

Human Dump Barricade Formed

Solution To Problem Is Looked For

The newly formed Pine Grove dump committee is getting right down to brass tacks today towards a solution to the township's present dump problem.

The organized group, composed of six citizens and members of the township committee, are investigating this afternoon the possibility of using other dump sites including South Brunswick dump.

Yesterday Mrs. Eugene Szabo, Mrs. Kenneth Christie, Mrs. Nicholas Furmick, Mayor James G. Mahler, and Committeemen Charles Sincera, W. Russell Laird and Casimiro Calvo "looked around" at various dumps but did not begin complete investigation.

The dump committee will also investigate the value of reactivating

Dr. Smith To Leave County For New Post

Dr. Sampson G. Smith will resign as Somerset County superintendent of schools to become supervising principal of a new regional high school district in Ocean County.

Dr. Smith will leave his post here September 15 and begin his new duties the following day. He has been county superintendent of schools since November, 1945.

The new school district, which Dr. Smith will head, encompasses Long Beach Island, Stafford Township and Beach Haven Borough. The regional board is in the process of planning construction of a new campus-type junior-senior high school for grades 7 through 12 and will receive bids on the project September 10.

According to Dr. Smith, the new school will be situated on a 43-acre site.

Settlement Between Bus Drivers and Company May Be Reached Tonight

A settlement between the striking East Millstone bus drivers and the bus line "looks promising" even though a three-hour meeting Wednesday night to end the strike proved futile. William C. Ferguson, chairman of the union, announced.

Another meeting, which has been scheduled for tonight, may decide matters.

"We made some headway on holidays and the length of the contract," Harold Clyde union president, said at the conclusion of Wednesday's session.

It now remains for the company management to act on the last offer made by the union, according to the union chief.

James Gallagher, a state mediator, presided over Wednesday's talks and is expected to participate in tonight's discussions.

Wages still present the major stumbling block to an agreement, Clyde said. The men were getting $1.52 an hour when they went out on strike.

Ladies See Blockade As Answer

Three township women who organized a much publicized blockade Wednesday to prevent garbage trucks from entering the Pine Grove dump feel that their actions were definitely worthwhile.

Mrs. Eugene Szabo, Mrs. Kenneth Christie and Mrs. Nicholas Furmick, armed with baseball bats, baby carriages and shilleleus, succeeded in focusing attention on the problem of the dump.

The mothers, all residents of a housing development adjacent to the dump, arrived on the scene at 8:15 a.m., after a meeting Tuesday night with township officials failed to reach accord on immediate closing of the dump.

The ladies displayed signs which carried such inscriptions as "Action Wanted, Not Promises," "Extremism Promised, But When," "Children's Playground - The Dump," and an illustrated sign depicting "Dump Germs."

Basically, the women were objecting not only to the presence

Record to Print Session Changes

The names of all pupils and their class assignments and hours of attendance in Pine Grove, Middlebush and Phillips Schools will be given in their entirety in next week's back-to-school issue of the RECORD.

The other three schools in the township, Hamilton, East Millstone and Kingston, have no changes in schedule, no split sessions, and only one change in personnel. So in order to save clerical work in the office of Superintendent James Lynch, they will not be listed.

Dr. Lynch told the RECORD yesterday that he expects an enrollment of 1,990 in the six schools of the township. He said that if he is able to compete teacher assignments these will be included in next week's list. But the matter is problematical, since he has not been able to fill out his teaching staff.

The superintendent expects, however, to have a full staff of teachers on hand when school opens September 5, and is busy interviewing candidates at the present time.

The Board of Education will award bus contracts at its regular meeting Monday evening.

Truck Owner's Chances For Variance Kept Alive

Clifford Higgins' chance to maintain his 15 trucks in an agricultural zone was kept alive last night when the board of adjustment held in abeyance his second application, pending a ruling from the township attorney on whether guarantees can be obtained that he will not expand his activities.

Higgins was brought into court by Zoning Officer Carl A. Erbacher in June, and ordered to desist from parking and servicing the trucks.

Married Couple's Fight Results In Twp. Court Action

An East Millstone woman was freed by Magistrate George Shamy in Franklin Township court Monday night of charges of assault and causing a disturbance.

Mrs. Dorothy Moss of Elm Street cut her husband, Lucky Moss, with a knife during the course of a fight last month. Her husband then struck her over the head with a bottle.

Moss went to the home of Police Chief Ed F. Voorhees, a neighbor, and told him about the fight. Chief Voorhees went to the Moss home and found Mrs. Moss lying on the floor, her head bleeding.

The police chief said that on first glance he thought she was dead.

