

Correct Zone Violations or Pay, Shamy

Arguments concerning two zoning cases continued almost five hours Tuesday night in Franklin Township Court.

Anthony Kochanowicz of 18 Franklin Ave., Franklin Township, was charged with having neither a building nor occupancy permit for a dwelling unit he said was built in 1946.

ADAM B. CHASE, Manville attorney, argued that the municipality was not within its rights attempting to enforce the ordinance, since Kochanowicz had been allegedly violating the measure almost 10 years.

Magistrate George Shamy gave Kochanowicz until Sept. 1 to get a variance in use the converted garage for a dwelling or vacate it. Otherwise he will be open to a fine of $25 for each day thereafter as long as the violation exists.

Magistrate Shamy said that he was sympathetic with Kochanowicz since he had used the dwelling for so many years without any complaint being made, but that he was nevertheless bound by law to correct the violation.

Carl Erbacher, zoning officer, issued the summons following an investigation.

THE MAGISTRATE also served notice on David Morris of Highland Park that he must cease permitting a junk yard to operate on his property at Route 27 and Churchill Ave. or face fines.

Morris was given 30 days to halt the violations or pay $25 daily for continued violations.

Jacob Ratner, New Brunswick attorney who represented Morris, said he intended to file an appeal in County Court to reverse Shamy's ruling.

Morris contended that the property had been non-conforming since 1926 and that the present operation was not in violation of the zoning code.

HA Hurdles Final Barrier; Gets Variance

The Housing Authority hurdled its last legal barrier last night when the Board of Adjustment granted a variance for the construction of the proposed ten multiple dwelling buildings, which will contain from four to six family units each.

The opposition, which has decreased at each hearing, dwindled to one lone objector whose only argument was that "it isn't fair" to put up the low cost housing unit when the township still has no park.

The protestor was reminded by Acting Chairman Alex Katchen that a park has now been created by township ordinance, and is in process of construction.

APPLICATIONS by farmers whose business activities had outgrown their original food production efforts, and who wished variances to cover processing and selling, were received and taken under advisement.

Joseph Danhauser, of Pleasant Farm, told the Board he was doing the same thing that has done for 76 years, candling and packaging eggs, but that he is temporarily producing no eggs because of a disease that swept through his flock.

Township Talk

About this time seven years ago East Millstone was in the news for having voted by more than four to one to abandon its "home rule" status and become a full part of Franklin Township. There was a lot of hassling over just how it would be done.

Apparently a few diehards were unwilling to accept the mandate of a majority of the people and were making the transition as difficult as possible.

It looks as though some of these same people are trying to work up something again, although not one of them will admit it.

In fact, only one citizen has taken a public stand either way (see Ed Voorhees' anti-secession letter in our mailbox column), but many questioned by this reporter either scoffed at the idea of secession or expressed themselves as being strongly opposed to it.

It might be interesting to review briefly the history of East Millstone's "Independence."

East Millstone is one of the oldest villages in the state, its early origin going back far enough to be lost except in the dusty files of librarians. George Washington's army crossed and recrossed the Millstone River in the vicinity many times during the New Jersey campaign against the British and Hessians, which culminated with the Battle of Trenton in 1778.

Back in 1873, when people who owned property were called "freeholders" and only they could vote (no women at all, of course; how did they manage?) the legislature of New Jersey passed "an Act for the Improvement of East Millstone," permitting the village within certain stipulated boundaries to set up a road district and to elect five commissioners to administer it.

The commissioners had no power to levy taxes but the road tax paid to Franklin Township was returned to the commissioners and they built and maintained the streets and roads.

The "freeholders" voted for these commissioners, but they also voted in Franklin Township for municipal, county, state and national candidates.

The act of 1873 said nothing about schools, but in those days, every schoolhouse was in a separate district and had its own Board of Education.

In 1917, the Legislature passed a

Chief Voorhees Answers EM Secession Proposal

Dear Editor:

As a newspaper, I know you are interested in the so-called secession of East Millstone program that recently made the front pages. I am quite sure you are also interested in the opinions of those who would be against secession.

