

Township Talk

It is interesting to see all the commotion stirred by the story carried on the front page of last week's RECORD pertaining to the naming of a new mayor and new appointments by the new Township Committee.

We'd like to settle one point now. Several persons referred to the story as a "release." We would like to set them straight.

The story was neither a "news release" nor an "announcement" from any person or group of persons, as some people have stated, but merely an accurate and factual appraisal of the political situation in the township. It was just good reporting.

That it was factual was proved by the happenings at Wednesday's organization meeting. Mayor Peacos was named by his colleagues, as we stated, and the other township appointments were made, also as we stated.

The readers of the RECORD were the first to learn the details of the committee reorganization—five days before it happened.

Peacos Is First Democratic Mayor; Treasurer's Position Made Fulltime

A basic change in the organization set-up of various municipal jobs made by the new Township Committee Wednesday was the shifting of the part time township treasurer's job from the incumbent tax collector, Mrs. Alice J. Hageman, to combine it with the position of clerk in the administrative department and making it a full time position. Mrs. Henrietta F.

ARTHUR MEREDITH

Napear of 25 Lincoln Ave. was named to take the two positions at a total salary of $3,800 annually.

MRS. NAPEAR, a graduate of Highland Park High School and advanced secretarial school, served for three years as secretary to Mayor Chester W. Paulus of New Brunswick, and has also held positions as office manager for the American Legion Veteran's Center and assistant chief clerk and administrative officer for the Office of Price Administration. The shift reportedly will save the township a net sum of $150.

Arthur S. Meredith of Somerville was named township attorney and attorney for the planning board. Meredith is a member of the law firm of Meredith and Morris. He is a graduate of Rutgers University and Rutgers College of Law, and served as municipal attorney for Branchburg Township from 1952 to 1954.

Meredith is a counsellor and has been admitted to speak before the supreme court. He is currently attorney for Somerset County Board of Elections.

Named attorney for the Board of Adjustment is Ralph Mayo, a member of the law firm of Mayo and Welner of New Brunswick. Mayo holds a degree in accounting from Rider College and a law degree from Seton Hall. He served five years with the Bureau of Internal Revenue before entering the practice of law.

Police Department Personnel Is Doubled By Republicans

Full-time personnel in the township police department was doubled in a final show of power Tuesday by the out-going Republican administration. The five full time patrolmen who were added to the department rated highest in a police examination taken by 25 candidates last month.

At the organization meeting Wednesday, the new Township Committee appointed 37 special police, many of whom serve as part time members of the police department, and 12 other special police to act as school crossing guards and for the Youth Guidance Council.

NEW FULL time patrolmen are: Edward Nelson, 30, of Easton Ave., Charles T. Spangenberg, 32, of Box 305, South Bound Brook; John Lebed, 27, of Cedar Grove Lane, Carl H. Paul, 26, of Hamilton St. and William Ribar, who has been a part-time officer for several years.

All except Ribar will be on probationary status for six months. Ribar's full-time status was effective immediately.

Specials appointed were: Walter Adams, Joseph Bekiarian, Robert Bennett, Albert Bessenyei, Vincent

Bosoy, John Burtis, Theodore Casper, William Easton, Karl Falger, David Gillman, Stephen Hegger, Robert Housman and Carl Ribacher.

John Papp, Joseph Pucillo, Torlev Rosfjord, William Schuler, Edwin Shaw, Lefty Straszburger, John Taylor, Byron Wescott, Earl Woodson, Vincent Williams and Harry Yanchyshyn.

School guards named special police were Leonard Carmolla, Josephine Gagliardi, Bette Loyal, Vera Merrill, Oscar Niloussi, Diego Napolitano, Harry Wewers and Floyd Wilson.

MICHAEL Bacchio, Frederick Ostergen, Walter Shirley and Samuel Tornella were appointed special police to act only during affairs sponsored by the Youth Guidance Council.

