Rowe, Fetherston Clash on County Park Proposal

Breaking a long silence, the Republican candidate for the Board of Freeholders made his first major move this week in the battle for a three-year term. As he did, the Democratic aspirant for the chair picked up the cue, and this particular political pot was well on its way to the boiling stage.

Last Friday morning the Freeholders at their regular weekly meeting had a letter from GOP candidate Henry Fetherston of Watchung. He proposed that the board create a 5-man County Park Commission to tie in with the proposed compensating reservoir on the Raritan River, which is included in the Chimney Rock reservoir development plan now before the State Legislature.

'Just Take a Ride'

"I am sure no one will deny the desirability and need for county parks," he wrote. "Just look at the spectacular systems in Union, Bergen and Essex counties. They were not built overnight but have been developing for years. One needs only to take a ride through their facilities to see what we here in Somerset have been missing for many years."

This was the cue for Mrs. Eleanor Rowe of Basking Ridge, first Somerset woman ever to seek a Freeholder's chair, her aim being to win the seat now held by Republican John Veghte of New Center, who is not seeking re-election.

Mr. Fetherston has "gone off half-cocked," Mrs. Rowe declared Monday. "Since this is an election year, this was to be expected. However, his espousal of a county park system must come as quite a shock to C. I. Van Clee, his political tutor."

Boasted Board

By inference, she referred to Democratic campaigns in recent years which berated the all-Republican Board of Freeholders for the lack of a single county park.

"I am in complete agreement with one part of his letter to the freeholders," she said. "I refer to the paragraph where he suggests we all take a ride through the park of other counties to see what we here in Somerset have been missing for years."

"Indeed we have missed parks," she concluded. "I call to his attention the fact that Republican freeholders have denied us parks during the 'many years.'"

Not content with the Battle of the Parks, Mr. Fetherston came out Tuesday with what he considers "the most important plank"

Dems Pick Pillon For Committee

Dante A. Pillon, 28, of Como Drive, Middlebush, was chosen Thursday by the Democratic Municipal Committee to be the third candidate for Township Committeeman. He replaces Charles Gobac, who had recently resigned to accept an appointment as a State ABC inspector.

Dante A. Pillon

Until his selection, Mr. Pillon had been an independent voter, although his father had been active in Jersey City Democratic politics before the family moved to Middlebush. The new candidate has resided here since 1942.

Running with Mr. Pillon who is seeking a three-year term, are Charles McCloskey of 9 Cooper Avenue and Michael Peacos of Copper Mine Road, candidates for two-year and three-year terms, respectively. Three vacant committee seats are to be filled this year to increase the Township Committee from three to five members as proscribed by State law because of the Township's population growth.

Gobac in Camp

Mika Beute Feller, vice-chairman, presided at the Democratic meeting, held in Fairlawn Inn, Mr. Gobac, the chairman, presently is attending a six-week course in the Municipal Police

The Joint Hospital Building Fund Inc. today announced that the Most Rev. George W. Ahr, S. T. D., Bishop of Trenton, and General Robert Wood Johnson, chairman of the board of Johnson & Johnson, have accepted posts as honorary co-chairmen of the area-wide $3,000,000 campaign to expand St. Peter's General Hospital and Middlesex General Hospital.

Judge John J. Rafferty, president of the newly formed Fund, cited the enlistment of the honorary co-chairmen as "evidence of the strong leadership we will and must have in our campaign organization to raise such a substantial sum in this area."

Bishop Ahr, chairman of the board of trustees of St. Peter's Hospital, has served for many months as the chairman of the Joint Hospital Committee.

General Johnson has for many years been an active supporter of both hospitals in New Brunswick and served for six years as president of Middlesex Hospital.

Schools Close; Ione Disappears

Students of Franklin schools got a day off Tuesday, as the area braced for Hurricane Ione. It was one of several emergency measures taken by the Township in preparation for the tropical storm, which blew harmlessly out to sea after striking the North Carolina coastline.

Civil Defense Director James Maher said all first aid squads were called from a standby basis at 11 a.m., by authority of the State CD organization.

SENATOR FORBES SPEAKS TO LIONS CLUB WEDNESDAY

Republican State Senator Malcolm S. Forbes has been invited to address the Township Lions Club at its regular meeting Wednesday night. He will discuss the proposed Chimney Rock reservoir. The dinner-meeting will be in Colonial Farms, Middlebush, and starts at 6:30.

