COLUMBIA
HIGH SCHOOL

South Orange and Maplewood

New Jersey

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands . . . One nation, indivisible . . . with liberty and justice for all.

This building, the product of many thoughtful minds and skillful hands, is an expression of the will of the people to provide full opportunity to all who enter its halls, for the development of ability and character—that they may become sturdy, righteous citizens inspired by the ideal of unselfish service.

Dedication

As we present our Mirror of 1942, we students, aware that this nation is now part of a conflict which challenges us to defend with all our energies the principles we cherish, are kindled with a stronger and more deeply rooted appreciation of democracy.

Democracy is not merely a political term bandied about by demagogues; it is a way of life that has grown out of the simple dream of man to exalt himself to decent living with his fellow beings.

Viewing the history of the world, we perceive the relentless struggle of man toward greater freedom. As soon as man had risen from the darkness of the cave, he began to realize his unique endowment—the human mind, with which he might conceive and construct great things. He later tore himself from the shackles of feudal degradation; he dethroned the tyrants who ruled by "divine right"; he awakened to the cardinal elements which would give sanctity to society, dignity to the individual. Today we are embarking on a crusade to defend these heritages.

Enlightenment, because it gives to men the realization of their potentialities, the right to investigate and consider truth, leads them to the inevitable desire for freedom and democracy. In our own land the school has been the chief agency for making men capable and worthy of freedom. Thus, education, from the little red school house of our ancestors to the well-equipped school like our own Columbia, is one of the most vital symbols of democracy.

It is for this democracy that we are fighting today. It is important that we offer ourselves to the tasks of preserving it. We will defend it, because it has given to us the meaning and purpose of life. No mighty potentate, no brutal army can subjugate a people who have been free. Freedom is too glorious to sacrifice on the altar of self-concern. We must preserve it not only for ourselves but for our posterity.

And so, since education and democracy are inseparable, we, the class of 1942, solemnly dedicate our yearbook as a symbol of our regard for this way of life to

Senior History

As we reflect upon our years at Columbia, we realize that for those opportunities of being able to develop in a normal atmosphere, of growing under the guidance of an able faculty, and of being able to participate in all sorts of activities which would help us to become well rounded adults, ready for the challenges of democracy—for the freedom to have these advantages, and the opportunities of an institution like Columbia, our nation is now engaged in a stern struggle.

In Columbia, a typical American high school, we have had many enriching experiences in our extra-curricular activities. We were informed in the beginning of this year of some of the imperfections in our school life. Our lack of social get-togethers was an acute problem in so vast a school as ours. Realizing this fact, we had a "Senior" dance which was extremely successful.

We were reminded of another fault which existed in our School Council administration. There was little satisfactory contact between the homerooms and the central body. We strived for better homeroom representation. This attempt culminated in many fine suggestions from homerooms. The formation of the Spanish Club, the school dance, and the competent management of the defense stamp sale were notable outgrowths of our work.

This was the first year for the school activities ticket program to go in effect. It was a tremendous success and broadened the opportunities for student participation in extra-curricular activities.

Our histrionic attempts have given us a great deal of enjoyment and profit. Present Arms was a gay extravaganza in which most of the class took part. In contrast to the frolics of the junior year, our senior play was a serious endeavor to offer the finest we could in dramatic talents. We did that extremely fine and absorbing modern play, High Tor.

Our athletic prowess was not up to former years. Our football team lost most of its games; however, from these very losses we were invited to realize that there is much more to a football game than victory; there is also the keenness of contest, and the joy of school spirit and enthusiasm.

This year is a chaotic one. Already in school air raid drills we have had the opportunity to manifest our ability to cope with arising problems by responding intelligently to the requirements. We know that we shall face many problems. We hope that we may carry on that tradition of adaptability that we have gained in this school. In whatever we do to preserve our American heritage, we shall never forget the years of fun and "growing up" we have had in Columbia under the astute and friendly guidance of Mr. Threlkeld and the faculty.

Who's Who in '42

When Bill Taylor skipped second grade, he got the biggest thrill of his life. Since then he's resolved to keep out of the clink, because he hates cops.

Reeve Stone was astounded when he found out he could talk.

We hope Jim Landers doesn't eat onions, because Jane Vanderbilt can't stand them. From all appearances, Jim must stay away from them.

If you see lots of scribbling in a history book, it probably was "Margy" Torbert's. She's been trying to stump Mr. Johnson for three years now.

Anne Scott wants to drive through New York City some day.

Absent-minded Catherine Chimenedes has a grudge against flat tires.

According to the oracles, Bill Buss is going to retire at twenty-one, if the Army doesn't get him first.

From the same source we have been informed that Fred Witzel is going to be a bouncer in Bill Davidson's night club.

From his vast experiences, John Campbell is giving advice to the lovelorn.

George Hildum loves to work on his car, but he says he's too soft-hearted for his own good.

Foolish Bill Butler is looking for a woman. Why not help him out, girls?

Buddy Young and Lucia Weber seem to have a swell time talking to each other in homeroom. Buddy claims to be a crazy jerk. Who's arguing?

Boy, was "Chief" Mason scared when he almost fell out of the steam-shovel in the Senior Play! By the way, "Chief" wants to be a philanthropist!

Drummin' George Rebaza claims that he's going to build a better rocket ship than Flash Gordon's.

Jack Logue and "Sandy" MacNicol can't stand red Plymouth convertibles.

Anyone can see that Roger Bachman detests blondes. Gee, he must lead a miserable life.

Al Pfaff's leading characteristic is "Petie" Peterson.

Neil Geltzeiler's longing ambition is to lay an egg.

Bud Reeve despises women . . . drivers.

Jim Larkey's favorite pastime is philandering.

Jack Felderman and his able Dance Committee put over with a bang the first dance that the school had seen in two years. Because of the lack of support and spirit in the past, the dance was not expected to be a success, but the school came to its senses and turned out in a gay crowd. The floor show was highlighted by Jack Felderman's and Beverly Russen's jitterbugging and by "Chief" Mason's somewhat jumbled medley of popular songs.

THE SCHOOL DANCE

Education is the best defense of democracy

Kernels From The Cob

The other night we were browsing through a copy of an unabridged dictionary in search of some escape reading when we came upon this definition of a Senior: "That which it is every Junior's life ambition to become." Profoundly shocked by such candor we took a mild stimulant and proceeded to pound our typewriter in righteous indignation. Something must be done to save the Sophomores and Juniors from such confusion and disillusionment.

