Sentence Prowler To 90 Days in Jail

Aroused residents of the Pine Grove Manor neighborhood "seeking justice" crowded into Municipal Court Monday night to watch the trial of Edward A. Hummel Jr., 19, on a charge of disorderly conduct.

The "standing room only" audience saw Magistrate George Shamy sentence the youth to 90 days in the County Jail.

Shortly before hearing the case Magistrate Shamy was sworn in by Township Clerk Fred L. Baadon to serve for a second time as successor to Vernon D. Hagmann, who resigned last week.

Tracks in Snow

Hummel of 339 Hillcrest Avenue was arrested early Saturday morning by Officers Lawrence Collier and Charles Smith after a prowler was reported in an area bounded by Runyon Avenue, Blake Avenue, Reeves Street and Franklin Boulevard.

Since October residents of the neighborhood had been complaining to police of a prowler in the neighborhood. Hummel told the court he came here from Rhode Island in October. He pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct.

The officers and Chief Voorhees testified they traced Hummel's tracks in the snow from property to property in the area. Magistrate Shamy told Hummel that if he had been accused under the State statute instead of the local ordinance he would have sentenced him to the maximum of a year in jail.

Sentences Suspended

In the second of the three cases of the night, Mrs. Margery Jackson, 54, of 7 Wilson Street was placed on one year's probation and given a six-month suspended sentence for disorderly conduct. She paid $5 court costs.

Mrs. Jackson's son, Richard, 19, also received a suspended sentence for disorderly conduct. Decision on Alonzo Holmes, 36, of Plainfield, was postponed until Monday on the same charge. The three were arrested Saturday after a fight in the Jackson home.

Glen D. Barral, 21, of Edison, lost his driver's license for 90 days and was fined $20 and $5 costs as the aftermath of an accident Dec. 6 on Route 27. He was charged with following too closely the car of Francisco D. Valez, who died from injuries after the two cars crashed.

POLICE RESERVES INSTALL OFFICERS SATURDAY NIGHT

The Police Reserves will hold their annual dinner and installation of officers Saturday evening in the Fairlawn Restaurant.

The new officers are Joseph Marica, president; William Shuler, vice-president; Kirk Cunningham, secretary; Matthew Miller, corresponding secretary, and John Komar, treasurer.

The retiring officers in the same order are Joseph Pucillo, Mr. Marica, Carl Woodson, Vincent Williams and Clifford Lawson.

William Mogar is arrangements chairman for the installation.

Seeks Nomination For Freeholder

Mayor Edwin M. Faulkner of Bernardsville today announced he will seek the Republican nomination for election to the Somerset County Board of Freeholders.

In the 1948 primary, Mr. Faulkner joined Sen. Malcolm Forbes in defeating three other GOP candidates, later being elected councilman despite the election of a Democratic mayor. He was elected mayor in 1954 after defeating Councilman John Dumont in the primary, and re-elected in 1956.

Shamy Resumes As Magistrate

George Shamy had no more than thanked the Township Committee Thursday for giving him the opportunity to serve as municipal magistrate during the leave of absence of Vernon D. Hagmann than he was back in office.

Following Mr. Shamy's letter was one from Magistrate Hagmann announcing his resignation. The Committee then appointed Mr. Shamy to serve the balance of Mr. Hagmann's term, which ends Dec. 31.

Magistrate Shamy, who practices law in New Brunswick, took the Municipal Court bench in March while Mr. Hagmann sought clarification of a State law forbidding retired government employees from holding municipal positions. Last month Mr. Hagmann thought he had that clarification, enabling him to resume as magistrate, and he presided at two court sessions, Dec. 28 and Jan. 2.

Thursday evening the Township Committee was informed by Mr. Hagmann, a retired New Brunswick school teacher, that "because of conflicting opinions in regard to my position status, I believe it is imperative that I tender my resignation."

