WHO'LL BE CHAIRMAN?

WHEN CITY COUNCIL SEATS are reshuffled July 1, who will be chairman? That is the question being asked in political circles these days. When Councilman Edward Borrone's "Unity For Progress" ticket won council seats for Frank Finnerty, John Palmieri, E. Matthews and Rudolph Ranieri, thus gaining control of the council, the names of Borrone and Palmieri were suggested as chairman. The question is still being asked, "Who will be Council Chairman?"

HOBOKEN P.O. ADOPTS ZIP CODE TO SPEED DELIVERY

Our five digit ZIP code is 07030, Postmaster Nicholas J. Caruso announced today.

"Everyone in Hoboken will use this ZIP code on all their correspondence to speed mail deliveries and reduce the chance of mis-sent mail", Postmaster Caruso said.

ZIP code, the Post Office Department's revolutionary new system of improved mail dispatch and delivery, goes into effect nationally on July 1.

Postmaster Caruso stressed the importance of all citizens of Hoboken learning this city's ZIP code and using it in their return address on all correspondence. In answering mail, he said, ZIP codes taken from return addresses on all incoming mail should be used.

"The ZIP code is literally the last word in mail addressing", Mr. Caruso said, "It should follow the city and state in addresses".

He cited this example of the proper use of ZIP code:

Nicholas J. Caruso, Postmaster United States Post Office Hoboken, New Jersey 07030

The new ZIP code plan, Mr. Caruso said, for the first time will permit the Post Office Department to short-cut repeated address reading.

ten be read as many as eight or ten times by postal employees, to get it to the proper destination. Mr. Caruso said, "Each handling slows the process of mail dispatch and adds to the opportunity for human error. With ZIP code, a clerk needs only to glance at the code to know immediately to what national area, state and post office the letter is destined, and to speed it on its way, cutting up to 24 hours off the time between deposit and delivery."

Mr. Caruso said that when ZIP code is in full swing, the United States will have "the most modern system of mail distribution and delivery in existence."

TIME TO SLOW DOWN

With the Federal Government slipping further into the red quicksands of public debt, the trip-hammer blows of continued deficit spending have driven the legal "ceiling" on the national debt to another all-time high of $309,000,000,000 effective July 1 when the new Federal fiscal year begins.

And, this is not the end for Uncle Sam's spiraling debt ceiling. The new "temporary" debt level is to last only until August 31 when Congress will be called upon to make another upward adjustment. The Treasury has estimated that a ceiling level of $315 billion to $320 billion will be necessary to accommodate more governmental borrowing to finance increased spending during the balance of the fiscal year.

The ceiling in itself does not control Federal debt any more than a speedometer stops an automobile when it reaches the 100-mile an hour mark. But like the speedometer, it serves warning that it is time to slow down, or get a bigger speedometer and prepare for the worst.

Instead of slowing down by reducing spending to match income, the government has been "getting bigger speedometers." Since the previous war-time high debt ceiling of $300 billion was adjusted to $275 billion at the end of 1946 fiscal year, the debt ceiling has been stepped up in frequent stages to the latest record-breaking level in order to keep abreast of the Federal Government's continued deficit spending.

While it does not permanently half red-ink spending and consequent borrowing by government, the debt ceiling serves as a warning light along the road of fiscal soundness and curtails loose spending techniques at Washington. Repeated raising of the debt ceiling by Congress focuses attention upon alarming fiscal trends represented by the climbing national debt. The ceiling also curtails the amount available for "backdoor spending"—when Congress authorizes agencies to "borrow" from the U. S. Treasury instead of securing funds through the normal Congressional appropriations route.

The new $309 billion debt ceiling level represents a potential per capita burden of $1,670 for every man, woman and child in the United States. "The reference to loading debt upon the younger generation is more than a figure of speech," points out the New Jersey Taxpayers Association. "While today's taxpayers are paying more than $10 billion a year in interest costs alone, the younger generation may expect an even larger burden reaching far into the future."

