mysterious inheritance which is hardly understood and seldom questioned by the vast majority. Since it cannot be seen, heard, touched or smelled, most people accept it as an unfortunate but necessary cross to bear, never attempting to discover just what it is, how it occurs and how to end it.

It is never seen for what it is, a man-made loop-hole for governmental dishonesty, an embezzlement of one's hard-earned assets, a cheap substitute for the real thing. Both inflation and its cure are the simplest of processes to perform. They require no experience, education, wisdom or divine guidance to bring about. The only requirement for both manufacturing and ending inflation is a "decision" to do so.

Yet, as simple as this is, even those who create inflation and attempt to cure it do not understand what the problem is, let alone the taxpayers whom inflation hurts most.

A simple explanation may help unravel the mysticism. As a monopolist in oil, let us assume that you must increase your inventory of engine oil. You have squandered your capital on wild ventures and do not have sufficient money to increase the oil supply through the normal channels of production, so you decide to add water to the existing oil supply. For a while, at least, you will have increased the quantity of oil on hand, assuming that oil and water mix.

Because of this addition, however, the total supply will have been cheapened or degraded by the dilution. The extent of degradation depends upon the amount of water added and when one buys a quart of oil he will be getting less oil for his money, which is the same as saying that the dilution has caused the price to increase.

The process of diluting the oil supply is properly termed "oil inflation." The supply of oil will remain cheapened and inflated so long as the water remains in the oil and for that period of time no one will really know the true value of the oil. Certainly, if you are to restore true value to the oil suitable for use in an engine, it is imperative that all the water be removed.

Now, let us say that the virgin oil represents the money supply and that our government has spent all of its share which it collected in taxes but, because of its addiction to spending on wild ventures and because it lacks the discipline to avoid irresponsible debt formation, it decides to increase the money supply. Such increase, however, would not be postponed until an equivalent production of goods or services could be ready for sale in the market place.

So, just like adding water to the oil, government "decides" to add "paper" to the money supply and in doing so it cheapens the value of buying power of the money in circulation. Such addition to the money supply is the process known as "inflation." It is important to remember that such paper-additions to the money stock remains an integrated part of the total for as long as it is not physically removed. It cannot be distinguished from the virgin paper dollar, thus it is accepted without the realization that those in whom you place your trust are deceitful men.

It is inevitable that an engine using "polluted" oil must falter and become troublesome. Similarly will the economy be troubled by the use of a diluted monetary bloodstream to nourish real growth. Symptoms of the distortion in the economy are recognized as rising prices, high rents, confiscatory taxes, higher interest rates, frequent demands for higher wages and repeating rounds of the same, but higher, doses.

Finally, a point is reached which threatens disaster. The administration, with its antennae tuned to the distortions in the economy, decides to rectify the disequilibrium by "slowing down" the rate of inflation. Government would have you believe that if they add only a little water to the oil rather than the usual large dose that your problems would be solved. Well, let us just see what happens if government, the only authority controlling the issuance of money, increases the money supply even by a tiny fraction of the amount it has been in the habit of adding.

The recent attempts by the administration to slow down the rate of inflation cannot produce favorable results by merely refraining from adding to the money supply. It can be seen that the diluted oil will not perform properly in an engine if you permit the water to remain in the oil. If government really means to end inflation, it must not only stop adding or diluting the money supply with "fictitious" paper dollars, it must at the same time remove all the dilution or "water" added previously.

When this happens, the economy must experience the pains of a serious operation which was much needed, much sooner.

Beauticians of Future Hold Contest in Clark

Displaying their artistic ability and creativity, 11 juniors from Mrs. Aida Vasta's beauty culture class held a contest, "A Glance Into the Future," on May 24 in the beauty salon of Arthur L. Johnson Regional High School, Clark. Working on mannequins, the girls concentrated on hair-styling, especially with the "new look curls."

Visitors, all former students of Mrs. Vasta and graduates of Johnson Regional, were judges. They were Mrs. Cheryl Bucksar, owner of the Marion Beauty Salon, Springfield; Mrs. Nina Naporans, owner of Nina's Salon of Beauty, Cranford; and Mrs. Florence Lataweic, employed as beautician in the Fashion Flair Salon, Rahway. Louis De Rosa, assistant principal, was the fourth judge. Robert E. Hough, principal, awarded trophies to the students.

