'This can't be real'

Families in Union County battle heroin addiction, and one Cranford mom asks 'why my little girl?'

By Cheryl Hehl
Staff Writer

There was a time when Lynn, 44, of Cranford, lived a normal life in this sleepy river town of 23,000, but not anymore.

That was a lifetime ago for this mother whose face betrays the living hell of knowing that tonight, tomorrow or next week, she could get a call informing her that her little girl, the one with the promising future and azure blue eyes, was found dead of a heroin overdose.

Earlier in the summer when LocalSource first spoke with this petite woman whose hair was casually pulled back in a ponytail, lines of worry edged her pale, pretty face. Voice flat and devoid of any emotion, she told the story of her 25-year-old daughter's descent into the dark, destructive world of heroin addiction.

LocalSource changed the names of those involved to protect their privacy.

Tears brimming from her tired blue eyes, Lynn clutches an 8x10 high school graduation picture of her blonde daughter with the brilliant smile and eyes that mirror her own asking: "Why? Why my little girl? I don't understand where we went wrong," she says, her voice falling off to a whisper.

"Look at her. Look at how happy she was, because you know, she was a happy child and teenager," she said, adding that Amy was into sports and very popular.

Her voice trails off at this point, because, as experts have told her time and again, there are no easy answers for why someone so young, and with so much promise, would sink into the hell she now exists in everyday.

Lynn tries to explain in a halting, thick voice about the night four years ago when she discovered her daughter was an addict.

> 'I remember seeing that needle sticking out of her arm, the trickle of blood running down to her wrist and the only thing I remember is thinking this can't be real.'

"It was raining and I went up to her room to make sure her window was closed. She always left the window in her bedroom open, you know," she said with a motherly half smile that quickly faded as she went on to describe opening the door and seeing her daughter sitting on the bed and a look of surprise on her face.

"I remember seeing that needle sticking out of her arm, the trickle of blood running down to her wrist and the only thing I remember is thinking this can't be real," the mother said, adding, "I kept thinking I would wake up because something like this couldn't happen here, in this house, to our little girl in this town where our kids are supposed to be safe."

Amy had just completed her second year of college in another state at a very well respected school and was home on summer break. Until that night, she admitted, when she opened the door to her daughter's room and saw the needle in her vein, Lynn thought everything was fine.

After all, they had the beautiful Victorian house on the right

Mayors head to D.C. in flood study funding fight

By Cheryl Hehl
Staff Writer

Now that the Army Corps of Engineers is aboard with the need for flood control efforts along the Rahway River, the mayor's council on flood control is asking the federal government to fund the next study and more.

On Sept. 10 mayors representing 9 towns will converge on Washington D.C. with the hope that when they stand before the US Congress, Senate and Army Corps of Engineers, they will be able to convince them that final funding of the full Army Corps flood evaluation is critical to the area.

The mayors taking on this task will be armed with a petition that, hopefully, will have enough names on it to give Washington power players considerable pause.

The fact regional flooding from Tropical Storm Irene alone caused $100 million in damages to communities along the Rahway River in 2011 was enough for the mayors of these communities to continue the fight for flood relief.

However, while they have labored long and hard since then to bring flood control to residents living in these communities,

Free backpacks in Union raise questions for some

By Cheryl Hehl
Staff Writer

UNION – Last week, parents of first- through third-graders had the opportunity to obtain free backpacks and school supplies for their children. And although parents were very grateful for this help with school supplies, not everyone was happy that the provider had an education platform.

Earlier this summer a flier appeared on the Union School District website notifying parents of first, second and third grade students that the free backpacks and school supplies would be available for pickup Aug. 20 if they filled out a registration form.

The program, sponsored by Better Education for Kids, Inc., based in Cranford, has a website that is quite open about their organization and the fact they are "an independent voice for common sense education reform in New Jersey."

The website also explained that B4Kids, the abbreviation the organization uses, strongly believes the first priority of the New Jersey school system "must be the best interests of students, not the special interests that dominate the status quo."

"To this end, every class must have an effective teacher and every school an effective principal," their website stressed.

There is also information about the annual "Backpack Drive" this organization has put on for the last four years, including towns selected to receive this bounty for the 2014-15 school years.

Union received 1,575 of the 15,500 backpacks the organization handed out this summer, while the school districts of Passaic, Paterson and Willingboro received the remainder.

Union school district parents who opted to participate simply had to fill out the form provided by the school district on their website and email it back. The fact this form pointed out the backpack program was sponsored by B4Kids did not appear to faze those participating.

However, within a week the issue of who this sponsor represented would surface at the Aug. 21 board of education meeting and become a point of contention.

Susan Lipstein, President of the Township of Union Education Foundation, took exception to the school district not disclosing this information on their website.

"I believe it was wrong of our board of education to approve the donation of backpacks that allowed an organi-

Councilwoman working toward more after-school programs

It will take some help from the community, she says, but she hopes to have the job done as soon as possible

By Cheryl Hehl
Staff Writer

LINDEN – Starting an after-school program is never an easy feat, but Councilwoman Rhashonna Cosby-Hurling is determined to see it through with the help of parents, community leaders and local non-profits.

As the summer comes to a close, the concern for many parents now shifts back to "what will my youngsters do after school?"

Cosby-Hurling has been working to find an economical and safe way to handle this problem, but she needs help.

It was several years ago when the 5th Ward councilwoman realized there was a real need in the city for an after-school program, but like all projects, it takes a community to make a vision come to fruition.

"I believe the right after-school programs keep kids safe, improve academic performance, promote student well being and helps communities," said the councilwoman, who also is a mother of school-aged children. "Input is critical so we can address the real needs of our community and that starts with finding out what parents need."

While there are after-school programs available in Linden, there just are not enough, she says, and the cost is often too much for income strapped families to handle.

This concerned this councilwoman, who as a mother, understands that when you work, there is a real need for a safe place for school-aged children to go.

"It isn't easy," Cosby-Hurling said, explaining that just knowing there is a need for this type of service keeps her inspired and moving forward.

However, she says, there are miles to go.

Last year Cosby Hurling held a focus group where members of the private, business and non-profit community came together.

"There was a lot of support for a more structured after-school program," she said in an interview with LocalSource Tuesday, adding this was a great incentive for moving forward.

"This year we made small strides by enhancing our game room at the Linden Multi-Purpose center," she explained, noting that as chairperson of Public Property and Recreation, she is committed to seeing the city maximize use of the many recreational facilities in Linden that currently are going unused.

In order to fund additional after-school programs, Cosby-hurling explained that she is looking into grants and the help of non-profit groups to facilitate this goal.

"It can be done and we are going to do it, hopefully by the end of the year," she said.

The next step, and an important one, is getting parents who need this service to fill out a survey so Cosby-Hurling can determine exactly what the real need is in the city for this program.

"So far 65 people have responded to the survey and primarily they want a safe place for their children after school, while many also want their children to tackle their homework," said Cosby-Hurling, explaining that it is important that others in the community also fill out this survey.

"This survey is for parents, educators and any adult in the community with an interest in participating," she said.

Although there is no deadline to fill out the survey, the councilwoman is asking that anyone interested do so as soon as possible.

"I'm hoping to review this data within 90 days or so, if possible, so the city can create a program and initiate it by Jan. 1," said Cosby-Hurling.

The survey, which can be accessed either by emailing Cosby at rcosbyhurling@linden-nj.org so a copy can be sent to them, or by going online to www.surveymonkey.com/r/GZW9MKX.

Mayors Council takes on D.C. for flood study funding the war is not over and may not be for some time to come.

In an effort to help plead their case, the mayor's council brought aboard a lobbying firm called Winning Strategies Washington to assist them in getting $1 million in funding or more.

