ON HER MIND—
A lady with something on her mind, that's this pretty Douglas College student, who finds trying on bonnets is half the fun of Easter. Whether to be daring, sophisticated or cute is a question she tries hard to decide.

Promotion Firm May Be Hired To Seek Industry

The Industrial Development Commission Monday adopted a resolution authorizing a promotion concern to seek industrial prospects for the township. The measure has been turned over to the township committee for their consideration.

Lawrence Gerber, a member of the commission, announced that the unit felt "they had found a good firm to do the job expertly and at a good price." The commission agreed to pay Previews Inc. $2,250 for its services.

PRELIMINARY negotiations with the firm were made by Gerber and commission member Edward Rey.

The resolution was unanimously adopted on the recommendation of Alex Katoen, chairman.

Gerber said the New York firm would promote township land in New Jersey and throughout the country. He explained that members of the Industrial Development Commission have neither the qualifications nor time to do the job.

40% Increase Seen In This Year's Tax Bills

Franklin tax bills will be approximately 40 per cent higher this year, despite a drop in the tax rate from $13.24 in 1957 to $9.78 for 1958, announced Lewis J. Gray, secretary, of the Somerset County Board of Taxation.

Gray reported that the ratio of assessed valuation to true valuation has increased from 14.79 per cent to 25 per cent.

THE TOWNSHIP'S total tax levy for this year is $1,637,594.35, an increase of $608,584.38 over last year's total levy of $1,134,029.96.

The district school budget rose from $914,709.12 in 1957 to $1,098,901 in the current year. The municipal budget for operation of the local government totaled $171,000 in the last year, whereas this year the local budget is $381,850.00.

Bus Service Referendum Set for May 20

The Board of Education Tuesday night voted to hold a special school referendum Tuesday, May 20, on a proposal to provide free bus transportation for pupils living between one-half mile and two miles from school.

The special meeting was called as a result of a petition, signed by 143 persons, requesting the service.

ENTIRE cost of transporting 1,000 children who live within the two-mile limit was estimated at between $50,000 and $75,000 and would be paid by taxpayers. The state Department of Education now pays 75 per cent of the transportation costs of the 778 pupils living outside the two-mile limit.

A number of persons attending the meeting objected to the proposal on grounds that it would burden the average homeowner with an additional tax of $12.50 a year.

The board members voted unanimously to put the question on ballot, but almost all expressed disapproval. Lyle Hagmann, board member, was absent from the meeting.

Charter Study Unit Slates Public Meeting Monday

Mario Checchio, a representative of the Johnson & Johnson Sound Government Board, will explain various forms of government at the first public meeting of the Charter Study Commission Monday at 8 p.m. in the Middlebush School auditorium.

The public hearing has been planned to learn what township residents feel are possible weak points in their present government and how these could be corrected.

UPON completion of the commission's study of governmental forms, the group will decide whether or not the present form of government is best for the township. (Continued on Page 2)

Realty Appraisal Gets Unwelcomed Reception at Meet

A special meeting held last night to explain to taxpayers methods used by the Realty Appraisal Co. of West New York in conducting the recent township property revaluation program, ended abruptly when Joseph Rubinstein, president of Realty, walked out on the meeting amidst yells and catcalls from some 200 residents.

After a talk on the reappraisal program was given by Rubinstein, residents lived question after question on the procedures used in establishing what they charge was "unequal" property assessments.

CHRIS DeLar of Franklin Park led off the crowd's complaints by insisting township property had not been assessed equally.

In his talk, Rubinstein stated that the reappraisal firm's objective was "uniformity in the distribution of the local tax burden based upon appraisals at fair market value." He said he felt "this was done in Franklin."

Rubinstein said "equality of taxation" was sought "from the humble home to the spacious mansion from the local variety store to the chain stores, and from the small repair shop to the largest industry."

THE APPRAISAL firm had told residents that if anyone felt evaluation placed on individual property should be reviewed, the homeowner could write to Realty Appraisal Co. of 49-12 Bergenline Ave., West New York, to list their complaint. Rubinstein said the complaining resident should give his property evaluation and "tell why he feels it is too high."

Rubinstein stated that any legitimate complaints would be investigated free of charge.

Following the talk, DeLar began to ask Rubinstein various questions on reappraisal of his property and charged township property had not been assessed equally.

RUBINSTEIN said, "I'm not here to give any explanation and I'm not here to be cross-examined." He asked DeLar, "What's your problem?"