Lucky Moss is now serving a term in the county jail. He was sentenced by Magistrate Shamy as a result of the fracas.

The magistrate warned Mrs. Moss that should she come before the court again as a result of further difficulty with her husband, both will face the stiffest sentence he can impose.

"If you can't live together, then I say don't live together," Magistrate Shamy told Mrs. Moss.

which he uses to haul rock for the Kingston Trap Rock Co. on the Burger farm across the road from Kingston Trap Rock. Higgins also rents and resides on the property.

At the June meeting of the board of adjustment, Higgins, represented by Somerville Attorney William E. Ozzard, applied for a variance to do what he was already doing. Ozzard presented the nearest neighbors to the property who approved the application, but Michael Peacos and Dan Fernandez, who live about two miles away protested the application on the grounds that it was bad for the entire area to permit violations or variances to the zoning code.

The June application was denied after a lengthy hearing.

Last night Ozzard changed the bid from a private company to take care of the garbage district was $39,000, and this was considered prohibitive. A township of

Model City Will Be Constructed In Franklin Twp.

A "scientifically planned 2,000-home model city," complete with a shopping center and swimming pool, is to be constructed on a 750-acre tract in the township.

The property, which stretches along Leupp Lane for about two miles to Easton Avenue to Hamilton Street, will be the site of the largest believed housing development ever contemplated for this section of New Jersey.

Garry Crassas, executive vice president for the Jersey Development Co., will call the area "Metropolitan Park."

The property is made up of three parcels of land that were purchased in May at a price of

Township Talk

We're glad to see that the baby carriage brigade is going to let local people put their garbage in the dump. There just isn't any other place for them to put it, and only a small part of the township is in the garbage district where their refuse is collected by the township truck.

Residents in the garbage district have the cost added to their tax bill at the rate of .48 per $100 assessment. This comes to an average of about $15.00 a year per home. Of course the owners of vacant land pay their share, too. Those of us who live in the rest of the township have to pay a private collector $18 a year.

The bid from a private company to take care of the garbage district was $39,000, and this was considered prohibitive. A township of

Judge Recalls Drunk Case

Thomas L. Durden of 45 Washington St., New Brunswick, who was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail Saturday when he was unable to pay a $100 fine for being drunk and disorderly, was given a renewed hearing Monday night in Franklin Township Court.

The case was recalled by Magistrate George Shamy when it was learned that Durden is supporting two children. The fact that Durden had never been in trouble with the police before also acted in his favor.

Durden was fined $50 and told he would no longer have to serve the jail sentence.

The New Brunswick man was found sleeping on the porch of Mrs. Elsie Coleman of Franklin Park Rd., Franklin Township, on Saturday. Mrs. Coleman presided over the hearing.

Paul Douglas Halstrom, 25, of New York was levied a $20 fine and $5 costs for driving in the center of the road. The charge was preferred by Robert H. Buckleav of Bound Brook, a police reserve in that borough.

Wilbur White, 45, of 403 Girard Ave., New Brunswick, paid a $10 fine and $5 costs for driving without a New Jersey driver's license.

White was freed of a careless driving charge. Officer Lawrence Collier issued the summonses.

John T. McLoughlin, 42, of 49 Allison Rd., Princeton, was fined

Electrical Yardstick

MEASURING THE SPARK-GAP for magnitude of voltage passing between these huge metal globes is one of many forms of electrical research carried on by the Electrical Industry. The results will have a decided effect on new and improved uses for electricity in an Electronics Age - an age symbolized by a record-breaking increase in the production of electricity in the last seven years.

This insatiable demand for increased electric power for expanding use in industry and in homes has sparked the building of great electric power plants all over the world. Still greater ones are on the planning boards. And conversion of nuclear energy into electric power is in its first stage.

Great quantities of electrical insulations are needed for protection of personnel and property for such projects now and in the future. That's where J-M people contribute. They have developed electrical panel boards, base materials for switchboards, controller plates, switch bases, electrical conduit ducts, and many forms of electrical tapes and highly purified asbestos electrical insulations used throughout the electrical industry.

The Electrical Industry is only one of the major fields which the J-M team of research scientists, production people and sales representatives serve continuously. Their contributions help these industries make our standard of living safer, more efficient, modern and enjoyable.

Crane Operator Escapes Death

A crane operator from Franklin Township, working at the N. Maltese & Sons, Inc., properly Wednesday escaped death when the boom locked into a high tension power line carrying 26,000 volts.

But the operator, identified as Middlesex General Hospital as Ralph Lawson, 38, of Franklin Park Rd., escaped with comparatively minor injuries.

