Committee Slates Public Lot Sale For October 13

Twenty-five applications to purchase lots in various parts of the Township were studied Monday night by the Township Committee at a continuation meeting in Township Hall. Eight were held for further investigation. All lots approved will be sold at public auction Oct. 13.

A petition against the proposed plumbing ordinance was also submitted to the committee. Thus far about 175 persons have declared themselves in favor of the new code and approximately 600 against, all via petition, according to Committeemen Charles Sicora and Charles Jackson. The Committee meets Oct. 5 at 8 p.m. in Township Hall to continue the hearing.

Mr. Jackson told The News that street lights requested by South Bound Brook residents are "definitely going in" as soon as Public Service can install them.

MIDDLESEX, ST. PETER'S PLAN 200 MORE BEDS

Architectural blueprints for new health facilities, to include more than 200 additional hospital beds for the New Brunswick area, were approved today, according to simultaneous announcements by Middlesex General and St. Peter's Hospitals. The studies, which will be made available for public inspection within the next few weeks, are the work of committees of laymen.

The work of these committees was supplemented by the doctors practicing in the hospitals' service area, and the studies were revised to meet the urgent public need for hospital facilities revealed by an area survey conducted by Columbia University's Institute of Administrative Medicine.

CHARLES J. BUESSING GETS STATE CANCER POST

Gov. Meyner Leads Demo Candidates In Somerset Tour

An old-fashioned political tour of Somerset County was made Tuesday by Gov. Robert B. Meyner and the local slate of Democratic candidates.

Joining in the glad-handing festivities were Charles W. Englehard of Far Hills, State Senate aspirant; Dr. Hubert Schmidt of Middlebush, who is running for Assemblyman; Mrs. Eleanore Rowe of Basking Ridge, candidate for Freeholder, and Angelo Colacci of Bound Brook, candidate for sheriff.

The entourage left County Democratic headquarters, Somerville, at 11:30 a.m. Candidates spoke in the American Cyanamid plant cafeteria at noon, and stopped at the Johns-Manville offices at 1 p.m.

Until 4:30 p.m., the group toured the Diehl Manufacturing plant, J-M plant and J-M research center.

The group had dinner in the home of State Treasurer Archibald Alexander before going to North Plainfield for a rally.

School Board Weighs Construction Plans

S. Somerset News Debuts October 6

A new weekly newspaper, serving Branchburg, Hillsborough and Montgomery Townships, makes its debut next Thursday.

Named the South Somerset News, it will be published by Nash Newspapers, publishers of the Manville News and the Franklin News. Like its sister newspapers, the South Somerset News will be published each Thursday. Single copies will sell for 5 cents and one-year subscriptions for $2.50.

The initial issue will make its bow with a special supplement, "Homes in The News," which will be included with all three newspapers next week. The supplement will depict the tremendous growth of the nation in recent years, with the accent on local building and the resultant boom in allied fields.

All three issues next week will also include the popular election-time series, "Battle for the Ballot." This will mark the 10th consecutive year the feature has appeared.

The South Somerset News will be a tabloid-size publication. It will be distributed free to all residents of the coverage area until Dec. 28. After that date it will be sold on a subscription basis only. Free circulation will be approximately 3,000 copies weekly. The combination of three newspapers will cover an area inhabited by about 20,000 persons.

Advertising space in Nash Newspapers will be offered on a combination basis for all three papers or for any two, or singly. Classified advertising will be identical in all three papers.

Loses License, $19 After 3-Car Crash

Marrle D. Lee, 48, of Princeton had his driver's license suspended for 60 days and was fined $18 and $4 costs by Magistrate Vernon D. Hagmann in Township court Monday night after he was found guilty of hitting two cars stopped behind a school bus on Route 27 in Franklin Park Sept. 7.

In other cases, John H. Van Cleef, 17, of Blackwell Mills Road was fined $10 and $4 costs for careless driving on Hamilton Road Sept. 14 and Mrs. Hermine Van Doren, 31, of Flemington, was fined $10 and $4 costs for traveling 60 miles per hour in a 50-mile zone on Amwell Road Sept. 22.

Judge Hagmann found Joseph W. Thompson, 28, guilty of reckless driving on Franklin Boulevard and Lincoln Highway Sept. 3 and fined him $18 and $4 costs.