"My property has been over-assessed," DeLar retorted. He then (Continued on Page 2)

Plan Board Lays Aside Socony Issue

Representatives of Socony Construction Co. Inc. appeared before the Planning Board Wednesday to urge that action be taken on their subdivision application, but again were put off when the board adjourned the meeting on the motion of Wendell W. Forbes, board member.

Socony presented letters providing information about utility connections and relating the company's offers to cooperate with the municipality beyond requirements of the zoning code.

FORBES declared that it was too late to consider the latest effort by the firm to win preliminary approval of its proposed subdivision.

Socony wishes to subdivide a 217-acre tract off Easton Avenue into more than 450 building lots.

The board postponed action on the proposed amendment to the zoning code which would permit construction and operation of a semi-public swimming pool in the residence A and B zones. The matter will be taken up at the board's May meeting.

APPROVAL was given to a zoning amendment from the Township Committee which would provide for larger lot size requirements for dwellings, would eliminate the agricultural-residential zone and prohibit erection of dwellings in the light industrial zone.

No action was taken on a major subdivision application by H. Malcolm Adams of Rt. 27, who seeks permission to subdivide 80.1 acres on the highway into 49 building lots with an average size of 50,000 square feet.

55-year-old Man Buried Alive In Sewer Excavation Cave-in

Members of the Community First Aid Squad worked in vain Saturday afternoon to free a 55-year-old excavation worker from a muddy grave which entombed him while he worked to clear dirt away from exposed pipes in an eight-foot deep sewer trench in Kendall Park.

The worker was Eddie Giddings of Plain Island Rd., Clarksburg, an employee of Kendall Builders Inc., developers of the community.

AN EXCAVATION was being made in Kendall Park, off Rt. 27, to find the cause of a sewer blockage when the accident happened.

While Giddings was in the hole, one side of the excavation gave way.

Fellow workers tried desperately to free Giddings while help was on the way. The Community First Aid Squad and the Marmouth Junction First Aid Squad both were summoned.

After the worker's body was retrieved, rescue workers could not restore his breath with oxygen pumps.

SERVICES were held Tuesday from a Freehold funeral home. Giddings was married and the father of six children.

Drinking Water Quality Discussed

Dr. Harold E. Orford, professor of sanitation at Rutgers University, was guest speaker at last Wednesday night's meeting of the Middlebush PTA. His topic was, "How Good is Your Drinking Water?"

Don't let well enough alone—at least attempt to improve it.

Caning Course Planned

By MARY ELLEN TOLLEY
Somerset County Home Agent

Residents of Middlebush and nearby areas can learn how to weave chair seats with cane when Mrs. Ben F. Stanton, Mrs. C. E. McClure, and Mrs. Nellie Drayton hold their community Extension Service meetings on caning.

The meetings will be held by the leaders at their convenience and at the convenience of those persons enrolling in their classes.

THE LEADERS are among the 10 persons in the county who took training in the subject from Miss Gena James, extension specialist in home furnishings of Rutgers University. The training class concluded on Mar. 28. These volunteer leaders help to extend the free educational program in home economics conducted in the county by Miss Mary Ellen Tolley, home agent.

The caning course is a series of three demonstration-work meetings. The chairs used in the classes are those with holes drilled in the seat frame and sometimes in the back frame. Cane is drawn through these holes to weave a design. Some chairs require ready-woven wobbling which is driven into a groove around the edge of the seat frame. This type, called a pressed seat, will not be included in the class. They will, however, be discussed.

If the chair to be caned in the community class need refinishing, the refinishing should be done before the caning is begun. Some of the caning will be done at home between the meetings. At the end of the classes, the chair should be completely finished.

PERSONS interested in attending these meetings may make reservations by phoning these leaders.

Disabled Must Guard SS Benefits

Are you to lose your social security protection by failing to file an application for a disability freeze? It isn't too late according to James D. Murphy, District Manager of the New Brunswick Social Security Office, but you must act before July 1, 1958.

Severely disabled persons, who have been unable to work for a prolonged period, risk losing their future rights to disability benefits if 50, old-age benefits, and benefits for their survivors. By filing promptly Murphy said, their social security records may be frozen as of the date they became unable to work. This will protect their rights to future payments and the amounts payable.

To qualify for this "freeze" a person must have worked under social security at least five years out of the 10 preceding his disability including at least 1 1/2 years out of the 3 year period before his disability began. Also, it must be established by medical evidence that his condition is so severe it prevents him from substantial gainful employment or self-employment and that it is expected to continue for an indefinite period. The disability must be of any nature but must have existed for six months or more.