Each of the municipalities involved, including Cranford, Rahway, Springfield, Union, Winfield, Kenilworth, Garwood, Maplewood and Millburn, pitched in to pay for the lobbying firm, who has been finding ways to move things along so the study can be completed.

Earlier this year property owners living in flood prone areas heard the first good news in decades: the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers had come up with multiple alternatives to reduce the severity of the devastating impact of flooding.

While one of the alternatives, a dam in the South Mountain Reservation, was strongly objected to by residents living in that area and eventually dropped as an option, funding of any option the Army Corps decides on is still a major hurdle.

In fact, the Army Corps made it clear in the spring that narrowing the alternatives they came up with will be based on the comparisons and costs of each project along with the benefits.

"The study must undergo further analysis before a tentative plan can be chosen," the Army corps said, noting that alternatives selected for further analysis had not been approved for funding.

"Completion of the study is also dependent on future federal funding," one Army corps representative said at a forum in the spring.

Implementing any one of the options presented by the Army Corps could result in the Rahway River dropping 2.6-feet in Millburn and 3.5-feet in Cranford during peak storm conditions, according to former Cranford Mayor Dan Aschenbach, founder of the mayor's council.

To avoid controversy, on April 24 the mayor's council voted unanimously to take the dam option off the table and request the Army Corps to do the same and focus on the Orange Reservoir medication option.

The Orange Reservoir option actually would modify the reservoir and elevate existing structures in Cranford to better withstand flooding. The mayor's council determined the benefit-cost ratio of this particular alternative developed by the Army Corps was significant enough to warrant being a priority project. The Army Corps agreed and removed the dam option from their list of alternatives.

Finding the money for this, or any flood project alternative, is of concern to the mayor's council.

That is why the mayor's council went into high gear and is urging residents, regardless if they are in a flood area or not, to go online to sign the petition.

"Cranford can not afford the next phases of needed flood mitigation," said Aschenbach, adding the benefit-cost ratio will be a key factor in whether congress funds the Army Corps 2014 study.

Since Irene, the mayor's council has worked with the Army Corps and the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection to come up with these flood mitigation alternatives, but the lack of adequate funding is still a major stumbling block. In June the mayor's council urged Gov. Chris Christie, the U.S. Army Corps' head and the NJDEP commissioner to support their effort.

"We urge getting to the next step. We urge you to demand that the federal government fully fund the completion of this work in the coming year," said the letter to the governor, adding that if this was not possible, that the state fully fund the completion of the study and request 50 percent reimbursement from the federal government.

Residents in all towns affected by flooding can sign the petition by going to the Cranford website at www.cranford.com/township, where there is a link to the petition.

Local residents to participate in Theater Project staged reading

The Theater Project presents productions and readings on a wide range topics, tackling subjects from marriage and income inequality to war and peace. It frequently previews scripts under consideration for its main stage productions in a series of script-in-hand performances and discussions called "Opening Nights in the Afternoons," at the Maplewood Memorial Library, 51 Baker St. The next event, "Gidion's Knot," featuring performer Angela Della Ventura, of Mountainside, and director Gary Glor, of Union, is at 2 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 6. Admission is free.

This fall, the company offers a lighthearted salute to education, a series of three plays in three weeks, "The Theater Project goes Back to School." The first show, "Rush Limbaugh in Night School," Oct. 2 to 5, is a fantasia about a famous talk show host's foray into liberal land, and "Mrs. Mannerly," Oct. 9 to 12, is playwright Jeffrey Hatcher's semi-autobiographical retelling of the etiquette classes he endured as a boy in Ohio. "PS 69 — A Teacher Grows in Brooklyn," Oct. 16 to 19, brings performance artist Susan Jeremy to New Jersey for the first time.

UNLIMITED POSSIBILITIES — Army Sgt. 1st Class Morrease Leftwich, second from the right, was the keynote speaker at the 2014 Youth Annual Youth Conference of Community Access Unlimited, or CAU. 'We don't even know if she is alive or dead' street, in the right neighborhood in the right suburban town with great schools. Her husband commuted to the city by train every day to a well-paid job on Wall Street and she had been lucky to stay home since their three children were born.

It was, she said, "a good life. A happy life."

"I often wonder if I hadn't gone up there, maybe I would never have known and we wouldn't be living this nightmare," Lynn said softly.

At first Amy denied she was an addict and stormed out of the house. She was gone for several days, only to return to hastily pack a bag and say she was leaving to spend time with friends in the city.

Although Lynn begged and pleaded with her daughter not to go, her cries fell on deaf ears. After that, nothing was the same in that lovely home on that sleepy suburban street.

Lynn and her husband went into the city three or four times a week, driving aimlessly around, hoping and praying they would catch a glimpse of their daughter on the street, but they never did.

Eventually Amy came home but Lynn admitted it was a shock to see how much her daughter changed in a year.

"Her beautiful long hair was chopped off and unkempt, her skin this awful grayish color with oozing sores that she picked at constantly until they bled, " said Lynn, pointing out that she knew Amy only came home to ask for money.

"I remember screaming at her. I had never screamed at her before, but I wanted to try and get through to her. I tried to take her in my arms but she shoved me away and I fell on the floor," Lynn said, explaining what her daughter's last words were to her that day.

"She grabbed money from my wallet, looked at me and said,'Mommy, I love you, I'm sorry,'" the Cranford mother said.

Lynn believes her daughter's heroin addiction began after she was injured playing soccer and was prescribed OxyContin for pain relief.

This mother, like countless others, had no idea this drug was considered a "gateway" to heroin. Before doctors started tightening up on prescribing this drug to an excess, though, OxyContin was the drug of choice. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, in 2010 alone there was enough OxyContin prescribed to medicate every person in New Jersey for a month.

OxyContin has been the nation's most prescribed pain reliever for years, bringing in nearly $3 billion in sales annually.

When physicians began to tighten up on prescribing this painkiller, those already addicted turned to another opiate, heroin, which was cheaper and more readily available on the street.

Heroin actually mimics the action of natural chemicals, known as endorphins, which are produced by the body in response to pain. This activation produces a euphoric rush, a warm feeling of relaxation, a sense of security and protection and dissipation of pain, fear, hunger, tension and anxiety.

When heroin is snorted or smoked, the rush is intense. Any sense of anger, frustration or aggression disappears. Users enjoy a feeling of "being wrapped in God's warmest blanket," according to Drug Policy Alliance, a national company promoting drug policies.

Heroin was first developed from morphine in 1874 and was marketed as a cough suppressant and non-addictive morphine substitute, until it was discovered that it rapidly metabolized into morphine.

Heroin is manufactured from opium poppies, which are mostly cultivated in South America, Asia and Mexico. Although Afghanistan produces the majority of the world's heroin, South American heroin has become the most prevalent here in the United States.

Known on the street as Big H, Black Tar, Chiva, Hell Dust, Horse, Negra, Smack and Thunder, heroin is typically sold as a white or brownish powder but it is rarely pure. Most street heroin is usually "cut" with other drugs or substances such as sugar, starch, powdered milk or quinine.

With regular heroin use, a tolerance develops and the abuser must continue to use more heroin to achieve the same level of intensity.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, it is extremely easy to not only become addicted to heroin, but also physically dependent on it as well.

Physical dependence occurs when your body adapts to the drug's presence, causing intense physical withdrawal symptoms such as muscle and bone pain, diarrhea and vomiting, cold sweats and extreme discomfort.

Long term effects of heroin, which actually begin in an extremely short amount of time, destroy the body. Common conditions that plague heroin users include infection of the heart lining and valves, liver and lung disease, hepatitis and HIV and Aids.

Meanwhile, like thousands of others, Amy's descent into drug addiction continued to spiral out of control over the next few years.

