Freeholder candidates square off

Three incumbent Democrats and three Republican challengers take questions from the press

By Peter Fiorilla
Staff Writer

In anticipation of the nearby November election, the Union County Freeholders candidate's public debate offered an illuminating look at county politics on Wednesday, Sept. 30, when Republicans and Democrats made their case to voters, answered questions from the media and offered rebuttals to each other, largely on party lines.

The 90-minute debate, organized by the League of Women Voters and held at Cranford Town Hall, became divisive and heated as the night wore on, emphasizing the philosophical differences between the "Column A" Republicans and "Column B" Democrats.

In their introductory statements, the three Republican challengers, including former attorney and Scotch Plains resident Richard Fortunato, delivered their platform plainly: Union County has suffered under a one-party, Democratic system for the past 20 years, and as a result, taxes are far too high.

Along with fellow first-time candidates Joseph Bonilla, a security professional from Union, and Rene Dierkes, a financial advisor living in Mountainside, Fortunato said that the Board of Chosen Freeholders needs more political diversity in its ranks.

"I'm not a politician, I've never run for public office before. But I stepped forward in this case, to run, because I think Union County could be a much better place, for my children and hopefully my grandchildren, to live in than it currently is," said Fortunato. "There are a few things which concern me about the way the county is being run by the current Freeholder board. County taxes have increased dramatically since 2000, they've gone up by twice the rate of inflation in that period. Of the 3,100 counties in the United States, Union County is the seventh-most highly taxed county in the entire country."

In their time campaigning door-to-door, the Republican candidates said, they've come face-to-face with a population that's generally unhappy with county politics. All three Republicans honed in on Union County's real estate taxes, which they believe are "out of control," said Dierkes, forcing lower-income residents and senior citizens to move away.

Throughout the evening, Dierkes would hammer home the argument that "the Democratic machine has let spending get way out of control, and that spending has caused taxes to become astronomical," bringing the issue up every time it was his turn to speak.

Union County Teacher of the Year looks to share grant project

KENILWORTH — Resting at one end of David Brearley Middle-High School, where there used to be patches of dead grass, is a serene pond and garden, built in the memory of a former student. Elsewhere on school grounds there's a freshly finished greenhouse, which doubles as an outdoor classroom for science teachers. It's a space, according to art teacher Janice Marsili, where students can learn about plant life, like techniques used in hybridization.

The inside of the school has been similarly transformed, with some hallways being turned into bright, colorful mosaics. All of these art projects, which are student-made, have been possible because of state-sponsored, Arts-in-Education Residency Grants, said Marsili, who has been writing these grants for the past eight years.

In that time, added Marsili, thousands of her students have contributed to the changes at David Brearley Middle-High School, during art class and on their own time.

"Kids who are, maybe, not the most academic, get a chance to show what they can do. The seventh graders are working right alongside the seniors, which is a great experience for them," said Marsili. "They form a lot of bonds that they wouldn't otherwise

Arboretum welcomes back goats for annual Celebrate Fall festival

By Peter Fiorilla
Staff Writer

SUMMIT — Throughout the past year, from when the leaves first started falling until long after they'd grown back, staff members at the Reeves-Reed Arboretum were bombarded with the same, recurring question: Are the goats coming back?

The short answer is yes. A herd of highly popular eco-goats, now at 20 strong, will make another appearance at the arboretum's annual "Celebrate Fall" festival on Sunday, Oct. 25, according to Frank Juliano, the Executive Director of the arboretum.

After the goats debuted at last year's festival, the event's 1,000-plus visitors were "just enraptured" by the lovely goats, said Juliano, which are friendly animals that can get anyone in a festive spirit.

"There are a couple of reasons. All of these goats have been hand nursed, so they're very comfortable with humans. As a result, they are really sweet and friendly, and I don't know if you've ever seen anything about goats, but they have very distinct personalities," said Juliano. "And it is great fun to see a goat and — it's like a dog with horns, they're very adorable, they're so sweet. And people love that.

As a result, the arboretum received calls year-long from people

"asking if we're bringing the goats back," said Juliano. The goats were so well-received that the arboretum started a Sponsor-a-Goat program, where people sponsored a member of the herd and received a certificate for "good goatsmanship."

At this year's "Celebrate Fall" event, hosted by the county's lone arboretum, local residents will have another opportunity to get involved with these animals. Stations are going to be set up for people to feed and interact with the goats, which are called "eco-goats" because of their job description.

"There are people across the country who use their goats primarily for clearing purposes, and they're hired by places like arboreta and non-profits and cemeteries, and places like that, and they clear out the overgrown areas," said Juliano. "In our case, and in many other cases, these are areas that you don't want to use pesticides on, and they are very difficult for humans to traverse, and so the goats come in. It's an eco-friendly way of eliminating unwanted plants in overgrown areas."

In the Reeves-Reed Arboretum's case, the goats patrol the hilly, rocky terrain on-site, as well as the "Daffodil Bowl," a glacial kettle planted with more than 50,000 daffodil bulbs. It's an historic part of the property, said Juliano, that draws people from all over the

A student docent and visitors discuss a 1760 sleeping loft in Mountainside's Deacon Andrew Hetfield House, which will be open during Union County's Four Centuries in a Weekend. Visitors are welcome to tour and participate in activities Saturday, Oct. 17, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, Oct. 18, from noon to 5 p.m.

Hetfield House celebrates Four Centuries in a Weekend

On Oct. 17 and 18, Union County's Four Centuries in a Weekend event will take place. Each year, Union County celebrates its cities' and towns' heritage by featuring the historic sites throughout the county. The Hetfield House will be open for visitors Saturday, Oct. 17, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, Oct. 18, from noon to 5 p.m. Tours of the Hetfield House will be available throughout the weekend. The open house and activities are free.

On Saturday and Sunday, members from Tri-State Historical Education Simulations Inc. will be present to engage in a discussion on the Battle of Springfield, fought nearby on June 23, 1780. This victory, by George Washington's Colonial Army, discouraged any significant action by the British forces in the northern colonies for the rest of the American Revolutionary War. The discussions will be augmented by a diorama of the military actions and hundreds of hand-painted soldiers provided by the Maplewood Hobby store.

The Deacon Andrew Hetfield House is located at Constitution Plaza, adjacent to the Mountainside Library.

Four Centuries events planned in Union County

Among the historic sites open for free tours, are these special programs and events:

- Reeve History & Cultural Resource Center in Westfield celebrates the restoration of the 1870s Victorian Italianate home.
- Deserted Village of Feltville-Glenside Park in Berkeley Heights will host the Archaeological Society of New Jersey on Saturday afternoon in the restored Masker's Barn with presentations about archaeological sites at the village.
- Oswald J. Nitschke House in Kenilworth plans a "living history" program set in 1898-1924, when the town known as New Orange was home to Upsala College.
- Liberty Hall Museum of Union, residence of New Jersey's first elected governor, offers 23 acres of formal gardens and farmland, plus an exquisite 50-room Victorian mansion housing 240 years of American history.
- Reeves-Reed Arboretum of Summit will feature tours of the grounds, landscape drawings by noted architects and an art installation, "The Glass Menagerie," of fantastical creatures.

CERT training available in Clark

The township of Clark will hold a Community Emergency Response Training, or CERT, Program during the next few months, if enough people express interest. The township has previously conducted 10 classes for the general public and one class for various teachers and administrators in the Clark Public School System, with good attendance in all the classes.

The CERT concept dates back to 1985, when the Los Angeles Fire Department recognized that in the early stages of a major disaster local emergency responders could be overwhelmed, and basic training in disaster survival and rescue skills could improve the ability of community members to help themselves until first responders or other assistance arrived. This program, which now exists in every state, is promoted by the Federal Government through the Citizens Corp. program and the N.J. State Police Office of Emergency Management. New Jersey presently ranks among the top states in the country based for its number of CERT programs.