Russell N. Pfeiffer and Lawrence Collier were appointed constables.

After a week of blasts and heated charges of so-called "tactics" among members of the now controlling Democrats, all was relatively quiet on the home front at the Township Committee's organization meeting Wednesday as Michael Peacos became township mayor.

Democratic Committeeman Michael Lisi, who within the past week slammed the party's leadership, attempted to nominate himself for the mayor's job at the meeting but failed to get a second to the nomination.

MAYO SISLER, Peacos' running mate in a stunning November victory, nominated Peacos for the mayor's seat. However, when Clerk Fred Bascom called for a second to the nomination, Lisi and the Republican minority, ex-Mayor James G. Maher and Committeeman Casimiro Calvo, remained silent. Peacos finally had to second his own nomination. However, Maher and Calvo voted in favor of Peacos, while Lisi cast the only "no" vote.

Lisi again dissented in a 4-1 vote for Thomas Brady, who won approval for a five-year term on the Board of Adjustment. When Peacos nominated Brady for the appointment, Lisi placed in nomination James Olsen but did not receive a second on the nomination.

Lisi could well become a decisive figure during the coming year, should the Republican minority huddle together and Peacos and Sisler agree in a controversy between the different party members.

IN A MESSAGE before some 150 spectators at the organization meeting, Peacos cited municipal planning, streets and roads, the police department and recreation as the township's most pressing problems.

Peacos pointed out a new master plan being prepared by Community Association of Princeton which should be completed next December. The new mayor said, "We plan to recommend several changes in our land subdivision ordinances which we feel are necessary at the present time."

On the road problem, Peacos stated that improvements must be gradual because of a lack of funds, but that maximum service will be attempted through a planned program.

PEACOS called the police ordinance "antiquated" and said that it will be replaced by a new one which "will comply with state statutes and help streamline our police department to keep pace with our community's rapid growth."

A lack of public play areas was pointed out by the mayor, who stated that play areas which were dedicated will be developed as rapidly as possible and that it is hoped new sites will be obtained to provide all sections of Franklin with recreational facilities.

In accepting the chairmanship of the committee, Peacos said he accepted with "humility and, even more, with a sense of responsibility—a responsibility for fulfilling our obligation to the people."

STANDING committee assignments approved unanimously were: Public affairs, recreation and (Continued on Page 8)

Reelection Sought By Hunnewell To Sheriff's Job

Somerset County Sheriff Ernest L. Hunnewell has announced that he will seek the Republican nomination as candidate for reelection in November. He is now completing his fourth term in the sheriff's office.

A resident of North Plainfield, Hunnewell was named Under-Sheriff of the county in 1943.

HE SERVED as re-employment Committeeman, Selective Service, Somerset County, Board 2. He also served five years as Welfare Director for the Borough of North Plainfield and was a member of the Local Defense Council of North Plainfield from its inception to its termination during World War II. Hunnewell is a past president of the New Jersey Sheriff's Association.

He is a past commander of the Disabled American Veterans, Plainfield Chapter, and of the Ball-Kirch Post, American Legion in North Plainfield, and a past past Americanism Officer, Past County Service Officer and Past County senior vice commander.

Thomas Mettler Dies at Age of 71 In EM Home

Funeral services for Thomas H. Mettler of East Millstone, former owner of Mettler's Woods, were held yesterday in the East Millstone Reformed Church. Burial was in Cedar Hill Cemetery, East Millstone.

He died Monday in his home in Amwell Rd. at the age of 71.

MR. METTLER was the son of the late William E. and Gertrude Howell Mettler and the grandson of the late Lewis T. Howell, who was a president of the National Bank of New Jersey.

He was graduated from Rutgers Preparatory School, Princeton University, and from New York Law School, receiving an LL. B. degree.

