Judge Denies Spies' Bail Application

Judge Joseph Halpern Friday denied an application that John Frederick Spies Jr. be released on bail pending an appeal of his Dec. 5 manslaughter conviction. Prosecutor Leon Gerofsky argued that Spies' attorney Myron L. Levy of Somerville was appealing the case to the wrong court. Gerofsky claimed the case was considered a capital one. The classification is taken from the indictment, he argued.

GEROFSKY contended that, since capital cases are appealed directly to the state Supreme Court, Spies' cases should be taken there. The prosecutor said that since it wasn't, there is no appeal pending, another reason why Spies should be denied bail.

Levy contended that his client had been convicted of manslaughter, not capital offense, and was therefore entitled to bail.

Halpern agreed with Gerofsky in that the manslaughter conviction on a murder indictment was considered a capital case, and motion for bail was denied.

Franklin Park PTA Now Has 90 Members

The newly formed Franklin Park PTA now has 90 members, according to Mrs. Russell Merce, president.

The total was reported at Monday night's meeting of the organization. Mrs. Merce announced that January will be the final meeting for charter membership.

Miss Dorothy Hall showed a motion picture, "Christmas in Other Lands." A carol sing, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Homer Arthambault, followed.

Township Woman Fined For City Rooming Violation

Mrs. Nancy Dileo of Easton Ave., Franklin Township, was fined $100 in New Brunswick Municipal Court Monday for operating a lodging house illegally at 186 Seaman St., New Brunswick.

Magistrate Irving Rubin, who imposed the sentence, reserved decision on a similar charge in connection with a house at 7 Commercial Ave., New Brunswick, also operated by Mrs. Dileo.

RUBIN SAID he would personally inspect the house at 7 Commercial Ave. to determine whether two girls, said to be sisters, or nieces of a woman with whom they live.

Rubin said he would make a personal inspection of the house at 7 Commercial Ave. before announcing his decision in order to determine the relationship of persons living there.

Michael Peacos, elected to the Township Committee with Mayo Sisler in a stunning Democratic victory Nov. 5, will be named mayor when the committee organizes Jan. 1. It was learned by the RECORD.

When the committee organizes, there will be three Democrats on the committee—Peacos, Sisler and incumbent Michael List—the first time the Democrats will have controlled the committee in the township's history.

STANDING to lose the mayor's job is James G. Maher, who, with Committeeman Casimiro Calvo, will be the only Republicans on the committee.

MICHAEL PEACOS

Being boomed by his fellow Democrats for the township attorney post is Arthur Meredith, Somerville attorney and county chairman. George Shamy is in no danger of losing his magistrate position.

A new attorney post to the Board of Adjustment is being lined up with Ralph Mayo named by a reliable source to fill the position. In line to fill vacancies on the Board of Adjustment and Planning Board are Thomas Brady and Henry Ness, respectively.

NO CHANGES will be made immediately in the Township Hall staff, and if some should be decided upon, workers will be given adequate notice, the RECORD learned.

Alignment of Freeway Is Approved

The Somerset County Planning Board has received official word from the State Highway Department that the alignment for the East-West Freeway (FAI 104) has been finalized and approved from Route 28 in Bridgewater Township to a point east of Easton Avenue at Temporary Route 18.

The alignment approved follows very closely the one proposed by the Somerset County Planning Board and concurred in by the affected municipalities.

CHIEF Highway Engineer Fritzsche indicated that construction of this section would probably be started next summer, thereby giving relief at the earliest possible date to the Bound Brook - Queens Bridge - South Bound Brook traffic bottle neck.

Full access to the Freeway both on and off is planned for State Highway 28, Weston Canal Road, Easton Avenue and Temporary Route 18.

Following the pattern established in this effort, the Somerset County Planning Board is now working with officials in other communities regarding the extension of FAI 104 and the alignment for FAI 102 (new Route 22).

AT A regular meeting of the county planning board, the board went on record as being opposed to the present prohibition against service areas gasoline stations, restaurants, rest room facilities on the new Federal Aid Interstate System.

In a letter to Senator Alexander Smith, Planning Director William E. Roach Jr. stated that the effect of the prohibition will be that "each interchange area or point of egress will become subject to pressures for this type of service area development and, if such facilities are not located at such points, undue traffic loads will be placed on local roads and streets by motorists seeking such services and facilities."

