Hagmann, Takacs, Pattison Victors In School Election

To Dedicate New Church Addition

Special services and a church supper will mark the dedication of the new $50,000 addition to the Kingston Presbyterian Church tomorrow evening.

Highlighting the ceremonies will be the presentation of a plaque honoring George A. Hough of Princeton Township, whose $25,000 donation to the building fund made construction of the addition possible.

Ceremonies will begin with a Family Fellowship Supper at 8:30 p.m. in the assembly room.

Invitations have been sent to members of neighboring churches to attend the dedication service at 7:45 p.m. Dr. D. Campbell Wyckoff, professor of Christian Education at Princeton Theological Seminary, will speak on "Why the Church Must Teach."

Assisting the Rev. Henry W. Heaps in conducting the service will be Dr. William L. Tucker, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Princeton, and Dr. E. VanDyke White, a retired minister and a member of the Kingston church.

Also participating in the service will be William Voorhees Jr., president of the deacons; Herbert Hinkel, clerk of the session, and David Hume, vice-president of the board of trustees.

Sunday School classes will occupy the new addition starting Sunday.

Dr. Lyle Hagmann, Joseph Takacs and Mrs. William G. Pattison were elected to three-year terms on the Board of Education at Tuesday's annual school election, which brought out 1,137 of the Township's 5,736 eligible voters to the polls. Last year only 634 votes were cast out of a possible 5,200.

A $32,178.75 capital outlay the board made last year to prepare two junior high school referenda was repudiated, 434 to 343.

Voting machines were used for the first time in a school election.

Proposals Approved

The voters approved proposed expenditures of $544,188.29 for current expenses, $12,500 for repairs and replacements, and $8,500 for capital outlay, but turned down by 438 to 363 a proposal to spend $8,000 for a survey of the Township's educational needs.

In the race by seven candidates for three school board seats, Dr. Hagmann polled the most votes, 614. A member of the Department of Entomology at Rutgers University, he also serves on the Township Planning Board.

Dr. Hagmann and Mr. Takacs, who received 568 votes, resigned from the Lay Advisory Committee before the election.

Mrs. Pattison polled 490 votes to defeat the Lay Advisory Committee chairman, Walter F. Campbell, by four votes. She will retain the seat she was appointed to last year to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. James J. Slade.

The two newcomers succeed George Spiro and Isaac Stryker. The board will reorganize Monday at 8 p.m. in Phillips School.

Other Results

Unsuccessful candidates and the votes they received were Mr. Campbell, 494; Mrs. Frank Vomacka, 450; J. Milton Joyce, 334, and Armand A. Pettillo, 231.

By the vote against the referenda outlay, the voters refused to let the school board re-allocate to its treasury the $32,178.75 it spent on architectural, engineering, attorney and surveying fees. The referendum lost 594 to 413 in May and was swamped 1,586 to 747 when it was presented again in August. It called for the expenditure of $1,000,245 to build a junior high school on a 4-acre site off Amwell Road. Until such time as voters approve the outlay, the figures will show up as an overdraft of capital funds.

MOTHERS COLLECT $781 IN MARCH ON FOLIO

Franklin Township gave infantile paralysis a hefty blow in the recent Mothers March on Folio.

Mrs. Oscar Elowars, chairman for the march in this municipality, reported yesterday that $781.97 had been collected by volunteer canvassers during the 3-day campaign held Jan. 31 and Feb. 1.

Calvo Firm May Face New Action For Violation of Zone Ordinance

Herman, Vincent and William Calvo, trading as the V & M Contracting Company, may again face action by the Township for violation of zoning laws.

This was indicated by Township Attorney Robert Gaynor after Herman Calvo angrily attacked him for "spending taxes I helped pay, to fight us instead of protecting our interests." He went on to claim that the County Court upheld his right to operate his business on Easton Avenue. The outburst came at Thursday's Township Committee meeting.

The brothers won a reversal of a decision last April in which Magistrate Hagmann found them guilty of conducting a building material storage business and a lumber yard on their premises on Easton Avenue. He gave them 90 days to remove all materials from their premises.

Technical Victory

Mr. Gaynor said that the Calvo victory was the result of a mere technicality. Judge Samuel Chi-aravalli granted the reversal in Somerset County Court last September.

Mr. Gaynor explained that the Township had failed to prove a lumber business was being operated by the firm, although the other charge was upheld. As the two charges were contained in the same complaint, Mr. Gaynor explained, failure to prove one of them cost the Township its case.

Asked when new action would begin, Mr. Gaynor stated, "This time I'm not going to be rushed. I'll wait until I have all the facts."

The law provides a maximum punishment of 90 days imprisonment and $100 fine for each day of operation in violation of the statutes.