He passed both the New York and New Jersey bar examinations and was an attorney in New Jersey and an attorney and counselor-at-law in New York. After receiving his law degree, he had been associated three years each with the law firms of Raymond, Mountain, Van Blarcom and Marsh of Newark and Kearney and Dickinson of New York.

MR. METTLER joined the Interwoven Stocking Co., founded by his brother, the late John Wychoff Mettler, in 1917 and was elected chairman of the board in 1933.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Irene Stokes Mettler; three sons, Thomas H. Jr., William K. and Robert S., and three grandchildren. Funeral services were under the direction of the Maher Funeral Home, New Brunswick.

Flying Wood Causes Injuries to 2

Two automobile passengers were injured Wednesday when a 2 by 4-foot slab of plywood flew off a truck traveling in the opposite direction on Route 27 and shattered the windshield of the car in which they were riding.

Taken to Middlesex General Hospital for treatment and later released were Mrs. John G. Gulick, 33, of 76 George Ave. and Cornelius L. Van Nest, 69, of 182

Grant Ave., both of New Brunswick. They were passengers in a car operated by Mrs. Gulick's husband, John, 38.

The plywood apparently was torn by the wind from a truck driven by C. Raymond Gunther, 63, of 84 Middlesex Rd., Middle-bush, police reported.

The East Millstone First Aid Squad transported the injured to the hospital.

Tithing Revival Shows Results

A revival of the practice of tithing, giving a tenth of one's income to the church, has started a spiritual revolution in Protestantism, Leland Stowe reports in a January magazine article.

In the article, "Modern Tithing—A Vital Revival," Stowe says that since 1950, ten major denominations have launched tithe campaigns. Contributions have doubled and tripled; hundreds of new churches have been built; support of missions has broken all records.

ONE OF THE FIRST to start such a campaign, with almost immediate success, was Grace Episcopal, in Port Huron, Mich., whose rector, The Rev. Dr. Austin E. Diphin, took his cue from the success of smaller denominations—such as the Nazarenes. These groups have always tithed, and average far more in contributions per family than the larger, richer denominations.

The Episcopal Diocese of Michigan picked up the Port Huron idea. In 1952, the Presbyterian Church U.S.A. (membership 2,717,000) started a long-term program beginning with 12 "pilot churches," which showed equally startling results.

First Presbyterian in Berkeley, Calif., set a goal of $30,000 the first year and raised $33,000. A second year goal of $40,000 was met. The Presbyterian Church in Tulsa had one-third of its members tithing within four months.

IN 1953, the Joint Department of Stewardship and Benevolence of the National Council of Churches reported tithe campaigns by both the American and Southern Baptist Conventions (total membership 10,200,000); the United Lutherans (2,174,000); the Congregational Christian Churches (1,379,000); the United Presbyterians (250,000) and two other smaller denominations.

Episcopal Bishop Everett Holland Jones of San Antonio declared the new movement as a "revolution in which giving now assumes spiritual proportions. Its greatest result is the commitment of the whole person—time, talent and treasure."

SUPER ROADS UNDERWAY

The federal program to build 41,000 miles of super highways, now underway, will require at least 15 years to complete and will cost $33 billion. The roads will be four, six and eight lanes wide, without traffic lights or grade intersections.

FEWER OFFICES, MORE MAIL

In 1900 the number of post offices in the U.S. reached the peak figure of 78,000. This total was steadily reduced to 70,957 in 1955. In 1956, 69,000 offices were closed. In 1957, 67,517 offices were closed. Mail-handling methods and transportation facilities improved.

A MATTER OF PRIDE

By F. L. Rowley

MRS. EMILY TRISWELL had been graduated from Glenbard College in New Hampshire. Now you might expect a fact of this nature to be overlooked in a thriving midwestern community such as Hillcrest—until you've met Mrs. Emily Triswell. Not that she specializes in blowing her own horn; she delights rather in giving it an occasional toot.

The PTA, the various women's clubs, and on one occasion even the SPCA, had been subjected to windy lectures by "our distinguished guest, graduate of Glenbard College—that's in New Hampshire, you know."