Back in the summer of 1949 when it was necessary for the people of East Millstone to surrender their Road District charter and either remain in the township or create a new borough, I was one who was definitely against the latter course.

Mr. Clarkson Crammer (deceased) who was the town's attorney, explained why the village could not exist as a borough. The condensed explanation was "not enough assessed valuation." His explanation convinced 80 per cent of the voters.

Personally, I cannot see where there has been any change in the past seven years. I will admit that the tax rate has increased 50 per cent but so has the cost of municipal government.

May I quote a few approximated

'Safe Cracking' Delays Court

A professional safecracker would have come in handy Tuesday night when Magistrate George Shamy, Zoning Officer Carl Erbacher and a few police officers were unsuccessful in an amateur attempt to jimmy open a filing cabinet.

The explanation? It seems a written complaint which was locked in the cabinet was needed during the hearing of a zoning offense.

The key to the filing cabinet had been lost, but Magistrate Shamy and the others attempted to retrieve the locked-in complaint without it. They only succeeded in jamming the lock.

The magistrate sheepishly announced that the taxpayers were going to have to buy a new cabinet. He added, "I only hope they don't take it out of my salary."

A little later Erbacher hurried into the court room with the needed written complaint.

Maybe he hired a magician.

Board Employs Two Teachers, Seek 8 More

The Board of Education has hired two new teachers and received the resignation of a third. Hired were Miss Lois Humme, a graduate of Miami University, Ohio, at a salary of $3,400, and John Demkovich of New Brunswick, a graduate of St. Bonaventure University, at $3,300.

Miss Lucy Ferranti, a teacher at Pine Grove Manor School, announced her resignation.

FOUR NEW TEACHERS have indicated an interest recently in joining the school system and four more are still sought, Dr. James Lynch, superintendent of schools, reports.

The school board voted to send Arthur N. Starin Associates, architects who drew up plans for the vetoed junior high school, a letter explaining why the Board of Education is not going to pay the firm approximately $1,800 it claims.

Leonard Bardsley, board president, said the work, in addition to that ordered by the board in 1955, was ordered by the then president, Dr. C. Rexford Davis. Bardsley said Davis did not have the authorization of the board.

Bardsley also stated that Davis was not aware that Starin was going to make any charge for the extra work involved.

Finally, said Bardsley, the voters turned down in the 1956 school board election a question to pay Starin most of the $32,178. However, Starin has been paid almost all of the fee for his part of the job.

FOLLOWING A REPORT that 3100 in broken glass blocks at Pine Grove Manor School was done over last weekend, the board decided to take firm action in the future. Members decided to prosecute parents as a means of collecting for any damage to schools.

Structo Schools Corporation has one last chance to build a Franklin Township school. And that is a slim one.

A resolution already has been adopted by the Board of Education authorizing Micklewright and Mountford, the board's architect, to design a 21-room conventional school for the Elizabeth Avenue site. An alternate would provide for the subtraction of two rooms.

Next, the board named the same firm to design an eight-room conventional school for Franklin Park. It would carry a two-room alternate.

STRUCTO'S ONLY HOPE lies in a third resolution. In the measure Structo was directed to prepare an eight-room school with all the features "originally promised."

Providing the plans pass the N.J. State Department of Education, Structo would run as an alternate for the Franklin Park job opposing the school planned by Micklewright and Mountford. As with the M & M proposal, the Structo bid

THE CHARGE is $1.40 per person and each child is requested to bring his own lunch. Registrations will be taken by playground instructors at Pine Grove, Franklin Park and Middlebury schools until Monday. During the trip there will be close supervision by several parents and two playground instructors. Any child under seven years

Told $1,500 From HA Set For Township

Mayor James G. Maher was advised yesterday by the Housing Authority that the township's annual income from its 50-unit low-cost housing project would be an estimated $1,500.

Authority Chairman W. Russell Laird said the planned project near Millstone Road is expected to produce each year about $15,000 in gross rentals. Ten per cent of the gross must go to the township as "annual payments in lieu of taxes."