Attention was focused on the Calvo case after two Easton Avenue residents complained of "dilapidated houses" and farming operations conducted in the Residential A zone. Another resident asked that a survey of portable heaters be made in an effort to

MINUTES ARE RECIDED, BUT MINUTES ARE LOST

Mayor James G. Maher and the Township Committee had what they thought was a good formula for saving time during Committee meetings. The minutes of the previous meeting were neatly posted on three bulletin boards in Township Hall, so they wouldn't have to be read aloud.

But Christo Delar of Franklin Park insisted that minutes read are minutes well spent. So they were read Thursday night at the Committee's regular meeting.

To Distribute Brochure on New Schools

A 16-page brochure, "A Plan for New School Construction," is scheduled to be mailed early next week to all registered voters in Franklin.

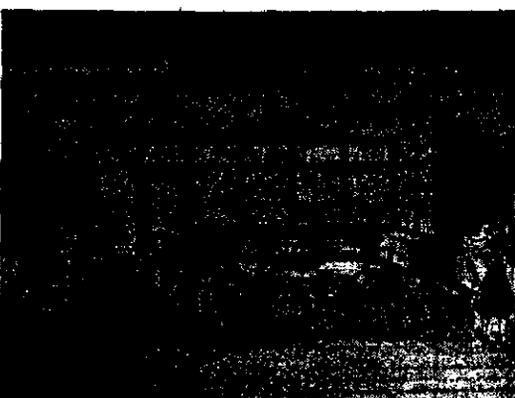

A joint effort of the Board of Education and the Lay Advisory Committee, the brochure will provide voters with details of a $696,000 school construction program which will be put to referendum on March 1.

As revealed by The News last week, the Division of Local Government has approved the referendum, and the school board received official notification of this action several days ago.

First in U. S.

Should the referendum be approved, Franklin probably will be the first community in the nation to utilize Structo Corporation's pre-engineered school building program, a less expensive construction program than usually attached to conventional-type buildings.

Approval of the bond issue will provide Franklin with two new elementary schools. One will be a 21-room building on Elizabeth Avenue, the other a 10-room structure in the Franklin Park area. The former is scheduled to rise on a 25-acre site which, except for eight lots, is municipal property; the eight lots are expected to be purchased for $2,000, and in addition an adjacent area of about nine acres may be acquired for recreational purposes.

The 18-acre site in Franklin Park has an estimated cost of $12,000.

To further acquaint voters with details of the proposed building program, the Lay Advisory Committee will hold a public meeting on Monday evening, Feb. 27, in Middlebush school.

With the PTAs

Ten past presidents were honored by the Hamilton School Parent-Teachers Association at a Founder's Day program Tuesday evening in the school. Mrs. George Cuddy, Kindergarten teacher, was in charge of the event.

A card party, to raise funds for the annual children's Summer picnic, will be held Feb. 24 at 8 p.m. in the school. Mrs. Angelo Endrizzi and Mrs. Anthony Casale are co-chairman of the affair.

The history of the Phillips School Parent-Teachers Association, the only PTA in the Township that has never been inactivated since its founding, was traced back to its 1918 origin by Roy Brookes at a Founders' Day meeting Tuesday in the school. Hosts at the meeting were Augustus Gryklien and Mrs. Ida Smith.

The second in a series of dance instructions will be given tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium. All 7th and 8th Graders can register for the course for a fee of three dollars.

On Feb. 25, at 8:30 p.m. the Phillips Players will present "The Dutch Detective" for the benefit of the Kingston School PTA in the Kingston Firehouse.

A spaghetti supper and dance attracted approximately 50 persons Saturday night to the Middlebush School auditorium, which was decorated to resemble a cabaret. The affair was sponsored by the Middlebush Parent-Teachers Association.

Four students, Betty Jean and Patricia Brown, Lois Bruno and Naomi Herubin were waitresses. The supper was prepared by PTA members.

Mrs. Leonard Bardsley was chairman, assisted by Mrs. Salvatore Pappalardo, Mrs. Ruth Schmidt and Mrs. Vera Merrell. Dance music was provided by a Franklin resident, Frank Inzana. Somerset County PTA president, Mrs. Mary Gullfoyle of Somerville, was a special guest.

Fathers' Night will be held at the Founders' Day meeting of the Pine Grove Manor Parent-Teachers Association Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the school.

At an executive board meeting a week ago yesterday, Mrs. Harold Napear of the Youth Council announced that professional dance instruction will be provided at the council's monthly dances in the school auditorium.

Hostess at the executive board meeting was Mrs. Milton Stoll.

90 PERSONS AT DANCE GIVEN BY ROSARIANS

More than 90 persons attended a dance Saturday night sponsored by the Altar & Rosary Society of the Griggstown Reformed Church in the church hall.

