Hope for teenagers in trouble

EDISON - At 25, the Rev. John Wagner is still in touch with his own growing-up years in the Still fresh memories of what it's like to be a teenager and two recent adolescent suicides within six months of each other in Edison, stirred deep concerns and led to the establishment of the Teen Crisis Hotline at Faith Fellowship Ministries on Oak Tree Road, where the Rev. Wagner is youth minister.

The hotline already is in operation but by the holiday season it will be widely advertised as a source of help for teenagers in trouble.

Arrangements have been made for billboard space that will appear at alternating sites throughout the county and on Tuesday, a group of young people from Faith Fellowship were at work shooting a television commercial that will appear on MTV, a rock music video channel with an audience primarily made up of teenagers and young adults.

The hotline segment will be aired during breaks for local commercials when MTV is shown locally by TKR Cable TV and Storer Cable.

The scene of the first commercial was the Conrail tracks to the rear of Faith Fellowship's Oak Tree Road World Outreach Cen-

Parade date approaches

METUCHEN - Kristen Turk is Metuchen's 1988 Miss Merry Christ-

She was crowned Wednesday on the steps of Borough Hall by longtime chairman Sue Johnson and with members of her court will reign over the Metuchen Chamber of Commerce's 37th annual Christmas parade on Sunday, November 27.

The parade will form at 1 p.m. at Edgar Field and will proceed from Brunswick Avenue to Main Street and then to Borough Hall at Middlesex and Main.

The main attraction on the steps of Borough Hall will be Santa Claus and the Missus who will greet their hundreds of young fans and lend attentive ears as their Christmas wish lists are rattled off.

This year's parade will include three floats, six antique fire engines, choirs, marching bands and the float on which will ride the Metuchen Chamber of Commerce's 30th annual Miss Merry Christmas and her court, Kristina Scoglio, Jodi Levine, Melisa Moske, and Elizabeth Papp.

Expanded student travel still rests in liability

A knife observed on the front seat of Thomas Endrihs' vehicle by Patrolman Anthony Carro was described as a tool of his trade. According to Carro, Endrihs said he was employed as a chef and he just happened to be carrying the knife home from work that night.

Four broken hockey sticks? Endrihs, according to Carro, said he and three other youths had been playing hockey earlier, the sticks broke and he also was carting them home to effect repairs.

A nail-studded armband allegedly found in the trunk of the car was merely a part of a Hallowe'en costume that Endrihs had worn and fireworks in the glove compartment, according to Carro, were just an accessory for his trick-or-treating outfit.

Dinosaurs and volcanoes

Science fair time at Campbell School

By EILEEN PAKENHAM

METUCHEN - A kelly green tyrannosaurus rex was flanked by a firetruck red trachodon that looked like it was out for a lazy stroll. Just to the trachodon's left was a blue diplodocus, which sauntered dangerously close to a six-inch-high red plaster of paris volcano.

December 5 hearing for master plan

EDISON - A continued hearing on the township's proposed master plan has been scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday, December 5.

To forestall any criticism that the public is not given sufficient notice of the hearing, display advertisements will be placed in newspapers that circulate in the town.

The large ads, Planning Board board chairman Val Meszaros said at Monday night's agenda session, will be for the benefit of people "who have trouble with glasses.

The board was subject to criticism at its first master plan hearing on October 17 because notices of that meeting were limited to small-type legal advertisements.

Criticism also was voiced about the fact that only one hearing was scheduled.

In addition, Oak Hills Road resident Denise Wiegele questioned whether the hearing was legal because of errors in the proposed new zoning map. It also was claimed that some materials pertaining to the plan were not on file 10 days prior to the meeting date and some were not available at all.

Mrs. Wiegele took her complaints to the state public advocate's office but in the interim, the board decided that it would stage another hearing.

At Monday's agenda session, board attorney Sheldon Schiffman advised (Please turn to page A-14)

School vandals again inflict heavy damage

EDISON - Detectives are continuing to piece together evidence that they hope will lead to the arrest of vandals who caused extensive damage to Woodrow Wilson Middle School on two separate occasions.

The first incident took place October 8 and the second occurred exactly a month later on November

On October 7, the school alarm went off at 2:25 a.m. and police found a band room window open but a search of the building revealed there was no one inside.

Police said information uncovered to date during the investigation being conducted by Detective Steve Nemeth indicates the acts were the work of the same group of young-

"Seeing how much damage a couple of individuals can do in a couple of hours really turned my gut," said Charles Andreasen, buildings and grounds chairman, in a report at last week's Board of Education agenda session on the latest incident.

Board votes no smoking

METUCHEN — A policy that bans smoking in district schools with the exception of one room in each building for use by faculty members who are smokers was adopted on second reading Tuesday night by a 7-1 vote of the Board of Education.

The new policy will go into effect in September of 1989.

The only dissenting vote was cast by Byron Sondergard, who took the position that discouraging student smokers must begin at home and the policy will result in teachers running

Teacher grant finances school poetry program

James Madison Elementary School are learning they can write poetry and not just read it. Children in kindergarten through 2nd grade are having their own creativity stimulated through a unique poet-inresidence program financed by a $1,000 state teacher recognition grant awarded to 2nd grade teacher Miriam Rockmore.

Mrs. Rockmore elected to use a portion of her money to engage the services of Peggy Garrison of New York City, a member of the Poets in Public Service organiza-

Antenna decision delay irks ham radio operator

METUCHEN - James Jarvis, a ham radio enthusiast who wants to erect a 70-foot radio antenna in the backyard of his 37 Upland Avenue property, has accused the Zoning Board of Adjustment with causing him "significant legal expense and unnecessary delay.

The statement was contained in a letter in which Jarvis informed the board all transactions between himself and the board should be conducted through Jarvis' attorney, fellow ham radio operator Mark Busch.

The board heard Jarvis' applica-tion in September. At the time there was no reference to antennas in the zoning ordinance and the board chose to delay a decision until the situation was throughly addressed by the Planning Board. The zoning board put into effect the 120-day review period and 45-day administrative review time permitted by law. They began on the date the check for the application was received, August 5.

On November 3, the Planning

Board recommended that the Town- of his First Amendment rights. ship Council adopt a radio-antenna satellite ordinance that established height limitations for such structures based on the width of the lot. Antennas up to 45 feet in height would be permitted on lots with frontages of 50 feet and antennas up to 70 feet in height would be permitted on lots with 70-foot frontages.

Borough planner James Constantine and Planning Board chairman S. Elliott Mayo spent some five hours talking to ham radio operators before the proposed ordinance was presented to the Planning Board. The board spent another two hours analyzing it before recommending it for adoption by the Borough Council.

According to Jarvis the delay in reaching a decision of his application, which is not due until February, will cost him both in terms of time and "mounting damages." He placed them at 10 to 100 times the $500 cost for the antenna itself.

He also complained that the delay represents a "continuing constraint"

Jarvis warned the Board of Adjustment that in 1951 the State Supreme Court ruled "laws which permit chimneys, flagpoles and support equipment at higher altitudes also permit antennas at the same height." Jarvis claims that March of 1987 is the date at which he applied to the board for clarification of Metuchen's zoning restrictions on antennas. He wroye that at that time, borough attorney Jerry Baranoff said "setback was the only issue, in light of the cited Supreme Court cases." In August, according to Jarvis, he was advised that the local zoning ordinance permitted unattached, accessory structures of up to 25 feet and he would need a variance for a 70-foot

In the letter, Jarvis advised the borough to "take all the time it needs to study the ordinance" but further on in the five-paragraph letter he said he "regrets" he is "unable to extend the 120-day requirement for the

Our Opinion

The election

The strong showing made in the Metuchen Borough Council election by the two Republican candidates cannot be attributed to coat-tailing.

After supporting Republican presidential candidate George Bush, local voters returned to the Democratic side of the ballot to vote for the party's candidates for U.S. Senate, Congress and Freeholder.

Reaching the bottom of the ballot, they re-elected Pam Brown, a Democrat, to her fourth term on the Borough Council by the most narrow of margins and gave the second vacant seat to Peter Trecolis, a Republican. The second Republican candidate, Michael Cunningham, ran only 184 votes behind Mrs. Brown and her runningmate, Thomas Sullivan, came in fourth.

Although Mrs. Brown disputed it in her victory speech, the outcome definitely was the equivalent of a referendum on several local issues. Among them were downtown redevelopment and the construction of affordable housing.

The Board of Education's decision to restructure local elementary schools also crept into the campaign although it is not an issue that had any place in that forum.

Mrs. Brown and Sullivan, as candidates of the Democratic administration that is the architect of downtown redevelopment and which is pursuing plans for the construction of affordable housing, were placed in the position of having to defend against Republican attacks that in some cases were open to question on the basis of factual error.

Going on the attack, a campaign luxury usually only available to the "outs," generally has more of an impact on voters than bringing them the "good news" of what the incumbents have accomplished.

In most towns there usually is a sizable enough segment of residents unhappy about something who are more persuaded by arguments about what is wrong rather than platforms that enunciate what is right about the town.

In their door-to-door travels, the candidates reportedly found that the school district restructuring was uppermost on the minds of many voters and especially those with children in the system.

Unhappy about what they view as an unwarranted abandonment of the neighborhood school system and disruption of their young children's school lives, no doubt they were open to suggestions that downtown redevelopment and construction of affordable housing were equally wrongheaded ideas.

The outcome of the election has made it incumbent for Mayor John Wiley and the Democratic Borough Council majority to speak out strongly and clearly in behalf of both redevelopment and their housing plan.

Redevelopment, which has been in the making for almost 20 years, is clearly the answer to shoring up the assessment base. And affordable housing, Republicans claims to the contrary, is something which the borough has been mandated to provide by the state Council on Affordable Housing.

