Robert L. Amsden Principal

Who has helped to shape this college?

Robert L. Amsden, a man who has dedicated twenty years of his life as principal of Columbia High School, is that molder. Under his leadership, we have witnessed many changes. What are these changes? We feel it best to let Mr. Amsden speak for himself.

Columbia advances with the Class of '72

You the members of the Class of '72 are the first to graduate from the "new Columbia" — new in its greatly expanded plant and facilities — new in its "house" organization and new in many parts of its program. What are some of the changes that have marked your three years in this great school?

I have an advantage in replying to this question in that I may look personally back over my shoulder at Columbia's last twenty years, and before that through records and reports to 1885 when its first graduate entered the 10th grade. Without doubt, the changes have been greater in the past three years than in any time in Columbia's almost ninety years.

Perhaps the most important changes have been those which have increased each student's responsibility for his own education, for his own conduct — and most of these changes are still only in their infancy. I think that Columbia's most important purpose and task is to help young people become free and responsible adults. Whatever changes in organization, policies and program increase a boy or girl's competency in becoming free (knowledge of self and environment, self-directed with reasonable goals, self-disciplined, high communication skills, rational vs emotional basis for decisions) and in becoming responsible (deep regard for rights and comfort of other people, full acceptance of consequence of one's action, commitment to group welfare as well as personal or selfish welfare) — these changes or improvements are the most important. Following are examples:

Organizing the School as four houses with student and staff commons adjacent to counselor's and house director's offices and decreasing number of pupils per counselor should make students better known to staff members and to each other. Multiplying opportunities for participation should come through such groups as house councils, intramural competition, social activities, etc.

Eliminating conventional study halls and making each student responsible for where he will be and what he will do in non-class time encourages self-direction and self-discipline. Physically supporting this change are the excellent new library and audio visual center, the reading lab, math lab, speech arts studio, language and science labs, graphics, industrial and art studios and many other resource centers.

Encouraging students to join with the professional staff in program planning and problem solving in Liason Committee, Curriculum Committee, FSPAC (parents included, too ) has given students more voice in major School decisions. The Board of Education has promised to meet periodically with student representatives and has set up an Educational Alternatives Committee with student, staff and community members. All of these increase student responsibility.

The development of mini-courses (some taught by students) and several kinds of independent study have broadened student options as have experiments in optional class attendance and pass/fail marking. The expanded use of experience out of the school in the Community Action Program, the emphasis on group planning and decision making in Liberal Studies, Applied French and other innovative courses and the great increase in work experience with Industrial Arts, Business and Home Economics and Child Development students have been noteworthy changes. More than 20 courses have been added during the last three years. The community Service Program which encourages students to work (for credit) in civic, political and social agencies encourages the kinds of social behavior in students that are increasingly needed in adults.

The completion of the $5,650,000 building addition and renovation project and the purchase of modern equipment and furniture have given Columbia students one of the most up-to-date and efficient buildings for learning anywhere in eastern United States.

Your day's work is done with laughter
many days of the year

And you earn a living by those who say good-by today in thin whispers

For the past thirteen years we seniors have gone through many scholastic changes. Our classes have changed and with them our teachers, and with our teachers, our principals. One man and his position in our school system, however, has remained unchanged during this period. This man is Dr. Herbert W. McDavit.

Dr. McDavit has been the Superintendent of Schools since 1957. Prior to that year he was principal of Clinton School and Administrative Assistant to the Superintendent.

Most of us know Dr. McDavit as only a name which appears at the bottom of important letters. He is, however, far from being just an official name. He is known to be a very warm person with a great fondness for music and for the piano. Dr. McDavit is a man with vision who saw that changes had to be made, and he made them. Columbia, as it exists today, is a reminder of his devotion to the advancement of education. The members of the class of '72 are the best judges of this. Never in the history of Columbia High School have there been so many radical changes in both structure and policy as those we see today. The class of '72 has witnessed the metamorphosis that Columbia has recently undergone.

Dr. McDavit was the Superintendent of Schools, but Columbia was only one of those schools. The other schools, too, needed renovation and innovation. Dr. McDavit made certain that improvements were made in Maplewood Junior High School and in several elementary schools. He traveled to many cities to visit and observe other schools, and as a result many new ideas were introduced to our system.