"In any event," said Roach, "the net effect will be detrimental to those communities through which these freeways (FAI 102 and FAI 104) pass. Also," Roach continued, "the comfort and convenience of the motorists using these facilities has apparently been completely ignored."

ROACH requested that Senator Smith give his support in having the provision replaced and having it replaced with "a provision which would allow the placement of necessary service facilities along these freeways after consultation with appropriate local planning agencies regarding their precise location."

Polio-Stricken at 32, Mom Honored After Comeback

Victorious in a bout with polio two years ago, Mrs. John B. Connors of 8 Chester Lang Pl., Cranford, solvo clubwoman, teacher and homemaker, has been chosen New Jersey Polio Mother of 1958, Dr. Lester H. Cleo, State March of Dimes Chairman, announced yesterday.

Mrs. Connors, 34, mother of three youngsters and wife of a paint company sales executive, was chosen as "an inspiration to the many polio mothers throughout the state who have triumphed over the dreadcrippler and are waging a valiant struggle toward normal living and as a reminder of the tremendous job still to be done in the rehabilitation of the thousands disabled by crippling polio."

STRICKEN with spinal-bulbar polio two years ago, Mrs. Connors, an attractive brunette, has fought her way back from confinement in an iron lung to an active community life, a full-time tutoring job and the supervision of her household despite severe physical handicaps.

Almost completely paralyzed in September, 1955, the Cranford teacher-homemaker, underwent extensive post-polio and rehabilitation treatment at Kessler Rehabilitation Center, West Orange and the New York Hospital for Special Surgery, returning to her family just a year ago and immediately picking up the threads of her polio disrupted life.

Now with the aid of a leg brace, special crutches and minor structural alterations to her home, she is able to move about freely and keep tabs on her three active children: John B, Billy 7 and Mary 3.

MRS. CONNORS cooks some of the family meals, helps a maid with other household work and just recently was able to drive an individually adapted automobile.

The prospect of once more getting outside on her own, she says, "gives me one of the biggest morale boosts I've had since coming home from the hospital."

Perhaps more important, however, was the realization that she would be able to resume the teaching career so cruelly interrupted by polio. Beginning with a few hours of private tutoring last fall, Mrs. Connors now teaches a 30 to 40 hour week schedule as a home instructor for the Westfield public school system.

SHE HAD previously taught in Upper Mantelair and Philadelphia after receiving degrees in education from New Jersey State Teachers College and the University of New Hampshire.

Among Mrs. Connors many social activities are membership in the College Women's Club of Cranford, leadership of the Literary Circle and Den Mother of Cub Scout Pack 76.

Virginia Connors credits the people of New Jersey, through the March of Dimes with helping her to resume a normal life as mother, teacher and community leader.

Calling herself a living example of the March of Dimes theme, "Survival is Not Enough," she says that a successful 1958 drive will mean new hope and a new life for many disabled polio victims whose horizons now reach no farther than an iron lung or a wheelchair.

POLIO MOTHER OF THE YEAR HONORED—A heartening example of the wonders effected by modern rehabilitation, Mrs. John B. Connors, Cranford, New Jersey Polio Mother for 1958, receives National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis Certificate of Appointment from Dr. Lester H. Cleo, (left) State March of Dimes Chairman. Mrs. Connors, 34, stricken with spinal-bulbar polio two years ago and now returned to an active, useful life, receives approving smiles from husband John (right), John Jr., 9, Billy 7 and Mary 3, the Connors children.

From The Suburban List, Essex Junction, Vermont: Ever since World War II, educators and others in the U.S., especially large industries with research divisions, have been trying to improve our educational system. They have deplored any "javeling down" in school curricula, and tried to make special provision for the able student. They have sought funds to improve the science and engineering facilities in schools, if only to guarantee enough interested graduates to keep their own businesses going. They have had lots to say, and tried hard to arouse the public to assist in education improvement. They have made quite a bit of progress, too. We have good schools in this country. But the teachers are first to admit there's still room to improve.

Then, in October, came Sputnik. And what happened? All over the country, people began to shout their complaints about the educational and scientific research programs as if they had hit upon a brand-new idea. Maybe Sputnik was just what we needed to wake us up. In one spectacular swoop about the earth, it galvanized the entire American public into action, or at least into real concern, which in a democracy leads to action.

