AN AMERICAN HERITAGE

"Ransom" is an ugly word. It takes the mind back to the Middle Ages, when it was a commonplace accompaniment of war and, in following centuries, to when the Barbary pirates grew rich on it. Now Fidel Castro has successfully revived this barbaric custom, by exchanging some 1,100 prisoners taken during the dreadfully mishandled Bay of Pigs invasion, for $53 million worth of supplies, consisting of foods and drugs, that oppressed Cuba desperately needs.

The U. S. government did not participate as an active partner in the barter deal - - it could not. But it gave its tacit approval, on purely humanitarian grounds. And the response by the enterprises whose cooperation was vital was immediate.

Pan American World Airways provided a plane shuttle service, to carry both the ransomed men and some cargoes to and from Havana.

U. S. pharmaceutical companies provided the great quantities of drugs that Cuba needs and Castro demanded.

U. S. steamship lines provided ships to transport the major part of the supplies, and to serve passengers too ill to travel by air.

U. S. food manufacturers made essential contributions. U. S. labor unions joined in hurrying the project through and the U. S. Red Cross administered it all.

None of these participants, one may be sure, has anything but loathing for the ransom scheme. But, when the lives of 1,100 courageous defenders of human freedom were at stake, they did what had to be done. That is in proud accord with the American heritage.

WHERE WILL SPENDING STOP

Wynne, Ark., Progress: "I see by the papers that the national deficit is now running at the rate of six billion dollars a year. You know, it takes a lot of patriotism to buy government bonds, investing in an organization that is losing money at the rate of $500 million a month, $16,666,666 a day or $694,444 an hour. What I'd like for Christmas is for the Kennedy Boys to quit believing in Santa Claus." From "Grass Roots Opinion"

PREVENT MORE TAXES WRITE YOUR ASSEMBLYMAN

We are calling upon our readers to assist us in bringing to the attention of our lawmakers in Trenton our stand on issues of vital importance to the future of our state. We ask our readers to join us in this fight and exert every effort to bring about the passage of laws, new and remedial, to prevent further taxation, which in our opinion, the citizens of this state do not want.

For many weeks we have been exposing the operations of the Port of New York Authority and we have asked that P. A. be made to pay taxes. We also said that if P. A. paid its just taxes, there would be no need for a sales tax. We have also come out in favor of a state lottery to ease the tax burden.

These are issues to be brought to the attention of your elected representatives in Trenton. They are there to serve you and they will give these issues priority if they know the voters expect it. Therefore, we have prepared ballots on these issues for your convenience in voicing your opinions to your representatives. Just cut along the dotted line, fill in the name of your representative (see list below) and mail to State House, Trenton. It's as simple as that.

These ballots will run every week until our goals have been achieved even if we have to run them for a year.

LABOR LOG

By Bernard Lasky

Bertram A. Powers, president of Local 6 printers union, has called on attorney general Robert Kennedy to investigate the anti-trust implications by the New York publishers during the pending strike against 4 New York City newspapers.

According to Powers "during the pending strike by Local No. 6 against the New York Times, World-Telegram and Sun, Journal American and Daily News, the Publishers' Association of New York consisting not only of the four struck papers but also in addition the Herald-Tribune, New York Post, the Mirror, the Long Island Star Journal and the Long Island Press has agreed that all of its members will cease publishing in New York City in order to coerce a settlement of the basic labor dispute between the union and each of the four struck newspapers.

"This agreement is one which eliminates competition among the newspapers involved and therefore raises the question whether the anti-trust laws of the United States are being violated, Section 1 of the Sherman Act specifically."

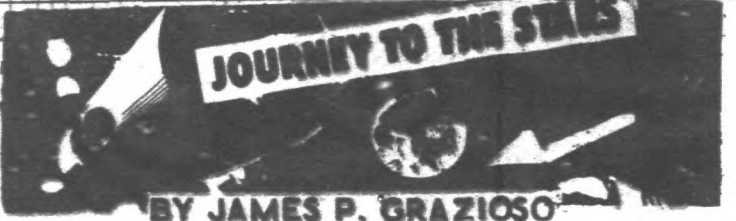

Powers asserted that "To our knowledge there is no decision of the courts which holds that an agreement not to compete during the pendency of a strike is exempt for the antitrust laws."

He pointed out that "Local 6 has consistently offered to negotiate individually with each of the newspapers involved. We have offered to work under our old contract with the Herald Tribune, New York Post, the Mirror, the Long Island Star Journal and the Long Island Press. We have also offered to negotiate with them separately to deal with individual problems. As a result of the agreement not to compete among all of the New York City area newspapers the public is being deprived of the publication of these five papers and Local 6 and its members are suffering continuing damage."