I'd been enjoying all this for years, mainly because I'd been able to dodge most of Emily's delightful meetings. Who—me? I'm George Triswell. Our family is rounded out by daughter Anna. One day Anna started things by announcing:

"Mama, I'm going to Glenbard College. I want to be just like you."

"Why?" I asked.

"She should be proud to have a brainy daughter." I said stoutly. Then I got an idea; if Anna were to break Emily's record I might have less crowing to listen to—so I said: "Tell you what, Anna. Let's write to Glenbard on the sly; at least we can find out what a fancy school like that charges these days."

Anna was all for it. Emily was guest speaker at one of her endless meetings after supper, so Anna and I had a good chance to send a letter off to Glenbard. Anna was as nervous as a kitten until Saturday morning. Then the bomb burst!

Emily was on the porch gathering in the mail. Suddenly there was a snort like the noon whistle at the rubber works. Emily charged into the living room, her lips quivering.

"Who wrote this letter to Glenbard?" she challenged.

"I looked guiltily at the letter.

Across the face of it were the purple words: NO SUCH OFFICE IN STATE NAMED. "We just wanted to find out what the rates are," I said timidly. "Funny it wasn't delivered."

"Well, I never did see Emily in such a dither. As far as I could reason there hadn't been much harm done; the thing hadn't even been delivered.

"Gosh, don't take it so hard, honey. Your mother will get over it. After all, Glenbard didn't even get the letter."

"That's just it," sobbed Anna. "All we've done is ruin mother's big, beautiful dream. There isn't—there never was—a Glenbard College."

Suddenly I realized how much Glenbard had meant to Emily. And we had taken it away from her.

Anna started toward the kitchen. I caught her arm. "Don't say anything yet. We still have a chance. Let's go see Bill Phelps, the printer. He has a sister in New Hampshire. Maybe Bill could help us compose a letter—"

Three days later Emily bounced into the living room bursting with happiness. Proudly she thrust a letter under my nose. The last paragraph read:

"—since I'm a relatively new member of the faculty I regret to say that I don't recall a Miss Emily Triswell. As for your daughter's joining us as she requests; please explain to her that it's a physical impossibility. Our waiting list is much too long now."

Cordially,

Miss Beverly Parker
The printed letter-head read: Glenbard College, Briar Gate, New Hampshire. Oddly enough, Bill Phelps' sister lives in Briar Gate. One thing I like about Bill though—he skips the talkative kind.

And Emily? Sometimes she takes the letter out of her purse and stars at it, then hand at me and Anna. She asks no questions though. With her I guess you might say it's a matter of pride.

ACROSS the DESK

ideas from other editors

From The Independent, Fuquay, Springs, N.C.: The Russian propaganda success with the Sputniks has revealed that this country has committed grave errors in the images of America which it has sought to establish abroad by propaganda and informational policy. The high standard of living in America has been emphasized as a demonstration of superiority over the Russian system. But the people of the backward countries can never hope to attain a small fraction of what million of Americans now enjoy. Even in western Europe, America has induced perhaps unnecessary envy by its emphasis on American prosperity.

The need which the leaders of backward countries feel keenly is that of industrializing as rapidly as possible. They do not believe that they have the time to industrialize which was given to America. This suggests one of the reasons why the Soviet Union has seemed like a model or example for various Asian leaders and intellectuals.

The Russian leaders have been able to develop Russia industrially and to produce earth satellites by sweating and enslaving the Russian people. But in Asia, the enslavement of Russians, and also of Lithuanians, Latvians and Es-thonians, does not usually arouse many chords of sympathy. To Asians, success is more impressive than freedom.

Freedom has been the crucial issue, and American propaganda has often watered down the appeal of freedom by over-emphasizing prosperity and richness. A belief about America has been jolted by Sputnik. Fresh thoughts must be given immediately to the problems of propaganda and informational policy.

