Kean controversy appears far from over

By Cheryl Hehl

UNION — The Kean University Board of Trustees may have thought the volatile issue surrounding President Dawood Farahi was resolved after they voted last month to keep him aboard as president, but the repercussions appear far from over.

Among issues surfacing in the last two weeks included a board of trustee member who voted against the board president resigning, a dean allegedly fired for not joining his peers in supporting Farahi, and the Middle States Commission on Higher Education adding "integrity" to the growing list of things the university must address in order to receive accreditation.

According to credible sources, trustee Lester Aron, an attorney and general counsel for the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, who has been on the Kean board since 2000, resigned in the last week.

The Middle States Commission on Higher Education indicated they now were requesting additional information on "Standard 6" noncompliance. Standard 6 deals specifically with integrity issues.

Aron, who voted against Farahi being kept as president, has been the general counsel for UMDNJ since 2007. Although efforts were made to contact the former board member to find out whether he resigned as a result of the controversy over Farahi, Aron did not return calls by press time.

Also occurring after the board of trustees voted was the firing of Kean's College of Humanities and Social Studies

Dean Kenneth Dollarhide. According to a faculty member working directly with those involved, Dollarhide was "fired" as dean and remanded back to a regular faculty teaching position after he refused to join fellow deans in signing a letter of support for Farahi.

Tuesday LocalSource was able to confirm that Dollarhide refused to sign the letter and was "warned" there would be repercussions as a result of not signing the letter.

Meanwhile, on March 1, the Middle States Commission on Education, which approves or disapproves accreditation for universities, noted on its public website that Kean University "accreditation may be in jeopardy."

Kean, which has been accredited by the Middle States Commission on Higher Education since 1960, indicated they now were requesting additional information on "Standard 6" noncompliance.

Standard 6 deals specifically with integrity issues, according to ACCREDITATION, Page 6

County cancels MusicFest citing budgetary concerns

By Cheryl Hehl
Staff Writer

Citing budget constraints, last week the county canceled MusicFest for this year along with a summer rhythm and blues concert which is expected to save $1.2 million.

The Union County Freeholder Board made the announcement late in the day Friday, offering no more than a few paragraphs in a release, explaining the move came "following numerous fiscal committee meetings, union negotiations and departmental meetings."

"As we have continued to put our budget together for 2012, it has become apparent that we need to make programmatic cuts without sacrificing essential services," noted board chairman Al Mirabella in the release.

"We are at a crossroads and must make tough decisions to achieve fiscal stability," he added, mentioning that while both concerts were canceled for 2012, these events and others programs would be evaluated on a year-to-year basis.

Mirabella also pointed out the county would continue its "exhaustive review" of all line items and programs to achieve continued efficiencies throughout the upcoming weeks before a budget is adopted.

According to the press release sent by Union County Communications Director Sebastian D'Elia, the board reached the consensus Thursday, but for weeks reliable sources close to the freeholder board have been saying there would be major cuts in order for the county to stay under the 2 percent cap mandated by the state.

MusicFest, a fall event held at Oak Ridge Park in Clark the last 14 years, came under fire the first time in 2008 by the Union County Watchdog Association, and later by LocalSource for shoddy accounting of how money was spent and accounted for by the county.

Last Spring the Union County Prosecutor's Office launched an investigation, which provided even more evidence that MusicFest finances were not being tracked or accounted for properly.

"The management of the event from the drafting of the contracts to the accounting of monies was poorly executed by the County of Union," Union County Prosecutor Theodore Romankow said in his report just weeks prior to the 2011 MusicFest in September.

UCWA President Tina Renna tenaciously tracked MusicFest costs over the last several years using the Open Public Records Act, maintaining since 2008 that "the numbers just didn't add up."

Monday Renna said she was not surprised or shocked when she heard the event was canceled for this year. She also felt MusicFest was just the tip of the iceberg when it came to how the county spends and

Rendering of Stone Hill Village in Clark

Despite outcry, planning board 'following the law'

Public forms group, takes stand against homes, but Clark board approves future of Stone Hill Village

By Cheryl Hehl
Staff Writer

CLARK — Despite residents banding together to stop 39 townhomes from being erected on the 100-year-old Miele's Greenhouse property, the Planning Board approved the project by a 4-3 vote last week.

The approval of Stone Hill Village, a multiple family residential condominium development proposed by the Sangiuliano Group, was preceded by five months of heated board meetings where a grassroots organization, Clark Neighbors, attempted to shoot the project down.

The group, consisting of residents living in and around the proposed development site, had a laundry list of complaints and concerns, including traffic, environmental, change to the area and the impact on the schools. They also felt that if something had to be built on the site of the former farm, it should be one-family homes, not multi-family dwellings.

George Sangiuliano, owner of the Sangiuliano Group, pointed out that the neighborhood group totally misunderstood the ordinance the township had in place since 1991, which did not include one-family homes.

"Our project meets 100-percent of the ordinance," he said.

After the sixth and final meeting lasted until 1:30 a.m., the board finally was able to render their decision. Mayor Sal Bonaccorso said last week a Planning Board is charged with doing one thing — following the law.

"At the end of the day an approval was the only right thing because this applicant followed the ordinance, had no variances so the board was bound by law to approve the application," he said.

The mayor did not dispute the rights of residents to come out against the project, or even launch a campaign against the project, but had the board not approved the project the township would have been in trouble legally.

"Our legal department said there was no legal reason to vote no," he said, pointing out that the township could have racked up $30,000 in legal bills if the Planning Board denied the application.

"In the end the developer would have built the project anyway because bottom line, the plan conformed to the ordinance," the mayor added.

Bonaccorso also stressed several facts he believed were important for residents to consider.

"In a down real estate market we have a stakeholder who wants to build a beautiful project in the community he lives in. He's not some big out-of-town developer; this is his town. He goes to the dry cleaner here, the supermarket, just like the rest of us," he said. Bonaccorso also pointed out that he felt it was "a pat on the back for Clark" that Sangiuliano had the confidence to propose the project he did in a market that has been down for several years.

The proposed project initially brought out so many objecting residents from the area that the first meeting scheduled for July had to be canceled until larger quarters could be found to hold the more than 200 people that came out initially.

Sangiuliano, who has lived in Clark for more than 40 years and developed many properties in the township, bought the land on Lake Avenue in 2010 for $2.5 million and immediately began making plans for the luxury condo development. The deal, though, according to the mayor, was contingent upon receiving Planning Board approval.

When residents in the area learned about the proposed development, they immediately formed Clark Neighbors and began an all-out effort to stop the project in its tracks.

The group not only launched a website, but also erected lawn signs along Lake Avenue and Raritan Road and hired an attorney to represent their interests. Township officials, though, including Bonaccorso and Township Administrator John Laezza, remained solidly behind the project.

"This is ridiculous," the mayor said at one of the six controversial meetings, adding that 35-percent of the township's properties were open space and any attempt to say the Miele property should be saved for parkland did not have a basis.

He pointed out that objectors to the proposed project did not fully understand the Planning Board's job is to hear applications for land that is already zoned by ordinance.

Laezza agreed, stressing last week there was nothing the township could do to stop the project.

"The first time I saw the application I could see it conformed to the zoning," he said, adding he believed Stone Hill Village "will be a great addition to the community."

Councilman Frank Mazzarella, who oversees the first ward where the project will be built, is a member of the Planning Board, but he was one of three who voted against the application.

Planning Board attorney Michael Cresitello continually pointed out during the six meetings that as long as an applicant meets the regulations of the ordinance, a board cannot deny the application. The township, the mayor said, learned this valuable lesson the hard way.

When the Retro Fitness Gym's application, which also did not require any variances and conformed to the ordinance in place, was heard by the Planning Board a few years ago and denied, the applicant sued and it later was overturned in court.

Bonaccorso said Planning Board board members can voice their opinion but in the end they have to follow the law.

Sangiuliano, the mayor said, should begin construction on the development project within the next six months.

MusicFest, R&B concerts axed for 2012 accounts for taxpayer dollars.

"MusicFest is just a good window. This is one example of how the freeholders run our county government," she said, adding that "there is no accountability for the close to half billion a year budget the freeholders handle."

"There is no accountability. You can't trust what they say," she continued. "The purpose of government is not to entertain, it's to watch taxpayers' dollars."

When the Union County Prosecutors Office launched its investigation into the annual event, what was uncovered did not surprise Renna.

The report, released last August, while not finding any criminal wrongdoing during the five-month investigation, strongly suggested to the county that they get a better handle on the financial transactions involving MusicFest.

This included recovering money over billed by some vendors, better control of parking money and receipts, as well as complete separation of all county money and that going to non-profit charities involved with the event.

"The use of public monies demands much more than it received," Romankow said in his report issued in late August.

For example, the report demonstrated that proceeds from the raffle and beer sales totaled more than $42,000, but Romankow said, "There were no records to verify the amount."

Investigators additionally found the actual total cost of the annual event held in September was $1.1 million, which directly contradicts statements made by former county manager George Devanney who insisted the costs were closer to $360,000 publically and in an interview with LocalSource last summer.

In the meantime, LocalSource obtained a copy of a five-page research report the county requested and paid $6,000 for by the Rutgers Edward J. Bloustein School of Planning and Public Policy.

The report, dated January 2012, estimates the total economic contribution to North Jersey associated with MusicFest 2011. The report is a summary of a larger and final report that will include a brief review of economic impact from similar fairs as well as recommendations for improving future data gathering. According to the report, which included information derived from 2,774 people surveyed at the fair, total attendance was estimated at 57,568 people.

Analysis used by the school is based on a "ripple-effect" of dollars spent at MusicFest, which in turn, becomes income for other workers and businesses within and outside the county. However, actual figures were not available to support any benefit to county taxpayers outside of the entertainment provided.

Mayor proposes $49 million municipal budget for 2012

By Paul Greulich
Staff Writer

RAHWAY — Mayor Rick Proctor has submitted his proposed budget for review by the City Council and officials and residents described and debated the new spending plan at Monday's council meeting.

Chief Financial Officer Frank Ruggiero and Business Administrator Peter Pelissier fielded questions on the proposed budget.

The budget calls for a total general appropriations of $49 million with a tax levy of $33.4 million, which is $662,000 less than last year.

Ruggiero said the budget comes in $896,000 below the appropriation cap and $50,000 below the state's two percent tax levy cap. The budget shows a 2 percent decrease in the tax levy.

However, homeowners will not see a dollar-for-dollar reflection of the tax levy decrease due to numerous tax appeals including an appeal by Merck & Co. that resulted in the city losing about $1 million in tax revenue. This reduction in assessment will impact all three components of the coming tax bills.

"The total appeal number almost doubled from the previous year," Ruggiero said, adding the city saw about 200 appeals in 2011.

The municipal portion of the tax bill is projected to remain flat at $3,042 for the average assessed home.

"The taxes are absolutely flat," Ruggiero said.

However, some of these statements were criticized by residents who had seen their taxes rise last year and expect to see the same this year. Some who spoke during the public portion of the meeting said that last year they saw a $900 increase in taxes.

"I don't know how you can say the average homeowners' taxes in Rahway are flat," said resident Colleen Sweeney. "I'm being taxed out of this town. I have to think about selling my home and moving."

Proctor was absent from the meeting and could not be reached for comment by press time.

Officials replied that while municipal taxes are flat, they do not have control over school and county taxes, which are likely the source of the increases they described.