Chairman Laird pointed out that the small portions of the site now privately owned only yield to the township $97.74. The remaining part of the site is presently owned by the township.

He pointed out that even if the whole tract were now able to be taxed, the total revenue would be $886 yearly, based on an average assessment of $100 per vacant lot.

The authority chairman noted that the same-value housing project, if built by a private developer, would now be yielding in taxes about $9,000 per year. But this, he said, was a false comparison, as no private developer would be likely to build for the same low rents, and the same land use would not be available.

Mrs. Elizabeth H. Neffly, the authority's executive director, found in a recent survey that there are several substandard homes presently being assessed at from $1,500 to $2,000. In some of these homes, she said, five or six families are living, which breaks down the annual tax share to from $30 to $40 per family.

SHE SAID the comparable breakdown for the housing project

"That's quite a job you did. Three charges in one day. I haven't heard anything like it since I've been here—and you've picked probably three of the most serious charges." Magistrate George Shamy told Michael Cimko, 20, of Grouser Rd., East Millstone, in Franklin Township Court Monday night. Cimko was charged in one day with leaving the scenes of two acidents and reckless driving. The first accident occurred on Canal Rd., East Millstone, when Cimko's car left the road and ran over a bicycle parked at the side of the road. Charges were preferred by Officer Lawrence Collier. The second accident occurred on Livingston Ave., also in East Millstone. Officer Walter I. Adams preferred the charge.

daughter because of his reckless driving." Ernest Wooden, 34, of 13 Restrauvir Ave., New Brunswick, pleaded guilty to a careless driving charge and was fined $10 and $5 costs. Officer William A. Ribar preferred the charge. Dionisio Diaz, 22, of Rocky Hill paid $5 and $5 costs for driving without a license. The charge was preferred by Officer John W. Burtes Jr. A. "home rule" law permitting small towns like East Millstone a further degree of autonomy but it made little difference to the townspeople, who felt themselves just as much a part of Franklin Township as did the people in Kingston, Franklin Park or Middlebush. The law did help someone in the early forties win a case against the dog warden for picking up his pooch, but that was about all.

By 1948, there were only two of those little semi-independent towns left in the state and both were in Somerset County. After Raritan had a hassle with Bridgewater and decided by vote to become an independent borough, East Millstone was in a class by itself.

In January 1949 the state director of local government informed East Millstone's commissioners that he could not approve their annual budget, and then entanglement in red tape began. The directors decision was based on a court decision which made all inter-municipal budgets illegal. The people of East Millstone had to decide whether to become a fully independent borough or to become an integral part of Franklin Township. So that was that, until last week when it became known that a group of people in East Millstone had employed Lawyer John Strong to find out if East Millstone could legally get out of the township. It looks like a lost cause from the start, especially if the backers of the move are not willing for their names to be known. But its for sure this time East Millstone would not be able to use the facilities of Franklin without being an integral part of the township. It would be all or nothing—total separation or total integration.

The two most sensible things said at that long-drawn-out Board of Ed meeting Monday night were: J. H. Voorhees: "The Board of Education has graciously taken too much advice from too many people. It is your responsibility to make the decision. You have a mandate." Louis Loeb: "We could dig dirt from now till tomorrow and would be no nearer to having schools. Let's cooperate, compromise our differences, and get on with the business of getting schools."

Another good thing that came out of that school board meeting was the decision to take legal action next time school property is damaged by vandals. If the guilty parties can be apprehended. The police are keeping a close watch on the schools, as evidenced by the report Chief Voorhees gave of incidents when they had found schools unlocked, lights left on, etc.

Mrs. Peter Hutnick reported to the board Monday night that residential developers in the South Bound Brook area were promising prospective home buyers that a school would be ready in the area by Oct. 1, and were spreading the story that the developers had donated the land for the school. Apparently some developers in the east end of the township have misrepresented tax costs to some buyers. If this sort of thing keeps up we are going to have some very disappointed and disgruntled new citizens. There should be some way to prevent these over-zealous salesmen from making wild promises.