The position of Superintendent of Schools in South Orange-Maplewood is a very attractive one. The individual who will come to this community to fill the position, regretfully being vacated by Dr. McDavit, will find a completely modern high school, two fine junior high schools and all our elementary schools well on their way to rapidly becoming unsurpassed in this area. All these will be reminders of the dedication and drive of one man: Dr. Herbert W. McDavit.

As we, the class of '72 graduate, Mr. Robert L. Amsden, our principal, is also leaving Columbia High School. After being principal for twenty years he was able to say, "I feel good about the years, the school and the two communities. And that's the right way to leave." It is easy to understand his good feeling and sense of accomplishment. When Mr. Amsden became principal of Columbia High School, the school was in need of visionary leadership. It has since benefited from his vision and great sense of dedication. This vision became a reality during the past three years when Columbia became one of the best equipped and finest schools on the Eastern Coast. Because education has been his "life" for thirty-eight years,

Mr. Amsden's retirement will not mean the end of his service to institutions in need. His early years as principal in a school in Argentina, his recent experience as a traveler in Kenya, Greece, Turkey, and Israel under a grant from the National Association of Secondary School Principals and, of course, his work as a warm, understanding, hard-pressed principal of Columbia High School equip him magnificently for the work he plans to do with the underprivileged of Latin America and Africa, and with the Indians of New Mexico.

His leadership will be greatly missed by students, faculty and staff of Columbia High School.

"THE NEW COLUMBIA"

With the advent of the new additions to the high school building, several innovative programs were incorporated into the educational structure. Besides a number of resource centers which were made available to interested students during their free time periods, new major and mini courses were offered.

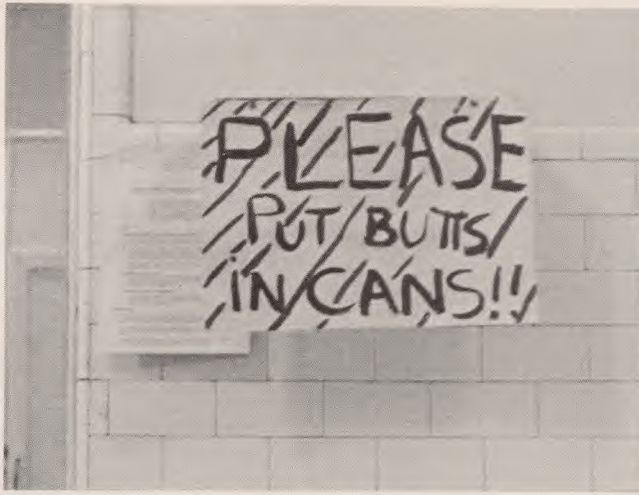

The school also assumed a more relaxed stand on old issues such as smoking and optional attendance. Lavatories were opened up for the benefit of those who wished to utilize them for smoking purposes.

Unfortunately, the Class of '72 will not be able to participate in the continuing modernization of Columbia High School. The class, however, was able to help the community recognize the necessity for changing the school's curriculum and attitudes to fit our times. We were also fortunate to be able to witness the beginning of a new era in public education for our community.

“THE SPIRIT OF ’72”

For the past few years Columbia High School has not been noted for any remarkable displays of school spirit. The sporting events, dances and hops have been attended by a minimum number of people, and the enthusiasm and spirit have been unusually dismal. The 1971-1972 school year has witnessed an amazing revival of the proverbial school spirit of the 1940's. Football, soccer, and basketball were able to boast of new highs in attendance; a school dance featuring the Grease Band drew a crowd estimated at 800.

Perhaps at long last Columbia High School is rediscovering those intangible elements of school life it has long been missing: spirit and unity.

VANDALISM

In September, 1971, an act of vandalism was committed in Columbia. As a result portions of the new wing and the library were damaged by water.

An emergency assembly, called by the student council, was held to make the student body aware of the act. At the assembly a letter, being sent to the News-Record voicing student sorrow and concern, was read. Students were asked to express their support of the letter by signing their names to it. A vast majority did so.