Obviously, a lot of Metuchen residents who cast ballots last week don't believe it.

Turkey time

Has anyone noticed how the TV miniseries War and Remembrance seems to be inspiring more genuine interest than the Presidential election? Should this campaign ever be made into a miniseries, the best title would be Death Wish. It would apply as well to the Republican Party, which picked the one candidate who could have blown the national Reagan afterglow, as it does to the Democrats, who responded by nominating the one candidate capable of losing an election to George Bush.

It was remarked by many disaffected Democrats - the ones who dutifully voted for Mondale in '84 but bridled at electing someone who so closely resembled Joe Franklin in '88 — that they would have liked to see Duke swap places with Lloyd Bentsen on the ticket. As the Democratic Party embarks on what we can only hope will be some long overdue political soul-searching, it should remember that complaint. It isn't liberalism per se that has become disreputable, just the fruitcake, McGovernite, granola nuclear freezenik variety Dukakis toyed with and found unable to remove from his Ah well . . . we've gotten the whole business out of our hair for the next four years. At least the turkeys we get next week will be edible.

Law's not fair

To the Editor:

My name is Rich. I had a twin brother, Robert Turanicza. My brother died from injuries in a hitrun accident on March 24, 1988.

I watched my brother for nine days in a coma until he died. He had brain damage as well as injuries to his leg.

It's strange going home at night knowing Rob isn't there. We had our share of arguments like most brothers, but we had our good times too. He was not just my brother but my best friend. I could talk to him about anything and he would listen. We had a special kind of closeness. We were always there for each other. Things are not the same anymore. He was a part of me, now all there is are my visits to the cemetery.

I'm told the boy responsible was not charged with my brother's death, that all he received are traffic tickets. Is that justice? Rob enjoyed life in everything he did. The boy that caused his death is still allowed to live his life while my brother can't. I don't feel the laws are being just in

I've been told time will heal. I wonder if things will ever be the same for me. I have pictures to look at and all Rob's trophies. All I have left are his memories. At least they are good ones. I'll never forget my brother.

I don't understand why this person should go free to continue to live his life while knowing he is responsible for my brother's death. Rob meant a lot to all of us. His death is something I find hard to accept. I cannot understand the way the law is written that it allows someone who causes a death to go unpunished. There must be some way to rectify this gross injus-

The term "computer virus" would have made no sense to anybody a few years ago, and it doesn't make much more sense now. What it is - if you'll stop giggling over there and pay attention - is a tiny program introduced by a troublemaker into a legitimate computer program.

Learning to accept acceptance

By MIKE DEAK

A dozen years ago, when I was in college, I went skeet shooting with my right index finger and the dinner plates I had bought at the A&P.

I piled the plates carefully on the kitchen counter, flipped the top one in the direction of the sink and tried to shoot it with my finger. I calmly repeated the procedure until the floor resembled an archaeological excavation. I was not drunk or under the influence of drugs; I was simply coping with the fact that Stephanie Knight (not her real name), my hopeful love of the semester, was going to spend Thanksgiving break in New York City with Otley Chesterfield (not his real name), bon vivant and creep.

After sweeping the remains of the plates into a corner, I slung my knapsack over my shoulder and took the bus to the station where I caught a train for home. Five miles outside Baltimore the train rattled around a curve and my knapsack slipped off the overhead rack and landed on my

"Are you alright, Miss?" the conductor asked. I slid my face from behind the knapsack to show the color of my beard matched my long hair. From a seat diagonally in front of me across the aisle came a giggle, the sort of derisive snicker Maureen O'-Hara used to deliver when John Wayne fell into a mud puddle.

Source of the laughter was Wendy Westerly (not her real name) whom I had not seen since the night of our graduation from S-High School. With the faith of a missionary recovering from malaria, I thought I had gotten the parasite of love for Wendy out of my system. I had a crush on her throughout my senior year of high school and I was blinded by anger, jealousy, stupidity and devastation on the night of graduation when I saw he (Please turn to page A-5) name) jeans as they walked into and darkness beyond the Chinese lanterns at the edge of the pool.

Five minutes before the train arrived at New Brunswick it was agreed that Wendy and I would would go out Saturday night. A succession f boyfriends at college had made her realize that I was not that bad after all. We were both on the rebound, me from an unfulfilled crush and her from a graduate assistant who gave her Cs on papers. She liked my

That night the parasite of love crawled into my dreams. I woke up in a hot sweat and the warmth of my fingertip melted the frost on my bedroom window. I could not eat Thanksgiving dinner and in the next two days, I played solitaire with a 49-card deck, the traditional way to prepare the mind for the terrors of a first date.

She met me at the door with a kiss. The parasite of love swam in the rip tide of anticipated passion as we sat through the second showing of "Carrie." Coming out of the movie she talked about how stupid high school had been. "I always liked you then," she told me. "But you couldn't admit it then, because if you liked a person then it meant something different. You just couldn't go out with someone without people getting the wrong idea."

Then, though it was a cold night, we drove up the mountain, that famous spot for spooning couples of all ages. "You can see New York through the trees," she said. That was where Stephanie and Otley were spending the weekend. They inconvenience next to the actual days were probably having a great time. I was quiet for a long, long time. And so was Wendy. She was asleep. She take their kids along when they went on holiday. In fact, it was not uncommon around the Parthenon or the Acropolis to hear little Greek kids whining, "Do we have to spend the whole day here? I hate culture. I'll bet you didn't have to spend the whole day looking at Ionic columns when you were a kid." You see, things really haven't changed. Nor have kids. In fact, just this past weekend, Karen and I packed up the little urchins and we flew off to Disney World for four days and three nights of sun and fun. Only having the kids along, we were bigger on the sun part.

The kids, of course, looked at the whole experience from their unique perspective. "Why do we have to go?" was their first question. Because Disney World and Epcot Center are wonderful and educational places," we replied.

"Oh great! Now you want us to learn something too," they moaned. "You don't have to learn a thing," we said. "But we do think that it would be nice if you happened to pick up a little bit of knowledge between the rides.

'What'll you pay us if we do?" they queried.

And so began the fantastic journey that, in the classical sense, put our family in direct contact with the early Greeks.

Our flight was out of Newark and Board postpones voting on hotel of 200 rooms

EDISON - Plans for construction of a 200-room hotel atop an existing parking deck in the Metropark area were held for final study Monday

(Continued from page A-4) had told me she was exhausted. The date had come to its peaceful, uneventful, unexpected, contented conclusion. Wet snowflakes glided like ash from a distant fire through the halo of street lights. When I turned on the heater, I could no longer hear her gentle snores. I watched the snow. I remembered how much I had wanted to control the weather when I was a little kid. If it snowed too much, they closed school and that was always a blessing. But you can't control the weather, nor can you predict it beyond a reasonable doubt. Of course there are computer programs to predict the weather, but their effectiveness depends on accurate and complete data. But there are holes in our knowledge and the data is always changing. That's why we have to live with the unpredictable nature of weather. You have to accept it. That was what I thought as I drove home over the beautiful slippery night by the Planning Board.

According to board chairman Val Meszaros, he wants to confer with Middlesex County officials on the scope of off-site improvements that sought be sought from the applicants.

The hotel is a project of Thornall Associates and Metro Four.

It is proposed for construction down the center of the parking deck behind the Alfieri and Edison Atrium office buildings.

In addition to site plan approval, the hotel requires a technical sideyard variance because the dividing line for two lots that were created by the developers for "financing purposes," according to attorney Stephen Barcan, will run down the middle of the structure.

Architect and planner Robert Ancipink said the purpose of the hotel is to provide accommodations for visitors to businesses in the two adjacent office buildings. Occupants of these buildings, he said, include "some very large, blue chip tenants."

According to Ancipink, the hotel, which will be connected by walkways directly to the office buildings, will be constructed in two phases and encompass a total of 141,120 square

Ancipink assured the board that it will result in he addition of "no impervious surface whatsoever" because it will be built atop an existing

Bits o' Breezes

by M. Charbell

Recent headlines show national concern. Something is gnawing at the conscience of our nation - and not a minute too soon.

Nancy Reagan telling kids to "Just Say No." Mayor Koch has got a hard line: get tough with drug peddlers and cop-killers. TV networks are reluctantly admitting that too much TV viewing is bad for children. Heavy metal music is supposedly linked to violent acts, including suicide.

Slick magazine headlines are touting "How to talk to your children about AIDS." And most recently, Gov. Kean's own headliner: "Morals of pupils targeted in N.J." The list seems endless.

Even though I'm encouraged to see this courageous concern abounding in today's press, at the same time I'm frustrated with a society with such a high tolerance for things that are wrong.

We take forever in recognizing and defining our problems, and then when they're at a catastrophe level, we decide to do something about it.

Time for stories at the library

METUCHEN - Registration begins next week for another series of story times at the Metuchen Public Library

Toddlers 18 to 36 months old may come to a story time Tuesdays at 10:30 a.m., accompanied by a parent. Preschool story times for those 3 to 5 years old are Thursdays at 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. Both programs begin the week of November 29.

Registration begins Monday in person at the library, 480 Middlesex Avenue, and Tuesday by phone at

Support groups are announced

METUCHEN - The Center for Change has announced four support groups for adults and adolescents.

Subjects involve anger management, sex offenders, assertiveness and pursuit of happiness. All groups will meet in Metuchen. Anyone who is interested should contact Rick E. Rivera at 457-0298.

Like "Just Say No."