Two weeks ago Second District firemen had their annual picnic in Johnson Park. Last Saturday Middlebush smoke eaters had theirs at Squibb. This Sunday East Millstone's firemen will picnic at a grove in Millstone. Franklin has more canal bank than any other one municipality; in fact, its on three sides of us, but darn little good it does us. Our organizations have to go outside the township for a picnic. Too bad.

NB Presbyterian

The Presbyterian Church, 100 Livingston Ave., New Brunswick, will hold a second Vacation Bible School for children 4 to 14, July 23 to August 3, from 9 to 11:45 a. m., daily except Saturday and Sunday. The first school, with an enrollment of over 80 youngsters, was completed July 9.

There will be four departments: kindergarten, primary, junior and junior high. Children whose fourth birthday will occur before Sept. 1 may enroll in the four-year-olds kindergarten. The fives and sixes will be in a separate class.

The material taught in the Bible School includes Bible stories and memory work, dramatization, handicraft and special projects. All children of whatever faith or race are welcome and there is no tuition charge.

A staff of teachers will serve under the supervision of Dr. Jarvis S. Morris, the minister of education of the church.

Enrollment will be between 8:30 and 9 a. m. on the first day of the school, Monday, July 23, at the Redmond St. entrance of the church.

Jehovah's Witnesses

Eighteen delegates from the Easton Avenue Bible study class of Jehovah's Witnesses left yesterday morning to attend their district assembly at Roosevelt Stadium, Jersey City, through Sunday.

Warren Hallsworth, presiding minister of the Bible study class, who is accompanying the delegates, announced today that a total of 12,000 is expected to attend from 170 congregations in metropolitan New York, Long Island and New Jersey. They will travel by car in small groups and will take interested persons with them.

Hallsworth said this assembly is one of 28 mid-summer Christian conventions being held in key cities from coast to coast in the United States.

He stated, "Delegates at each of these four-day assemblies will hear identical programs sponsored by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society. A combined attendance of more than 165,000 is anticipated."

Play Areas Draw 500 Youngsters

Five hundred children are enrolled in Franklin Township's summer recreation program, Ed Blumberg, director, reported to the Youth Guidance Council at a meeting Tuesday evening in township hall.

Groups of children have been gathering at Pine Grove, Middlebush, Phillips and Kingston schools for activities. In the second district the council has erected a large tarpaulin tent on Elizabeth Ave. near the firehouse which is being used as a headquarters and for indoor activities.

Blumberg reported that the Hill and Neuman Box Co. of Jersey City has donated 50 bird feeder kits for the children to put together in crafts classes. More will be purchased if needed.

The recreation program will end with a field day at Pine Grove School Aug. 17. Cookies for the affair will be donated by the Weston Biscuit Company. Detailed plans will be announced later.

TALL, DARK--AND AWKWARD

By Jac Tweton

ROY KENNEDY became self-conscious again—the moment his six feet four entered the outer office of Acme Television, which was packed with hopeful salesmen, all talking animatedly. Then a short, husky blond fellow yelled uninhibitedly, "How's the air up there?"

"Pretty warm. Heat rises, you know," Roy managed. But he was so tired of that quip.

"Got you played basketball?" Roy smiled ruefully. "I love sports."

"But you grew too fast."

"That's what mother said," Roy agreed. She sympathized with him. Dad was disappointed, everyone else made fun of his awkwardness, except Georgia Georgia didn't, even when he stepped on her feet while dancing. "And Georgia," he added loyally.

"Wife or girl friend?"

"Girl friend—so far. But if Acme hires me, I'll propose."

"Mr. Wilcox and Mr. Kennedy."

R. H. Adams' blond secretary announced as two more salesmen walked dejectedly out of Adams' office.

Roy's hopes fell when Tim got up with him. Roy was paired with the best salesman in the room!

Wilcox grinned at the blonde as they passed her desk. "Hi—"

"Hi," she said, and winked. She smiled at him, but not at Roy.

Adams was not a man to waste time. He was looking at his watch when the men entered. Roy humped into the chair Adams waved him toward. Wilcox did not stumble. Adams glanced impatiently at Roy who thought, "I've dropped the ball again. Tall, dark, and awkward—that's me."