This 24-hour training program is given during a nine-week period, and provides information on a variety of topics. Participants will receive training in such areas as: CERT-team organization and Incident Command System; identifying hazards most likely to affect homes or community and general disaster preparedness; basic fire knowledge; basic first aid training; light search-and-rescue training; disaster psychology, and terrorism. This program is not intended to train people to be first responders for fire or first aid purposes, but is designed to train people to be better able to help themselves and their families, to possibly help their neighbors, and, if they choose, to help their community by assisting the various township emergency services in a major emergency situation.

Union's Got Talent draws quite a crowd

By Peter Fiorilla
Staff Writer

UNION — Sixteen different singers, dancers and performers walked onto the dark stage at Union High School, each accompanied by an introductory video as they prepared for their role in the Union's Got Talent showcase last week. The introductions informed the audience, which mostly filled the 750-seat auditorium, who they were, why they were performing and what they'd do if they won the $1,000 grand prize.

Answers varied from person to person, but in the end, just before the videos ended and the spotlight turned center-stage, they all echoed the same phrase: "Union's got talent, I've got talent."

That was the recurring theme at the third annual edition of "Union's Got Talent," held at Union High School on Saturday, Sept. 26. The show featured children and adults, comedians and violinists, and soloists and group performers, all of them artists from Union.

"You have such a range of different talents and different people," said Alyssa Muniz, who sang "Elastic Heart" by Sia. "I don't know what other town does this, and it's on such a big scale, and for a really good cause. The lighting guy does Broadway things. All of these people are professionals. They just bring together the best people to put on something for us, and I really appreciate the opportunity they're giving us that way."

At the end of the night, long after the last song, the four local celebrity judges — among them Union High School teacher Nicholas Ferroni — awarded Muniz First Place, for her captivating cover of "Elastic Heart."

"I really like that song. And I love when an audience knows it, so I thought maybe I could get that in there. The best songs to sing are the ones you like, because it really comes through," said Muniz. "It just felt amazing to be up there, to be singing and doing what we love, and getting acknowledged for it."

There were 15 other performers, though, that helped make this year's show a "full production," said Muniz, which wowed the crowd from the beginning. When Jaden and Ellis Foreman opened "Union's Got Talent," by tap dancing to "Uptown Funk" by Bruno Mars, there was a thunderous applause that would be matched numerous times.

A cover of comedy rap "Goose MCs," performed by Union High School student Jason Rivera, lit the auditorium up with laughter. Local artist Eboni Pearce, whose son encouraged her to audition in May, sang and played an original song, "Roses."

"The simple fact that I can come back and actually see the talent, it really is more about seeing everyone who's talented and is also from Union," said Marcel Smith, the show's runner-up, who played "Lay Me Down" by Sam Smith. "We really don't have that many shows where we can express the talent in Union, and we have a lot of talent in Union."

It was a great opportunity for everyone involved, said Muniz, and it was "cool to be in something where kids and adults perform" one after the other, she said.

Angela Zhang, a Jefferson Elementary student who performed "Reflection" from "Mulan," won the show's Youth Award, while the People's Choice Award went to Brianna Terrezza, a Kawameeh Middle School student, for singing "Let It Go" from "Frozen."

Most of the show's proceeds went to three non-profits: the Union High School Performing Arts Company, the Township of Union Education Foundation, and the Douglas Michael Krueger Scholarship Fund, organizations which help arts students in Union via grants and scholarships.

"Union's Got Talent" brought together the community to help fund three different organizations that benefit students in Union Township," said Mayor Manny Figueiredo, one of the event's judges. "And that's to be commended."

The rest of the fundraising went to the winners' cash prizes, including $1,000 for first place and $500 for the runner-up. That's an appreciated gesture for Smith, who will use the money to help pay for student loans, he said, while Muniz wants to use her cash prize to continue following the dream of performing.

"I want to pursue singing and acting and take classes. I have a vocal coach, I want to keep doing that, I want to get myself immersed into New York City as much as possible," said Muniz. "And I need to take my bus pass to do that."

Alyssa Muniz of the Union High School Class of 2011, above, was the overall first place winner of the Union's Got Talent showcase. Guests in attendance were able to vote for the People's Choice award using bags with each contestant's picture and name on them, below.

A Word From Your Pharmacist

Presented by Michael Hertz, R.Ph.

PAIN RELIEVER LIMITS

Many people use acetaminophen, which is found in more than 600 products, to relieve pain. As widespread as the use of this pure analgesic may be, the public may not know all that it needs to about its safety. This over-the-counter pain reliever should be limited to a maximum daily dose of 3,000 milligrams to 4,000 milligrams, which is equal to approximately six to eight extra-strength capsules or pills. Exceeding this dosage, taking too much over the long term, or using alcohol excessively poses a risk of damaging the liver, which primarily metabolizes acetaminophen. With this in mind, users should carefully read the ingredient labels of the pain products they use in order not to exceed the maximum daily dosage.

HINT: Unlike "non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs" (NSAIDs), such as ibuprofen and aspirin (which double as analgesics and anti-inflammatories), acetaminophen does not fight inflammation.

Freeholder debate raises questions

"They will tell you 'look at all of the great things we've done for Union County,' as you've so heard," said Dierkes. "But I tell you, give me your credit card, and I'll do great things also."

Financially, the Freeholders don't live within their means, according to the three challengers, and are racking up debt for the county. That would change with Republican representation, they said at the debate.

"We need to control county spending," said Fortunato. "One-party rule is not good for the county, no matter what political party you belong to."

On the other side of the aisle, though, a wildly different message was made by the Democratic incumbents, including current Chairman Mohamed Jalloh, a six-year member of the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

Elections have consistently swung in the favor of Democrats, said Jalloh, because that's the party Union County residents identify with. And this year's candidates, all of them veterans on the board, are poised to continue the good work that's been done in recent years.

"This year, I'm proud to be part of a Freeholder team that has made key investments in education and economic developments all throughout the county," said Jalloh, highlighting Rahway's new Union County College campus, development of the College Readiness Now program, and county programs which have helped 500 residents find work. "When we work as a team, with our many different partners, there is strength. And great things can be achieved in Union County with that."

Freeholder Vice Chairman Bruce Bergen, an attorney from Springfield in his third year of public office, and Alexander Mirabella, a Fanwood resident first elected in 1997, echoed Jalloh's sentiments, saying the Board of Chosen Freeholders has made great strides in the programs and services that are offered to county residents.

The nine-member Board of Chosen Freeholders, according to Bergen, has helped improve the quality of life locally, is family and working class-oriented, and — in addition to education and economic development — has paid special attention to "rebuilding our infrastructure." A good example of that, added Bergen, is the Infrastructure Grant Program, which granted $1.5 million to every municipality in the county for repairing roads.

Other projects the Democrats highlighted include initiatives to help seniors, such as the Senior Scholars program, county-wide EMS and dispatch programs that save taxpayers' money, prioritizing efforts to end flooding on Rahway River, and completing their shared goals while maintaining fiscal responsibility, as they have been doing for years now.

"Republicans are sure to criticize, but lack a plan," said Mirabella. "And the 'Column B' Democratic Team has a plan, can put that plan into action and gets results."

After each side introduced their platforms, the debate began in earnest as two members of the media, Patrick Bober of LocalSource and Michael Shapiro of Tapin.to.net, posed a variety of questions throughout the night.

The first question asked candidates if they supported the polarizing Rahway River Park proposal, a powder keg of an issue, and if not, asked what would they tell opposition of the project.

Bonilla had already denounced the proposal in his introduction, saying that its opponents had been "escorted out of meetings," which is "the wrong way to do government." When asked, specifically, about the unpopular proposal, Bonilla's running-mates took the opportunity to roundly criticize the planned upgrade at Rahway River Park, which would cost county taxpayers $2.5 million if approved.

"What seems quite apparent to me is the Freeholder Board, while having good intentions — and maybe the park's a good idea — but we have, as I understand it, 6,000 people who signed a petition against this project," said Fortunato. "I don't understand the rush, unless there's a rush to spend money for some reason. So I would not go forward with the park at this point. I would wait and try to build some support with the residents in the area."