These problems didn't crop up overnight; they've been a long time brewing. What boggles the mind is that we're blind to the writing on the wall and the statistics that scream:

Gov. Kean has stated, "We live in an era of Jim and Tammy Bakker, where Sydney Biddle Barrows is a sought-after celebrity, where hockey slash each other and it's considered part of the game. We've seen an erosion of faith and concern for one another.'

Our society, generally speaking, is not in good shape. We're sick. Our problems are horrendous and growing worse. All indications are that something is rotten in the barrel.

Gov. Kean has appointed a 20-member council on development of character and values for New Jer-

That's wonderful. I mean it. It's a good move and I pray the council can make inroads toward their exemplary goals. But I've got to go on record and say our kids send a whole lot more than an advisory board to teach them values.

Our kids need to be taught right from wrong. They need to know that values exist in the real world. They need to see values at work in their homes, among their peers, in school, at play, in Little League and the Olympics, among their coaches and teachers, in local politics and school administrations, in their churches and in the people they admire most.

Our kids aren't stupid. They're living in a world where anything goes, from Watergate to Wall Street, from Jim and Tammy Bakker to Ben Johnson and the NFL, from alcoholism to shoplifting, from taking drugs to selling drugs for lots of money.

How can we teach our kids values in a valueless society?

As I write, a sign on my desk stares out at me: "Teach these commandments to your children. And talk to them when you are at home or out on a walk - at bedtime and the first thing in the morning. Tie them on your finger and wear them on your forehead, and write them on the doorposts of your home."

It works. It won't work overnight, but give these words a generation or two and you'll have a different world. Trust me. There's no other way.

A large talent buried in even larger ambitions

PATTI SMITH Dream of Life (Arista)

On the back cover of her muchheralded comeback record, Patti Smith shows a degree of honesty that I've got to admire. Nine lines of freeform prose-poetry, the sort of thing that gets printed toward the back pages of middlebrow news magazines near the book reviews, serve as a consumer warning that the Parents Music Resource Center might learn from: CAUTION. THIS ALBUM CONTAINS SOME POETRY. (A LOT, REALLY.) BUY AND LISTEN AT YOUR OWN RISK.

Although I don't have much use for the whining censors of the PMRC, I appreciate this: as solid as the rock and roll on the record may be, it's helpful to know about that poetry business in advance. When the metaphors get rolling before the shrink wrap's even off — "There are figure 8's, infinity signs, gracing our chronology. What does it all mean. Where shall we be going . . . The dreamer is rising and considers the long field. And the clouds, like crazy eights, drifting horizontal" - I have to think of another kind of crazy eights, the card game (one that people aren't too likely to bet on). I also have to think of what Flann O'Brien once said on the subject in his Irish Times column: "... a better case for the ban-ning of all poetry is the simple fact that most of it is bad. Nobody is going to manufacture a thousand tons of jam in the expectation that five tons may be eatable." Patti's as qualified to graft poetry onto rock and roll as anybody, and sometimes it even works, but the hand that wrote some of this stuff weighs at least a ton.

Not that it isn't good news to see Patti Smith working again, after her long retirement; not that the album doesn't have plenty of inspiring moments; not that the ratio of "eatable" stuff to unappetizing stuff is anywhere near as low as the proportion that bothered O'Brien. But when a record takes such pains to convince you of its Importance, from the massive production to the uplifting lyrics to the poetic fragments and ponderous dedications scattered around the package in stately-looking type fonts, it's not unnatural to choke a little. Dream of Life, sad to say, is closer to the consciously arty Wave than the genuinely artistic Horses; not enough of the rawness and scariness of her best work turns up here, and far too much romanticism gets in the way of the good ideas.

An obviously large talent is at work on this record, and about half the songs click. Patti's one of the few living lyricists who can take a well-worn, emotionally loaded subject and find a new angle on it. Take "Where Duty Calls," for example, a meditation on war and obedience and mass psychology. You don't have to be a pro-Pentagon chickenhawk to believe that the genre of the antiwar song has been close to dead since Bob Dylan's "Masters of War"; the subject seems to call for the silent eloquence of a Vietnam veterans' memorial, not three or four minutes of preachy emoting from a Phil Ochs. But Smith's song takes a big risk, linking "our boys" with "theirs" (the ultimate Other: the fanatic warriors of Islam), and makes sense out of it. She's both appalled and fascinated by the mindset of the foot soldier, whatever beliefs his brain's been washed with - "United children/ Child of Iran/ Parallel prayers/ Baseball Koran/ I'll protect Mama/ I'll lie awake/I'll die for Allah/ In a holy war" - and, amid all the implicit gore, she recognizes the kernel of selfless spirituality in people whose form of devotion has hellish consequences: "Forgive them Father/ They know not what they do/ From the vast portals of their consciousness/ They're calling to you." Without glorifying war, pretending that it can be truly holy, or committing a logical absurdity like Reagan's notorious line about Nazi soldiers being "victims," she expands the sense of empathy and directs her outrage toward the processes that turn naive kids into killers, not toward the kids themselves. It's a tricky moral tightrope to walk; she finds the center of it and dances.

"Up There Down There" is another winner, for musical reasons at least as much as verbal ones. The lyrics waver between overwrought apocalyptics ("Up there/ The eye is hollow/ The eye is winking/ The winds ablaze/ Angels howling/ The sphinx awakens/ But what can she say/ You'd be amazed") and cooler beatnik humility ("The abstract streets/ The lights like some switched-on Mondrian/ Cats like us are obsolete/ Hey Man don't breathe on my feet/ Thieves, poets, we're inside out"). Paging Allen Ginsberg: your lights are switched on. But however loaded (overloaded?) the lyric may be, it evokes a powerful vocal performance from Patti and some gutsy guitar work from Fred "Sonic" Smith, her co-composer, bandleader and husband. The Smiths' band -made up of downtown veterans, including respected workhorse Jay Dee Daugherty on drums and Richard Sohl on keyboards - kicks in hard on this one, reminding us that Patti's art-punk poetry always depended on a good solid sonic blast to get its work done.

Dream of Life would be a triumph if it had more rockers like this one, more graceful melodies like "Going Under," more pop moves like the doo-woppish "Looking for You (I Was)" and less precious stuff like "Dream of Life" and "The Jackson Song" (oh, no, another rocker reproduces and can't avoid writing a cliche-packed lullaby; parenthood seems to bring out the sappy vanilla yuppie in people who used to be as anti-bourgeois as a switchblade). As it is, it's an uneven mixture of good ideas, noble intentions, ideas that should have been edited out, and overblown studio bilge. Fred Smith and Jimmy Iovine share production credit, but I suspect the more grandiose treatments, some of which make Cecil B. DeMille look like a master of subtlety, reflect Iovine's approach more than Fred's; the distance between the MC5. Fred's old band, and this wall of unsoundness is too far to imagine.

The record's a tough call, and the call eventually comes down to the single. "People Have the Power" is

Patti Smith's best tunes are nothing if not anthemic; "Gloria," fusing smart radical theology with freighttrain rhythmic acceleration, is on anybody sane's list of killer songs. She's in fine voice here, with her raw edge well-exposed; the band's swing and pacing are excellent; the structure is classic, building up to a convincing vocal break as the lyrics close in on their revolutionary message. It's too long, but a lot of good songs are too long (everything the Buzzcocks ever wrote, for example). I really want to like this, and about every other time I hear it I do. But there's a gnawing problem: it just plain ain't true. The idea has rarely been this far from being true. Damn few of us had any substantial say in the selection of the two bozos that They offered to us as the two most qualified people to run the country; beyond that stage, nobody in his or her right mind would let a contest between ad agencies decide something that important; no population that really had any power would let itself be governed by Joe Isuzu and Pat Sajak. The song is a massive exercise in wishful thinking, and it wouldn't be any less fatuous if the absurd election had gone the other way. As revolution songs go, it isn't as goofy as, say, Jefferson Starship's Watergate-era clearly meant to be an anthem, and howler "Ride the Tiger." ("Look to the summer of '75/ The whole world's gonna come alive." Right.) But it doesn't describe even a potential reality outside the kind of dreamworld that They actively encourage people to inhabit; it's a fine dream, but once you've allowed it to be constructed as a dream, the battle's pretty much over. A culture blinded by a thousand points of Lite needs something a bit less sugary than a thousand tons of It's unwise to slag Patti Smith's work too heavily: she's got some great history behind her (she and Hilly Kristal more or less invented American punk rock; she and Il Bruce put our state on the musical map), and she's still hitting some mighty impressive peaks. If she can stop striving so hard to be the poet of the age, she might find a better blend of surrealism and rock and roll since any language already gets heightened when it's embedded in rock, the overtly heightened language of modern verse is awfully easy to tip over into pretentiousness inside a rock context, and the most "poetic" rock language is usually the stuff that isn't quite so consciously elevated. If she's serious about this difficult project, a careful look at her own earliest records wouldn't be a bad place to start over.

Two weeks left to enter printmaking competition

NEW BRUNSWICK - Garden State artists have until Wednesday, Nov. 30, to enter a printmaking competition sponsored by the Rutgers Center for Innovative Printmaking.

Six artists will be chosen to receive awards under the program, now in its second year. in addition to a $1,000 honorarium, winners will have the chance to produce their work with master printers using the center's facilities. Artists will receive half the edition of 30 and half of the 10 proofs.

All publication costs will be covered by the center, which is part of the visual arts department of Rutgers University's Mason Gross School of the Arts.

Of the remaining prints, three will enter the collections of the New Jersey State Museum, the Newark Public Library and the Zimmerli Art Museum. Another 10 will become the property of the New Jersey State Council on the Arts and the rest will be distributed by the Rutgers Center for Innovative Printmaking. An exhibition of the finished prints will be held at Rutgers University.