INTRODUCTION

You'd never believe it, but we were once Sophomores and Juniors, too. Not both at once, for we are great believers in natural sequence. However, having had such valuable experience, we very magnanimously give you the following guiding lights with assorted real-life illustrations. Follow them religiously, kiddies, and the Front Office will remain always but a remote outpost of discipline.

Admonition No. 1: Learn immediately the precise location of Columbia High School and all of its important architectural properties such as: (1) number of floors; (2) situation of stairways; (3) the elevator, which is not for public use.

Case Illustration No. 1—Joe Fog, Class of '42. He was a Soph. at the time and he had been assigned to a study in CB. It was the first week of school and little Joe had been so nervous that he was unable to eat. Consequently Joe had never even seen CB; and not having had a full course of Sophomore English, he couldn't talk well enough to ask for directions to the hidden recesses of his study hall.

Result—Two Seniors named Stanley and Livingston found Joey three days later floating on a piece of driftwood in the swimming pool and ravenously eating page 96 of Silas Marner.

Admonition No. 2: Do not take signs or posters too literally. Advertising placards are used to caution or suggest, but they are not commands or imperative requests. For instance, the letters e-x-i-t do not mean it is necessary to leave right away. Or must you go?

Case Illustration No. 2—Ima Stoop, Class of '42. She was following a guide through the lunchroom one day, when she saw a sign that pleaded for decorum by asking:

DO YOU WANT FACULTY CONTROL?

The guide didn't realize that Ima was missing until an hour later when the Traffic Committee discovered her standing in front of the poster screaming loudly, "No, no, I wouldn't like faculty control. No, no, a thousand times no!"

Result—Ima goes to a special little school every morning all by herself in a white bus with bars on the windows. Her classmates have to wear straight-jackets.

Admonition No. 3: Textbooks are to be used for study and not for anything else. They should be carefully covered with a substantial protective material, preferably armor plate. Don't throw them, eat them, or substitute them for first base.

Case Illustration No. 3—Homer Zilch, Class of '42. He lost his girl and disconsolately turned to athletics. After making the baseball team, he decided to practice every day. One afternoon he discovered that homeplate had been washed away in the rain. Putting his algebra book in its place, Homer told the boys to get on with the game. But when Homer came to bat the umpire called everything a strike, and Homer—who is usually a calm little fellow—threw homeplate at the ump and hit him square in the eye.

Result—Homer went back to girls, his book went down to first base, and he flunked algebra two.

Admonition No. 4: Gym class is an enjoyable period of recreation, relaxation, and relief. It is not a series of medieval tortures called calisthenics; nor is it continuous marching followed by a cold shower. Everyone loves gym and there are only two or three thousand people who get excused each year.

Case Illustration No. 4—Penelope McFatt, Class of '42. Penelope weighed three hundred and fourteen pounds in her sophomore year, and the Medical Department, after a thorough examination, decided she was slightly overweight. Pen was immediately placed in a corrective gym class, but she had heard ghastly rumors about corrective and she refused to do anything the instructor suggested. She wouldn't even do a simple five hundred pushups.

Result—In her senior year Penelope McFatt weighed three hundred and thirteen pounds. She lost one pound thinking about the pushups.

Seniors Sneak Sight of Faculty Spree

Hello, there, neighbors. Who are you?

We are the class of '42.

We earned seventy-two points and were graduated,

Which is really remarkable when you consider that we spent most of our afternoons at Gruning's and ate and ate and ated;

And spent most of our evenings being dated or trying to get dated;

So that when homework came due, the teachers frequently waited and waited and waited.

But, in spite of all this, we're pretty hard-boiled.

And now we're going out to make a big impression on the world!

The only trouble is that we're not quite sure in what way to bless the world with our happy presence. The faculty is having a farewell party this evening. Doubtless we can get some good advice there. We'll try to hitch a ride from this beautiful blue station wagon with the tall, dark, and handsome cowboy driving. Well, aren't we in luck! It's stopping, and the driver is none other than Mr. Currier bound for the same party. When asked the reason for the cowboy togs and the six-shooter, he explains that the celebration is to be a wild-west party thrown by Miss Hewitt. It seems that in her capacity as properties chairman of "High Tor," she handled so many firearms that she went gun-crazy; now her favorite recreation is taking pot-shots with a muzzle-loader at empty root-beer bottles. The high-point of the evening is to be when the teachers all line up on one side of the room and use for target practice all the text books that they never agree with. Everybody has been requested to wear clothing of the wild and woolly west. "Well," we exclaim, "Doc Summers ought to love that." The rest of our speech is interrupted by the thunder of hooves, the sharp crack-crack of a six-shooter, and a hearty, "Heigh-o Silver!" as Doc himself gallops by. As he disappears in a cloud of dust, we can hear him shout, "Get a horse! I've had this one ten years and not a retread yet!" Chugging along, we finally arrive and are greeted at the door by Miss Hewitt who hands us each a powder horn full of root-beer and urges us to join the other guests. We listen fascinated, as Mr. Wood reveals a plan for making a substitute for rubber tires out of baked chewing gum. "Well," he demands, "I made a steamshovel once, didn't I? And nobody thought I could do that, either." Still unconvinced, we remember our quest, and cornering Miss Ackerman, who looks very charming as Annie Oakley, we ask her advice about the future. She reveals that her fondest wish is for us to join the foreign service. At this moment, we are grabbed from behind by "two-gun Johnson," illustrious descendant of "Einar the Egg" and "Harald Bluetooth," who waves the Declaration of the Rights of Man and the Citizen in our faces and begins, "When these boys came down off the mountain . . ." We turn a back flip and make our escape only to land on the floor next to Mr. Brosnan and Frau Gates who are crawling along on hands and knees. Mr. Brosnan explains that he is searching for the long-missing English Club constitution. Says Frau Gates, "I'm looking for my glasses, but I can't see a thing. I'd put on my second-best ones to look for the first pair, but I can't seem to remember where I left the second pair, either." Suddenly, a brilliant idea smites us. We can dedicate our future to taking up a collection to buy Frausy a third pair of glasses, the no-lose, no-break, no-bother kind that fit right over the eyeball. But, no—if we're taking up a collection why not buy Mr. Gnagey and Mr. Erickson a new joke book? Going to consult Mr. Erickson about this brainstorm, we discover him in the midst of a crowd of spectators, mounted on a soap-box, dissertating upon how "Gran'pappy Leif" really discovered America. In the next corner, surrounded by an equally large crowd, is Mr. Stirling frantically waving a dollar bill and denouncing the Ku Klux Klan. Next we come upon Mr. Chase showing to Miss O'Harra the fan-shaped coral that Miss Markham discovered and he named the Sallyrandus. Wondering why Miss O'Harra kept confusedly shuffling her feet, we gaze in that direction only to discover that she is wearing one brown and one blue shoe. Ah, the evils of daylight saving time! All this, however, is not helping in the determination of our future; and throwing our eyes about listlessly we spy Mr. Gray diligently plugging away at several papers spread out before him. Now Mr. Gray is our ideal man, so creeping in his direction we steal a glance over his shoulder in order to discover the secret of his genius. Now, at last, it has

Senior Play

Nope, not much left of the "Tor," now. They've hewed it down till there's nothin' left but a mound of dirt and sand.