Township school officials will meet with the planning groups of the Lay Advisory Committees Saturday in a renewed effort to reorganize the stalled school construction program.

At the meeting, scheduled for 8 p.m. in Pine Grove Manor School and not open to the public, the Board of Education will study preliminary plans for new elementary schools with the planning groups. A building program was wiped out last month by defeat in a referendum.

Admittedly, the immediate problem is lack of schoolroom space. The board contends that overcrowding would be alleviated, at least to some extent, if the State would approve the use of six basement, substandard classrooms. So far, the approval has been withheld.

A "Piecemeal" Plan

Several ideas have been advanced for elementary school construction, but none has met with wholehearted approval of the board.

The Lay Advisory Committees, meanwhile, have continued studying building plans. The most popular plan to date is a "piecemeal" construction, covering more than one school site to include additions for existing schools and construction of one elementary building.

The site for a new building represents still another problem. The board apparently still favors the 60-acre site off Amwell Road, originally marked for junior high school use. By acquiring this tract, a junior high school could be constructed later.

This site, however, was a predominant issue raised by those who opposed the junior high referendum. The League for Better Schools, which opposed the junior high plans in two referenda, consistently argued against the 60-acre site, claiming a smaller, Township-owned site would more than suffice for current needs.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS STUDY PUBLIC RELATIONS

Public relations in schools is currently under discussion at the 10th annual meeting of New Jersey school superintendents. The convention, at Atlantic City's Traymore Hotel, ends tomorrow.

Carleton M. Saunders of Bridgewater Township is chairman of the arrangements committee. Sampson G. Smith, County superintendent of schools, is vice-chairman. Active on the meeting's other various committees were Dr. James M. Lynch of Franklin Township, John E. Geissinger of Somerville, William Fenton of Hillsborough and Anthony J. Greco of Watchung, who represents the county on the organization's executive committee.

YOUNG DEMOS ENDORSE ENGLHARD FOR SENATE

7000 Attend Holy Hour Services at Research Center

PART OF THE CROWD OF 7,000 which attended Catholic Holy Hour grounds of Johns-Manville Research Center Sunday are shown listening to Rev. Eugene B. Kelly, pastor of Christ the King Church, Manville.

Seven thousand persons who gathered on the lawn in front of the Johns-Manville Research Center Sunday were told of the lives of the saints and urged to follow their example in living daily lives.

The speaker was the Very Rev. Gerald J. Whelan, pastor of St. Joseph's Church in Rochester, N.Y. His topic was "The Need for Justice, Religion and Fortitude in Our Catholic Life" and he was addressing the audience of a Holy Hour arranged by the Somerset and Middlesex County Federations of Holy Name Societies. Host parishes were those of Sacred Heart and Christ the King in Manville.

The Holy Infant Catholic Male

Choir of Bound Brook, under the direction of M. N. Gaboury, opened the program by singing three selections.

Procession Follows

This was followed by the procession of priests to the altar. The Most Rev. George W. Ahr, Bishop of the Trenton Diocese, who presided, was accompanied by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. James A. Harding and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Charles G. McCorristin. They were assisted by the Reverends Joseph J. Connolly, pastor of Corpus Christi Church in South River and spiritual director of the Middlesex HNS, and Alfred T. Sico, pastor of Sacred Heart Church in South Plainfield and former Somerset County HNS spiritual director.

The Rev. Eugene B. Kelly, pastor of Christ the King Church and spiritual director of Somerset County HNS, led the prayer to Jesus Christ.

Bishop Ahr Presides

After a hymn by the choir, the Rev. Kelly led the prayers before benediction. The exposition of the Most Blessed Sacrament, the benediction, and the recitation of the Holy Name pledge were presided over by Bishop Ahr, who also blessed everyone present.

The assemblage Sunday was one of five simultaneous Holy Hours throughout the Trenton Diocese sponsored by the Diocesan Union of Holy Name Societies.

'Men of Action' Is Hamilton PTA Theme In Oct.

"Men of Action" will be the topic of the Hamilton School PTA's Oct. 11 meeting, program chairman Mrs. John Van Der Veer announced. Chief of Police Edward Voorhees, Fire Chief John Taylor and Township Civil Defense Director James Maher have been invited to give short talks.