First place was won by Miss Patricia Manes. Second place went to Miss Sherrie Lobosco and third place to Miss Valerie Huska. The first prize was a trophy donated by Fashion Flair Beauty Salon and a plaque. Other prizes were plaques.

Refreshments were served to students, faculty and judges after the contest.

The participating students are juniors in the vocational program of the high school and are completing the first part of their training. In addition to the prize winners, they are Karen Bailey, Joan Brennan, Patricia De Georges, Joanne Dolenic, Patricia Horky, Donna McArdle, Patricia Miller and Joanne Salvatore.

Beauty culture is one of the many offerings of the industrial and vocational education department of the school. Stanley Grossman is coordinator of the department and Mrs. Aida Vasta is the teacher.

Mrs. Vasta has been teaching beauty culture in the Clark school for 11 years, since the inception of the course. Before going to Johnson Regional, she worked in every capacity of beauty salon experience, as manager, operator, tinting specialist, and in make-up and cosmetics. She feels it is important for a teacher to know how every part of a beauty salon functions, as well as the needs of the salon. In this way, she said, a teacher can train future beauticians to be salon owners.

Some students have helped pay their way through college by working part time in beauty salons. Others have married and returned to their chosen profession part-time. A well-trained beautician never finds a shortage of positions, according to Mrs. Vasta.

Camp Fairweather Set For Opening on June 28

School will be over soon and after a few days of freedom during which boys and girls do everything they want to do, the serious side of accomplishment begins to suggest itself, according to B.U. Smith, secretary of the Rahway YMCA.

"For many, many years, the Y.M.C.A. has been the motivating force in thousands of communities for young people to not only have fun, but to learn something at the same time," Mr. Smith said. "Rahway is no exception."

On June 28, and continuing for 10 weeks to Sept. 3, Camp Fairweather will give boys and girls, aged 6 through 12, the opportunity so lacking in other ways for youth to "try its wings" and do things which are fun as well as worthwhile, the "Y" secretary said.

The Rahway "Y" puts a premium on swimming because it is the only organization with a year-round pool, with the trained personnel and the experience to make a boy or girl who "can't swim a stroke" into a proficient swimmer, Mr. Smith commented.

Park) are used, basically, every day.

Besides swimming, there are crafts, hikes, nature study projects, boating and canoeing, overnight camping once each week, educational trips, trips to the shore, trips to points of interest, and fun such as Franklin Institute in Philadelphia, New York City and Bear Mountain.

The season will progress by two-week periods with the basic aim to enable every boy and girl to have new experiences, make new friends, investigate and search those things which naturally arise in the hearts and minds of every youngster, according to Mr. Smith.

Last summer, 98 per cent of the things that the camp directors set out to accomplish were carried out, Mr. Smith reported.

The hot days have begun. In another week school will be out and forgotten for 10 or 11 weeks. What will the young boys and girls do? What help will parents give in advising the young people? Thoughtful parents will consider the "Y" and its wholesome, healthy, fun programs and get their youngsters into Camp Fairweather. Don't delay! Act today! Call the Rahway "Y" - 388-0057, or drop by in person. Get registered for the first period, beginning June 28.

Winner of Somerville Bike Race Entered in Fourth of July Event

Fred Spencer, director of the annual Holiday-at-Home 50-mile bicycle race scheduled for the Fourth of July in Rahway, reports that many outstanding riders have entered the field.

The riders include Ed Parrott, an unheralded 21-year-old bicycle mechanic who won the 28th annual Kugler-Anderson 50-Mile Memorial Day race in Somerville. Parrott won the race in one hour, 56 minutes 43 seconds, only 30 seconds off the national record.

Others entered in the senior race are Donald Hauser of the armed forces cycling team, Raheed Mohammed of New York, Pierre Charis of the Manhattan Cycling Association and Stan Swain of Carlyle, Mass., Dave Chauner and Allen Bell also are expected to enter.

Entrants in the junior race that will start at 10 a.m. include Jesus Portolatin of Jamaica, N.Y., Nelson Saldana of New York City.

The next meeting of the race committee will be held on Friday, June 18, at the home of the director.

Large Cities Once Led Public School Systems

(This is another in a series of articles to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the state's free public schools.)