Well, I'm glad Van's gone. (You know Ray Kerwin acted his part in the Columbia High School senior class production.) Anyway, I'm glad he's not there to see what's left of his beloved mountain.

You see, this is the story. Van Van Dorn had owned High Tor. He loved it as much as any man loves the things closest to him. But Judith (Pretty black-haired Betsy Scott played that part) couldn't understand what Van meant in his love for the "Tor." A job—a job in the factory was what Van should have. But you can't change what's in a man, and Van's lungs would have ached for the clean air of the "Tor" and his eyes would have cried for the sight of that rugged mountain. (That was some mountain. With all those lights and Broadway-like sets it certainly looked like any kill along the Hudson.)

But what could Van do? Those two cheap swindlers, the contractor and the probate judge, had it all set to buy the land for the valuable trap rock. You should have seen the two of 'em plannin' and fightin' over their project. (Tall Jack Felderman played Biggs, and his partner was Chief Mason. You forgot that those boys were just high school students—more like professionals, they seemed.)

The mountain was enchanted, for there was a Phantom Dutch Crew, hidden behind those rocks. And Lise, the girl who would touch reality for a moment and then slip into the shadowy past, met Van and for a short while the vastness of eternity and the strength of reality met. (The Dutch Crew was headed by Dave Ferry and the ethereal Dutch Maiden was played by Ruth Hunsaker.) Into the scene came a venerable Indian who was a close friend of Van's and understood his feeling about the roots he had.

But one man can't conquer the world and Van and Judith had to leave the beloved "Tor." There was something beautiful about the story, something universal.

Senior Will

We, the class of 1942, being in possession of sound mind and body, do declare this statement to be published as our last will and testament.

To the Juniors we bequeath all the accomplishments, benefits, and worldly possessions we have derived from Columbia High School.

Item I: I, George Shealy, leave to Henry Pryor my ability to rip the opposing football team apart.

Item II: I, Vincent Kenny, Esq., leave my share of the Hamilton Kenny trucking business to Dick Yorkey. (Guard it with your life, boy; it's valuable.)

Item III: We, the Yo-Yo fiends of 1941, leave to next year's Seniors the success of spreading a new fad.

Item IV: I, Anne Alpaugh, will to the most fearless and skillful Junior my maroon—or is it red?—jallopy.

Item V: I, John George Campbell, bequeath to Tom Williams my baritone—strictly from hunger—voice.

Item VI: I, Dick "Skimmerhorn" Mason, bequeath my John Barrymore — perhaps Groucho Marx would be better—style of acting to Nick Novak.

Item VII: I, Jane Allen, leave my post as Ambassador of Good Will to The Eastern College to Edith Fettingner.

Item VIII: We, the accomplished wolves of the Senior class, leave our ability to have at least a speaking acquaintance with every girl in school to any Juniors capable of the task.

Item IX: We, the literate Seniors, bequeath "Macbeth" to the all-suffering Juniors. (But is it ours to leave? We've been studying it for two months and are only on the second act.)

Item X: I, Phillis Beattie, leave to Ruth Jacoby my morbid manner of mastering prompting techniques for musicales and melodramas.

Item XI: We, the loyal members of Stan Flink's Quintet, bequeath to five Juniors our haunting refrains.

Item XII: I, Shirley "Drop-a-stitch" Merz, leave to Pat Smith my ability to escape detection while knitting in class.

Item XIII: I, Lester Larsen, will to Dick Hamilton my knack of making any four-wheeled vehicle a traffic menace.

Item XIV: I, Anne Scott, will to Mary Parsons my ability to talk for hours and say nothing.

Item XV: We, the swisher boys, Bud Schwartz and Les Rice, leave our knack of sinking any shot to Bob Roelke and Bob Kuhkle.

Item XVI: I, Dick Reynolds, leave to Jack Haulenbeck, along with my well groomed hair, my ability to churn the swimming pool to steam.

Item XVII: I, Ted "Einstein" Colvin, will to Rex Slauson my vocabulary and my ability to elucidate on the usefulness of frequency modulation. (You may also have a 97 in Physics, Rex.)

Item XVIII: We, the members of the integrated History-English class, bequeath to next year's class the ability to answer any question at any time. Afterthought: Don't be a "vox comata in desertum."

Item XIX: We, the 1942 Mirror Staff, will Doug Pike's trumpet to any Junior who's moving to the North Pole.

Item XX: I, Jack Novascone, bequeath to Bob Wier my ability to make noise anywhere, at anytime.

Item XXI: I, Ruth Hunsaker, leave to Trudy Tuzik my call of the theatre.

Item XXII: We, the Senior girls who eat near the outside door of the lunchroom, leave to any Juniors capable of handling their men our advantageous view of the boy's lunchroom.

Item XXIII: I, George Purdue, leave to next year's Council and its President the further improvement of the Activities Ticket, the stimulation of interest in the Council, and the successful promotion of a School Dance.

Item XXIV: I, Norma Bartman, bequeath to Betty Keller my——. But what can I bequeath? She's got everything, too.

Item XXV: I, Howie Roman, leave to Wally Oleson, Cal Seib, and Al Kaufman my ability to "beat out the blues and boogie-woogie."

Item XXVI: We, Al Crimmins and Niel Geltzeiller, leave to the Juniors the memory of the "Stroker A. C."—Henry C. Gray, Faculty Adviser.

Item XXVII: We, the Class of 1942, bequeath to next year's Seniors, Juniors, and Sophomores the whole school—its halls and rooms, and the memory of the joyous years spent there.

Senior Prophecy

Ah—Choo!! This is wha—ah—choo!! Two sneezes, one more to go. This is what I get for digging into these dusty old manuscripts and ledgers. I always was allergic to dust. Oh, oh, here it comes. Ah—choo!! Oops! There go all the papers! Wait a minute, what's this—"Columbia High School Senior Prophecy—1942." Hmm, this is 1956 so figuring $11 \times 10 \times 2 \times Y^{15}$ through factoring plus log 1569—1942 would be fifteen years ago. Let's see this first item.