A concert featuring student musicians was held in the school auditorium. The proceeds were donated to a fund established to pay for the damage.

October 7, 1971

To the Editor:

Regardless of political view, the point is that the destruction of school facilities and the threatened destruction of others is a waste that is inexcusable.

There is no reasonable rationalization for such vandalism except that it seems to be an almost common part of the frustration which pervades our society and thus our school today.

It is a thing simultaneously abhorrent yet part of our world, and it is the desire of the student body of this school to condemn it without shrinking from the causes which bring such stuff about.

The students of this school want progress in an educational system where education will be a compassionate, relevant, and maturely handled experience.

And so we choose to cope. We will not bow and scrape and say this waste does not exist; it does. But we will cope and try to build a progress where both physical and conceptual ideas will flourish. We plan to help pay for at least part of the damage and, in doing so, try to free ourselves as a student society of guilt which may be stamped on us by those who have been paying for us and thus paying for our bathrooms.

We feel no collective guilt here but only resolution to overcome the barriers of skepticism, restraint and destruction which have been set by both contemporaries and elders.

A bathroom vandalism is after all nothing in perspective of 40 deaths in a New York prison, but they are both part of a special sickness that we have no desire to be part of.

Tim Lee: "The school presidency is an ability to meet and deal with future aspects of learning and advancement."

Eric Washington: The Vice-President picks up the slack and has to like it."

Steve Neibert: "The Treasurer always has his hands full."

Holly Ein: "This morning being secretary meant an exciting chance to be creative and this afternoon it meant a degrading amount of paper work — Ask me again tomorrow."

Dale Guarduci — Senior Class Secretary, Guy Santini — Senior Class President.

Senior Class President Guy Santini and Class Secretary Dale Guarduci sponsored a number of projects dedicated to acquiring money for the traditional senior class prom.

Guy, Dale and the Prom Committee felt that in the past the high prices of the dance had discouraged prospective participants. Car washes, concerts, refreshments sold at sporting events and a Senior Assembly and play were means of raising funds. The proceeds from these events went toward a reduction in the price of the prom.

During 1971 Columbia High School participated in many different exchange programs, which enabled Columbia students to meet and know people from various areas of the world. The World Youth Forum brought students to Columbia from Europe, Africa, and the Near East; the Open Door program brought students to Columbia from South America and Latin America; and the program with Columbia's sister high school in Japan brought Japanese students to Columbia as it has done in many years past.

Mainly I wanted to study in a very developed educational systems and change myself in the new society to know myself. It is really hard for me to study in English, especially we Japanese students learn English conversation scarcely. But I may learn much more things in that hard work than in Japan because Columbia High School has much more possibility, such as equipments and curriculums. Also, I can see myself from a different point of view in America, especially from what I was in Japan. It's good chance to look upon the past and reflect myself. I am very happy to stay here for a year.

MUSIC

Columbia was treated to several programs of musical talent during 1971 and 1972. The Chorus sang Christmas and Chanukah songs at a holiday assembly, and one evening joined the Orchestra in a musical fete.

Columbia's Band and Orchestra entertained the community throughout the school year at assemblies and at the Winter and Spring Concerts.

THE COLUMBIAN

Publications

Columbia offered many publications during the 1971-1972 school year. Two new publications were made available to the school community: Simbur and san' wich.

The 1971-72 columbian appeared sporadically, but it did contain several creative editorials and special features. Perhaps the season did not have many exciting newsworthy moments, for the columbian's coverage of actual weekly events was minimal.

Columbia's annual publication is the Mirror. The 1972 Mirror captured the feeling and spirit of our three years in Columbia.

Guildscript's quality during the 1971-1972 year lived up to its fine reputation of preceding years. However, its infrequent publication was a disappointment to many who otherwise enjoyed Guildscript.

Simbur contained editorials, movie and show reviews, and creative writings. It was not available many times during its first season but its quality was excellent and promised a very successful future.

san' wich had the distinction of being Columbia's first full fledged "underground" magazine. It published political comments, creative and satirical writings. san' wich appeared more frequently than did Columbia's other legitimate publications.