"According to your letters of application, your qualifications are nearly identical," Adams said crisply. "That's why I called you in here together, as I do others with similar records." Adams was quite as awesome as rumored — head bent forward slightly so his grayish-blue eyes looked chillingly from under black, bushy eyebrows. "Before I ask you to demonstrate how you'd sell Acme, I want you to tell me why you want this job. Don't stop to think."

Hope he asks Wilcox first, Roy thought.

"Kennedy," Adams nodded.

"Sir," Roy began, "I feel I can benefit the company—and myself—by becoming a salesman for Acme Television. I believe Acme to be a fine old company—as TV firms range in age." Then he was horrified to hear himself blurt, "And I'd like to get married, sir."

"Wilcox," Adams barked.

Roy opened his mouth.

"I think I can be the acme salesman for Acme Television." And, Wilcox glanced at Roy, "as long as we're bringing in personal reasons," he became serious. "I wasn't going to mention this, but Marie and I have three of the sweetest kids in the world, Jimmy, Katie and Junie. They're swell. Marie, too." Wilcox stared solemnly at the carpet a moment, then continued, "But Jimmy's never been well, and he needs a very serious operation." Adams' granite visage softened noticeably. "We haven't any fatalities to help us, and well, to be honest, that's my main reason right there Jimmy." He's certainly deserving, Roy thought resignedly.

Adams almost beamed at Wilcox, but he was still all business. "Now for the selling demonstr—" A loud perfunctory knock interrupted him as the door swung open. "Can't you see I'm busy, Peters?"

"But, R. H., I just set a sales record. Wait till I—Tim! You old loafer! I didn't think you'd apply here. Did Marie push you into it so you two can get hitched?"

After an instant of heavy silence, Adams leaped to his feet and roared, "Kennedy, you're hired! Acme prefers tall men to tall stories."

'Autocide' Nearing All-Time High

"Autocide" is the theme of a ten point highway accident reduction program featured in the current issue of the safety magazine published by the Institute for Safer Living.

The death rate by autocide is threatening to reach an all time high—an estimated 41,000 traffic deaths for the year 1956. Because of the immediacy of the problem, the staff of the Institute has devoted its entire issue to communicating the views of ten outstanding authorities in the traffic safety field.

Each report is a campaign for action in one of the ten major areas where much can be accomplished to bring autocide under control. The Institute warns that if we are to stop one auto death from occurring every thirteen minutes, we must meet the ten critical needs outlined below:

1. Continue pressure for new highway construction and the widening, straightening and repairing of secondary roads.
2. Support driving training courses. Only 11 states have top-level driving courses for high school students.
3. Establish an effective state

4. Abolish all ticket-fixing.
5. Help the community to organize all its agencies into a coordinated force for safer driving.
6. Expand traffic policing forces.
7. Encourage nation-wide adoption of uniform traffic laws.
8. Believe in and practice courtesy on the highway.
9. Encourage safety engineers and others concerned to turn their attention to safe car design and construction.
10. Let every driver know how to control and respect the power at his command; let him learn what causes accidents and how to avoid them; let him learn the rules of the road and obey them.

flock, and a fire in June which destroyed one of his buildings. He said he came before the board because some of his neighbors complained.

The Mironov Brothers, owners of Somerset Farms Dairy, Middlebush, were not on hand at the meeting, and neither were any objectors to their application to process and sell milk on the property. Katchen said that the applications were being held because they represented a new problem and he wished the township attorney to study the case before proceeding.

FRANK HIGGINS was granted a rehearing, Aug. 18, on his application to park and service 15 trucks on his farm near Kingston. He was represented by Assemblyman William Ozzard, a Somerville attorney.

Donald and Margaret Buffa were denied a variance to make three building plots out of twelve 25x100 ft. lots near Rose and Prospect Streets, but were advised to go back to the Planning Board and request an ordinance clarifying the situation, which is similar to a number of others in the East Franklin section.

Carl Van Nordhelm was denied a variance to turn a studio attached to his home on Laurel Ave., Kingston, into an apartment. In presenting his application, Nordhelm told the Board that three of the houses close enough to him to have their owners served with notices, were two-family houses.

