

Teacher Found Not Guilty Of Hitting Student, 15

Acting Magistrate William Rosenberg of Manville dismissed a charge of assault against Wilfred Cardoni, Elizabeth Avenue School teacher charged with hitting a 15-year-old student, Monday night in Municipal Court, ruling that the case was almost entirely one of credibility.

The magistrate ruled the complaints had not proven the case against Cardoni within a reasonable doubt.

CARDONI was accused of punching Robert Yakobowski, 15, an eighth grader, on Jan. 7 in the teacher's room after school because of insulting remarks made by the student about the teacher.

Yakobowski of 53 Willow Ave. and classmate Michael Raker, 14, of 42 Willow Ave. claimed they were both struck by Cardoni.

Bernad McLaughlin, eighth grade teacher, and Harry E. Marston, principal of the school, testified that both boys did not have good reputations among their teachers for truthfulness.

WHEN QUESTIONED by defense attorney Robert Gaynor about the boys' reputations for truthfulness, McLaughlin said, "I have to say this with the boy here. But Mike does not have a good reputation for truthfulness, and Bob's reputation is worse." This is the second year that he has had both boys as students, McLaughlin said.

The alleged assault occurred after the boys were called off the school bus by Cardoni when they allegedly called him the insulting names.

Cardoni said that prior to the time he ordered the boys off the bus, they had made obscene gestures at him after he warned them to behave on the bus.

HE SAID he ignored the acts but ordered them off the bus when Yakobowski uttered the insulting comments. The teacher said he told the boys he would have them suspended and ordered them to his classroom. Cardoni told the magistrate he then went to the principal to ask they be suspended.

After receiving permission to suspend them, Cardoni said he then found them in McLaughlin's room and told them to go into his room. He said he began scolding young Yakobowski, when the boy turned his head "with a jerking motion" and smacked into the blackboard.

Cardoni said the boys then hurried into McLaughlin's room.

McLAUGHLIN testified that he was tutoring another pupil when the boys entered his room, followed by Cardoni. He said young Yakobowski ran into some chairs that were piled on desks and the chairs fell on the boy.

When asked by Yakobowski's attorney, Martin Spritzer, whether Cardoni hit the boys while in McLaughlin's room, McLaughlin said, "He certainly did not."

However, young Yakobowski and Raker gave opposing testimony, claiming that Cardoni backed Yakobowski against the blackboard in his classroom and pounded him about the stomach and chest with his fists.

RAKER said Cardoni struck him in the face before following Yakobowski, who had run to McLaughlin's room. The boys quoted Cardoni as saying, "I'm going to kill you for calling me that."

The boys said Cardoni rushed at Yakobowski and struck him in the mouth with his fist.

Both of the boys said their lips were cut and that Yakobowski had

Three Democrats To Run In Party Primary Election

Running in the Democratic primary election will be candidates Francis H. Willard, Edward R. Rey and Herbert W. Wheeler, GOP candidates for the two upcoming vacancies on the Township Committee are Leonard H. Ruppert and Brando B. Pursey.

Deadline for filing petitions for the two political parties' candidates for nomination was 4 p.m. Tuesday. Township Clerk Fred Bacon reported that no others had filed except the three Democrats and two Republicans. Independent party candidates must file with the County Clerk.

JOSEPH M. Klotz of 44 Roberts Rd., who previously announced his intentions of running, announced that he was forced to withdraw because of family obligations.

Klotz expressed his regret at withdrawing his candidacy and thanked those who urged him to run and supporters who circulated and signed his petitions.

He said he subscribes fully to the administration's program of tightening zoning laws, strict zoning enforcement, and industrial development efforts. "I will give them all cooperation possible," Klotz added.

"TO DO the job adequately," Klotz stated, "the township committee must put in begins to approach the full-time job and with a growing family of four, I feel that I owe more time to my wife and children."

He added, "I hope that some later date, when my children are older and I have more free time, I can seek the Democratic nomination for the local governing body."