MRS. VERTREES CHOSEN FOR SEMINAR COURSE

Mrs. Joseph Vertrees of Wilson Road, Middlebush, is one of 20 freshman students selected for a special seminar course initiated by the Department of History of Douglass College.

The students have been selected on the basis of their interest in the subject matter of the required, freshman course, "The History of Western Civilization," and their willingness to supplement their regular classwork by additional, non-credit study.

KINGSTON FIRE AUXILIARY HOLDS CARD PARTY

The Ladies of the Kingston Fire Company will hold a card party at 8 p.m. today in the Firehouse. Chairman of the arrangements committee is Mrs. Louis Sintak.

A baked ham supper is planned for March 24 from 5 to 8 p.m. in the firehouse. Co-chairwomen for this affair are Mrs. Nicholas Briggs and Mrs. Matthew Moran.

About Mrs. Benke

Editor, The News:

Mrs. Stephen Benke was the Assistant Brownie leader of Troop 110 and recently had completed a leaders' training course given by the Middlesex Council of the Girl Scouts. Her daughter, Margaret, was a member of Troop 110, and her son, Stephen was the troop mascot since he attended all the meetings while his mother helped with the program. Troop 110 meets in Pine Grove Manor School.

I am the leader of Troop 110, and I was so shocked by the incident in which Mrs. Benke and Margaret and Stephen were killed that I did not think about writing to your paper soon enough to have the above mentioned in the article which you included in last week's issue. Mrs. Benke had given her time to Brownie activities for three years and I think recognition of this should be made at this time.

"Twas said along Political Row that Mayor Dan Conroy of Bound Brook suddenly made up his mind a week ago yesterday to hold off for one more week his formal announcement that he would oppose Freeholder C. J. Van Cleef in April's Republican Primary—and this time the rumor line was correct. His declaration was distributed for publication today.

The story also went along PR that Dan visited the County Election Board office to pick up a stack of voter lists. This added to talk of an immediate announcement, but he held off, no doubt enjoying the excitement the chatter generated.

And there has been plenty of chatter about Dan all week long, especially since Mayor Howard Pierson of Peapack-Gladstone took himself out of the G.O.P. nominating race, thus narrowing the field down to Van Cleef and Conroy. Once the Pierson withdrawal broke, Dan had time to take it easy and give his would-be supporters a chance to nibble.

The Pierson scratch, it saddens us to say, caught us with part of our columns down last week. We had a dope piece on the Pierson-Riv Pyne-Helen Johnson triangle, which tied in with the doc's purported candidacy, but as he stepped away from the starting gate the column already was printed for part of our weekly chain operation. This business of writing columns days in advance of publication date has its hazards, as you can ascertain.

But now the track is cleared for a Conroy-Van Cleef battle. About 40 petitions for Dan's candidacy are in circulation.

Freeholder Bob Adams is providing a new thrill for the newsboys and newshans in the grandstand now that he's sitting in one of the off-center seats these Friday mornings.

At last week's meeting of the all-G.O.P. Administration he voted "No" against Director Harry Fetherston and C. I. on a motion to approve expending $485 to publish the County Planning Board's first annual report.

This, lovers, was a treat. When Robert was director, negative votes were as rare as apples on a lilac tree. During his regime ruffled feelings were soothed in the back room before the Freeholders filed out to the assembly hall for a public vote. Unanimity was the byword when Bob asked for a roll call. But things have changed a bit.

Though a voting member of the Planning Board, Bob didn't stay long enough at its meeting last week to hear the full discussion on prices for the publishing job. At this season it was the unanimous opinion that a $485 bid submitted by a North Plainfield outfit would be a good deal. But Robert left before the confab was over.

As he voted "No" Friday morning, Adams mumbled something about getting other bids for the job, but it wasn't very convincing.

No longer in the director's chair, Bob doesn't object to airing a dissent note for reporters and a few other onlookers. This is certainly newsworthy—but, oh, so novel!

The Planning Board appears to be getting down to business, and it's encouraging. This small group is talking about matters the Freeholders have neglected for years. Given half a break, the investment provided for a professional planning staff by the Freeholders may bring gold nuggets to Somerset.

The first piece of this investment was budgeting a $7,200 salary for plan board director William Roach, a bright young fellow Somerset snatched from the Division of Conservation & Economic Development. With a minimum of political interference, Roach should more than earn his salary and add some wide shoulders to Somerset's stature.

One of Roach's ideas is to set up a research library for municipal planning boards, but this will have to wait until funds are available.

HOME ECONOMIC BRIEF

If you're looking around for an unusual but appropriate Washington's birthday dessert recipe, here's one: Dissolve 1 1/2 oz. cherry gelatin in hot water and place in refrigerator to chill until slightly thick. Then fold in 3/4 cup pitted red cherries. Cut a half-inch circle from the center of a tube-shaped angel cake and cut the cake you remove into 1/2-inch cubes. Ad dthis cake to the cherry gelatin. Fill center of the cake with mixture. Frost the top and sides of the cake with sweetened, vanilla-flavored whipped cream.