A hospital spokesman said Lawson was treated for first and second degree burns on his left hand and sent home after treatment.

Frank Maltese, general manager, said Lawson, an employee of Independent Iron and Metal Co. of 410 Jersey Ave., New Brunswick, was finishing loading scrap metal in the yard, which runs back from 12th Street and Codriss Avenue toward the Pennsylvania Railroad right-of-way, when the accident happened. The crane boom struck the high tension line and instantly a flash of electricity shot down through the rubber-tired vehicle to the ground, Maltese said.

Lawson either jumped or was thrown to the ground. He managed to scramble away from the crane which burst into flames.

As the air from the burning tires blew upward it fanned the flames into grass in the yard and garage.

Maltese said someone in his office called police, firemen and the North Brunswick First Aid Squad.

The squadmen rushed Lawson to the hospital but firemen from Engine Co. No. 1 were forced to stand watching the burning crane, which was still locked into the power line, until a crew from Public Service Electric and Gas Co. could shut off the power.

plea to hardship, on the grounds that Higgins would have to take his trucks to Red Bank and back each day if he could not house them nearby. Peanos and Fernandez were again on hand to protect the variance, declaring that there was ample space for the trucks on the Kingston Trap Rock property, that approval of the variance would bring on more applications of the same kind, and that it was in competition with the legitimate motor servicing businesses in the area.

They also said that Higgins did not own the property, therefore it could not be a hardship not to be able to use it, and that "Higgins went over the township's head" in having the truck lot without permission. Peanos and Fernandez added, "we want a clean community in this part of the county."

Anthony Kochanowicz, who was convicted in municipal court in July for allowing a converted garage to be occupied without an occupancy permit, sought through his attorney, Adam Chase of Manville, permission to continue renting the dwelling, which Magistrate George Shamy had ordered him either to vacate or get a variance for by September first.

At the time of the court appearance Judge Shamy threatened to put Lawyer Chase in contempt of court for his actions and comments, and at last night's hearing Chase made his plea in a restrained and dignified manner.

He argued that his client was partly blind and unable to work and needed the income from the property, that it would be impossible for him to move the concrete block building.

Chairman W. W. Forbes of the board of adjustment recalled that Kochanowicz had appeared before the board several years ago, that the board had inspected the property and his previous application had been denied, as was his second application last night.

Fred Czarrunelick received approval of his application to construct a breezeway and garage affecting premises situated on Highland Avenue and Green Streets, and Vincent Honopani, on his second appearance before the board, was granted a variance to enclose a patio which would have, in the recent past, been on his premises on Green St.

Frank Blocker, a member of the board, dissatisfied himself while the matter was being discussed, on his application for a variance, and sell two lots on a private right-of-way. His variance was granted on the condition that he provide a turn-around at the end of the private road.

COUNT YOUR BLESSINGS

By Fran Pachter

MARGE surveyed the scene before her; the occasion being the annual bowler's banquet, a distinctive banquet due to it being the only one known that invited the wives. Marge did not appreciate the distinction and she doubted many of the wives did as few knew one another. Between courses of dinner she wondered if the other women felt as out of place as she and did they too wonder at the personality change in their husbands as she did with Bill. Here he was talkative, charming, jocular, emerging as a stranger to her in this role. Was Bill the exception to the rule? At home he talked when necessary noticing the children and her only when he felt like it.

No obvious bad habits just carelessness in little things. But wasn't it those that counted? The voice of the M. C. ran on and on. Awards for games and series, funny jokes aimed to spark laughter and camaraderie. Marge wondered what kind of an award could be dreamed up to interest a man in the fact that his wife and children were people too? His disinterest in them and their home life hurt, rejection by a loved one always hurt. What did they have to do to get a picture of this charming stranger she was seeing tonight?

Marge was fed up with the role of mother and father. Her own homelife had been one in which children were looked upon as treasures, not just something to be thought of as burden and then forgotten. Was it only mothers who felt that a big part of their being was wrapped up in their children?

The man across the table was recounting episodes of his children. Each warmth of tone and interest gave off the infection of love and cherished thoughts. Had she ever heard Bill speak that way?

True, she hadn't sweated through bitter gains nor sat through a night by the bedside of one of them and prayed for recovery. He was the calm, stic type, rarely ruffled by anything. What had started this trend of thought? It had been his casualness tonight with Linda. Seeing her beg for his attention and he giving it only after repeated insistence. That hurt! Hadn't he seen it? Wasn't he aware of how often he brought it on? She'd hated him then, a feeling that arose in her whenever anyone brought hurt or harm to her family. She'd feel much the same were someone to hurt Bill that way. What a life, and what future?