Willard, who lives at 28 Arden St., has served as the Democratic party's municipal chairman since last April, the former was Township Committee observer for the Hollywood Homeowners Assn. and treasurer and a board member of the Civic Bathmen's Assn.

No action was taken on an application by the Socony Construction Corp. to subdivide a 317-acre tract bounded by Easton Avenue, New Brunswick Road, Cedar Grove Lane and Davidson Avenue, since only four Planning Board members agreed to sign the "honesty affidavit" before voting Wednesday night.

Initiation of the affidavit, requiring board members to deny personal or financial interest in any major subdivision, was halted not due to moral reasons, but because of a technicality.

WORDING of the ordinance requires board members to sign an affidavit for preliminary subdivision "approval" prior to voting on the measure. It was debated whether a member should sign an affidavit if he planned to vote for disapproval of an application.

Board Attorney Arthur Meredith held that the wording "approval" did not imply that a member must vote in favor of application, but rather was only a legal wording on what the members were voting about. He said "vote on approval means in respect to approval."

However, Lyle Hagmann, board chairman, Albert Milchenowski, Francis Lyne and Charles Storm questioned the wording of the ordinance and refused to sign an affidavit.

THE FOUR members pulling their signatures on the first affidavit were Mayor Michael Peacos, Fred L. Bacon, secretary, Wendell W. Forbes and Henry Ness. Board member Mayo Sklar was absent from the meeting.

Hagmann announced that no action could be taken on the Socony application since only four members signed the affidavit.

Prior to the affidavit dispute, Peacos moved the Socony application be disapproved because of a (Continued on Page 8)

Sliwka Enters Election Race As Independent

Stephen Sliwka, 33, of 725 Hamden St. filed as an independent candidate in the upcoming election Wednesday with County Clerk Robert Bergen in Somerville.

Sliwka's name will not appear on the primary election ballot, but will be listed on the general election ballot in the spot designated for candidates "nominated by petition."

HE RAN in the Democratic primary election last year, but did not win a nomination after the Democratic clubs refused to endorse him.

Owner of Stevenson Hardware, Sliwka was formerly in the contracting business. He was born in the township and attended local schools.

The father of three children, he is a World War II veteran of the U.S. Coast Guard. He was first president of the Somerset County N.P.C.A.

Township Talk

A spectator raised an interesting question at the Planning Board meeting Wednesday after four board members had refused to sign the "honesty affidavit" before voting on a rejection of the application of Socony Development Corp. for a major subdivision. The resident asked whether the Republican board members would continue in the future to refuse to put their signatures on the affidavit, thereby holding up much board action.

Actually, initiation of the affidavit was halted not due to moral reasons, but rather to a technicality—a dispute over wording of the ordinance. So no implications or predictions can be made as a result of the members' refusal to sign.

However, we know the two major political parties must have their able disputes and differences. This makes the parties different. But we sincerely hope petty political disputes won't enter into the matter of signing an affidavit, since it has been adopted. Should this happen, board business might be held up or needlessly postponed.

It's a real pleasure to go to the police headquarters now— (Continued on Page 8)

Shamy Cracks Down on Casually Dressed Youths Appearing in Court

Magistrate George Shamy, irked by the informal attire worn by many youths appearing in Municipal Court, Monday night ordered three young men to leave the court room and return next Monday dressed properly.

He told the boys to appear wearing shirts and ties, not sport shirts, dungarees and club or black leather jackets.

THEODORE Dille and William Thompson, both of East Millstone, who were charged with disorderly conduct, appeared before the magistrate in casual attire, one chewing gum. Shamy gazed at the youths and ordered them out of the court room.

When Frederick W. Hagmann of Morristown stepped before the judge's bench to answer a charge of using loud and profane language, he too was instructed to return next Monday properly dressed.

Charles Williams, 19, was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail and had the privilege to apply for a driver's license, suspended for two years on a charge of reckless driving and received a 10-day jail term in lieu of failure to pay a $25 fine for driving without a license. He was assessed $5 court costs on both charges.