The online petition, in fact, has nearly 5,000 signatures, not 6,000.

Each of the Republican candidates told the audience that they'd spent a lot of time in Rahway, and that every person they met "had concerns" with the Rahway River Park proposal, said Dierkes. On Tuesday, Sept. 15, hundreds of local residents showed their discontent at a public Department of Environmental Protection hearing at Rahway Public Library.

But the Democrats reaffirmed their belief in the stadium upgrade, and rejected the notion that they'd ever escorted opponents of the proposal out of meetings.

"We have not escorted anyone out of a meeting, that just isn't true," said Bergen. "I am for the Rahway River Park. I've been out there, I've looked at the site, this is an existing track and an existing football field which is being refurbished. It's not going to increase the footprint into the Open Space of that park at all. I believe there have been some misstatements of fact that have become accepted as true, but they are not. If I believe for a moment that refurbishing this field and track would ruin that park, I would never support it."

Those were sentiments shared by the two other Democrats, including Jalloh, who said that park refurbishments make Union County a desirable place for people looking to move there.

Stadium upgrades are also "not something brand new" to the county, according to Jalloh, as the Board of Chosen Freeholders has been upgrading other county parks, and "I don't see why we wouldn't do it in Rahway." The proposal will improve the existing recreational space at Rahway River Park, said the Democrats, without violating the spirit of the park.

Bonilla criticized the Democrats' response, though, arguing that they weren't taking public opinion into consideration.

"From all of the comments here just now, I did not hear, at all, 'we spoke to residents and took their concerns, or their issues, with this park,'" said Bonilla. "I love football, but I'm against the park because it's just more spending, and more spending means increases in taxes."

The following question was just as divisive as the first. Because the Board of Chosen Freeholders has been run by one-party rule for the past 20 years, a member of the media asked, should the county consider adopting the ward system of government, in which candidates are elected based on districts.

The challengers, representing a party which often has sizable support but never a majority in elections, agreed that there needs to be a Republican voice on the board, and that the ward system would accomplish that. Dierkes, in particular, called out the county's one-party rule, comparing Union County to the capital of The People's Republic of China.

"My wife was born in Beijing, China, which is a one-party rule country. And she came to this country when she was 26-years-old, and guess what, she's back in a one-party county. Now, there's some great things about having one party. You get things done very quickly. So when I'm in Beijing, it's amazing to see how fast things go up," said Dierkes. "But if you're in Beijing and you want a breath of fresh air, you better be ready to drive 500 miles."

The ward system, Republicans argued, would improve accurate representation in the county, while forcing the majority party to be held accountable for their actions. Fortunato said that one-party rule promotes partisanship, and Bonilla believes it leads to "closed-door meetings."

But the Beijing comparison, and the accusation of closed-door meetings, drew the ire of the Democratic candidates, who were very familiar with the question. Changing systems would be like "taking the vote away from the people," said Mirabella, while Jalloh added that we "can't silent the urban areas in this county," which are typically Democratic.

"Every time I get asked that question, I can't help but feel a little offended," said Jalloh. "If residents believe Democrats are consistent with their ideals, then they should be able to vote all Democrats."

Adopting a new system of electing the board, said the Democrats, would not be in the interest of the voters. Bergen, for his part, pointed out the existing diversity among the elected Democrats, and offered a clear rebuttal to both Dierkes and Bonilla.

"The reason we don't have districts is because that's not how the law is set up. And in fact, if I'm correct, only two counties in New Jersey have districts as opposed to an elected authority. Clearly Mr. Bonilla has no idea how this government runs, because there are no decisions made in closed-door sessions. That's illegal," said Bergen. "I also would point out the Freeholder Board that sits up there now is diverse as to location of where they come from in the county, as to gender, as to religion, as to ethnicity, and we have a very diverse board that discusses issues and makes decisions based on what's best for this county. To equate us to a communist government that is not elected, I find that very insulting."

After the dust settled on the question of one-party rule, the candidates were asked if they are in favor of the one-seat ride to New York City. If so, the question went, what would they do to re-ignite the project?

All six of the candidates endorsed the one-seat ride, including the Democrats, who are "continuing to have conversations," to make the dream a reality, said Jalloh. Union County is already a hub of transportation, and more convenient access to New York City would be great for regular commuters, added the candidates, which makes economic sense.

"Of course I would be in support of the one-seat ride," said Dierkes. "Anything that makes life for the residents of Union County easier is a great idea."

But while the candidates agreed they would apply pressure to make the one-seat ride a reality, "we have not had the leadership at the state level," said Bergen. The cancellation of the rail tunnel project under the Hudson River, along with a lack of cooperation from the state and the governor, has diminished the likelihood of the one-seat ride, according to Bergen.

The following question, after being rephrased for clarity, asked candidates if they would support or encourage municipal ordinances which mandate paid sick leave, or similar social services, for both public and private employees. Nine cities in New Jersey have passed laws on mandatory paid sick leave, including Bloomfield of Essex County, and it's been taken under consideration in Elizabeth.

Fortunato cautioned against forcing private businesses to act in certain ways. Most of the candidates, among them Bonilla and Bergen, were unsure if the county had the legal

THE FDA TAKES AIM AT FALSE CLAIMS

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration is taking a tough stance when scrutinizing the claims made by some beauty products.

Skin products that assert that they are "clinically proven to change the anatomy of a wrinkle," for instance, are saying that they can affect the structure of the function of the human body. As such, they are considered to be drugs, which fall under the purview of the FDA. In that case, the manufacturer must submit to the FDA's review process, which includes scientific testing and clinical trials. Otherwise, any claim to "restore the elastin fiber architecture" or about authority to effect such ordinances. Even if it did, they said, that was an issue best left to labor unions and other agencies.

"potent elastin-stimulating peptides (that) help enhance skin structure" may be considered false. Consumers are advised to shop with a critical eye.

"It's an interesting intellectual question. From practical standpoints, I have my doubts as to whether that could be done. And I have to agree with Mr. Bonilla in so far as county employees, we have 23 labor unions representing our employees," said Bergen. "The process by which we arrive at contracts is through contract negotiations, where those unions represent their employees, and we would have to go through that process to make a change."

The candidates were then asked which services on the local level could be better done at the county level, and vice versa, a question which kindled a broad discussion about the services which Union County offers. Many of the county's hundreds of services, according to Mirabella, are more efficient when run at the county level, including Union County's successful EMS and dispatch programs.

"Our county has a vast array of shared services that we offer to our municipalities. Shared services, at one time, was thought to be between municipality and municipality. But I believe that the better way for shared services is for the county to offer a service to all of the municipalities," said Bergen. "And in fact we have a booklet with hundreds of shared services that we offer to all of our municipalities, running the gamut."

Republicans also said they would support county programs which save municipalities money, but that they'd try to lower the budget and cut costs, as well. There's no reason that small, pocket parks can't be operated at the local level, according to Fortunato, while Dierkes cited his experience in saving money at the Rahway Valley Sewer Authority board, where he helped lower the budget by $1 million while "still maintaining the same level of service," he said.

For the penultimate question, candidates were asked about the history of unanimous votes made by the Board of Chosen Freeholders. In hindsight, the question posited, would Democrats change any votes that they've made? And do the Republicans strongly oppose any of the board's uncontested votes?

As it turns out, the Republicans did have objections about the board's history, among them the votes on the county budget and, once again, the Rahway River Park proposal.

"Taxes are high, spending is high, and we need to look at every angle of what the county is bringing in and also spending on. And with a budget of half a billion dollars, it's ridiculous. I would have voted no for the Rahway Park. The Rahway citizens have spoken, they know their community better than any of us," said Bonilla. "And the citizens are why we are here, we work for them."

But the Democrats stood by their track records, saying that the board's uncontested votes don't represent a lack of discussion or dialogue.