Mr. Hagmann said he had resumed as magistrate "in good faith," assured by Trenton officials that his pension would not be jeopardized, but now the matter is unsettled and that the Attorney General's office would not make a ruling for several weeks.

Mr. Hagmann had served as magistrate since 1941.

B. OF E. SEEKS CASE AID FROM HOME DEVELOPERS

The Board of Education and the Planning Board will seek legal aid in an attempt to get housing developers to contribute financially to schools.

Leonard J. Bardsley, school board president, disclosed the plan Tuesday night at a public hearing on the 1937-38 school budget in explaining the proposed boost in legal fees.

He noted that Robert E. Gaynor, board attorney, had ruled that the proposal was not feasible. But Mr. Bardsley pointed out that North Brunswick, by law, has collected about $150,000 from developers.

LAZOWSKY NAMED OFFICER OF FRANKLIN FORBES CLUB

John Lazowsky, 32, of Amwell Road, East Millstone, Tuesday night was named co-vice-chairman of the Franklin Township Forbes-for-Governor Club.

The club, which is supporting State Senator Malcolm S. Forbes for the Republican nomination for governor, met in the home of Robert Smock of South Middlebush Road.

Teachers Discuss Scholarship Fund

Suggestions for reactivating interest in the Scholarship Fund for Township high school students will be made to the Board of Education at its Jan. 21 meeting by the scholarship committee of the Franklin Township Teachers Association.

The committee was created several months ago by the board to aid it in determining means of rebuilding the fund which was planned as an aid to students interested in teaching careers.

The teachers' committee met Monday night for the first time in Phillips School. The Scholarship Fund originally was started in April, 1935, at the suggestion of The Franklin News and this newspaper made the initial contribution to start the fund.

It was designed to supplement the Jane E. Phillips Scholarship which was begun in 1906 by a $5,000 bequest in Mrs. Phillip's will. Recipients of this bequest

Yule Trees Go Up in Flames

POSTPONE VOTING ON ZONING REVISION

Voting on a proposed amendment to the zoning ordinance was postponed Thursday night by the Township Committee until its meeting of Feb. 16 when a recommendation is expected from the Planning Board.

Two new zones are proposed, the first for light industry, 1,000 feet on each side of the projected East-West Freeway, the second as agricultural-residential, near South Bound Brook, thus permitting building on lots of 100 by 100 feet with water and sewerage facilities, or an acre and a sixth without.

More than 120 trees went up in flames Sunday as the Second District Volunteer Fire Company held its second annual Christmas tree burning next to the firehouse.

Mayor James G. Maher awarded cash prizes of $5 and $2.50 to the two boys and girls who brought in the most trees. The mayor also set the bonfire.

The $5 prizes were awarded to Loretta Ganim and Paul Currey, Carol Joyce and Joseph Chaston Jr. won second prizes, $2.50 each. About 75 people attended the burning. Chairman for the affair was Joseph Chaston Sr.

About 30 people Tuesday night attended the Board of Education's public hearing on the $1,077,000.50 school budget. voters will be asked to approve for 1937-38 in the Feb. 13 school election.

Of the total, $801,463.67 must be raised by local taxation, the remaining amount being covered by state aid, tuition charges, and miscellaneous revenues.

Actually less than that amount will be raised by taxes as Stephen C. Reid, tax assessor, has successfully appealed the $176,895.06 in Formula Air granted by the State. However, certification of the increase won has not yet been received. When granted, it will lower the tax figure.

Of the total to be raised by taxation, $109,209.50 already has been approved by the voters as it comprises money to be used for the erection of the Elizabeth Avenue and Franklin Park schools.

The voters will be asked to approve $706,458.52 for current expense, $19,630 for repairs and replacements and $5,700 for capital outlay.

The largest single outlay is $399,200, budgeted for teachers' salaries, a jump of $78,405 over 1936-37.

Brookes Files For School Seat

Roy Brookes, 36, of Dale Farms, RD 3, Tuesday night became the first official candidate for a three-year term on the Board of Education to be contested Feb. 13 in the school election.