At the Sept. 13 meeting, the association also completed plans for a rummage sale Oct. 12. The sale will be directly across the street from the school, in the garage of Mr. and Mrs. John Guzman, 774 Hamilton Street. It will start at 9 a.m. and will last all day.

Mrs. Leonard Carmello, new president, introduced Dr. James M. Lynch, superintendent of schools, to the group. He then introduced the teachers, Mrs. George Cuddy, kindergarten; Mrs. Richard Fischer and Mrs. Mabel Powell, 1st Grade; Miss Lyda Sperling and Miss Theresa Gergine, 2nd Grade, and Mrs. Stephen C. Reid, principal and 3rd Grade teacher.

Speaks on Polio

Dr. Samuel Sklar, school physician, spoke on "Polio," and Dr. Lynch described school renovation that took place this summer. Mrs. Harry Sicora was appointed chairman of budget and finance and Mrs. Van Der Veer was named the group's delegate to the N. J. PTA convention in Atlantic City in October.

Refreshment hostesses were Mrs. Michael Toma, Mrs. Paul Antonovitch, Mrs. Mary Williams, Mrs. William Krausse and Mrs. Carmello.

Miss Elva Hellyer Bride of Boroite

Miss Elva Hellyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore R. Hellyer of William Street, East Millstone, was married Saturday to Vladimir Limyanski, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Limyanski of 1112 W. Camplain Road, Manville. The Rev. Dr. Milton J. Hoffman performed the ceremony in the East Millstone Dutch Reformed Church and James Wood furnished the music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white full-length gown with a long train, a bridal headpiece with fingertip veil and carried poms poms.

Miss Joan Bennett was the maid of honor. Carrying shrimp pom poms, she was attired in a blue full-length gown. The bridesmaids, dressed in shrimp-colored gowns and carrying shrimp pom poms, were Miss Patricia Baker, Miss Beverly Hratszak, Miss Judy Coppola and Miss Sonia Limyanski.

Miss Patricia Kopf was the flower girl. She wore a light blue dress and carried a bouquet of mixed flowers. Anthony Botes was the ring-bearer.

Best man was Nicholas Zripko. Ushers were Stanley Kowal Jr., Andrew Blazovsky, Michael Limyanski Jr. and Robert Kulpan.

A reception was held in the American Legion Hall, Manville. The couple are now touring Niagara Falls, Canada and the Thousand Islands on their honeymoon. They will reside at 83 Itzbrand Avenue, Manville.

The bride, a graduate of New Brunswick High School, is employed by Smith Pharmaceutical Co. Mr. Limyanski is employed by the Manville Post Office. He is a graduate of Dunellen High School.

County Republicans are busy peddling tickets for the big affair of the campaign. It's the annual fund raising dinner set for Oct. 6 in Far Hills Inn and the price is $40 per. On the basis of ticket sales so far, it appears as though the GOP is going to do better financially this year than last. As yet, a speaker hasn't been lined up. Since Ambassador to France Douglas Dillon of Far Hills has cancelled out as the keynoter because of State Department policy against its high brass trifling with politics, the dinner committee gave up plans to have a speaker of national importance.

The GOP isn't limiting its fund drive to amounts of $50 and up. A mass appeal letter over the signature of Senator Malcolm Forbes, county finance chairman, went out in the mails last week to all registered Republican voters. The missive states frankly that the party will be happy to accept contributions of $1 and $2.

The big affair of the campaign for the Democrats will be a dinner Oct. 19 in Far Hills Inn with Gov. Robert Meyner as the principal speaker. Meyner's willingness to pay more than one campaign visit to Somerset is indicative of his more than academic interest in the State Senate race between Charles Engelhard and Republican incumbent Forbes.

Unlike the Republican affair, the emphasis of the Democratic dinner will be strictly on party enthusiasm with no fund raising attached.

In view of Charlie Engelhard's assets it hardly seems necessary, but the Democrats are going through the formalities of setting up a fund-raising organization. It would save a lot of trouble if the Dems could just let Charlie sign the checks, but unfortunately the law says the Senate candidates in Somerset this year are entitled to spend only slightly more than $2,400 each.