"The fact that there's a vote of 9-0 doesn't mean there hasn't been discussion. Every resolution that comes onto our agenda is discussed by the Freeholder board in an agenda-setting session," said Bergen. "We have an opportunity to ask our department heads questions about each of those resolutions, and it's certainly not unheard of for a resolution to be pulled from the agenda."

For the final minutes of the debate, the candidates were asked why they should be elected, and then had a chance to make one last case for themselves in their closing statements. Both Republicans and Democrats reaffirmed the points they'd been making all night, and each argued that they represented the party with the people's best interests at heart.

The Democrats, for example, pointed to their history of repairing local infrastructure, providing social services and sparking economic development, not just for segments of the population but for everyone in Union County.

"There's a great difference between what Democrats and Republicans can believe. Just look at the rhetoric on the national level. We, as Democrats, believe investing in our infrastructure is a necessity. We believe that a quality education for our children is a priority, and we also believe that maintaining the safety net for our most vulnerable residents is a must," said Jalloh. "We have a track record of success in those areas."

The Republicans, meanwhile, voiced their grievances with the current set-up, one last time. There are problems in Union County, they argued, and in order to solve those, and to bring trust back to county government, there needs to be a Republican on the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

"There is room for improvement in Union County. Parts of the county have significantly higher unemployment rates than the rest of the state, we have an 11.1 percent poverty rate in this county, we have the seventh-highest real estate taxes in this country. On the other hand, we have a dynamic population. We have great, hard-working, family-oriented people," said Fortunato. "We have a lot going for us. But we're not taking advantage of that. For over 20 years, the Democratic county government has, seemingly, been more interested in politics and partisanship, and the political issues of campaign contributors, than what's good for the county and the people of the county. That needs to end."

October Is Breast Cancer Awareness Month

Early Detection Empowers

Diagnosing potential breast problems at an early stage gives patients the advantage of choosing from a full spectrum of prevention and treatment options. The advantage of diagnostic capabilities make it possible to do this. What's more, a team of breast health specialists are experienced in developing personalized care plans based on each individual patient's needs and preferences. That's why, when it comes to breast care, more women go for the quality attention they deserve.

Mammography Screening is the most effective method available for early breast cancer detection. While no medical test is 100 percent accurate, a mammogram is often able to detect a breast abnormality before it can be felt. Follow these recommended guidelines for protecting your breast health:

- Schedule a mammogram every year starting at age 40
- Schedule a clinical breast exam annually
- Perform a monthly breast self-exam
- Ask your a physician for a risk assessment

Working toward a cure for cancer

If you have started to notice an abundance of pink ribbons or similar pink paraphernalia at your place of work, at school, on television, on athletic fields and seemingly everywhere this month, it's not a coincidence; rather, it's the symbol for National Breast Cancer Awareness Month, which is observed each year in October. This effort to increase the awareness of breast cancer began in 1985 through a partnership between the American Cancer Society and the pharmaceutical division of Imperial Chemical Industries, now part of AstraZeneca, producer of several anti-breast cancer drugs.

The aim of National Breast Cancer Awareness Month from the start has been to promote mammography as the most effective weapon in the fight against breast cancer. Using pink as a symbol for this month came about in 1993, when Evelyn Lauder, senior corporate vice president of Estee Lauder Companies, founded the Breast Cancer Research Foundation and established the pink ribbon as its symbol. This was not the first time the ribbon was used to symbolize breast cancer, as the Susan G. Komen Foundation had handed out pink ribbons in 1991 to participants in the New York City race for breast cancer survivors.

Why is such attention focused on breast cancer? There are months devoted to raising awareness of cervical cancer, gallbladder and bile duct cancer, testicular cancer, esophageal cancer, brain cancer and bladder cancer, to name just a few. Shouldn't these months get equal time and attention?

All forms of cancer need to be addressed, but in such a visually conscious society as the United States, perhaps nothing draws attention as quickly as the pink ribbons of the breast cancer effort. The ribbons reinforce the need to address cancer in all its myriad forms. And if it seems as if it will cost too much or take too much time to be anything more than a pipe dream, it was the very same baby steps that lead to the cure of polio, smallpox, tetanus, measles, yellow fever, typhoid fever, whooping cough and malaria.

So what can you do? Check your town hall, mayor's office, board of education or superintendent's office, by phone, in person or online, to discover what has been planned for your community in October. And of course you can support various charities that both give money to scientists working toward a cure and to people trying to live their lives to the fullest after cancer has devastated them or someone in their family. No one is immune to cancer — yet — so we've all got to work together to make lives easier for those who are suffering while we help to find a cure.

The talk on Bedford Road

LEFT OUT

BY FRANK CAPECE

make sure to vote."

Dill explains that the unpopular Oratory expansion is not in the control of the city council but rather the "independent zoning board." His flier and campaign mantra includes the question "Why is Summit always on the list of top schools, towns and down-towns?" Somewhat immodestly he answers "Because we get the job done."

At one house, Dill faces the reasoned complaints of a resident about speeding on the street which is a convenient cut through to Morris Avenue. The fellow at this door is ready for action. He complains of unsatisfactory calls to the police and Mayor's office that did not solve the problem. This guy knows his stuff speaking about medium traffic speed rates and potential alternatives. Dill listens carefully, bringing forth his own experience on the subject. The charge is that students and faculty in the morning and afternoon are the prime offenders. Dill balances the discussion, reminding that often in his experience speed traps ensnare local residents as well. He adds the street is on our "watch list."

Experience remains a strong suit for Dill. Campaigning with him that day, Council President Robert Rubino reminds a family that Dill was a key player in finally getting the Morris Avenue

Bridge completed.

Dill tells residents that the city is fiscally strong. He proclaims Summit is the only town in New Jersey rated "AAA" by the three bonding agencies, Standard and Poors, Moody's and Fitch Triple A. He exhibits a broad smile when speaking about the need for a new soccer field and the rehabilitation of the recreation center he is spearheading.

His only reference to his opponent is to question Naidu's reference to transparency. The speech pattern moves quicker as he describes the adherence to the open public meetings law and the city's expansive website. On the subject of the city's downtown, he references a recent article in NJ Monthly calling the city's downtown one of the 16 best in the state. "That's among 567," Dill reminds. Dill fills the bill of most Republicans in the city by taking aim at the county government. At every door he proclaims that only 20 cents of every tax dollar goes to the municipal government while the county gets 30 cents. His verbal punch includes "Summit is 2 percent of the population but pays 11 percent of the county property taxes."

It's obvious he relishes the interplay with the residents. He says he understand the argument that he should limit his door-to-door visits to Republicans and independents. "Don't worry. I have the time to do them all," the retired executive replies. Not only the time, but also the desire.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Help end domestic violence

To the Editor:

Domestic violence affects every community. It thrives when we are silent, but if we take a stand and work together we can end domestic abuse. October is National Domestic Violence Awareness Month, and Rachel Coalition, a division of Jewish Family Service of MetroWest NJ, has two events scheduled that will help raise awareness of abuse.

A candlelight Vigil is taking place on Thursday, Oct. 15, at the Livingston Memorial Oval at 6:30 p.m. Local community partner organizations, political leadership and clergy will be present to honor the victims and survivors.

On Sunday, Oct. 18, in partnership with Temple Beth Ahm Yisrael of Springfield, Rachel Coalition is presenting "A Conversation With Mariska Hargitay" of "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit". Hargitay will answer questions about her role on "Law & Order SVU" and her Joyful Heart Foundation whose mission is to heal, educate and empower survivors of sexual assault, domestic violence and child abuse.

The candlelight vigil is free and open to the community. Tickets for the Mariska Hargitay event are available for sale at www.jfsmetrowest.org.

I hope members of the community will join me at both events and help to break the silence about domestic violence in our area.