Education is struggling in the big cities of today, but a century ago they had far the best school systems in the state. Newark -- with the worst problems today -- was then a national leader in public education.

The big cities today get proportionally more tax funds for schools than the wealthier suburbs. The reverse was true for Newark in 1871 -- the year that public education finally became free in New Jersey. A century ago, City Superintendent of Schools George B. Sears could complain:

"The city of Newark pays nearly $40,000 more into the State Treasury for school purposes than she receives back again, so that we are paying considerable money to school the country children."

In 1871, Newark was the largest city in the state and 13th largest in the nation. It had 27,868 children aged 5 to 19.

As today, New Jersey's second largest municipality was Jersey City, with 24,635 in its 5-18 census. Next came Paterson with 10,029, Camden with 6,880 and Trenton with 6,099.

The other communities listed in the 1871 State School Report as cities were Rahway, Bridgeton, Millville, New Brunswick, Orange, Perth Amboy, Phillipsburg, Plainfield, Salem and Elizabeth. The 1872 report added both Atlantic City and Lambertville to the list of city school districts.

Jersey City in 1871 had a current-expense school budget of $194,000 and school property valued at $700,000, including two new school houses costing $80,000 each. Many of its 176 teachers were graduates of the school system's Saturday Normal School.

From Paterson, City Superintendent William Swinburne made a prediction not upheld by history: "The standard of our schools is gradually rising, and our present board, by their liberal expenditure of money both for educational and building purposes, seem destined to give all needful school accommodations for the present and future wants of the city."

But the leading school system in New Jersey was Newark's, with 13,232 students and 26 school buildings, including three that had just opened in 1871. Of these 26 buildings, 13 are still in use a century later.

The team that won 37 medals, including 12 gold ones last week in district meet on the Scotch Plains High School field, will be led by a double winner, Terry Baskerville, who tied the 50-yard dash record in 6.7 seconds and won the running long jump. Arnetta Bryant was the winner of the running long jump with a leap of 13 feet, 8 3/4 inches. Mike Johnson won the 75-yard dash in 9.3 seconds.

Rahway won two relays. The boys' 10-11 team of Peter Weidling, Stuart Santiago, Richard Simmons and Gary Barnes set a new district mark of one minute and the girls in the 12-13 division, Adrienne Swedler, Gail Holland, Terry Baskerville and Cheryl Carey, tied the 55.4 second record of East Orange.

Feeding an Idea
When Walter Anderson, working at the amusement park snack bar in Wichita, Kan., as a short-order cook, pressed his spatula down on the meatball to flatten it one day in 1920, he created the all-American hamburger.

Shortly afterward Anderson and Billy Ingram scraped up $700 to open their own restaurant. The hamburger caught public favor as they expanded into many outlets named the White Castle.

Last year this chain served 206,753,209 hamburgers, and 45 million cups of coffee.

Governor's Budget Is Analyzed

The New Jersey Taxpayers Association announced publication for the fiscal year, 1972, of its award-winning annual analysis, "The Governor's Budget."

The printed six-page, independent report, complete with graphs, tabulations and supporting text, traces totals and trends reflected in the 507-page official budget message for state government. The $1.8 billion proposed spending program currently is under legislative review following its submission by Gov. Cahill last month.

Noting that the proposed budget for the state's fiscal year beginning next July 1 is $173 million higher than current year spending authorizations, the association said, "While the 1972 budget increase is less than in recent years, draw down of surplus to finance it threatens new or increased taxes in fiscal 1973 unless appropriations growth and income growth can be brought into balance. This seems doubtful in view of the state's recent budget expansion and spending commitments already made by law."

Commending the new program format of the official budget, the association said it provides "a more informative document for the public in general, a more useful tool for legislative review and a potential basis for improved expenditure controls."

Comparative data presented in NJTA's analysis include overall totals and trends, major tax sources, other income, and surplus as well as details of outgo for operations, debt cost, state aid and capital budget.

Pointing to a decline in capital financing from budget funds, the analysis cites a $1.7 billion five-year projection of state capital improvement needs included in the governor's budget for the first time. This "reflects the dimensions of the capital financing problem facing the state," NJTA said.

