CRANFORD, NEW JERSEY, NAME INDEX

Compiled by Robert Fridlington

Cranford Public Library
Cranford Historical Society

1994

PREFATORY NOTE

This index is intended as an aid to research in local or family history. It lists those Cranford residents, living and dead, whose names have appeared in printed sources other than newspapers. The names of a few non-residents have also been included because of some special association they had with Cranford or, at an earlier date, with Crane's Mills.

The Key to Title Abbreviations contains complete citations for all of the material indexed. This material includes a wide variety of books and periodicals, but except for some sections of county histories, it does not include any work that is primarily genealogical. Of course, not all of the indexed works are of equal value or reliability.

The names in the index are arranged alphabetically by surname. A woman identified by her husband's name is listed immediately after the husband if both have entries. Mrs. John J. Smith, therefore, would follow John J. Smith. Yet, because most of the names are listed in the index exactly as found, the alphabetical rule has forced the separation of many husbands and wives. Thus, Mrs. J.J. Smith would be listed before her husband John J. Smith and might even be a few names removed. When women were well known or were listed under both their maiden and married names, cross-references are provided.

Occasionally, when variations of a name are given, but one can be reasonably assured they refer to the same person, the names are included in the same entry. In such cases the variant is shown in parentheses. For example, a reference to John J. Smith might include the parenthetical note (J.J.) to indicate that this particular source referred to Smith by his initials. Misspellings and variant spellings of last names are shown in the same way.

A picture of an individual, whether formal photograph, snapshot, painting, or drawing, is listed with the note (pic. of). A picture of a person's residence is listed with (pic. residence). In a few other cases notes have been added for information or clarification.

I am particularly grateful to three people for their assistance in the preparation of this index. Donald Widdows of the Cranford Historical Society provided valuable advice and encouragement. Linda Keller of the Cranford Public Library found books when they were needed and twice came to my rescue when my word-processor turned against me. A special debt is owed John Malar, Director of the Cranford

PREFATORY NOTE

Public Library, who first urged me to take the data I had accumulated on index cards and transfer it to the printed page. He then helped prepare the initial draft, and he weeded out many errors and inconsistencies. Whatever the value of this index, it has been considerably enhanced by his interest and efforts.