THE LABOR LOG

By Bernard Lasky

W. Willard Wirtz, secretary of the U. S. Department, announced that "The Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training of the Labor Department has the responsibility, through a Congressional mandate, to bring management and labor together for the purpose of developing apprenticeship programs."

Edward E. Goshen, director of the bureau, has compiled a helpful booklet outlining the objectives of the project. He opens his theme with a question, "Why the national apprenticeship program?"

The answer, according to the booklet, is "The greatest single investment we as a people have is in our skills and know-how. It is imperative that we guard this investment carefully. Our future progress and strength as a nation depends upon a conscious concern with our manpower resources—their training and ultimate skills."

"These resources play an important role in the daily life of every American family. We depend upon them for our housing, our public utilities, and our transportation. They assist in making possible our health services, and help operate our communication systems. They produce and repair our automobiles, telephones, television sets, radios, refrigerators, vacuum cleaners and washers."

The booklet is well presented, but there is always the question of unions that limit apprenticeships. No matter what laws are made to cover labor organizations there still remains—in the building trades—the father and son aspect in accepting apprentices into the skilled trades. This system has precluded many from the opportunity to develop natural talents because of the fact that employment is not available in the trades.

While the Bureau's principal functions are to encourage the establishment of sound apprenticeship and training programs and to provide technical assistance to industry in setting up such a program, there is the need for cooperation by the unions if this project is to be successful.

Director Goshen is aware of this fact and points out that "The American apprenticeship system is based on voluntary cooperation among management and labor, industry and government, the shop and the school." He claims "This voluntary cooperation is reflected by national joint management-labor apprenticeship committees. These committees have been set up by national employer associations and international labor unions to work out suggestions and methods for the development and improvement of apprenticeship and other training within respective trades or industries."

The national apprenticeship and training program is one of the best means of developing the natural talents of the youth of America. Today, more than ever, professional and skilled personnel are needed to keep this nation free and independent.

For the youth of America, besides technical training, human relationships are important. Young people like to be treated as individuals and, paradoxically, they still want to be part of the team. They want to do things in the accepted grownup way. In the "day-dreaming" stage, youngsters detest ridicule—they hate to be laughed at.

The aim of the National Apprenticeship and Training Program is to give the youth self-confidence. The plan is to have them accepted as persons in their own right. When they are treated as adults they usually respond with adult behavior.

More important than all this is the full value of citizenship offered by the apprenticeship pro-

JOURNEY TO THE STARS

By JAMES P. GRAZIOSO

Today, seven Americans proudly wear astronaut wings; within ten years the list will be numbered in the hundreds. Especially, the list will grow as we develop a military space capability. That we need a space military force is quite obvious. Lt. Gen. James G. Ferguson, Deputy Chief of Staff, Research and Technology recently stated that, "there can be little doubt that the Soviet Union has military applications in mind for the space region." He quoted Marshal of the Soviet Union Solovovskiy as saying:

"An important problem now is warfare with artificial earth satellites, which can be launched for diverse reasons, even as carriers of nuclear weapons. Soviet military strategy takes into account the use of outer space and aerospace vehicles."

General Ferguson has warned that the Soviet Union, faced with the formidable free world defenses relative to the mediums of air, sea, and land, are turning their attention to space where they see no evidence of applicable free world defense. In this new medium, the Soviet Union may well hope to attain strategic ascendancy. But they can only entertain that hope if we fail to achieve the timely development of military capabilities in space. Both we and the Soviets know that the advent of human space activity exposes an open flank, even though the precise dimensions of this flank are not clearly perceived. Obviously, we cannot afford to ignore such a flank, nor do we propose to do so.