WILLIAMS is now under $1,000 bail in the county jail on a car theft charge. He was arrested by police after a wild chase in a stolen car. He did not halt until wounded by a policeman's bullet.

A careless driving charge against Paul G. Pratt, 18, of So. Broad Brook was dismissed. Pratt also was warned about his casual attire, but the magistrate decided to hear the case since the car, driving witness, Mrs. Susan Stanley of Manville and her attorney, Adam Chase, were in court.

A disorderly complaint against Heavy Moses of Elizabeth Ave. was withdrawn by the complainant, James Enel, same address.

SHAMY ordered Enel to pay $10 court costs and told him that "the purpose of the court is not to threaten people with criminal action, then withdraw the complaint when the defendant promised to pay the damage."

Self-Employed Required to Pay Social Security Taxes

People who work for themselves in trades and businesses, on farms and in the professions—should now be preparing to make social security self-employment tax reports on their 1957 earnings.

Any self-employed person (except a doctor of medicine) who has net earnings of $400 or more for the year is now covered by social security for that year, and is required to report his net earnings and pay the social security self-employment tax of 3% per cent.

This report, due on or before April 15, is part of the Schedule C (or Schedule F in the case of farmers) the self-employed person is required to file with his regular income tax return. James D. Murphy, district manager of the New Brunswick, N. J. social security district office notes that, in past years, some self-employed people who did not owe any income tax, lost out on their social security coverage because they did not know that they were still required to make a self-employment tax report if their actual net earnings (before any personal income tax exemptions) amounted to $400 or more.

The period during which such "delinquent taxpayer can file a report and get social security credit for his net earnings is limited to three years, three months and 15 days following the year in which he had the net earnings of $400 or more.

Be sure, Murphy advises to enter your social security account number in the space provided. This number identifies your account among the 125 million social security accounts on file with the Social Security Administration. There may be somebody else in the country with a name exactly like yours, but nobody else will have your social security account number.

IF YOU ARE NOW self-employed, but have worked for someone else as an employee in the past, you will use the same social security account number. The net earnings you now report as a self-employed person are added to the wages already credited to your social security account. Your benefits, when the time comes, will be based on both the wages and the self-employment income reported to your account.

If, however, you have a combination of wages and self-employment income in any one year, you can be given credit for no more than a total of $4,200 for that year.

Self-employed persons whose wages amount to $4,200 or more, will receive no credit for earnings from self-employment for that year but are they required to pay a social security tax on those net earnings.

A worker whose wages have been $3,000, however, and whose earnings from self-employment have been $2,000, making a total of $5,000, will receive credit for $1,200 or his net earnings—the difference between $3,000 and the maximum of $4,200. He will also pay a social security tax on only $1,200 of those net earnings.

PLEASURE boating is becoming more and more the nation's top family sport. This trend reflected in a recent survey which indicates that America's boat-fun fleet has nearly tripled in the last 10 years and increased by some 345,000 small craft during 1957.

Contrast this to the picture of some 45-year-old boats in the year 1954, for instance; there were only 15,000 recreational craft on all American waterways. By 1956, this total had grown to 1.5 million and by 1957 had reached 2.4 million. Between 1947 and 1957, the recreational fleet almost tripled, reaching the present level of 7,071,000 pleasure craft.

The fact that boating is big business is reflected in the fact that the dollar volume on purchases on the retail level amounted to $1,912,000,000 last year, up 21 percent over 1956. This includes expenditures for new and used boats, engines, accessories, safety equipment, fuel, insurance, docking, launching, storage and other miscellaneous expenses.

More than one-fourth of the 1957 total is accounted for by purchases of new outboard motors, outboard boats and boat trailers. The report also took note of the fact that the boating-conscious American public spread 9.8 million gallons of marine paints and varnishes during the past year. American pleasure craft used up some 397 million gallons of gasoline and more than 19 million gallons of lubricating oil.