Endless years stretched ahead with this selfsame problem unresolved. Somewhere their must be someone who could untangle their messed up lives, but where and whom? The acute need for help beat within her and hurt. Her food tasted like straw and she knew Bill would have had a better time without her. She heard his name called, an award for bowling achievement. His stride showed pride and purpose as he went for it. So much greater therapeutic pride could he be were he to reach out for it. An award that would be timeless in worth and be a comfort to him in years to come. If he only could put that genius to work in his own family life. A rosy future, unclouded and warm, that would knit them more closely together.

With dinner over, the toastmaster's voice finally stilled, small groups clanked together idly chattering. Marge and Bill stood apart from the crowd. Big Bill want to stay and dance? Her coming had been to please him, she did not want to spoil his evening. They stood side by side but worlds apart. Bill abruptly said, "Let's go."

Go where? Marge wondered, come to an unresolved situation. Slowly she shrugged her shoulders into her coat, at least at home were two loving children eager for her return. One can't have everything and must be happy with what they have. As they left the hall, the band was playing, "Count Your Blessings."

Marge knew that someday Bill might wake up and count his.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mary E. Osborn, Mesa, Arizona: I can remember when we had to buy our winter's supply of groceries in the fall. Two or three 100-lb. barrels of flour, 100-lbs. of salt, sugar and other things we had to have on the farm in winter. The mud would get to the wagon hubs about hog-killing time and I have rendered lard in a big 18-gallon wash pot when the snow was deep on the ground. We stirred lard with a long-handled wooden spoon or paddle to keep the lard from scorching in the bottom of the pot.

I can remember the first cook stove. We set our baker and little pot kettle back in the corner and cooked on the new wood stove. A set of iron pots and pans came with the stove, as well as a long iron fish fryer, two hoe cake bakers, two large frying pans, a large roasting kettle and an iron tea kettle.

The first bedstead we owned my father made out of wood, plaiting rope in the place of slats and springs. We also had a trundle bed in which I slept until I was ten years old.

The old spinning wheel sat in the corner a long time. Mother spun wool to make all our stockings until I was about 15. We made our own soap in March, enough to last all year. The first shoes I remember wearing had brass across the toes, and the next I remember had buttons with a hook to button them with.

Q—You mentioned "consent decree" as a means of settling anti-trust cases in a recent column. Can you tell me how a consent decree works?
A—A "consent decree" is actually a compromise on the part of the government and a defendant in an anti-trust case, when the latter virtually admits guilt, but by this action agrees to do certain things to prevent the monopoly from actually being broken up. As an example in the recent consent decree agreed to by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the case had been fought since it was filed in 1949. It had widespread public interest, for the charge was that A T & T, had such a strong patent control, and such control over markets and manufacture of communication equipment through its wholly owned subsidiary, Western Electric Company, it could prevent competition from others in the telephone business and other fields of electronics. Up to the time of going into court, the case was hard-fought, then the A T & T capitulated and snatched a consent decree. When the Department of Justice agreed, A T & T still retained control over Western Electric, but its patents were opened up for licensing and 92 business concerns sought access to these patented processes, which had heretofore long prevented their growth. And the defendant avoids treble damages under the law.
Q—Is there a distinction between "civil rights" and "civil liberties"?
A—Civil liberties usually denote the right of the individual from arbitrary interference with his person, property or opinion on the part of the government. Civil Rights usually refer to those specific rights conferred upon all citizens by virtue of the constitution and laws.
Q—What presidents were the sons of preachers?
A—Presidents Wilson, Arthur and Cleveland.
Q—What presidents were born in log cabins?
A—Millard Fillmore, James Buchanan, Abraham Lincoln and James A. Garfield. It is probable but not conclusive that Andrew Jackson and James Polk were so born.

ONLY a miracle in the closing minutes of the 84th session of the Congress, could have prevented the much heralded federal aid to education bill (which carried a $1.6 billion appropriation to build schoolhouses) from starting from scratch again in the 84th session next year.

There were some predictions, particularly from those who believe the federal government should not have anything to do with state schools, that the bill might not pass the congress. But there had been no intimation that the fight on the bill would develop into a cynical display of back-street, ward-heeling politics, which did develop.

The day after the measure was defeated in the House, Herbert Block, the Pulitzer prize winning cartoonist of the Washington Post and Times Herald, had an apt cartoon picturing a smug, well-stuffed crocodile, tears dripping from rheumy eyes, picking his teeth after having swallowed a school-age youngster. And the crocodile observed, "Poor Little Kid."