Accordingly, it is the Air Force's objective to develop military capabilities applicable in space which (1) strengthen the general defense posture of the United States, and (2) protect the specific interest of the Nation in the space region. Over the next five years, the Air Force has proposed efforts toward two objectives:

1. To augment, by use of space systems, the existing military capabilities of U. S. terrestrial forces.

2. To develop a military patrol capability for the protection of United States interests in space. Under the first objective of "space systems," General Ferguson named communications satellites and weather satellites. The Air Force has already accomplished much in this area. The second objective "military patrol" was defined by the General as "the ability to determine at all times what is happening in near space, whether there is a threat present, and to deal with it if necessary." He included in this "an improved detection and tracking system, a means of inspecting unidentified space devices, and a means of disabling hostile satellites if this should be required in the national interests."

Any military patrol system would need a space station. Put in low orbit and materials could be sent up and a military space technique could be developed. A space station could be used as a launching point for lunar flights, for research in space, and for observations in astronomy. One important point is that the space station would be our best bet in a rescue operation. If a vehicle was in trouble, it would take a long time for effective help from the earth's surface. From a space station, already traveling at about 18,000 miles per hour, a rescue operation would be much easier. Yet, the Department of Defense has not approved one space program at its level.

gram since the selection of men and women for the program is made possible without regard to race, creed, color, national origin or physical handicap. This—and not Federal troops—should do more for integration than anything else.

Boating Tips...

Each of the familiar buoys shown above has a story to tell. If you haven't been "getting their messages", here's what they mean: 1) Red, even-numbered nun buoys—keep them on your right entering a channel or going upstream (remember: red, right, returning). 2) Black, odd-numbered can buoys—keep them on your left entering a channel from seaward or going upstream. 3) Black-and-white vertical stripes—mid-channel marker which can be passed on either side. 4) Black-and-red horizontal stripes—obstruction marker which should be passed on side indicated by topmost color. For example, if the top color is red, keep the buoy on the right entering a harbor. Clear all buoys by at least 50 feet, caution Mercury boating experts. Also, don't tie up to a buoy—it's a federal offense.

MR. SNITCH...

A FIRM employing thirty or more clerk-typists charged with the responsibility of sending out large quantities of mail had a serious loss problem. Two many of the girls were taking stamps for personal use. The personnel manager devised a plan whereby each clerk would have to account for every stamp used. Each girl now received a stipulated sum for the purchase of the stamps she uses. She can buy only sufficient postage for the number of pieces of mail to be sent out that day. There's a slight manpower involvement but this is more than offset by the savings. Last year the firm effected a savings of $2,000 just by controlling its use of the 5-cent stamp.

A DRESS manufacturer forbid his daughter to go out with a cutter in his factory. "I want you to marry well, he told her, if you continue to see that young man I'll fire him." Not wanting the cutter to lose his job, she obeyed her father but when daddy introduced her to a wealthy customer with marriage as the objective, daughter got even. She let the man set her up in a New York apartment and it wasn't long before all her father's customers and friends knew she was a rich man's mistress.

SUMMER TIPS

You cannot fall off a cliff sking on water, but you can still come to a sudden stop. Water sking accidents and drownings are on the increase along with the growing popularity of the sport. Safety rules for novices and experts alike are: Be sure that you can swim; don't ski in rough waters; keep well away from other boats and swimmers; watch for half submerged objects; make sure that your boat operator is experienced; if possible make sure there is an observer aboard; never fasten tow rope around your body; if you start to fall throw tow rope clear; remember that some skis may be used for emergency floats; raise arm as a signal for pickup.

Some bathers refuse to learn the cold facts about unfamiliar waters until it is too late. Always take time to find out about currents, submerged obstacles, undertows, depth, water temperatures and other conditions before going into new bodies of water.

It is not living next to nature that gets many campers in trouble; it's the comforts of civilization they bring with them. Such comforts as oil-fired heating and cooking units and various appliances, defective or improperly handled, cause many serious camping accidents as do dull or defective knives, axes, and other necessary camping tools.

Among the more effective forms of protection against poison ivy are clothes, gloves, and common sense. Keep arms, legs and other parts of the body well covered when walking in the woods or in underbrush. Wear gloves when handling wild vegetation.