Senator Forbes is having his share of personal troubles of late. Monday morning his youngest son, Timmy, 2, got hold of a bottle of barbiturates while his father was showering and his mother was feeding another one of the children. By the time they found Timmy, he had taken quite a dose. He was rushed to Memorial Hospital in Morristown to have his stomach pumped out. Just a week earlier the Senator, himself, was a casualty when he fell through a glass-top table, inflicting a severe gash on his arm.

The descent of a group of unfamiliar attorneys on the Administrative Building last Thursday afternoon and their closed-door meeting in the fourth-floor conference room, where they were joined by Freeholder C. I. Van Cleef and Assistant County Counsel Ed Hogan, caused considerable speculation. Curiosity became even greater after Friday's Freeholder meeting, when C. I. casually explained, "It was only something about water."

The meeting was concerned with Round Valley and not Chimney Rock. The attorneys were representing municipal groups and others in Somerset, Hunterdon and Morris counties who are opposing the North Jersey District Water Commission's application to the Water Policy & Supply Council for permission to develop Round Valley as a reservoir. Even though the Chimney Rock referendum makes Round Valley a dead issue, North Jersey's application still stands, and the Water Policy Council must go through the formalities of disposing of it. Purpose of last Thursday's meeting was to review the case which the opponents of North Jersey will present when hearings are resumed today in Trenton.

Peapack-Gladstone is the first Municipality in the county to seriously consider fluoridation of its water supply. A referendum on the question will be held at the Nov. 8th General Election. Other municipalities, including Manville, Somerville, Raritan and Bridgewater, have talked about the possibility, but haven't done anything about it. Except for Manville and Peapack, all buy from a private water company.

A Justifiable Veto

As the State Senate and the Assembly last week turned over the lights in the Legislative halls of Trenton until after Election Day, Gov. Robert Meyner tossed the lawmakers a significant veto message which a lot of politicians would do well to read and remember.

The veto was appended to a bill sponsored by Senators Bernard Vogel, Middlesex Democrat, and Malcolm Forbes, Somerset Republican, which would have authorized the N. J. Turnpike Authority to construct a pike link between Somerville and New Brunswick.

Gov. Meyner has no great love for "authorities," and in adroit diplomatic language he said so.

"The necessity for careful consideration before legislative authorization is all the more acute with respect to toll road operations. Authorities, such as the New Jersey Turnpike Authority, are justifiable instrumentalities when it is clear that public revenues cannot meet an urgent need.

"The citizen expects, and rightly so," the Governor continued, "that such authorities will expeditiously fulfill the purpose of their creation and deliver the road to the public for eventual free travel. Extensions which delay the liquidation of the bonded indebtedness and thus postpone free travel should not be authorized except under exceptional circumstances, and they do not appear here."

There is no argument about the Turnpike and the Garden State Parkway being outstanding roadways providing a most distinctive service to motorists. But these toll roads are being operated by appointed "authorities" which are set up like little monarchies. Each is a kingdom unto itself, and it makes little difference what the Governor, the Legislature—or the public—might say about them. They rule with a power the likes of which even the elected Legislature does not possess.

Presumably, the Turnpike and Garden State Parkway were built to be paid for by tolls, the revenues from motorists being dedicated to pay off construction bonds, the toll gates to come down when payments are finished to give the public free roads.

But it appears the Governor doesn't expect to live to see the toll gates removed, and he sure has plenty of company.

The Holland Tunnel, believe it or not, was supposed to be a toll-free tube long, long before this, but it doesn't look like the day ever will come. Where it once only had a tunnel, the Port of New York Authority now operates airports and a few other choice pieces of property. The bureaucracy has grown to a big-sized monster.

We've got enough government-made monsters as it is, and Gov. Meyner is to be commended for reminding the Turnpike of its responsibility to fulfill the purpose of its creation "and deliver the road to the public for eventual free travel."

What Gov. Meyner did not mention in his veto message is the fact that the Vogel-Forbes bill was introduced without any of the municipalities along the proposed route being consulted, and this is another reason why the veto is to be commended.

Should any new "authorities" be created, the public must insist that they be "justifiable instrumentalities"—and be granted only limited existence.