"A year's practice at calling people to attention should send George Purdue into the army."

"Judy St. Clair, despite her talents, will find romance more important. She'll probably change her name to—?"

Too bad, a corner is missing there.

"Football is Marlin Mackenzie's great love; but drama runs it a close second."

Why, that must be Mac Mackenzie who's master of ceremonies now on the "Variety Quiz" show. Comedians Bob Acheson and Jack Novascone have ushered in a new era in the laugh world by their acquisition of a little man to take over Yehudi's monopoly on switching off ice-box lights. Remember High Tor and "You could see ri—ght thru' em"? The rest of the program is just as top notch with Joan Drury singing sweetly and solidly, Dave Ferry tripping up to whip off the commercials, and Ray Kirwin directing the Shebang.

"Bud Schwartz and Les Rice will be loyal to sports."

Les actually went to Hollywood to make a basketball short—and stayed there. He was billed as "Young America's threat to Tyrone Power." Bud fulfilled that prophecy. He's coach at Columbia University today. What a baseball team, let alone basketball!

"No one need worry about the two Scotts, Betsey and Ann, nor about Ken Lewis. 'Beauty hath charms,' you know."

It certainly hath. Betsey, Ann, Ken, Lucia Weber and Helen Szikora (their work as hostesses in the United States Army over) are keeping audiences coming with their lecture entitled, "Our Boys."

"Dick Mason and Jack Fedlermann are scheduled to take over when Olson and Johnson retire."

That time the prophet of 1942 answered the $64 question. Dick and Jack, with Joan Harrocks to aid in the hilarity, are now running out of titles after the fifth edition of their original hit.

Original reminds me that opening tonight in a new play written, directed, and produced by herself, is Ruth Hunsaker. Unable to decide which field of the drama she preferred, Ruth followed old timer William Saroyen's lead, and entered them all. The modern staging for the production, by the way, is by Ruth Lewit.

"Vince Kenny fitted so perfectly (and I mean perfectly) into the trooper's uniform in High Tor that his destiny as an officer of the law is certain."

Well, uniforms do play a part in Kenny's life. From a humble beginning with one lone, arthritic car, he now has become "The Express King," with a fleet of delivery trucks—and the best-uniformed drivers in the city. When I went to see Kenny, I met two of the tallest men I have ever seen in one room. They were introduced as Bill Buss and Don Oberg.

"Addy Wheeler's talents as a dancer will take her far."

I know an Addy Wheeler. She is the head of the Missing Persons Bureau. The training she received from looking for her locker key in school made her naturally suited for the position. Jack Winnihoff is another person whose training left him but one goal. After cashiering for a year in the school cafeteria, where else could he go but to the United States treasury? And a fine Secretary of the Treasury he's made, too. F. D. R. says he couldn't do without him. Now that the election's over, the budget for 1956 needs attention.

"Science will claim Barbara Titsworth."

She's the famous Dr. Titsworth who has done so much research on the heart.

"Howard Roman's music will keep him on the beam."

This prophet gets better and better. A year's apprenticeship with Duke Ellington fitted Howie to take over the Duke's shoes, and he is fast overtaking his fame.

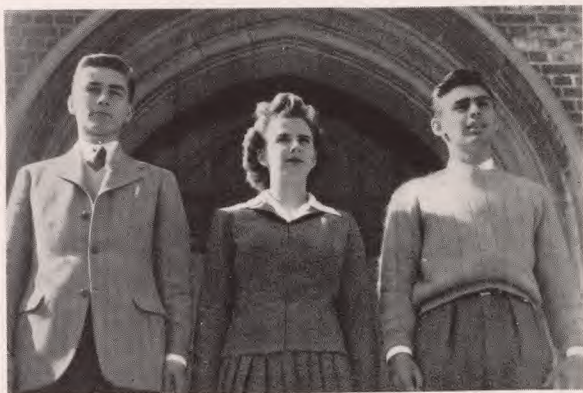

"Anita Geissle, Peggy Ames, and Poppy Jackson are sure to be sport addicts."

Anita certainly is. She and Pat Campbell have broken all bowling records. But after you have bowled lightning and hit airplane beacons, earthly records must be child's play. Peggy and Poppy (their new surnames elude me) lived up to the prophecy, too. They're directing physical education at a western school.

Junior Night

The Class of 1943 presented "On the Beam," a super-original production. The amusing plot centered about the problem of the Barton, Burton, and Burstan Company to continue creating original and clever ideas for their advertising business at a time when ideas had seemed to be exhausted. The head of the concern was so perplexed about his business worries that he lapsed into a coma of weird, fantastic dreams which were pictured most effectively by a group of creative dances. Aroused from his sleep, he found that he had been forced into a partnership with a small-time crook who desired an outlet for his bursting imagination. Under the auspices of this new partner, a quiz and minstrel show were combined in an extremely hilarious manner. Finally the company was launched on a new and successful career that developed from the crook's idea of having a sign that worked not with mechanisms but with human beings. This scene was one of the highlights of the very smoothly running show. It incorporated a "Sadie Hawkins" dance routine. In an impressive finale, in which the entire cast paraded down the stairs of victory, the show came to a close with every one saluting.

The class must be complimented not merely for a clever script, nor just for a splendid cast, but for presenting a fine, polished piece of work. Under the able direction of Mr. Wood, and with the assistance of Miss Walker and Miss Allen in the dance routines, this production incorporated many original ideas among which were the amazing sets, effective lighting, and picturesque dances. The proceeds go toward that worthy purpose, the scholarship fund.

A Sophomore Says . . .

Everyone knows the seniors are a cynical bunch. But not everyone is aware of the fact that they are the laziest class that ever slept through an activities period. Why else would they assign a lowly Soph (me) to contribute an article to the senior yearbook. I have considered it my solemn duty to pass on the above info before I dived (loud splash from offstage) into the deep end of my promised 500 word report. The ghastly secret is out. Now you know.

Setting my tongue well to the left in cheek, I lazily rest my pen to paper in order to chronicle the Sophomore Adventures of the Year. (Trumpet fanfare and a distant rolling of drums.)

September 9, 1941, finds two average Sophs-to-be (such persons do not actually exist, but for the purpose of literary style let them remain unmolested) walking past Feindt's toward a large red-brick building.

"Are you scared?" one asks the other brightly.

"Not a bit! Ha-ha-ha." Soph No. 2 turns a pale green face toward his companion as his unconvincing laughter trails hollowly from his lips. Do these stalwart lads succeed in overcoming their fears? Will they enter Columbia's halls in one healthy piece? (See next paragraph.)