Incumbents Arthur Westneat Jr. and Milton Stoll have both said they will be candidates for re-election, but have not filed nominating petitions. The third incumbent, Walter Campbell, said Tuesday he was still considering.

A fourth seat on the board to fill the remaining year of the term of John J. Kelly, who resigned last Fall, also is open.

Mr. Stoll will be seeking his first full term. He was appointed last November to complete the term of George Carr, who resigned late last Summer.

Mr. Brookes ran unsuccessfully for the school board two years ago. He is a radio serviceman for Mobile Radio Dispatch of New Brunswick.

A resident of the Township for 12 years, Mr. Brookes graduated from New Brunswick Senior High School and attended Rutgers University.

During World War II, he served in North Africa and Italy with the U. S. Army. He and his wife, Millicent, are the parents of five children, three of whom are enrolled in the local school system.

Frankly Speaking

Jockeying between Democrats and Republicans for political advantage is well advanced this young year. With two seats on the Township Committee up for grabs in November, the Democrats here are happily dreaming of knocking GOP incumbents W. Russell Laird and Charles Jackson into political oblivion.

A double victory came General Election Day and the donkey boys will control Franklin for the first time since at least Civil War days.

The Democrats are convinced they pretty well have sewed up the new voters in Franklin. They confidently expect that Tax Assessor Stephen C. Reid, whose term is up this year, will be a millstone around the necks of his running mates.

New Democratic Township Committeeman Michael A. Lisl hardly waited to get his feet wet on the governing body before plunging ahead seeking votes. At the New Year's Day reorganization meeting, Mike was ready with a prepared statement opposing the appointment of Charles Siora to the Planning Board, the man whom he succeeded as Committeeman.

Last Thursday night Mike sprung another one on his GOP mates with a proposed ordinance that Township voters be asked in an election if they wanted a charter study group. This, in contrast to Mayor James G. Maher's original proposal that the voters ask for the referendum by petition.

One odd note in Mike's proposed ordinance was that whoever prepared it forgot this was a Township Committee form of government and instead wrote that the Mayor & Common Council should call for the election.

It seems rather obvious that the Democrats see lots of votes in Jimmy Maher's charter study proposal and are out to steal it away from him. The mayor is going to have a rough time in his effort to keep the whole thing out of politics.

There also is a strong prospect that his fellow Committeemen will shut Lisl out on future moves planned by the governing body. They are irritated by his whipping out a prepared statement opposing the action of the majority, especially when they give him the courtesy of letting him know what is in the wind. If Lisl wants to oppose, they want him to oppose "off the cuff."

The Republicans realize they are in for the toughest fight of their political lives to keep ahead in the Township. Some in the high command are pessimistic about their chances. But the GOP bigwig who aided the Democrats in the Lisl-Siora campaign is now supposed to have seen the light, especially as Messrs. Laird and Jackson are two of his friends.

The Board of Freeholders took monumental action on several problems Friday, most of which are destined to benefit one or more of Somerset's citizens.

There were pay raises for virtually everyone in the County Administration Building, but the most fascinating piece of business was a resolution approving a boundary change between Plainfield in Union County and Watchung, the latter being the home of several Somerset statemen.

This resolution, when completely adopted, will bear the signatures of the chief freeholder in both counties and the mayors of both municipalities.

The boundary change is to be effected under authority provided in a bill enacted into law by Gov. Meyner on Jan. 2. This bill was introduced in the Assembly on Nov. 19 by Assemblyman Carlisle W. Crane of Union (R.). According to the Legislative Index, this law "Authorizes counties and municipalities divided by an uncertain line of any nonnavigable stream to ascertain and make certain such center line," and specifies procedure to be taken by county freeholders and municipal governing bodies.

The Plainfield-Somerset boundary change revolves around a small parcel of land which suddenly found itself on the Watchung side of the Green Brook after this stream was straightened some time ago.