Scouting Rebends Twisted Twigs

(Reprinted from an article in Scouting Magazine by Frederic A. Fitch, superintendent, N. J. State Home for Boys, Jamesburg.)

Few, if any, of the boys who come to such an institution as ours have been so badly warped that they cannot be trained for useful, constructive citizenship. Often the twig has been pretty badly bent in the wrong direction. Our job is to rebend it.

The task and the opportunity of such a school might be stated as follows:

1. We need to establish in each boy a friendly attitude toward society. So long as he is fearful, resentful, suspicious, and belligerent there is little chance of a wholesome readjustment. He must come to feel that he has real friends and that society is not against him.

2. We must create in each boy a will to succeed. He must come to the point where he believes he can make good and is willing to work at it.

3. We need to get him started on a wholesome leisure-time pattern which captures his imagination. It has been well said that "juvenile delinquency is a leisure-time activity." We can be sure a boy will be busy at something. We must make sure that the "something" is good.

4. We must do what we can to establish him with the right companions when he returns to his home community. If he goes back to the old gang with whom he got into trouble in the first place, there is a strong chance he will repeat.

Scouts Since 1929

Here at Jamesburg we have used the Boy Scout program since 1929. We now sponsor two Cub packs, six Scout troops, and an Explorer unit, and we think of the program as one of the most effective tools we have. Records show that 45 training schools in 31 different states use the Boy Scout program. I wrote recently to the superintendents of these schools, asking for their comments. The results were most encouraging. As Superintendent M. B. Lane Jr., of the Beaumont Industrial School, Beaumont, Va., expressed it, "Scouting definitely has a place in institutions of this kind, and if we do not use it, we as administrators are falling down on the job."

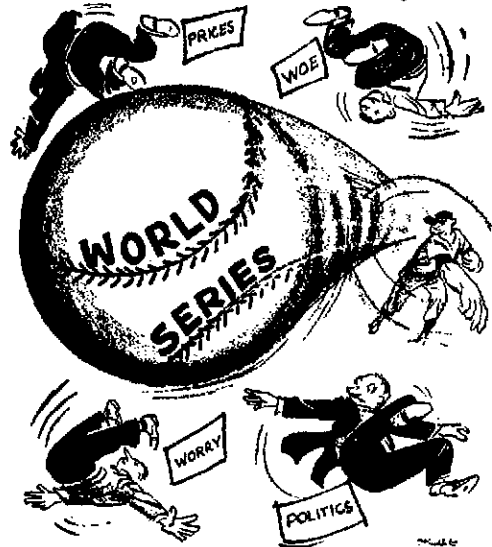

It was the opinion of these men that Scouting definitely helps achieve the results for which we are striving. But let them speak for themselves.

Superintendent G. F. Soelburg, Colorado State Industrial School, Golden: "A statistical study covering the past seven years indicates that less than four percent of our former Scouts have been recommitted to this or any other institution. This compares with recommitment figures of 20 to 30 percent of the total population of the institution."

Units Participate

One of the major advantages cited is the opportunity for outside contacts. Many of these units participate in district and council events regularly. Superintendent John E. Costello, State Agricultural and Industrial School, Industry, N. Y., writes, "The troop goes on week-end hikes and participates in local camporee programs, spring, fall, and winter. At the Scout camp at Massawepie in the Adirondacks, a patrol of our boys was rated the best patrol in the camp. This speaks well for the group, inasmuch as there were some

Biggest Issue of the Day

Of Books, Plays & Sundry Things...

Cheers for "Our Town"

No doubt about it, this is Thornton Wilder's year. On Broadway the brilliant revival of "The Skin of Our Teeth" is to be followed by productions of two Wilder plays that have never been seen in New York—"The Merchant of Yonkers" and "A Life in the Sun." And on television we had the pleasure last week of viewing a completely delightful musical version of Wilder's best loved play, "Our Town."

In transferring "Our Town" from the legitimate stage to the video screen, Fred Coe, the producer, did not make the mistake made by those who presented "The Skin of Our Teeth" on television a few weeks ago. There are no two ways about it, you cannot simply train a camera on a stage play and expect it to make good television fare. The stage and television are two different media and success in each of them is achieved in different ways. Realizing this, Coe and director Delbert Mann broke free from the traditions of the stage production and treated the play as if it were a brand new piece just written especially for television.