From The Mason County News, Ravenswood, W. Va.: Inflation, it seems, has hit the land of the wild blue yonder, too. Curtis LeMay, the cigar-chomping boss of Strategic Air Command, won himself a Distinguished Flying Cross for going along on a ride in an airborne tanker from Buenos Aires to Washington. He had gone down a few days earlier, and was in a hurry to get back, apparently. So his boys whisked him northward at an average speed of 469.5 miles an hour.

LeMay was listed as pilot of the tanker, and no doubt did handle his share of the controls. But as far as we can see, eleven peacetime hours in a flying living room is hardly a cause for a hero's welcome.

THE STARS

By LYN CONNELLY

PAT BOONE, one of the country's highest paid singing stars, works his way through Columbia University in off-television hours . . . hopes to land a BS degree and a Phi Beta Kappa key by the end of the spring term . . . Born Charles Eugene Boone on June 1, 1934, in Jacksonville, Fla., he was nicknamed "Pat" by his parents who had anticipated a daughter whom they would have named Patricia. . . His father, Archie Boone, a descendant of Daniel Boone, moved the family to Nashville, Tenn., when the song star was two.

Pat began singing in public when he was 10 in a talent contest . . . has never had a lesson . . . can just about read music. . . At 17 he was given his own radio program in Nashville. . . Shortly after, in 1953, he won a trip to New York and an audition on Ted Mack's TV talent show . . . subsequently became a three-time winner . . . The young singer is married to Shirley Foley, daughter of ABC-TV star Red Foley. . . They met and fell in love during their freshman year at David Lipscomb high school in Nashville. . . were married in the fall of 1953 during their sophomore year at college.

Seeking a life of their own, the young couple moved to Danton, Tex., in 1954, where Pat worked his way through North Texas State Teacher's college for the sum of $50 per week, total earnings from three weekly TV shows on a local Ft. Worth station. . . About that time he won top honors on the Arthur Godfrey TV talent show. . . then in 1955, Godfrey offered him guest appearances on his daily TV show and the singer ended up with 1 1/2 years of Godfrey association.

Randy Wood, founder and president of Dot Records, started Pat on his record career with the hit "Two Hearts" . . . Then came "Ain't It a Shame" and his song fame swept the nation. . . Since then the star has chalked up six gold records

TELL US YOUR PROBLEM

AND LET US TAKE IT TO HELP OTHERS SOLVE THEIR PROBLEMS.

BY JOHN AND JANE STRICKLAND

PROBLEM: Companionship
A PROBLEM that besets many middle-aged couples was solved in a simple way by Matthew Riordan who lives on Route 4, Savannah, Georgia.

Life to Matthew was an interesting journey. One time it also had been interesting to his wife. But as their children grew up, married and went away to live their own lives, she took less and less interest in her own.

Matthew found his work increasingly interesting for it embodied science, in which interest never wanes. He would go home at night tired, ready for a good meal followed by relaxation around an open fire in the winter, on the front porch in summer. During his relaxing periods, however, he pondered some of his scientific problems, and he says, "I'm afraid I wasn't a very interesting companion."

His wife, her household duties at end for some twelve or fourteen hours, had nothing to do but mend, sew, read or listen to the radio (this was before television had become a general pastime).

Gradually his wife became less and less interested in life, even the meals which she once served with such care had become monotonous and less appetizing.

"This," says Matthew, "is conducive to others outside the home becoming more interesting, and which often results in the breaking up of a home, a hurried and sometimes regretted second marriage." He didn't want this to happen to him; he would do something about it.