One of the signatures on the concurrent resolution will be that of Mayor Luke Gray of Watchung, county Republican chairman, who happens to reside and conduct his florist business on a narrow piece of land between the brook at this point and Highway 22. On the new piece of land that will be Somerset's has risen a new retail shop, just a few steps down the highway from Luke's posy emporium.

The brook-straightening deal was instituted some months ago when the City of Plainfield's engineer wrote to the Somerset Freeholders and made a request for approval of the stream bed change.

Plainfield's engineer didn't give much reason for the request, so County Counsel Robert M. Thompson was assigned to check up. Despite Thompson's subsequent protestations based on the potential ramifications of such a boundary change, Somerset's freeholders virtually told their counsel to sit down and mind his own business.

Soon thereafter, out of an azure sky, there came into being a tri-county organization known as the Green Brook Improvement Association, and at its helm was Freeholder Henry Fetherston of Somerset. Fetherston, who also beds down in Watchung, professed that the aims of the organization (which hasn't been published much since its first meeting) included the great task of securing inter-municipal agreement to make the Green Brook run in a straight line—along its entire length.

Also included in the nebulous aims of the GBIA were such lofty themes as flood and erosion control and creation of recreation areas.

Watchung's role in seeking the boundary change was revealed in a letter to the Union County Freeholders. And this point emphasized a serious condition in (this picture of civic improvement: Neither Plainfield nor Watchung bothered to contact their own freeholders in writing about the "let's-straighten-the-stream" idea; instead, Plainfield wrote to Somerset and Watchung wrote to Union.

Suddenly, on Nov. 19, along came Assemblyman Crane's bill.

A few folks in the County Administration Building might like to clarify this maze for the citizenry.

The story is around that County Planning Director Bill Roach will get the Grand Prix for political naivete. One day last week he invited Surrogate Casale Zimmerman to administer the oath of office to Mayor Jim Maher of Franklin and Freeholders Fetherston and C. I. Van Cleef, who were about to start new terms on the County Planning Board.

Casale already had borrowed a Bible from County Clerk Bob Bergen when word of the boobee got to Fetherston and C. I. Roach was assigned forthwith to repair his breach of political solemnity.

For the edification of those readers who find themselves as unaware as Mister Roach, let it be known again that Cassie is on the wrong Republican team. Asking him to swear in C. I. and Happy Harry would be like asking Adlai Stevenson to toss out the first baseball in Griffith Stadium next April.

Bergen, who we're told was quite embarrassed by this little political vignette, ultimately administered the oath to the three members of the Forbes-Gray squad, and so, fortunately for Somerset, county planning will continue for another year.

Be careful, Roach. You might cause an international crisis.

The Freeholders made with pay raises Friday, but all was not as joyous as was desired when the new pay scale list got around.

Word of the increments whipped up and down the Administration Building corridors like an Oklahoma twister, and if water coolers had ears they wouldn't be water coolers any longer.

As usual, the cry went up from several quarters that the Freeholders lacked imagination when it came to granting the pay boosts. And, as was expected, the folks who were happiest were those who supported the pre-election petition to keep Civil Service out of the Administration Building.

In the absence of any clear cut job evaluation program, pay increases were granted on the basis of current salaries.

But more on this subject some other Thursday.

Montgomery Makes a Move

Once again the Montgomery Board of Education is exhibiting a refreshing display of initiative that merits attention.

Last year this school board made a move that nudged the Board of Freeholders out of the doldrums for a moment and, consequently, the State Department of Education instituted a survey to determine if Somerset County's educational program requires a vocational school, and a report on this proposal is due next week.

Last week the Montgomery board, taking cognizance of rising tuition rates for its high school students in nearby Princeton, heard its president, Norman Hoagland, recommend that action be considered to create a regional high school district to serve Montgomery, Hillsborough, Franklin, Branchburg and Rocky Hill. Mr. Hoagland's suggestion, if seriously studied by his own board and those of the nearby municipalities, might possibly prove to be a firm move towards solving a momentous problem confronting each of the communities mentioned.