Looking over the figures, it appears that there is now one pleasure boat in use for every 24 Americans. And all the boats are not necessarily big cruisers or power jobs. It is estimated that there are some 2,375,000 row boats, canoes and similar type craft in use.

People always trace the good traits in their ancestors and omit the bad ones.

When you need it most, the incentive you thought you had is very apt to vanish.

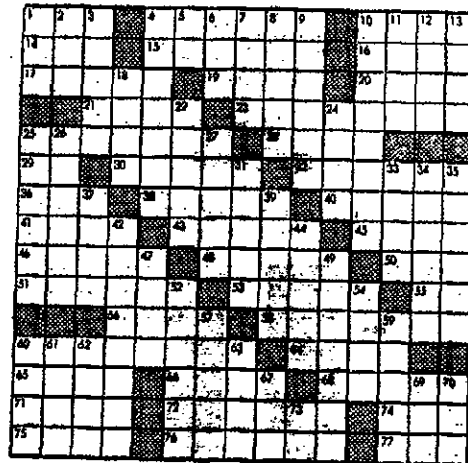

The time we save in making quick decisions is lost in undoing the harm caused by our haste.

Too many people seem to be taking advantage of the admitted fact that it isn't human to be perfect.

Beach Improved On Raritan Bay

Visitors to the north Jersey coast in the vicinity of Keansburg on Raritan Bay will enjoy 4 1/2 acres of new and improved beach this year according to Joseph E. McLean, Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development. "At the same time," he added, "local residents have gained a greater measure of safety from flooding."

The expanding metropolitan area and increasing use of seashore recreational opportunities point up the desirability and actual need for projects of this sort in communities economically crippled by inadequate and eroded beaches," he remarked.

PETER J. GANNON, chief of the Bureau of Navigation in the Conservation Department, says completion of the beach-fill project late last season has provided a new beach 8300 feet long on the Raritan Bay shorefront from Raritan Avenue east to Beacon Beach at Keansburg. Sand was excavated from about one-half mile offshore in the Bay and pumped through 18-inch pipeline to the shore for lateral distribution, he explained.

The contract for the work was awarded to the Hill Dredging Corporation of Atlantic City in April 1957. The total cost of $194,344.80 was paid jointly by the State, county and local municipality.

Gannon describes the beach at approximately 300 feet wide with berm crest 14 feet above local low water. This expected to hold out storm waters which on some occasions in the past have reached several blocks into Keansburg. A total of 438,362 cubic yards of sand was placed in the project.

A SUCCESSFUL beach-fill project, similar to the present one, was carried out in 1954 in East Keansburg, immediately to the east of the area now completed. A later project designed to extend the beach westward is anticipated in the future.

EASTER SEAL GIRL—Governor Meyner and six-year old Nancy Dworak of Maplewood, New Jersey's 1958 Easter Seal Girl, get together to launch the month-long statewide Easter Seal Appeal which starts today to raise funds to support rehabilitation services for physically handicapped people.

Easter Seal Mailing Begins

Mailing of some 55,000 Easter Seal Appeal letters to residents of Middlesex County started today, opening date of the 1958 Easter Seal Appeal, Dr. Mason W. Gross, Middlesex County Easter Seal chairman announced today. Gov. Meyner officially opened the statewide Appeal by receiving the first sheet of Easter Seals from six year old Nancy Dworak of Maplewood, New Jersey's 1958 Easter Seal Girl.

"In 1958 more than ever before," Dr. Gross said, "it is important that every resident of our area respond to the Easter Seal Appeal of New Jersey Society for Crippled Children and Adults. Easter Seals support rehabilitation facilities for people of all ages and types of disability."

medical science saves the lives of infants who would not have survived a few years ago and prolongs the life of our aging people.

Easter Seal projects now provide rehabilitation services to 2,000 handicapped New Jersey people a year—and many more need Easter Seal help which we need only the funds to provide."