In his communication to the attorney-general of the U.S. Powers noted: "This agreement which has been in effect for many years is but one of a number of agreements and understandings among newspapers in New York City which have serious antitrust implications. These agreements include one in which the Long Island Press has undertaken to limit its distribution to Nassau and Suffolk counties to the exclusion of Queens county in New York City which is within their normal area of distribution."

Powers has a unanimous vote of confidence from his membership and a strong mandate to continue the strike until an acceptable contract is obtained. Powers and his staff of union negotiators are continuing their intensive efforts to reach an agreement with the publishers to end the newspaper shutdown.

The union claims that pub-

Power supply is an absolute must for any space vehicle, and with much longer trips to the moon and planets scheduled for this decade, power that will keep equipment including life support systems going for very long periods will be required.

Although converting solar energy into power presented a problem at the dawn of the space age, the problem has been solved with the main emphasis now concentrated on improving the designs.

A new development in converting solar energy into power is an orbiting power converter called Sunflower because of its resemblance to the many-petaled head of that plant. Consisting of a compact pack at the time of launch, the device opens up into a 32 foot parabolic mirror once in orbit. The sun's rays are focused by the mirror on an energy conversion unit. A mercury vapor-driven turboalternator produces power. Heat stored in a mass of lithium hydride continues to supply energy to operate the alternator during dark periods of orbit.

One of the designs that solved a principal problem in the construction was the use of 11 foot long sectors or petals. Requirements for lightweight, precise contours - and the dimensional stability necessary to maintain them - and high strength to withstand the stresses of being fired into space by a rocket, were met by this design. The materials used were an aluminum skin bonded with epoxy resin to aluminum honeycomb making possible a rigid, lightweight panel easily formed in the desired shape.

The skin of the petalsthree mil aluminum sheet is bonded to one half inch aluminum honeycomb with epoxy adhesives. The adhesives used, Bondmaster m688 and m685, are high-strength materials with some flexibility. They are produced by Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, Adhesive Products Division, using Union Carbide's epoxies. With the construction, the reflecting panels weigh just under three ounces per square foot.

A parabolic back-up structure was built by the same company-Tapeco, a division of Thompson Ramo Wooldridge, Inc., - to support and protect flight-weight solar collectors during ground test. For ease of construction and low cost, the element was built of glass cloth bonded to an inch and one half thick paper honeycomb with bakelite epoxy. The resulting 40 foot parabolic structure is capable of withstanding 50 mile per hour wind loads.

Both the back-up structure and the solar collector were formed from the same tools, which are epoxy-glass cloth construction. Only five-eighths of an inch thick, they are heated by elements buried in the tools.

Once the ground tests are completed the Sunflower will be sent into orbit and tested in space. If successful - and it will be unless something unexpected pops up - the Sunflower design can be used in manned satellites in permanent orbits or for vehicles going on long journeys to other planets. Undoubtedly it will be easier and cheaper to supply power in space vehicles than it is on earth.

lishers' propaganda that Powers was a "union boss" and "dictator" who was acting against the interest of his members backfired when 5,000 printers at the largest meeting in the union's 113 year history gave their union president a prolonged standing ovation and endorsed his leadership in the strike and lockout.

The union's members went on record as disapproving any policy which would voluntarily surrender to a third party the union's right to negotiate a contract directly with the publishers. Strong opposition was shown to the three-man board of judges set up by the government authorities and whose proceedings and final report had revealed a strong anti-union bias.

 POPULAR with the girls in his office, all were anxious to go out with him. He kidded around but never asked any of them out. He never was seen close to a girl and all chalked it up as undue shyness. At the Christmas office party, the girls hung mistletoe. When one of the girls tried to maneuver him under it for the usual reason, he pushed her rudely off and left the party. When he returned to work after Christmas, none of the girls would talk to him. That was a cruel trick to play on a girl they said. He felt ashamed and went to a head shrinker. He found he was allergic to face powder and cosmetics. To overcome the allergy he exposed himself to it in small doses, sleeping with powder on his face etc. Now he can get close to a girl without sniveling and is he making up for lost time.  THE BACHELOR LIFE was for them, the four partners agreed. They had a small restaurant and every fourth day one took off to either get pie eyed or take out a date. But all stood pat on the subject of marriage. It was swell as it was. They ate at their hash house and shared an apartment. It was uncomplicated and they liked it. Then one day a letter came from Ireland. A friend of one of the partners was sending his daughter over. The guy was expected to marry her. The other partners set up a howl but after a long discussion it was decided that if one married, all 4 should marry. Now the men are seldom seen at the restaurant. The wives are in the kitchen and behind the counter. Their husbands run the joint by remote control - from the race track.

PUBLIC NOTICE IS given that Dog Licenses expire January 31 of each year. Every person owning, keeping or harboring a dog in Secaucus MUST PROCURE A LICENSE at the office of the Town Clerk, Municipal Building, BETWEEN 9 A.M. and 4 P.M. Daily.