OPINION

I'm still waiting for an answer

EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK

BY PATRICK BOBER

Last week, on Sept. 30, I had the pleasure of asking questions at the Union County freeholders debate hosted by the League of Women Voters. Along with Mike Shapiro from Tap Into, I was allowed to ask the candidates several questions in front of about 50 people and a live television audience.

The debate went just as many expected, with the candidates all having ample time to share their ideas and thoughts on a wide range of topics. But one question I asked appeared to catch the freeholders off guard, and anyone who was watching may have been wondering why. I am wondering, too.

I asked if the Democrat incumbents or the challenging Republicans would support or encourage local initiatives or laws to require mandatory paid sick leave, paid maternity leave and paid time off for public and private employees. The first time I asked the question, the Democrats focused on economic development and the Republicans continued their rallying cry against taxes.

No one answered the question, and so after they all gave their non-answer, I explained to the candidates and the audience that I felt the question merited asking a second time because I believe this to be an important issue.

The second time I asked the question, every candidate was confused and questioned the legality of such an issue.

To be clear, nine municipalities in New Jersey have already passed a law requiring paid sick leave for all employers, both public and private. Bloomfield was the most recent to pass such a law for all full-time and part-time employees. Elizabeth, the biggest city in Union County and third largest in the state, recently considered a measure that would do the same. The Star-Ledger reported on this issue in both Bloomfield and Elizabeth in the last eight months. This is a current event.

After the debate, more than one person, including some candidates, came up to me and expressed that they knew what I was talking about, but offered no answers or opinions. I contend they still had no idea.

If the Democrats had known what I was talking about, the residents would likely have heard about how a single mother working an hourly wage cannot afford to call in sick and feed her children. This is an improvement on the quality of life for some of the poorest and some of the hardest working residents of Union County. It supports them in their jobs and helps them with their health.

If the Republicans had known what I was talking about, they would have explained how this would be too large a burden on the local economy, forcing struggling employers to pay costs that they cannot afford. It's bad for business, they would have said, and would have a negative impact on jobs.

At least, those are the typical answers you can expect from typical partisan politicians. In fact, this should have been an easy question that would have given both parties a chance to ignite their bases with simple and straightforward answers. Instead, all of the candidates on stage questioned the legality of the issue and moved on.

In the current struggling economic climate of New Jersey, I think it is important to discuss real quality of life issues that families face. I think it is important to discuss topics of substance rather than skirt around issues by muttering in generalities. Taxes keep going up, shouted the Republicans. Taxes went up slower than they used to, shouted the Democrats. This is the first debate I have had the privilege of taking part in, but I feel like I've been there before. It's the same debate that Republicans and Democrats have been having for years. And the messages are getting old.

It's time for actual issues to be addressed, and for candidates to use the full weight of office to get measures accomplished, rather than campaigning year round and shouting about old arguments that will never be solved. Food banks are being used more than ever. Blood banks are always in need of more supplies. An entire swath of Linden is soaked in toxic chemicals. Flooding is costing billions of dollars every time a big storm approaches. Foreclosures are through the roof. Employment is stagnant. And yes, taxes are too high.

But instead of bickering over generalities, why can't we ever get to specific arguments without resulting in confused looks. I asked a simple question, and in return I couldn't even get a simple answer from a single candidate on the stage. And throughout the night, none of them were able to give a specific example of an idea, a strategy or a path for making Union County an even better place.

Instead of a mobile document shredder, perhaps the county can supply food to food banks in Elizabeth. Instead of a movie night, perhaps the county can have a mobile blood bank visit at local businesses and downtown areas. Instead of sitting back and passing unanimous resolutions with little insight from the public, how about a strongly worded rebuke of the ExxonMobil settlement. Instead of having a public relations department that acts like the Democrats' personal PR firm, how about supplying all police officers in Union County with body cameras. Instead of combining prisons with other counties, how about working to keep more people out of jail. Instead of expanding Watchung Stables, how about a few more health fairs in impoverished areas. Instead of building golf course clubhouses, how about building anything else that is more accessible to the public.

I'm not saying these are the solutions, or that these ideas are the right ones. I'm simply saying this is the debate I'd like to see take place. Let's face it. Taxes are high, but that is one of the reasons Union County can be such a great place. There are a great number of free programs and amazing places to visit due to those high taxes. Let's also face the truth that the budget is going to be around $500 million now and in the future, and will probably get bigger. Let's stop arguing about the size of the budget and start arguing about how best to utilize it.

Thank you to the League of Women voters, to anyone who attended or who watched, and thank you to the candidates for at least taking a bigger interest in the stake of the county. However, I am still waiting for an answer to my question, and I've got a lot more questions left to ask.

Monarch butterflies, fall's ultra-marathoners

As they alight on seaside goldenrod flowers or roost in Eastern red cedars, monarch butterflies are unmistakable, with their brilliant orange and black patterned wings.

Although their flight may seem meandering and subject to the vagaries of wind, monarchs are on an instinct-driven mission right now. These "ultra-marathoners" migrate more than 2,000 miles to the forests of central Mexico. They hold the distance record among migrating insects, and their journey is one of the true wonders of the world!

October is the height of monarch migration, and New Jersey's coastline is historically a good place to see them. But monarch numbers have declined precipitously due to widespread loss of milkweed plants, whose leaves are the sole food source for monarch caterpillars.

Across the entire country, the monarch butterfly population is down by more than 95 percent over the past few decades, from an estimated 1 billion in the mid-1990s to just 35 million in early 2014. Many wildlife experts believe monarchs deserve protection under the Endangered Species Act. Cape May is one of the great gathering places along the fall monarch butterfly migration route, just as it is for birds. Waves of butterflies rest and refuel along the tip of the peninsula before hazarding the Delaware Bay crossing.

New Jersey Audubon Society's Cape May Bird Observatory hosts the Monarch Monitoring Project, an annual nine-week census conducted during the fall migration since 1992. Throughout September and October, observers make three counts per day along a five-mile route crossing various coastal habitats. This year, said Mark Garland, communications director, the Monarch Monitoring Project has expanded to include counts at Stone Harbor Point and East Point on the Delaware Bay.

Census results vary tremendously due to yearly weather fluctuations, but trends can be detected due to decades of Cape May Point data. In 1999, observers counted an average of 359.8 butterflies per hour; but only 8.9 butterflies per hour were seen in 2004. So far this fall, Cape May's average has been 36.7 monarchs per hour, about the same as last year. The spring migration is very different from fall.

In spring, monarchs travel northward relatively short distances before mating, laying eggs on the underside of milkweed leaves and dying. The eggs hatch and larvae fatten up on milkweed leaves, ultimately metamorphosing into adult butterflies. The new adults continue the cycle. It takes about five monarch generations to complete the migration to the northern United States and Canada.

But in the fall, monarchs spend their energy on migration rather than reproduction. A single generation makes the long trip south. The only goal of the great-great-grandchildren of the butterflies that departed from Mexico in spring is to instinctively get back to the endangered forests of Oyamel fir in the mountains above Mexico

City, a place their non-migratory parents had never been!

"It's really remarkable," said Garland of the migratory monarchs. "There's some environmental cue that makes them behave entirely differently from previous generations."

So what can be done to help monarch butterflies rebound? You can plant milkweeds, and allow meadows to grow up naturally along edges and hedgerows, instead of mowing flat every last patch of vegetation.

Milkweed seeds are available at native plant nurseries, and many schools, businesses and nonprofit organizations sponsor planting programs.

Goats welcomed back at Summit Arboretum

place, and clearing the Daffodil Bowl takes months by human hands.

The goats, though, happily cut through the daffodil bulbs in about two weeks.

"After the bulbs bloom and are spent, we allow the property there to grow wild so it becomes a habitat. As a result, it gets so wild that it has to be cut down at the end of the season, in the fall," said Juliano. "For years and years, our staff did this by hand, and it took literally months. If they were lucky, they got it done before the hard frost, and if they weren't lucky, they were stuck. And we need to re-stock and replenish the Daffodil Bowl with more bulbs, and that's where the concept of the goats came in."