The competition is open to all New Jersey artists and no prior printmaking experience is required. Proposals may be for prints in any one or a combination of media -intaglio, lithography, silkscreen, relief printing and photo processes. Artists must plan within a paper size of 22 inches by 30 inches with no more than four printed colors. Hand coloring and collage elements may be applied to print surfaces.

Last year's competition attracted 200 applicants. An exhibit of works by last year's six winners will open Jan. 23 at the South Gallery of the Mason Gross School of the Arts, New Street.

Sparkling program from Wolff, NJSO

NEW JERSEY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA Count Basie Theater Red Bank, Nov. 11

Debussy: Prelude to The Afternoon of a Faun; Richard Strauss: Don QuixoteOp. 35; Charles Ives: Symphony No. 2.

In a program titled "Music Turns the Century, Part One: 1900," the N.J. Symphony performed three works composed between the years 1894 and 1902. The next two parts, consisting of compositions from the decade around 1910 and from 1920 to 1930 respectively, will come later this season and be well worth the wait. The first part was inspired programming and Lloved it.

The evening began with the celebrated Prelude a l'apres-midi d'un faune, Claude Debussy's adaptation of Mallarme's poem. In conductor Hugh Wolff's hands the interpretation of this masterpiece of fin de siecle sophistication was neither saccharine nor cumbersome.

. Employing a large orchestra - but never a loud sound - the numerous solos are led in importance by the gently rising and falling flute opening, ably played by Elizabeth Mann. This was a polished and elegant performance, leaning toward understatement

Don Quixote is a massive tone poem for cello and orchestra with a prominent part for solo viola, the instrument which portrays the knight's squire, Sancho Panza. The guest cellist was Carter Brey, whose performances always seem to exude and extra measure of intensity and involvement. I remember with pleasure his performance of a Rachmaninoff sonata with Ruth Laredo and an unaccompanied Kirschner piece, both performed at the Spoleto Festival, and a Roccoco Variations with the N.J. Chamber Orchestra.

Again he lived up to high expectations: Brey's cello became Cervantes' Don Quixote in the set of complex variations which depict events from the novel, beginning with the knight errant's derangement and ending with his death. The work is replete with the full melodies associated with Strauss but there is also much that is reminiscent of the composer's most humorous tone poem, Till Eulenspiel's Merry Pranks, which he wrote about two years before Don Quixote. Frank Foerster did a fine job as the viola soloist and Christopher Collins Lee, the concertmaster, was excellent as the violin soloist in both the Strauss and the Debussy works.

In fact, the many small solos for various members of the orchestra in the Strauss were most competently performed. The brasses and woodwinds were never better.

When listening to Charles Ives' music I never cease to wonder at his phenomenal talent. To think that this second symphony, written about 1902, reposed in a closet in Ives' house until its first performance in 1951 is to marvel anew that such a musical genius worked in isolation to turn out compositions that not only hold their own with the best mainstream work of the period but also marked him as the first truly great American composer.

This symphony is supposed to be a transitional work but it is already filled with the most complex rhythms and tonalities, and its melodic richness is mind-boggling. Ives took indigenous American tunes, from patriotic songs to Negro spirituals to fundamentalist revival hymns, to weave a tapestry of sound which if translated into needlepoint would be worthy of display in the Cloisters. It is a constantly interesting and amazingly beautiful work, but even without any rhythmic or harmonic devices to enjoy listeners could be fully entertained just by picking out the number of recognizable tunes Ives employs.

The orchestra played with a high level of precision and responsiveness to Wolff's baton. The entire concert was conducted by memory - not unusual for Hugh Wolff but a prodigious feat all the same.

This program will be performed a total of six times, ending with a Nov. 21 show at Carnegie Hall. If New York Times critic Donal Henahan hears it then he may have to reconsider his recent statement that Wolff may yet be "too green" to take over when Zubin Meta steps down next year as conductor of the New York Philharmonic.

This weekly column is devoted to sharing with you, our readers the different kinds of delightful, delicious cuisine in our area.

The Old Bay Restaurant 61-63 Church St. New Brunswick, N.J. 201-246-3111

The fastest route from central Jersey to New Orleans is a visit to Church Street in downtown New Brunswick and the Old Bay Restaurant Mezzanine dining rooms, the Bourbon Street lounge and the background music of New Orleans blues make patrons feel as if they are actually dining in New Orleans' French Quarter. In addition there are live jazz groups and a late night menu every Thursday, Friday and Saturday night The Old Bay Restaurant is owned and operated by Anthony Tola Jr.,

Anthony Ventre and Robert Steiger. The chef, Jeff Bauer is formerly of the Plume de Royale, where he was a sauce chef. Jeff is a graduate of the New York Restaurant School.

The cuisine is divided into two distinctly different styles - cajun and creole. My companion and I started with an appetizer of cajun popcorn which is tender gulf shrimp, hand-coated in a unique, spicy batter and deep fried to a golden brown; served with a spicy sherry wine dipping sauce ($5.95). We also had the gulf seafood gumbo soup, which consisted of shrimp, crabmeat and sliced andoinille sausage, in a roux-flavored seafood stock with lots of tomatoes, onions, bell peppers, celery scallings. seafood stock with lots of tomatoes, onions, bell peppers, celery, scallions and garlic, served with seasoned rice ($3.95).

My entree was a special of the night, grilled tuna and cajun dirty rice. ($12.95). My companion was most pleased by blackened red fish served with potato au gratin ($10.95). All dinners are served with a demi-loaf of hot French bread and herbed butter.

Lunch is served Monday thru Friday 11:30 a.m.·3 p.m. Dinner is served Monday thru Sunday, 5-10 p.m. Late night menu is served Thursday thru Saturday, 10 p.m.·1 a.m. Credit cards — American Express, Visa and MasterCard.

This column is designed to acquaint our readers with dining spots in the area. It is not intended as a critique.

WALL STREET (1987) Oliver Stone's wall street (1987) Oliver Stone's entertaining but irredeemably trashy story about greedheads on the rampage in the days before Black Monday took the snap out of their suspenders. The situation — impressionable young stock broker (Charlie Sheen) torn between his poor-but-honest father (Martin Sheen) and a sitthery corporate raider, suitably named Gordon Gekko (Michael Douglas) — recapitulates the most irritating aspect of Platoon, Stone's previous film. Douglas' exuberantly nasty raider gives the film a lot of juice ("I want him bleeding from every orifice!" he yowls as his flunkies set to work dismantling an opponent) but the views of stock manipula-opponent) but the views of stock manipula-tion and insider trading are uninformative and simplistic. Stone has admitted in inter-filmmaking debut about two con men trying to strike it rich by selling shares in a surefire theatrical bomb isn't as consistently funny as Young Frankenstein but it does have the "Springtime for Hitler" sequence — bad taste so extreme it seems downright inspired, and so funny Brooks has been re-inspired, and so funny Brooks has been recycling it ever since. The rest of the movie consists of Brooks' now-familiar brand of mugging and grade school humor; bearable if you're in an undemanding mood, deafening and tiresome if you're not. With Zero

Edison Fire Lieutenant Harold Peach surveys overturned Jeep Wagoneer after accident at Ovington and Prospect avenues that resulted in both drivers being taken to John F. Kennedy Medical

Drivers hurt in crash

EDISON - Both drivers were taken to John F. Kennedy Medical Center after a crash November 9 at Ovington and Prospect avenues that resulted in one of the vehicles landing on its roof.

The injured were Mary Alice T.

Annun of Farmhaven Avenue and Ludivina C. Sitoy of Piscataway, whose 1987 Jeep Wagoneer overturned.

Mrs. Annun told Patrolman Richard Dutka she was driving her 1986 Mercury north on Ovington at approximately 25 miles an hour when the other vehicle came through the stop sign on Prospect.

Dutka quoted Mrs. Sitoy as saying that when she saw the Mercury, she thought stepping on the gas pedal would enable her to avoid the collision.

MHS students provide works for an exhibit

METUCHEN - Four Metuchen High School students are represented in an exhibit of art and poetry at the Metuchen Public Library.

The works were completed by students who attend the Middlesex County Arts High School. Neil Bernstein, Amy Parlow, Robyn Schiff and Bill Weis represent MHS in the exhibit, which may be seen during library hours until Wednesday, November

Funding for the exhibit is through grants from the Middlesex County Cultural and Heritage Commission and the New Jersey State Council on the Arts/Department of State.

NCJW forum at Neve Shalom

METUCHEN - A forum about the "Dilemmas of Dying" will be presented Monday evening at Temple Neve Shalom, 250 Grove Avenue.

The program begins at 8 p.m. and is sponsored by the Edison Section of the National Council of Jewish Women. Featured will be a showing of No Heroic Measures, a film which deals with issues relating to the terminally ill. A panel discussion will follow.

Among the speakers is Helen D. Blank, a medical historian and the conference coordinator for the Citizens' Committee on Biomedical Issues, based in Summit.

Admission is free and the public is welcome. The forum is part of a statewide survey being conducted by the Citizens' Committee.

The best way to evaluate a health plan is to experience it. So the Rutgers Community Health Plan-RCHP—invites you to follow these simple steps:

1. Call RCHP. Arrange for a guided tour of the nearest of our seven Health Centers located throughout Central and Northern New Jersey.

2. Take the tour. See why our locally-managed group model HMO can give you better, more complete coverage-with no claim forms, little or no copayments and no deductibles.

Check out our modern medical facilities—with labs, x-ray facilities and most of the primary care services you and your family will ever need-all under one roof. Meet our professional staff and get a firsthand feeling for the quality of personal care our multi-specialty group practice provides, from internal medicine and pediatrics to orthopedics.