Certainly!!! They are now happy and prosperous Columbianites. One is Vice-President in Charge of Elevator Tickets, and the other is a member of the Committee for Cleaning Up Debris After Fire Drills.

Time Marches On—spasmodically! Severe defects in many of the home room clocks caused the minute hand furiously to scurry after its more sedate brother several times during the year. This forced the good Father (Time) to greatly speed up production. By this date a few more husky citizens are sweating and groaning up at the field. Football! While Mr. Marvel's crew fight for dear Columbia, the rest of us sit in cramped misery, cheering our lungs out at the bidding of the cavorting boys-in-red before us.

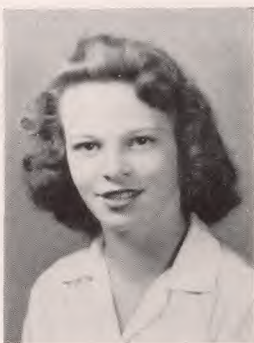

The tinkling of gay Christmas bells from the local church tower should be sufficient warning to you that Old Saint Nick is due presently. Any stray yells of anguish that pierce your ear drums can be traced to some miserable Soph (male) opening another box of neckties. Good old Santa has arrived and departed.

Midterm examinations soon came and passed (which is more than I can say for some people) with a maximum of suffering. And before the Sophomore Council could draft a questionnaire, spring rolled around. Musty mitts were hauled down from the attic, and numerous sweater girls dragged out last year's sleeveless jobs. Desperately resolving to "stick it out" 'til summer, Columbia's Sophs joined their brethren all over the country in hoping for a speedy end to the school year. They knew that it, like all good things, was sure to come.

School Council

The School Council of Columbia High School is indispensable to its administration, for the Council represents the student body, and voices opinions and ideas through its meeting. It is exemplary of the contention on which we have based the dedication of this year's Mirror—that democracy and education are inseparable. The Council is an actual practice of a democratic governing body, which designates its business of investigation to its standing committees. As Mr. Threlkeld implied in his address to the opening Council session, the Council is a means of offering the opportunity of student participation in the administration of the school.

The Columbian

The end of last February marked the end of a year's publication for the new Columbian. It was in that month of 1941 that popular demand, especially by the sophomores, brought about the renewal of our school newspaper.

The Columbian has improved both its literary and financial status. Enlargement of the staff has facilitated better business management and has insured more complete coverage of school activities. The Columbian previously had always been self-supporting. In this way it did not change. Now, however, with the advent of the Activities Ticket, the Columbian has more stable financial sources to draw from.

Lois Crehan and Stan Flink, managing editors, and Miss Lockerby, literary adviser, all agree that The Columbian's chief purpose is to "report, reflect, and promote the best interests of Columbia High School." Throughout this school year The Columbian has faithfully endeavored to do this, and at the same time to give the reader the type of paper he desires. Flexible standards of news arrangement and space allotment, together with a personal and intimate style, have enabled The Columbian to keep abreast of events concerning the student body.

The Columbian has rendered more specific services to the school. Last year the paper promoted the Activities Ticket which, in the opinion of most observers, has proved to be one of our wisest reforms in many years. The attack on Pearl Harbor by the Japanese and the resulting "all-out" participation in the war by the United States has exacted yet another duty upon The Columbian: an assignment which was fulfilled seriously and yet interestingly—that of pointing out to every student his duty to his school and to his country in these most critical times.

Parnassian Society

The Parnassian Society has one hundred members who have indicated interest in dramatics by try-out. As a club devoted to dramatics, it offers, in addition to a regular schedule of theatrical activities, three major programs: two assembly programs, and a public performance. This year the club presented "Little Women," a scene from which is presented above. The officers this year are Phil Lindeman, president; Ruth Hunsaker, vice-president; Donald Oberg, treasurer; Mary A. Wheeler, secretary.

Sophomore Dramatic Club

The Sophomore Dramatic Club is one of our outstanding extra-curricular activities. Composed of five groups of sincerely interested Sophomores, the club provides a means of artistic expression not only in the field of acting, but also in allied theatrical endeavors.

The officers of the club were president, Bob Heydt; vice-president, Peggy Wiesmuller; secretary, Nancy Ann Porter; and treasurer, Mary Carlaw.

Cheer Leaders

Our very efficient and pep-inspiring cheerleaders, always on the job at athletic contests, are headed by Frank Sollows; supported by Ed Lawlor, Jack Stewart, Dick Yorkey, Frank Muller, Jerry Schultz; and sponsored by Mr. Ernest White.

Stage Crew

Although seldom recognized, the stage crew is nevertheless an important organ of every theatrical production.

This year the crew, under the direction of Mr. Wood, faculty adviser, and George Brown, crew leader, efficiently managed all back stage equipment. All the boys are certain that excellent experience is derived from this work, for our stage is comparable in type of equipment to many New York stages.

Lighting Crew

Too much praise cannot be heaped upon this year's Lighting Crew. With great forbearance these trained specialists manned their switches for long hours through our dullest theatrical rehearsals. Mr. Parsons, the faculty sponsor, remembering their brilliant successes in the "Senior Play" and other productions, described his crew as a "crackerjack" group.

Columbia Clubs

ENGLISH CLUB

The English Club, which was composed of a few ardent but limited members only two years ago, is now a thriving organization, functioning in order to permit its members to expand their interests in the various fields of English. For specific interests, the club members are divided into four groups, although some belong to more than one of these groups; the Poetry Division, sponsored by Miss Guest, whose aim is to increase creative poetic facility, as well as to develop appreciation of this field of English literature; the Book Club, under Miss O'Hara, which spends its meetings in discussion of books, recent and otherwise; the Prose Division, aided by Mr. Brosnan, which is a channel open to creative writers; and the Journalism Group, with Miss Lockerby. The different sections are each responsible for two or three of the monthly programs in a year. The accomplishments of this club include some assembly programs, the revision of the Columbian Highlights, as well as providing entertaining and enlightening meetings for its members. The officers are Richard Stryker, president; Phillis Beattie, vice-president; Margaret Torbert, secretary; and Ruth Lewit, treasurer.