The 1971-1972 Assembly season offered the students a wide variety of programs. Diane Wolkstein, the jazz band, and the Talent Show entertained audiences, while the Fortune Society, a prison reform organization, and "The Man Nobody Saw" were among the more thought provoking assemblies.

FOOTBALL

under which the men played this match were the worst since their first game together. At the beginning of the match, Columbia scored in the first period on a 20-yard touchdown pass from Malnak to Bowles. But West Orange rallied before the end of the first half for the tying score. Both teams failed on runs for the two point conversion. The second half was filled with fumbles, a great Cougar defense, and plenty of mud as snow, sleet and hail made the field unplayable. Two goal line stands in the closing minutes by the Cougar defense held West Orange to a tie. Wendel, Kenny, Schweikert, Regan, Steve Frampton, Hopkins, John Russen, Joe Tamburro and Coucuzza all played strong defensive games.

Though the Cougar's record may not boast outstanding success, the team did have a fine season. Only once (a 25-0 win by Kearny) were the Cougars out of any game.

In his first year, Coach Calabria brought with him ambition and a monster defense in leading a bunch of longhaired, bearded and spirited team to an exciting and successful season.

The Columbia football team, under the leadership of first year coach Dom Calabria, finished with a 2-6-1 record. Victories came over Orange and Montclair, and the team had a tie with West Orange.

The first win of the season was against Orange, 42-8, after losses to Morristown, Millburn, and Livingston. The 42 point total was the largest offensive output by Columbia since a whitewash of 42-0 against Westfield in 1959. There were numerous stars of the offensive game. Matt Kenny galloped 56 yards for a touchdown when he intercepted a faculty pass. Dave Liewant contributed a 48 yard touchdown run and Bob Drechsel had 3 interceptions. Peter Good and Charlie Bowles received touchdown passes from quarterback Al Malnak to complete the winning effort.

The biggest win of the year was an upset of longtime rival Montclair. This 7-6 win was the first victory by Columbia over Montclair since the state champion Cougars defeated the Mounties in 1951. Trailing 6-0 at the half, the Calabrians scored late in the third period. Frank Villone's extra point game Columbia a 7-6 victory. The defense led by Captains Eric Wendel and Matt Kenny, safeties Tom Regan and Rick Schweikert and lineman Roy Hopkins. Joe Coucuzza and Bob Malekoff played outstanding games in limiting the Mounties to just six points.

Prior to the Mountie victory, the Cougars lost a 12-7 decision to Nutley on local television. The Cougars played a tough first half, holding a 7-6 lead, but Nutley came on strong in the final periods and walked away with a win.

The final game of the season, a 6-6 tie on Thanksgiving morning, proved historical. It saw the ending of a 56-year-old traditional Cougar-Cowboy rivalry. The conditions

CROSS COUNTRY

The 1971 edition of the Columbia High School Cross Country team, under Coach Len Klepack was one of the school's best. They posted an 11-1 record in dual meets, losing only to Bloomfield and finishing second in the Big Ten Meet and third in the Essex County Meet.

The Cougars were led by senior Co-captains Gary Rappaport and Steve Kriksens and by seniors Jeff Kriksens and Mike Inserra. Peter Davis, a junior, was the leading runner, breaking many records during the season.

The Cats ran off nine straight wins before finishing second in the Big Ten Meet behind Kearny. Davis finished fourth and Bob Duerr and Steve Kriksens, the next Cougar finishers, placed eleventh and thirteenth respectively. Three seniors, John Somers at twentieth, Rappaport at twenty-first and Inserra at twenty-second, finished the meet for the Red and Black.

The Cougars clinched third place in the Essex County Meet at Branch Brook Park. The harriers finished behind first place West Essex and runner-up Bloomfield.

The Cats finished seventh in the Sectionals. Davis was the top winner for Columbia at twenty-first. Rappaport, Duerr, Inserra, and Al, Steve and Jeff Kriksens also ran for the Cougars.

SOCCER

The 1971 Cougar soccer team has emerged as the best in the history of the sport at Columbia.