COMMITTEE MEETS TONIGHT

The Township Committee will meet tonight at 8 in Township Hall.

'Rock' Can Kill Sewer Plan, Engelhard Says

8,000 Expected For Holy Hour At J-M Sunday

The Most Rev. George W. Ahr, Bishop of Trenton, will preside over the Holy Hour Sunday on the grounds of the Johns-Manville Research Center, Manville. All units have been asked to report by 2:30 p.m., since the program will begin at 3 p.m. The event will be cancelled in case of rain.

One of five similar observances throughout the Diocese of Trenton, the Holy Hour here will be arranged by the Somerset and Middlesex County Federations of Holy Name Societies. Host parishes are those of Sacred Heart and Christ the King in Manville. An estimated 8,000 men are expected to attend and may bring their families. Sisters of convents in both counties have also been invited. All units have been asked to report by 2:30 p.m.

Choir Ready

The Very Rev. Gerald J. Whelan, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Rochester, N. Y., will preach the sermon. The Men's Choir of the Calco Chemical Catholic Men's Club, directed by M. N. Gaboury, will furnish music.

Dedication of the general program will be to Christ and the Blessed Sacrament for the increase of religious vocations, according to the Reverend Eugene B. Kelly, pastor of Christ the King parish and Somerset County spiritual director.

The bishop's chaplains will be the Revs. Joseph J. Connolly and Alfred T. Sico. Father Connolly is the pastor of Corpus Christi Church in South River and spiritual director of Middlesex. Father Sico, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, South Plainfield, is the former Somerset County spiritual director.

Assistants Named

At Benediction, Bishop Ahr will be assisted by the Rev. Pasquale Mugnano, pastor of St. Mary and Mt. Virgin Church, and the Rev. Alexander L. Zdanewicz, pastor of St. Joseph's. Both churches are in New Brunswick. William Albe of Somerville is the president of the Somerset County Federation of Holy Name Societies, which has 2,700 registered members. There are 6,000 registered in the Middlesex County Federation.

All five Holy Hours in the Trenton Diocese will be sponsored by the Diocesan Union of Holy Name Societies, although the county federations organize the programs.

The other four services will be at Trenton (Mercer County), Medford (Burlington County), Whitehouse Station (Hunterdon and Warren Counties) and Spring Lake (Monmouth and Ocean Counties).

A Somerset-Raritan trunk sewer is doomed to failure if a Chimney Rock reservoir is built. This was the prediction of Democratic Senate candidate Charles Engelhard this week in his latest blast against the water supply program now before the Legislature.

He offered his forecast Tuesday evening before the Bound Brook Rotary Club, as the 100-million dollar proposal scheduled for referendum in November still awaited a legislative vote. The bill came before the Senate on Monday evening, but debates on amendments to the bill, plus the desire of many legislators to be out of Trenton with Hurricane Ione on the loose, caused postponement. Action is scheduled for tomorrow night with both houses ready to vote on companion bills and send the measure to Gov. Robert Meyner for his signature.

GOP Sees Victory

Republican leaders seemed certain the measure would pass both houses and that the governor would sign it. To be placed on the November ballot, the measure must be enacted by Sept. 29, one week from today.

The Somerset-Raritan Authority is scheduled to process sewage for Somerville, Raritan, Bridgewater and, possibly, other communities in the county.

By drawing water from the Raritan for the reservoir, Mr. Engelhard told the Rotarians in Bound Brook Inn, there will be an insufficient supply to provide for proper dilution of waste.

Without this dilution, the effluent discharged into the river will not be beneficial to marine life and will not make the river a healthful source of recreation," he declared.

'Far Cry'

"Original trunk sewer plans for Somerset County call for the treatment of 22 million gallons of effluent a day," he continued. "According to the two consulting engineering firms who reported in 1953 to the Citizens' Committee on Water Supply & Pollution, this treated effluent must be diluted by river water.

"On the basis of the amount of treatment to be given the sewage, 13 gallons of river water will be needed for every gallon of treated effluent. This means that to effectively dilute 22 million gallons of treated sewage, the minimum daily flow in the river must be 286 million gallons. This is a far cry from the 130 million gallons a day now proposed, and we are not even sure now if we are going to get that."