"Unfortunately, many of the increases referred to by the taxpayers here are accurate," Ruggiero said.

Pelissier said it is not known at this time how these other segments of the tax bill will impact residents in 2012.

"We're not sure what the increase will be for the schools or the county," Pelissier said.

Some residents criticized the government for continuing to pursue what they called expensive redevelopment projects around the downtown, but Pelissier defended these efforts as essential to bringing in tax rateables.

"Redevelopment is the only way to offset tax appeals and tax settlements," Pelissier said.

Council members Nancy Saliga and James Baker spoke in support of the proposed budget.

"I think it's a solid, workable budget," Baker said. "There's a lot of work that goes into the budget. It's an intricate process that not everyone understands."

Ruggiero said the budget will likely be amended slightly to take into account several grants the city recently received.

The council tabled the budget until the April 9 meeting, by which point the state will have hopefully approved the plan.

However officials said this process may take a bit longer than usual because many municipalities, including Rahway, have switched their operations from a fiscal year to a calendar year schedule and the state may be somewhat backlogged.

District on PACE for parental involvement

By Cheryl Hehl
Staff Writer

UNION — Preparing students for standardized testing is no easy feat for any school district. But parents in grades 3 through 8 are keeping PACE by joining forces with teachers and administrators so their children are ready for these high stakes tests in the spring.

Usually school districts follow a prescribed curriculum that prepares students for success in all state testing. In the best case scenario, that would include help from parents at home. However, that usually falls by the wayside because parents are not always prepared to help their child prepare for these mentally rigorous tests.

This gap, though, is about to be closed by Union parents who decided they wanted and needed to become more informed about standardized testing so they could help increase their children's scores.

This grassroots group of parents turned into an organization called PACE, or Parents for Academic Classroom Excellence. Just a few months old, they took their concerns to Superintendent Patrick Martin and found he was more than supportive of their goal.

"I think the idea is terrific. It presents one more way that our school district is helping our students perform at maximum levels," he said. "Just think of it, a Union student not only gets classroom instruction and he or she can attend the Saturday Academy along with focused attention from Mom and Dad at home."

In fact, Martin felt so strongly about PACE that he arranged for the district to sponsor two special parent meetings to kick things off.

The first, Monday at Connecticut Farms school for parents of students in grades 6 to 8 will begin at 6:30 p.m., while the second on March 26 at Hannah Caldwell school for parents of students in grades 3 to 5, will also begin at 6:30 p.m.

The meetings are open to all parents throughout the school district, regardless which school their child attends, and students are welcome to attend with their parents.

PACE will be distributing materials at both meetings that will be helpful to parents on this journey toward better testing. And kids attending the Monday meeting will receive ice cream coupons.

Standardized examinations have come to be known as "high stakes" tests because both students and schools are judged by the state to be proficient and successful based on the results. And since the state decided to test students every year instead of every other year, the CHILDREN ACT FAST - SO DO POISONS!

Below are some safety rules to follow to help avoid an accident with prescription or over-the-counter medications.

- Don't rely on packaging to protect your children. Child-resistant packaging does not mean childproof packaging.
- Teach children not to drink or eat anything without permission from a trusted adult.
- Follow label directions and read all warnings before giving medicines to children.
- Never prepare or give medication to a child in the dark as you may give the wrong dosage or even the wrong medication.
- Call medicines by their correct names.
- Never tell a child that a medicine tastes like candy.
- Keep a record of how many pills are left in each prescription container.
- Do not take medicine in front of young children because children tend to copy adult behavior.
- Safely dispose of unused, unneeded or expired prescription drugs by mixing them with coffee grounds or kitty litter to make them less appealing to children.
- Never leave vitamin bottles, aspirin bottles or other medications on kitchen tables, countertops, bedside tables or other easy-to-reach places.
- Store all medications in a locked cabinet, far from a child's sight and reach. Even items that seem harmless, such as mouthwash, can be extremely dangerous if ingested in large quantities by children.
- Make sure purses and bags – yours and guests' – that could contain poisonous items such as medications, are kept out of reach of children.

KNOW WHO TO CALL

Post near, or program every phone, in your home with the nationwide poison control center phone number, 1-800-222-1222.

You can reach a poison control center 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Call poison control if you think a child has been poisoned and if they are awake and alert. Call 911 if you have a poison emergency and your child has collapsed or is not breathing.

The problems at Kean University have continued to mount despite the board of trustees voting in favor of keeping president Dawood Farahi. According to sources, a dean was allegedly fired over lack of support for the president, and the school is now being asked to demonstrate integrity on campus to maintain its Middle States accreditation.

Accreditation board requesting Kean demonstrate integrity

ing to the commission's website.

The commission noted it requested a "monitoring report, due by Sept. 1, 2012, providing "evidence of the equitable and consistent treatment" that fosters respect among students, faculty, staff and administration.

The commission also requested that Kean produce a "periodic assessment of integrity evidenced in institutional policies, processes, practices and the manner in which they are implemented."

Accreditation by Middle States Commission on Higher Education is a type of quality assurance process in which services and operations of universities and colleges are evaluated by an outside body to determine if certain standards are being met.

If these standards are met, accredited status is granted. If not, then this "educational insurance" is lost. Only accredited universities guarantee a degree that will be honored by future employers and other schools, which may not honor credits from a non-accredited university. Students also cannot receive financial aid if the university they want to attend is not accredited.

Losing accreditation is particularly troubling for a school like Kean, which has maintained its 4-year graduation rate of 16 percent is due to a large number of students transferring out of the school. If accreditation is lost by a university, students would only be able to transfer credits earned prior to the university losing accreditation.

Even applying for a job can become a problem if a prospective employee did not graduate from an accredited university.

However, accreditation involves a lengthy review process and is renewed over time. Universities can also be put on probation or given a warning, such as Kean received from the Middle States Commission on Higher Education both in June and November of 2011. Probation or warnings give schools a chance to address problematic issues that have been cited.

The Chronicle of Higher Education, a newspaper based in Washington, D.C., published a letter Feb. 26

The commission also requested that Kean produce a "periodic assessment of integrity evidenced in institutional policies, processes, practices and the manner in which they are implemented."

from Toufic Hakim, a consultant and former grants and research integrity officer at Kean, about the storm over Farahi falsifying his credentials.

"What is more offensive than the act itself is the board's statement framing the decision to sidestep the issue ... For a board of higher learning, or at least its majority, entrusted with protecting the health and good standing of a public institution, the integrity and dignity of the institution and the community it represents ought to be of the highest priority and consideration in such situations. Or is that now open to interpretation?" he asked.

In addition, the KFT brought up a conflict of interest among the board members two week ago that has yet to be addressed by Board Chair Ada Morell or any of the board member. The Kean Federation of Teachers alerted the group that board member Linda Lewis was allowed to vote at the February meeting determining Farahi's fate even though she has been employed by Kean University as an adjunct professor since 2005.

The KFT maintained this was a "serious ethical problem that must be addressed by the board" at a March 4 meeting, but neither Lewis or any other board member responded to the allegation.

However, the New Jersey State Ethics Commission was notified about Lewis's vote by a faculty member and, according to a commission spokesperson, based on the call, an investigation was immediately launched into this ethical dilemma.

The Kean Board of Trustees, as of Tuesday, had not yet addressed any of these integrity-related issues publicly and could not be reached for comment.

Officials plead for violence to end after last week's shooting

By Paul Greulich

ROSELLE — Local officials and residents are pleading for an end to the violence after a shooting left two men dead and two others wounded last week.

The incident occurred just after 10 p.m. on Walnut Street on March 8 as the four men were socializing outside a residence.

According to the Union County Prosecutor's Office, one victim, Brayon Williams, 24, of Roselle, was pronounced dead at the scene, while another, Anthony Howard, 24, was taken to University Hospital where he died a short time later. Two other men, an 18-year-old from Roselle and a 25-year-old from Newark were transported to University Hospital with non-life threatening injuries.

Authorities are continuing to work to identify suspects and establish a motive, but at this time investigators and public officials believe the victims were specifically targeted to be killed.

"There is no reason to believe at this point the other residents of the borough are in danger," Prosecutor Theodore Romankow said.

This shooting represents the second and third murders to occur in the borough in the last month.

The first took place just weeks ago when 17-year-old resident Daniel Mitchell was shot and killed at Sylvester Land Field. Three teenage suspects were arrested in connection with that incident.

The shooting last week brings the total number of murders in Union County in 2012 to seven. There were 36 murders in Union County last year.

Roselle Mayor Jamel Holley urged townspeople to be vigilant and pleaded for those responsible to cease their crimes. Holley describing the violent acts the borough has seen recently as "an end game that leads nowhere".

"Violence is never the answer and an act like this, performed in rage or hatred has a ripple effect that touches many families, causes trouble and a heartache," Holley said. "Violence is never the answer."

A town hall forum was held on March 13 to discuss the event with the public.

This remains an active investigation. Anyone with information is urged to contact Union County Crime Stoppers at 908-654-TIPS or www.uctip.org. All tips are kept anonymous and information that leads to the arrest and indictment of the person or persons responsible are eligible for a cash reward of up to $5,000.

Keeping PACE with testing

pressure is on school districts and parents even more than it was before.

The one component Martin and PACE parents feel has been missing is that parents do not fully understand what these tests entail.

In order to help this process along, Martin said school district curriculum experts will be at both meetings to provide recommendations and tips on specific tasks parents can focus on to help their children. Booklets with recommended exercises will also be distributed to parents, which the superintendent said should help provide much needed guidelines at home.

Martin could not be happier about the PACE group joining forces with the school district, specifically mentioning the efforts of Suehay Monge, the mother of two children attending Livingston School.

"She is most passionate about providing our children the advantages that will give them optimal educational opportunities," the superintendent said.

Monge, though, felt any praise should be directed toward PACE parents, because their purpose, she said, was dedicated to benefit their children.

"Our only goal is to empower parents to get their kids successful academically," Monge said Friday, explaining the consensus of parents involved in PACE was that "it wasn't about us."

"We are staying away from all that," Monge said, explaining the group only has a small steering committee that originally came together because they all had concerns about their children performing well on state tests.

Monge praised Martin's efforts since he was brought aboard as superintendent, mentioning that prior to his arrival the school district "was not doing well."

"Our ASK testing alone really showed an increase in scores and we want to keep that momentum going," she said, adding that the superintendent has been "supportive, involved and always ready to help parents and students in any way he can."

"Dr. Martin has brought in great change to this district," Monge added, pointing to how the superintendent welcomed PACE parent's concerns and did all he could to help their efforts.

"We believe that the meetings being held on March 19 and 26 will provide a forum for parents that will aid them in helping their children be successful in upcoming testing," she said, adding that having the support of Martin and the school district "was everything we hoped."

Monge also said parents can bring their children to the meetings because they want this to be a family experience.

Interim super given official nod from BOE

By Paul Greulich
Staff Writer

HILLSIDE — The Board of Education has announced that Frank Deo has been selected as the school district's new Superintendent, effective March 1.

Deo has been serving as interim superintendent since fall 2011 when former superintendent Thomas Kane abruptly announced his retirement after only one year in the position.

A press release from the Hillside Board of Education stated Deo has "a tremendous track record of success," noting his efforts to promote student achievement and parental and community involvement.