It has been many a year in Congress since so many charges have been hurled as over defeat of this bill. Democrats blaming Republicans and visa versa. Civil rights have been blamed, School Segregation was blamed, Catholics were blamed, Protestants were blamed. Here is what happened:

When the bill reached the House floor it carried $1.6 billion for federal school aid for construction over a 4-year period. It was not exactly as President Eisenhower had proposed, but it was understood that if passed, the Administration would not oppose it. All except the GOP whip in the House, Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana, who warned that unless the President's recommendations were approved, the bill would not be approved.

Then Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, New York Democrat and one of three Negroes in the House, insisted on an amendment under which no Federal money would go to states where school segregation still exists. Everyone knew that this amendment would kill the bill. Organized Labor raised its voice against it. So did the advocates of civil rights, who knew the amendment would be used to defeat the bill. And that is what happened.

The amendment was adopted by a vote of 225 to 192, with 148 Republicans and 77 Democrats voting for the amendment, and 146 Democrats and 46 Republicans against it. Then on final passage of the bill it was defeated by a vote of 224 to 194 with 119 Republicans and 103 Democrats voting against it and 119 Democrats and 75 Republicans voting for it.

But an analysis of the vote for and against on final passage showed this: Of the 148 Republicans who voted FOR the Powell amendment, 96 or two-thirds of them, promptly turned around and voted AGAINST the bill itself on final passage. Of the 77 Democrats who voted for the amendment, not one changed and voted AGAINST the bill on final passage. The CIO-AFL News, a champion of civil rights, call the vote on the bill "as cynical a display of misbegotten politics as the Capitol has seen in many a year."

Drownings Happen Anyplace

The first nation-wide study of drownings has just been completed by a doctoral candidate at New York University's Center for Safety Education.

According to B. W. Gabrielsen, associate professor of education at the University of Georgia and author of the thesis on drowning, the most likely places for death on the water are lakes, rivers, and ponds.

But, adds the professor — after a study of 1,309 drownings that occurred in 1955 — such accidents happen in some very unusual places. These include bathtubs, wells, cattle watering troughs,

Summer Jobs Need Not Cost Tax Exemption

Parents of youngsters who are working during the summer vacation were reminded today by Joseph F. J. Mayer, Newark district director of the Internal Revenue Service, that under certain circumstances their children may still be claimed as full exemptions for Federal income tax purposes.

Also, the children themselves may be entitled to refunds in whole or part of income taxes withheld from their wages during their employment.

The special exemption rule, Mayer explained, applies to children who will be under 19 years of age at the end of the year and to children who are full-time students, regardless of their age.

EXEMPTION may be claimed by the parents if they contribute more than half the child's support, regardless of the amount earned by the child.

This new law was passed by Congress in 1954, Mayer pointed out. Prior to 1954, no person earning $600 or more could be claimed as a dependent by another taxpayer.

Inquiries received, however, indicate that many who are entitled to this benefit are not aware of it. Also, some parents continue to have their dependent children stop work before earning $600.

Children 19 and over must be engaged in full-time study at a recognized educational institution for at least five months of the year or must be pursuing a full-time accredited on-farm training program.

Food, shelter, clothing and transportation are the four items on which American families spend the most money.

sewers, rain barrels, and sloop buckets.

THE STUDY, Professor Gabrielsen says, underscores the importance of swimming at places where adequate life guard supervision is maintained. He noted that only 2.2 per cent of the drownings took place at beaches or pools where life guards were in attendance.

Professor Gabrielsen also uncovered "the alarming fact" that 16.8 per cent (or 220) of the drownings occurred among children under five who were left unattended by parents for a few moments. The professor found, too, that a large number of water death victims were of pre-high school age. To date, he noted, educators have concentrated on giving swimming instruction to persons of high school age.

THE FOLLOWING are other findings of the NYU drowning study:

The months with the highest incidence of deaths are June, July, and August.

The day and the hour that appear most frequently on the accident records are Sunday and 4 p.m.

Slightly more than 9 per cent of the victims had been under the influence of alcohol.

There was a ratio of six men for every woman victim.

Almost a quarter of the fatalities occurred after boats carrying non-swimming passengers had been upset.

Only 26.3 per cent of the drownings happened to people who were engaged in recreational swimming.

THE VICTIMS in the cases studied by Professor Gabrielsen were engaged in some 27 different activities at the time of their mishaps. These included fishing, boating, ice skating, horseback riding, hunting golf balls, water skiing, and canoeing.

The NYU drowning study will be available this fall after its publication by the Center for Safety Education.