No Water, No Progress

New Jersey's Water Policy & Supply Council has announced it will hold a public hearing May 10 on an application of the Elizabethtown Water Company to increase its daily withdrawal from the Delaware & Raritan Canal from 22½-million to 42½-million gallons of water.

We recommend that every municipality in Somerset, especially those in the southern sector, keep close watch on the proceedings. Better yet, even those communities without water supply systems should consider seriously the advantages of filing letters of intent declaring they will require water from the canal in future years. Already on record, or about to be recorded with such declarations are Franklin Township, Milltown and North Brunswick, and these, in effect, provide opposition to Elizabethtown's petition to divert canal water, much of it for use in areas beyond Somerset and the New Brunswick locale.

There will be little growth in future years in our region unless water supply is available, and this point must be understood by every municipality, whether it anticipates industrial and/or residential expansion.

Mayor Frank Baron of Manville had the foresight some time ago to underscore this need when he took it upon himself to call into conference the mayors of neighboring municipalities, and at least one point was gained from this move—every municipality in the canal area now gets notice when a petition is filed for withdrawal of canal supply. Thus the chances of a fast shuffle have been reduced.

Another municipal chief executive who is very conscious of future water supply is James Maher of Franklin Township, and he has put his municipality on record with the Council as desiring water insurance for tomorrow.

Since the defeat of the Chimney Rock referendum, New Jersey has been going no place with rapidity in building water reserves, and it looks doubtful that another pass will be made to convert the Martinsville sector into a water hole. There have been many claims that New Jersey can tap the Delaware River for additional supplies, but oral gymnastics have been more noticeable than action.

Another hazard to the area's water supply is the Middlesex trunk sewer, now being constructed. A sewer line of necessity, requires water for operation, but the Middlesex Sewerage Authority will be drawing water from its customers' sectors without providing compensating gal-lonage.

It's really simple arithmetic. Our communities are growing rapidly in residential sectors, but not as rapidly industrially. As more families come into a community there comes the need for new schools, more teachers, more roads, more policemen, and other municipal servants and services. From where will come the taxes to pay for all these requirements which a community's citizenry will demand? All of it cannot be paid by home owners, unless they have more money than they know how to spend. Some of it must come from industry properly blended into the countryside.

But new homes need water, and most industries seeking new sites first determine the available water supply before making a move, no less purchasing property.

Without water there will be little progress hereabouts.

Communism

By Dr. Alexander S. Balinsky

Rutgers Specialist in Russian Affairs and Economics

Last night I happened to be talking with my wife about the present state of tension between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"You know," my wife remarked casually, "I have the feeling that Soviet leaders are paranoid; that they suffer from a deep-seated persecution complex."

It was interesting that my wife, who is a psychologist, should make that observation without being a student of Soviet affairs. It is a provocative theory, but what about some proof?

From the first day of the Bolshevik Revolution until the recent rejection by Eisenhower of Bulganin's "peace" offer—from Lenin to Khrushchev—Soviet leaders have expressed constant fear that the capitalist nations have only one aim: destruction of the Soviet Union by sabotage, economic pressures, and war.

Stalin's Warning

Writing a report to the Central Committee of the Communist Party Stalin warned: "The Soviet Union is in a state of capitalist encirclement. It is a very real and unpleasant feature." And "... this fact determines the basis of relations between the capitalist encircling countries and the Soviet Union."

An article in Krasny Flot (Red Fleet) warned of the ever present danger of war: "But the Soviet Union, building Communism in conditions of capitalist encirclement, is not guaranteed against the danger of attack ... The war ended with the defeat of Hitler Germany ... but so long as the capitalist world exists, the possibility of a new war and of possible attacks on the USSR are not excluded."

Russia's foreign minister is not free of this paranoia, despite his contacts with the outside world. Pravda reported a speech by Molotov in which he said: "The external capitalist encirclement continues to exist ... Almost every Spring we again and again had to expect military attacks on the part of the imperialists. We were threatened by some one day and by others the next. They made every effort to disrupt our respite of peace for which we fought so much ... So long as we are surrounded by a capitalist world, it would be the worst kind of opportunism to allow the least relaxation in the strong arm of the proletarian dictatorship."

This fear, bordering on hysteria, is not new. It stems from Lenin's early warning, given in these words: "... a lesson which must be mastered by all ... is to be on the alert, to remember that we are surrounded by people, classes, governments, which openly express their hatred toward us. It must be remembered that we are at all times but a hair's breadth from some invasion."

One wonders now whether a little psychiatry might not be applied in the formulation of American foreign policy.

The United States bought Alaska from Russia in 1867 for $7,200,000 in gold.