The Cougars drove to a 13-2-1 record before injuries slowed them down and before they were subsequently eliminated by Bloomfield in the state tournament. Coach Eugene Chyzowych's squad tied the Bengals in two earlier, fiercely contested matches and split two games with Kearny. Among other memorable contests was a 17-0 rout of Weequahic.

Numerous school records were shattered, many of them by the all-American junior forward, Elson Seale. However, underlying the many outstanding individual performances was a well coordinated team effort, which brought Columbia as high as number seven in the state rankings and enabled them to achieve final status as 12th best in New Jersey.

The defense was bolstered by senior standouts Rick Guber, Walter Jones, George George, Orest Lebed, and goalies Don Simonini and Dave Moskowitz. Guber, one of this year's co-captains, was brilliant at his sweeper position and was named to the All-Essex County second team. Simonini, the other senior captain, proved rugged and reliable at guarding the net and displayed a great deal of personal fortitude as he played several games with a broken nose and finger.

Steve Yafet, a greatly improved halfback who was named to the All-Essex County second team, and Antonio Cifelli were outstanding at midfield. Forwards Adamir DeSouza and Jimmy Stevenson, along with Seale, were the mainstays in an offensive machine which rolled up a total of 62 points in 16 games.

In all, 7 Cougars were named to the all Big-Ten teams and 6 received all-Essex recognition.

Wrestling

Although the wrestling team produced a record of only 7-8, the post-season performances were exceptional and seemed to indicate the true caliber of the team.

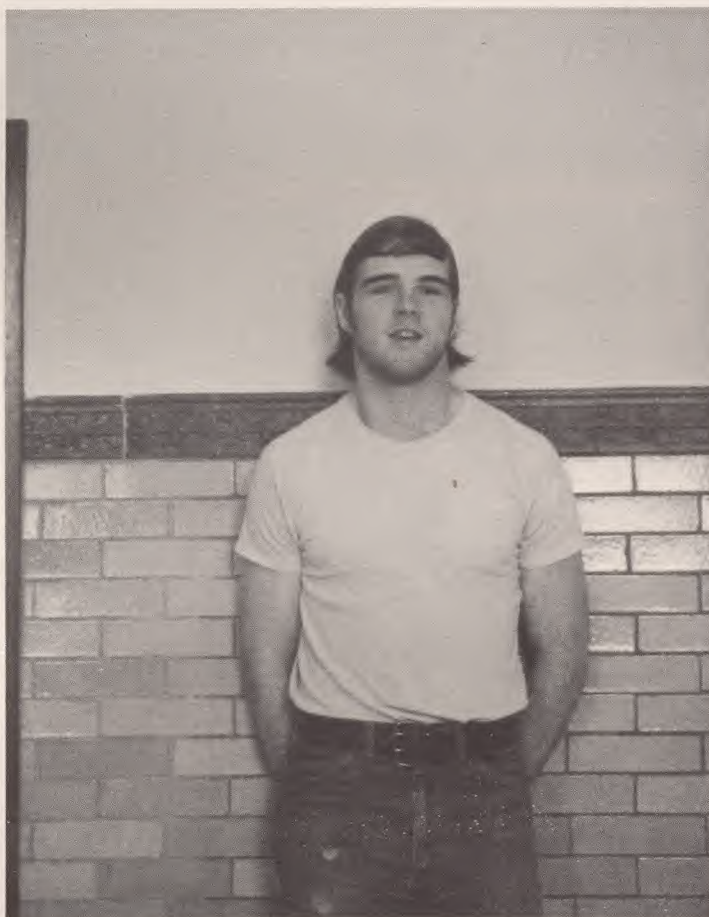

The Cougars were into the final round of the Districts with seven wrestler still competing. Captain Matt Kenny (178), Mitch Lapman (157), and Sean Stoddard (141) all emerged victorious, while Jeff Metzger (106), Gene McNany (130), Dan Moskowitz (136), and Steve Frampton (148) took second places. Seton Hall edged out Columbia for the team title by a 2 ½ point margin.

In the Regionals the matmen came through with the best showing by Columbia High School since 1962. Kenny placed second behind the eventual state champion, Stoddard third, and Lapman and Moskowitz fourth.