Statistics Indicate Jersey Hunters Enjoyed Profitable Season in '55

Hunters of New Jersey last year harvested 991,473 pieces of game, issued by the Division of Fish and Game during the year. Including rabbit, squirrel, duck, pheasant and quail, the State Division of Fish and Game, Department of Conservation and Economic Development, reported last week.

The estimated average seasonal bag per hunter during the year was listed as follows: rabbits, 4.5; squirrels, 3.7; ducks, 5.1; pheasants, 1.7 and quail, 2.1.

The harvest of the game species during the 1955 hunting seasons in New Jersey was compiled by Assistant Wildlife Manager Charles W. Wright from the responses to questionnaires mailed to licensed hunters at random. The game statutes of New Jersey require agents issuing hunting licenses to forward to the office of the Division of Fish and Game before January 10 each year, all return stubs of licenses issued during the previous year ending December 31.

The figures were derived from a sampling questionnaire sent to a cross section of licensed hunters. The survey revealed the estimated number of hunters for each of the five game species in New Jersey during 1955 is as follows: Rabbit, 105,684; pheasant, 67,776; squirrel, 52,742; quail, 304,12, and duck, 24,967.

Dr. Underhill reported these figures, as compiled through the statistical sampling, are very close to the correct number of licenses

Calvo Case Is Again Delayed

Final decision on the zoning complaints against the Calvo brothers has again been delayed as a result of an application Monday by Township Attorney Robert Gaynor to dismiss the charges.

Magistrate George Shamy postponed any action until this Monday to consider the recent developments.

The magistrate was to have ruled on a motion by the defendants attorney, Jacques S. Lederman, to dismiss the complaints on double jeopardy grounds.

But instead he was presented with a letter from Gaynor requesting dismissal.

Gaynor said he had done research on the point raised by Lederman but arrived at no clear answer. However, he said any ruling by Shamy would likely be appealed.

Since the municipality does not want to engage in lengthy court actions, Gaynor said, the township wanted to withdraw the complaints.

However, Gaynor requested that the withdrawal of complaints not affect the notice of violation served on the Calvos for alleged violation of the zoning ordinance for maintenance of a junk yard on their Easton Avenue property.

Lederman refused to go along with Gaynor's application and pressed for a decision from Shamy.

"We feel we have been tried and acquitted of the offenses," he said. "And we want the court to make a decision now so that no one can bring up the alleged violations in the future," he said.

The complaints pending are against Herman G. Calvo of 214 S. Sixth Ave., Highland Park, and William and Vincent Calvo of West Parkway.

Dr. Smith will be in charge of setting up a curriculum for the school, hiring personnel and working with the regional board on its building plans.

Dr. Smith notified the regional board Tuesday he would accept the position and has forwarded his resignation as county superintendent to Dr. Frederick Raubinger, state commissioner of education.

The new county superintendent will be selected by Dr. Raubinger with the approval of the State Board of Education.

His main reason for deciding to change positions, Dr. Smith said, is his strong belief in the concept of local education and a desire to once again work on the local level.

"In my judgment the education of adolescent boys and girls is the most challenging problem in education and I am eager to participate in trying to determine what an adequate education should be for our high school children," he said.

Dr. Smith disclosed his new job offers an increase in salary of approximately 30 per cent over his present salary.

A native of Clay County, Ind., Dr. Smith attended schools in Terre Haute and received his BS degree from Indiana State Teachers College. He earned his MA and EdD from Teachers College of Columbia University.

Dr. Smith is a member of numerous national, state and county educational associations. In 1952 he was elected president of the Division of County and Rural Area Superintendents of the National Education Association.

Dr. Smith also has been active in many civic organization on both the state, county and local level and presently serves as president of the Somerville Rotary Club.

Dr. and Mrs. Smith are the parents of a daughter, Beverly, who is the wife of Craig Gilbert, new supervising principal of Montgomery Township schools. The Gilberts live in Middlesex Borough.

portedly in excess of $1,000,000. Mr. Crassas declined to stipulate the exact price.

Before his purchase the land belonged to the Appleman, Romano and Rubin families. After two months of negotiations the property was bought by Mr. Crassas and the V. C. Realty Corporation of New York City, who in turn sold the property to the development company.

Stephen Palmer the firm's treasurer, said that the property will be divided into four or five sections, each containing 400 to 500 homes. Each ranch style and split level homes will be constructed in a price range of $18,000 to $25,000.

Two model homes, he said, one a ranch style and the other a split-level, will be built for showing this fall on Deupp Lane near Easton Avenue.

Mr. Crassas emphasized that his group will cooperate with Township officials in every way.

"We realize particularly," he said, "the school problems that will arise. We will cooperate in every way with the Board of Education, and before our homes are built we intend to have this problem solved."