Before Manville went into its high school construction program the Board of Education and an advisory committee reviewed the possibilities of joining a regional group, but the proposal was rejected. One of the main reasons for rejecting the regional idea was that Manville as a community needed, and wanted, the kind of identity it could get only from having its own secondary school. Another major factor against the proposal was that Manville thought it might be heavily outweighed on a regional board of education.

These points were very plausible to Manville when it first considered its secondary school program, and they still are logical today, several years later, as high school classes gather daily while construction crews strive to complete the new school.

But because Manville did not take to the regional school proposal does not eliminate the probability that this would be a sound approach for Montgomery, Franklin, Hillsborough, Branchburg and Rocky Hill. Manville went into a construction program with the support of an increased tax assessment for the Johns-Manville plant, providing assurance that such new revenue would pay, over the years, most of the construction costs.

Montgomery and her neighbors have no such advantage. In fact, this group of communities has no important industrial levies at the moment, and should any one of them decide to go it alone at this time the road blocks would be enormous and decidedly immovable unless existing taxpayers decided they wanted to accept tremendous increases in tax rates.

It is not always cheaper to send students to a receiving district. Princeton is taking 100 Montgomery students at $490 each, the cost to rise to $525 for the next fiscal school year. Some of Franklin's 493 secondary students also attend Princeton High School, the others going to New Brunswick, and Hillsborough's 218 youngsters attend Somerville High at a current fee of $382 and a possible rate of $405 next year when Hillsborough's high school roster is expected to reach 258.

To cut the mounting cost, these communities might well look to Manville for high school space at a lower rate than they are now paying—while getting around a table to discuss Mr. Hoagland's suggestion.

MICROSCOPE ON COMMUNISM

By Dr. Alexander S. Hallak
Assistant professor of economics and specialist in Russian affairs and economics, Rutgers University, the State University of New Jersey.

The purpose of the Eisenhower Doctrine is to prevent the Middle East from falling into Soviet hands. The President did a magnificent job of telling us about its virtues, now comes time to examine it.

The Eisenhower plan rests on three assumptions: (1) That the Soviet rulers, unlike Hitler, are rational men who can be deterred from their course of world domination if it involves the chance of triggering World War III; (2) That the Soviet Union is now considering force rather than indirect means (subversion and economic aid) as a way of taking over the Middle East, and (3) That the governments of the Middle Eastern nations would or could ask for American military aid in the event of any danger from the Soviet Union.

Lenin's Dictum

The first assumption seems realistic enough. Past events have shown that Soviet policy has followed Lenin's dictum of "one step backward in order to take two steps forward at a more opportune time." Soviet policy will probably continue to follow Lenin's advice; making the American threat to use troops effective.

There is, however, one danger involved. Ever since American and other Allied troops landed on Soviet soil following the 1917 Revolution the Russian rulers have developed a paranoia about capitalistic encirclement.

An outright statement that we would use troops against them may convince them to plunge into what they would regard as a preventive war.

The second assumption is less well founded. The only new and dramatic part of the Eisenhower doctrine is the request to use our troops in the event of Soviet aggression in the Middle East. This implies the view that the Soviets lean toward direct and military force rather than toward economic aid and subversion. There is nothing in the American policy which would prevent Soviet economic aid with its army of technical experts who are really masters at subversion.

By Subversion

Unless they are pushed into it by further revolts within their own empire or by the force of American policy, the Soviet leaders would much prefer to take over the Middle East by subversion. The only solution offered by the Eisenhower Doctrine to Soviet indirection is the old Marshall Plan version of economic aid.

The final assumption is even more difficult to accept as American troops would be used in the Middle East only when requested by a nation in danger of being taken over by the Russians. Some of the nations in the Middle East (Syria, Egypt, etc.) are already so heavily allied with the Soviet Union that they would not ask for any military aid from the U.S. Others would fear that once American troops entered their country they would never leave.