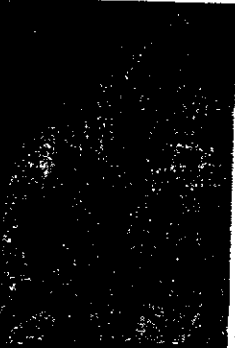

First, he studied his wife. Living out of town, she was beyond the range of daily social activity, and he used their one car to go back and forth to his work. An efficient person, she easily finished her day's work without being too tired. She even had time to tend a flower garden. But after dinner she was in a mood for a little pleasure, which he considered himself too tired to share with her.

But he decided to change his habits, and this solved his problem, saved their marriage, and again they had a happy home life.

How did he do this? He merely set aside two evenings a week for his wife's pleasure. On these evenings they went to see a moving picture, called on friends, invited friends in to see them.

It wasn't a month before his wife showed her old charming spirit. "And," says Matthew, "I found myself getting a great deal more out of life by stepping out of my routine."

SPORTS CORNER

This an' That
 European sportswriters voted Vladimir Vuis, Russian distance runner, as the world's outstanding athlete of 1957 by a wide margin over runner-up Bob Getowski, a pole vaulter from Occidental College in California. . . The sponsor of the annual $20,000 Montreal Open Golf Tournament cancelled the competition for 1958 saying suitable dates could not be adjusted to the "hiring prof" schedules. . . World featherweight champion Egan "Kid" Bassey recently returned to London after a tour of his native Nigeria to prepare for his tour of America. His manager, George Biddie, said Bassey may fight a title bout in the U. S. next spring. . . Roosevelt Brown, at 265, is the heaviest player on the roster of the New York Giants football team. . . The largest boxing gate in Yankee Stadium history amounted to $1,025,584 when Joe Louis and Billy Conn fought for the heavyweight title in 1946.

THE WORLD OUTDOORS

By MARY BERNETT

MANY a hunter, whether he's now eighteen or eighty-eight, can remember—and at this time of year usually does remember—that memorable Christmas so long ago when he tiptoed down the chilly stairs with the first light of the holiday morning to find a dream come true beneath the Christmas tree. The first gun—how it stood out among the many red and green, short and round packages stacked and cluttered at the base of the shining tree, wrapped so carelessly there could be no doubt that it was what it was hoped to be.

Does one ever forget the sound of crunching snow beneath new and shiny boots and the sharp but unbiting flurry of wind and snow that whipped through leafless trees and empty corn stalks? One doesn't forget—not if this was the day of the first gun, that unforgettable day.

On such a day a boy was made to feel like a man, to walk with pride, shoulders back, head and heart up in the sky. But then, so much yet a boy, for he must stop now and then to hold a shiny new .410 at arms length, just to admire the solidness and the beauty of it, and then snap it shoulderward with lightning-like speed to draw a bead on an imaginary target moving with tremendous speed across the horizon.

There is a place reserved within the heart of every hunter. He may live to be a hundred. He may seek his game in the jungle depths, the musty swamps, or the desert wastelands. But he shall never see the moment when time dims the memory of the day of the first gun.

bush was named building inspector. Stanton retired from the position of supervisor of safety at John Manville last spring after twenty years' service. He is a qualified architect, with 24 years experience, and prior to coming to Johns Manville was head of his own architectural firm, designing and supervising construction of building schools, industrial plants and residences.

Eugene S. Griggs Jr. of 821 Hamilton St. was named zoning officer. Griggs is a graduate of Duke University. He was formerly employed with the Anso Division of General Aniline and Film as laboratory technicians, salesman, and assistant office manager, and has since 1955 operated the Griggs Photography Service. He is a native of the township.

C. A. Esbacher, who has held the position of zoning officer since its creation a year and a half ago, was retained indefinitely at the rate of $1.75 an hour to assist the building inspector and zoning officer.

THOMAS R. Brady of 217 Park St. was named to the Board of Adjustment. Brady is a graduate of Fordham University and a research chemist at Rubenfeld Co. He served as a radiological chemist in the Army during World War II, working on the development of the A-bomb and the H-bomb. He has regularly attended meetings of both the Board of Adjustment and the Planning Board since moving to the township two years ago.