The presence of the goats helped spread awareness about "Celebrate Fall," which will also feature face painting, a costume parade, apple cider demonstrations, pumpkin decorating and various birds of prey, among them hawks and falcons. That kind of recognition helps the arboretum pull in more people with which to engage.

"Our visitorship has increased from 28,209 to over 70,000 now. These community events — this is 'Celebrate Fall,' the other is 'Daffodil Day' in the spring — are now bringing in well over 1,000 people per event," said Juliano. "At Daffodil Day we had 1,430 people here on one day, which is unheard of. We used to do 500, maybe 800, now we're doing well over 1,000. And people came from more than 61 surrounding communities. It's blowing our mind here."

Other changes that have helped, said Juliano, include social media and the rise of local bloggers. And when members of the Reeves-Reed Arboretum have gotten people's attention, said Juliano, they try to help people appreciate the biodiversity on display, even in Summit alone.

"Our service is in our programming and the meticulous way we maintain the property, and the site. So the awareness grows, because people will come by," said Juliano. "Even people who have lived in Summit will say 'gee, I've never actually been here.' And all of a sudden, they're enthralled and engaged, and that's the key word there, engaged. They become friends, they become partners in this."

Admission to "Celebrate Fall" is free to Reeves-Reed Arboretum members. For non-members, admission is $10 per person or $25 per family. Children under three are free.

The Summit Arboretum will have a small herd of goats living on their property for several weeks to help the staff with their seasonal work. The goats are better at removing clutter like grass and small foliage in hard to reach areas. The goats first visited last year and were able to do in two weeks what the staff used to find daunting, and sometimes impossible to accomplish before the first frost. The goats will also be a centerpiece during the upcoming 'Celebrate Fall' festival held later this month.

Fire prevention in Clark

October is fire prevention month and the Clark Fire Department's visit to the schools is always a big hit. Their focus is on fire safety, prevention and overall personal safety. There are many things that people can do to improve their safety at home and school from fire. Fire prevention activities were scheduled all last week at the preschool. The Clark Fire Department visited the preschool on Oct. 5 along with Sparky the fire dog video, a fireman dressed in full gear, demonstration of the sounding fire alarm and hands on experience with the fire hoses.

When I am feeling extra mom-nice and have the time, I like to make pancakes for my kids on school days. They don't know it, but I sometimes make extra batter, leave it in the fridge and tell them that if they get ready quickly for school, I will make them pancakes. The truth is, it's not much more work than making oatmeal or a bagel if the batter is made already and I can use the pancakes as a reward for making the morning less stressful for everyone. I'm also sending them off with a hot breakfast that feels like a treat. Enjoy!

Simple Pancakes

Dry ingredients

3/4 cup whole wheat or whole wheat
pastry flour
3/4 cup white flour
2 Tbs. maple sugar or regular sugar
1 Tbs. baking powder
pinch of salt optional sprinkle of flax seed and wheat germ to make them more healthy

Wet ingredients

2 eggs, beaten
3/4 cup whole or skim milk
2 Tbs neutral oil or melted butter

Also

Butter or oil for frying

Method

In a large bowl, mix the dry ingredients together.
In another medium sized bowl, mix the wet ingredients.
Dump the medium sized bowl's wet ingredients into the dry ingredient's bowl and mix until fully combined.
Heat up a frying pan or griddle over medium heat.
When hot, add a tsp. of butter to cover pan, wait a minute and pour pancake batter into sizes and shapes that you want.
When pancakes start to get bubbles on the top, flip over.
Repeat until all the batter is done and serve with fresh fruit and some maple syrup.

Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

KENILWORTH NEWS

Future president John F. Kennedy dated a young Kenilworth woman during World War II, and after the war came to Kenilworth to search for her. The mystery of her identity and the story are revealed in 'Kenilworth Memories,' a new Kenilworth history book by Walter E. Boright. The 'mystery' woman is pictured at right, and JFK at left.

New Kenilworth history book features JFK 'mystery'

"Kenilworth Memories," a new Kenilworth history book by Walter E. Boright, reveals that John F. Kennedy dated a young Kenilworth woman during World War II. The author will be attending the "Four Centuries in a Weekend" event at the historic Nitschke House on Oct. 17 and 18 to discuss the book.

Boright, who has written four previous Kenilworth history books, said he found members of the young woman's family and a few surviving classmates who verified the story. He said, "After the war, Kennedy actually came to Kenilworth in search of her. But who knew who Kennedy was to become, back then?"

According to the author, this and other untold stories, and events in Kenilworth history are among the topics presented in "Kenilworth Memories," and the book's 300 pages contain hundreds of Kenilworth, photographs, stories, legends, interviews, and trips down memory lane.

The name of the young Kenilworth woman who dated JFK, where she lived in Kenilworth, and Kennedy's visit to town are among the stories in the all-new history book, according to Boright.

To order the book, visit: Pat's Corner Café, 242 Boulevard and N. 7th Street; the Cammarota Agency, 510 Boulevard; the dental office of Dr. Jerome Forman, 513 Boulevard; the Kenilworth Library, and the Kenilworth Clerk's Office. Proceeds from the book go toward preserving and promoting local history.

Put The Brakes On Fatalities Day is Oct. 10

Motorists in New Jersey and throughout the nation are asked to join in Put the Brakes on Fatalities Day on Oct. 10, an effort to increase awareness about safe driving behaviors and keep the state's roadways fatality free for one day. The national initiative was designed to unite the country in moving toward zero fatalities for one full day by encouraging motorists to obey all traffic laws, including buckling up for every ride; driving the posted speed limit; avoiding distractions while driving; and always being safe and sober behind the wheel.

The goal is to experience a day when all roadway users are extra vigilant and there are no fatalities on our roadways. Last year in New Jersey, 556 people lost their lives in motor vehicle-related crashes, up from 542 in 2013. Pedestrian fatalities increased from 129 in 2013 to 170 in 2014. Average pedestrian fatalities increased from 139 in 2010 to 170 in 2014.

The 2014 numbers represent 31 percent of all crashes while, nationally, pedestrian fatalities are at 14 percent. Statewide, law enforcement agencies will be utilizing their variable message boards and conducting educational activities to raise public awareness regarding this issue during the week of Oct. 4, ending with Put the Brakes on Fatalities Day on Oct. 10.

Additional information on the "Put the Brakes on Fatalities Day" is available by logging on to www.brakesonfatalities.org form, and it really does integrate all of the classes.”

Students have opportunity for creativity

And that’s why Marsili is the 2015 Union County Teacher of the Year, an honor that reflects on the entire Kenilworth School District, she said. The work behind these art projects has been a community-wide effort, and allows students and teachers alike to find a creative outlet, said Marsili.

“Right now, with the way education is, the teachers that have academic courses are really busy. They’re teaching for the test. They have a lot of standards to live up to, and they don’t have a lot of time to deviate or be creative,” said Marsili. “I’m not tested. And I can ask teachers to come down into my classroom, share what they know, and then they can go back and we do the work.”

That’s the idea behind the residency grants, which Marsili believes more schools should try to implement.

No money is given in the grants, which are handled by the New Jersey State Council on the Arts. Instead, schools have the opportunity to work with an artist for up to 20 sessions, said Marsili, to create something unique to that township.

David Brearley Middle-High School, for example, now features multiple tributes to people around the community, including students’ grandparents, who were the subject of a bench with mosaicked towers.

“That’s what’s great about Kenilworth, really. It is a very tight-knit community. The theme of our bench was grandparents, because a lot of those kids, their grandparents live with them,” said Marsili. “Each student made a tile that reminded them of their grandparents, with a saying, either something their grandparents said or that reminded them of their grandparents. There were some really amazing things, like ‘my grandfather came to this country with $10 in his pocket,’ or ‘he taught himself how to read by watching Sesame Street.’”

The students are in charge of designing the projects, according to Marsili, as well as creating the final product, with the help of the residency artist and staff. That involves using a host of materials to create the projects, and learning how to put everything together during the process, including from the visiting artist.