Of Books, Plays & Sundry Things ...

The Permanency of Art

Luigi Pirandello described his play "Six Characters in Search of an Author" as a "comedy in the making." Certainly its revival in the Phoenix Theatre under the direction of the ubiquitous Tyrone Guthrie emphasizes the comic aspects of the play.

And the play, even in the reading, does have a few amusing moments. But the fact remains that in its essential character the play is not the least bit funny. When it is most real it is completely serious. This, of course, is exactly what Pirandello was after. This is why he made so much of it comic.

The Story

When the curtain rises an acting company is in the progress of rehearsing a new play. Suddenly six "people" garbed in black appear on the stage and beg the actors to put on a play about them. They are characters who were born in the mind of an author (there are many ways of being born, explains one of them, and each is as good as the other) and then abandoned by their creator. There is in them a wonderful story, but no one has put it into a work of art, as must be done if the characters are to live.

The actors become fascinated by the tale the characters begin to tell, and they agree to make a play of it. Then a war begins between the characters and the actors, for when the actors attempt to imitate the scenes the characters play for them, they change the whole meaning of the action. The characters object to what seems to them a meaningless farce bearing little relation to the awful truth of their agony. In the end, nothing works out and the characters disappear.

The play, one of the most profound of the modern stage, and at the same time one of the most theatrical, questions the common concept of reality. The audience eventually comes to feel that the characters are more real than the supposedly real actors. When the characters reveal the awful melodrama of their lives, one is deeply moved. But the actors are only playing a game; everything they do is pretense. Pirandello is demonstrating in the play his belief that a work of art is more real than what is usually called reality. Common reality, one of the characters tells us, is constantly changing. One's situation today is different from what it was yesterday; as a matter of fact, we are not today the same as we were the previous day, and as time passes the events of the past become dimmer and dimmer until we cannot recall much at all, and that which we can recall has the appearance of an illusion or a dream.

Art vs. Reality

But the characters in a work of art never die. They have no past or future—only a now. They are constantly reliving the same moment, and thus this moment acquires a true reality. It is permanent, it is lasting, you can turn to it again and again, for it is always there.

Though art may be more real than life, it still needs life to give it existence. The characters must be born in the mind of a man and their being must be given shape by him within a work of art. The characters in Pirandello's play were abandoned by their author and therefore can never really live. They are doomed to disconsolate wandering, trying always to find someone to put into coherent form their horrible story, quarreling among themselves about its shape and meaning.

The production in the Phoenix has been criticized for emphasizing the humor and theatricality of the piece at the expense of the philosophy. It is true that some liberties have been taken by the adapters, Guthrie and Michael Wager, with the Pirandello spirit, but the spirit of the original is not violated. The play needs a rousing production if it is to be palatable theatre at all, and Pirandello, a man of the theatre, knew this. The performance is well worth whatever effort its production cost.

BANANAS A PROBLEM

Some persons are curious; they try something to see what will happen. Sometimes the results are good, sometimes the reverse. Years ago someone gave us a banana plant, presumably a dwarf form. While the banana may be called a tree, actually it grows more like a canna, new suckers arising from the base after the fruit is removed.

Well, we had this banana plant in a tub placed on a bench in the greenhouse. The tightly curled leaves stretched up to touch the glass. We placed the plant on the floor, and it stretched some more. Finally, showing the power growing plants may exert, the tightly rolled new leaves forced the glass from the sash bars. So we consigned the banana to the trash pile.

Seeds of many exotic fruits will germinate readily. Avocado, mango, pomegranate, grapefruit, orange, lemon, date are among those sometimes grown as house plants.

Grow Avocados, Mango

Avocado and mango are large trees. For the novelty, single seeds can be sown, just under the surface, in soil in 6-inch pots and the soil kept moist. A temperature of 80 to 70 degrees is favorable.

After germination takes place and growth starts, the small pot will soon become filled with roots so that repotting will be necessary. While the plants may be set outside in summer, they will in a year or two grow so big that they are unmanageable. The best thing to do with them is to discard them.

In old country kitchens, in the days when oranges and dates were luxuries, their seeds were often tucked into the soil in the pots that held geraniums, begonias, etc., and so created a fringe for these plants. So try a few seeds of citrus fruits in a small pot. They make a nice ornament.

Do you know you can root the leafy tuft from a pineapple? Use a fairly sandy soil, give full sunlight and do not overwater.

HOME ECONOMICS BRIEFS

Federal grades have been established for more than 60 canned products made from fruits and vegetables for about 10 dried fruits and vegetables and around 38 frozen fruits and vegetables. Most follow this pattern: U. S. Grade A or U. S. Fancy; U. S. Grade B or U. S. Extra Standard or U. S. Choice; U. S. Grade C or U. S. Standard; Substandard. For some foods, only two grades exist—Grades A and C. "These grades are optional," says Adeline Garner, Somerset County home agent, "and their use would probably spread if more food shoppers asked for this information on products."