Gross, who is provost of Rutgers University, pointed out that the Easter Seal Appeal will continue until April 6, Easter Sunday. In the Easter Seal Appeal month, he declared, there will be special Easter Seal events in a number of communities in the area, but nowhere will there be any house-to-house canvass.

From The Mailbag

Dear Editor:
The time has come to speak out against a system of taxation which threatens to drive our farmers off their land and to turn our suburbs into slums. I am referring, of course, to the method of levying taxes upon property owners, from which such a high proportion of New Jersey's aggregate revenues are derived.

Some of the worst features of our tax system were dramatized recently by the plight of Rutgers Heights residents in Franklin Township, who found their double what they were last year. Were they mad? You bet, and no one can blame them. In large numbers they attended the municipal budget hearing to air their grievances and find out what could be done about them. Unfortunately, nothing short of a new tax law will help them.

Why did their taxes double? There are two reasons. One is the increase in school and municipal revenues, which accounted for 30 per cent. For my mathematicians who want to check me, take last year's tax rate of 13 per $100 valuation, multiply it by 1.45, or 45 per cent, and divide the result by the year's assessed valuation of 25 per cent. The result is $7.50 per $100. That is what the tax rate would have been last year. It budgeted expenditures were the same as last year, instead, the rate is going to be $9.07, or 30 per cent higher. Please note that 24 per cent of this is due to a higher school budget, voted in a few weeks ago, and only 6 per cent due to factors under municipal control.

What really hurt was the other 70 per cent which resulted from a complete revaluation of real property in Franklin Township. This revaluation, made at the suggestion of the County Tax Board, was assigned to an appraisal firm. The Township paid the bill, but had no control whatsoever over the results. The only way the valuation on the tax books can be lowered is by sanction of the County Tax Board.

Why did Rutgers Heights values go up so much? Well, many people built their own houses with their own hands. They built well, saving much money in labor costs. When their houses were first assessed their value reflected more nearly the actual cost of these homes than their market value. Unfortunately, the law provides that assessments must be based on market value.

In other words, a homeowner must pay an annual penalty for building a good house, even if he puts his own muscle and sweat into the building. His penalty is the heavier when he lives in a community like Franklin Township which has no industry to ease the burden, and which faces years of catching up on schools, roads, utilities, etc.

Our farmers find that rising taxes increase their fixed costs to the point where the pressure to sell out becomes almost irresistible. Today's farms become tomorrow's tenement suburbs, with small homes that do not pay for schools and other services that add to the crushing tax burden.

I submit that the only real solution is a new tax law, broadly based on an ability to pay. Such a law would distribute the burden more evenly among homeowners, farmers, business, the professions, and industry. Let those who buy as I do speak out now and make their views known to their elected representatives.

Lazaar Library Gears to Open Week of Mar. 16

The Madeline E. Lazaar Memorial Library Association is working toward a possible opening of the library during National Library Week, Mar. 16-22. The library would be opened tentatively on a part time basis, hours to be announced.

The library, which will function within the Somerset County Free Library system, will open with approximately 2800 books, 1300 of its own, plus 1,000 on loan from the county library.

MISS DOROTHY Van Gorder, director of the county library, said the books to be loaned by the county will constitute a small but fairly representative book collection of books from pre-school through adult level, both reference and fiction. In addition to the basic collection, which will be changed from time to time, she added, the county library will endeavor to fill requests for specific books.

A contribution of $145 from residents of Hollywood Homes was made to the local library association at the library unit's meeting last Friday. The donation was presented to Mrs. Lawrence Gerber, temporary president of the association, by Morris Spps, president of the homeowners group.

The money, which will be used to purchase a library table and eight chairs, was collected through a little bus program organized by Jack Goodman, chairman of the ways and means committee, with assistance from Mrs. Robert Manulka, Albert Del Vecchio, Maurice Cronin and Brandon Puszy.