There were court appearances for possession and professionals who tried to reach out, but while she always promised the judge and her parents she would enter a rehabilitation facility to "get clean," Amy always backed out or ran back to the city and the heroin that she seemingly was unable to live without.

In August, when Lynn called LocalSource to explain that Amy was home again, it was the first time her voice was not flat.

"Amy came to us and said she is ready to get help for her addiction. Isn't that great news," she asked, adding that this was the first time her daughter ever made such a move on her own.

"I think she is going to make it this time and get better," the mother said, mentioning that her daughter asked that LocalSource come to the house before she left.

On the day LocalSource visited, Amy sat curled up on the couch in sweats even though it was a sunny 85-degree day. Dozing on and off, she eventually laid her head on her mother's shoulder, which made her appear even more childlike and vulnerable.

Lynn's eyes darted back and forth to her daughter, as if watching to see if she would disappear or bolt from the room. Her father paced back and forth in the foyer near a designer travel bag on wheels, periodically checking his cell phone for messages.

Amy appeared sick. Her face was a pale grayish yellow color, her skin covered with both dried and fresh sores. Her blond hair, no longer tumbling in curls down her back, was thin, short and lank, while she appeared to be underweight and malnourished.

When Amy's cell phone rang, Lynn visibly stiffened. Both mother and father shot each other worried, nervous glances, while Amy walked into the kitchen to take the call.

A few minutes later Amy returned and seemed to be more awake and cheerful. She began to talk about "getting better" and going back to school. The change was startling.

"I'm not sure I can do this," she said softly to no one in particular, adding that she was afraid of detox. Her mother, voice strong and loving, assured her she could, encouraged her to go one day at a time.

In the foyer, her father wiped away tears with a sparkling white monogrammed handkerchief and just shook his head.

A few days later Lynn called and said Amy never made it to the rehab facility. She disappeared into the crowd at the airport right before their flight was called and they have not heard from their daughter since. Lynn choked back tears, admitting she did not know how much more her family could take.

"What can we do?" she asked, but added "she is our little girl and we can't help her. We don't even know if she is alive or dead."

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, treating addiction is an imperfect science. What may work for some, fails for others. The stigma of heroin addiction also has made families hide the problem, but unless the public replaces fear with empathy, addiction will remain a problem in the United States.

More importantly, addiction does not discriminate. It can and does end the lives of everyone from suburban teens to Hollywood actors.

Master gardeners Karen Mulvihill,of Springfield, Bridget Mracek and Terri Moore, both of Mountainside, take time out to pose for a photo in the MGs' community sharing garden on Saturday, August 16, as they welcome Community Access Unlimited for a morning of horticultural fun and edification.

Master Gardeners host Community Access Unlimited

Pride of accomplishment through horticultural therapy was first and foremost the goal on Saturday, Aug. 16, when the master gardeners of Union County hosted members and staff from Community Access Unlimited, whose headquarters are in Elizabeth. The MGs engaged their CAU guests in five horticultural activities in their demonstration gardens, located at Trailside Nature and Science Center in the Watchung Reservation, Mountainside. The event included an insect display and discussion, a seed and vegetable presentation, a "nature's paints" art project, an herb-garden "pizza pin" project and potting a flower. Nine MG volunteers served as guides and teachers. MG coordinator and Union County agricultural agent Madeline F. DiNardo was also on hand to meet and greet the guests, and MG Laurie Westra,of Cranford, coordinated the event.

CAU participants took home the "nature's paints" art work and the "pizza pin" they created, along with their potted celosia flowers. Each was also given a bag of vegetables picked from the master gardeners' community sharing garden. The MGs donate all produce grown in their sharing garden and their berry patch and herb gardens to local food pantries and soup kitchens. Since 2002, they have donated 22,721 lbs of hardy vegetables, fruit and herbs to help feed the hungry in Union County.

Summit Public Library exhibits sculpture

The Summit Free Public Library, in partnership with the Summit Public Art Committee, announces the installation of a sculpture by Tadashi Hashimoto entitled "Maia," on the library lawn.

Hashimoto is a sculptor who builds with multiple rectangular forms using materials like steel, wood, and engineered stone. His sculpting process is focused on the positioning of these familiar forms to articulate the immaterial qualities of gravity, motion, space and light.

Hashimoto said, "Leaving the earth's gravitational field in the 20th century continues to affect the consciousness of the collective mind. My sculpture is about the yearning for externalizing and realizing a greater cosmic relation to space and matter."

The newly restored "Maia" is "an aesthetic progression in which the timber blocks are further evolved to interact with sunlight by augmenting the reflective quality of surfaces with materials such as galvanized steel plate, copper plate and areas of paint."

The Library is located at 75 Maple St., Summit. For more information, call 908-273-0350 or visit the website and catalogue at www.summitlibrary.org.

Summit-based law firm to present at event about innovation and intellectual property

At the annual "Edison and Innovation" event, scheduled for Oct. 22 to 24 at the Pleasantdale Chateau in West Orange, intellectual property attorney David Postolski, of Summit-based Gearhart Law will make two, one-hour presentations discussing patent, trademark and copyright protections, such as those utilized by Thomas Alva Edison to protect several of his own inventions, including the light bulb, phonograph and kinetoscope. On the event's final day, Postolski will also help event participants refine and protect a hypothetical invention during a hands-on group workshop.

The event's purpose is to help organizational leaders understand how to lead innovation. Free backpacks raise a few question for some zation that advocates changes that even the New Jersey Education Association says will weaken public schools, come into our schools," Lipstein said in a prepared statement to LocalSource, explaining B4Kids "was allowed" to hand out business cards and get mailing list information in a public school building.

"I've done some research and found that in other towns, backpacks were not distributed in public school buildings but rather in other areas of towns. In my opinion, having parents provide personal information without explaining to the parents that information about their children would be given to a third party is dangerous," the education foundation president added.

According to Lipstein, B4Kids is a foundation with ties to Republican Gov. Chris Christie which was "established by hedge fund donors who do not have to be identified but do have a political agenda that involves schools and education."

Because hedge funds are not sold to the general public or retail investors, the funds and their managers have historically been exempt from some of the regulation that governs other funds and investment managers with regard to how a fund may be structured and how strategies and techniques are employed. However, Lipstein did not provide any information to prove B4Kids funds come from hedge fund donors and LocalSource was unable to find anything supporting her claim

Lipstein brought up her concerns to Board of Education President Ray Perkins at the last board meeting, explaining she took exception to backpacks being distributed in a public venue paid for by taxpayer dollars. She also had a problem with Perkins attending the Aug. 20 event to hand out backpacks. Perkins is running for another term on the board.

"I told Mr. Perkins I had a real problem with these backpacks being distributed in a public school and that I did not believe anyone running for office should be distributing them," Lipstein said, mentioning that the school board president did not respond to her concern.

After the school board meeting, Lipstein posed her concern to James Frazier, an officer in the Union Township Education Association, which is the teachers' union.

"I asked him if he thought there was a problem with the distribution of these backpacks and he said 'no comment,'" said Lipstein, who explained she was referring to the school district accepting the backpacks and school supplies from an organization that appears to be using the distribution as a way to gather information from parents without them knowing about it.

File Photo

Some parents in Union raised concerns at a recent board of education meeting about exactly who was giving out free backpacks to Union residents.

"At the very least I think the board should have informed parents that their private information was going to be given to this organization," she added.

On Monday, LocalSource spoke with B4Kids Outreach Coordinator Gerard Green, who explained that the mission of this organization is to provide backpacks and school supplies to children. The program is set up earlier in the year and certain school districts are selected for contact.

"We contacted the Union School District and spoke with Assistant Superintendent Noreen Lishack," Green explained, noting that it was her determination that first through third grade school children would benefit the most from the program.