Deo has worked in various roles at the Hillside Public Schools for 34 years, chiefly as Director of Special Services. In addition, he worked as a teacher and principal at three different schools.

Board of Education President George Cooke said Deo has a lot of valuable knowledge and experience within the district.

"He's worked about every job in the district besides superintendent," Cooke said.

During their search for a new superintendent, the Board of Education reviewed many candidates and ultimately interviewed five, including Deo.

"For one of the older candidates, he seemed to have a lot of fresh ideas," Cooke said.

Cooke said Deo's four-year contract includes a slight raise, bringing Deo's annual salary to $167,500, which is at the state cap for superintendents.

Deo said he is excited about his new position and looks forward to working with the staff to move the district forward. Deo said while he was initially performing the duties of superintendent on an interim basis, he became interested in continuing the work he was doing.

"Once I started and saw the direction I could go and the plans I was making for the district, I kind of got excited and thought we could do some good things," Deo said.

Deo's top priority moving forward is to focus on academics. Last year the district's elementary schools were reorganized to establish separate schools for second graders and fifth grades. Third- and fourth-graders now share a school and the district has a traditional middle school for students in grades six through eight.

"Now that we've reorganized the schools last year we have to make them work successfully academically and socially," he said.

Deo also serves on the Township Council, and plans to finish his term, which ends in 2014.

"At this time I don't have plans to run again," Deo said.

Deo earned a Doctorate in Educational Leadership from Nova Southeastern University in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and completed post-doctoral studies at St. Peters College in Jersey City.

He is an alumnus of Hillside Public Schools and resides in the township with his family. He is the father of Jared, Christopher and Elyse Deo and has one daughter-in-law, Mandy.

Under Deo's leadership, the Department of Special Services successfully completed state monitoring, implemented an inclusion program, implemented the first Transition Coordinator position and worked collaboratively with Innovative Educational Programs to improve student programs and retain in-district placements.

Worth a chance

A bill now working its way through the state Senate and Assembly would strengthen a 2007 law that encourages shared services between local government units and also between departments within a single government unit.

Under the bill, an existing state body, the Local Unit Alignment, Reorganization, and Consolidation Commission, would identify areas of possible savings through shared-service agreements at the local level and estimate the amount of those savings. If the commission then recommends the implementation of the shared-services arrangement and the municipalities refuse, the state would then withhold state aid from the municipality in the amount that would have been saved had the shared-services agreement been implemented.

To make this work, the new law makes two major alterations in the 2007 law: nearly all Civil Service and tenure protections for current employees are swept aside; and even if voters of the affected town say they don't want the proposed shared services, the state aid is still withheld.

We agree with the alteration of Civil Service protections. Property taxes are out of control. And to lessen their burden, this law makes the applicable Civil Service laws take a back seat to tax relief. Their added expense was the major objection by municipalities to the sharing of services. One of the major eliminations is a provision that grants each worker losing their position a minimum of one month's pay for every five years of employment, plus any amounts granted by the local municipality. Note: a terminated employee with permanent status under Civil Service regulations is placed on a special re-hire list for the county, and "certain baseline protections" such as anti-discrimination policies and the processes of appointment and promotion are retained.

Regarding the power of the commission to impose its directives, we think it's time the state be given the chance to impose what the bill says will be workable shared-service agreements that do not lessen the quality of provided services while saving a significant amount of tax dollars. If it were Washington, D.C., calling the shots, we'd think twice before agreeing. But we feel comfortable with state leaders in charge of a process that includes extensive site visits, two public hearings, an appeals process for the amount of proposed savings and a chance for a Legislative override before the commission makes its final decision.

In a small state with 566 municipalities, an overlap of services is inevitable. An outside viewpoint with the power to implement its ideas regarding shared services could provide a big step forward in lowering property taxes.

Roselle Park Police Department Patrolman James Kompany recently read to kindergarten students at Sherman School for National Read across America week, which coincided with Dr. Suess' birthday a week ago.

Little Leaguer's a hit with grandma

"Of course I can play baseball," I said to my grandson. "I was quite the softball player when I was your age, and when I grew older and joined the town softball league, I was a real slugger."

"Really grandma," Brian said excitedly.

"There are lots of interesting things about grandma that you don't know, Brian. We'll have a tell-all session one of these days."

My grandson had just made the freshmen baseball team at his high school and was very proud of his accomplishment. He had been working out for months to build up his body and upper-arm strength.

His dad had been taking him to the batting cages to get a jump on the season. We were all happy the extra work paid off. The baseball coach was impressed with Brian's speed as he clocked the fastest running time of anyone.

I always told Brian he should try out for track, but he had the baseball bug ever since he was a little kid. The first time I saw him play T-ball and Little League it was more like a comedy of errors than a baseball game; but kids learn as they mature.

Brian's coach told him he'd be pitching and also playing center-field, two very tough positions to fill. He was pumped up for his first practice. His uniform, cleats, hat and gloves were all brand new and spanking clean. I'm sure he heard the roar of the crowd, all 15 of them, and mostly parents, as he took the pitcher's mound.

I know he couldn't sleep the week of tryouts waiting for the team roster list to be posted in school. Now the anticipation was even greater as he had to prove himself. The first practice turned out to be everything he dreamed of.

He got two hits, and pitched three innings, holding the opposing team to one unearned run. The coach was very impressed. When Brian came home that evening after practice, I'm sure he thought he was pitching in the big league.

"Mom, I need some ice to ice my pitching arm," he said. And, can you wash my uniform, it kind of smells like nasty sweat. Oh! And, I'd love a protein shake."

And so it starts.

"I'll have to do my homework during lunch period because we have a practice every day after school," Brian remarked.

Well, at least he's still thinking of his school work and not exclusively baseball, I quickly observed.

I couldn't believe how fast this little kid turned into a major league pitcher and was hard pressed to see how far this would go.

I told my daughter that he'd probably be asking for a trainer and pitching coach and no doubt more expensive equipment in another week or two. Possibly an agent or photo shoot. With one cleat on the field he had already considered himself a pro.

Baseball is the sport of dreamers, each kid hoping to be a star and the hero of the game. I know it's going to be a long season, for Brian, his parents and his grandparents. Play ball!

MusicFest a good example of county practices

To the Editor:

Musicfest is an example of how the county conducts the people's business. Union County has announced that it is canceling Musicfest and their Rhythm & Blues concerts and they are claiming that this will save $1.2 million which will help save county jobs. Really?

The Union County Watchdog Association has been trying to follow the costs of these concerts, Musicfest in particular, for years. I was publicly mocked by former county manager George Devaney when I surmised that Musicfest was costing upwards of $1.2 million annually. He publically stated that the cost was only $360,000. The documents I obtained through the Open Public Records Act never added up to the county's claims. To this day I can only guess what these concerts actually cost as there is no accountability. Although the prosecutor investigated the 2010 Musicfest and found "the use of public funds deserves more than it received," he held no employee accountable.

A cost that isn't included are the jobs that were created to run these concerts. A department was created and Freeholder Sullivan's niece was put in charge of it. I could never find out how many people worked under her. If the county is going to be laying off employees they should start with the elimination of this department.

Musicfest is just one of the many projects under the county's half a billion dollar budget. It is an easy to understand example of how they are conducting the people's business overall.

Keep NJ a part of RGGI

To the Editor:

When you hear someone speak about "Reggie," they're not dishing dirt about a person. They're talking about RGGI, pronounced like the man's name, and an issue of vital importance to all of us.

The letters stand for Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative, a pact by 10 Northeastern states, including New Jersey, to reduce dirt of another kind — the carbon dioxide emitted by power plants.

What RGGI does is establish allowances on the amount of carbon dioxide the plants can emit. Using a market-based approach, it also provides for a limited number of tradeable CO2 allowances which the states auction off four times a year. The money raised at these auctions, totaling $952 million as of last year, is used for consumer benefit programs such as energy assistance for low income households and energy efficiency measures.

Gov. Christie has chosen to pull New Jersey out of RGGI, claiming it is too expensive for consumers. But the CO2 emissions allowances account for less than 1 percent of the average household electric bill in the 10 participating states — an estimated 46 cents a month. Surely that's worth it, given the 84,000 tons of CO2 emissions taken out of the air as of February 2011.

A bill now before the Legislature would keep New Jersey in the Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative. We need to let all our legislators know, by phone or by email, that RGGI is worth keeping.

Entries for the 11th annual art exhibit, contest due by April 19

Since 2002, employees of the County of Union and family members have participated in a unique program that gives them the opportunity to display their artistic creations.

In its ongoing effort to recognize and encourage creative and artistic accomplishment, the Union County Freeholders, in partnership with The National Arts Program, has announced the 11th annual exhibition of artwork by County of Union workers and their families.

"What a pleasure it is to see the outstanding artwork done by Union County employees and family members," said Freeholder Bette Jane Kowalski, liaison to the Cultural and Heritage Programs Advisory Board. "Whether they are new artists or people who have exhibited before, the participants display a wide variety of work that always impresses with its quality."

Entries will be accepted in the categories of painting, photography, artworks on paper, sculpture and crafts. Recognized artists and art professionals will serve as judges, selecting entrants for cash awards and honorable mention in the exhibition's five artistic classifications: amateur (little or no experience); intermediate (some experience, art students); professional (serious art training or employed in an art related job); teens 13 to 18 years old; and youth age 12 and younger.

"We are happy to extend the invitation to enter the program to Union County College employees and their relatives again this year," said Freeholder Chairman Alexander Mirabella. "We share the goal of The National Arts Program to reach as many people as possible of all ages, offering them a chance to display their artistic talents in a public exhibition."

In the adult classifications, each first-place winner will receive $300; second place will receive $200 each; and third place; $100 each. There is one $300 prize for Best in Show. In each youth classification, $75 will go to first-place winners; $50 to second place; and $25 to third place. The prizes are provided by The National Arts Program.

The National Arts Program runs

89 annual programs reaching 450 cities in 42 states. The program was conceived in 1983 by Leonard E.B. Andrews (1925-2009), an art collector, publisher, business executive and journalist.

The National Arts Program allows artists to upload their artwork, free of charge, to their online Interactive Gallery. To learn more about The National Arts Program and see photos from past exhibits, or for Union County employees to register online, visit <http://www.nationalartsprogram.org/venues/union-county-nj>. Early registration is encouraged.

Registration for the art exhibit is required by April 19. To request a registration form and further information, contact the Union County Office of Cultural and Heritage Affairs, 633 Pearl St., Elizabeth, NJ 07202. Sculpting young minds

Students in Mrs. Russoniello's art class at Aldene School in Roselle Park recently created paper sculptures. First they designed a paper using only Sharpies and black and white designs. Once the designs were created, copies were made and 40 paper tubes were assembled. These paper tubes were then used to create unique 3-D sculptures.

It was 1931 and the depths of the Great Depression when the ladies of the Springfield PTA met to form a library association. The committee donated $50 cash, collected books, ordered tables and chairs and set about arranging the library in donated space in the Brookside Building on Morris Avenue. When the doors finally opened on March 16, 1932, Springfield Free Public Library had 1,000 books and letters of congratulations from President Herbert Hoover and Governor A. Harry Moore. In the first year they issued 750 library cards.

On March 18, there will be a celebration of the library's 80 years of service to the Springfield community. Memories will be shared at 1:30 p.m. with a reception, and light refreshments will be offered.