SCHOOL VACATION BEGINS

DRIVE SAFELY

Kids at Play DRIVE CAREFULLY

School's end and summer vacation eagerly looked forward to by our youngsters, is not always the happy season expected because of some small careless act or infraction of laws enacted for our safety. Our children are a precious charge; their safety a cherished duty. Summer vacation can be a happy time for all of them if a few simple rules are followed.

The first great hazard occurs in the days preceding the celebration of Independence Day. The 4th of July holiday need not leave injury and death in its wake if parents insist on the "safe and sane" observance of this glorious reminder of our nation's birth. The buying, making or using of firecrackers or other type explosives is forbidden in this town.

"DO'S" AND "DON'TS"

Don't: Destroy school property, parks or playgrounds.

Do: Participate in P.A.L. activities, such as Baseball, Teen-Age Dancing, Picnics and Visits to Big League Games. All Free!

Don't: "Hitch" rides or accept rides from any strangers who ask for directions.

Do: Write down license number of the car of any stranger who offers you a ride or candy.

Don't: Play alone in deserted lots or alleys.

Do: Take your friends along to the playground or the store.

Don't: Swim alone. Make certain a friend is near in the event you get a cramp or become over tired.

Do: Swim only where you are properly protected by life guards.

Don't: Impair your life or the life of your friends by the careless handling of air rifles or fire arms of any kind.

Do: Discourage any friend who suggests playing with explosives of any kind.

SCHOOL'S OUT - drive carefully!

MR. SNITCH...

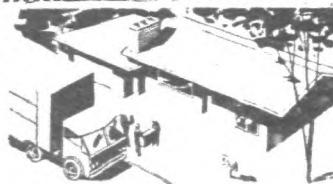

UPON his return from the hospital the first question the old man asked was, "Where is my dog?" For many years the man and dog had been inseparable companions. But when he went to the hospital his daughter got rid of the faithful pet. Now, in answer to her father's question she lied and said the dog had died. The old man missed his pet and took lonely walks where he had formerly walked the dog. On one such walk he saw an elderly lady with a small dog. When they came within a few yards of each other, the dog started to tug at the leash and whine. The old man dropped to his knees and caught the dog close to him and the dog licked his tear streaked face with joy. The old lady looked on in amazement. "I found him, she explained, he was half starved and dirty. I've nursed him back to health and I love him very much." The two elderly people continued the walk together. The old man, realizing his daughter had thrown the dog out, decided to let the old lady keep him. But they soon found they had more than the dog in common. Next month the couple will be married and a new will cutting the daughter off will be made.

BECAUSE she loved him she had yielded in a moment of weakness. He had gone away and weeks passed with no word from him. She felt cheap and humiliated. She decided to put him out of her mind but when he appeared at the coffee shop where she worked, she felt a hatred toward this man who had seduced her. Seeing the rat poison on the shelf, she was tempted to put it in his coffee. Terrified to have even considered such a thing, her hands shook as she gave him the coffee. He took her trembling hand and said, "I must see you." "What made you come here? I never want to see you again," she answered. But when she left the coffee shop he was waiting and walked along beside her. "Please give me another chance, he pleaded, I acted like a heel and I'm sorry." That was several months ago. Now they are happily married but the young bride has asked Mr. Snitch if she should tell her husband about the rat poison. Mr. Snitch's advice is "no, give the marriage a chance."

Hundreds of playful boaters rock and roll themselves into a watery crisis each year. Standing up in small boats, rocking them, or indulging in horseplay accounts for a large number of tragic boating accidents annually.

about insurance

Fact 1: Fire insurance alone on home and contents is not enough. Your home could be destroyed by windstorm, explosion or other hazard.

Fact 2: Theft coverage of your possessions, at home and away, should be included.

Fact 3: A lawsuit judgment against you could cost you everything you own. You need liability insurance.

Fact 4: You get all this and more in one Homeowners policy with one low premium!