If you are disabled, protect yourself and your family by immediately getting in touch with your social security office at 75 Paterson St., New Brunswick. A free pamphlet, OASI-29, is available which explains the disability provisions in the social security law.

FUNNEL OF KNOWLEDGE—Gerald Chanin, graduate student in the Rutgers Department of Physics, fills a liquid nitrogen trap in preparing another step in his doctoral research project on superconductivity. He is studying the property of metals which undergo sudden loss of electrical resistance near absolute zero, which is 460 degrees below zero on the Fahrenheit scale.

Physicists Made, Not Born

You don't have to be a freak to be a physicist.

So says Gerald Chanin, 26, a product of the New York City public school system, who is closing in on a doctorate in physics at Rutgers University. He claims that most physicists, like most baseball players or best-selling novelists, are made, not born.

NOW THAT world events have succeeded in elevating scientists to the level of public attention enjoyed by home run sluggers and authors, people want to know what goes into the making of a scientist.

Dr. Charles A. Whitmer of Highland Park, who has been helping to "make" scientists for some time as head of the Rutgers Department of Physics, suggested that a young physicist-in-training such as Chanin could best answer that question.

Chanin didn't hesitate. He believes there is a formula of sorts applicable to the development of budding physicists.

ITS INGREDIENTS, in addition to a healthy mind and imagination, are:

- 1.—Interest in things physical and what makes them "tick." He doesn't think a person can become a successful physicist without this motivation.
- 2.—Sound high school training in English and mathematics. A competent teacher who enjoys his job and shares his knowledge and capable. Chanin says nothing to more likely to kill off a prospective physicist than a dull instructor who keeps only a page ahead of the class.
- 3.—More sound training and advising and eight or nine years of hard work in college and graduate school. "In graduate school

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Jeanette Landrum, Dayton, Ohio: I remember when I was four years old I had the thrash in my mouth and my father took me about five miles to an old lady named Warren and she washed my mouth with oak leaves. She had kept the leaves in a cigar box. There was a big snow on the ground and I rode in front of my daddy in the saddle.

We children walked two miles to school. We had two dresses for "everyday" and one for Sunday, and we wore aprons with sleeves in them. Each had chores to do. I fed the geese and the calf, carried in wood and chips for the morning fire. Later, when I came home from school, I milked three cows.

On Saturdays, I did the washing and ironing and helped pick beans to string on a string to dry for winter use. We fattened and killed our own hogs and made lard for family use. We had our own sorghum molasses and mother canned everything that she could for winter use.

We had no corn planter. For medicine, father gave us all a round of calomel and vermifuge every spring—to keep us able to hoe the corn.

We went to church and Sunday school every Sunday. We all sat on the front seat beside mother—who dared anyone to move or talk while the preacher was in the pulpit.

HUDSON SEDAN FIRST

The first sedan type "enclosed" body for an automobile appeared on the 1913 Hudson, and was officially introduced January 11, 1913, at the Thirtieth National Automobile Show in New York.

CHAMPION MOTHER FISH

A record total of 16,880 eggs were recently taken from a rainbow trout at a University of Washington hatchery. The fish was 24 months old, 28 inches long and weighed 15 pounds. Usual production for rainbows in their natural habitat is 800 to 1,000 eggs.

you begin the all-important transition from student to physicist."

4.—A "little luck" here and there. The many elements of chance which confront the prospective scientist often crop in high school. Since there is rarely any choice, the youngster who comes under the guidance of a good science teacher is most fortunate. Availability of scholarship and fellowship aid, and even the proper selection of a field of study come under the heading of luck.

'Auntie Mame' At Shore Tent

"Auntie Mame," the current Broadway hit by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee, will be the opening show of the season at St. John Terrell's Music Circus in Neptune, who all bows at the Jersey shore tent on June 30 for two weeks through July 13.

Based on the best-selling novel by Patrick Dennis, "Auntie Mame" is the rollicking smash hit that has been doing a sell-out business on Broadway for over a year and a half.

PLAYING to standing-room audiences in major cities throughout the country, "Auntie Mame" has caused complicated ticket jams wherever the show has played. It has been one of the most popular laugh-filled comedies to play on Broadway in years.

The action, which takes place in Auntie Mame's New York apartment, covers a span of 18 years from 1928 through 1946 including the various locales in which she becomes involved. With 38 different speaking parts plus "a great many friends" of Auntie Mame, the show promises to be one of the largest productions ever to play in a tent theatre. This marks the first time that a Broadway smash hit will simultaneously be playing the tent theatres while still on the Main Stem.