Now, the public will be willing to put more money into education and science research. Now, parents will see the importance of encouraging youngsters in their scientific interest. Now, the schoolmen will be able to move rapidly in their plans to make our schools more efficient laboratories to prepare boys and girls for the complicated, hard-to-understand, demanding life ahead of them.

In Russia, when those at the head of government take a notion to push some special program like satellite research, they can just go ahead and do it. They can bleed the people white, if they want to, to concentrate their money on one project. They need answer no questions, they must make no explanations.

If our government were run the same way, we could send dogs into outer space too. But we prefer democracy. For one world-astounding Sputnik, who knows how many luckless failures in other technical programs the Russian people have been forced to support by a grasping government.

A glance at life in Russia, and life in the U. S., leaves no doubt as to which system offers the greatest good for the greatest number. Can a mere Sputnik counter-balance that?

We'll bet that the first dog to reach the moon will be democratic right down to the toes.

By Don Burrowbridge, Director Thor Research Center for Better Farm Living

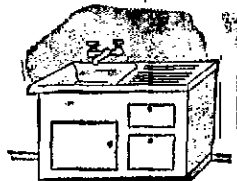

The interest in do-it-yourself workshop projects has become one of the nation's favorite hobbies.

I've received letters from all parts of the nation asking for information on how-to-ideas that range from repairing basement drain pipes to fixing the flashing on chimneys. And in many of these letters, readers have told me how they are finding it easier to make home repairs with portable electric tools.

Here are some of the problems directed to us at the Thor Research Center.

Q.—"I recently put in a new sink. Do you have any ideas for putting the old one to use?"

A.—If you have an older home which has no basement laundry tubs, why not install the old sink for this and other basement jobs. You will, of course, require some plumbing installation expense.

Move that old sink to the basement and box it in.

An interesting do-it-yourself project would be to enclose the bottom of the sink with a cabinet for storing materials. Cut the framework with a power saw, using 1/2-inch stock, then cut hardwood to size for the end and back panels and doors.

Q.—"There are a lot of little cracks in my pavement. Can you tell me the best way to patch these before they ruin the entire pavement?"

A.—Get to work on them as soon as you can! Water seeping into those cracks can freeze and widen them even farther. Patch them by tamping a cold chisel into the crack, widening it on the inside. After cleaning out the fragments, wet the sides and fill with patching concrete. Better use a commercial mixture. Wet the patch for several days until the concrete hardens.

(Questions from readers about do-it-yourself problems or projects are welcomed. Send them to Thor Research Center, Marsungo, Ill. They will be answered in these columns or by letter.)

Join the Navy and Study Science

Five hundred officers trained in the field of science will be added to the ranks of the Navy and Marine Corps annually under a new educational program announced by Secretary of the Navy Thomas S. Gates.

Beginning with the school year 1958-1959 that number of enlisted men will be enrolled in civilian institutions of higher learning four-year courses leading to a degree of bachelor of science and to commissions in the Navy.

Studies will emphasize mathematics and the physical sciences. During summer vacation periods, the students will be assigned to Navy laboratories and other scientific establishments to study application of the sciences.

The basis of selection of enlisted men for this higher study will be intelligence and aptitude. Those considered qualified but who lack sufficient high school credits for college entrance, will be given opportunity to earn those credits.

Students will receive the pay and allowances of their rates while attending college. The Navy Department will pay costs for their education. They will be required to remain on active duty for a period equal to the time they are enrolled in the program.

RFD service of the U. S. Post-office Department has grown from 20,000 miles in 1908 to over 1 1/2 million miles today.

NEW YEAR'S GIRL

By Kathryn Brummond

MARCIA ANDERS had been born on New Year's Day, which always made that day something extra special. Better even than Christmas, her widowed mother often said.

Every year, along with the general jubilation, there had been a birthday party for Marcia; first her kindergarten friends, then a bevy of young girls and finally dancing parties for both girls and boys.

Now Marcia was going on nineteen and when Mrs. Anders began to talk about the birthday she said, "This year I don't believe I'll have a party, mother. John wants us to go to the Winter Carnival at Annandale."