FRENCH CLUB

The 1942 French Club, whose membership list exceeds one hundred, has had an outstanding year of successful, varied programs. Led by President Gates Helms, this club has held such meetings as one which consisted of several short, well-produced French plays; a Christmas program of movies and slides about cathedrals in France; a combined program with the Music Box featuring a French musician; a talk by a native French girl, Alice Schwab, about the Marseillaise, illustrated by slides; these, as well as several other unusual programs. The faculty sponsors, Miss Wolcott, Miss Carrigan, and Miss Freeman, work with the aim of allowing students of the language to speak the language for enjoyment only. Other officers of the French Club are: Peggy Ames, vice-president; Margaret Torbert, secretary; Ward Broadfield, treasurer; Jane Watkins and Rex Slauson, chairman of program; and Jack Novascone, publicity chairman.

SPANISH CLUB

Another new club of this year is the Spanish Club, sponsored by Mr. Pullin, who says that the purpose is to try to develop a better understanding among the students, of South America and South Americans. At their meetings the members not only hear Spanish spoken, but they use their own knowledge of the language in conversations and talks, which, however, are not entirely in Spanish, since some of the members are only beginning the course in Spanish. Their Christmas meeting was devoted to demonstrations of Christmas in Spain and South America; other meetings have consisted of plays in Spanish, Spanish music and dancing, (at one meeting the whole club learned the jota) and games. They also spent a day in New York visiting the Spanish theatre and other places of interest. On the whole it sounds as if President Douglas Pike, Vice-President Jay Farley, Secretary Martha Reiter, and Treasurer George Rebazza have done a fine job in starting a club which promises to be successful in the future.

KILOCYCLE CLUB

Because of present government regulations, the would-be "hams" (radio amateurs to you) of the Kilocycle Club are quite limited in their activities; since amateur radio operators must have a license, and the government has suspended licenses because the channels must be kept open for stations of more (though our hams don't think so) importance, the boys can no longer transmit nation wide messages. However, Mr. Chase does not permit his Kilocyclers to be idle, for they are in sole charge of the use of the public-address system for our assembly programs. Their meetings are devoted to the discussion of new and different radio apparatus as well as the study of various codes. One of their more important functions is to amplify the voices of speakers at the Adult School forum on Monday nights, plus the speakers of several other lecture courses. President Harold Dryer has managed the public-address system for such notables as Carl Sandburg, Ralph Ingersoll, and others. Harold is aided in the management of the club by Gertrude Adrian, vice-president; Gloria Bianchi, secretary, and Joy Sanderson, treasurer.

CINEMA CLUB

Mrs. Baker's Cinema Club has had a year of providing fun for all and gathering information about the movies. Under the leadership of Ruth Dehmer, this club has conducted meetings about movies, which include everything from Deitrich's coiffure to how the camera man makes the wheels go round. At one meeting, Frank Lowenstein's father, who is in the business, talked about the business end of cinemacting. One activity of the club was the significant problem of selecting the ten best actors and actresses of the year, 1941. An interesting trip was made by the group to Radio City, where they not only witnessed a movie and the usual magnificent floor show, but also had the distinctive privilege of visiting backstage with some officials. Other officers of the Cinema Club are Jack Hedden, vice-president; Jeanne Williams, secretary, and Melvin Kaye, treasurer.

Columbia Clubs

MUSIC BOX

Catherine Chiminedes, president of this year's Music Box, has proved herself to be not only an extremely talented pianist, but also an executive capable of managing this season's Music Box successfully. Aided by Catherine, Vice-President Dorothy Pritchett, Secretary Helen Schwartz, and Treasurer Bea Tremper, Faculty Sponsor Mr. Shenton has carried out the aims of this long-existing club; to afford those people who are particularly interested in either theoretical or practical, applied music to intensify their pursuit of that art by getting together with others just as interested. Some of the more important meetings were the January one when Mr. Blake gave an organ recital, the impromptu quiz program about music in general, another question session which tested the members' knowledge of symphonic airs, and all those meetings in which the members demonstrated their talent by performing vocally, or on an instrument.

LYCEUM

Sponsor Mr. Adams is partly responsible for the success of this year's Lyceum; some credit is due to the efforts of President Warren Greene, who has led the Lyceum, a comparatively young organization; more congratulations are offered to the other officers, Vice-President Doris Cox, Secretary Phillis Beattie, and Treasurer Rex Slauson, as well as all the members who participate in the discussions at the meetings. The purpose of this club is to promote interest in current affairs; this is achieved by the forum discussions held at meetings, some Information Please programs, and an assembly forum in February. One of the most outstanding meetings was the one when Mr. Gray and Mr. Gnagey presented the pros and cons of "Should the United States enter the War against the Axis immediately?"

ART CLUB

One of the new clubs started this year is the Art Club, whose future prospects look promising through the endeavor of Miss Wheeler. President Doug Leigh, Vice-President Beverly Balch, Secretary Jean Faig, and Treasurer Jim Crate, have succeeded in organizing an interested group of potential artists, who gather every month to either observe the work of others, or test their own talents on the easel. In developing their own skills, the members are privileged to bring models to the meetings. Speakers come to give advice and to criticize. They also plan trips to museums and galleries, a meeting featuring talented alumni of Columbia; and as a culmination of the year's activities, an exhibit of the works of the club members to be shown sometime in the spring. We think the Art Club deserves the praise of the school, for organizing the talent our school has produced.

LATIN CLUB

Throughout this year, as in previous years, the Latin Club has encouraged those interested in Rome and the classics to seek interesting and worthwhile information concerning the achievements of the ancient empire. Learning the Latin Club way is really enjoyable. Often the Latin Club's programs include movies or talks on ancient or modern Europe by guest speakers. This same organization publishes the school's only club newspaper, the interesting "Acta Latina." The highlight of the year was the club's February Roman Banquet which was celebrated in Roman dress in the gala Roman style. This year's officers were president, Phil Lindeman; vice-president, Clarice Schinskie; treasurer, Catherine Stephens; secretary, Virginia Norden; censor, Doug Clift; sponsors, Miss Sanders, Miss Leech, and Mr. White.

COMMERCIAL CLUB

The Commercial Club aims to offer opportunities for the development of leadership, personality, and good fellowship. Early in the year, the members wrote skits showing how they could improve the personality of their companions. In conjunction with this, the club engaged Miss Gaertner to speak on "Personality in Business." At their Christmas party the members danced and sang carols. On other occasions they visited the Prudential Insurance Company and the Grey Publishing Company. In the Spring, Irene Renynolds, the club's excellent program chairman, plans to enrich even more this club's crowded calendar by conducting a typewriting contest. The other club officers include Erma Paul, president; Dorothy Milbauer, vice-president; Jean Forsberg, treasurer; and Mary Noll, secretary. Miss Johnson is the faculty sponsor.