Lyle Hagmann told the Board of Adjustment that, representing the Board of Education, he protested the granting of any variance which could conceivably add to the school population. Nordhelm's home is across the street from Kingston School.

denied a variance to turn the second floor of his home on Lincoln Highway into an apartment, which he said he wanted for his in-laws. The Board held that he did not show hardship or other special reasons.

Vincent Bonopane, Green St., was denied a variance to enclose a patio, which would leave an insufficient side yard, because he could not show hardship or special need for the alteration.

The Board granted Dr. Morgan Upton, Olcott St., Middlebush permission to erect a tool house in his back yard six feet from the side street known as Chleken Alley and eight feet from his property line.

At the start of the meeting an overflow crowd jammed the room, but as the meeting ran over three hours the audience dwindled to a half dozen persons waiting to hear the final verdicts.

SENATOR HOMER CAPEHART, of Indiana, has introduced a bill which sounds like a commonsense approach to the troublesome farm surplus problem, and which is rapidly gaining adherents on Capitol Hill. The measure would simply appropriate $100,000,000 for research to find new uses and new customers for farm products.

Senator Capehart points out that the federal government and the States have spent over a billion dollars to show the farmers how to raise more products and market them through agricultural experiment stations, production research and marketing research.

Says Senator Capehart: "As a businessman I know of only two ways to increase business. One is to sell more goods to existing customers, and the other is to find new customers. We are selling all we possibly can to existing customers. So we must find new uses and new customers if we are going to solve permanently the farm problem."

Only token appropriations have been made for research into new uses for farm products. For instance in 1955, the appropriation was $9.5 million. For the same year $138.4 million was appropriated to show the farmer how to grow more and to market more of what he grows.

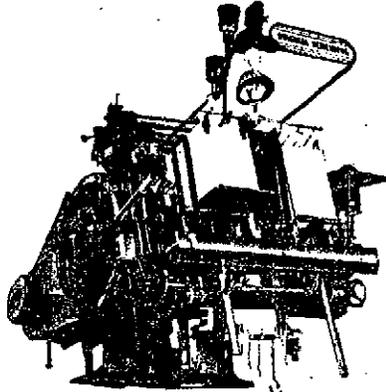

How can these new uses be developed? One way would be to mix grain alcohol with gasoline or auto fuel to make a high test premium out of ordinary gasoline. Estimates are that it would save up to 2 million bushels of grain annually. It is being done in other countries successfully.

Another possible product is a soft, but tough new fibre for clothing, made from cornstarch. Government researchers in the USDA laboratory at Peoria, Ill., have found that amylose, a cornstarch component is suitable for this purpose, also for making a tough film similar to cellophane for food wrappers and containers. Most varieties of corn yields about 27% amylose, and new varieties already developed yield as much as 56%.

A Columbus, Indiana, starch plant has another starch product which gives to soil the consistency of paving. It is still in the hi-cost area but can be used for paving farm yards, driveways, and to stabilize soil beds under roadways.

However in developing new uses for agricultural products, it is important also to develop new crops. It is pointed out that there are 300,000 known species of plants and less than 200 are used for commercial agricultural purposes, with only about 12 producing 80 per cent of man's food. Only rubber has been added to the list of important crops in the past century. Other uses which have promising results include production of high-protein food by fermentation; paint from vegetable oil, synthetic and microbial rubber, increased uses of starches in paper, manufacture of hardboard, boxboard and building board from grain; more use of bagasse and other grain stalks for kraft paper and packaging paper and pulp; fermented grain to make a substitute similar to sap from a rubber tree; Glucos from wheat used in making hardboard and board.

 figures. I have not done any research in this matter and I may be slightly inaccurate but I doubt if it is of any great consequence. Our tax rate is $9.36 plus $1.08 county tax. The county tax will be paid whether East Millstone is a borough or not. The assessed valuation is approximately $200,000 in the village, therefore we are contributing approximately $18,000 to township.

