Career exploration to be discussed

Career specialists report that adults will make career transitions in the course of their working lives. These transitions require an understanding of the career decision making process, plus a valid knowledge of one's skills, interests, values, the job market and growth industries.

The essentials of career exploration and decision making will be discussed in a workshop which will be held on Wednesday, March 18 at 8:30 pm at the North Arlington Youth Center, just behind through Hall and the Library on Ridge Road. "In Career Decisions: Be All You Want To Be" participants will explore the process of career development. They will examine an analysis of personal values, interests and skills and develop a plan for pursuing career interests. The fundamentals of changing careers will also be explored.

North Arlington resident Kate Paradis, MA, CCM, is a specialist in women's issues and career development. Ms. Paradis believes that work must be enjoyable, satisfying and financially rewarding. Women always tell me that they are trying to figure out what they should be when they grow up. I respond that none of us really ever grow up, and that our responsibility to ourselves is to determine what work will satisfy us. What causes us to feel satisfied will be different for each of us and might change at different life stages."

This workshop is presented as part of a series Paradis has designed and presented for women only. The first workshop in the series will be held on Wednesday, April 16, at 7 p.m. The topic: "Life Planning - Where Am I Going?" Helps participants to explore personal and professional issues. A plan will be developed to help you pursue your interests and reach some of your goals. For more information or to register call 244-1968.

Scouts enjoy stargazing and trailblazing

By Debra Moore
Carlstadt Girl Scouts spent a weekend camping at a Bergen Council owned camp in Sullivan County, New York.

Girls from all troop levels, Brownies to Senior level scouts, enjoyed the weekend in spite of the rain. Friday night was enhanced by stargazing at a beautiful star filled sky. After hiking and trailblazing, the girls spent a rainy Saturday afternoon making crafts and playing games in their cabins. Saturday evening was spent making a banner that is to be displayed at the camp. Troops from all over the county design banners and hang them proudly in the main building to be admired by visiting scouts. The efforts put into the banners reflect the friendship and camaraderie shared by the scouts.

Late nights and early mornings brought back exhausted but happy scouts and leaders.

All had fun and look forward to next year's camping trip!

Some important points in this approach to law enforcement. In any approach to law enforcement, you must be able to make a decision which could make our lives better, and we are all interested in that. It costs more than a couple of dollars to run a law enforcement agency.