Green also explained that the purpose for the registration form was to ensure that those signing up indeed had children in the Union School District.

"The form is not long and while it did ask for an email, that was not required to receive a backpack," he said, adding that actually new forms have omitted this particular line.

When asked if the information provided on the registration form would be given to any other sources, such as political groups, Green emphatically denied the allegation.

"Absolutely not," he said, pointing out that B4Kids would not even be contacting parents who did provide their email information.

"In fact, the day we gave out the backpacks in Union I was there to hand out my card and direct parents to our website but there was no discussion about our organization," the B4Kids outreach coordinator said.

"Parents were very grateful to receive the backpacks and school supplies," he added, mentioning that there were "smiles all around."

Green also said there was a great showing of 40 to 50 school youth, track and soccer teams, who volunteered to help that day.

Although LocalSource attempted multiple times to reach out to Perkins, Lishack and Interim Superintendent Gregory Tatum, no calls regarding the backpack issue were returned.

FIRE DANGER!

The danger of suffering serious skin burns does not begin and end with seasonal fireworks. Family camping with open campfires and/or barbeque cooking can also pose a real danger any time of the year. Children are usually thrilled at the sight of an open campfire, and rightly so, because it gives them the chance to roast hot dogs and marshmallows on sticks and long forks. At the same time, adults should be particularly careful to supervise these activities. Trips and falls around campfire sites are common causes of burns among children. With this in mind, it is a good idea to establish a safety circle of at least 10 feet around campfires with some type of barrier.

Burns are classified as first, second, and third degree. The most damaging is a third degree burn which causes scarring and sometimes physical disfigurement. A board-certified dermatologist can treat burns as well as a wide-spectrum of issues involving hair, skin, or nails. Call 908-925-8877 to schedule an appointment at our office located at 515 North Wood Ave., Linden. Our comprehensive laser, cosmetic, and surgical practice provides high quality dermatological care for men, women, and children. New and established patients are always welcome.

P.S. In the event of a burn injury, immediately "stop, drop, and roll" and call 911. Until help arrives, remove any clothing that may be on fire and place a dry bandage on the burn to prevent heat loss and help control pain.

Volunteers needed for tree steward program

One tree can absorb as much as 48 lbs of carbon dioxide per year. Trees also trap dust particles and other pollutants, and they help keep our neighborhoods cool in the summer. These are just some of the many environmental benefits of planting and caring for trees in the community.

For residents interested in learning more about trees, who enjoy teaching children, the Union County Master Tree Stewards program is seeking volunteers now.

"Trees make significant contributions to the quality of life in our community," said Freeholder Chairman Christopher Hudak. "Each year, through the Master Tree Steward volunteer program, Union County residents teach hundreds of school children about trees and their benefits to our neighborhoods and environment."

The Master Tree Steward program is a free educational program that trains adult volunteers to teach children about trees. Tree stewards learn how trees grow and reproduce, how to plant trees, why trees are important to our environment, as well as fun ways to share this knowledge with children. Homework consists of light reading and a simple project. There are no exams or quizzes. After completing the training program, graduates are provided with a teaching kit and supplies and are scheduled to teach several one-hour programs for grade-school students during the winter and spring.

Volunteers make repairs at Kenilworth EMT building

The Kenilworth Rescue Squad announced that the volunteer service of a team of New York Life representatives from the Parsippany office resulted in a $6,000 Volunteers for Good grant to the organization, allowing them to repair the Kenilworth EMT building. A team of 50 volunteers, consisting of 11 New York Life Volunteers for Good, 19 Kenilworth Firefighters and EMTs and 20 Kenilworth family and friends supported the two-day "makeover" event, as well as local businesses, which resulted in a major facelift to the aging EMT building.

"Our team is proud to be actively involved with the Kenilworth Rescue Squad," said Kate Matier, Kenilworth EMT as well as New York Life volunteer. "We are committed to making a difference in the community by contributing our time and talents to local organizations through the Volunteers for Good program."

Kenilworth volunteers prepare to give the Kenilworth Rescue Squad building a 'makeover.'

Located at the corner of Cross Street and 17th Street, the brick EMT Squad building serves Kenilworth's 7,800 residents, responding to almost 1,000 emergency calls annually. The all-volunteer department is comprised of 45 active members with 8 dedicated EMTs and 15 firefighters who do double-duty as EMTs.

Jessica Delgado-Days, lieutenant of the Kenilworth Rescue Squad, Matier and John Mauro organized the "makeover." They began by conducting several meetings to identify the feasible scope of the work. After determining the various projects, which included new ceiling tiles, fixture lamps, carpet, furniture and paint, tasks were divided among the members and all went to work.

As a charity endeavor, the team enlisted the support of local merchants who would be willing to assist. Firefighter John Mauro and volunteer Bill Matier wrote up the general construction materials list and headed to Home Depot of Union on Rt. 22. There, more than $700 worth of ceiling tiles, fixture lamps and lenses, paint, brushes, rollers, and various other sundries were purchased at a 10 percent discount. Two convertible couches were provided by Furniture ConnXion of Kenilworth at a significant discount. These units give the rescue squad volunteers a place to sleep during their overnight shifts. Hannon Floor Covering Center provided new carpeting. All new window blinds were donated by Stan Wnek of Suncoast Window Treatments in Springfield.

Once all the materials were on hand, it was time for the renovation to begin. On Saturday, May 3, more than 50 volunteers mobilized to the building. During the next 12 hours, the building began its transformation. It was close to chaos as the volunteers tore down ceilings, ripped up carpets, scraped paint, removed doors and cleaned out closets. By midday the demo work was complete and the work of cleaning, painting, repairing and replacing began. "It was an amazing group effort," said Kate Matier. "People would be given a task and would be back asking for more work faster than we could set up the next thing to do."

All these volunteers require feeding and again it was local businesses to the "rescue."

Lunch was provided by Big Apple Pizza at a 50 percent discount. Dinner offered was burgers and hot dogs off the grill, courtesy of an unknown benefactor.

At day's end, the transformation was already beginning to take shape. All the walls were painted, new ceiling tiles were in, the fixtures were re-lamped and new lenses were installed. A crew of workers cleaned the bathrooms top to bottom and applied a fresh coat of paint throughout. Others planted flowers in pots outside the main entrance and bay doors. Still more worked in the office painting, scraping, washing and wiping.

A mural depicting the EMT "Star of Life" was beginning to take shape on one wall of the meeting room by artist and EMT Julia Adubato. The younger volunteers scraped and cleaned every window in the building, raked the property, pulled up overgrown bushes, washed and waxed the ambulance, inside and out, and swept and washed the bays.

Day two, the volunteers were back, this time a smaller crew comprised mostly of Kenilworth Fire and Rescue volunteers, who completed the work. The trim was painted, doors put back on, hardware installed and a final cleanup conducted before the sun set. During the next two days the carpet was installed and furniture brought in, capping off the project and leaving the squad with a place to be proud of.

"The team of volunteers from New York Life's Parsippany office has been instrumental in assisting our organization," said Delgado-Days. "We are grateful to New York Life for supporting our mission." The Volunteers for Good program recognizes and encourages the group efforts of New York Life's employees, retirees and agents. Qualified teams may apply for a grant for nonprofit organizations where they volunteer.

GETTING A GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP

Falling asleep at night and staying asleep is a problem for many people, particularly women. Not only is insomnia more common among women, there are also gender-specific differences in the way that prescription medications treat the condition. For instance, a recent study involving 13 men and 11 women of similar age and body mass found that varying doses of zolpidem (Ambien) worked differently in women than they did in men. To begin with, the sleep-inducing drug stayed in women's bloodstreams longer and reached higher blood concentrations in women than in men. With this finding in mind, the Food and Drug Administration has recommended that the maximum sleeping pill dosage for women and older adults be reduced by half.