OTHER GIFTS received to date are a 1958 set of the World Book Encyclopedia from the county library, a Rutgers Shelf of New Jersey Books—a collection of 12 books published by the Rutgers University Press—from the township Women's Democratic Club, and approximately 1300 books obtained through book drives and voluntary gifts from various individuals. Five hundred of these books came from the Wilson Cataloging Company of New York.

rejection of the development map by the Somerset County Planning Board and because the map failed to show utilities—sewerage and water—connections for the housing project.

FORBES went along with Peacor's motion stating that he did not see the plan submitted was complete.

A letter from the county board stated the development plan was rejected because not enough information was provided on drainage which would affect county roads.

Jack Cohen, attorney for Socony, claimed improper drainage on county roads did not exist.

HAGMANN told Peacor it was a mistake to vote out the application without first obtaining the additional information to which he referred concerned suggested changes in the development by the county planning board.

Concerning the dispute on wording of the "honesty affidavit," Cohen intervened in the board's discussion, claiming the ordinance was incorrectly worded.

Peacor told Cohen he was not the township attorney and should "leave the business to the board."

A LOUD applause arose from the spectators, and when Cohen rose to speak, many residents yelled, "You're out of order."

Later, a spectator, Herbert Wheeler, asked Lynes if his refusal to sign the affidavit meant that he had been "offered something."

Lynes said he hadn't been and added, "If I refuse to sign the affidavit, it means I refuse to vote." He said that if certain persons responsible for the new regulation "have any suspicions of board members, they should name names and lay the cards on the table."

LYNES added, "If people are crooked, you can bring all the affidavits forward and they'll still be crooked."

One spectator questioned how the board could refuse the Socony application "when the developer's voluntary gifts from various individuals, five hundred of these books came from the Wilson Cataloging Company of New York. He called Peacor's reasons for opposing the application "misleading." Peacor reminded the questioning spectator that housing developments during more school children into the township without providing school facilities. He said because of this "taxes are high and will continue to rise." Peacor added, "Developers don't pay their way." A loud applause again arose in response to Peacor's remarks.

IN OTHER business, the board received the proposed zoning ordinance amendment from the Township Committee and referred it to the planning committee for study and report at the next meeting.

Hestmann announced that the board voted at its executive session to throw out its previously adopted plan to form a committee to investigate replacing Meredith as board attorney.

Dem Unit to Plan Campaign Role

The Somerset County Young Democratic Club will plan its role in the 1958 political campaign at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday in Somerville Inn.

Club president Harvey Trimmer has announced that County Democratic Chairman Arthur S. Maxwell, Freeholder candidate Mayo Sisker and 1957 Freeholder candidate H. Edward Gebler have been invited to present their suggestions at the meeting.

"WE WANT to make sure our energies are exerted in the most useful way and avoid duplication of effort with other campaign groups," Trimmer explained.

The meeting will be the first the club has held on a Wednesday. It will be a plus one month to try different days of the week for its first 1958 meetings in an effort to determine which is most convenient for present and prospective members. Refreshments will be served.

CARDONI testified that he never struck either boy nor said he would kill them and did not see cuts on the boys' lips. McLaughlin also said he did not see cuts on the pupils.

Mr. and Mrs. Yakaouski said they observed the injuries to their son and took him to a physician who examined the boy but did not treat him. LaRoy Baker, Michael's father, stated he saw a swelling on his son's mouth later that night. Merten, who picked up the boys in his car after they left the school grounds, said they called his attention to their lips but he could see no injuries.

She was taken by the Community First Aid Squad to Middlesex General Hospital, New Brunswick, where she was treated for face and leg cuts.

MRS. SZUCS told investigation Officer John Lebed that she was heading south to New Brunswick when she was blinded by lights of an oncoming car. She veered to the right side of the road and her car's front wheel hit a soft shoulder. She then turned sharply to the left, causing the car to shoot across the road and strike a pole, according to Lebed.

Manville Driver Tagged Careless

THE MOTORIST is scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Monday night to answer the careless driving charge.