This is a State Law and the Department is Directed to Enforce It

Penalty for violation of State and Town Ordinances and Statutes regarding the keeping of dogs, is a fine not exceeding $50.00. The fee for each license is:

MALE DOG, $1.25; female dog, $2.25; for which a municipal tag and certificate of registry are issued.

signed: GEORGE W. KESSLER, Clerk.

THIS INFORMAL pose was caught by our cameraman at the opening of the state legislature. J. Beier Theurer, at right, Republican leader in Hudson County is discussing the days events with William P. Mac Phail, superintendent of elections and commissioner of registrations.

A FIREMAN whiles away the hours at the fire house doing needlepoint. At first the boys kidded the shirt off him but realizing he had talent, they put in orders for the stuff for gifts for their wives. That was Christmas 1961. This year they ordered again. The fireman took the orders and embroidered the articles. He said nothing about the fact they hadn't paid him for the previous year's gifts. So, when he packed the needlework, he placed a bill in each package for 1961 and 1962. The wives got the gifts and the notes. The reaction must have been the same with all of them because the the fireman has been paid. It was a smart move too because orders are now coming in from the wives.

Can your child afford not to have a college education?

Advanced education does not miraculously confer health, wealth and wisdom. But it helps—as millions have learned.

U.S. Census statistics show the cost of college is returned many times over in extra earnings in later years. And this takes no account of the extra satisfactions college education can give.

One way to be sure that your children have the education best suited to their abilities is Metropolitan's Education-Estate Builder Plan.

Planning for your children is not a thing to put off. It is never too soon to prepare for the costs of college. And the younger the child, the lower the premium.

Even if, when the policy matures, the money is not needed for education, each $1000 of the plan can be converted to $5000 of Limited Payment Life Insurance—a ready-made estate for your child.

That is why you should call your Metropolitan Representative now. Get the facts now. Give yourself as much time as possible to plan and prepare. It is your Metropolitan Man's duty to serve you and your family. Let him show you.

A HASSLE was going on at the meat counter in a market. A customer was being refused 28 pork chops and a 22 pound roast. What do you want with all that meat, you running a restaurant? the butcher quipped. I'll give you 12 chops and a 12 pound roast. All this time a tiny, old lady had been listening. In a voice not as meek as she looked, she roared, "Why don't you mind your own damn business and give the lady what she wants. Your job is to sell the stuff not ask what she does with it."

NOW — low-cost employee insurance benefits for small business

Now, employers of less than 25 people can make the benefits of low-cost insurance available to their employees.

Metropolitan is offering an Employee Benefit Plan, which can be written for as few as 4 employees. It offers protection against the financial losses caused by death, injury and illness on a notably low-cost basis.

Three basic areas can be covered by this new plan:

1. Life insurance for employees.
2. Weekly Income Benefits for those employees who are unable to work because of non-occupational accident or sickness.
3. In-Hospital Medical Expense coverage for employees and their dependents (or for employees only) for non-occupational accident or sickness.

All of these coverages are available in the complete plan, although an employer is not required to take all three. There are several combinations of coverages which he may elect.

Since it entered the group insurance field in 1917, Metropolitan has written thousands of employee insurance contracts, covering many millions of employees. This vast experience has gone into the formulation of this special plan for small business.

A Metropolitan Employee Benefit Plan not only furnishes the important basic coverages for employees and their dependents, but it provides a foundation on which more effective personal and family insurance programs can be safely and economically built.

Why not call your Metropolitan Representative today. He will welcome the opportunity to present complete details of this Employee Benefit Plan at any time, because

He eats in silence and grumbles about the food. If the toast is cold he sets up a howl. His wife thought of a cure.  DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS
 TOWNSHIP OF NORTH BERGEN
 and MILTON J. MUSS, Acting Building Inspector, vs. MARY GARDNER, ORDER

On Proceedings Pursuant to R. S. 40-48-2.3, et seq.

This matter, having come on before me in the presence of Robert W. Bazzani, Attorney for the Township of North Bergen, and Milton J. Muss, the Acting Building Inspector thereof, and Mary Gardner not having appeared or anyone on her behalf; and, it appearing from the testimony of witnesses, photographs, and other evidence adduced that the premises known as 9061-0005 Newkirk Avenue, North Bergen, New Jersey, are so old, out of repair, dangerous, unsafe, unsanitary, and otherwise unfit for human habitation and occupancy and inimical to the health and safety of the people of the state, and that a public necessity exists for the repair or demolition of the said building in that the said building is without proper sanitary facilities, is doorless and windowless, with tinder dry wood, open stairwells, broken and deteriorated walls and ceilings, kerosene filled drums and other debris strewn around inside and outside the premises, dangerous entrance, and in a dangerous condition as the result of electrical current and gas service being supplied to the vacant building, said premises being further determined to be a fire trap by the Fire Department of the Township of North Bergen, and