Patients who must drive in the morning or perform some other activity requiring full alertness should talk to their doctor about whether their sleep medication is appropriate. For all your family's health care and prescription needs, please call Elmora Healthcare. Our goal is to help you live more comfortably and independently. Whether you need medication delivered to your home, short or long term medical equipment rentals or repairs, or just have questions, don't hesitate to call and ask. If we can't help you, we will point you in the direction of someone who can. Call us first and get your answers quickly!

HINT: In addition to its recommendation for women mentioned above, the FDA has recommended lowering the dosages of zolpidem (Ambien) for men.

Curses, foiled again

• Police in Bloomsburg, Pa., arrested Jacob Close, 25, for jumping bail after he took part in the local newspaper's "Your Opinion" feature and allowed his photo to be published. An officer noticed Close's photo and tracked him down. (Associated Press)

• After Quamier Claiborne, 20, asked a passerby for a coat hanger, explaining that he was locked out of his car in Linden, N.J., the passerby notified police. Officers found Claiborne standing near a 2009 Volkswagen Passat that he claimed he'd borrowed from his aunt. A check found the vehicle had been reported stolen, and he was arrested. (Newark's The Star-Ledger)

Getting to be a habit

Engine trouble forced the pilot of a small plane to make an emergency landing on a highway near East Moriches, N.Y. A week later, he made another emergency landing on the same highway. "It wasn't one of my better landings," Frank Fierro, 75, said, adding, "My wife is going to kill me." (New York's WCBS-TV)

Facebook follies

Oscar Otero Aguilar, 21, who Mexican authorities described as obsessed with taking impressive photos of himself to post on social media, borrowed a gun and was waving it around while he took pictures with his cellphone when he accidentally shot himself in the head. (Britain's Mirror)

How the great unwashed live

• New York City's Department of Housing Preservation and Development approved a proposed apartment building with separate entrances for rich and poor residents. The 33-story complex will have 219 luxury units overlooking the Hudson River and 55 units facing the street for low-income families.

Including affordable housing nets Extell Development Company a tax break and the right to erect a larger building than would normally be allowed. As for what critics call the "poor door," fellow developer David Von Spreckelsen of Toll Brothers explained, "I think it's unfair to expect very high-income homeowners who paid a fortune to live in their building to have to be in the same boat as low-income renters, who are very fortunate to live in a new building in a great neighborhood." (New York Post and Britain's Daily Mail)

• A San Francisco nonprofit group equipped a former public transit bus to offer free showers to homeless people. The Lava Mae mobile shower bus features two full private bathrooms with clean toilets, shampoo, soap and towels. Founder Doniece Sandoval explained that the bus can reach homeless people scattered throughout the city, plus it avoids high rents that a fixed location would entail. (Associated Press)

Mother of the year

Florida authorities who charged Kayla R. Oxenham, 23, with intentionally branding her two children, ages 5 and 7, said she told the children that she burned them with a hot stick so she could identify them as hers. The Port Charlotte woman added that she "forgot how much she loved fire." (Fort Myers's WBBH-TV)

Second-Amendment follies

• Heath Vanek, 35, the firearms instructor for the Hewitt, Texas, Police Department, accidentally shot himself in the hand while using his personal 9mm semi-automatic pistol to teach his family to shoot. (Waco Tribune-Herald)

• A 37-year-old New York man was shot by another man during an argument while filming a rap video. "They were fighting over who's the star, who's better," said witness Ali Abdul. "They were drunk. They spit at each other, then one guy pulled out a gun and shot the other guy five times." Police said the victim was critically injured, and the shooter fled. (New York Daily News)

• Alaska authorities said Carl Timothy Forester, 50, tried to commit suicide at his Skagway home by putting his shotgun in his mouth. His girlfriend tried to stop him by hitting him in the head with the butt of another gun, but the blow caused him to involuntarily squeeze the trigger of his gun and shoot her in the upper chest, permanently disfiguring her. (Juneau Empire)

• IRS special agents fire their guns accidentally more than they fire them intentionally, according to an investigation by the Treasury Inspector General for Tax Administration. Between 2009 and 2011, the report found, "there were a total of eight firearm discharges classified as intentional use of force incidents and 11 discharges classified as accidental." (CNSNews.com)

Shocking discovery

People would rather be doing something, even if that's hurting themselves, than doing nothing or being alone with their thoughts, according to researchers at the University of Virginia. When they gave 18 men a 15-minute "thinking" session, with the option of administering a mild electric shock, 12 of them gave themselves at least one electric shock. By comparison six of 24 women shocked themselves.

Prior to the sessions, all of the participants had received a sample of the shock and indicated they would pay not to be shocked again. "Simply being alone with their own thoughts for 15 minutes," the investigators reported in the journal Science, "was apparently so aversive that it drove many participants to self-administer an electric shock that they had earlier said they would pay to avoid." (University of Virginia press release)

Victim of the week

British authorities reported that a 54-year-old man was trying to force open a toilet door on a train in Essex when the door opened and six women in miniskirts emerged, shouting. Police Sgt. Emma Weir said one of the women punched and kicked him onto the station platform, where he fell on another woman, who accused him of trying to steal her purse and punched him in the face. The man suffered a broken nose and two black eyes, according to Weir, who offered no explanation why six women were in the same toilet. (BBC News)

Cheater, cheater

• Karen Trant, 51, received disability benefits totaling 130,000 pounds ($218,100) for 13 years by claiming she was too scared to leave her house, but a British court sentenced her to two years in prison after an investigation found that she used the money to vacation for up to five months a year in Goa and for a string of cosmetic procedures. (Britain's The Telegraph)

• Lawrence S. Herman, 47, was sentenced to five months in prison after pleading guilty to submitting a bogus personal injury claim for $60,000 to an insurance company.

When the company didn't honor his claim, Herman, a chiropractor in Waynesboro, Pa., hired a lawyer and demanded payment for back and neck injuries. Meanwhile, federal investigators found that he participated in several races, including marathons and half-marathons. Herman admitted fabricating his injuries and treatment records. Celebrating the American worker

EDITORIAL

Monday is Labor Day, the unofficial end of summer. Schools are now opening for the new academic year, and for some, Labor Day is the last hurrah before children return to class. This is traditionally the last weekend to wear white or seersucker, as well as a great opportunity to enjoy one of the largest sales dates of the year. Some retailers claim Labor Day is second only to Black Friday, the day after Thanksgiving, in total sales.

Labor Day got its start in 1882, when Matthew Maguire, a machinist, first proposed the holiday while serving as secretary for the Central Labor Union of New York, an early trade-union organization that later disassembled into various locals, which are now AFL-CIO members. It has also been argued that Peter J. McGuire, of the American Federation of Labor, first proposed the holiday in May 1882, after witnessing the annual labor festival in Toronto, Canada.

Oregon was the first state to make Labor Day a holiday, on Feb. 21, 1887. The bombing of a peaceful labor rally on May 4, 1886, in Haymarket Square, Chicago, which resulted in the deaths of seven police officers and four civilians, as well as dozens of others being wounded, led President Grover Cleveland to fear having Labor Day on May 1 would commemorate the "Haymarket Massacre," so it was established as an official holiday in September. By the time it became a federal holiday, in 1894, 30 states were already celebrating some variation of Labor Day.

Today the holiday is observed on the first Monday in September, and is a time of festivals and parades to show the strength and camaraderie of trade and labor organizations, as well as an opportunity for workers and their families to celebrate together. Speeches are often made by local dignitaries, with an emphasis placed on the significance of the day. At the American Federation of Labor convention of 1909, a resolution was passed declaring the Sunday preceding Labor Day to be Labor Sunday, dedicated to the spiritual and educational aspects of the Labor Movement.