The most likely situation, however, would be one in which the Soviet Union would not use military force—if at all—until enough subversion had taken place to set up a puppet government. By that time it would be too late.

All Over But the Mourning

Of Books & Plays & Sundry Things . . .

Right with Shakespearewrights

The character of Hamlet perhaps presents to the actor more difficulties than any other in a major play by Shakespeare. Lear's play is the hardest to produce from a technical standpoint, but Lear, like Othello or Macbeth, is, when compared to Hamlet, a relatively enigmatic personality.

What is the key to Hamlet's indecision? Is he scared, or is he too intelligent for his own good? Does he have an Oedipus complex, or is he simply the victim of an unfortunate set of circumstances? Or is he really indecisive? Does he not revenge his father at his first real opportunity? There is no simple clue to his character, no pat explanation for his behavior, any more than there is for that of a living, complex human being.

A Slice of Ham

Thus it seems unwise for any but the most technically able, intelligent and sensitive of actors to undertake the role. The recently closed production of "Hamlet" by the Shakespearewrights is a case in point. This lively group, with all its youthful originality and enthusiasm, has given us brilliant performances of "Twelfth Night" (just revived), "Macbeth," and "Othello," to name just a few, but their "Hamlet" was much less successful. Lively direction and a host of intelligent performances could not offset the poverty of Philip Lawrence's interpretation of the title role.

"Hamlet," after all, is Hamlet. Lawrence did ably in other roles with the group, but in this production he failed to follow his own advice. Hamlet says to the players, "Speak the speech, I pray you, as I pronounced it to you, trippingly on the tongue; but if you mouth it, as many of your players do, I had as lief the town-crier spoke my lines. Nor do not saw the air too much with your hand, thus; but use all gently: for in the very torrent, tempest, and, as I may say, whirlwind of your passion, you must acquire and beget a temperance that may give it smoothness."

Lawrence paid no attention to these words; he was to put it bluntly, hammy. Without insight into Hamlet's character, he was forced to rely upon the "mouthing" and "sawing" Shakespeare found so objectionable. The noise he created was particularly unnecessary in the intimate theatre and with the three-sided staging the Shakespearewrights use.

Nothing Like "Hamlet"

But this does not mean that the production was not worth seeing. It's always worth going to "Hamlet," just to hear the lines. Has any other piece of writing of its length given to our language so many of its common phrases and images? Besides, this production was staged with vigor. The Shakespearewrights are never afflicted with that worshipping attitude toward their author which so often creates the stiff, lifeless performances most resembling elocution lessons which sometimes pass for Shakespeare. Every laugh in a play, even in a tragedy like "Hamlet," they pull out of the audience. When a Shakespearewright duels, he really duels, and when he falls, you can hear the thud as he drops to the floor.

Aside from Lawrence's, the other performances were on the whole excellent, especially those of Mitchell Jason as Polonius and Virginia Mattia as Gertrude, Hamlet's mother.

The Shakespearewrights, currently performing in the basement of a church at 264 W. 87th St., are one of the outstanding products of the current activity of Broadway. They are a thoroughly professional group. Their unimpeachable approach to Shakespeare is refreshing, and the only time they fall down is when, as in Lawrence's performance of Hamlet, they rake up the ghosts of the 19th century. Their current revival of "Twelfth Night," if anything like the original which we reviewed in this column two years ago, should be a delight. For a steady output of competent Shakespeare, the Shakespearewrights are not only the New York audience's best bet—but its only bet.

FOOD INFORMATION

Many people go through life with beliefs about food that are more fallacy than fact, sticking to their own favorite theories.

Develop more open-mindedness about food, don't fall for the "magic formula" concept of diet.

Everyone needs every day about three cups of milk, two or more servings of meat or other protein food, four or more servings of fruits and vegetables and about four servings of whole grain, enriched, or restored bread or cereals. The vegetable-fruit group should include citrus or other fruit high in Vitamin C and green or yellow vegetables, rich in Vitamin A.