"Before selling our homes, we will guarantee the purchasers will have a school to send their children to."

Each section of the development will be given a particular name. For example, the first section will be called "State" and its streets named after the states in the nation.

This will give more unity and harmony to the areas and make it easier for visitors to find addresses.

In order to give easier access to Easton Avenue from Hamilton and Somerset streets, and to permit traffic to bypass New Brunswick on the east and south, the developers said they will widen Leupp Lane to four lanes at their own expense and make it a through street.

The shopping center which they are planning will be built on a 40-acre tract on Easton Avenue off Leupp Lane.

"For our entire project," Mr. Crassas said, "we will have city water and sewage facilities. We have hired Malcolm Cady, one of the foremost planning engineers in New Jersey to prepare a modern city plan on which work he is already well advanced."

Many a would-be saviour of his country loses his zeal after the votes are counted.

Township Talk

felial, however, tells us that this would come to only about $20.00 per mile. This official feels that if the people of the area want to get rid of the dump, one way to do it would be to go on and pay the price.

Actually, the entire township should be covered by municipal garbage collection, but the township committee can't put this through unless the initiative for it comes from the people. There has to be a petition signed by a majority of the residents, with a hearing and an ordinance.

One thing that is coming hard for the people of the township is the realization that municipal services have to be paid for. Older residents lived in the township a long time under ideal rural conditions, with few services needed and a very low tax rate, and new residents were led to believe, either by developers, salesmen or their own imaginations, that they were moving out of the city into a rural paradise where nothing costs very much. Now it's hard to accept the fact that we live not in the country, but in suburbia.

Local Republican politicians aren't saying whom they have in mind to out into the Middlebush post office as acting postmaster to replace Mrs. Anna Kline, who has resigned. The job is under civil service but the party in power has the privilege of naming a candidate for the job to serve in it until a civil service examination can be held. Then the party has the privilege of approving one person from among the three who have the highest marks on the examination. Veterans have extra credit on the exam and disabled vets have more credit than able-bodied ones.

A few years ago, the postmaster jobs paid very little. Now a third class postoffice like Middlebush pays between $4,000 and $4,700 depending on the size of it.

The job has to be filled from the area of the post office, or by a person who has been a holder for a year or more. If you're interested, go by and see about it. If you're smart and your politics are right, it may be right up your alley.

Regardless of who the next person in the post office is, Mrs. Kline will be missed, and will be remembered with respect and affection by the people who got their mail or their stamps in Middlebush. She has always been courteous, efficient and discreet, and willing to accommodate the customer in every way permitted by the rules of her job. We hope she'll enjoy a nice rest and then the freedom to get around in the community the way she used to do.

Others who are going farther away, will be greatly missed. Marge and Sammy Smith are moving next month down to the South Jersey Shore. The story on Sammy's new job is told elsewhere in the RECORD. It's suffice to say here that it went as well as the Middlebush choir without Marge's beautiful soprano, and that soprano will also be missed in the fireman's minstrel.

The Smiths are going to have a house right on the beach. Marge tells us that 5,000 people live permanently on Long Beach Island, not counting the summer people, so they won't be lonesome. But we do hope they'll miss Middlebush a little and will come back occasionally.

This was a relatively quiet week in the township, thank goodness, and if they'll just stay simmered down for one more week, we can all look at the Republican convention, too.

The Board of Ed has its regular meeting Monday evening at the Phillips School in Franklin Park. We've learned of one civic organization which is going to send one or two representatives to it, which seems like a darn good idea, and might well be copied by other clubs and organizations.

Brooklyn Man Spends 2 Trying Days in Franklin

A Brooklyn man, Winfield Brambre, got the hot seat Saturday in Franklin Township, then spent two days in jail.

As a final touch, he was found guilty of disorderly conduct by Magistrate George Shamy, but given a suspended sentence and put on a train back to Brooklyn. The story? It all started when Brambre, who had been drinking, accidentally set fire to a seat in his car while driving through Franklin Township on his way home to Brooklyn. The Middlebush Fire Company put out the blaze.

Later in the night Brambre got the attention of a resident after he parked his jeep across Amwell Road. Before Police Chief Ed F. Voorhees could leave headquarters he received another call from a woman who complained that Brambre was rapping on her door, "looking for a room for the night." He had run out of money.

Voorhees granted Brambre's request by taking him to the county all, where he remained until Monday night.

Brambre told Magistrate Shamy he still desired to get back to Brooklyn even though he had only 78 cents in his pocket.

The police lent a sympathetic ear to his story of running out of cash and chipped in to buy his railroad ticket.