Hear how RCHP cares for you when you're well with routine exams and eye care, and with wellness programs like Weight-Away and Smoking Cessation. And how we tie in with other specialty physician groups and the area's finest hospitals—The Medical Center at Princeton, Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital, St. Peter's Medical Center and the Overlook Hospital—to complement our own excellent care.

You'll find out what makes

RCHP different. And better. 3. Make up your own mind. Take the first step today. Take a walk through our health plan. Call 1-800-233-RCHP.

Karen is finally home but sadness tinges joy

By EILEEN PAKENHAM

METUCHEN - Karen Germain Cafaro is home for the holidays.

Unfortunately, her return last week from a Houston, Texas, hospital, where she has been undergoing treatment for a rare form of cancer, was not a totally joyous occasion for members of her large

On Saturday, funeral services were conducted for her 87-yearold grandfather, George Breen. Karen, described as "one of his special favorites," was there and she also had managed to pay a brief visit to the wake.

"It's not an easy time for her," reported Karen's sister, Pat Cirri. Karen was hospitalized in August at the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston with multiple myloma. Her treatment involved removing the cancerous marrow from her bones and replacing it with marrow taken from another sister, Eileen Teffenhart.

Because Karen's immune system had to recoup, she spent a month in isolation, another two months in a regular hospital bed and then in a Houston apartment so she would be close to the hospital in the event of complications.

"The worst part of this situation is that Karen can't say, 'It's over'," said Mrs. Cirri, who explained the disease, which usually affects older men, has a chance of recurring. "It's demanding on her in every way," she added.

Karen, now living in Union with her husband, Anthony, will have to go every two weeks to St. Elizabeth's Hospital for six hours of intravenous gamma globulin

Mrs. Cirri is currently suffering from bronchitis but hopes to be fully recovered so she can spend Thanksgiving with Karen and their sister, Eileen, and brothers, Joe Jr. and Bill, at the Forked River home of their parents, Eileen and Joe Germain.

"I can't be ill because Karen's not supposed to be exposed to too many germs," Mrs. Cirri said. "This isn't easy for anybody."

Metuchen board decides variety of zoning cases

METUCHEN -Fences at both 49 and 73 Lake Avenue are going to have to be moved, a shed at 24 Smith Street will be allowed to stay where it is, a house at 48 Forrest Street is going to become a two-family and a second-story bedroom will be added to 80 Upland Avenue.

These were the decisions reached at last week's Zoning Board of Adiustment meeting.

The two homeowners who are going to have relocate the fences on their facing corner properties at Lake Avenue and Division Street are Gerald Fiorillo and Gail and Dennis O'Leary. Both property owners found they were in error when hey assumed they could replace existing nonconforming fences with new ones.

Board chairman Ellen Clarkson noted that many fences around the borough are in violation and said when they are replaced, the new fences must conform to required set-

The O'Learys and Fiorillo argued the setback cuts down on yard space but Mrs. Clarkson explained intersection visibility for motorists must be of concern.

The board also found that Fiorillo's new fence, which had been erected where the previous fence stood, encroached on borough property. He was granted a frontyard setback variance to accommodate the new fence.

A variance was granted to permit the O'Learys to erect stockade fence 10 feet off their southerly property line.

Mrs. O'Leary vowed she will be touring town, notebook in hand, to write down the addresses of all the properties whose fences do not con-

Bruce Lucas of 24 Smith Street was granted a setback variance for his existing shed after no one appeared to object. He explained it had been necessary to place the structure only two feet from the property line because of the slope of his yard.

The board, after a 20-minute hearing and a record for breveity, granted Donna Pechman a change of use variance for her 48 Forrest motherdaughter house. The board decided at 11 p.m. it would hear Pechman's case only if her presentation was brief. She told the board the house has been on the market for the past year and while there are buyers for two-families there are none for mother-daughter houses.

Pechman said 80 percent of the houses in the R-2 residential zone are two-families. The variance was approved unanimously.

Jean Vick will construct her new bedroom atop of the attached garage of her house at 80 Upland Avenue. A variance was required because the garage is only five feet from the property line and is in violation of the setback requirement.

Middlesex Gulf succeeds with plans for expansion

METUCHEN - The 99 Middlesex Avenue Gulf Station run by Joseph and John McGlynn is one step closer to an expansion of 1,290 square feet after last week's Zoning Board of Adjustment meeting. The board unanimously granted a variance for expanding the non-conforming use, subject to site plan approval. The McGlynns told the board their proposed addition will accommodate cars in need of inspections, "computer" repairs and air conditioning maintenance. John McGlynn's son, Joseph, testified repairs done in the new addition would be "quiet repairs" on the "high tech" aspects of cars. He asserted shop tools would not be needed for such work and the bay door would be closed during the work time.

Five people from the north Middlesex Avenue neighborhood off Homestead Road attended the meeting to vent their displeasure at the concept of the repair station enlargement in the R-1 residential zone. Three members of the same community voiced the opinion that the garage was a benefit to the neighborhood and they applauded the expansion of the business

U. Eichbaum of Linden Avenue told the board he owns an acre and a half adjacent to the station and expansion of the station will make his property less attractive if he were to carry out his his plans to use the tract for townhouses.

Joan Palmieri of Middlesex Avenue complained the station was visible from her front door and she did not want to "look at more of it." She said the station, if enlarged, would cause the value of her house to tumble.

Allen and Barbara Bowers of Homestead Road commented that while the McGlynn's are good neighbors their business promotes traffic and they echoed Mrs. Palmieri's concerns that the expansion will have a negative impact on property va-

Lloyd Winnig of Homestead Road was worried the expansion would result in increased traffic. He advised the gas station "stay the way it is."

The McGlynns were not without

Among them was Salem Court resident Virginia Hogan, who pointed out the station was in businbess on Middlesex Avenue before the surrounding residential area was developed. She extolled the McGlynns for "always being there" when anyone in the neighborhood needs repairs on their cars and was confident the McGlynns would "only add to the neighborhood" with their expansion. John Feltobo of Salem Court and Sylvia Wiser of Homestead Road said the McGlynns run a fine operation and are always ready to help the neighbors. 'I cannot believe Metuchen won't take care of someone who's taken care of us," said Feltobo. The expansion is 280 feet smaller than a proposal rejected sometime back by the Zoning Board of Adjustment because it was too large. It was the board's decision that the new application could be heard because it differed significantly from the original one. Joseph McGlynn testified the addition will be to the side of the existing structure and will not be in direct view of the neighbors. It will be a "closed door" operation, he said, and work will cease at 10 p.m. He offered to remove the existing gas pump island because the station reaps more business from car repairs than from the sale of gas.

It also was testified that the brick siding will match that of a bank office across the street, there will be no overnight parking except for cars that are dropped off or being picked

A rendering of the addition prepared by Joseph McGlynn there are no illuminated signs and the "emphasis is on landscaping.'

However, borough planner James Constantine told the board the new plan offers less improvement than the original. He said McGlynn's rendering was "out of proportion" and he warned the board "what you see is not in this instance what you get."

Constantine also said the gas station currently is storing tires inside an enclosed area intended for parking and pointed out that if this practice continues, the McGlynns may not have sufficient space to park all of the vehicles on which they are

Constantine said the station owners have to answer the "nuisance issues" raised by the neighbors and must provide "reasonable assurances" that the addition will not exacerabate

Board chairman Ellen Clarkson said she would be more comfortable with the plan "if one of the pump islands was removed" and she surmised the addition would "in part phase out" the gas pumps.

Board member Carol Lerner was confident noise from the station would not affect the neighbors as much because of the "computer services rather than shop work.'

Drop one car, steal another

METUCHEN -Police speculate there is a connection between a stolen car found abandoned at the west end of Amboy Avenue and a car stolen from outside 117 Durham Avenue.

Patrolman Stanley Bozinta said two white males reportedly were seen in a car reported stolen in New York City that was followed both in Perth Amboy and Metuchen. On Tuesday, it was found unoccupied on Amboy Avenue.

Bozinta reported the same day New York City car was found, a black 1986 Chevrolet Monte Carlo was reported missing by its owner, Terry Lotz of 117 Durham Avenue. Lotz told the patrolman the Monte Carlo had been parked in the same space since 8 p.m. November 14 and it had a broken right headlight and "slight damage" to the right front Bozinta said the pair who abandoned the stolen New York City car may have walked along the Conrail train tracks south from Amboy Avenue to Durham Avenue, where they climbed a fence alongside the tracks and found the Monte Carlo.

Craft boutique slated for PHS

PISCATAWAY — This Saturday, the Piscataway High School Concert Choir and its parents' association will sponsor their tenth annual holiday craft boutique.

The event will take place from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the commons of the PHS 9-10 building. About 65 craft dealers from New Jersey and nearby states will be represented, and each dealer will donate an item to be raffled off during the day.

Plants and home-baked goods also will be sold on the premises. Sandwiches, soup and refreshments will be available for purchase.

Proceeds from the event go to support the PHS concert choir.

Runaway car hits fence, tot emerges unscathed

EDISON - A 2-year-old Highland Park boy was retrieved unscathed November 9 from a locked car after it shot across Duclos Lane from Latonia Street and crashed into a chain link fence.

The child, Antonio Vega, according to Patrolman Louis Kirsh, was a passenger in a 1979 Pontiac driven by his mother, identified as G. Grillo, who got out of the car to pick up aluminum cans that had been placed at curbside on Latonia.

Kirsh said Mrs. Grillo placed the gear shift in park but left the engine of the Pontiac running. Her son, who was not restrained by a child device, climbed into the driver's seat, according to Kirsh, closed and locked the car door and put the gear shift into drive.