Henry Ness of Franklin Park was named to fill a vacancy on the Planning Board. Ness has resided in the township 17 years, has been employed at Triangle Conduit and Cable Co. for 20 years, and is now chief of utilities there. He was educated at Johns Hopkins University and is a member of the Raritan Valley Chapter of National Association of Professional Engineers.

Mrs. Beatrice Hazel of Frederick Street was named to the local assistance board. Mrs. Hazel is an employee of the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company and a steward of local 1101 of the Communications Workers of America. She is a graduate of Overbrook High School in Philadelphia.

VICTOR H. Diosozy of Corleyou Lane, was reappointed to the Sewerage Authority, on which he served since the creation of that body last year. He is an engineer at Johns-Manville.

Two vacancies for laymen on the Board of Plumbers was filled by Joseph Ganim and Theodore H. Taylor. Ganim is employed in the plastics division of American Cyanamid Co. He has lived in the township most of his life and is a graduate of Bound Brook High School. Taylor, who lives on Central Ave., is a graduate of New Brunswick High School and is employed by the Rodia Company in New Brunswick. Herbert Rakebrand, master plumber, and William Buckelew, journeyman, will continue to hold posts on the board.

John A. Connor and Edward H. Rey were appointed to the two open places on the industrial development committee. Connor, who lives at Griggstown, is employed in New York City as development manager from the Mack Motor Company. He has been in the heavy industrial production and sales field for 21 years. He is a college graduate and a member of the New York Traffic Club and the Society of Automotive Engineers.

REY, WHO lives on Laurel Avenue in Livingston, is in the printing, advertising and promotion business in Princeton. He is a gradu-

The following new appointments were approved: Mrs. Henrietta Naper, treasurer, replacing Mrs. Alice Hageman; Arthur Meredith, township attorney, replacing Robert E. Gagnor; Eugene Griggs, zoning officer, replacing Carl Erbacher, Benjamin Stanton, building inspector, replacing Joseph Maher, and Thomas Reilly, Housing Authority member, replacing John Carlano.

Henry Ness was named to the Planning Board for a six-year term, replacing Edward Tornquist. Peacos and Sisler are new Planning Board members, replacing former Committeeman W. Russell Laird and Maher. Bascom was re-appointed.

BRADY the new member of the Board of Adjustment, replaces Wendell W. Forbes.

Officials reappointed were: George J. Shamy, magistrate for three years; William Rimmey, engineer; Mrs. Beatrice Hazel, member of the Local Assistance Board; Victor H. Diosozy, Sewerage Authority member; Mrs. May L. Hirsch, overseer of the poor; Thomas F. Boylan, water department superintendent; David Condit and Michael Kredivsky, dog wardens and pound keepers, and George C. Hubner Jr., plumbing inspector.

Named to the Industrial Development Committee were John A. Connor, Edward H. Rey, Herschel Kelly, Milton Stoll, Alex Katschen, Lisi and Peacos.

In other business, the committee approved a temporary budget of $100,000 and listed the Manville National Bank, Bound Brook Trust Co. and New Brunswick Trust Co. as official depositories.

The committee set its meeting dates as the second and third Thursdays of each month.

ate of local schools, Princeton High School and attended Rutgers. He founded and published the first weekly newspaper in the township more than 25 years ago. Members reappointed were Alex Katschen, Herschel Kelly and Milton Stoll.

Thomas H. Reilly of Ninth St. fills the vacancy on the Housing Authority. Reilly is a Navy veteran who served in the Naval Construction Service. He is a graduate of North Arlington High School and is employed as a printer by the Newark Star-Ledger.

H. Malcolm Adams and Louis Schriber were renamed to the Shade Tree Commission, which was formed but not activated by the Township Committee last year. Joining them will be Dr. Guido G. Weigend of 117 Rodney Ave., who is an associate professor of geology at Rutgers University.