Just to be sure his departure was not delayed a second time, police escorted Brambre in a patrol car to New Brunswick railroad station to catch his train.

On his way to the station Brambre said, "Everybody has been nice to me."

of the dump, but to its use by out-of-town residents.

While Councilman Charles Sicora, Casimiro Galvo and W. Russell Laird, who attended Tuesday's meeting, said they could not be sure when the dump could be closed, they went along with the residents that no much more refuse could be unloaded there.

Threats of court action were flung back and forth by mid-morning Tuesday after a truck operated by Slim's Trucking & Garbage Removal Service outanked the human barrier and entered the dump through land owned by the East Franklin Township Fire Department next door.

The owner of the private scavenging firm, known only as Slim, indicated to Magistrate George Shamy he would sign complaints against the women, claiming they were obstructing his legal right to use the municipally-owned dump.

At the same time, the women, most of whom are members of the fire company auxiliary, said they would consider initiating a trespassing complaint against Slim.

Township-owned trucks were not stopped by the brigade, but the women did turn away several trucks in the morning which they contended were carrying garbage from out of town.

The scene Tuesday was livened with the appearance of Police Lieutenant Russell Pfeiffer, who explained to the women he would be forced to arrest them if a complaint were signed by Slim. Pfeiffer told the mothers they had no right to bar trucks with local garbage, since the dump was for use of all township residents, regardless of who removed their refuse.

the house, where we found it upon returning from vacation. It was pretty late news, but better than not at all. Sorry, folks, we won't let it happen again.

Board Awards Trenton Firms Three Contracts

The Township Board of Education awarded three contracts to Trenton firms Monday totaling $42,293 for the two-room addition and alteration to Laurel Avenue School in Kingston.

The contracts were more than $2,000 less than the $44,200 figure estimated for the job by Micklewright & Mountford, architect for the Board of Education.

Sixteen contractors submitted bids at the special meeting held in Pine Grove Manor School. The successful bidders were as follows: General Construction, Slater Brothers Construction Co., $24,380; plumbing, W. C. Dobbins, $2,776; heating and ventilating, Dobbins, $11,040 and electrical, Peifer Electric Co., $4,098.

Albert Micklewright said the contract totals were more than $2,000 under the cost of the actual construction work as estimated by his firm. A total of $50,000 was authorized for the project.

The job will consist of the addition, which is to contain a classroom and a kindergarten, and the conversion of two existing rooms into a multi-purpose room.

Low bids on alterations and additions to the heating system at Phillips School were turned over to the building and grounds committee for study, since the total was more than is available in the school budget for the work.

Bids submitted by Philip S. Slack & Co. of Trenton, which included alternates, amounted to $15,495. But the board has only about $9,000 for the work.

Micklewright suggested to the board that the base bid and the alternates be accepted, since the job would result in an improved heating system in the entire school.

The committee, which will investigate the possibility of transferring additional funds into the account from other items in the budget, will report its findings at the regular board meeting on Monday at Phillips School, Franklin Park.

for more bids on collections for the garbage district.

Most of the citizens in the group agreed with the township committee that the bid on a contract to handle collections by the Jersey Sanitation Co., Inc., was too high and would result in a high increase in garbage assessments.

However, a number said they would rather pay the higher rates. If they could get rid of the dump, which they said is a breeding place for rats, a source of particularly obnoxious odors and in general, a health hazard.

Magistrate Shamy dismissed a careless driving charge against F. P. Dietz, 36, of 22 Fannonia Ave., Nixon. Officer Carl Erbacher issued the summons after Dietz was involved in an accident in Route 27 on July 28.

A charge against Jack Glaser, 43, of 306 DeMott Rd., Middlebush, of allowing an unlicensed driver to operate a vehicle was also dismissed. Officer Lawrence Collier preferred the charge.

The first person convicted of violating the township's new ordinance regulating burning refuse appeared before Magistrate Shamy. William Styles of William St., Franklin Township, was charged with burning refuse without first obtaining a permit.

Officer Lawrence Collier, who issued the complaint, said Styles should have used a proper receptacle, such as a wire basket, to burn the refuse in.

Franklin May Rank As New Population Leader

Franklin Township, often called "the sticks," may now be the new "metropolis" of Somerset County, beating out North Plainfield for the distinction.

Franklin Mayor James G. Maher estimated last Thursday night the township's present population now stands at 19,772. This figure is more than double the 1956 census, which put the number of Franklin's residents at 9,601. North Plainfield officially is the county's largest municipality, with 12,766 people.

Mayor Maher arrived at his estimate by determining there is a total of 4,946 Public Service Electric & Gas Company meters in operation in the township.