Kirsh reported the Pontiac lurched forward, crossed Duclos Lane to the Highland Park side of the road and mounted the curb in front of a house at 175 Franklin Street. It crossed the lawn, went through some shrubs and came to a halt after crashing into the fence, he said.

According to Kirsh, when Mrs. Grillo saw the car take off she ran after it but was unable to stop it. He said when the Pontiac came to rest, she ordered the child to open the door and he complied. The boy, Kirsh said, was unhurt and "seemed fine."

Mrs. Grillo was issued a ticket for leaving the Pontiac unattended with its engine running. Kirsh said the owner of the Pontiac is Antoinette Grillo of Highland Park.

Four new lots approved; vote on two others held

EDISON - Two subdivisions that will create four new lots in North Edison that are only a couple of hundred feet short of the 10,000-square-foot minimum were approved Monday night by the Plan-

Another subdivision application that would create two lots with frontages of only 50 feet in South Edison met with neighborhood opposition and was held for further study.

The North Edison subdivision involves properties on Beatrice Parkway owned by Ruby Campbell and John and Yvonne Moon.

Attorney Michele Donato told the board that the extension of Revere Boulevard to the rear of the Campbell and Moon properties now makes it possible to develop the rear portions into separate lots.

All of the new lots will have the required 100-foot frontages and realtor Irving Tripp testified that the subdivision of the two very deep properties will create "a harmonious pattern of development" in the area.

The applicant whose subdivision remains undecided is Melvin B. Kruysman who wants to create two lots of 5,000 square feet each and with frontages of 50 feet on Taft Avenue, which is off Route 27.

The board was told by Kruysman's attorney, Joseph Danbach, that the area is a mixture of developed lots ranging from those with frontages of 100 feet to those with the required 75-foot frontages and others that are below the minimum. He estimated there are about a third of each.

According to Kruysman, he would remove two dilapidated structures and build a ranch house and a twostory colonial, each valued at $190,000. One would be for his sisterin-law, he said, and he would occupy the other. Board chairman Val Meszaros suggested that he consider building smaller houses that would "fit" the property and would be in the range of $170,000 and "more affordable."

However, James Maranko of 215 from noon to 1 p.m.

Suttons Lane, whose property backs on the Taft Avenue site, didn't like the idea of two houses and suggested Maranko said every time there is new construction, his property is the recipient of the drainage and a duplex would cover less surface. "I don't want anymore problems," the board was told by Maranko whose objections were seconded by Mrs. Maranko. Maranko also told the board that two houses would result in too much crowding. "We're creating a metropolitan area," he complained. "We're bunching everything up together." Steve Leoniy also objected to the subdivision. "He went in with his eyes open, knowing the zoning was 75x100," he

Rainford case continues, dismissal motion filed

By SCOTT J. PONTER

NEWARK - The hearing before Administrative Law Judge Thomas Clancy wore on this week as Albert Rainford's attorney, Paul Massaro, filed a motion to dismiss the state's charges seeking to revoke Rainford's construction official's license and called eight witnesses to testify on behalf of the Edison construction of-

"I truly believe the state's case against my client stinks," Massaro said, "and that he has done nothing wrong to merit this kind of action and the department should be ashamed of itself," Massaro commented. Massaro said much of the case boils down to a difference of opinion between the state's witnesses and the township's construction officials in interpreting the building code requirements.

'Even assuming we're wrong, you don't take a man's license for a dif-ference of opinion," Massaro added, "but I want to emphasize the fact I think we're right.

The 30-second commercial will depict David Wagner as a young man "in a crisis situation."

He will find a newspaper on the tracks, see an ad for the hotline and call "just when he thought there was no hope," according to the Rev. Wagner.

Future commercials, he said, will convey the same message but within a different context.

The 30-second commercial will conclude with the name of the hotline and its current telephone number, 769-7909.

Calls for the hotline go through the Faith Fellowship switchboard during the day and when it closes down, they are call-forwarded on a 24-hour basis to the home of the counselor assigned to that shift.

According to the Rev. Wagner, all of the counselors have undergone special training at an inhouse seminar at which one of the instructors was Dr. Brian Harris, a Newark physician, who is involved in crisis intervention work. Others have included people from agencies such as those that deal with teenage pregnancies.

The counselors have learned, Wagner explained, that their first function is "to listen."

Their responses are to make the trouble teenager feel "there is hope, there is hope," he said.

Martin's earwig collection. Dead or not, they were his contribution to the science fair.

Robert Knoth, a 6th and 7th grade science teacher at Campbell, said the Middlesex County Science Fair inspired his idea to hold a similar event at Campbell. He proposed holding a fair idea to principal Mark Heinze and was quickly given the go-ahead. The school faculty, Knoth reported, "had to plan their day around this" and he thanked them heartily for their support. Of the school's 350 students, 120 took part in the fair. They prepared a total of 82 different exhibits, some of them two-student projects.

The youngsters set up their displays Tuesday morning in the cafeteria and from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., they manned their exhibits, prepared to provide brief explanations of their projects for visitors.

At each grade level, first, second and third place ribbons were awarded by judges who included Marcia Holtzman, district curriculum coordinator; Burt Kuenzel, head of the high school science department, and principal Heinze.

The projects were judged on how well they were designed and or contructed and the judges looked for participants who effectively presented their project and who were knowledgeable, enthusiastic, and well reaserched on their display.

"The space shutttle is a big one," said Knoth as he surveyed the cafeteria. "Then again mice in mazes are a hot ticket, too.'

Knoth noted that experiments employing batteries were big among his fledgling scientists and models of the universe were popular projects. Two displays involved submerging eggs in vinegar for three days and demonstrating the end result, depending on whether they were cooked or uncooked. Uncooked eggs were rubbery after their vinegar bath; cooked ones were fossilized.

"The kids did pretty much what they wanted to so long as it related to science," said Knoth.

Two 7th graders, Joey Sardone and Bruce Lucaks, devoted their efforts to proving Archimedes principle and demonstrated heavier liquids will sink while those with less density will

"We came in early to school for days to work on our experiment," explained Sardone. Of their chances of winning an award, Lucaks didn't see any reason why they shouldn't. "We put a lot of time and effort into it," he said.

'We deserve it," summed up Sardone.

They won second prize.

Parents Association on coverage that would be provided by a rider to the district policy that the band parents would obtain. The existing restrictions on trips came under consideration when the band parents initiated a request that the JPS Marching Band be permitted to participate in band competions that could take them to points as far away as Florida and California. It was accompanied by a detailed proposal prepared by the district music supervisor and band directors of both Stevens and Edison High chool that included fund-rais tivities to finance such excursions. The district policy on trips by student groups was tightened several years ago by the board when terrorist activities at airports and hijackings raised fears about exposing the youngsters to such dangers.

It was decreed that trips would be limited to an area between Boston and Washington although trips have been made to further points such as

Board member Ralph Bayard argued at the agenda session that because terrorists no longer seem to pose a threat, the main worry is what might happen after the youngsters have arrived at their destination.

Board attorney Joseph Ferenczi vide their own liability insurance but he pointed out that this would not preclude the local school district from being made a party to any suit.

'They'll bring the board in sure as heck," he warned.

Ferenczi reminded the board that the purpose of the board liability insurance is to cover the district in the event of a judgment but the main question that the board has to decide is whether $11 million is enough. He recommended that the board consult its insurance adviser on the subject although board secretary N. Robert Post said it was the consultant's view that $11 million is adequate.

"That's his professional opinion," Post reported.

Dr. Joseph Kreskey, deputy superthat the board take advantage of the JPS Band Parents' offer to obtain its own insurance rider. Board president John White said that was fine with him so long as the district didn't have to contribute to the premium. "I's say 'go with it' but I don't want to spend any money," White told Kreskey.

Further discussion of the rider raised the question of whether this might place the district in a position of being legally responsible for the band parents who make the trip and not just the youngsters.

There also were indications during the discussion that although it will agree to permitting expanded trips if the insurance question can be resolved, the board and administration are not overjoyed at the prospect.

"What do you do for an encore?" asked Kreskey, who wondered if the bands are permitted to go to Florida and California that international travel might come next.

"Are they missing some trophies or something?" White wondered.

Mrs. Levin also suggested that participating in far-flung band festivals might result in band members being required to devote more time to rehearsal sessions at the expense of their academic studies.

The "keener" the competition becomes, she pointed out, the more the bands have to practice.

(Continued from page A-1) Carro reported that Endrihs had no ready story for the presence of two lengths of chain and a hammer that also turned up in the vehicle.

Carro came across Endrihs' 1979 Ford when he observed it parked at 3:04 a.m. at the corner of Bounty Street and Hunt Place. Carro stopped his patrol car to inquire if the driver was in need of assistance and was told the car radiator was in need of water.

As Carro observed Endrihs fill the radiator to overflowing, he glanced inside the Ford and reportedly saw the knife in plain view. Endrihs' explanation for the presence of the knife became suspect when he reportedly told another officer that he hadn't been at work that night at his restaurant job. Further investigation turned up the remainder of the alleged arsenal.

Endrihs was arrested on charges of illegal possession of weapons and possession of fireworks.

school food storage room, gymnasium and gym office, two sections of hallways and 11 classrooms were ransacked or damaged. Twenty fire extinguishers also were destroyed.

Dr. Joseph Kreskey, deputy superintendent of schools, told the board that during the first break-in the suspects concentrated on overturning teachers' desks and bookcases and in one especially violent display, an aquarium was overturned and some large fish "slammed" against the

On November 8, entry was gained by kicking in a panel in an overhead door and the greatest amount of damage was caused to the science labs and home economics area.

"The science labs as far as equipment and supplies were literally destroyed," Kreskey said.