Not every worker gets the opportunity to take Labor Day off and enjoy this holiday. Because of the importance of the sale weekend, some of those who are employed in the retail sector not only work on Labor Day, but work longer hours. More Americans work in the retail industry than any other industry, with retail employment being 24 percent of all jobs in the United States. But labor unions in general have seen a steady reduction in membership. In 1955, when the American Federation of Labor merged with the Congress of Industrial Organizations to form the AFL-CIO, approximately one-third of the American labor force was unionized; by 2012, union membership was just 11 percent: roughly 5 percent of the private sector and 40 percent of the public sector.

But while the strength of organized labor has waned, it's importance in providing job security and health and retirement benefits for workers remains, particularly in these uncertain times.

On Labor Day, we celebrate the strength, dedication and perseverance of the American worker.

More solutions than problems

LEFT OUT

BY FRANK CAPECE

During the summer congressional break, Congressman Leonard Lance is engaging in the predictable activity of keeping in touch with the constituents. While not quite as glamorous as a Gov. Chris Christie town hall affair, in manageable groups the congressmen gets to feel the pulse of votes.

At an event last week, Lance stated the obvious and less than earthshaking position that "I will not cut social security or Medicare." There never has been any indication that Lance stood anywhere else on the issue.

Still, Lance set out his position. His reasoning was that a last minute political flier this fall may accuse him of the conduct. Call it a pre-emptive strike, but in this new world of third party independent negative expenditures and nasty fliers, it is smart politics to stake out positions.

For the record Lance said, "I believe at least a generation's notice should be given before we raise the retirement age for social security in this country. New members of the workforce in their 20s will likely see an increase in their retirement age by a year or two because Americans are living much longer than we were in 1935 when social security went into effect. This is fair to current retirees and those who will earn retirement in the future."

While representing a district which runs through central New Jersey considered a safe Republican seat, Lance has become accustomed to attacks from the far more right wing tea party which has challenged him via the primary route. In the general election, it is the left wing he must face.

As a former New Jersey state legislator, Lance was well regarded by both sides of the political aisle. He was a moderate who at times gained the scorn of more conservative members.

The Washington scene is quite different. The partisan divide was described by Democratic Congressman Albie Sires, whose district includes a portion of eastern Union County. He was pessimistically candid about the D.C. climate.

"I think there's despair," he said. "People see no future. Jobs are limited. I think there's despair in the air. It's all ideology. Everything you see in Washington by the GOP comes about because they don't like President Obama."

Times have changed. In his current best seller, "An Idea Whose Time Has Come", author Todd Purdum describes the successful legislative battle 50 years ago to enact to Civil Rights Act of 1964. It was a different climate in America. Democrats and Republicans squared off together either in favor or opposition of the ground breaking law. Democrat Sen. and anti-civil rights leader Richard Russell described liberal democrat colleague Hubert Humphrey as a "man with more solutions than there are problems."

Purdum praises the bipartisan alliance between President Johnson, a Democrat, and Republican Sen. Everett Dirksen and Republican Congressman William McCullough to win the day.

One can imagine how different history might have been if in 1964 there were 24-hour news cycles and third party negative independent expenditures. It makes Lance's pre-emptive position on the obvious understandable 50 years later.

Celebrating the wild beach plums

THE STATE WE'RE IN

BY MICHELE S. BYERS

The 17th annual Beach Plum Festival is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 7, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Ocean Beach Bathing Area No. 1, the first pavilion after the park entrance. The day's highlights include plum picking, native plant tours and beach plum jelly-making demonstrations. Beach plum jelly and even beach plum ice cream are for sale.

You've probably never picked or tasted a wild beach plum ... but it's not too late.

Beach plums — prunus maratima — grow wild on dunes along the East Coast, although summer visitors who flock to the beaches seeking sun and surf tend to miss the short, weather-gnarled bushes. Throughout most of summer, the fruits are green and unobtrusive, more like olives than the larger purple fruits found at farm stands.

Beach plums have a devoted following, and foragers are known to be secretive about the best places to find them.

"The long-time gatherers have secret spots and favorite bushes, and strangers carrying pails in the dunes are viewed with suspicion," wrote Cornell University researcher Richard Uva in an article about the fruit's cultural and scientific aspects. "In a good crop year, the race to harvest is so competitive that the fruit is sometimes picked when barely ripe."

The Friends of Island Beach State Park don't mind sharing their secrets, if only once a year. The annual Beach Plum Festival, held in early September, celebrates wild beach plums and Island Beach's other natural wonders.

The 17th annual Beach Plum Festival is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 7, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Ocean Beach Bathing Area No. 1, the first pavilion after the park entrance.

The day's highlights include plum picking, native plant tours and beach plum jelly-making demonstrations. Beach plum jelly and even beach plum ice cream are for sale. And visitors wishing to grow beach plums at home can buy small plants.

Beach plums have a flavor that ranges from astringent when picked early to relatively sweet when ripe. They're rarely eaten raw, but their tartness gives jams, jellies and other products a distinctive flavor. Believe it or not, even some beers and wines are flavored with beach plums.

Beach plums were first used by indigenous people and later discovered by European settlers. According to Uva, the earliest account of native plums came from explorer Giovanni da Verrazano, who in 1524 spotted them on the Long Island coast and mistakenly recorded them as "damson trees."

Since then, several coastal land masses have been named after the beach plum, including tiny Plum Island off the northeastern tip of Long Island, the Plum Island barrier beach off Newburyport, Mass., and Prime Hook in Delaware, whose name is a version of the Dutch "Pruime Hoek," or Plum Point.

The Beach Plum Festival is free, although a $5 donation is requested to support the Friends, a non-profit volunteer group whose mission is to foster public appreciation and stewardship of Island Beach State Park by enhancing educational, recreational and research programs and offering public events. One of the Friends' most popular initiatives is the "Osprey cam" that allows the public a close-up view on their computers of the osprey pair that nests there each year.

Flora encountered in the Finger Lakes

THE GARDENER'S APPRENTICE

BY ELISABETH GINSBURG

What do gardeners do on vacation? Visit gardens, of course, or, if we have places to do so, garden in our vacation spaces.

Ever the horticultural glutton, I do both. My sister and I own a summer cottage on nine acres of land in the Finger Lakes region of New York state. My maternal grandfather bought it almost 75 years ago because the area reminded him of his home in England's Lake District. The soil is clay mixed with an abundant amount of rock, so plants that succeed tend to sink deep roots. Most of our property, a former farm, is in a natural state, supporting black walnut and cottonwood trees and staghorn sumac. We also grow copious amounts of goldenrod, ironweed and poison ivy. I would make a botanical garden out of the whole place if I only had more than three weeks a year to do so. As Annie Lennox of the Eurythmics famously wrote and sang, "Sweet dreams are made of these."

I walk the country roads every vacation day, watching the birds and butterflies and taking note of the naturally occurring plant combinations. It is too soon yet for most goldenrods and asters, but other flowers abound. This summer has been relatively cool and wet, perfect conditions for orange jewelweed — Impatiens capensis — and the roadside ditches are full of it. Related to garden and New Guinea impatiens, these native plants have relatively thick, hollow stems and feature small orange tubular flowers. Pollinators and hummingbirds love them. The soothing sap also comes in handy for on-the-spot relief of itchy bug bites.

Orange jewelweed often sits cheek by jowl with the sky-blue flowers of common chicory, or Cichorium intybus. In New Orleans and elsewhere, coffee lovers grind up the roots of the sativum variety of chicory and add it to ground coffee beans to take the bitter edge off the coffee flavor.