Also featured will be the songs of the era in a concert called "Cheer Up America," featuring such favorites as "Keep on the Sunny Side of the Street" and "Bye Bye Blues," sung by guitarist Ken Lelen.

Union man pleads guilty to mushroom theft

The former inventory control manager for D'Artagnan, a gourmet mushroom distributor in Newark, was sentenced to 28 months in prison for stealing thousands of dollars worth of mushrooms from his employer while awaiting sentencing for an unrelated $1.2 million embezzlement scheme, U.S. Attorney Fishman announced.

Gino Silva, 44, of Union, pleaded guilty in April 2011 to an information charging interstate theft of property while on release pending sentencing in another federal criminal matter.

Silva entered his guilty plea before U.S. District Judge Dennis M. Cavanaugh, who also imposed the sentence in Newark federal court.

According to documents filed in this case and statements made in court:

In December 2007, Silva and Steven Perei, 45, of Jersey City, also a D'Artagnan employee, started a gourmet mushroom company called Mediterra which they used to secretly compete with their employer's business. When Silva and Perei made sales on behalf of Mediterra without having the inventory necessary to deliver them, they stole mushrooms and other products from D'Artagnan and used them to fulfill the Mediterra orders.

To cover up the ongoing theft and the use of D'Artagnan's refrigerators to store other Mediterra products, Silva instructed D'Artagnan's inventory control employee to inflate the company's purchase orders and avoid entering certain product deliveries into the company's inventory.

Silva operated the mushroom theft scheme while on pre-sentencing release after pleading guilty to an unrelated conspiracy. From 2000 through 2005, Silva was a vice president in charge of operations at Philips Accessories and Computer Peripherals, Inc. During that time, Silva and others caused Philips to pay a temporary staffing agency for the services of fake employees, ultimately routing the fraudulent paychecks to bank accounts they controlled. The conspiracy lasted nearly six years and defrauded Philips of approximately $1.2 million.

Silva pleaded guilty in December 2008 before U.S. Magistrate Judge Patty Schwartz, charging him with one count each of conspiracy to commit mail fraud and income tax evasion. U.S. District Judge Faith S. Hochberg sentenced Silva in June 2009 to 27 months in prison, three years of supervised release and ordered him to pay $843,414 in restitution.

In addition to the prison term imposed, Judge Cavanaugh sentenced Silva to a year of supervised release and ordered him to pay $71,179 in restitution. Perei pleaded guilty on April 19, 2010, to one count of selling and receiving stolen goods in relation to the same mushroom-theft scheme. Judge Cavanaugh sentenced Perei to two years of probation in June 2011.

Roselle Park

- Feb. 13: Roselle Park Police Officer Nicholas Vaughan stopped a vehicle occupied by two males for seat belt violations at approximately 2 p.m. Neither the driver nor the passenger were able to provide identification. After a brief investigation, the driver was identified as a licensed driver and was later issued a summons for violations of 39:3-76.2f and 39:3-74. The passenger, who had previously identified himself as Angel Ortega, was unwilling to help police confirm his identity. He refused to provide phone numbers for any of his family members. After a telephone conversation with "Ortega's" girlfriend, Officer Vaughan placed "Ortega" under arrest for hindering apprehension by providing a false name.

Once back at the Roselle Park Police Department, Ortega continued to claim his true name was Angel Ortega, however, a finger-print examination revealed his true name to be Marcus M. Flores, 20, of Linden. Flores was found to be wanted on a no bail warrant for robbery, aggravated assault and possession of a firearm by the Union County Sheriff's Department. Flores also was found to have a $1,000 criminal warrant from Newark Municipal Court. Judge Gary Bundy set bail at $2,500 for Flores for the charge of Hindering Apprehension 2C: 2-3B4, a disorderly persons offense. Flores now has pending court dates in Roselle Park Municipal Court as well as Union County Superior Court.

- March 6: Patrolman Harold Breuninger arrested Chadler Joseph, 19, an unemployed resident of Roselle Park, for possession with the intent to distribute marijuana in the parking lot of Sunrise Village apartment complex. Joseph was arrested on outstanding local warrants and was found to possess more than 15 baggies of marijuana concealed inside the lining of his shorts.

Joseph also possessed drug paraphernalia and more than $100 in United States currency. He was processed at the Roselle Park Police Department, then transported to the Union County Jail after he was unable to post bail in the amount of $15,750.

Overlook looks to help cope with loss

On Wednesday, from 6 to 8 p.m., Overlook Medical Center hosts Interregnum Inc., a New Jersey nonprofit organization dedicated to helping people who experience grief and loss learn effective ways to move forward with their lives.

"When the Bough Breaks" includes a panel of parents whose children have died. They will share stories of their journeys through grief at a community forum led by grief expert Judith Pederson.

"Presenting the opportunity for parents who have suffered the loss of a child the opportunity to hear from others who have been through this most traumatic of experiences is extremely helpful and healing," says Pederson, founder and executive director of Interregnum Inc., who will moderate the panel of bereaved parents.

"To see the courage and strength that becomes part of our human reaction in the face of the unthinkable touches all of us. I believe anyone who has suffered the loss of a child will take comfort in hearing what others have done, and continue to do, to move forward with their lives," adds Pederson.

The panel of bereaved parents includes Jane Clementi, mother of Tyler Clementi, a Rutgers University student who took his life in 2010; Daniel Abut; Judith Avrin; Ruth Gugiciello; Christopher Mattioli; and Wendy Sefcik; among others.

Their beloved children died as a result of various causes, including acute illness, suicide, an eating disorder, cancer, and Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, or SIDS. No matter the cause of death, each parent hopes that by sharing his or her stories, they will provide hope and inspiration to those in the audience.

"I have found strength in sharing my story and listening to the stories of others," says Sefcik.

The event will take place in the Wallace Auditorium at Overlook Medical Center, 99 Beauvoir Ave., Summit. There is no charge to attend, but donations are welcome. Light refreshments will be served. Parking is available in the West Garage. Registration is required by calling 800-247-9580 or visit "Classes & Events" at www.atlantichalth.org.

Pederson will offer an 8-week grief support group at Overlook Medical Center featuring the Moving Forward bereavement support model specifically for parents who have lost children. The group will begin April 11. For more information about Interregnum, visit www.interregnum.org or call 973-224-6900.

CRANFORD BRIEFS

Art Night at Bloomingdale scheduled for March 28

The 14th annual Bloomingdale Avenue School Art Night will be held on March 28.

The students, accompanied by one parent or guardian, are invited at 6 p.m. to spend an evening at the school making art, fun and memories together.

This year, Art Night will center around the books of Eric Carle, whose collage style illustrations of animals of all kinds will be the inspiration for an opportunity for parent or guardian and child to work together making art.

The group will be reading books by Carle and speculating about his works of art, including what materials, techniques and skills were used. All the students will explore, learn and practice the process of painting various papers for collage. The students will experience being "the expert," who will lead their parents through the process of creating their own collage.

All artwork will be hung once completed and exhibited for viewing throughout the school building.

Parks and Recreation spring registration is ongoing

The Cranford Recreation and Parks Department has announced that registration for spring programs, Session 3, began on March 12 at the Community Center. In-person and online registration are occurring simultaneously unless otherwise indicated in the Fall/Winter/Spring 2011-2012 brochure.

This brochure can be found online at www.cranford.com/rec. For more information, call 709-7283. These programs are for Cranford residents only.

Historian discusses his latest work 'of the unknown woman'

Historian Alexander Shipley will talk about his book, "The Case of the Unknown Woman: The Story of One of the Most Intriguing Murder Mysteries of the Nineteenth Century," on March 28 at 7:30 p.m. in Cranford Community Center at 221 Walnut Ave.

"The Case of the Unknown Woman" is about a young woman, whose frozen corpse was found by four brothers on Central Avenue in Rahway on March 26, 1887. Her throat was slashed, and her body was covered with bruises. The most bizarre element of this murder is that no one was ever able to give a positive identification of the victim. News of the case spread far and wide, and as many as 10,000 people filed past the victim's coffin in hopes of identifying her as a missing relative or friend.

To this day, her identity is unknown and the case is unsolved. Shipley is Rahway's city historian and the director of Museum Operations at Rahway's Merchants and Drovers Tavern Museum. Copies of "The Unknown Woman" will be available for purchase and for signing.

Admission is free, and all are welcome. The program is sponsored by Cranford Public Library.

Residents can have 'A Date with a Beatle' March 21

Cranford Public Library will be host to Judith Kristen, author of the recently published "A Date with a Beatle," on March 21 at 7:30 p.m. in the Cranford Community Center, 221 Walnut Ave. "A Date with a Beatle" is a look back at the glory days of Beatlemania, as seen through the eyes of a loyal, devoted, and very persistent fan, who eventually managed to meet her idol, George Harrison.

Kristen was born in Atlantic City and raised in Northeast Philadelphia. She is a children's book author, an animal rescuer and an international humane education teacher. Her recent trip to London and Liverpool to introduce "A Date with a Beatle" was so successful that she has been invited back to England and to central Europe for a nine country summer tour in 2012. "A Date with a Beatle" has been translated into German and also will be released in Spanish. Kristen's books, "My Name is Henley: My Life and Times as a Rescued Dog" and "The Rainbow Bridge: A Dog's Story," have interested the Best Friends Animal Society, the Jane Goodall Institute, plus many children. Both books are used to teach humane education to children of all ages. Kristen will have copies of "A Date with a Beatle," available for purchase and for signing.

For more information about the book, visit <http://www.adatewithabeatle.com>. Admission to the program is free, and all are welcome.

'Damn Yankees' hits home run at Paper Mill

By Bea Smith
Staff Writer

An avid Yankees fan can well be forgiven for rooting for an opposing baseball team to win the pennant — and even for uttering the words, "Damn Yankees."

Well, maybe just once — at a fun filled, exceptional production of the legendary musical-comedy, "Damn Yankees," which batted home runs throughout the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn Sunday afternoon.

With the baseball season just around the corner, Mark S. Hoebee, producing artistic director, and Todd Schmidt, managing director, have selected the perfect vehicle to entertain overwhelming theater crowds. And what a crowd it was on Sunday afternoon — from youngsters to senior citizens. The only things missing was a ball park, hot dogs and sun-filled bleachers.

The star players were all there, many direct from Broadway, and the fabulous musical numbers and the unusual story line merely enhanced the enjoyment of an overly enthusiastic audience.

"Damn Yankees," which opened on Broadway way back in 1955, and which received a total of 11 Tony awards, including "Best Musical" and "Best Choreography," has not lost its luster in more than half a century.

In fact, a production, such as is being presented at the Paper Mill Playhouse can easily renew the excitement of veteran theatergoers, and offer a whole new experience to those who are seeing it for the first time. And who can resist such memorable numbers as "Whatever Lola Wants," "Heart,"

'Damn Yankees' is currently in production at the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn and will run through April 1.

and "A Little Brains, A Little Talent" and "Six Months Out of Every Year?"

"Damn Yankees," with lyrics and music by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross, a book by George Abbott and Douglass Wallop, is based on a novel by Wallop called "The Year the Yankees Lost the Pennant." It has new orchestrations and additional arrangements by Bruce Monroe.

The unusual story, which is actually based on the Faust legend, is set in Washington, D.C., in the late 1950s, and concerns an overly enthusiastic Washington Senators' baseball fan, Joe Boyd.