Frog carcasses used in experiments were pinned to the walls, according to Kreskey, who said that before cutting their swath of damage, the vandals apparently played basketball in the gym. Damage also was widespread in the home ec rooms. "We have to replace freezers, refrigerators, wall ovens," he told the board.

According to Kreskey, food was thrown around and telephones but not the alarm devices were disman-

"They literally tore down the ceiling," he reported.

Not only were the ceiling tiles removed, he said, but the grids that hold them in place were broken and the wiring was yanked out. "Sick, sick, sick," said board president John White after hearing the report.

It was White's recommendation that action be taken to install alarms throughout the entire school, a project that board secretary N. Robert Post estimated would cost $250,000.

It was suggested by school superintendent Charles A. Boyle that because of budget limitations the expanded alarm system could be installed in stages.

Heights people organize to battle rezoning plan Heights of Edison have mobilized to wage a war against rezoning a 54-acre tract between their neighborhood and Route 1 from one-family to town-

However, there is growing evidence that even though the proposal still has the support of township planner John Chadwick and Planning Board chairman Val Meszaros, there are board members and members of the Township Council who believe the wishes of the residents should pre-

The rezoning is proposed in the current draft of the master plan and could not become effective unless enacted into law by the council.

Changing the zone from RB residential, which allows for individual lots with 75-foot frontages, to PRD multi-family is viewed by at least Chadwick and Meszaros as helping to insure preservation of a large stand of hardwood trees that presently buffers the Heights of Edison from Route 1 and its commercial uses.

They also have taken the position that PRD zoning will give the Planning Board greater site plan control and help head off a road that would connect the property, once it is developed, with the Heights.

However, the Heights' residents want the zoning to remain unchanged Jack Spiller were told at Monday and have said they will take their chances that under the present RB zoning it will remain undeveloped.

The property is owned by the Halpern Organization of Woodbridge, which specalizes in the construction of apartments and condominiums.

To spearhead their fight, Heights residents have incorporated as Citizens Aligned for Proper Planning and have elected Tony Spiller as president, Jim Biolsi as vice president and a 15-member executive commit-

According to Biolsi, CAPP has appointed block coordinators responsible for disseminating information and collecting funds and the group is in the process of hiring an attorney who specializes in land use law.

Biolsi said CAPP is finding "overwhelming support" not just in the Heights of Edison but also in adjacent neighborhoods such as Grandview Park.

"The response has been overwhelming," he said. "We feel we know what is best for our neighborhood," he added. "We can't understand why the Planning Board continues to press it forward when the residents are so opposed."

warned Meszaros. "We'll take that chance," Spiller replied. Board chairman William Bohn characterized the dispute as "a local issue" as compared to one that would affect the entire township. So long as the Heights residents fully understand what's at stake, he said, it is "important" for the Planning Board to listen to their views.

Biolsi carried with him petitions against the rezoning signed by 300 residents but was told it would be better if he presented them at the second Biolsi and fellow Heights resident master plan hearing on December 5.

Look-alike gun leads to arrest

EDISON - A 16-year-old Metuchen youth was charged with disorderly conduct Sunday after he allegedly admitted to ownership of a replica that appeared to be a 9mm weapon.

According to Patrolman John Vaticano, the look-alike gun was on the passenger side floor of a 1979 Chevrolet that was involved in an accident at 4:51 p.m. at Amboy Avenue and Lafayette Road.

The youth was released in the custody of a relative.

The Chevrolet driven by Martin J. Cassio of School Street, Metuchen, was traveling on Amboy Avenue when it collided with a 1986 Chevrolet operated by Emery Martinez of Perth Amboy who pulled out of Lafayette.

Martinez and two of his passengers were taken to John F. Kennedy Medical Center by Edison First Aid Squad No. 1.

requests are dismissed

Applicants don't show,

EDISON — Two applications were dismissed without prejudice Monday night by the Planning Board when no one appeared to pursue the requests.

Joseph Zippo was seeking site plan approval, two variances and permission to exceed lot coverage for an expansion of his radio store at Oak Tree Road and Henry Street.

The other application was that of Middlesex County Multiple Listing Systems Inc. that sought to expand its building at 1054 Amboy Avenue.

During the agenda session, which preceded the regular meeting that had been shifted from Wednesday to Monday because of the State League of Municipalities convention, board members indicated they were not favorably disposed to either applica-

Board chairman Val Meszaros suggested that Zippo's operation "has outgrown the area; he's outgrown the facilities."

In addition to site plan approval, Zippo was asking for a variance that would permit his expanded building to have a frontyard setback of 12.2 feet as compared to the required 25 feet and another variance for a sideyard of four feet instead of the required 12 feet.

He also wanted approval of 35 percent lot coverage as compared to the permitted 25 percent in the OS (office-sales) zone. Middlesex County Multiple Listing Services was asking site plan approval for expansion of its building, a former dwelling, and off-street park-

"This is really over-utilization," said Meszaros during the agenda

"Can you imagine the traffic that will be generated?" asked board member William Salley. "I suggest it is not a good situation.'

It was reported that during discussions with the Site Plan Committee, the representative of the applicant reported that 200 copies of the listing are circulated and that 70 or more realtors come to the office in their cars to pick them up.

Board members said that originally it was claimed there were only four office employees but during Site Plan Committee discussions, the number was increased to seven.

It was indicated that the Site Plan Committee recommended that a garage on the property be demolished to provide additional parking space but the applicant said the structure is needed for storage.

At PSE&G, we've had a tradition of helping people since 1903. And now, we're reinforcing that tradition. With new Child Watch, your kids have more than 6,000 PSE&G employees watching out for their safety.

And we're ready to help if your child is in trouble or lost when there are no police or emergency officials nearby.

Our vans and trucks are easy to spot. And most are equipped with two-way radios to call for assistance. So teach your children to watch for us. Because we're watching out for them.

St. Joseph's wins Parochial A state title

By STEVE SMITH

EWING- During the early stages of the 1988 season, Carmine Pascarella of the St. Joseph's High School soccer team said that winning a team title of some sort was one of his biggest goals.

The senior striker, who has an knack for scoring goals, experienced the ultimate team goal Tuesday night at Trenton State College

Senior stopper Will Burke converted a six-yard shot from a tough angle on the left side at the 7:28 mark of the first overtime period to snap a 1-1 tie and lift the Falcons to a 2-1 double overtime triumph over Bergen Catholic for the Parochial A state championship.

The victory was the 15th in a row for the Falcons, who improved to

Bergen Catholic coach Hugh Beattie was quick to praise the Falcons'

"I thought St. Joseph's was an excellent team," he said. "They were well-rounded and well-drilled. I thought the officiating was horrendous though. If that's the best officiating we can get, we shouldn't even come down here.'

The Falcons took an early 1-0 lead at 6:09 of the first period when senior midfielder Chris Mayer took a pass from Simon and drilled a 25-yard blast into the left corner of the net, past Crusader goalie John Geraghty. The tally was Mayer's 16th of the

Bulldogs advance to championship game

DELRAN- Like the saying goes-When something works, you stick with it.

That is exactly what the Metuchen High School girls soccer team (16-3-1) did as they beat Bordentown by a score of 1-0, to win the Group I South sectional title Tuesday.

However, Bulldog coach Len Vaccaro went into the game having mixed feelings about the site of the game.

"They called it a neutral site," Vaccaro said. "But it took us an hour and a half to get there and it took Bordentown ten minutes."

The win over Bordentown comes with the sweet taste of revenge because it was the very same opponent that beat the Bulldogs last year to win the sectional title. However, things would be different this year.

'We were a better team," Vaccaro said. "I told the girls we should be 50-50 with them because they only have one big gun.'

The game winning goal came off of the foot of Allison Halperin in the third period with an assist from Chrissy Santo Pietro. On the day, the Bulldogs managed 12 shots on goal, but only one got by the Bordentown

However, that would be enough as Metuchen goalie Marie Watson turned aside 16 shots from Bordentown.

'Marie had a great game," Vaccaro said. "The Bordentown coach just looked around in frustration after every save.'

Watson frustrated Bordentown with aggressive play which has been her trademark all season.

"Marie came out and caught every corner kick they took," Vaccaro added. "That is the advantage to having a senior in the box when the big game is on the line." On the whole Vaccaro feels the Bulldogs played well, but he says he has seen them play better.

"The passing was not good and it could have been better because I have seen it better," Vaccaro emphasized. "The communication has also been better in the past.'

After winning the South, Metuchen now faces Morris Catholic, who beat Walwick to win the North, tomorrow for the Group I state championship at Trenton State College, starting at 4 p.m. The Bulldog mentor knows what his team must do for them to win the

The Metuchen High School field hockey team did, but that shouldn't detract from what was a memorable and very successful Fall campaign.

The Bulldogs concluded their season by dropping a tough 2-1 decision to South Hunterdon in the Central Jersey, Group I state playoff championship game last Friday at Metuchen High School.

The setback gave the Bulldogs a 15-4-1 record, a new school standard for wins in a season.

Davis' explosion powers Metuchen

By STEVE SMITH

SPOTSWOOD— Chad Davis figured he had waited long enough.

The fleet-footed running back of the Metuchen High School football team knew it was only a matter of time before he'd explode. Davis has been banged up and even filled in at quarterback at times this year for the Bulldogs, but he never lost faith in his ability to run the football.

His faith was rewarded Saturday afternoon.

The 5-foot-7, 165-pound junior gained a career-high 162 yards on 25 carries and scored his first touchdown of the season to power the Bulldogs to a convincing 27-0 rout over Spotswood in a Greater Middlesex Blue Division contest.