The Neptune Music Circus, which begins its seventh season this year, is located on Route 60, three miles west of Asbury Park.

ACROSS the DESK
ideas from other editors

From the Dearborn Independent, Dearborn, Michigan: Most economists agree that the present downward trend in business and employment could be promptly halted and turned upward if those employed (some 80 million) would realize their economic power to do the job.

Business depends upon employment. Jobs depend upon production and production depends upon demand. Any decrease in demand, such as a reluctance to buy the things we need, decreases production, jobs and business.

A reluctance to buy means that those employed are fearful of the future. They are employed and want to save every penny against the contingency of losing their employment. The truth is that their reluctance to buy will hurry their own entry onto the list of unemployed because they are decreasing demands for products which keep them on the job.

Somewhere along the line, confidence must break through if business is to take an upturn. Something must be done to show that the future is bright for this city, this state and nation.

Advertising can play a leading role in the restoration of confidence. Confidence, like measles, is highly contagious. Who among us can long be associated with a confident, self-assured person without having some of these qualities rub off on him?

Advertising is a force. It has the same expressions of force as education, publicity or propaganda. An attempt, by presenting suggestions and arguments, to make others believe and act in certain ways. A force is neither good or bad, but can be directed toward either end. Electricity can electrocute—it can also produce light. Advertising as a force can be directed toward good by showing that now is the time for prospective buyers to get the best bargains. The immediate bargain of quality merchandise at a relatively low cost. But the long-range bargain of increased demand, increased production and jobs will not only benefit the buyer but the advertiser as well, in increased sales.

The wise merchant should realize that through advertising he is also gaining a reputation. The wise buyer does not heed anonymous letters, neither does he heed anonymous products. The author of neither can be found. The advertiser, on the other hand, can always be found. His willingness to have confidence in the economy, future, as well as the present and past will be, is, and was in the hands of the people.

Realty Appraisal

(Continued from Page 1) began to question alleged improvements on his land for which he was assessed. "If there are any improvements on that land, I will give it to you free," the resident told Rubinstein.

The realty firm president remarked, "Just a minute, just a minute. What's your problem?" He added, "I don't want to argue with you. Do you want us to re-view your property?" Rubinstein asked.

"EVERY property," was echoed from the crowd.

Rubinstein suggested that each complaining resident in the audience write a letter to Realty Appraisal requesting a review of his property evaluation. This suggestion met with "ahs" and "boos" from the crowd.

The firm president commented to Mayor Michael Peacos, "Some of your citizens have set themselves up as appraisers."

ANOTHER resident asked Rubinstein why he "did not come prepared to inform the residents on how the revaluation was based and to answer these residents' questions?"

Amidst applause and catcalls from spectators, Rubinstein commented, "This is an impossible situation."

One resident cried out, "Is this clown here to make fools of us?" Upon this, Rubinstein arose, thanked Mayor Peacos for inviting him to speak, and began to walk out.

BEFORE leaving, Rubinstein once again, over yells and catcalls, reminded the residents of his offer to review written complaints.

Township Talk

Residents are asked to be on the lookout for a missing English bull terrier which answers to the name of Bozo. Mrs. Carl Heltgen of the Skillman Lane has reported that her children's dog disappeared about a week ago, and her youngsters are broken hearted.

Thirteen-year-old Bozo, who resembles the Victor Record dog, is white with a little brown smudge. He was wearing license tag 597 when last seen. Any information leading to his whereabouts would be greatly appreciated.

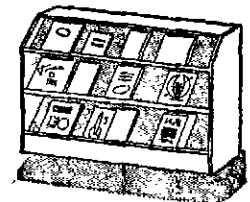

Mrs. Ruth Schmidt, chairman of the township Cancer Crusade, is seeking volunteers to help in this month's fund drive. Workers especially are needed in the Griggstown, Elizabeth Avenue and Franklin Park areas.

A unique addition to the farm or urban home's family room or den is a magazine and newspaper rack modeled after those you'll find in most libraries.

Truly different from the conventional home magazine holder, it's a three-tier rack that serves as a display stand and a distinctive piece of furniture at the same time. The rack makes a handsome, practical place for magazines and newspapers—and what's more, you can make it in your own workshop at little expense.

Magazine racks are practical for family room.

The rack is made from sheets of plywood and common planking. In drawing your plans for the project it's advisable to use standard sizes to keep down the waste of materials. Use 3/8-inch plywood in 4-by-8 foot sizes. The common planking can be 1-by-2 and 1-by-10-inch stock.

