South Bergen Couple Gets Good News From Senator Case: They Can Remain

The good offices of U. S. Senator Clifford P. Case are responsible for the real happiness of a South Bergen family.

Edwin Hansen, 33, a Danish acrobat, had reason to jump for joy this week when Case announced that the acrobat and his family will be allowed to become permanent residents of this country.

The family has been living in the United States for several years now and the Hansen's home is the recreation center for the local community.

When he made his application six years ago for admission to the United States his home was in East Hanover. He set up his future home in this country as a visitation.

He and his wife, Margaret, are both Danish by birth and have been living here since 1959. They have two daughters, both of whom are American citizens. The family has never had any trouble with immigration laws, but because of the nature of the acrobat's work, it was feared that he would not be allowed to remain permanently in the United States.

The Hansen's home is the recreation center for the local community and the family has been very active in community affairs. They have been very helpful in various charitable organizations and have always been a credit to the country.

South Bergen Couple Gets Good News

The Hansen's have another reason to celebrate this week. They have been notified that they have been selected to receive the 1990 South Bergen Community Award.

The award is given to individuals who have made outstanding contributions to the community. The Hansen's have been selected for their contributions to the community, particularly in the area of recreation.

They have been very active in various charitable organizations and have always been a credit to the country.

"THE LEOPARD'S SHADOW" by H. E. Bates
Readers whose eyes light up when they see a new novel by H. E. Bates won't be disappointed with his latest offering. There are no cutesy plot gimmicks in "The Leopard's Shadow," which will appeal to those who like intellectual significance in their fiction.

Mr. Bates is the author of "The Longest Journey" and he has created a story that will make you think.

In the novel, a woman named Constance, is about to marry a man named Jim. She loves him, but she is not sure if she should go through with it.

Constance's father, Mr. Martin, is a wealthy businessman who wants his daughter to marry a man from a good family. He thinks that Jim is not good enough for Constance.

Mr. Martin tries to talk Constance out of marrying Jim, but she is determined to go through with it. She loves Jim and knows that he is the right man for her.

In the end, Constance marries Jim and they are happy together.

Mr. Bates is a master of character development and he has created a rich, complex story that will keep you engaged from beginning to end.

Scrapping Of Scott Ship Spells Finish to Eyesore Along River

By EMILE PIELLS

Rapidly forming from the land ship which has been beached on the Belleville side of the Passaic River, opposite Arlington, bound for more than 30 years, is the familiar sight of a large ship being cut up in pieces and carted away for scrap, to make way for a new state parkway (Route 29) which will follow the river to Route 3 for the present, and eventually to a point beyond Paterson.

The Frederic Scott Ship has been in use as a landing stage and later as a Sunday excursion boat. It was later converted to a dock and then sold to the State of New Jersey, which turned it into a floating museum. The State Department of Transportation used it as a substitute for the Essex County Park Commission's old steamboat, which was sold to the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

In light of the fact that the State has decided to remove the ship from the shore to a point near the Paterson Bridge, the Frederic Scott Ship has been sold to a private concern for scrap and is now on its way to the Paterson Bridge.

Although the State has decided to remove the ship from the shore to a point near the Paterson Bridge, the Frederic Scott Ship has been sold to a private concern for scrap and is now on its way to the Paterson Bridge.

Unfortunate Rivers

The Passaic and Hackensack Rivers are two of the most unfortunate rivers in this country. They have been described as having a highly sinister effect on the health of the population. The Passaic River, for instance, has been said to be an open sewer, while the Hackensack River is said to be a river of death.

The rivers are afflicted with a tremendous amount of industrial pollution. Factories and mills along the banks of these rivers discharge their waste products into the water, causing a great deal of harm to the environment and to the health of those who live near them.

The government has taken steps to clean up the rivers, but progress has been slow. The rivers continue to be a health hazard to those who rely on them for food and water.

Meyer's on College

Governor Meyer's sounded fair warning last week, in a speech before Monmouth College, that our college facilities are fast becoming overcrowded by the population.

Pointing out that in 1971 we will have 70,000 men and women of college age who have but 250,000 beds, the Governor declared we will have to triple our facilities. The present system is inadequate for the needs of the students.

Education must be improved and expanded in order to meet the growing demand for higher education.

Good Summer Reading

A young man by the name of Bill Kearing has written a book, "The War That Made the President," which is said to give a new perspective on the events that led to the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932.

The book is well-researched and provides a fresh look at the political landscape of that time. It is a must-read for anyone interested in American history and politics.

Read Hawk's Corner Today

New York, with vibrators in New Jersey. The book is the story of his short but eventful career and how he broke the first and only murder case on the waterfront and how he got into trouble in his crime hunting for the Anti-Crime Committee. A good book for you to read this summer. Buy it or borrow it. But read it!