ROCKY HILL FIREMEN TO DEDICATE NEW TRUCK

Rocky Hill firemen will dedicate their new fire engine Saturday at 4 p.m. on the carnival grounds. The ceremony is part of the firemen's fair which will open Friday night and run all day Saturday.

Harry Faltherston, Republican candidate for Freeholder, has been heard from. He broke his long political silence Friday when he dispatched a letter to the Board of Freeholders advocating—of all things—a county park system.

County parks have been one of the issues at which Democratic candidates for the board have been hammering away for the past three years. The Democrats' espousal of such an undertaking has met with stony indifference on the part of the Freeholders. And that's exactly the same response which Harry drew Friday. The communication was interred with the Planning Board.

As Harry sees it, a county park can be established by utilizing land around the proposed compensating reservoir to be built in conjunction with the Chimney Rock project. Land for the park, according to Harry, might possibly be donated by individuals and industries in the area. This, he says, would result in a park that would be developed at a nominal cost to the taxpayers.

While everyone would be in accord with a park system that would be financially painless, the big question is: Where does Harry propose to get these land gifts? We were under the impression that no one—not even the Legislature—had got to the point where they knew the location of the Chimney Rock compensating reservoir. But apparently that doesn't worry Harry. He's going to get the land around the compensating reservoir for free from the yet unknown owners and then plunk down a park—he says.

It may be that Harry has heard some words of encouragement about county parks from Johnson & Johnson in New Brunswick, which has donated lands for such purposes as one of its pet projects. Since two J & J subsidiaries—Ortha and Ethicon—are Somerset County taxpayers, maybe Harry has had a hint that these two plants might be amenable to giving some of their surplus land for a park.

The Republicans' big campaign opener—a picnic Saturday at the American Cyanamid recreation grounds—drew an even larger crowd than had been anticipated. Conservative estimates put the number who showed up for the all-day event at 2,500.

The picnickers heard speeches by Senator Malcolm Forbes, who said the GOP is "battling a bankroll of Fort Knox proportions," and Assemblyman Bill Ozzard, as well as the other county candidates. The national scene was represented by U. S. Representative Pete Frelinghuysen, whose chest was adorned with a mammoth "Ike in '56" button, Ad Hermann, executive director of the Republican National Committee, and U. S. Senator Clifford Case, who showed up too late for the speaking program.

Forbes' Democratic opponent and the possessor of the "Fort Knox bankroll," Charlie Engelhard, with Mrs. Engelhard, played host Friday night at a party to reactivate the Young Democrats. About 30 people dined and danced, by invitation, in the pool house of the Engelhard's Far Hills estate.

Prosecutor Leon Gerofsky is planning to add a third county detective to his force. In addition to doing criminal investigation, he also would be assigned as traffic coordinator for the county.

A great number of county residents were shocked Sunday to learn of the deaths by drowning of Harold Alpaugh and his 27-year-old son, who lived in Peapack. The senior Alpaugh was employed by the county road department as a painter. He and his son drowned near Chadwick Beach when they were caught in a whirlpool undertow while attempting to rescue a woman and her two daughters.

Farewell to Summer

It's called Autumn, and it starts tomorrow, and the mere thought of it sends a gentle zephyr across brows that have been deep-bronzed by a Summer of scorching heat.

Once the surge of Indian Summer flees from its system, Autumn will see the glorious artistry of Nature concocting its hues of brown and preparing its own inimitable decor for the countryside. The new season, officially scheduled to arrive tomorrow at 3:42 p.m., should bring an end to the creeping humidity that for months wilted the muscles of strong men. It will mean, too, that a tropical sun which parched our throats, our roofs and our streets, a sun which scorched the farmer's field and dried the streams will be steaming other regions as the planets assume new positions.

It has been a Summer of extremes hereabouts: some of the hottest days in recorded weather history, some of the longest droughts—and some of the heaviest, concentrated rainfalls that sent rivers surging over their banks to cause incalculable damage.

But with all its faults, Summer had many good points. It was a season of prosperity for the nation, a season which gave indications that Autumn and the predictable near future would continue to see Americans at work for good pay while enjoying more comforts and luxuries than ever before. Summer also helped renew the faith of those who believe that good times need not be periodic adventures for the country, that the growth of our land, including our own particular region, has yet to reach its full bloom.