Nearly all of this year's contests were close as the grapplers battled some of the toughest teams in the state, including Millburn and Belleville. After dropping four straight matches midway through the season, the Cougars upset perennial power Montclair and went on to win their final two against Clifton and Morristown.

Kenny Stoddard were the standout men for Columbia, with records of 14-1 and 13-0-1, respectively. Kenny's strength and experience provided an overwhelming combination for most of his opponents. Stoddard transferred here from Millburn and contributed immeasurably to the Cat's success.

Next year, Coach Al Hector will face the same rigorous schedule but with an almost totally revamped squad because ten of the twelve varsity wrestlers will graduate.

Basketball

Coach Pete Cross

Against Bloomfield, however, Columbia played an exceptional game and was rewarded with the victory, 72-70. Martin netted 28 points while Barry Adams, a junior, contributed 21 points. Both figures were individual high scores for the two performers.

The Cougar's well deserved win over Bloomfield was soon overshadowed by losses to inferior teams as Belleville defeated the Cats twice while Nutley defeated them once.

No team could take Columbia lightly as in previous years, and all team members deserve a great deal of credit. Martin habitually put points on the scoreboard, Agresti electrified the crowds with his remarkable passes, Adams exhibited great jumping ability, Broskie scored with long range bombs, and Davidson and Poplawsky dominated the boards over numerous taller opponents to obtain control of the ball.

The Columbia High School basketball team coached by Mr. Peter Cross won only four games during the 1971-1972 campaign, but this record is not an adequate representation of the quality of basketball played throughout the eighteen contests.

The Cougars opened the season against a powerful Orange squad. Orange's superiority was not evident, however until the second quarter as Captain Tony Martin and Richard Broskie propelled the Cats to an eight-point lead in the first period of play. As was the case with numerous encounters, Columbia could not maintain their early lead and fell by a substantial margin.

Columbia had a difficult opening schedule and when they faced Bloomfield, they sported a winless record. East Orange, Orange, West Orange, and Kearny were the top four finishers in the conference and Columbia could not salvage a victory in any of the games.

Swimming

Even after losing many of last year's "big guns" through graduation, the swimming team of Columbia High School still went on to exceed expectations in the 1972 season. Coached by Mr. David Yoresh and captained by senior Joe Anderson, the Aquadynamos' won five of their fourteen meets.

The Columbia Mermen dropped the first two meets of the season to Westfield and Plainfield respectively. They came back, however, with five straight wins against Kearny, Mountain Lakes, Madison, Montclair, and West Orange. Ending their winning streak they fell to Livingston, Westfield again, Morristown, Irvington, Somerville, and Hackensack.

The Aquadynamos, however, came in third in the Big Ten, (behind Irvington and Montclair) and fourth in the counties (behind Newark Academy, Seton Hall, and Montclair Academy.)

This year Columbia sent four swimmers to the State Meet in Princeton. They were Captain Joe Anderson, juniors Robert Hetherington and Mike Breen, and sophomore Hank Kearny.

Since only Captain Joe Anderson will be lost by graduation this year, the team is confident that the incoming batch of sophomores not only will offset the loss, but will strengthen the team enough to give Columbia a winning season next year.

Suna entering into a standing spin.

The question everyone is now asking Suna is about her future and the 1976 Olympics. She answered in a definite tone of voice, but with words of uncertainty. "When you go out on the ice you know what and how you are going to do, but in a skating career the time is too long between competitions to predict the future. One thing that I'm sure of is that I don't want to skate professionally."

In retrospect Suna assures that "I'd do it all again. Though my practicing, from 4:30 until 9:30 in the morning, was initially rough, I've grown to like it. The morning practice doesn't take away from being with friends."

Despite her showing Suna enjoyed the Olympics and the people she met. She was particularly impressed that one's country didn't matter when making friends. Nevertheless out on the ice for international competition it does. In explaining this paradox, Suna pointed out the case of John Misha Petkovitch during the Worlds competition. "The reason why he finished fourth rather than third was because there were a majority of Communist judges and obviously judges lean toward their own compatriots."