LIZ MEETS CONNIE

MISS JUNIOR YOUTH WEEK of Clifton, New Jersey, was the title bestowed upon Liz Pagliocca, a student at Clifton's Woodrow Wilson High School. Miss Pagliocca, a former resident of Hoboken, was crowned by Chester Calvert and presented with a trophy by Arthur Argauer. She sang "Too Many Rules" at the 27-act talent show held in observance of youth week. To celebrate having been chosen for the title, Miss Pagliocca, accompanied by her family and a group of friends, visited the Copacabana in New York City where she met and is shown with her favorite singing star, Miss Connie Francis. Liz hopes to be a singing star herself some day.

Why did you buy a house?

WHEN YOU decided to buy a house, you were probably thinking primarily of your wife and children.

You wanted to be sure that they would have a nice home to live in. Another concern was for the environment in which your children would grow up. You wanted good schools, play space, nice neighbors.

These are also good reasons for making sure that your family can keep it if something should happen to you.

Metropolitan offers several ways for you to make sure that your family will be left with a deed instead of a debt.

A Metropolitan Mortgage Term Plan is one way. It is designed to cover the usual type of home mortgage, which decreases as payments on the principal are made. The face amount of the insurance also decreases annually, so that the level premium is relatively inexpensive.

Another way, more satisfactory for most younger men, is a Metropolitan Whole Life policy. This is permanent insurance.

In addition to assuring that funds will be available for payment of the mortgage in the event of death, it also builds cash and loan values which furnish a nest egg to help take care of payments in case of illness or other emergency.

And because the face value does not decrease, it can be used for continuing protection or be fitted into your retirement plans after the mortgage is paid off.

Let your Metropolitan Representative help you choose a plan for your family situation and budget. He will be pleased to give you the facts about this insurance. So, why not call him today.

NO HOUSE BURGLAR PROOF SOME INVITE PROWLERS

Chief John W. Budd, Phillipsburg, president of the New Jersey State Association of Chiefs of Police Inc., said the purpose of Burglary Prevention Week, June 30 through July 6, is to educate homeowners on the simple precautions they can take to make their homes or apartments safe from would-be prowlers. Although preventing burglaries is a year-round job said Chief Budd, it is especially important during the summer months when it is the height of the vacation season. This, he stated, is because windows and doors are left open more frequently, and it's the time when people go off without a second thought of taking a few simple precautions to safeguard their property.

Preliminary reports indicate there may have been more than 878,000 burglaries committed in our country last year. This means a burglary was committed every 36 seconds, day and night, throughout the year. With an average property loss of $187 for each burglary, it could mean over $164,000,000 in property losses during 1962.

The sheer volume of these offenses makes police prevention and detection extremely difficult since it would require a policeman to be everywhere at once. Apprehending the criminal is the job of your police department, but the war against burglary can effectively be carried out only with the homeowners full cooperation. People can help their police department by taking a few simple steps to discourage burglars. Chief Budd went on to say, afternoons are a good time for the burglar to work. Many women go out to visit, attend meetings or shop, and the professional housebreaker can work undisturbed. Don't make it too easy for him—report any suspicious looking characters, or door-to-door salesmen without proper credentials to your police department at once. And, always lock your doors when going out, even if only for a minute.

However, night time is still preferred by most burglars. (Approximately 60% of all residential burglaries occur during the evening hours.) Since burglary is a crime of stealth, chances of being seen or heard then are usually much less. It's easier for the prowler to tell whether someone is home during evening hours too. Light is the burglar's worst enemy and very few will risk entering if a lamp or two are left burning when you leave. They usually won't take the chance and, there's always a dark house down the street.

Chief Budd has suggested that a few dollars invested in some safety devices could mean thwarting a burglary attempt and returning to your home and valuables, just as you left them!

To fool the would-be prowler who may be canvassing the neighborhood looking for a dark house, an automatic timer should be connected to a lamp in the home. In the evening, this device will turn the lamp "on," then turn it "off" several hours later, creating the appearance someone is home. Since burglars prefer to work in the dark, light is an effective deterrent that may mean the prowler will pass your home in favor of a more likely spot down the street.