If you prefer your grapefruit fresh, natural and on the half-shell, this is the time of year to enjoy it to the fullest. Market supplies are heavy, prices reasonable and quality good. Look for fruit that is heavy for its size and thin-skinned. Don't mind the reddish brown color that may appear on the skin. "Russeting" doesn't affect the inside.

Shipments of Iceberg lettuce to the Northeast are heavy right now. Treat the family to a touch of July in February and serve a

Kitchen Unit Is 'Cool' Preview of Tomorrow

BY EDNA MILES

ABOUT ten years from now, as kitchen design indicates, all you should have to do 15 minutes before you expect the hungry family home is to stroll into the kitchen and punch buttons marked "roast," "potatoes," "salad," "hot bread" and "dessert."

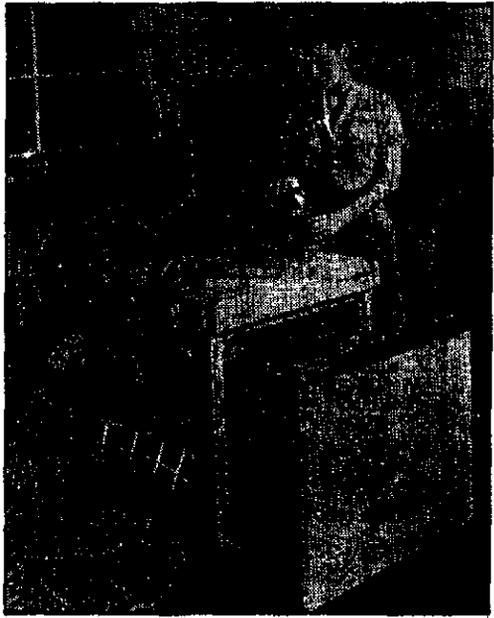

Dinner will be delivered from slots, on the dot, piping hot and just as you ordered it.

Well, things may not be exactly that way but they won't be far from it.

Latest candidate for a really modern kitchen is a new, automatic defrosting, five-cubic-foot food freezer that takes up no more space than a standard kitchen base cabinet and can be installed under the counter or placed free-standing anywhere in the kitchen.

Sound good? It is. The freezer will hold up to 173 pounds of food while taking up very little space in your kitchen. It has a temperature control with nine cold positions. There are four mini-cube ice trays. It adds counter-top work space to the kitchen and eliminates trips to basement, garage or utility room for frozen food.

And it comes in smart kitchen mix-or-match colors.

The freezer of tomorrow is here today. Used as a free-standing unit, it adds a table-top work area to the kitchen. Saves trips to the basement for frozen food.

Conroy to Run
In G.O.P. Primary

Mayor Daniel H. Conroy

There will be a contest in the Republican Primary for the Freeholder nomination.

This became certain today when Mayor Daniel H. Conroy of Board Brook announced he will be a candidate in the April 17 balloting. The only other declared candidate is incumbent C. J. Van Cleaf, who will try for his seventh consecutive term.

Denying rumors of a break in G. O. P. ranks, Mayor Conroy declared that "good, clean competition is good for the party and is an essential part of the strength of the organization."

Without mentioning his opponent, the mayor also stated that "I think it is extremely important that we have a strong, progressive and united Republican party in Somerset County. In order to maintain the confidence of our citizens and to merit their support at the polls, our party must give the taxpayers good government." Opposed "back"

Now serving his second term as Board Brook's chief executive, Mr. Conroy opposed the Chinnay Rock reservoir referendum in the last general election, although top Republican leaders in Somerset favored its passage. This opposition, he stated today, was not political and had no relationship to his party affiliations.

"The results of the polls, in which the proposal was overwhelmingly voted down, both in Somerset and in the State, prove we stand with in the best inter-

You can buy a whole or half ham, or a smaller amount in a ham end or slice. Ham slices are handy to serve when time for preparation is limited. You can cut a ham slice from either the ready-to-eat ham or from the ham that requires cooking before eating. It will take about an hour in a 325-degree oven to cook an inch-thick slice of ham. The same size slice from a ready-to-eat ham will require 20 to 25 minutes, a little less than half the time."

A good oven dinner for family or company might include cranberry-pineapple ham slice, baked potatoes, buttered broccoli, raw vegetable relishes and lemon custard pudding.

Baked Ham Slice

Gash the edge of a one-inch thick ham slice to prevent curling. Insert some whole cloves in the fat. Place in a baking dish. Combine a half cup of crushed pineapple with 1 can of jellied cranberry sauce and 1 teaspoon grated orange rind. Pour over the ham slice and bake in a 325-degree oven, 20 to 25 minutes if ready-to-eat type, or 1 hour if uncooked type of ham. With the latter type, cover the ham during the first 45 minutes, then uncover during the last 15 minutes to allow the ham to brown. Makes about 4 servings.