ELECTRONS

The close of this school year marks the first full year of activity for the Electron Club. Conceived by "Doc" Summers early last year, the club was at first beset by the organizing difficulties usually encountered by newly formed organizations, so it was not until this year that the club really became interestingly active. This year's calendar included talks by students or visiting chemical experts, trips to research laboratories, group discussions on timely chemical subjects, and laboratory work, including quantitative and qualitative analysis of many retail products. The officers this year were: president, Dick Swab; vice-president, Orion Hopper; secretary, Catherine Stephens; and treasurer, Dick Mason.

TABLE TENNIS

The Table Tennis Club satisfies the active student's need for a lively and interesting indoor sport over the dark winter months. This year the members of the club, both girls and boys, weekly participated in friendly but spirited matches in the lunch room. While the ladder tournament was being conducted, the competition was especially keen, for every member coveted the number one position. At frequent intervals inter-school matches were held. These not only furthered the competitive spirit of the group, but also presented an opportunity for widening of social contacts. The officers of the club were president, Ed Beers; vice-president, Clint Packard; treasurer, Ben Murdock; secretary, Tony Thompson; and Mr. Jackson, faculty sponsor.

CAMERA CLUB

The Camera Club met monthly this year in the Physics Laboratory, Mr. Parsons' realm of mechanical and electrical devices, where there is a well-equipped darkroom. After a rather slow start last autumn, the Camera Club became one of the most active of our extra-curricular organizations. The newly initiated Sophomores industriously amassed knowledge; while their more experienced upper classmen delightedly used the club's splendid new enlarger to prepare prints. Doubtless many students saw some of these pictures prominently displayed on the bulletin boards. Some of the members also experimented with motion pictures and color photography. Others worked diligently to prepare prints for a physics textbook which is to be published at a future date. John Schwanhausser was president of the club; Henry Wright, vice-president; Melvin Kaye, secretary; and John Karl, treasurer. Mr. Parsons is the faculty adviser.

PROPHECY

"Ted Colvin's genius at mathematics will bring him fame equal to Einstein's."

That's one time the prophet was wrong. Ted and Frank Wiley are the lighting experts who are at present working on a lighting expert's delight. The whole play takes place at midnight on the darkest of nights. Press agent for the production is Stan Flink. Stan tried to be a doctor, but the excitement of advertising caught him up. Part of the publicity is a giant campaign of cartoons. Head of this department is Doug Leigh. Doug got his first job because his signature looked so professional that his employer thought he must be good.

There's another sheet of this prophecy under the ink well. I'd better be careful, this well holds a lot of ink. Th—Ah—Choo! Steady now—ah—Choo!! It's—ah—Choo!! Oh!! Well, that's that. The Columbia High School prophecy of 1942 has become the blotter of 1956.

been revealed, the secret of the amazing memory of the man from Ohio. The papers over which he is poring and which he is obviously memorizing are—timetables. Then we hear a loud hum overhead and dash to the window just in time to see an airplane land before the house; out step Miss Ahrens and Mr. Adams. It appears that philanthropic Miss Ahrens has taken ornithologist Adams to the upper stratosphere in search of a rare species of space-roving bird.

Now this is only a sample. The party has scarcely started. But you can imagine the rest.

Reminiscence

For three years now we've been lamenting the hardships of a high school education. It's all over this time, so we can complacently sit back and exercise that luxurious privilege of reminiscing. We remember that first year when we were awesome Sophomores who gaped at the enormity of Columbia compared to Junior High. How big some of those Seniors were, too! And what an experience was that first day in the lunchroom. Some fellows were afraid to buy milk because there were so many girls around, but others were ready to knock down the petition and get friendly. We ran down the hall between every class so as not to be late. Two years later we walked very slowly. What a mistake it was to forget that library book, for the fine was so high we thought we were buying the darn thing. Good old Junior Night, always the biggest and the best! The earliest memory of the swimming pool was that it was like an ocean, and we wondered how anyone could swim that far. Who could forget the Thanksgiving day football games? We'll always revere the midterm examinations. Assembly programs were usually fun, but sometimes we wanted to do our homework. The school elections every spring came with big posters and campaign speeches. We were really surprised when someone showed us the elevator, but it (our surprise) wore off when we found it wasn't for us. Of course report cards will never cease being our nemesis. We liked to sit out on the grass in front of school during lunch period and look up at the top of the tower, or walk round and round the second floor listening to everyone talk at once. We laughed in the locker room before class—and cried afterward. Every morning came home room period and we could read the New York Times or play tit-tat-toe, if we didn't have work to do; consequently we very seldom read the New York Times or played tit-tat-toe. The kid next to us was continually chewing gum, and it invariably was his last piece. Then came Christmas vacation and we could run down to the library and spend many happy hours reading Shakespeare—or isn't that what we did? All those blue Mondays after a swell weekend that ended with staying up Sunday night to finish our homework. Of course we meant to do it on Friday night, but someone called up and we forgot all about it. It wasn't very often, but once in a while we used to stay after school. There was so much to be done, like helping the teachers correct papers, attending club meetings, and that time we threw an eraser out the window—so we just hung around. Or were we asked? That girl who sat next to us in Latin got higher marks than we did, but she studied. We often wondered why the fire drills took so long; with everyone so anxious to get back to work you'd think they would be over in no time. We used to have a study in CB where people just sat and stared straight ahead except one boy; he would stare down. We finally figured out that he was trying to make believe it was lunchtime and he pictured a ham on rye sitting on top of his chemistry book. The worst scare we had was the afternoon the front office called up our history class and asked to see us at the end of the period. We knew we hadn't done anything wrong, but maybe someone saw us. Anyway we trembled down stairs when the bell rang, losing weight at each step. Then what should it be but mother who had brought our rubbers to school so that our feet wouldn't get wet. Summer vacations were lots of fun, but gosh, it was hard to leave school. We cried the whole afternoon that school closed; of all people, why did they have to lock us in. And it was so good to get back that we swore we'd never go away again for longer than five years. When we had a class that overlooked the parking lot, we would sit by the window and pick out the car we'd most like to have. Somehow though we never got around to getting it. Well, we could go on like this for another three years, but it's time for graduation—and just think, next year we'll be Freshmen again.

Led by rookie coach Roy Nuttall, the Cougars piled up a brilliant record. Coach Nuttall was assisted by Mr. Hack who instructed the Jayvees. Chosen captains were Harry Schwartz and Les Rice, this year's returning lettermen. Rounding out the stalwarts were Hank Pryor, demon defensive man; Bob Roelke, a super set-shot artist; and Fred Witzel and Bob Eastman, who fought for the pivot post. Able substitutes who filled in for these satellites were Fred Kuhlke, Dan Raymond, Dick Hamilton, and Bob Vogel and Bob Ferguson who wavered on the brink of first team ball all season.