The jewelweed/chicory color combination could be duplicated in hot sunny garden spots with orange flowered varieties of common nasturtium — Tropaeolum group — and pots of blue-flowered rosemary or Rosmarinus officinalis. Butterfly weed — Aesclepias tuberosa — might also supply the orange component and provide a dynamic complement to the blue-purple hardy geranium Rozanne. In shade, pots of orange tuberous begonias would work well with late-blooming monkshood or aconitum. Use monkshood with caution around children and pets, as all plant parts are poisonous.

I also love the frothy white flowers of Queen Anne's Lace, or Daucus carota, a plant that arrived in Colonial times and naturalized itself with wild abandon. It goes with everything, but would quickly out-compete everything else in a domestic situation. Duplicate the look without the thuggishness, by using its Apiaceae family relative, Ammi majus, sometimes known as false Queen Anne's Lace or Bishop's Flower. Tall colewort, or Crambe cordifolia, can also serve a similar purpose, especially at the back of the border. Colewort has the added bonus of sweet scent.

When not out walking the country roads, I tend my cottage garden, a collection of four beds on the shale/shingle beach and around the cottage. The climate is USDA Zone 5 and the winters can be harsh, so anything I plant has to be very tough and thrive on large amounts of neglect. Lavender lives large in the sunny beach bed, reveling in the excellent drainage. Russian sage, coreopsis and delphiniums fill the upper bed that backs up to a concrete retaining wall.

The area is home to a handful of fine, independent garden centers, but many of my plants were purchased from a small roadside stand that sits in front of a dilapidated barn about a mile from the cottage. The display there consists of a table with a well-secured honor box and a changing selection of seed grown perennials, all labeled with botanical and varietal names. I have never met the gardener who supplies this enterprise, but I sometimes leave her a note along with my payment. The price is right — three one-quart pots of perennials for $5. A laminated sign by the cashbox says that the flower proceeds help fund treatments for the stand owner's cancer-stricken son-in-law. I would buy the plants even without the sad note, but the story makes the investment seem even better.

A long garden thread connects the property to the past. A couple of straggly lilacs and some poeticus daffodils are probably remnants of the farm that existed here until the early 1920s. Traces of an old privet hedge remain from the farmer's successor, a rich man who used the property as a weekend retreat.

My green-thumbed aunt gardened here as a teenager in the 1940s and reputedly cultivated the largest Victory Garden in the county. My father planted trees. Now my daughter, starting on her own professional life, helps with the garden beds, putting her own stamp on this piece of ground.

Even in the face of changing times, distances and the challenges of climate and soil, each of us has found a way to sink roots.

Welcome Back to School

Teaching the love of reading

Today's parents know that it's not always easy to instill a love of reading in children.

Whether they are watching television, dabbling with their smartphones, toying with their tablets or engaging in social media, youngsters now have more distractions at their disposal than ever before. So it's no surprise that many youngsters may not be too enthusiastic about abandoning their gadgets in exchange for curling up with a good book.

But instilling a love of reading in kids early on can pay a lifetime of dividends. Children learn at a much faster pace during their first six years than at any other time in their lives, and the right kind of stimulation during these years can provide the foundation for future learning. In addition, reading at an early age can inspire a child's creativity and imagination. Though many parents can recognize these benefits, that recognition does not make it easier to get kids to embrace reading. No two kids are alike, so parents might need to employ different strategies to get each of their kids to embrace reading. But the following are a handful of ways parents can foster a love of reading in their youngsters.

Helping your child discover the benefits of reading is a gift that can last a lifetime

• Embrace their hobbies. When encouraging kids to read, parents may find it easier to get them to pick up a book if that book's subject matter pertains to a favorite hobby or something a youngster has expressed interest in. A 7-year-old boy with a passion for baseball will likely be more inclined to read an age-appropriate novel about America's pastime than he will a book about fishing. Use youngsters' enthusiasm about a given hobby or interest to lay the foundation for a love of reading.

• Don't limit reading to books. Books are not the only reading materials that can foster a love of reading in kids. Local newspapers and magazines have sparked many kids' initial foray into reading, and such source materials can be just as inspiring as novels or short stories. Magazines made for youngsters give kids something they can start and finish reading in the same day. Young boys might want to read the sports page in the daily newspaper or visit a favorite team's website to learn all about last night's game, while young girls might be more inclined to read the arts and entertainment sections. Parents should encourage such exploration, even if it means leaving novels on the bookshelf for the time being.

• Get your youngster his or her own library card. Thanks to the popularity of e-readers, many adults would be hard pressed to locate their local library if asked to do so. But visiting the library is a great way to encourage kids to read, especially if kids have their own library cards. Kids with their own library cards tend to look at visits to the library as shopping trips where they get to make their own choices about what they're taking home with them. And once kids reach a certain age, they can visit the library on their own.

• Aug. 9: At 8:01 p.m., police officers responded to the area of Boulevard and 19th Street on report of a male using drugs at that location. Officers located Paul Mraz, 25, of Kenilworth and arrested him for possession of suspected heroin folds and hypodermic needles. He was arrested and brought to Kenilworth Police Headquarters, where he was charged and later released pending a court appearance.

• Aug. 13: police responded to Lafayette Place on report of several cars on fire, and a utility pole snapped off. Upon arriving, it was determined that the pole had apparently snapped and caused the wires to fall causing fires and damage to four vehicles parked underneath them. The vehicles, a 1997 Nissan Maxima, a 2014 GMC Sierra, a 2013 Volkswagen Jetta, and a 1999 Trailer were heavily damaged. Kenilworth Volunteer Fire Department along with several mutual aid towns responded and contained the fires. In Memoriam is a weekly feature compiled by the news staff from various sources. We also provide the opportunity for families and funeral directors to publish a more extensive, special notice about their loved one called an obituary. These notices are published on our website immediately and then in the next edition of this newspaper. To place a paid obituary send an email to obits@thelocalsource.com or fax to 908-686-4169. Family and friends' submissions must include sender's name, address, phone and the name of the funeral home. Call 908-686-7850 for assistance.

Sometimes the simplest recipes are the ones we relish. I have been on an Indian cooking kick for a few weeks now and I love making this quick raita — yogurt sauce — to accompany dishes that need a little sauce. I have been making use of all my luscious cucumbers from our garden, but any store-bought ones will do as well. Enjoy!

Quick Raita Sauce

Ingredients

1 large cucumber, seeded and chopped into 1/4 inch chunks
1/4 cup plain Greek yogurt, zero percent fat preferred
2 garlic cloves, peeled and minced finely
pinch of kosher salt

Method

Mix the minced garlic and yogurt together until fully combined.
Add the yogurt to the cucumbers and stir to fully coat.
Sprinkle with a pinch of salt, stir and chill for at least 15 to 30 minutes.

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

HOROSCOPE

ARIES, March 21 to April 20
Aries, take the high road when you find yourself in the midst of a disagreement with a friend. It may be tempting to stick to your guns, but the disagreement is nothing too significant.

TAURUS, April 21 to May 21
Much is going on, Taurus, and you have trouble zeroing in on a focal point. Unless you make a list of all you want to accomplish, you may get lost in the shuffle.

GEMINI, May 22 to June 21
You sometimes change your moods on a whim, Gemini. But lately you have been more steadfast in your convictions. This behavior will continue for some time.

CANCER, June 22 to July 22
Don't make any rash moves in the next few days, Cancer. For whatever reason, your commonsense meter is a little off. You may want to run ideas past a trusted friend for a while.

LEO, July 23 to Aug. 23
Leo, unless you try you will never be able to tell if something is within your capabilities. Do not be afraid to fail. It's better than putting in no effort at all.

VIRGO, Aug. 24 to Sept. 22
Virgo, you're wearing your heart on your sleeve this week. Don't worry, as your willingness to share your emotions will endear you to others.

LIBRA, Sept. 23 to Oct. 23
There are only so many hours in the day, Libra. You need to pick and choose your activities accordingly. You likely will not be able to squeeze everything in.