Town-and-Gown Battle

Long One: Mackensen

"It has never been 'safe' to send your child to college," said Dr. H. F. Mackensen of Teaneck, chairman of the New Jersey Conservation Union and dean of the Evening Division of Fairleigh Dickinson University at the May 6 meeting of The Republican Conservative Action Club of Union County at the Woman's Club of Westfield.

Dr. Mackensen traced the long history of conflict between "town and gown." He declared that by the time a student matriculates at a university "your child, and all of us, must be willing to stand up and defend the bastions of civilization which are under attack today."

Deplored the "poverty of intellect and spirit" presently found in much of the educational process, he insisted that both students and professors "must go back to the basics on which this country was founded."

Asserting that "this is one of the most critical times in the history of our nation, not excepting the Civil War," Dr. Mackensen urged parents to listen to what their children are saying, but also to insist that they, in turn, be exposed to the conservative viewpoint while at the university. So-called "relevant studies" he termed "nonsense" and called for renewed attention to time-tested subjects such as logic, history, mathematics, languages, sciences, philosophy and religion.

Additionally, he warned parents to "make sure your child is not being shaped to use the ends of Communists. If the Communists take control of the United States," he asked, "do you think we won't be sent to concentration camps?"

Dr. Mackensen said there are still dedicated scholars in the academic community, those searching for and passing on objectivity with open mind and free spirit. Hopefully, it may be possible some day to establish in New Jersey a conservatively-oriented university, the hallmark of which will be scholarly dedication, fixed standards, and emphasis on religion and the basic values.

"Lowered standards for everything" Dr. Mackensen finds tragic, including open college admissions, "social promotion" in secondary schools, and the ban on giving minority students at the university failing grades.

"A high school certificate and a college diploma have lost their value," he said, "and the doctorate is next." He suggested facetiously that the whole problem might be solved by awarded a doctorate to every baby at the time of its birth.

Officers re-elected at the meeting included K. C. Bauer, president, A. Donald Green, treasurer, and Mrs. John H. Wachter recording secretary, all of Westfield. Also, William S. Dean of Scotch Plains, first vice president, and Dr. N. Colman O'Leary of Plainfield, second vice president. Mrs. John R. Mandel of Westfield was elected corresponding secretary. She was in charge of the social hour which followed the meeting, and Mrs. George W. Mann of Westfield, outgoing corresponding secretary, presided at the tea table.

Clark Girl Scouts Aid Retarded and Blind

By Mary Ann Ruban

Junior Troop 102 held their annual family dinner at the American Legion Hall, with 107 in attendance. Mrs. Robert Gabel, leader, presented to Ray Grimes, Past Commander for Post 328, a certificate of appreciation for their donation of a tent on behalf of Area 11 Girl Scouts. A fashion show highlighted the evening. Joya Jules, Barbara Gabel, Janice Druding, Patricia Lynch and Linda Saley modeled clothes which they made for sewing badges. Donna Svirha and Nancy Bunor played the clarinets. A film was shown by Mrs. William Urcioli, assistant leader, of the troop on a camping trip.

Cadette Troop 73 recently visited the Woodbridge State School for the mentally retarded and physically handicapped. They presented a puppet show called "Haunted House." Ginger Smar, Lynn Klett, Carolyn Krumm, and Judi Muskus were puppeteers. Refreshments were served, and small finger puppets were distributed. The scouts sang and Carolyn Muskus, a senior scout, played the guitar. Mrs. Edward R. Simpson, Mrs. Virginia Muskus and Mrs. Charles Krumm accompanied the girls.

This month, 24 girl scouts of Troop 330, six adults and leaders, Mrs. Ruth DeLuca and Mrs. June Muzik, went camping at Roosevelt Park, Edison. The girls sang songs at the campfire, cooked a spaghetti dinner on open fires, went on a flashlight hike, and made peasant belts for a craft project.

Brownie Troop 590 has had a very busy month. Their first project was a joint Mother's and Father's Day gift made from candy pinned on a styrofoam ball attached to a vase. A trip to Vaccaro's Bakery in Colonia found the girls decorating cakes and forming rolls from dough. A tour of the Rahway Animal Hospital was very informative. Mrs. Sy Epstein is the leader.