During the 1941-42 basketball season, the Cougars' erstwhile courtsters hacked aside all competition to compile the brilliant record of 15 victories as against only 4 defeats. Starting with a rush, the Gems swept Kearny, Summit, Chatham, Orange, the Alumni, and Montclair into oblivion before receiving their first set-back of the season from East Orange's mighty powerhouse. Bouncing back from this upset with unrequited fury, the Gems proceeded to beat West Orange, Montclair, and Weequahic. Having compiled a superb record of triumphs with only one reversal, the team attempted to make a clean sweep of the two-game series with Orange, a practically unprecedented feat. True to form, the Twintowners were frustrated only to bounce back and run over Millburn, West Orange, Summit, and Kearny before finally stumbling over Bloomfield's stalwart aggregation. Then for the first time the Red and Black made two consecutive tilts on the red side of the ledger when East Orange again upset the favored Gems. However, the Cougars returned to their winning ways by nosing out Clifford Scott's team and then New Brunswick's.

The all-victorious 1942 natators of Columbia this year were paced by co-captains Harry Kallop and Richard Reynolds, both of whom were particularly effective under pressure. Hank, who set a meet record of 105.3 in the state, was ably assisted in the department by William Whitbeck who nabbed fifth in the same race; and Richard Reynolds, second in the state freestyling only to Jack Haulenbeck, undefeated Gemster, was supplemented by Jack Muller, Jim Heaney, Jim Fitzsimmons, Jack Novascone, Dick Sinkey, and Marlin Mackenzie. Chief backstroker was Ben Dann, closely followed by Cal Whitehead, Jay Goerke, and Hughie Robbins; while Bob Nelson and Norman Merz took care of most of the diving chores.

Columbia High's undefeated natators, who took over eight straight regularly scheduled meets, went on to cop first place in the all-important state swim in which the Gem mermen outpointed Trenton's defending titleholder by 3 points, 42-39. Opening with a rush against weak opposition, the Twintowners swamped Kearny and West Side overwhelmingly. However, Plainfield, a well-balanced outfit, managed to force an all-out Columbia effort before the boys obtained a hard-earned triumph. The Cougars, in their last battle before the annual Rutgers Freshmen team meet, submerged a floundering Central team. Then, with a perfect record of four victories with no setbacks, the Red and Black was the recipient of Rutgers' hospitality. But the Bakermen were poor visitors, for they wrote a red page in the previously unscathed Rutgers Frosh record. After the keen competition had been turned aside, the pride of New Jersey returned to their system of winning by large scores and soundly sank the hopeful fleet from Bloomfield. A victory over Paterson Central and Montclair concluded Columbia's first undefeated campaign in the Bakermen's history.

Girls' Sports

The Girls' Athletic Association, boasting the highest club membership in our school, sponsors sports for girls. The inter-class tennis tournament opens the fall season and continues until the semi-finals have been completed. Then soccer begins — always accompanied by bumps, bruises, and frequent spills—one of the best loved sports, offering keen competition among the classes.

Soccer's successor, basketball, is also a popular sport, and many of the homerooms participate in the inter-class tournament. Senior home-room 223 won the championship, defeating Junior home-room 217. Teams have already been chosen for inter-class games and they will soon be under way.

As old man winter leaves us, volley ball, baseball, and swimming come in.

The social side of the G. A. A. is important. The first party is one for the sophomores. New sophomore sport leaders were initiated, and the ceremony proved amusing to everyone except the seven Sophs, who were put through their paces by our officers: President, P. Ames; Vice President, M. Torbert; Secretary, M. Jackson; Assist. Secretary, M. Wheeler; Treasurer, B. Rosenquest; Assist. Treasurer, Trudy Thompson. The hilarious skit, "The Bewildered Sophomore and the Seven Sports," was presented, and refreshments were served by the Seniors.

The Christmas party, complete with Christmas tree and carol singing, not to forget Joan Harrocks as Santa Claus, was also fun for all G. A. A. members.

The outstanding event of the year is the G. A. A. banquet. At this occasion the class banner will be awarded to the class that has achieved the highest number of points in inter-class competition; and individual contestants will receive their numerals or letters.

To The Parents of School-age Boys and Girls

Perhaps your years of maximum responsibility are those in which your children are completing their schooling and reaching the self-supporting stage.

You delight to devote a large part of the family income to their comfort and well-being, until they can earn their own way.

At this time, more than ever, there is need for insurance on the life of the bread-winner in the home, and so we have our "Family Income" plan for just such a job.

Ask for our booklet on this important subject.

COLUMBIA QUIZ

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT YOUR HIGH SCHOOL?

SCORING

Each correct answer counts 5 points. To be good, you should score as follows: Sophomores—50 or better; Juniors—65 or better; Seniors—80 or better.

QUESTIONS

1. How many stories are there in the building?
2. How deep is the swimming pool at the deep end?
3. Where in the building are owls used as decorations?
4. Where does the passenger elevator go?
5. By the way, how many elevators are there?
6. What are the decorations on the ceiling of the main lobby?
7. How many teachers (within 5) are there this year?
8. How many pupils (within 50) are enrolled this year?
9. Do more pupils come from Maplewood or from South Orange?
10. What three courses are offered in the Industrial Arts Dep't?
11. What course combines two subjects in one?
12. Who are the three administrative officers in the building?
13. How many people (within 100) will the auditorium seat?
14. What is the last hour of night the clock strikes?
15. In how many sports do we engage in inter-scholastic competition?
16. What public dramatic performances are traditionally presented each year?
17. What are the two principal student publications?
18. What is the name of the organization for pupil participation in school government.
19. What is at the top of the tower?
20. How many organized clubs are there this year (within 2)?

TO STUDENTS OF COLUMBIA HIGH SCHOOL:

Buy
UNITED STATES
WAR STAMPS and {1. Help your country now
2. Create personal savings

A PLAN

Be responsible for a share in the national effort by systematically sacrificing as large a portion as possible of your spending allowance or earnings.

For example:

V

If you have a spending allowance of $1.00 a week, devote one-tenth of it regularly to national defense by purchasing one 10-cent war stamp a week.

If you could manage to save from your allowance, or earnings, or both, as much as 50 cents a week, you could purchase one 25-dollar war bond a year.

Whatever your allowance, or your earnings, no matter how small, remember that any contribution at all is a service vastly worthwhile.