Locks are one assurance that'll slow down any burglar, if not discourage him completely. Most homes have good locks on their front doors, but often a flimsy device that can be opened with a hairpin or skeleton key on the rear and basement entrances. Substantial pin-tumbler cylinder locks should be installed on all outside entrances. Don't protect your $20,000 home with a $1 lock!

When leaving on a vacation, be sure to advise your local police department as to how long you expect to be away. Most departments keep a file on empty homes and will check them periodically every day. It's also a good idea to tell them where a key may be obtained in your absence and where you may be reached in the event of an emergency.

Don't forget to call the dairy, cleaners, newspaper, etc. to stop any deliveries that might be made during your absence. (Or, arrange to have your newspaper forwarded to your vacation spot to keep up on all the local happenings.)

Talk to your postman or a neighbor to hold your mail until you return. A bulging mail box is an indication the family's away. Also, ask your neighbor if he'll look after things in your absence....sweep your sidewalk, pick up circulars that may be left on your porch, feed your pet, etc.

Don't close those curtains or blinds completely. Closed blinds keep the sun out, but also make an effective screen for burglars. Be sure you do not leave cash lying around, keep it in a bank; it's also a good idea to place securities and other valuables in a safety deposit box.

Chief Budd urges everyone to think before leaving their homes. Be sure you're doing everything you can do to discourage a burglar.

MR. SNITCH overheard two teen-aged girls talking about a third (not present) over their cokes at the sweet shop. Said one, "Gee, did you see her eye?" "Yeah, and that big welt on her thigh. I wouldn't have the nerve to take gym and show that," the girl commented. "You said it," answered her friend, "especially when everyone knows it was her boy friend who beat her up." The other girl added, "Well, she sure had it coming to her. Imagine telling her boy friend she was spending the night with a girl friend and then having him catch her in the drive-in with that guy from the service station."

A BIRD LOVER, the neighbors called him. But one resident was appalled when she realized the man was putting bread out in his yard, not because he loved birds, but, because he had a pet siamese cat. Catching the birds was his way of exercising his cat

A MEMBER of an exclusive social set, this guy is trying to keep up even though he lacks the do re mi. He told the gang he couldn't take a vacation because of the pressure of business. But his wife was going away for a month, he said. Last week, one of the men in their crowd went to a convention. Dark glasses failed to disguise the woman he saw pushing a baby buggy. Supposed to be on vacation Mrs. Social Climber was really working as a governess at the shore resort.

BASIC RULES FOR SWIMMING POOLS

During the hot and sultry summer days and nights, swimming pools are inviting places for all types of people--and precisely therein lie their dangers. Toddlers and children are drawn irresistibly to them by the lure of their cool, clear depths. Older of all ages, with dolphin diligence, indulge themselves--frequently with an abandoned assurance which their prowess as swimmers fails to justify. Unathletic individuals flagrantly overreach their strength and stamina, sometimes with serious, even tragic, consequences.

The safe and full enjoyment of swimming pools is bound up with good sense and good behavior. When pools are well kept and cleansed, they are a source of refreshment and pleasure to those who use them intelligently. When neglected, they could become veritable sink-holes of infection; when incautiously used, water pits of danger and distress.

Pools are only as safe as the people who use them are sensible. Keep this in mind as you plunge light-heartedly in, or your pleasures may be short-lived, is the advice of Dr. Michael S. Newjohn of the Medical Society of New Jersey.

The next big one you look for will be yourself. Fishing, one of the more popular leisure time sports, can be hazardous to neophytes, so here are a few precautions for anglers: Know your safety rules for handling watercraft; fishing offshore; step cautiously when wading in streams, submerged rocks are slippery; plus other anglers plenty of room; watch those hooks when casting; always carry hooks in a safe container; put them away after each cast.