Joe is constantly pounding on his baseball glove, cheering his beloved, but always losing baseball team, much to the distress of his patient wife, and in ultimate frustration, offers to sell his soul if he could only be young enough to play on the team against those "damn Yankees" and win!

Fortunately — or unfortunately — the devil takes him at his word. His deal with the devil has some stipulations, but suddenly, Joe is transformed into a young, talented baseball player, a great hitter and a great shortstop.

The moment the devil, Applegate, in the form of Howard McGillin, flashes onstage, the audience is convinced that there is a conniving, frightening presence that is out to ruin the lives of both Joes. He may not be a Ray Walston type — Walston successfully originated the role on Broadway, and recreated it in the film version — but McGillin has his own wicked, fiery moments to impact. And he is especially emphatic when he sings "Those were the Good Old Days."

Christopher Charles Wood, as young Joe Hardy, has a resounding, excellent voice, particularly when he sings, along with old Joe Boyd, "Goodbye, Old Girl," and by himself, "A Man Doesn't Know," "Near to You," with Meg Boyd and "Two Lost Souls," with Lola.

Patti Cohenour, as Meg Boyd, old Joe's endearing wife, who has a marvelous face and an equally wonderful voice, is absolutely outstanding in the role of a patient, loving woman. Nancy Anderson, as Gloria Thorpe, as the inquiring reporter, is splendid in the role, especially when she sings with the Ballplayers, "Shoeless Joe from Hannibal, Mo." Remember her in the title role of "Peter Pan" at the Paper Mill?

Joseph Kolinski as Joe Boyd and Ray DeMattis as the comical Senators' manager, Van Buren, are splendid in their supporting roles, as are Susan Mosher, Jill Abramovitz, Steve Czarnecki, Gary Lynch and Mike Cannon.

It's Chrissy Whitehead, however, in the role of the long-legged, enticing devil's advocate, Lola, who is the real show-stopper in "Damn Yankees." Whitehead can make a theatergoer forget that the unforgettable Gwen Verdon, who portrayed Lola on Broadway and in the motion picture. Because, when Whitehead, with her wonderfully expressive face and a figure to die for, sings to and climbs all over poor, helpless, young Joe, demanding "Whatever Lola Wants," the audience can be sure Whitehead "gets."

And if that isn't enough to rile a theater-goer, she follows up, in the next scene, along with the baseball players, with "Who's Got the Pain?," with great dancing reminiscent of the style of Bob Fosse, who served as the choreographer on Broadway. Whitehead is absolutely dynamic. And speaking of choreographers, Denis Jones does an extremely impressive job in the Paper Mill's "Damn Yankees." And Hoebee, as director, is equally impressive, especially when he delves into the intricacies of some very difficult scenes.

The audience often sits on the tip of its seat during the entire show, particularly when the questionable moment arises when young Joe yearns to go back to his old life and wife and home, despite the conflicting devilish tricks performed by Applegate.

"Damn Yankees" will run through April 1. Actually, there are nearly two months before the next production is staged. Is there a possibility that this musical can provide some extra innings this spring here in Millburn?

Old habits, like the vegetable garden, are new again

Back in the late-19th and early 20th centuries, the average, middle-class homeowner put decorative garden elements in the front yard and more utilitarian features in the back. Food growing, laundry drying and chicken husbandry all took place in the back. The neighbors knew that you did such things, but, day to day, they preferred to admire the bedding schemes, shrubs and trees that you planted out front.

Laundry no longer goes out on the line, but other old habits are new again, as millions of people return to keeping vegetable gardens and even chickens. However, these days, if a property's sunniest spots are in the front, the neighbors probably won't be shocked to see tomato plants there.

Some food gardeners, like their spiritual kin who specialize in roses or orchids, would like you to believe that home growing is a complicated and mysterious thing. It isn't — or rather, it is only as complicated as you want to make it.

You start by figuring out what you want to grow, which should coincide with what you like to eat.

The Gardener's Apprentice

By Elisabeth Ginsburg

There is no point to growing beets if all you are going to do is look at them.

The next step is to create a planting bed. The best advice on this is to start fairly small — say 3 feet square. This is enough for a few tomato or pepper plants, or a number of herbs. If you decide that you like growing your own food, you can always enlarge the bed later. You can set the bed's dimensions by marking the plot with stakes and string.

Some people swear by tilling before planting. Others, like me, are afraid of mechanical tillers. Some people double-dig their beds, adding organic material as they go. I don't do that either. With vegetable or flower gardens, I like the "lasagna method," which alternates multiple layers of newspaper and compost or mulch over the entire bed area. You can plant through this right away, but it is best left to decompose for a period of time before planting. If you make a lasagna bed now, the soil under it will be considerably looser in a month, or six weeks, when you want to plant.

If your soil is a mess — heavily compacted, solid clay or otherwise untenable — make a raised bed. This is essentially a bottomless, soil-filled box that sits in a designated, sunny garden spot. If you are handy, you can make your own raised bed out of lengths of 2-by-4 or 2-by-8 wood. You can also buy easy-to-assemble kits that include side walls made of recycled plastic or rubber. Once the raised bed is built, it should be filled with good garden soil.

If raised beds are too much of a problem, you can also grow many edible plants, from tomatoes to lettuce, in containers, grow bags or upside-down pots hung from hooks on porches or balconies. Catalogs and mass merchandisers carry a wide variety of these.

Plant your selected species and varieties, and make sure you have a handy water supply — either old-fashioned cans or hoses or newfangled, drip-irrigation systems. Some drip systems can be hooked up to timers, so the watering is automatic.

The food you grow will be just as attractive to birds, insects and animals as it is to you, so prepare for critter control. Since you are going to eat the final product, organic methods make sense. However, this often means hand picking unwanted pests, like tomato hornworms.

Deer can be managed with repellent sprays, but are deterred much more thoroughly and efficiently with barrier fences. Stop birds with netting or other covering. Burrowing, digging or tunneling animals, like rabbits or groundhogs, are best deterred by barriers that extend below ground level.

Talk to other food gardeners in your neighborhood about the pests they encounter most frequently and take their advice about controls.

The one advantage two-legged gardeners have over varmints is that we can talk to each other and use the Internet to solve problems. Exploit that advantage.

Once you have tackled all of the above, all you have to do is watch and wait until your harvest is ready. If you can't eat everything you grow, can it, freeze it, foist it off on neighbors or call your local soup kitchen or food pantry to see if they can use the surplus.

Gardening, like other pleasurable activities, should have as little stress and guilt attached to it as possible. Large garden centers have all the equipment you need, not to mention seeds and starter plants. A good mail order source for growers of things edible and ornamental is Gardener's Supply, 128 Intervale Road, Burlington, VT 05401, 888-833-1412, www.gardeners.com.

Trailside program visits Raptor Trust

The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders and the Department of Parks and Community Renewal are pleased to announce that "The Raptor Trust Story" will be presented at Trailside Nature and Science Center in Mountainside on March 22.

This program for adults, 18 and older, will run from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m. The admission fee is $8 per person for Union County residents and $10 for out-of-county participants. Pre-registration is preferred, but walk-ins will be accommodated as space permits.

The Raptor Trust, located in Millington on the edge of the Great Swamp National Wildlife Refuge, is one of the premier wild bird rehabilitation centers in the United States.

The facility includes a hospital with state-of-the-art medical equipment, an education center, and outdoor aviaries that can house several hundred birds. The Trust's staff and volunteers care for more than 3,600 injured and orphaned birds each year, with the primary goal of releasing as many as possible back into the wild.

"The Raptor Trust story gives adults a fascinating glimpse into the world of hawks and other birds of prey while providing insight into the tremendous amount of time and effort the dedicated staff and volunteers put into their work at this unique facility," said Freeholder Chairman Alexander Mirabella. "It also is exciting that the audience will be introduced to one of the Trust's 'avian ambassadors' — a hawk or an owl."

Lauren Butcher, the trust's Education Director since 2005, will provide a behind-the-scenes look at what the trust does to care for the thousands of injured and orphaned birds that are brought to the facility each year. Butcher began volunteering at the Raptor Trust in 1999. She has a Master's Degree from Rutgers University, where she studied the history of amateur ornithology in the United States.

The presentation will focus on raptors, for which the center is named, but it also will include a discussion on common injuries, medical procedures and the seasonal care of baby birds. The program will touch on a wide variety of bird species that come through the Trust's doors and Butcher will share some of their fascinating stories.

To register for "The Raptor Trust Story" or for information on other upcoming programs and events at Trailside, call 908-789-3670 or visit www.ucnj.org/trailside. Trailside Nature and Science Center is located at 452 New Providence Road in Mountainside and is a service of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders.

St. Patrick and the First St. Patrick's Day Parade

Saint Patrick, who lived during the fifth century, is the patron saint and national apostle of Ireland. Born in Roman Britain, he was kidnapped and brought to Ireland as a slave at the age of 16. He later escaped, but returned to Ireland and was credited with bringing Christianity to its people. In the centuries following Patrick's death (believed to have been on March 17, 461), the mythology surrounding his life became ever more ingrained in the Irish culture: Perhaps the most well known legend is that he explained the Holy Trinity (Father, Son and Holy Spirit) using the three leaves of a native Irish clover, the shamrock.

Since around the ninth or 10th century, people in Ireland have been observing the Roman Catholic feast day of St. Patrick on March 17. Interestingly, however, the first parade held to honor St. Patrick's Day took place not in Ireland but in the United States. On March 17, 1762, Irish soldiers serving in the English military marched through New York City. Along with their music, the parade helped the soldiers reconnect with their Irish roots, as well as with fellow Irishmen serving in the English army.

SUDOKU

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Former RC hoop stars find success in college Skrec, Tobie, Malone, Baker making mark

By JR Parachini
Sports Editor

The success of the Roselle Catholic girls' basketball program is far more reaching than just Union County.

That might not have been more evident than this season when former standouts Allison Skrec, Melissa Tobie, Jenny Malone and Brittany Baker helped lead their women's college basketball teams to numerous victories.

Skrec earned her first starts as a sophomore at Manhattan College, Tobie and Malone excelled in their first years at Montclair State University, while Baker was a key contributor for Union County College this winter.

All four also starred on Roselle Catholic's three Union County Tournament championship teams in 2009, 2010 and 2011, with Tobie starting on all three, Skrec and Malone on the first two and Baker on the third.

Manhattan (16-15) was waiting to see if it will receive a second consecutive postseason bid. The 16-team field for the Women's Basketball Invitational (WBI) was to be unveiled after the NCAA Tournament selections were announced Monday.

The Jaspers, who lost to Siena in the quarterfinals of the MAAC Tournament, reached the semifinals of the WBI in 2011.

Skrec was named Union County Player of the Year by The Star-Ledger her junior and senior seasons of 2009 and 2010. Last year she came off the bench in 16 games for the Jaspers, scoring six points in 35 minutes.

She graduated RC as the school's all-time leading scorer with 1,338 points.

"Like everyone says, the biggest difference from high school basketball to college basketball is the speed of the game," Skrec said. "People aren't lying when they say that."

This season Skrec moved into the starting role at point guard when Linden's Ondya Morgan went down with an injury. Unfortunately for Skrec, she later suffered a season-ending injury.

A 5-7 guard from Roselle who is majoring in education, Skrec was able to start five of the 21 games she played in this season, averaging 4.1 points.