"Our Town" was not an easy play to do for television. Though its honesty and simplicity charmed most who saw it on the stage, its unusual structure and poignant third act are not the kinds of things to which the television audience is accustomed. But in this production no compromise was made with what is supposed to be popular taste and it is doubtful that audiences liked

2,000 boys camping there during the summer.

In Camporee

Among the many activities carried on by our Jamesburg Home units are many events outside the Home.

Last summer 232 Scouts and 12 leaders enjoyed 10 weeks at the council camp. We participated in the Monmouth Council camporee and in their annual Scout show.

As these brief excerpts reveal, the replies to my requests to fellow superintendents for information on Scouting in their institutions were written with obvious interest and enthusiasm. They left absolutely no doubt that the Scout program belongs in every training school.

the show any the less for that fact.

An Excellent Cast

To take a play which is fairly well known and add music to it is always dangerous. However, the music and lyrics for "Our Town" by James Van Heusen and Sammy Cahn fit perfectly with the spirit of Wilder's play. For the most part, they were beautifully performed by the versatile Frank Sinatra, and even those sung by the untrained voices of the other performers had charm.

The intimacy of a play which describes life and death in a small New Hampshire town around the turn of the century was admirably captured by television. The interest which is added to the play by doing it on the stage without sets was retained by the use of imaginative skeletal scenery—a bare suggestion to create some visual interest on the screen, not enough to overpower the imagination with useless detail.

Saint and Sinatra

The performances were brilliant. Eva Marie Saint, perhaps the first actress of stature to receive her training in television instead of on the stage or screen, proved herself easily capable of the great variety demanded by the role of the heroine, Emily Webb. Paul Newman was fine as George Gibbs, the boy next door. Ernest Truex and Paul Hartman were both superb as the fathers of these two delightful young people.

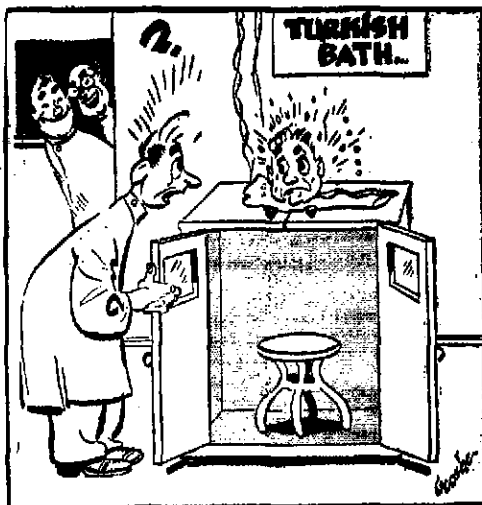

Frank Sinatra had the pivotal role of the stage manager, who combines the functions of a Greek chorus, a narrator, an extra, and a god. As he wandered in and out of the action, his Hoboken accent made it at times a little difficult to accept him as the philosophical New Englander he was supposed to be, but his casualness, his ease, his warmth and sincerity soon obscured his occasional faults. Sinatra is a fine actor and capable of more variety than the sameness of his movie roles might lead one to believe. The comeback of Sinatra as a first rate actor—well, that's another story.

The sad thing about a TV show—a good one, that is—is that it usually only happens once. Let's hope that they show us this one again soon.

WILLIAM J. LOGAN, 76

William J. Logan, 76, of 3 Union Street, Kingston, died Saturday in Somerset Hospital after a long illness. He had lived in Kingston for the past six years.

Services were held Tuesday morning in the Kimble Funeral Home, Princeton, followed by a Requiem High Mass in St. Paul's Church, also in Princeton. He was buried yesterday in St. Joseph's Cemetery, Oriskany Falls, N. Y.

Mr. Logan, originally a native of Waterville, N. Y., had lived in Princeton for 25 years before moving to Kingston. He was employed as a guard at the Palmer Physics Laboratory of Princeton University.

He is survived by his wife, Anna; one son, Donald, with whom he had been living at the Union Street address; and two grandchildren.

Miss E. Voorhees Becomes Nurse

Miss Evelyn Louise Voorhees of Elm Street, East Millstone was graduated yesterday from the Middlesex General Hospital School of Nursing. She will specialize in operating room nursing in the hospital. She is the daughter of Township Chief of Police and Mrs. Ed. F. Voorhees.

