An Important Election

The decision of Sheriff Joseph J. Johnson and State Senator R. J. Job to become Democrats instead of Republicans has created a dilemma for those who felt that for sure was their only true, honest, and just, although non-partisan man was the Republican party.

Some questions might be raised during the campaign, just as they were raised in the other side in the Senate where Johnson was the leading candidate. Perhaps it is too much to associate with men who have been known to lead in the Democratic party. If so, I will not be able to fully share the dissatisfaction of some people. Is it not true that the Democratic party is more interested in the personal and political development of a man than in his ideas and principles?

The office of the sheriff is one of the most important in any county. It is a position of trust and responsibility, and one that requires a man who is able to fulfill his duties with honesty and integrity. It is a position that requires a man who is able to lead by example, and who is able to work for the benefit of all people, regardless of their political affiliation.

Johnson's background and experience make him a strong candidate for the position. He has a proven record of service to the community, and he has shown a commitment to the principles of the Democratic party. He is a man who is dedicated to serving the people, and who is willing to work for the betterment of the community.

As for Joe and Gill Job, it is difficult to determine whether they should continue to pursue their political career. While they have shown a commitment to the Democratic party, it is not clear whether they have the necessary experience and knowledge to serve as sheriff and county clerk. It is important to consider the future of our county, and to ensure that we have the best possible candidates for these important positions.

Everythin You Always Wanted To Know About Mutual Funds

By Gay Savino Jr.

Real estate investment trusts (REITs) have granted an increasing amount of attention over the recent years due to a variety of reasons. REITs provide an opportunity for the investor to participate in the real estate market without purchasing real estate directly. REITs are formed for the purpose of owning and operating real estate, and many are publicly traded. The ownership of REITs is divided into shares, which can be bought and sold like any other stock. REITs are regulated by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) and are required to distribute at least 90% of their earnings to shareholders in the form of dividends.

The future of the REIT market is bright, with experts forecasting continued growth. REITs are considered a stable investment, especially in times of economic uncertainty. They provide regular income in the form of dividends and have the potential for capital appreciation as property values rise.

In conclusion, REITs are a valuable addition to any investor's portfolio. They offer a unique opportunity to invest in real estate without the need to own property directly, and they provide a steady stream of income and potential for capital appreciation. As the REIT market continues to grow, it is likely that these investments will become even more popular among investors in the coming years.

Dickinson Leads Fight For Income Tax Bill

South Bergen, which has been the center of a fight on the tax reform action recently recommended by the state commission, now has a leader fighting in its favor.

He is Mayor Herman W. Freeman, who organized the action, and publisher of the Bergen County Democrat newspaper, in the other chairman.

The committee will work for enactment of the state income tax.

Other leading members include: Paul W. McDonald of Ridgefield Park, who is president of the League of Women Voters; Frank McCann of Englewood Cliffs, who is former St. Sen. and deputy state commissioner of Community Affairs; Robert J. Driehaus, who is former St. Sen. and a member of the League of Women Voters; James S. Kerney Jr., editor of the New Jersey Journal; and Herbert W. Perry, Municipal Clerk, who is former St. Sen. and deputy state commissioner of Community Affairs.

The committee is forming a non-profit corporation, with the Secretary of State, and renting an office at 138 East Main Street in Newark that will operate under the Tax Policy Committee.

Boro Firemen

Boro firemen attended a rally held by Frank W. Nisi, Jr., manager of the Transportation Authority at the headquarters of the New Jersey Legislature.

Nisi showed various ways in dealing with fires in the streets and other areas. A present was the demonstration of the fire fighting techniques.

Taxpayers To Organize Co.

“Not only does this grossly not demagoguery,” they said, as trustees, and renting an office at 138 East Main Street in Newark that will operate under the Tax Policy Committee.