"The size of the girls is also a big difference," Skrec said. "Going up against a 5-foot, 11-inch center in high school when driving to the basket is a lot different than going up against a 6-3 player when attacking the rim."

"Also, while high school basketball consumed a lot of my time, it was nothing compared to the way that college basketball does."

Manhattan lost rather decisively at Marist 61-41 in conference play back on Jan. 9. The Jaspers bounced back to beat Marist 48-44 at home on Feb. 4, with the game in Riverdale, N.Y. broadcast on ESPN3.

"The highlight of our season was definitely beating Marist at home," Skrec said. "Unfortunately I didn't play because of my collar bone injury, but it was still an awesome game to be a part of."

"I was so proud of my teammates. Marist is a great team so it was really cool to say that we were the only MAAC team to beat Marist this season."

Skrec has two more years remaining and a lot of playing time awaits, especially as a prospective starter.

"I was definitely prepared for Manhattan College school-work wise," Skrec said. "The workload is fairly similar to RC, so it wasn't too big of an adjustment."

"Basketball wise, I think that the biggest way that RC prepared me was by providing me with a good work ethic."

That ethic was first enforced by her father Joe, the girls' head coach at RC.

"It wasn't an option to have a good work ethic or not," Skrec said. "Without a good work ethic in high school, our team knew that we wouldn't produce results. That is why we put all of the energy and effort into what we did so that we could reach the goals that we knew we could."

Goals met included the Lions winning conference and county championships during Skrec's junior and senior seasons.

"If I didn't have a good work ethic in high school it would have been a much more difficult transition because from the moment you start playing college basketball you realize that everyone is just as good as you, if not better, so you have to immediately begin working to improve your game," Skrec said.

"Everyone's dream is to make it to the NCAA tournament and mine is no different."

Tobie had a dream season for the Red Hawks. She was named NJAC Rookie of the Week nine teams.

It was only natural that the 6-1 freshman guard-forward from Elizabeth was named the conference's Rookie of the Year. Tobie also landed a spot on the NJAC's All-Conference First Team.

MSU's season came to a close with a 76-68 loss at Kean in the NJAC Tournament semifinals.

Tobie scored 23 points and grabbed seven rebounds for MSU, which ended its season at 19-8. The Red Hawks were seeking their first conference tournament title game appearance since 1995 when they won their only championship. Instead, MSU was denied by Kean again, falling to 0-8 all-time vs. the Cougars including losses in the semifinals in three of the last five years.

"The highlight of our season this year would definitely be us bouncing back after starting off 2-4," Tobie said. "For the rest of the season we only lost four games and all four losses were to teams ranked nationally, so that was a big accomplishment."

Tobie became the fifth player for MSU to be named the league's Rookie of the Year and the third to be named First-Team also in the same season. She joins Aidil Borrero in 1995 and Ebony Allen in 2003 as the only players in program history to hold that distinction.

Tobie was a model of consistency throughout the season and ranked as one of the top all-around players in the NJAC, averaging 17.8 points per game and eight rebounds while shooting 50.5 percent from the field and nearly 80 percent at the foul line (.798). She also had 53 blocks and 44 steals. In the 13-game conference slate, Tobie's numbers were nearly identical at 17.3 points per outing and 79 percent shooting at the charity stripe.

She connected on 48.7 of her attempts from the field and added 28 assists, 29 blocks and 27 steals as MSU finished second in the North Division.

Tobie was The Star-Ledger's 2011 selection as Union County Player of the Year.

"I would say that the greatest adjustment during my transition from high school basketball to college basketball would be the competition," Tobie said. "Everyone on the court has close to the same amount of focus on basketball."

Linden High School 2011 graduate Jaurice Jones is now enrolled full time at UMass and ready to begin his football scholarship at the Division 1 school.

Linden's Jones ready to begin football at UMass

By JR Parachini
Sports Editor

When a football player has to sit out a year — whether it's because of injury or he has to improve academically — you can bet that he can't wait to get back on the field.

Linden's Jaurice Jones is one of those players. Because of that, he will welcome spring football all the more after not playing in 2011.

Jones is now settled in as a student at the University of Massachusetts and ready to begin what he hopes will be an outstanding four-year gridiron career at the Division 1 school.

"I can't wait to start this spring," said Jones, a 2011 Linden High School graduate who is now at UMass on a full football scholarship. "The coaches say that I've been working real hard ever since the first run we had. I'm just happy to be out there."

While it looked at one point that Jones (6-1, 190) might walk-on at Rutgers, there was the matter of qualifying academically. Miami also showed serious interest before Jones made the necessary grades, while Wagner was also in the mix.

Linden head coach Deon Candia said that Temple had something on the table as well before Temple's coaches (including head coach Al Golden) went to Miami. At that time Jones had still not qualified academically.

Instead of prep school for a year, Jones took a criminal justice course at Union County College in the fall — earning an A — and with the increased scores he produced on his SATs he was ready to make his academic debut at UMass this present spring semester, which began in January.

"I got cleared in December," said Jones, who was recruited as an athlete. "UMass stuck it out with me and I felt like it was the best fit for me."

Last April, UMass announced that the football program will jump from the NCAA's championship subdivision (FCS) to the bowl subdivision (FBS) starting in 2012.

It will join the Mid-American Conference and play most of its home games at Gillette Stadium in Foxborough, Mass.

UMass will become a full member in 2013.

The home of the New England Patriots is about 90 miles from the UMass campus in Amherst. The school plans to bus students to games in Foxborough, which is within a half-hour drive of about 120,000 of the school's alumni.

Jones said official spring practice with pads will commence later this month. Right now his regimen consists of all running and weight room.

The starting quarterback for two years and a starter in the secondary for three at Linden for head coach Deon Candia, Jones would welcome playing on either offense or defense for the Minutemen.

"I love both sides of the ball, I love playing safety and coming up and hitting and making plays," Jones said. "On offense I also love having the ball in my hands and making plays. Right now I have to learn free safety and corner."

"The sky's the limit for Jaurice," Candia said. "He's classified as an athlete, while getting most of his work in the secondary, between corner and strong safety."

"He's also been scouted at wide receiver and has helped out with kick and punt returns. The goal for UMass is to get him on the field in some kind of way."

Jones excelled on both sides of the ball his senior season in 2010, leading Linden to a 7-3 finish. Unfortunately for the Tigers, they became the first team in North 2, Group 4 not to gain enough power points for one of the eight playoff berths with a 6-2 record at the cutoff date. Linden won its sectional consolation game and then lost on Thanksgiving.

"During the summer before the season started we thought we had the kind of team that could have made it to the championship and won the whole thing," Jones said.

"His work ethic shined so much," Candia said. "His senior year he really went after it. He was so impressive on defense and a very aggressive kid."

"His will to win was incredible. He became a tremendous competitor."

Jones will seek to continue that work ethic and also constantly build on it.

"I felt that I should have gone to camps before my senior year," Jones said. "I played my hardest to get looks. Now I want to show the coaches here at UMass what I can really do."

Summit hockey wins Public B

By JR Parachini
Sports Editor

A very successful Summit ice hockey program produced many league and Cup titles over the years.

However, one thing was missing. That was a state championship.

Summit came the closest 12 years ago, falling in the Public Schools final.

Given another opportunity to reach its ultimate goal, the Hilltoppers took advantage this time.

Riley Flynn took a pass from Mike Nyitray and scored the game-winning goal with 5:01 left in overtime to lift fourth-seeded Summit past third-seeded Tenaflly 2-1 in overtime in last Friday night's Public B state championship game at The Prudential Center in Newark.

This was Summit's only overtime game this season. The Hilltoppers went 4-1 in one-goal games, including last Wednesday's 3-2 win over ninth-seeded Ramsey in the semifinals at Mennen Arena in Morris Township.

Flynn, a freshman, scored his 17th goal to go along with 16 assists for 33 points. Nyitray, a standout senior defenseman, scored late in the second period to give Summit a 1-0 lead, with teammate Frank Lawrence earning an assist.

Tenaflly came back a minute later to tie the game at 1-1 when Eric Shalek scored off an assist from his brother Scott Shalek with one minute to go before the third period. Summit fired seven of the 11 shots on goal in a scoreless third period and the first four shots of overtime. Summit sophomore goaltender Garrett McGowan made 22 saves, while Tenaflly goalie Jon Winawer stopped 26 shots on goal.

Bergen County power Tenaflly, which was playing in its fifth straight overtime contest, finished a fine season at 23-4-1.

One of Summit's best seasons ever concluded at 24-4-2. The Hilltoppers won their last eight games and 14 of their last 15. They also won the Union County Ice Hockey League's regular season title for the second time in three years, going 11-1, and captured the Union County Cup championship for the third straight season.

NOTES: In Summit's only other state championship game, the Hilltoppers were beat by Bayonne 6-3 in the 2000 Public Schools final at the Continental Airlines Arena in East Rutherford.

Standouts at next level once starred for Lions

"We are all playing because we love the game and we are good at it. I enjoy the challenge of competing every day in practice and in games."

Tobie began her MSU career with 16 points and nine rebounds as the Red Hawks topped Scranton 57-55 in the season opener – the first win by MSU over the Lady Royals since 1991. From there Tobie would earn All-Tournament Team honors at the Eastern Connecticut Tip-Off which included back-to-back 20-point performances.

She collected her first career double-double (20 points, 11 rebounds) in a win over Drew in December and later added 25 points in a win at Stevens in mid January.

Tobie then fashioned consecutive performances in wins over Cabrini and Ramapo, scoring 27 and 32 points, respectively. She added 12 rebounds for a double-double in the victory over the Roadrunners and posted just the third 30-point game by a Montclair State player in the last decade.

"Roselle Catholic basketball certainly prepared me for college basketball," Tobie said. "In high school, especially senior year, I embraced the role of being a leader. I became more comfortable on the court which helped my adjustment into college basketball."

"I also participated in big games in high school, so when it came time to play in pressure situations this season, I was more comfortable thanks to the experience of playing in games like that before."

Tobie went for 18 points and 12 boards in a victory over Rutgers-Newark in early February and then collected her third double-double and ninth 20-point contest with 20 points and 12 rebounds as Montclair downed Richard Stockton 76-67 in the first round of the NJAC Tournament.

Tobie finished third in the league in scoring at 17.8 points per game, seventh in rebounding at 8.0 and fourth in field goal percentage at .505 and free-throw percentage at .798.

"I am studying mathematics in college and I am planning on becoming a high school math teacher and hopefully a high school basketball coach," Tobie said. "As for college basketball, I hope that the team continues to have success on the court and I am looking forward to playing the next three years."

"We are hoping to make it to the NCAA tournament and I look forward to working hard to achieve that goal."

Malone enrolled at Rutgers last year out of Roselle Catholic and did not play basketball.

However, after transferring, the 5-7 freshman guard from North Plainfield was able to work her way into MSU's starting lineup this season, despite not having played last year.

Malone averaged 2.1 points and 2.4 rebounds and also dished out 66 assists and came up with 42 steals.

She ran the point at Roselle Catholic. Finding Skrec open for a layup underneath was a big part of her game, in addition to her skills on defense.

"The biggest adjustment for me was going from not playing a year to playing at a college level," Malone said. "The whole feel of the game is different at the college level. Everyone is good, so it gets very competitive."