During her three years in the school Miss Voorhees was secretary of the student government association a member of the student judiciary board, representative to the student-faculty committee, and member of the glee club.

Miss Voorhees' course was centered around psychology and the sciences. She also worked directly with patients in all areas of the hospital. She attended classes at Rutgers University and under sponsorship of the Division of Nursing Education of the Colleges of Arts and Sciences of Newark-Rutgers. She also received specialized training in pediatric nursing in Presbyterian Medical Center, New York City, and studied psychiatric nursing in the New Jersey State Hospital, Trenton.

Miss Voorhees is a graduate of Highland Park High School. She will take the New Jersey State board examination for a registered nurse's license Nov. 2 and 3.

Tera Greens, combination golf course and driving range opened Friday night on Lincoln Highway near Howe Lane. A nine hole short course and miniature golf links will be opened next Spring.

Miss Margaret Cleary is president of the new company, while her sister, Miss Barbara Cleary, is the treasurer. Both live at 81 Lawrence Avenue, Highland Park.

COMMUNITY COUNCIL MEETS NEXT THURSDAY

The first Fall meeting of the Franklin Park Community Council will be Thursday, Oct. 6 at 8 p.m. in the firehouse. Plans for the Christmas Community Sing will be made, according to Mrs. Roy Ewers, president, who asked all local organizations to send delegates.

Griggstown area at its meeting Sept. 22. Harold Van Doren of Griggstown, former Rocky Hill justice of the peace, said young "hot-rodders" had played "chicken" and driven recklessly on several occasions on Bunker Hill Road and told of other juveniles who tossed stones at passing vehicles, broke street lights and placed tape across the road to stop cars.

Mrs. Madge Dey, who with her sister operates a farm near Bunker Hill Road, joined Mr. Van Doren in describing the juveniles' actions. Mr. Van Doren said he was not criticizing the committee or police, but urged "constructive action" to remedy the problem. Committeeman Jackson told them that the situation will be turned over to Chief of Police Ed Voorhees and that police will patrol the area.

Bonuses Given

The committee authorized cost-of-living bonuses to Mrs. Christine Slocum, Mrs. Marion Roth, Mrs. Gertrude Welsh and Mercer D. Smith, office clerks. It also approved payment of $12,309.59 to A. D. Excavating Co., Inc., of Hopelawn for the resurfacing of the last of three sections of Blackwells Mills Road. About ninety percent of the money is state aid, Township Clerk Fred L. Bascom said.

The Committee passed a new zoning ordinance at a special meeting Sept. 15 in Township Hall. Proposed amendments will be heard at future meetings, the committee said. The ordinance becomes effective Oct. 13.

A request by J. H. Thompson that his Kingston property near the railroad tracks be rezoned from Residential A to Industrial to permit him to build warehouses there will be studied by the committee.

Zone to Stay

The Committee approved a request by businessmen of the Hamilton Road area between Brookline and Franklin Avenues that the area's present general business zoning classification remain unchanged.

Present zoning maps will be amended to conform with provisions of the new ordinance.

Mr. Thompson also paid a $3 fine and $4 costs for not having his driver's license and registration with him at the time.

Two Fined

Mrs. Jane Knarr, 29, of 75 Dayton Avenue, and John Stadelman, 55, of RD 1, Monmouth Junction, were both found guilty of careless driving as a result of a collision Sept. 17 at Highland Avenue and Hamilton Street. Mrs. Knarr was fined $10 and $4 costs and Mr. Stadelman paid a $5 fine and $4 costs.

Frank Hummel, 18, of New Brunswick RD 3, was found not guilty of the charge that he had no drivers license, but paid a fine of $5 and $3 costs for having no registration for his car on Demotte Lane Sept. 21. Vern Kindred, 38, of 27 Burnet Street, New Brunswick paid a fine of $12 and $3 costs for traveling 50 miles per hour in a 25-mile zone on Amwell Road in East Millstone Sept. 14.

At last week's court session Magistrate Hagmann gave Mrs. Ruth Warner 60 days to bring her Churchill Avenue house up to minimum Township standards or tear it down. She had been charged with erecting a building without a permit and occupying it without an occupancy permit.