Along with the educational and emotional values which Suna gathered during the Olympics were the materialistic ones. Though payment for a performance is illegal for an amateur athlete, gifts are acceptable. From admiring fans Suna received a coat, radios, trips, and newspaper clippings in recognition for her achievements.

The hard work Suna has put in has paid off. How many sixteen year-olds can claim that they have been all over the world? Surely several can claim they've been in several countries. Yet, how many can claim they have been in million's of people's homes with their microwave images having been relayed from country to country via satellite, and on to the fluorescent screen of the television. Suna Murray can answer yes to all of these claims.

"At the first competition I was in, my mother had told me the judges were looking at my dress rather than at my skating, so that I wouldn't be nervous." Suna Murray, these days worrying a little more about her performance rather than about her appearance, has already attained the goal of every amateur athlete by competing with the United States Olympic team in Sapporo, Japan, this past winter.

Suna began her skating career at the age of five, when she took her first lessons from guards at the South Mountain Skating Arena. For the past ten years she has skated under the professional guidance of Mr. Hans Gerschwiler, who has brought her up through the various ranks of skating divisions. In the past two years, she has finished third in the Nationals, tenth (in 1971) and eighth (in 1972) at the Worlds, and twelfth at the 1972 Olympics. With the retirement of Julie Lynn Holmes, Suna has now moved up to the number two spot in the United States. Though the Olympics is considered by the general public as the ultimate in amateur competition, the skating expertise point to the Worlds event as its pinnacle. In addition to the skill required to place well, a skater's appearance is also important. Much trouble and money go into achieving this. The outfits worn by Suna during Worlds competition were fitted and hand made at the cost of two hundred dollars each. Though no matter how impressive a skater may sometimes appear, other factors enter into the judges decision.

Suna explained the "poor" showing she made at the Olympics as compared to her performance at the Worlds by stating, "I knew I would do badly in the Olympics because there just wasn't enough time between competitions. After skating in a big event, such as the Nationals, it takes about a week to get back to where your performance was before. This slump occurs because you suffer a let down after finishing something for which you were pointing at. But once you shake this off then you are all right, but it takes time."

In looking back at her career, Suna cites the 1968 Nationals at Buffalo as her favorite moment. "The stands were packed with my friends from New York and they went wild after every move I made. If the people are behind you, clapping their hands or screaming your name, as they did this year in the Worlds, then you get caught up in the excitement and can't help skating better."

The spirited Pep Committee holding a meeting.

Tho you'll be gone
 You won't be forgotten
 This seperation
 We think, is rotten!!!
 We'll always keep the memories of 57 years
 The shouts, the cheers, and even some tears
 Without West Orange at the Thanksgiving game
 The day just won't be the same.
 The powers that be have broken this tradition
 But we hope we'll meet in another competition.
 Adios Amigos and farewell,
 We hope the future treats you well!

Andy Giacobbe

School spirit is something to believe in. My job as chairman of the Pep Committee was to show that students care about Columbia High and support school sports.

The spirit at the football games was very high. Faithful fans packed the buses to away games. One such game was the Livingston game where ninety followers were cramped into one bus.

The Pep Committee didn't allow the people at Columbia to forget about school spirit. We painted posters, held Pep Rallies, had a Pep Assembly, created numerous Red and Black Days, sold buttons, and even built a twelve foot Cougar. I'm very pleased with the spirit of 1971-1972.

Displaying posters, another successful means of stimulating school spirit.

The people who helped make this yearbook possible are too numerous to mention individually. We thank them all for the endless tasks of identifying pictures, collecting and collating material, typing, and the thankless job of proofreading.

Special thanks and deep appreciation go to our new Editorial Advisor, Mrs. Molly W. Rosenberg for her help and advice, and Mr. Albert Mucci, new Business Advisor, for his help in planning our financial affairs.

Our gratitude is extended to the following: Mr. Wynne Murchison, our American Yearbook Company representative, who was willing to give us the advice and the assistance we needed.

Mr. Marvin Gershenfeld, Mr. Richard Gross and the rest of the staff at Richard's Studio for amazingly fast service and their constant moral support.

Mrs. Dolores Saunders for all her assistance doing our mimeo work.

Andy Giacobbe for his constant assistance to the Sports Editor.