For many it was the Summer in which international tensions between the great powers were lessened, though, unless we remain continually skeptical and well armed, this season of "distasteful" might one day be looked upon as the moment when international communism modified its tune, but not its purpose, and Pied Piped the rest of the world to slavery.

It was also the Summer which saw the Brooklyn Dodgers seat their opponents with a vitality and skill unprecedented in the annals of Ebbets Field. And it was a Summer which, miracles of miracles, found oft-disappointed Dodger fans rooting for the Yankees to win the American League pennant, for only with a World Series victory over the Bronx Bombers can Brooklyn supporters regain full pride in their Burns.

It was also a Summer of battle and bloodshed, in Egypt, Israel, Morocco, Argentina, and for Cyprus. But it also was the Summer when scientists from in front and behind the Iron Curtain met to talk about atomic energy and its application to the world of tomorrow. It was the time of the Conference at the Summit.

That was Summer 1955. But now we can assume there will be new freshness in the air, new hues on the trees, and the miracle of morning dew turning to frost.

Look about you as Nature changes its clothes, and realize the comparative inadequacy of Man.

Farewell, O Summer. Bring good things when next you come again.

The Bicentennial Of John Marshall

John Marshall, "The Great Chief Justice," whose bicentennial is being celebrated throughout the United States this month, is generally credited with having made a greater contribution to the foundations of this country than many a better-known personage of his time or since.

Born Sept. 24, 1755, in a frontier farm log cabin in what is now Fauquier County in Virginia, the eldest of 15 children, Marshall had little if any formal education, yet after his service as an officer in the Revolution became one of Virginia's most successful lawyers and then, as Chief Justice, was the Nation's first powerful expositor of the principles of American Constitutional Government.

'A Proud Act'

Marshall served as Chief Justice under six presidents from 1801 to his death in 1835. He is universally recognized as our greatest Chief Justice. It was he who enunciated and firmly established the doctrine of Federal supremacy over State authority under the Constitution, the doctrine of "implied powers" by which the Supreme Court ruled that the Government has powers in addition to those specifically named in the Constitution, and the authority of the Court to invalidate these acts of the Congress and the Executive which it deems to be in conflict with the Constitution.

In the leadership that he provided the country and in the more than 500 decisions which he personally wrote, Marshall is credited with laying the foundation of much of modern government and with establishing the Supreme Court, in early days regarded as a relatively minor branch of Government, as in fact equal with the Executive and Legislatures and the greatest appellate tribunal in history.

24 Years on Bench

As Chief Justice Warren said of him, "Stone by stone he built the foundation of our constitutional structure, and he constructed it sufficiently strong to support everything we have since built upon it."

Of his appointment, of Marshall as Chief Justice, ex-president John Adams, a quarter-century later, wrote "My gift of John Marshall to the people of the United States was the proudest act of my life."

Speaking in Philadelphia, President Eisenhower said, "John Marshall was a soldier in the War for Independence, a Congressman, a diplomat of outstanding ability, a Secretary of State. But his reputation for greatness most firmly rests on his services as Chief Justice of the United States... He made of the Constitution a vital, dynamic, deathless charter for free and orderly living in the United States."

A Presidential proclamation issued in July of this year cited Marshall as a "soldier, diplomat, legislator, and Fourth Chief Justice of the United States," who played "a vital role in the strengthening of our constitutional form of government and said his long and distinguished term of office as Chief Justice, from 1801 to 1835, was marked by precedent-setting decisions which have been important factors in developing and maintaining the historic liberties of the people of the United States."

The Congress designated this September as "John Marshall Bicentennial Month, in recognition of the vital part which he played in the development of our Nation."

Of Books, Plays & Sundry Things...

The Man Who Did the Unbeatable

The greatest writer who ever lived was not at all conscious of himself as an "artist." He was conscious of his artistry, though for centuries critics have tried to depict him as a child of nature whose magnificent creations sprang full-grown from his untutored genius. However, such a theory will not hold up under examination.