Malone scored a season-high six points in a 66-47 win at Cabrini College Jan. 23 in Radnor, Pa. She also had three rebounds, two assists and two steals in the road triumph.

"There are two big ways in which RC has prepared us for college," Malone said. "One is defense. We were always told that defense wins games."

"The other is teamwork. We learned that we could not do anything on our own and could only succeed if we were playing as team players. I am very thankful for playing for a program that emphasized both."

Malone is studying to be a Child Life Specialist.

"My goal for the team is making it into the NCAA tournament where we could accomplish something great," Malone said.

UCC defeated Lackawanna Community College 60-53 March 3 in Cranford to become the National Junior College Athletic Association's (NJCAA) Region 19, Division 2 champions. The Owls were also sparked by tournament MVP Bianca Partlow of Roselle.

The freshman guard paced UCC in scoring with 16 points and also produced 10 steals, six rebounds and four assists.

Partlow was a First-Team All-Union County player last year and two years ago helped lead Roselle to the Union County Tournament championship game.

Baker, another freshman who started for Roselle Catholic's UCT championship team as a senior last year, scored 15 points and pulled down eight rebounds.

Shanique Owens of Hillside added 10 points and nine rebounds and Aika Emmanuel of Hillside finished with nine points, six rebounds and six assists. Quianna Trawick of Rahway contributed eight points and six rebounds.

In addition, second-year head coach and former Hillside girls' basketball coach Rahim Graham - Graham also took over this year as Hillside's Athletic Director - was voted Region 19 Coach of the Year.

The Owls improved to 22-5 with the seven-point victory.

"Winning the region championship with only seven ladies on the team and advancing to the districts was the highlight of the season," Baker said.

Baker, a resident of Plainfield, played at Mother Seton Regional in Clark before transferring to Roselle Catholic for her senior season.

"The biggest adjustment for me was transitioning from a forward to a guard," Baker said. "At RC, I was mainly the four or five and now I'm a two or a three guard. Another adjustment would be the level of intensity when you play the game."

"It's a different level."

UCC enjoyed one of its finest seasons ever, getting out to a 12-0 start before it was defeated for the first time.

"RC prepared me for the ability to balance school-work and basketball," Baker said. "RC taught me how to be a good student-athlete."

"Playing a sport in college, you have to work around the rigorous schedule of practices and learning how to manage your school work."

After graduation, Baker seeks to continue playing at either the Division 1 or 2 level. She is also studying to become a physical therapist.

NOTES: Sparked by the play of Skrec, Malone and Tobie, Roselle Catholic became the first team in five years to repeat as UCT champions.

Then with Baker added last year, the Lions became the first team to win three straight since Elizabeth accomplished the feat in 1995, 1996 and 1997.

The only other two schools that won at least three UCT championships in a row were Plainfield and Union Catholic.

Plainfield won a record six in a row from 1979-1984, which is all six of its titles.

Union Catholic won four straight from 1986-1989, which is half of its record eight crowns.

Roselle Catholic has captured four UCT championships, winning its first one in 2003.

The Lions are 4-0 in the final, with wins over Union Catholic in 2003, Plainfield in 2009, Roselle in 2010 and Governor Livingston in 2011.

GL won the championship for the first time this season, capturing the crown as the top seed. The Highlanders became the 16th school to win the title.

The Owls were sparked by tournament MVP Bianca Partlow of Roselle.

The freshman guard paced UCC in scoring with 16 points and also produced 10 steals, six rebounds and four assists.

Partlow was a First-Team All-Union County player last year and two years ago helped lead Roselle to the Union County Tournament championship game for the first time in four years.

She uses her quickness for many fast break points.

Brittany Baker, another freshman who started for Roselle Catholic's UCT championship team as a senior last year, scored 15 points and pulled down eight rebounds.

Shanique Owens of Hillside added 10 points and nine rebounds and Aika Emmanuel of Hillside finished with nine points, six rebounds and six assists.

Linden's Harris First Team pick

Bloomfield College senior guard Ahmad Harris of Linden was named named to the Daktronics Men's Basketball All-East Region First Team in results released by the organization last Wednesday.

Harris starred on Linden's Group 4 state championship teams in 2006 and 2007.

One of the top floor generals in the nation, Harris started all 28 games for the Deacons and led the CACC in assists. He ranked seventh nationally at 7.0 per game for a total of 197.

The 197 assists also eclipsed the CACC single-season assist mark of 195, which was established by Holy Family's Chris Kozole in 2004-05.

The 5-9 backcourt standout also led the league in steals with 64 and assist-to-turnover ratio at 2.95, which was sixth-best nationally.

In addition, Harris tallied a 10.4 points per game scoring average while helping to guide Bloomfield to a 21-7 overall record and 15-3 CACC mark.

Bloomfield also captured the North Division regular season title en route to its fifth CACC Tournament crown in 10 seasons.

"What Ahmad does on the basketball floor is absolutely unbelievable," Bloomfield head coach Gerald Holmes said. "It says a lot about the type of player he is and the effect he can have on a game without lighting up the stat sheet."

"You cannot quantify how he impacts a game with statistics and I'm happy people are starting to realize that."

"He is truly a special player, and I have no doubt he will succeed at the next level."

"If anyone deserves this award, it's him, so I'm very proud of him and extremely happy for him."

Bloomfield was to return to action in the opening round of the NCAA Tournament last Saturday and was to face UMass-Lowell in a game at Assumption College.

After Bloomfield defeated UMass-Lowell Saturday, the fifth-seeded Deacons downed top-seeded imed a 69-60 victory over No. 1 seed Franklin Pierce University 69-60 in Sunday's NCAA Division 2 Men's Basketball East Regional Semifinals at Laska Gym on the campus of Assumption College.

The Deacons advanced to the NCAA East Regional Final for the second consecutive season where they were to face No. 2 seed Stonehill (23-8) Tuesday night at Assumption.

Bloomfield improved to 26-7 with Sunday's win and defeated five different teams from the Northeast-10 Conference in its last five NCAA Tournament wins: AIC, Stonehill, Bentley, UMass-Lowell and Franklin Pierce.

Four players reached double-figures in scoring for the balanced Deacons attack Harris totaled 11 points, eight rebounds and a game-high eight assists in a trademark performance, while sophomore forward Kevin Udo of West Orange narrowly missed a double-double with 10 points, nine rebounds and a game-high four blocks.

The information presented in columns 1 through 3 as well as the related descriptions of the per pupil cost calculations are contained in the 2012 Taxpayers' Guide to Education Spending (formerly Comparative Spending Guide) and can be found on the Department of Education's Internet address: http://www.state.nj.us/education/under_finance, when available. This publication is available in the board office and public libraries. The same calculations were performed using the 2011-12 revised appropriations and 2012-13 budgeted appropriations presented in this advertised budget. Total Budgetary Comparative Per Pupil Cost is defined as current expense exclusive of tuition expenditures, transportation, residential costs, and judgments against the school district. For all years, it also includes the restricted entitlement aids. With the exception of Total Equipment Cost, each of the other per pupil cost calculations presented is a component of the total Budgetary comparative per pupil cost, although all components are not shown.

A refusal by the Tenant to execute such instruments is a default under this Lease.

Condemnation; Eminent Domain. If any portion of the premises of which the Premises are a part is taken under eminent domain or condemnation proceedings, or if suit or other action shall be instituted for the taking or condemnation thereof, or if in lieu of any formal condemnation proceedings or actions, the Landlord grants an option to purchase and or sells and conveys the Premises or any portion thereof, to the governmental or other public authority, agency, body or public utility seeking to take the Premises or any portion thereof, then this Lease, at the option of the Landlord, will terminate, and the term hereof will end as of such date as the Landlord fixes by notice in writing. The Tenant will have no claim or right to claim or be entitled to any portion of any amount which may be awarded as damages or paid as the result of such condemnation proceedings or paid as the purchase price for such option, sale or conveyance in lieu of formal condemnation proceedings. The Tenant may, however, file a claim for any taking of fixtures and improvements owned by the Tenant, and for moving expenses. Except as provided in the preceding sentence, all rights of the Tenant to damages, if any, are hereby assigned to the Landlord. The Tenant will execute and deliver any instruments, at the expense of the Landlord, as may be deemed necessary to expedite any condemnation proceedings or to effectuate a proper transfer of title to such governmental or other public authority, agency, body or public utility seeking to take or acquire the Premises or any portion thereof. The Tenant will vacate the Premises, remove all of the Tenant's personal property therefrom and deliver up peaceable possession thereof to the Landlord or to such other party designated by the Landlord. The Tenant will repay the Landlord for such costs, expenses, damages and losses as the Landlord may incur by reason of the Tenant's breach hereof. Tenant shall be entitled to seek such award in a condemnation proceeding as it might be entitled to because of its loss of business, property and fixtures.

Fire and Other Casualty. If there is a fire or other casualty, the Tenant will give immediate notice to the Landlord. If the Premises are partially damaged by fire, the elements or other casualty, the Landlord will repair the same as speedily as practicable, but the Tenant's obligation to pay the rent hereunder will not cease. If, in the reasonable opinion of the Landlord, the Premises are so substantially damaged as to render them untenable, then the rent will cease until such time as the Premises are made tenable by the Landlord. If, however, in the opinion of the Landlord, the Premises are so substantially damaged that the Landlord decides not to rebuild, then the rent will be paid up to the time of such destruction and this Lease will terminate as of the date of such destruction. The rent, and any additional rent, will be apportioned as of the termination date, and any rent paid for any period beyond that date will be repaid to the Tenant. However, the preceding provisions of this Paragraph 16 will not become effective or be applicable if the fire or other casualty and damage are the result of the carelessness, negligence or improper conduct of the Tenant or the Tenant's agents, employees, guests, licensees, invitees, subtenants, assignees or successors. In such case, the Tenant's liability for the payment of the rent and the performance of all the covenants, conditions and terms hereof on the Tenant's part to be performed will continue and the Tenant will be liable to the Landlord for the damage and loss suffered by the Landlord. If the Tenant is insured against any of the risks here covered, then the proceeds of such insurance will be paid over to the Landlord to the extent of the Landlord's costs and expenses to make the repairs hereunder, and such insurance carriers will have no recourse against the Landlord for reimbursement.

Reimbursement of Landlord. If the Tenant fails or refuses to comply with any of the terms and conditions of this Lease, the Landlord may carry out and perform such conditions at the cost and expense of the Tenant, which amounts will be payable on demand to the Landlord as additional rent. This remedy will be in addition to such other remedies as the Landlord may have by reason of the breach by the Tenant of any of the terms and conditions of this Lease.

Increase of Insurance Rates. If for any reason it is impossible to obtain fire and other hazard insurance on the buildings and improvements on the Premises in an amount and in the form and from insurance companies acceptable to the Landlord, the Landlord may, at any time, terminate this Lease, upon giving to the Tenant fifteen (15) days' notice in writing of the Landlord's intention to do so. Upon the giving of such notice, this Lease will terminate as of the date specified in such notice. If by reason of the use to which the Premises are put by the Tenant or character of or the manner in which the Tenant's business is carried on, the insurance rates for fire and other hazards increase, the Tenant will, upon demand, pay to the Landlord, as additional rent, the amounts by which the premiums for such insurance are increased.