INTRODUCING ARNEL

When you're shopping this Spring you'll be seeing many fabrics and fashions that bear the label Arnel. Arnel is a new tri-acetate man-made fiber and a blood brother to the very earliest of the synthetics, viscose rayon and acetate.

Arnel's claim to fame is that it combines many of the fine properties of the new synthetics with additional ones at a much lower cost. Arnel is being made in wash-and-wear fabrics that can be machine-washed and tumble-dried. It resists heat and holds pleats, shape and texture.

Garments that are properly made with construction features that afford washability can usually be machine-washed at the hot setting, just like cotton. These fabrics of Arnel are quick drying and can be ironed at a higher temperature than that which is used for other synthetics. Arnel can be dyed in a full range of colors that will not streak, run or fade at repeated high washing temperature.

Its Advantages

A great deal of testing and research has been done on this new fiber and, although it has properties similar to some of the other man-made fibers, it is less static-producing. Also, fabrics made of Arnel will not pill (form balls) and they keep their surface texture throughout repeated wearings and washings with a high resistance to shining.

Arnel is blessed with a pleasantly soft hand and an affinity for excellent drapability combined with good wrinkle-resistance.

You will find fabrics that are 100 percent Arnel and those where it is used in combination with other fibers. Arnel is being used to enhance many weaves, some being faille, jersey, shark-skin, crepe, taffeta and tricot.

HERE'S HOW . . .

MAKE A CHILD'S SLED SEAT

A sled seat of simple design adds to the winter fun of the small child. The seat can be made from a board 1/4 or 3/4-inch x 10 inches x 4 feet.

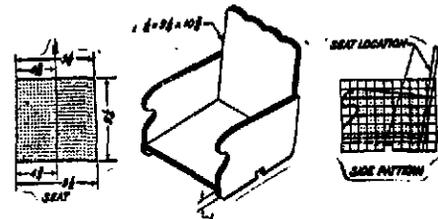

Cut out all parts as shown. Lay out the sides after drawing a full-scale 1-inch grid on the board. Sealtop the back as shown for decorative effect. Use a plane to bevel the rear edge of the seat board to the same angle as the rear edges of the sides.

Assemble all parts with glue and 4-penny finishing nails. First join the back to the seat by nailing through the back into the beveled edge at the rear of the seat. Lay the assembly on its side and add the sides, spacing the lower edge of each side one inch below the lower edge of the seat. Round all sharp edges and sand the entire seat. Paint bright red or green with two coats of outside enamel.

The seat shown was designed to fit one of the standard-make sleds, the lower projection of the sides fitting between the main side rails of the sled and the notches fitting over the cross brace of the sled to keep the seat from sliding. Dimensions shown may be changed slightly to adapt the seat for any sled.

A leather or web safety belt may be fastened to the sides to hold smaller children secure.

Maher Names Members Of New Local Agencies

Two new agencies, each concerned with Franklin's future growth, will organize this month, according to Mayor James G. Maher.

Members of the Industrial Development Committee and the Housing Authority were named by the mayor at Thursday's Township Committee meeting in Township Hall, after a brief public hearing on the ordinances establishing them. Each group will select its own chairman.

Named to the Housing Authority were Richard C. Reager, Rutgers professor of speech, of 10 Franklin Boulevard; John Carlano, manager of The Beacon Finance Co., of 9 Home Street; the Rev. Clifton G. Wooding, pastor of the First Baptist Church, of 901 Somerset Street; Charles McCloskey, unsuccessful Democratic Township Committee candidate in 1935, and Township Committeeman W. Russell Laird. A sixth member will be appointed by the State.

The Industrial Group

The seven-man Industrial Development Committee includes Alex Katschen, president of the Irvington Steel & Iron Works of Easton Avenue; Edwin Garretson, insurance agent, of East Millstone; Milton Stoll, traffic manager of Smith & Solomon Trucking Company, of 7 Kee Avenue; Edmund Jenkins of the Franklin Chamber of Commerce, 599 Hamilton Street; Charles Sicora, representing the Township Committee; Wendell W. Forbes, representing the Planning Board, and Carl H. Meier, insurance counselor, of Marion Avenue.

Lone objector to the ordinance establishing a Housing Authority was Christo Delar of Franklin Park, who pointed to abuses by government housing residents in New Brunswick. "These people always are looking for something for nothing and can never be reformed," he claimed. He said it was unjust that cheap housing was provided for these people "who drive around in expensive automobiles, while we pay for their good times."