What happens when a camping trip is cancelled because of rain? The juniors weekend trip to Camp Chickagami in New York State was rained out after the first night. Despite the weather, the girls managed to have a good time. And while we are on the subject, the Brownie Field Day to Merrill Park, Edison, was also called off because of bad weather. Mrs. Sy Epstein chairman of the event reports the Brownie troops will plan individual outings. She is scheduling a barbeque for her Troop 590.

May has been a busy month for the Brownies in Troop 410. A planter was made for Mother's Day gifts. The girls are looking forward to marching in the Memorial Day Parade. Keeping the Brownie B's in mind, the troop held a Be a Friend-Maker Party for the first graders who will be Brownies next year. All the girls helped in planning the party. Special committee members were: Name tags, Kim Lovejoy and Gina Soricello; invitations, Dawn Soricello and Barbara Jeranek; games, Sharon Giordano, Cathy Scanniello, Jennifer Pierro and Michele Bouquet; songs, Lisa Gresco, Sheryl Giordano, Susan DeVivo and Susan Hickley; hostesses, Kim Hayden, Barbara Truncate, Wendy Whitaker and Nancy Munkel. The May birthdays of Michele Bouquet and Kim Hayden were celebrated. Guests present were Mrs. Bernard Hayden, troop committee member and cookie chairman, and Mrs. James Duffy, a prospective Brownie leader. Mrs. Joyce Gresco is the leader.

Junior Troop 390 and Troop 320 have made 200 favors for a meeting of the Mount Carmel Guild for the Blind. These troops are sponsored by St. Agnes Roman Catholic Church. Leaders are Mrs. Pat Kostick and Mrs. Shirley Shest.

Cadettes bagged 600 tree seedlings for the Shade Tree Commission to be distributed to all fourth grade students in Clark schools. The Shade Tree Commission sponsored the event and served refreshments. Participating were Lynn Klett, Carolyn Krumm, Diane O'Shammy, Ginger Smar, Nina Susko, Eve Munkel, Judi Muskus, Lori Bunis and Junior Barbara Simpson. Leaders are Mrs. Virginia Muskus and Mrs. Edward R. Simpson.

Junior Troop 348 with their leaders Mrs. John Sheehan and Mrs. Donald Sims, went on an overnight camping trip to Knolltop at Roosevelt Park, Edison. All cooking was done outdoors with Buddy Burners made by the girls. There was also a campfire ceremony.

The B. U. Smiths of 216 Elm Ave., Rahway, returned last week from a 7,200-mile trip that took them through 21 states in the mid and northern United States. The Smiths have seen 49 of the 50 states in the past few years.

The trip, which began on May 1, had four primary purposes: 1. To visit their daughter and son, their spouses and the grandchildren in Garden City, Kan., and Walnut Creek, Calif., 2. to visit 11 states that they had never visited before; 3. To renew acquaintance with many friends they had not seen in several years; and 4. To visit Rotary Clubs in places where they stayed for several years.

In all of these avenues of adventure, the Smiths were successful, except one. A much desired trip to Alaska was thwarted by snow and lack of time. It was their intent to try to include a "fast trip" to Jeneau, Alaska, before they returned.

The month-long trip was not without several experiences that will make it long-to-be remembered. One of the incidents included being snowbound in California, near Lake Tahoe, on a mountain pass. Trips to Yosemite National Park and Mount Ranier, both in California, had to be ruled out because roads leading to them were snowbound.

One experience which brought much laughter occurred in Oregon where Mr. Smith halted at a rest stop as Mrs. Smith was sleeping. He visited the men's rest room, returned to the car and resumed the trip. Eighteen miles further on, he was so appreciative of a beautiful waterfall that he decided to wake Mrs. Smith so she could enjoy the scene and record it in the diary she was keeping. A quick view in the mirror revealed that there was no Mrs. Smith in the car.

In Garden City, the Smiths visited their daughter Jacquie, her husband and son, who is only three months old. The community of 15,000 persons boasts an outdoor swimming pool 220 by 330 feet, a large zoo, a new Y.M.C.A., a bison herd of 250 and a beautiful shopping center with all of the major shops carrying on brisk businesses.

Dodge City, of "Gun-smoke" fame, is only 50 miles from Garden City, and provided an interesting day for the Rahway residents as well as daughter, Jacquie, and grandson, Scotty.