New Year's day dawned bright and crisp and early in the morning John and Marcia set gaily out on their trip. Mrs. Anders wondered how she would get through the lonesome day.

Presently it occurred to her that they might still have a birthday party after the pair returned. Just the three of them. She and Marcia and John. She'd make a gorgeous birthday cake and some kind of festive casserole—chicken maybe.

The day passed quickly after all. At length everything was ready. The table was covered with the best white cloth; laid with the company silver; the cake was decorated; the gifts were wrapped. There was nothing to do now but wait.

The telephone suddenly rang loudly in the stillness of the room. "Hello!" Mrs. Anders cried. She could tell by the sounds that this was a long distance call and uneasiness nipped her heart.

Then she heard Mrs. LeMaitre's voice. "Hello, Mrs. Anders? Ann, this is Matilda."

"What's wrong?" Marcia's mother asked quickly.

"Why, nothing's wrong at all," Mrs. LeMaitre returned cheerfully. "I just wanted to tell you the children won't be back tonight. They're going to stay here with me. John called to say they were invited to a shindig; they'll come here afterward and drive back home in the morning."

"What on earth!" Mrs. Anders exclaimed resentfully.

"They had a contest for next year's carnival queen," Mrs. LeMaitre explained animatedly, "and your Marcia won it! So the committee is entertaining her and John and the princesses at a downtown cafe. But that's not the big news. Ann! They're engaged! We're on the way to becoming mothers-in-law! Ann, Ann! Are you there? Why don't you say something? Aren't you glad? I am!"

Mrs. Anders struggled for words and they came out tearfully, "Matilda, today is Marcia's birthday. We've spent it together every single year since she was born. I baked her a birthday cake and—"

She broke down completely. Never had she felt so utterly forgotten.

There was silence at the other end of the line. Then Matilda said, "All right. It's her birthday. So what? We all have birthdays. They come every year. But remember, this is her betrothal day too. You didn't arrange that, Ann. And when the kids come in tonight I'm going to tell them that you were simply delighted!"

As Ann hung up her door bell rang. "Special delivery letter," the boy said.

She tore open the envelope. It was a beautiful birthday card, covered with flowers and satin. It must be meant for Marcia, Ann thought. But no, the address said "Mrs. Ann Anders, 13 Maple Street." Then she saw it was Marcia's own handwriting.

Swiftly she opened the dainty folder and gladness flooded her whole being.

On the blank page Marcia had scrawled excitedly, "Birthday greetings to my mother who brought me into the best of all possible worlds."

PUZZLE NO. 478

Answer to Puzzle No. 477

WORLD OF BEARS

SPORTSMEN most intimately familiar with the great world outdoors are continually learning that "Mother Nature" has the peculiar habit of taking care of all her children.

Mother Nature provides the instinct for self preservation which guides and motivates the actions and habits of all her creatures. Quite often, the unexpected arrival of an early winter will catch you and me unaware. The storm doors and windows will still be in the cellar; the snow tires in the garage and the car in desperate and immediate need of winterizing. But nature's furred and feathered creatures have made their usual, mechanical preparations and are ready.

The blackbirds, ducks and geese have winged southward to warmer climes; the deer has shed the short red hair of summer for a heavier coat of longer hair and a more negative color which blends easier into the somber days of winter. In the colder parts of our country, the snowhaze here and the smog receive protective coloration, as their fur coats become white during months of heavy snow.

Winter is a time of full hibernation or semi-activity for many of nature's creatures. Such animals prepare themselves by stuffing their stomachs and dens with food. The black bear getting ready for a winter nap will stuff and cram himself until it becomes difficult for him to walk—and his stomach has developed a fatty layer that is inches thick. The bear, however, is not a true hibernator. During warm spells of winter, he may forsake his "nap" and make a short venture in search of a few tasty morsels of food.

A Christmas Poem

Christmas time is a happy time,
 With things all aglow!
 When people sing and pray low,
 They make merry,
 And receive gifts
 From Santa to child's delight!
 But when we think of Christmas
 With all its glitter and glaze,
 We forget about Jesus, the Real Christmas Day,
 Without Him our world would be
 Dark and dull.
 People today all seem to forget
 Him,
 When Santa comes around.
 So why not think of Jesus,
 Instead of gazing around.