The portable power equipment you'll need in the construction are a drill, a saw, and a sander.

The construction plan basically is a "box" of plywood, open at the top and front, lined with three shelves mounted within at about 60 degree angles.

The shelves, of 1-by-10-inch stock, are edged with "standing" ledges for the magazines or folded newspapers. Mount the shelves on angle pieces nailed to the side and back of the plywood casing. After assembly, smooth the surfaces with a power sander, using No. 6 paper.

A word of caution about driving nails into the end grain of plywood. The nails will hold much better if you drill a starting hole smaller than the finishing nail.

(Questions from readers about do-it-yourself problems or projects are welcomed. Send them to Thor Research Center, Marana, Ill. They will be answered in these columns or by individual letter.)

A TALE OF OLD SHOES

By Alice Warnherr

"HEELS, please," the lady said, putting a pair of worn brown shoes on the counter, "Leather?" asked Fred.

"Leather," answered the lady. Fred nodded, took the shoes and returned to his workbench. For a heart throb or two, he sat still and looked out of the window.

School was over, boys and girls filled the square, walking and running, swinging their coats with books.

Fred sat on his workbench, pressing the pair of old brown shoes against his heart, on the spot, where the pain was and the longing.

He looked at the last girl, who came running out of the building across the square, a dancing red dot against the gray of the houses and the blue of the sky.

The skirt of the poppy red dress swirled around her brown knees, the pony-tail bounced like a wild little horse's mane.

"Will the shoes be ready soon?" the lady asked. She sat in the booth and wriggled her stockings toes.

"No time at all," Fred replied. Shoes—shoes—shoes—down-trodden, worn-out shoes, begging for help. A hospital for ailing shoes, Fred thought. Not that he disliked shoes. He understood that his father wanted him to help with the business, because times were hard and he could not afford hired help.

What else could he do than take Fred out of school and put him into the world of heels and soles, leather and rubber?

Personalties No, he did not mind the shoes, Fred mused, one could come to like shoes and understand them if one lived with them eight hours a day.

There were shoes that looked like gentlemen and ladies, slightly impoverished, perhaps, but still of a nobility. Others looked like tramps, shamelessly displaying their defects, a devil-may-care grin in the wrinkles of their never-polished leather. Some looked like dancehall-dandies, their heels all worn down from bee-pop and rock n'roll. I wonder, Fred thought, who is going to take Carol to the high school dance next Saturday—last year, it was I.

School days, school dreams, school love, Fred told himself. He lived in the somber and respectable world of shoes now, and could not be bothered with a poppy red dress over emburmed knees and a provocative pony tail.

"Here are your shoes," Fred said to the lady. "As good as new."

"Thank you," the lady said pleased "you are a very efficient young man."

Fred returned to his bench. "Let's start with the dancehall dandy shoes," he thought "may belong to some kid from high school—maybe the guy, who is going to take Carol."

There was the throbbing again, on the left side of his chest, just where the heart is beating.

"Hi, Fred," a voice said from the door.

"Carol," stammered Fred. "Here are my slippers," Carol said, "the ones I wore at the last dance. Mom said, they are like new yet—only the heels are all crooked, because we danced the whole night through—remember, Fred?"

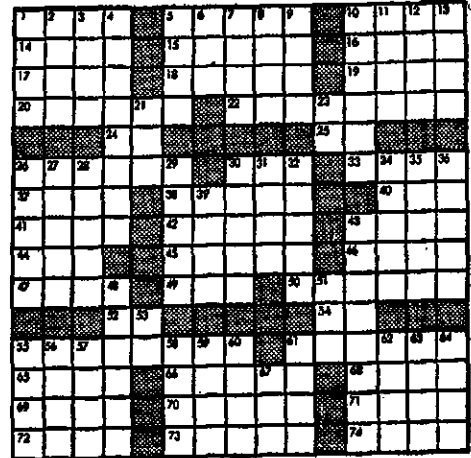

"Yes," Fred said, "I remember." "You can fix them, though, can't you, Fred? We want to dance all night through again, don't we, Fred?"

"We—Fred stammered, "you mean, you are not going with one of the boys from school?"

"Oh, the school boys—" Carol said disdainfully and wrinkled her little nose, "I would like to go with a business man like you, Fred. Will you take me?"

"Of course," Fred said and hoped the shoes would muffle the loud beating of his heart, "of course I'll take you, Carol. I am not at all hardboiled businessman yet."