We need a variety of the right foods, milk, meat, fish or poultry, eggs, fruits and vegetables, and bread or cereals.

LIVING COSTS IN '57

Families have found the cost of food a bit higher the last six months. This is likely to continue into the first half of 1957.

Prices are not the only cost that are expected to creep up a little; the overall cost of living will be slightly higher.

Fuel for heating will be more expensive, cars will cost more, and gasoline is certain to be higher.

Once prices for clothing will go up too.

Rents are edging upward. Building costs for new homes have increased, and the trend toward larger and more expensive homes continues. Mortgage rates, recently raised, are not likely to be lower.

The cutting of retail prices on household equipment has been noticeable. But somewhat higher price tags have appeared on equipment lately.

The slightly higher cost of living is expected to be accompanied by a further rise in incomes for many families. Also favorable is the fact that personal savings were high in 1956 and consumers spent less than the total amount of their incomes.

Some families have not been in such favorable income situations, although others have had low incomes only because of limited ability or failure to take part in the expanding labor market. Others are on fixed incomes. These families find it hard to adjust even to a small rise in living costs.

THE LIFE OF A COAT

Very often the lining in a coat wears out before the actual coat does. It may pay you to reline it.

If you are handy with the needle and thread and follow a few simple steps, relining the coat will be a comparatively easy task. Be certain, in buying new lining fabric, to get a good quality fabric. It should be firmly woven so that it will not pull out at the seams and smooth enough so you can slip in and out of the coat easily. The fabric should be of fast color so it will not fade or crock off onto other garments. Some are perspiration-proof.

Most lining fabrics come in widths from 39 to 45 inches. To determine how much fabric you need, measure the length of the coat from shoulder at neckline to the hem. Add two inches for a hem. This figure may now be multiplied by 2 with the additional amount for the sleeve added to this figure. These inches, figured into yards, should allow for cutting. However, if the coat is very full or has many seams, it may be better to allow a half yard more.

Before removing the old lining, have the coat dry-cleaned. Using only half of the old lining as a pattern and following the grain line of the original pieces, you are ready to cut. Assemble the lining pieces in the proper order and replace the entire lining into the coat.

THE COLOR WHEEL

Skilful handling of color contributes to the attractiveness of economical interior designing.

If only one color is to be used, select striking differences in light and dark values and in bright and dull intensities. Emphasize differences in woods, brick, stone and in textures and weaves of fabrics.

For a scheme of three colors choose three equally distant from each other on the color wheel. To see the possible combinations

HERE'S HOW ...

MAKE A CAMERA EQUIPMENT WALL SHELF

A wall shelf can provide convenient storage for camera equipment and color slides. All lumber used is planed to a thickness of 1/2-inch. Squared ends can be made with the aid of a miter box.

Make the slides 8 inches wide and 28 1/2 inches long. Use a pattern to make the design.

Make the top trim as shown. A coping saw is used to cut the curved edges. The top shelves are each 5 1/2 by 14 inches; the bottom shelves are 7 1/2 inches wide. Make the drawer stops and drawers to the dimensions shown. Assemble the project with glue and finishing nails. Round all sharp edges.

National Lumber Manufacturers Association

cut out a perfect triangle. Place it in the center of the color wheel. Any three colors touched by the points of the triangle will blend. One example is yellow-green, blue-violet and red-orange. Use one predominantly in medium values, a second in light values and a third in bright intensity accent.

Another way in which the color wheel may be used to tune colors is to select those set next to each other. An example is yellow-green, green and blue-green.

A third way is to cut out a triangle with two sides of equal length and place it in the center of the color wheel. Three colors these points will touch are blue-green, blue-violet and orange.

Look for canned corn to be a special buy this month, because of the especially large crop of corn last year.