SCORPIO, Oct. 24 to Nov. 22
Scorpio, if you want to get involved in something, then by all means give it your best shot. If it's something foreign to you, let others take the reigns until you're more comfortable.

SAGITTARIUS, Nov. 23 to Dec. 21
A new perspective is all you need to feel better this week, Sagittarius. A change of scenery or even looking to an old friend for advice can make a real difference.

CAPRICORN, Dec. 22 to Jan. 20
The friends you thought you could count on turn out to be the real deal, Capricorn. Just see what they have in store for you this week. You will be so surprised.

AQUARIUS, Jan. 21 to Feb. 18
It's OK to have strong opinions, Aquarius. But respect the opinions of others who may disagree with your point of view. Learn how to walk away from pointless situations.

PISCES, Feb. 19 to March 20
There's more to the story than meets the eye, Pisces. Quick judgement may land you in hot water. Wait for the dust to settle.

Winning state crown is the ultimate goal for all teams

Going undefeated on gridiron requires skill, luck

By JR Parachini
Sports Editor

Winning a state championship is the ultimate goal of every football team once official practice commences in August.

Dreaming of going the entire season undefeated en route to capturing a state title may seep through players' minds from time to time.

Believe me, it's no easy task.

In the playoff era that began in 1974 only 22 Union County teams have finished seasons without a loss. One of them – Westfield in 1974 – didn't win a sectional title. One more – Westfield in 1976 – had one tie.

In the first year of the playoffs in 1974 only a handful of games were played at Atlantic City's Convention Hall. Morristown and Bloomfield were selected to play in the North 2, Group 4 final, with Morristown winning 30-10. Morristown and a 9-0 Westfield team finished tied for first in the state.

Westfield then captured North 2, Group 4 for the first time in 1976, finishing 10-0-1. The Blue Devils repeated as N2, G4 champions in 1977, finishing 11-0 for the only time in their history.

Two Union County teams - Elizabeth and Summit - were able to win state championships and finish undefeated just two years ago. It was the first time that was accomplished since 1993 when Summit won North 2, Group 2 at 11-0 and Roselle Park repeated in North 2, Group 1 at 11-0.

Summit went 12-0 again last year, accomplishing the feat in back-to-back seasons for the first time and for the third time overall.

In 2012, Elizabeth captured its first championship since winning North 2, Group 4 for the seventh time in 2006. The Minutemen won the first North 2, Group 5 title, coming back in the last minute to stun defending N2, G4 champion Piscataway 37-33 on a Friday night at Kean University's Alumni Stadium in Union.

The year before, Piscataway came back to beat Elizabeth 41-34 in the North 2, Group 4 final at Rutgers Stadium in Piscataway. That is Elizabeth's only loss in a championship game, with the Minutemen owning an 8-1 record in title games, 7-1 in North 2, Group 4 and 1-0 in North 2, Group 5.

Elizabeth finished 11-0 two years ago and was denied the opportunity to go 12-0 - the Minutemen would have easily defeated a Plainfield team that finished 0-9 - because of Hurricane Sandy.

Summit won North 2, Group 3 for the third time two years ago and for the first time since 1980, blanking Palisades Park 30-0 in the final at MetLife Stadium in East Rutherford.

Summit held on to defeat Parsippany Hills 16-13 at Kean in last year's North 2, Group 3 final, which was its fourth championship in that section.

The Hilltoppers first went 12-0 in 2009 when they captured North 2, Group 2 for the fourth time.

Summit, which has now won eight state championships in the playoff era, begins the 2014 season with an overall winning streak of 24 and a regular season winning streak of 45.

The Hilltoppers - 56-2 overall the past five seasons - have not lost a regular season game since November of 2008, which was their final game as a member of the Hills Division of the Iron Hills Conference.

After leaving the National Division of the Watchung Conference, Summit played in the IHC for 13 seasons from 1996-2008.

Brearley became the first Union County school to go 12-0, doing so in 2006 when the Bears captured North 2, Group 1 for the first time since 1991.

That was the first Brearley team to finish undefeated since the 1981 team went 11-0 en route to winning North 2, Group 1 for the first time.

In the 2006 final at the old Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, Brearley - led by senior running back John Dalman - came back and then held on to defeat 2005 finalist Verona 21-20.

Union won North 2, Group 4 for the first time in 1978, repeated in 1979 and then won it again in 1982 after losing in the final for the first time in 1981.

However, the Farmers did not win the section with an undefeated record until 1984 and 1985, going 11-0 both times.

Both of those squads, ranked nationally by USA Today, were led a number of talented players, including All-America Tony Stewart and All-State player Gary Mobley, who is now the head coach at Rahway.

Roselle Park needed a field goal in overtime in the 1993 North 2, Group 1 final at home against New Providence - winning 10-7 after senior John Schinestuhl's kick - to go 11-0 for the second straight season.

One Union County school that was denied a second 12-0 campaign in three years was Summit in 2011. The Hilltoppers - in a battle of 11-0 squads - were defeated by defending champion Madison 47-7 in the North 2, Group 2 final at Kean.

Winning a state championship - especially nowadays when you have to win three playoff games - is no easy task at all.

Winning every game that you play is even more difficult.

It takes not only skill - matched with blood, sweat and tears - but also a little luck.

Springfield's Sha'arey Shalom captures 13th crown since 1998, 4th consecutive

Defeats Edison JCC 2 games to 0 in the finals

Springfield's Sha'arey Shalom defeated the Edison JCC earlier this month in the best of three championship series to bring home its 13th title since 1998 and fourth consecutive in the Central Jersey Softball League.

All four years the Edison team was the victim.

This year was especially tough for the JCC as they took the regular season series from Springfield two games to one to gain home field advantage throughout the playoffs.

In Game One, Springfield opened the first inning with seven runs and never looked back, taking the game 15-9.

Game Two, however, saw Edison open a 6-1 lead heading into the fifth inning, trying to even the series and force a deciding game the following week.

However, Springfield pecked away at the lead and eventually went ahead 9-6, only to see Edison tie the game heading into the bottom of the last inning. Danny Jamnik led off with a single, followed by a walk from Neal Berger, putting the winning run on second base. David Steinman then blasted a shot into the right field woods for a grounds rule double to give Springfield the game at 10-9 and the crown.

Sha'arey finished in second place with a record of 10-2 in the regular season, outscoring its opponents 200-72 and averaging nearly 17 runs a game. During the season, Cory Berger led the team in home runs with seven, RBI with 37, batting average at .761, runs with 31 and hits with 35.

In the playoffs, shortstop Mike Weckstein led the team with a .769 batting average, while Steinman took RBI honors with 13.

Steinman, Weckstein, Cory Berger and Neal Berger each collected 10 hits to top the team.

Sha'arey had a bye in the first round and then went on to defeat their cross-town rival, Beth Ahm, by scores of 16-1 and 16-10 in the semifinals to reach the finals.

After Brandon Gincel went down with an injury late in Game One, outfielder Sammy Dushkin stepped in and played a stellar second base to highlight a great defensive display by Springfield.

The outfield of David Sklar, Cory Berger, David Steinman and Danny Jamnik were the difference in stifling Edison's bats, just as they had been during the regular season.

Third baseman Steven Cohen, along with Weckstein, Dushkin and sophomore Brandon Moss held down the infield, playing solid defense throughout. Pitcher Stu Rothenberg delivered his seventh and eighth wins of the season in silencing the JCC sluggers, especially after Springfield scored and needed shut-down innings.

Brandon Gincel, who also picked up important wins as a starting pitcher during the season, was a consistent leader offensively for Sha'arey, while Seth Nadel and Matt Schachtel were solid behind the plate as well as at bat, coming up with key hits during the playoff run.