What do we receive for our tax money? We average 15 high school pupils at between $400 and $500 a year tuition and transportation. We average 30 to 40 grade school pupils between $300 and $350 a year tuition and transportation. The fire company and the rescue squad receive between $1,000 and $1,250 a year. We have approximately 30 street lights, annual cost unknown. Our streets are cleaned after every snow storm and are resurfaced once every two or three years. Costs cannot be computed when the cost of equipment is considered. A telephone call will bring a police officer within minutes, 24 hours a day.

When we were in the road district we paid 25 cents per $100 more than the rest of the township and received no more than we are receiving now. As a borough we would have to pay a tax assessor, a tax collector, a treasurer, a trust officer, a dog warden, a road department foreman and personnel. All this would be added to the above figures.

I clearly remember Mr. Clarkon making the following statement: "The taxpayer pays for everything he gets. The state insists that we educate our children. After that, if we don't want roads, or street lights, or police, or fire companies, or any other facilities, we could decrease our tax rate as much as 20 per cent."

Until someone can convince me that the East Millstone taxpayer will benefit financially by going into a borough I am strictly against it, just as I was in 1945.
 ED. F. VOORHEES,
 East Millstone

Told $1,500

 would be about $30 yearly per family, or 50 families into $1,500. This would mean, she noted, that some groups entering the housing project would still pay their same approximate tax share, while the landlord who housed them illegally paid his rightful share on the house they left.

The estimated gross rents, said Laird, had been worked out earlier this week by Executive Director Nlebyl and officials of the PHA.

The Millstone Road project has been recommended for approval by federal officials in New York and Washington. But before any further funds are advanced, the authority was slated to obtain a zoning variance from the township Board of Adjustment last night. In the zone where the project is planned, multi-family dwelling units are presently not permitted.

THE EASY WAY—Barbara and Margaret Cleary show how easy it is to collect the hundreds of golf balls hit at their Tara Greens driving range on Lincoln Hwy., Franklin Township. This roller attached to the jeep does all the work. The girls, sisters and co-proprietors of the driving range, have added another endeavor to their business ventures. They are now marketing a selective crabgrass killer which they call Tara. They are offering it as a result of many inquiries from the public asking how they keep the Tara Greens in such tip top condition.

Structo's Last

 would enter a two-room alternate.

THE BOARD AGREED that bidding on the two schools would be held at the same time and that in no way could the Structo alternate hold up the bids of Micklewright and Mouniford. No date was set for bidding.

Apparently the reasons that the board swung away from Structo and to Micklewright and Mouniford were several: Structo's inability to come up with bids within the bond issue, the Trenton architect's reputation and experience in New Jersey and his lower estimates on the project.

Micklewright told the board last Thursday he could build both schools, 21 rooms at Elizabeth Avenue and eight rooms at Franklin Park, for $747,780.

Structo's offer was for 19 rooms at Elizabeth Avenue and eight rooms at Franklin Park at a cost of $760,438. The Boston firm said it could complete the project by Dec. 15, barring any interruption because of the steel strike. Micklewright said the job could be done in time for the opening of classes in September, 1957.

People who insist they live on their dignity often find themselves mighty short.

Board Employs

 by youthful vandals. Dr. Lynch told several parents he hoped to know within a month the assignment of pupils for classes this fall.

Board member Walter F. Campbell suggested that the board should aim for a date of Aug. 15 for the distribution of this information. Lynch said he was attempting to have the planning completed by that time.

Mrs. Ruth Schmidt, a representative of the Middlebush PTA, announced that plans are under way for a meeting at which all PTAs will be asked to take part in a survey in their districts.

Set Rec. Trip

 of age must be accompanied by a parent, older brother or sister. Buses will leave Wednesday morning at 8:55 from Franklin Park, 9:15 from Middlebush, and 9:30 from Pine Grove. They will arrive back in Franklin Township about 5 p. m.

Within the next six weeks, trips are planned to Walker Gordon Farms, a big league baseball game and Storyland Village.

The highlight of this week's playground program will be a vehicle show July 23. On that day children will be judged for unusual decorating of anything on wheels.