At the Sept. 12 court session Mrs. Warner had stated that she had been issued a building permit "around five years ago," although she could not produce it. After searching the records Building Inspector Joseph Maher found that she has been issued one permitting remodeling up to $250 eleven years ago.

Stern Warning

Judge Hagmann issued a stern warning to Rudolph Sovince of Garfield Avenue to stop chasing children playing on vacant lots near his house. The complaint against Mr. Sovince was brought by Charles Varga of Equator Avenue, who also charged him with deliberately building fires so that the smoke constantly blows onto the Varga property. Sentence was suspended.

In another case, Glen Carson of Kingston was sent to County Jail in default of a $1000 bond. He will await grand jury action on a bad check charge brought by Louis Sineak Sr., also of Kingston.

Joseph L. Vogel, 37, 175 Old Street, Harwood Mines, Pa., was fined $10 and $5 costs for going 35 miles an hour in a 25-mile zone on Laurel Avenue, Kingston, Sept. 5. George E. Bradley, 21, 227 So. 14th Street, Manville, was fined $2 and $3 costs, for having his registration or driver's license when he was stopped on Amwell Road.

Vagrant Jailed

Miss Janice Branahan, 895 Somerset Street, paid a $5 fine for failure to have a dog license. Ell Horkey drew a 30-day suspended sentence for being drunk and disorderly Sept. 18. His employer stated he needed Mr. Horkey at work.

Willard Mills, no home, was sentenced to 30 days in the County Jail because he was unable to account plausibly to Patrolman Adolph Canavesio for his presence in the Township.

Farm Review

TOMATO CROP OFF

High temperatures and drought during June and July followed by excessive rain during August has cut average yield per acre of tomatoes for commercial processing about 1.5 tons since the August 1 report.

According to the New Jersey

Crop Reporting Service, the average yield per acre is about 6.5 tons, nearly 19 per cent under last year and 11 per cent below the 10-year average for 1944-1953. Because of the extended heat the blossoms did not set fruit, accounting in large part for the reduced yield.

With this drop the Garden State falls to fourth in the nation in the production of tomatoes for commercial processing, surpassed by California, Indiana and Ohio.

Daily deliveries to canneries in New Jersey have been far below last year. By the end of August only about one-third the volume had been received by the canneries as compared with last year at the same time. However, a considerable volume of tomatoes of a grade not acceptable to New Jersey canners are being sold on the open market to out-of-state processors.

There are about 24,000 acres devoted to tomatoes for commercial processing in New Jersey this year, nearly three-fourths of the entire tomato acreage in the State. The total indicated production now is 191,200 tons.

DAIRY FARMING COURSE

All phases of dairy farming, from soils to milk marketing, will be included in Rutgers University's 10-week course in the subject which opens at the College of Agriculture Oct. 10.

This course, given annually at the New Jersey State University, is intended for persons interested in the operation of dairy farms as owners, managers, herdsmen, foremen or as testers for dairy herd improvement associations. The work of the dairy farming course is based on problems important to the dairy farmers in New Jersey.

Much attention is given to those methods by which high quality milk is produced as cheaply as possible. The course, which occupies the student's full time, includes dairy herd management, feeding, breeding, milk marketing, dairy building, farm machinery, animal hygiene, soils, farm crops and farm business.

Each topic is considered in the laboratory as well as in the classroom. For example, the course in herd management includes two hours weekly in the classroom and three hours in the College's dairy barn studying the selection of breeding animals, care of calves, raising young stock, management of the milking herd and various other problems that a farmer meets in operating a dairy herd.

Storm Warning

WHEN SIGNS and forecasts point to the approach of a destructive storm, many a home owner begins to wonder how he will weather the blow.

J-M people, instead of wondering, are continually doing something about making homes weatherproof against wind, rain and snow storms. Their most recent contribution was the development of Seal-O-Matic® asphalt roofing shingles that stick to the roof with a bulldog grip in the teeth of the strongest gale. They also pioneered the application of silicones, the new water-repellent wonder chemicals, to asbestos siding shingles.

Weather protection for homes and other buildings is only one of the many developments made by the J-M team of research scientists, production people and sales representatives which contribute to better living through longer lasting and more attractive homes.