Committee Form of Government Obsolete Since '17, Residents Told

Franklin Township's government has been obsolete since 1917, Mrs. Walter McAndrew of Edison Township told a group of Franklin residents attending an open meeting Monday night in the East Franklin Firehouse to discuss the proposed revision of the governing body.

About 30 people attended the meeting which was sponsored by the Women's Democratic Club.

Creation of a charter study group became a topic for discussion last month when Mayor James G. Maher revealed he was having petitions prepared to put the subject to referendum.

Mrs. McAndrew, who was a member of a citizens' committee in Edison which supported the change in that municipality's government, said that in 1917 the Legislature prohibited any new township committees in New Jersey and passed a law providing for commission type of government.

Mrs. McAndrew recommended that a non-partisan citizens' committee get behind the movement and support candidates for the five-man charter group. This group would make the study, if the referendum was approved by the voters in November's General Election.

She described the basic forms of municipal government, mayor-council, council-manager, and the small municipalities plan. The

No More Welfare Funds for VNA To Treat Indigent

Suspension of payments by the County Welfare Board to the Somerset Valley Visiting Nurses' Association for the treatment of aged indigent patients was protested Friday by Branchburg Township.

The Township Committee, in a statement to the Freeholders, maintained "it was unfair to expect local authorities to shoulder the entire burden of costs involved."

County Counsel Robert M. Thompson explained that the ruling on all Visiting Nurses' Associations was made by the State Department of Institutions & Agencies based on an interpretation of the State Constitution by the Attorney General's office.

However, Mr. Thompson said, "The position taken by the Township is perfectly legitimate. I think it is an unnecessary ruling jeopardizing the financial standing and ability to operate of VNAs."

"I don't know how to get around the ruling. It might take a constitutional change since the ruling was based on the Constitution."

The attorney said that Article VIII, Section III, Paragraph 3 of the State Constitution prohibits governmental units from donating public money to societies, associations and corporations.

The County Welfare Board cannot enter into a contract with the VNA because the ruling states that such agreements between governmental units and health associations "shall be for the benefit of all inhabitants in the territory covered by the contract."

The ruling, effective July 1, 1958, prohibits County Welfare funds from being given VNAs for such treatment because the VNA treats free all indigent, regardless of age.

The department maintains that if younger indigents are treated with charge, the policy must be the same for the aged. County Welfare funds are for assistance to aged only.

Mr. Thompson has advised the Somerset Valley VNA that it can either discontinue its services to the indigent, which is bound to bring public protest, or it can increase its contract price with municipalities.

A similar ruling on almost the same grounds was made by Mr. Thompson on the request by the Somerset County Historical Society for an appropriation of $360 to aid its work in erecting markers at historical sites. He said the State Constitution prohibits financial aid from governing bodies to non-public corporations.

He added that he could find no case law dealing directly with historical societies, but had conferred with George Skillman, director of the Division of Local Government, who advised him that the Freeholders could not make the appropriation.

Mr. Skillman said enabling legislation would have to be passed by the State Legislature, recognizing historical societies as public bodies operating for a public purpose before they could receive funds from governing bodies.

$1 Million School Budget Wins Okay

be 13 new teachers next year for a total of 81.

Salaries of teachers now in the school system, Mr. Westneat said, show an average increase of about $500. This figure is reduced to about $400 with new teachers included.

Not Keeping Up

Mr. Westneat produced a chart showing increases in salaries in many neighboring municipalities. Franklin's scale was in the lower third, and Mr. Westneat said, "We are not keeping our position with our neighbors."

The second greatest hike is in tuition costs for pupils attending schools outside the Township. Last year $220,118 was budgeted for 520 pupils. This year, $262,000 is being set aside for an estimated 598 pupils.

Joseph Takacs, chairman of the finance committee, explained that a sizable portion of the budget was in fixed charges that the board had no control over, such as redemption of bonds and payment of interest, social security taxes and insurance and pension funds.

The board in 1957-58 will redeem bonds valued at $80,000 and pay interest totaling $20,209.50.