The mayor admitted the abuses but pointed out that "certain areas in the Township are in deplorable condition and provide almost no taxes." He added that the measure will benefit the Township as a whole.

Real estate salesman Joseph Tanora of Cedar Grove Road objected to membership provisions in the ordinance establishing the Industrial Development Committee. He claimed that barring real estate men and developers from membership excludes "those persons most qualified to serve." The mayor countered that since such persons might have a personal interest in the work of the agency, it would be impractical to include them.

Shade Trees

A third ordinance, passed on final reading after a public hearing, brought forth no objectors, provides for inspection fees of utilities installed by developers and for maintenance bonds on such improvements.

The Committee also adopted on final reading a code establishing a Shade Tree Commission and provides for a $250 annual budget.

Under the provisions of an ordinance introduced by the committee, the Bound Brook Water Company would be granted a franchise to install a water main beginning in Easton Avenue and continuing south to Weston School House Road across Elizabeth Avenue and back to Easton Avenue. A public hearing is set for next Thursday.

The Committee received the resignation of Lawrence Muth as a member of the Human Relations Council. Mr. Muth explained that the group, formed under the previous administration, had never met as a body and recommended that it be disbanded. The mayor said he would speak with other members of the council to determine whether or not it should be continued.

The mayor also promised to meet with members of the Pine Grove Manor PTA after Milton Stoll, speaking for the PTA, requested a uniformed policeman be stationed outside the school and that walkways be constructed along Highland Avenue.

"OPERATION SURPRISE" FOR CD DUE NEXT WEEK

"Operation Surprise," a statewide Civil Defense test, will be held some time during the last 10 days of this month. There will be no public participation, and no siren signals will be sounded. The drill is specifically aimed at testing CD's attack warning communications system and the ability of local control centers and staffs to activate on short notice.

Calvo Firm May Face New Action

avert recurrence of the recent tragedy which saw four children lose their lives in a fire, Mayor James G. Maher promised an investigation of all zoning violations and said that he planned to confer with the Township's fire chiefs to prepare a fire prevention ordinance.

Petition Filed

A letter accompanied by a petition carrying more than 100 names was received by the Committee. Although neither the letter nor petition was read at the meeting, Mr. Maher stated that they called for immediate investigation of the Calvo brothers' failure to comply with Judge Hagmann's ruling to disband operations on Easton Avenue. The petitioners, apparently, were unaware of the court's reversal.

The letter, signed by Oliver E. Welch, Somerville attorney retained by Howard L. Smith of Easton Avenue, threatened action in Superior Court "for failure of Township authorities to clean up what is an obvious violation of the law." It went on to say that the Calvo brothers had failed to heed the local magistrate's order to disband operations there within 90 days.

Neighbors were prompted to circulate the petition following the Feb. 3 tragic fire. The house in which the fire occurred was rented to the Mack family by the Calvo brothers and was adjacent to the property on which they operate their business.

Budget Hearing Set for March 9

Little opposition is anticipated March 8, when a $603,939 municipal budget comes up for public hearing. While municipal services are to be expanded, the local tax rate will rise only nine points, as reported by The News last week.

Taxpayers, however, are faced with a total 190-point tax increase, largely because of increased school, board requirements.

The 1936 budget, $92,390 higher than last year's, breaks down as follows: County taxes, $1.25; library taxes, $.08; school taxes, $9.31, and local taxes $2. To be raised by taxation is $167,750, the remainder to come from surplus and miscellaneous revenues. With voter approval of Board of Education proposals in Tuesday's elections, the new tax rate will be $11.62 per $100 assessed valuation.

Accounting for a large share of the nine-point local increase is:

1. Doubling of last year's appropriations for road improvements, now set at $70,000.
2. An anticipated deficit of $32,187 in the water department.
3. A $10,000 salary increase for the policeman.
4. A series of new items including a $1,700 appropriation for inspection of plumbing; $250 for shade trees; $1,000 for new tax Urging all residents and organizations to support the 1936 Heart Fund, Mayor James G. Maher designated February as American Heart Month in a proclamation signed at Thursday's Township Committee meeting.

The county-wide drive, conducted by the Somerset County Heart Association, a chapter of the American Heart Association, has a goal of $15,000. The campaign will be conducted throughout February with door-to-door canvassing on Feb. 28, Heart Sunday.

Anthony J. Pappas of Hamilton Street is local chairman, assisted by Mrs. Barbara Esser, Mrs. Morgan Upton, Miss Jessie Lynes, Mrs. Carl Hengert, Mrs. Helen Janatos and Mrs. E. H. Barnes.

In proclaiming Heart Month, Mayor Maher pointed out that heart and circulatory diseases are responsible for more than 52 percent of all deaths in the United States annually.

"There is a dire need for greater scientific knowledge to control the heart circulatory diseases," the mayor said. "This can be developed only through intensive research programs."