An eight-day visit in Walnut Creek with son, Wayne, and his wife and two daughters was punctuated by visits to Chinatown, the Fisherman's Wharf and cable car rides in San Francisco, visits to Oakland and attendance at three Rotary Club meetings in the area.

Friends were visited in Medford, Ore., Longview, Wash., Madison, Wis., Detroit, Mich., Shaker Heights, Ohio; Lewistown, Pa., and Lake Hiawatha in New Jersey where a family reunion was held.

"B.U." and his wife were interested in birds, small animals, flowers and shrubbery as well as the scenic views throughout their trip, and the change from one kind of scenic splendor as the passes from state to state.

One difficult situation ended happily at the end of a two-mile stretch of mud one and a half feet deep in Lemmon, S.D., where the highway suddenly, without warning, became a mire. Although several other cars and trucks were temporarily halted, "Old Bessie," the Volkswagen bus of the Smiths, pulled through.

States visited after leaving New Jersey were Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Merck President Says Firm Considers Pollution, Rights Of Consumers, Minorities

Corporate performance, while still judged primarily on earnings, is also being measured in a new and different way today, according to Henry W. Gadsden, president of Merck & Co. Inc.

Addressing stockholders at the company's annual meeting in Rahway on April 27, Mr. Gadsden said that problems dealing with such issues as pollution, minority relations and consumer rights are taking their place alongside business and operational problems on the priority agendas of corporate management.

"Beyond the necessity of operating successfully, today a longer yardstick is being used to measure business achievement," he told the stockholders. How well a company meets its social responsibility has become, in effect, a new basis for measuring management performance. I for one believe this is proper and I am perfectly willing to have Merck and Merck's management so assessed."

Mr. Gadsden said the three most frequently mentioned social goals are protecting the physical environment, meeting the problems of minorities and advancing the rights of consumers.

Explaining his company's position on pollution problems, Mr. Gadsden stated: "While the cost of pollution control is high, it is a cost that must be paid. We support the new higher standards now being established. If the standards are evenly enforced, the cost of pollution abatement will be a fair burden on all, not just on the volunteers."

"As a producer of environmental control systems and engineering services, Merck -- through its subsidiaries, Calgon Corporation and Baltimore Aircoil Company -- is helping to find solutions to environmental health problems. So perhaps it is understandable that we would want to be a pacesetter in pollution control. Certainly we think that in the long run good environmental practices are good business practices."

On the minority relations portion of Mr. Gadsden's "social responsibility yardstick" for corporate management, the chief executive reported that Merck has gone beyond non-discrimination to tangible progress, such as the establishment of training and education programs aimed at enabling men and women who wouldn't ordinarily qualify for employment or advancement to get good jobs with a good future.

"At the heart of consumerism," he went on, "is the thesis that the public should be protected from avoidable risk. This thesis is also descriptive of our efforts in preventive medicine, a directly related field in which Merck has made major contributions."

"Merck will continue to pursue its intensive scientific research and production effort in preventive medicine. We will continue in the future, as we have in the past, to maintain our leadership in vaccine development."

"We believe such leadership in preventive medicine expresses Merck's concern for the consumer better than any statement could. When we so serve the public interest, we also serve our own interest."

Also reporting to the Merck stockholders were Dr. Antonie Knoppers and Raymond E. Snyder, both senior vice presidents of the health products firm.

Dr. Knoppers, commenting on the recent slowdown in the rate of new product introductions by American pharmaceutical concerns, pointed out that today as compared with earlier years candidate drugs are more complex and thus require more expensive, time-consuming and difficult testing procedures.

While he stated that regulatory agencies cannot be held accountable for this aspect of the lengthened time factors involved, Dr. Knoppers called for mechanisms to permit government agencies to draw upon experienced and responsible outside experts for guidance when important new products or classes of products are under consideration. "It would be a long step in the right direction if at the same time ways could be found to strengthen the meaningful involvement in the review process both by physicians and scientists from industry -- who will have lived with the product during its years in the laboratory and in clinical investigation -- and by physicians who are engaged primarily in the practice of medicine," Dr. Knoppers said.

Mr. Snyder reported that capital expenditures for new and improved facilities over the last three years was approximately $150 million. Capital expenditures for 1970 alone were almost $68 million, and spending at about the same level is anticipated for 1971," he said.