“When we were making the garden, the resident artist had architectural training and an amateur carpenter. So she helped the kids measure the courtyard, and she taught them how to triangulate the measurements, and figure out where to place the trees so there’s heat and sun on the right times of the day,” said Marsili. “They learned a lot. That’s what’s great about bringing in somebody from the outside, and bringing in your teachers.”

This year was Marsili’s last as a grant writer, she said. But as the Union County Teacher of the Year, she wants to spread awareness about these kinds of projects, which offer a creative outlet to students who might not otherwise have such opportunities.

“A lot of former students still live around town, a lot of them come back, and enjoy what we’ve done,” said Marsili. “And I think it’s very important to represent the kids, not just the most academic but representing all different traits, so they can show what they can do.”

Seventh-graders will often work alongside high school seniors at the ongoing mural project at Kenilworth’s David Brearley Middle High School. The project is run by the Union County Teacher of the Year with help from an art grant.

The ongoing mural project at Kenilworth's David Brearley Middle High School is both indoors and outdoors, although a major impact from the project has been the outdoor area, where students have used a mosaic style to turn everything into an art project, and did quite a bit to spruce up the area in the process. Bottom left: A 'before' picture shows part of the area at the school before the project began. With the help of grant money, outside 'consultants' were brought in to work with the students on art projects, building small structures and more.

Plainfield man charged with murder

A Plainfield resident has been arrested and charged in a fatal shooting that occurred on New Year's Day, acting Union County Prosecutor Grace H. Park announced last week.

Gregory Croom, 20, is charged with first-degree murder and two second-degree weapons offenses in connection with the January 1, 2015 death of 20-year-old Fatin Hunt of Plainfield.

On the night of the incident, Plainfield Police Division patrol units rushed to the 200 block of Richmond Street on a report of shots being fired, and found Hunt suffering from gunshot wounds; he was pronounced dead shortly thereafter, according to Union County Assistant Prosecutor Jillian Reyes, who is prosecuting the case.

A joint investigation by the Prosecutor's Office's Homicide Task Force and the Plainfield Police Division, assisted by the Union County Sheriff's Office Identification Unit, subsequently identified Croom as a suspect in the case, Reyes said.

Croom was arrested without incident in Plainfield Monday, Sept. 28, and lodged in Union County Jail, with bail set at $800,000 by state Superior Court Judge Robert J. Mega. Convictions on first-degree murder charges are commonly punishable by 30 years to life in state prison. These criminal charges are mere accusations. Each defendant is presumed innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

Jury convicts robbery suspect

A Union County jury has returned guilty verdicts against an Essex County man who robbed a woman at gunpoint in Elizabeth last year, acting Union County Prosecutor Grace H. Park announced recently.

Diken Michelle, 30, of East Orange, was convicted on charges including first-degree robbery, two second-degree gun offenses, third-degree theft, and fourth-degree possession of a large-capacity magazine following a two-week trial before state Superior Judge Scott J. Moynihan and several hours of jury deliberation spread out over two days.

The date was Jan. 26, 2014, when the victim parked her car on the 100 block of Bayway Avenue in Elizabeth, according to Union County Assistant Prosecutors Armando Suarez and Michael D'Agostino, who prosecuted the case. While gathering her belongings in her vehicle, a man later identified as Michelle approached the vehicle, brandished a handgun, and demanded her personal effects, Suarez and D'Agostino said. The woman handed over items including her purse, cell phone, makeup case, a duffel bag, and her car keys, after which Michelle fled the scene. A bystander who witnessed the crime then approached the victim and immediately called 911.

Responding Elizabeth Police Department patrol units used the "Find my iPhone" app to trace the victim's cell phone to a location on the 300 block of South Front Street in Elizabeth, where they found Michelle and arrested him shortly thereafter. The next day, a handgun matching the description of that used in the robbery was recovered in a snowbank not far from where Michelle and his vehicle were found.

THIS IS HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

Brearley has the look.

The Bears have that look of a team that is destined to play for a championship in early December.

With a record of 4-0 for the first time since 2008, Brearley is coming off an impressive 20-10 win at 2-0 Roselle Park last Thursday night in Mid-State 38 Conference-Valley Division play.

Brearley didn't have to win 49-0 to show dominance, which came on both sides of the ball.

Long drives on offense were once again the name of the game for the Bears, while they only allowed a single touchdown, which happened to come on the game's first play from scrimmage.

Roselle Park fourth-year head coach Terry Hanratty had high praise for the victors.

"They had the ball the majority of the time," Hanratty said. "They were more physical than we were. They were tougher."

"Even if we were lucky with a couple of key plays, they were better. I don't care what the score was, it wasn't even close."

Brearley had this look under 14th-year head coach Scott Miller his first season at the helm in 2002 and again in 2005 and 2006. His 2008 team started 9-0, but finished 9-1 after going up against a better Verona squad in the state playoffs.

The 2002 team also started 8-0 and then finished 9-1 after getting upset by Boonton 14-7 in a North 2, Group 1 quarterfinal at Union.

The 2005 squad made it all the way to the Central Jersey, Group 1 final for the first time, falling to two-time defending champion Florence 19-6 in the final at Rutgers.

The 2006 team won North 2, Group 1 for the first time in 15 years and also became the first team from Union County to finish a season 12-0.

This could be another banner year for the Bears.

They appear on their way.

Brearley is 4-0 and will host Manville (0-4) and Pingry (1-3) the next two Friday nights. There's a good chance that Brearley's Nov. 6 home game vs. New Providence will be for the Mid-State 38 Conference's Valley Division championship.

Brearley shows no panic early in big victory over Roselle Park Captures battle of undefeated league foes

By JR Parachini
Sports Editor

ROSELLE PARK — After Roselle Park scored a touchdown on the game's first play from scrimmage, visiting Brearley took it in stride.

The Bears didn't panic.

Brearley answered by marching the ball right down the field to reach the end zone for its first time. Brearley then couldn't wait to get back on defense.

That's because the Bears wanted to immediately show that Carry Mimy's 67-yard touchdown run would not happen again.

Sparked by a stellar defensive effort led by the likes of seniors Erik Loneker and Tyler DaCosta and junior Dan Palumbo, the Bears — over and over again — stuffed Roselle Park runners at the line of scrimmage.

Brearley then put together two more long drives for touchdowns — quickly becoming a team staple — and did indeed prevent the host Panthers from reaching the end zone once more.

Roselle Park sophomore Valentino Ambrosio kicked a 37-yard field goal on the final play of the first half to pull his team to within three at intermission.

At left is Roselle Park punter Valentino Ambrosio. He is also the team's placekicker and he kicked a 37-yard field goal in last Thursday night's 20-10 loss at home to arch rival Brearley. At right is fourth-year Roselle Park head coach Terry Hanratty. His Panthers next have long bus rides to Belvidere tomorrow night and then to South Hunterdon next weekend before returning home for an Oct. 23 game against Dayton.

However, that was it offensively for the Panthers.

Brearley — like it did last week at home against Dayton — had a big advantage in time of possession in the second half, its first drive lasting nearly seven minutes.

It all added up to a decisive 20-10 Brearley victory last Thursday night in Mid-State 38 Conference-Valley Division action at Herm Shaw Field.

In the battle of undefeated arch rivals, Brearley improved to 4-0 overall and 4-0 in the Valley Division, while Roselle Park fell to 2-1 overall and 2-1 in the Valley.

Brearley also defeated Roselle Park by 10 points last year, winning 34-24 at Ward Field in Kenilworth.

"Defensively, we did a great job," said Brearley senior two-way lineman Erik Loneker, who sat out the Dayton game with an ankle injury but was able to come back and play Thursday night with the aid of a boot. "We also had a young sophomore (lineman Kairi Days) step up for us."