Shakespeare may not have had a university degree, but the public school education he had received grounded him pretty thoroughly in Latin and gave him at least a nodding acquaintance with Greek. His sonnets and early plays reveal that he was completely aware of all the tricks of the poetical trade popular in the 16th Century. These puns and complicated images and conventions are woven into the fabric of his work with conscious artistry. It is quite obvious that he thought about what he was doing. If we were fortunate enough to find a manuscript copy (what a price that would bring), of any of his works, undoubtedly it would be as crossed out and worked over as the papers of most authors.

But Shakespeare had not the remotest idea that he was the greatest poet and dramatist the world had yet seen. He had no notion that anyone would care beans about his plays after his death. He considered his sonnets and the small body of his narrative poetry as his contribution to English literature. His plays were his way of earning his living, and he thought no more of them than a movie script writer does of his last musical. As a conscientious craftsman, he undoubtedly tried to do the best he could with them, and his best just happened to be unbeatable. He didn't know this. To him, and to his contemporaries, plays weren't literature; they were popular entertainment that died when the performance was over.

So many modern artists complain about the commercialism of America today. They are sure they have written the great American novel, but none of the philistines appreciate it, that's all. If it were the great American novel, it would have to be appreciated. That's one of the conditions of its being the great American novel. Minor masterpieces may be burned out in the isolation of a Bohemian garret, but the complete triumphs, the total expressions of the spirit of man, must be written in the midst of men.

Such masterpieces must rise beyond the men for whom they are written. If Shakespeare had done no more than satisfy the mobs who came to the Elizabethan theatre he would have stuck closely to the formula of blood and thunder tragedy or slapstick comedy. He gave his audiences more than they looked for.

We must never forget, however, that first he gave them what they wanted. He was a part of them. It is this which gives his work much of its vitality. He was not writing for himself or for a select few, but for a vast and motley audience. Even when he rose above them he was still part of them, still the recipient of their vigor.

The modern artist might do well to remember that the greatest artist was not a snob. Had he been one he could not have achieved his unique position in the history of the world. And the modern critic might do well to look carefully for the art he feels does not exist. He might find it in some unexpected places—in a cowboy movie or on a television screen, just as the world woke up one day and found Shakespeare on the stage.

"I musta blacked out!"

By CHARLES H. CONNORE

EARLY PLANTINGS

Fall hardly seems to be the time to be sowing seeds, and yet there are certain annuals that will give us earlier and better results if they are sown about the last week in September. These are the so-called hardy annuals, the seeds of which germinate at low temperatures. They are also winter-hardy with light protection.

Some may be sowed in a bed and transplanted in Spring. Among these are calliopsis, Chinese Pinks, Godetia, Gilia, Sweet Alyssum, Snapdragons and Candytuft.

Those which are difficult to transplant and should be sown where they are to stand include annual poppies (especially the Shirley strains), cornflower (Centaurea cyanea), California Poppy (Eschscholzia), and Field and Rocket Lavaspurs (Delphinium consolida and D. ajacis). Planted now, they develop a deep root system and a rosette of leaves to live over winter.

Spot Sowing Preferred

Often seeds of these are broadcast, and plants are thinned in Spring. This wastes seeds. Spot sowing is better. The soil is prepared, using some form of organic matter to improve its condition and lime, if necessary. Three or four seeds are taken between the thumb and forefinger and pressed into the ground in appropriate depth.

Poppies need merely to be pressed into the soil. The spacing should be the appropriate one

Maraschino Cherries Top Desserts With Taste-Treat

BY DOROTHY MADDOX

WHEN you want to make a fruit dessert look particularly colorful, use a few maraschino cherries to decorate it. These cherries, incidentally, have a delightful flavor and can be used as one of the ingredients, as well as a decoration.

Cherry-Peach Shortcake (6 servings)

One and one-half cups sifted, all-purpose flour; 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup shortening, ¼ cup milk, ¼ cup chopped maraschino cherries, well drained (about 10 cherries); 1 cup heavy cream, whipped; 2 teaspoons sugar, ½ cup quartered maraschino cherries (about 20 cherries); 3 cups sweetened, sliced peaches or drained, canned peaches.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or 2 knives until mixture is like coarse meal. Add milk and ¼ cup cherries and mix well.

Turn out on lightly floured surface and knead gently. Roll or pat out to ¼-inch thickness. Cut with floured 2½-inch biscuit cutter.

Place on baking sheet and bake in very hot oven (450 degrees F.) 10 to 15 minutes, or until golden brown. Cool. Combine cream, sugar and ½ cup cherries. Mix well.