Inspection and Repair. The Landlord and the Landlord's agents, employees or other representatives, will have the right to enter into and upon the Premises or any part thereof, at all reasonable hours, on reasonable prior notice, for the purpose of examining the Premises or making such repairs or alterations therein as may be necessary for the safety and preservation thereof. This clause will not be deemed to be a covenant by the Landlord nor be construed to create an obligation on the part of the Landlord to make such inspection or repairs.

Right to Exhibit. The Tenant will permit the Landlord and the Landlord's agents, employees or other representatives to show the Premises to persons wishing to rent or purchase the Premises, and Tenant agrees that on and after 90 days next preceding the expiration of the term hereof, the Landlord or the Landlord's agents, employees or other representatives will have the right to place notices on the front of the Premises or any part thereof, offering the Premises for rent or for sale; and the Tenant will permit the same to remain thereon without hindrance or molestation. The Tenant will also permit the Landlord and the Landlord's agents, employees or other representatives to show the Premises to prospective mortgagees of the Premises or the land and improvements of which the Premises are a part.

Removal of Tenant's Property. Any equipment, fixtures, goods or other property of the Tenant that are not removed by the Tenant upon the termination of this Lease, or upon any quitting, vacating or abandonment of the Premises by the Tenant, or upon the Tenant's eviction, will be considered as abandoned and the Landlord will have the right, without any notice to the Tenant, to sell or otherwise dispose of the same, at the expense of the Tenant, and will not be accountable to the Tenant for any part of the proceeds of such sale, if any.

Events of Default; Remedies Upon

Tenant's Default.

The following are "Events of Default" under this Lease: (a) a default by the Tenant in the payment of rent, or any additional rent when due or within 10 days thereafter; (b) a default by the Tenant in the performance of any of the other covenants or conditions of this Lease, which the Tenant does not cure within 10 days after the Landlord gives the Tenant written notice of such default, or if the cure cannot be done within 10 days to commence the cure within 10 days and thereafter diligently pursue the completion of the cure; (c) the death of the Tenant (if the Tenant is an individual); (d) the liquidation or dissolution of the Tenant (if the Tenant is an entity); (e) the filing by the Tenant of a bankruptcy, insolvency or receivership proceeding; (f) the filing of a bankruptcy, insolvency or receivership proceeding against the Tenant which is not dismissed within 30 days after the filing thereof; (g) the appointment of, or the consent by the Tenant to the appointment of, a custodian, receiver, trustee, or liquidator of all or a substantial part of the Tenant's assets; (h) the making by the Tenant of an assignment for the benefit of creditors or an agreement of composition; (i) if the Premises are or become abandoned, deserted, vacated or vacant; (j) the eviction of the Tenant; or (k) if this Lease, the Premises or the Tenant's interest in the Premises passes to another by virtue of any court proceedings, writ of execution, levy, or judicial or foreclosure sale. If an Event of Default occurs, the Landlord, in addition to any other remedies contained in this Lease or as may be permitted by law, may either by force or otherwise, without being liable for prosecution therefor, or for damages, re-enter, possess and enjoy the Premises. The Landlord may then re-let the Premises and receive the rents therefor and apply the same, first to the payment of such expenses, reasonable attorney fees and costs, as the Landlord may have incurred in re-entering and repossessing the Premises and in making such repairs and alterations as may be necessary; and second to the payment of the rents due hereunder. The Tenant shall remain liable for such rents as may be in arrears and also the rents as may accrue subsequent to the re-entry by the Landlord, to the extent of the difference between the rents reserved hereunder and the rents, if any, received by the Landlord during the remainder of the unexpired term hereof, after deducting the aforementioned expenses, fees and costs; the same to be paid as such deficiencies arise and are ascertained each month. The Tenant must also pay all costs, including reasonable attorney fees, related to any eviction action filed against the Tenant as additional rent.

Termination on Default. If an Event of Default occurs, the Landlord may, at any time thereafter, terminate this Lease and the term hereof, upon giving to the Tenant five (5) days' notice in writing of the Landlord's intention to do so. Upon the giving of such notice, this Lease and the term hereof will end on the date fixed in such notice; and the Landlord will have the right to remove all persons, goods, fixtures and chattels from the Premises, by force or otherwise, without liability for damage. Notwithstanding the termination of the Lease as set forth herein, the Tenant shall remain liable for such rents as may be in arrears and also the rents as may accrue subsequent to the re-entry by the Landlord, to the extent of the difference between the rents reserved hereunder and the rents, if any, received by the Landlord during the remainder of the unexpired term hereof, after deducting the expenses, fees and costs as set forth in paragraph 22 above; the same to be paid as such deficiencies arise and are ascertained each month.

Non-Liability of Landlord. Except in the case of the gross negligence of the Landlord, the Landlord will not be liable for any damage or injury which may be sustained by the Tenant or any other person, as a consequence of the failure, breakage, leakage or obstruction of the water, plumbing, steam, sewer, waste or soil pipes, roof, drains, leaders, gutters, valleys, Non-Waiver by Landlord. The various rights, remedies, options and elections of the Landlord under this Lease are cumulative. The failure of the Landlord to enforce strict performance by the Tenant of the conditions and covenants of this Lease or to exercise any election or option, or to resort or have recourse to any remedy conferred in this Lease or the acceptance by the Landlord of any installment of rent after any breach by the Tenant, in any one or more instances, will not be construed or deemed to be a waiver or a relinquishment for the future by the Landlord of any such conditions and covenants, options, elections or remedies, but the same will continue in full force and effect.

Non-Performance by Landlord. This Lease and the obligation of the Tenant to pay the rent hereunder and to comply with the covenants and conditions hereof, will not be affected, curtailed, impaired or excused because of the Landlord's inability to supply any service or material called for in this Lease, by reason of any rule, order, regulation or preemption by any governmental entity, authority, department, agency or subdivision or for any delay which may arise by reason of negotiations for the adjustment of any fire or other casualty loss or because of strikes or other labor trouble or for any cause beyond the control of the Landlord.

Validity of Lease. The terms, conditions, covenants and provisions of this Lease will be deemed to be severable. If any clause or provision contained in this Lease is adjudged to be invalid or unenforceable by a court of competent jurisdiction or by operation of any applicable law, it will not affect the validity of any other clause or provision in this Lease, but such other clauses or provisions will remain in full force and effect.

Force Majeuro. Landlord shall not be liable for any failure to perform hereunder where a Force Majeuro Occurrence proximately causes such failure. A "Force Majeuro Occurrence" shall mean an occurrence beyond the control and without the fault or negligence of the Landlord and which by exercise or reasonable diligence the Landlord is unable to prevent or provide against. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, force majeure occurrences shall include: acts of nature (including fire, flood, earthquake, storm, hurricane or other natural disaster); war, invasion, acts of foreign combatants, terrorists acts, military or other usurped political power or confiscation, nationalization, government sanction or embargo, labor disputes of third parties to this contract, or the prolonged failure of electricity or other vital utility service.

Notices. All notices required under the terms of this Lease will be given and will be complete by mailing such notices by certified or registered mail, return receipt requested, or by hand delivery, or overnight delivery service with signature of recipient required, to the address of the parties as shown at the beginning of this Lease, or to such other address as may be designated in writing, which notice of change of address is given in the same manner.

Title and Quiet Enjoyment. The Landlord covenants and represents that the Landlord is the owner of the Premises and has the right and authority to enter into, execute and deliver this Lease, and does further covenant that the Tenant on paying the rent and performing the conditions and covenants contained in this Lease, will and may peaceably and quietly have, hold and enjoy the Premises for the term of this Lease.

Entire Contract. This Lease contains the entire contract between the parties. No representative, agent or employee of the Landlord has been authorized to make any representations or promises with reference to the leasing of the Premises, or to vary, alter or modify the terms hereof.

If any construction or other liens are created or filed against the Premises by reason of labor performed or materials furnished for the Tenant in the erection, construction, completion, alteration, repair or addition to any building or improvement, the Tenant will, upon demand, at the Tenant's own cost and expense, cause such lien or liens to be satisfied and discharged of record together with any lien claims that may have been filed. Failure to do so, will entitle the Landlord to resort to such remedies as are provided in this Lease for any default of this Lease, in addition to such as are permitted by law.

Waiver of Subrogation Rights. The Tenant waives all rights of recovery against the Landlord or the Landlord's agents, employees or other representatives for any loss, damages or injury of any nature whatsoever to property or persons for which the Tenant is insured. The Tenant will obtain from Tenant's insurance carriers and will deliver to the Landlord, waivers of the subrogation rights under the respective policies.

Security. The Tenant has deposited with the Landlord the sum of Two Thousand Seven Hundred Dollars ($2,700.00) (the "Security Deposit") as security for the payment of the rent hereunder and the full and faithful performance by the Tenant of the covenants and conditions on the part of the Tenant to be performed. Such Security Deposit will be returned to the Tenant, without interest, after the expiration of the term hereof, provided that the Tenant has fully and faithfully performed all such covenants and conditions and is not in arrears in rent. During the term hereof, the Landlord may, if the Landlord so elects, have recourse to such Security Deposit, to make good any default by the Tenant, and the Tenant will, on demand, promptly restore the Security Deposit to its original amount. The Landlord will assign or transfer the Security Deposit, for the benefit of the Tenant, to any subsequent owner or holder of the reversion or title to the Premises, and the assignee will become liable for the repayment thereof as provided in this Lease, and the assignor will be released by the Tenant from all liability to return such Security Deposit. This provision will be applicable to every change in title and does not permit the Landlord to retain the Security Deposit after termination of the Landlord's ownership. The Tenant will not mortgage, encumber or assign the Security Deposit without the written consent of the Landlord.

Estoppel Certificates. The Tenant will at any time and from time to time upon not less than 5 days prior notice by the Landlord, execute, acknowledge and deliver to the Landlord or any other party specified by the Landlord, a statement in writing certifying that this Lease is unmodified and in full force and effect (or if there have been modifications, that this Lease is in full force and effect as modified and stating the modifications) and the dates to which the rent, additional rent and other charges have been paid, and stating whether or not, to the knowledge of the signer of such certificate, the Tenant or the Landlord is in default in performance of any covenant, agreement or condition contained in this Lease, and, if so, specifying each such default of which the signer may have knowledge, as well as certifying to such other matters as the Landlord or the intended recipient of such certificate may reasonably request.

Conformation with Laws and Regulations. The Landlord may pursue the relief or remedy sought in any invalid clause, by conforming such clause with the provisions of the statutes or the regulations of any governmental agency as if the particular provisions of the applicable statutes or regulations were set forth at length in this Lease.

Number and Gender, and Binding Effect. In all references in this Lease to any parties, persons or entities, the use of any particular gender or the plural or singular number is intended to include the appropriate gender or number as the text of this Lease may require. All the terms, covenants and conditions contained in this Lease will be for and will inure to the benefit of and will bind the respective parties hereto, and their heirs, executors, administrators, personal or legal representatives, successors and assigns.

This publication is available in the board office and public libraries. The same calculations were performed using the 2011-12 revised appropriations and 2012-13 budgeted appropriations presented in this advertised budget. Total Budgetary Comparative Per Pupil Cost is defined as current expense exclusive of tuition expenditures, transportation, residential costs, and judgments against the school district. For all years, it also includes the restricted entitlement aids. With the exception of Total Equipment Cost, each of the other per pupil cost calculations presented is a component of the total Budgetary comparative per pupil cost, although all components are not shown.