Brearley's really only misplay on defense came on the first play that Roselle Park had the ball. On first and 10 from its own 33 following the opening kickoff, Mimy — a senior who wears No. 28 — took the handoff and managed to run through contact just past the line of scrimmage.

Then a big hole opened in the middle of the field and he ran right through it, untouched the rest of the way and into the end zone.

"We had two kids in position, but didn't make the play," Brearley head coach Scott Miller said. "Their kid made a nice run."

"We popped a nice run there, everyone made their blocks," Roselle Park head coach Terry Hanratty said.

Brearley also has its own version of a senior running back who dons No. 28. That's Anthony Primavera.

On his team's opening drive, Primavera carried seven times for 55 yards, including a 13-yard touchdown run. The 11-play march covered 85 yards and took nearly five minutes.

When Roselle Park got the ball back for the second time, the Panthers lost three yards running the ball on first down, one more on second and then another on third after Brearley's Nick Arcieri brought down Roselle Park senior quarterback Joe Woods.

Brearley's second possession was also 11 plays, this time covering 65 yards and taking six more minutes off the clock. Senior quarterback Sebastian Montesdeoca closed the march by running up the middle for a 10-yard touchdown run, his first of two scores.

"We wanted to control the ball," Miller said. "Our game plan was to gain chunks of yardage and control it that way."

Roselle Park really didn't gain much offensively in the first half after Mimy's run until Woods broke free and down the right sideline late in the second quarter. However, Brearley defensive back Evan Collier caught up with Woods and managed to pry the ball loose. Teammate Brian Resende was there to recover the Roselle Park fumble on the Brearley five.

Roselle Park held Brearley to without a first down and after Brearley's punt the Panthers had the ball to start on the Brearley 26.

With just 49 seconds left and one timeout, Roselle Park managed to get Ambrosio a shot at a 37-yard field goal on the final play of the first half. Ambrosio's kick hit the right upright, but still managed to go over the crossbar, good for three points.

Ambrosio's successful field goal attempt cut Brearley's lead to 13-10 at intermission.

"I felt we could have had a bigger lead at halftime," Miller said. "We gave them a short field there for the field goal."

Although Brearley's first second-half drive did not produce any points, 14 plays did take 6:51 off the clock. Roselle Park was then held to a quick three-and-out.

Brearley's next drive produced the game's final points. An eight-play, 51-yard march took just over three minutes, with Primavera doing most of the running. Montesdeoca capped the surge with a one-yard run up the middle on fourth-and-goal. That was the first of three big fourth down plays Brearley converted in the second half.

"Sebastian relies on his natural ability," Miller said.

Both teams turned the ball over in a three-play span before Brearley — with the aid of Montesdeoca and Primavera running for first downs on fourth down plays — ran the final 9:03 off the clock, marching deep into Roselle Park territory to close the victory.

"They had the ball the majority of the time," Hanratty said. "They were more physical than we were."

"They were tougher.

"Even if we were lucky with a couple of key plays, they were better. I don't care what the score was, it wasn't even close."

Brearley has won all four games by double digits and has the opportunity to continue that streak with upcoming home league games against Manville — tomorrow night — and Pingry — next weekend.

"Being 4-0 feels great, but we can't sleep on anyone," Loneker said.

"It's a long season and after this game tonight we know that we have to get better," Hanratty said.

Roselle Park is preparing for a league game at Belvidere tomorrow night at 7. The Panthers then play at South Hunterdon next weekend before returning home Oct. 23 vs. Dayton.

Cranford football prepping for another undefeated foe

Has big league game at Voorhees tomorrow

By JR Parachini

Last year Cranford made quite a statement by starting the season with wins over three consecutive undefeated teams — all three of those squads going on to make the playoffs.

The last two of those teams were Summit and Voorhees, Cranford winning those games last year at home.

Cranford is coming off a 42-0 win at Summit last Saturday and is now preparing for a second straight 3-0 squad — this one Voorhees — who the Cougars will play in Glen Gardner tomorrow night.

Defending champion Cranford and Voorhees are vying for the Mid-State 38 Conference's Raritan Division title, both the only undefeated teams in league play so far, and also for seeding positioning in North 2, Group 3.

Voorhees did not play Warren Hills last week because of the death of Warren Hills senior quarterback Evan Murray two weekends ago. Head coach Bob Angstadt's Vikings were 4-0 last year when they ventured to Cranford and came away with a 42-7 loss.

"This is a new year and Voorhees has had a good amount of success as have we," Cranford head coach Erik Rosenmeier said. "Last year's game was closer than the score indicated. We made two, big fourth-down plays — one in each half — that helped us."

Voorhees was sparked by a three-touchdown performance from senior Charlie Rodenberger in his team's last game, a 55-35 Raritan Division triumph at Somerville two weeks ago. Rodenberger rushed for two touchdowns of 51 yards and one of 82 and also completed a 50-yard touchdown pass to senior Michael Buckley.

"They see a division title up for grabs and movement in the playoff seeding down the road, so it's a huge game for both programs," Rosenmeier said.

Cranford is 4-0 overall for the second straight season and leads the Raritan Division at 3-0. Voorhees is 3-0 overall and 2-0 in the Raritan Division.

Cranford is presently tied with Ridgely Park (4-1) in the power points standings in North 2, Group 3, both with 44, although the Cougars have a game in hand. Voorhees is in 10th place with 24. A decision by the NJSIAA has to be made whether or not Voorhees will be judged by eight games or by seven if it does not end up playing Warren Hills.

The final regular season game for Voorhees is at home against North Hunterdon Nov. 6, which is the playoff cutoff date weekend. If Voorhees does not play Warren Hills, that will be the Vikings' eighth game instead of their ninth.

"While we know Summit better, it's still a big challenge," Rosenmeier said. "If you want to win a division championship and want to get a higher seed in the playoffs, these are games you have to win. That will make for a good contest."

Voorhees has won all three of its games by double digits and Cranford has done the same in its last three.

"They've played similar teams to us and have had similar scores," Rosenmeier said. "Last year is over. We both have not lost yet, which makes for an exciting matchup."

Cranford turned the ball over on its first two drives against Summit, but dominated the second quarter to have a five-touchdown lead at the half.

"I don't think Summit was at their best mentally or physically," Rosenmeier said. "That game was not an indicator of what kind of team they have."

"That was a very tough spot for them to play in and we certainly had empathy for them, but we had to get our team ready."

"Their quarterback (junior Jake Froschauer) was nicked up and he didn't play too much."

Froschauer was one of three quarterbacks head coach Kevin Kostibos used.

Cranford led 7-0 going into the second quarter after Sean Leonard returned a fumble for a touchdown.

"We had a lot of yardage in the first quarter but only a defensive touchdown to show for it," Rosenmeier said.

Cranford senior Villanova-bound quarterback Jack Schetelich ran for two scores and passed for one — to Joe Norton — in the second quarter, while Brian Oblachinski returned an interception for a touchdown.

"We had two defensive scores and when you force those kinds of plays it can give you momentum," Rosenmeier said. "Offensively, we got a little bit on track in the second quarter."

"Summit definitely played hard, but wasn't themselves."

After Cranford opened with a 24-23 win at Warren Hills, the Cougars have averaged 41 points and have outscored their last three foes 124-21, scoring at least 41 points in each game.

"We had a good number of new players out there to start the season," Rosenmeier said. "Now it's week five and those guys are not considered new anymore."

"Expectations are higher for these guys now. If they're not performing we have to make changes."

"I'm happy with the improvement of not only our new guys, but of the guys who have started before."

"We have to continue to improve. We can't turn the ball over like we did twice early on against Summit. There will be different circumstances where that won't be so easy to overcome."

After losing to Summit for five straight regular seasons and one playoff game since 2009 when both teams entered the Mid-State 38 Conference, Cranford now has a two-game winning streak over the Hilltoppers.

The possibility of meeting again this year is not there because Summit moved up to North 2, Group 4 for the first time.

In addition to beating Summit a second straight season, Cranford ended another Summit winning streak, while extending one of its own.