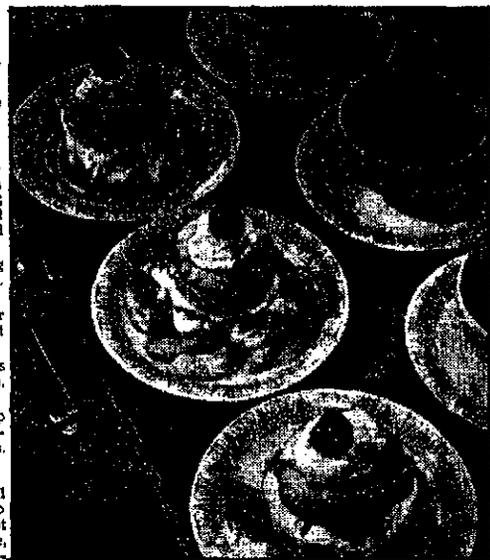

Cut biscuits in half and arrange peaches on bottom halves. Top with half of cream and remaining biscuit halves. Spoon remaining cream mixture over biscuits and garnish with whole cherries.

Cherry-Apricot Cobbler (4-6 servings)

One-quarter pound marshmallows (about 18 marshmallows); 1 cup water, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1 cup quartered maraschino cherries, well drained (about 40 cherries); 1 No. 2½ can apricot halves, drained; 2 teaspoons lemon rind, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1½ cups biscuit mix, ½ cup chopped walnuts, ½ cup milk, maraschino cherry halves.

Combine marshmallows and ½ cup water; cook over low heat until marshmallows are melted. Combine cornstarch and remaining ½ cup water; mix well. Gradually add to hot marshmallow mixture and bring to a boil; cook until thickened; stir constantly.

Add quartered cherries, apricots, lemon rind and lemon juice. Turn into 1½-quart casserole.

Peach shortcake is topped with new interest when maraschino cherries are used to brighten this ever-popular dessert favorite.

Combine biscuit mix, walnuts and milk; mix until blended. Drop by tablespoonfuls on top of cherry-apricot mixture. Garnish with cherry halves. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 20 minutes, or until biscuit is golden brown. Serve warm.

for the kind of plant, in Spring. These may also be planted in late October or November. With thinning should be done, leaving the strongest plant.

After rosettes are formed, little in the Spring. Even this when the soil freezes, a light method will give two to four open mulch such as straw will weeks advantage over waiting help to keep the ground frozen until the soil can be prepared and thus preserve the roots for Spring sowing.

HOME ECONOMICS BRIEFS

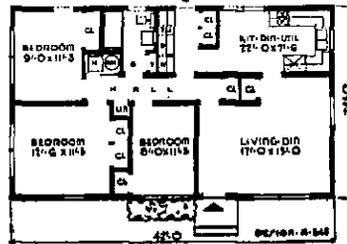

Here's a novel dish for this time of year, using summer's fresh tomatoes but served in keeping with fall. Select large, firm tomatoes and scoop out centers. Fill with a cooked large dry lima bean and diced cheese salad dressed with well-seasoned mayonnaise. Bake in a moderately hot oven 25 minutes.

Rice, pork and potatoes are featured foods for October, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The best protein buy next month will be pork.

popular and nutritious main dish. The Spring pig crop, much larger than that of the previous Spring, provides an abundant pork yield for October markets.

Here's a delicious breakfast treat. Flatten packaged butter-spread refrigerator biscuits and place spoonful of raisins, brown sugar and butter on the center of each. Fold edges together and seal. Bake and serve piping hot.

Home of the Week

Design A-346 is a compact plan, without basement, consisting of living room, combination kitchen-dinette, utility room, three bedrooms and bath.

Floor construction is a 4-inch concrete slab on a gravel fill. Plans for the house call for frame construction, with vertical and bevel siding, asphalt shingles and wide eave overhang.

Laundry facilities, storage closets and cabinet are grouped in the end of the kitchen and the heating plant is located in a closet at the end of the bedroom hall. Floor area is 1008 square feet, and cubage is 11,088 cubic feet.

Information about this week's design, and all the others shown in this series of articles, can be had without obligation. For additional data, write to the Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn. Give your name, address, house design number, and name of this newspaper.