The win boosted Metuchen's record to 2-6 overall and 2-5 in divisional play, while the Chargers dipped to 1-7 overall and 1-6 in Blue Division competition

DAVIS WAS ALL smiles after the game.

"I've been waiting for a game like this," said the affable Davis. "I finally had a chance to do it today. My line does a real good job for me. I ran behind Rey Lopez (5-10, 285) and Jim some big holes for me. You could drive a Mack truck through them. I just had a good time."

"Chad knows the offense now," added Metuchen head coach Ned Ennis. "He knows where to make his cuts. He can outrun people in the open field. I also thought our offensive line did a good job.'

Davis was not the only player to share the spotlight, however. Junior quarterback Pete Kaminskas, filling in for the injured Bob Kuhne, did a fine job running Ennis' veer offense and also tossed a pair of touchdown passes— a 44-yarder to senior tight end Steve Burns in the first quarter and a six-yard strike to senior wide receiver Lance Campbell in the third quarter. with 5:32 remaining in the first quarter when Kaminskas tossed a 44-yard scoring pass to Burns. Burns was wide open over the middle at the Charger 25 and rambled untouched into the end zone, completing a threeplay, 49-yard drive.

"That was a pop pass," explained Ennis in describing the call. "He (Kaminskas) caught them in a stunt and Steve was open and caught the ball in full stride. He made a nice Gartner found a seem in the Bulldogs' zone and sprinted down the left sideline. Rance made a TD-saving tackle at the Bulldog nine, a tackle that proved to be extremely important considering that Spotswood gained just three yards in four tries following Brogno's bomb. A tying touchdown at that juncture may have changed the complexion of the game.

"Will is a fast kid, a tough kid," said Ennis. "He's made two touchdown-saving tackles this year. Earlier against New Brunswick he caught (Eric) Cromedy from behind.' Orlando intercepted Gartner's option pass in the end zone on fourthand-goal to end the threat.

Spotswood received a break midway through the second quarter when Davis was hit by Gartner and fumbled the ball away to Charger linebacker Joe Tellefsen at the Metuchen 22. Then came a series of frustrating penalties on the Chargers that seemed to deflate their spirits.

EDISON- When it comes to the Bishop Ahr High School football team and offense, there is only one phrase that fits-feast or famine.

That's how it went this past Friday night, as the Trojans marched to a 28-26 win over the Cougars of Cedar Ridge at Bishop Ahr High School.

The win raised the Trojans record to 5-2-1, while the Cougars dropped to

The game featured the battle of the backs, as Trojan running back Keith Veltre and Cougar back Shannon Starks dominated the game.

Veltre, the 5-foot-7, 174-pound senior, rushed for 120 yards, six more than the entire Bishop Ahr team. The all-county back even caught a pass to set up one of his three touchdowns.

Veltre was such an offensive force that his 139 all-purpose yards beat his team's total offensive output of 126

Bishop Ahr coach Tony Aschettino spoke about his star running back after the win.

"He's been asking me all year long for a film he could send out (to colleges) but I didn't have one," Aschettino said. "But after this game, I have one to give him.'

HOWEVER, the Cougars were able to counter Veltre with running back Shannon Starks. The senior rushed for 175 yards, compared to the 36 yards rushing by the rest of the Cou-

Starks, who scored twice, had over 100 yards after carrying the ball just four times. The big blow came on the second play of the game, as Starks ran 63 yards for a touchdown giving the Cougars the early 7-0 lead after John Panagis added the extra point.

Cedar Ridge coach Doug O'Connell knew the game would turn out to be a battle of the backs.

'There were two excellent running backs out there tonight," O'Connell said. "Neither defense could control the backs and they both had and excellent game.'

'Starks is the best back we've faced all year and we knew that

On the third play from scrimmage, Veltre took a third-and-seven handoff over the right side and rushed 46 yards putting the ball on the Cougar 45-yard line. A Cedar Ridge penalty then put the ball on the 30-yard line of the Cougars and gave Bishop Ahr a first down.

On third-and-three, running back Marc DeBellis ran the ball to the fiveyard line where he fumbled. The greased pigskin rolled into the endzone where Trojan tight end Chad Seyler recovered for a Trojan touchdown. Brian Withka tied the score at seven after his extra point.

The turnover hurt Cedar Ridge again, as Bishop Ahr defensive back Mike DeBellis intercepted a tipped pass at the 35-yard line of Cedar Ridge on the Cougars' next series.

From there, the Veltre show took

On the first play, Veltre took a handoff over the right side and ran 35 yards for a touchdown giving the Trojans the 13-7 lead, late in the first quarter. Withka's extra point made it 14-7 for Bishop Ahr.

"The defense played well," Ash-

Veltre started the drive by catching a 19-yard strike from Trojan quarterback Matt Golden to put the ball on the two-yard line of Cedar Ridge. The burly running back finished the play as he took the ball over the right side for a touchdown and a 21-7 lead after the extra point.

The Cougars came roaring back and narrowed the score to 21-20 at the

"The punt return and the long pass before the half hurt us," Aschettino

The punt return came with 1:44 remaining in the second quarter, as Cougar split end Jason Lazarski returned a Golden punt 85 yards for a score, cutting the lead down to seven after Panagis's extra point.

After the Trojans failed to move the ball, Cedar Ridge took over on its own 37-yard line and scored on its second play.

Cougar quarterback Steve Starner hit flanker Chris Uliano with a 13-yard pass at midfield, and the flanker took the ball 63 yards for a score with one tick left on the clock.

NOW IT WAS the Trojan defense that was forced to buckle down as they stuffed a Cougar attempt at two points leaving the score at 21-20. Bonick made the play as he nailed Starks in the backfield to thwart the at-

Bishop Ahr Defensive Coordinator Kenny Popovitch knew exactly what to call on the play, especially after a Trojan penalty put the ball on the half-yard line for the Cougars' attempt. "We keyed on Shannon on the first conversion attempt and Bonick made a great play," Popovitch said.

The second half opened up and once again Veltre took command for the Bishop Ahr offense.

After the Trojan defense stopped the Cougars' first offensive drive of the half, Veltre took the Cedar Ridge punt 47 yards back to the Cougar

The offense finally stopped until the fourth quarter when the Cougars scored. Starks capped the 56-yard drive with his second touchdown of the night. A three-yard run over the left side to bring the Cougars within two points of a tie at 28-26.

However, Cedar Ridge failed to convert the two-point attempt as Starner's pass went throught the hands of split end Tarik Marshall leaving the score at 28-26 and sealing the win for the Trojans.

"We stuffed both two-point conversion attempts and that made the game," Aschettino said. "We felt we had to go for the two-point conversion, especially after the penalty put the ball on the half-yard line," O'-Connell said. "But they stunted and stopped us." The win over the Cougars propelled Aschettino into instant stardom as he was seen signing autographs for throngs of thrilled younsters after the game. However, Aschettino did not sign any autographs for the press, and the Trojan mentor said there will be no autograhed photos of himself made available to the public.

Using nothing but the ground game, Kennedy marched 52 yards to a touchdown, increasing its lead to 21-0 with the extra point. The big play on the drive was a 23-yard run by Mustang running back Howie Mann, putting the ball on the Hawk eightyard line. This set up Jefferson for his one-yard touchdown plunge two

The Hawks finally threatened, but were turned back by a turnover deep in Mustang territory.

Also using the ground game, Stevens stomped 50 yards to the Kennedy 20-yard line. However, on a first-and-10 handoff, Hawk running back Troy Alexander was hit hard and coughed the ball up. The Mustangs recovered on their own 30-yard line, halting the drive.

Once again the turnover resulted in seven points for Kennedy as the Mustangs drove downfield 70 yards in eight plays. Bager capped the scoring drive with a spectacular diving catch in the end zone for a 27-0 Mustang advantage. Moyers' extra point inflated the lead to 28-0 early in the

The play covered 26 yards and made the score 28-7 after kicker Juan Ferero added his only extra point of the game with 40 ticks left on the clock.

Kennedy added seven more points on its first play after the Stevens score, as backup quarterback Jim Grady ran a sweep to the left while the entire Hawk defense went to the right. Grady scored untouched on the 53-yard run. Moyer added his fifth extra point, giving the Mustangs a 35-7 win.

Eagles clipped by Piscataway rally

J.P. Stevens

EDISON — A couple of 1-6 teams took to the battlefield Friday night, but both teams played like they were 6-1. And when it was over, two fourthquarter touchdowns lifted Piscataway to a come-from-behind victory as they clipped the Eagles 20-13 in a Greater Middlesex Conference Red Division game.

The victory was the long-awaited 100th at Piscataway for head coach Tom Higgins and broke a six-game Chief skid.

"It feels great," remarked Higgins, "but I feel better for the kids than I do for myself. I'll be back a lot of years but these kids won't. I'm glad this team gave it to me. And they gave me a present staying away from the turnovers."

The Chiefs scored twice in a 4:41 span of the final period to overcome a 13-6 deficit. The winning touchdown was scored by A.J. Cook on a 17-yard run with 3:12 remaining to cap a sixplay, 51-yard drive after an Edison punt. Cook then ran for the two-point conversion to complete the scoring.

Shortly thereafter, Higgins, who was the recipient of plenty of hugs from his triumphant players after the game, was doused with a bucket of ice water, a la Harry Carson to Bill Parcells.

"I thought we played well enough to win," said Edison head coach Gary Reiter. "We made a few key mistakes at the end when we stopped tackling. I think we controlled the tempo, but we didn't convert a few key third down plays. Basically, all year we've had a momentary lapse of concentration. We're not good enough to do that. Our biggest problem has been lack of consistency. I thought we did a decent job on the line of scrimmage. We moved the ball well but I thought we could've passed better. On the other side, our pass defense was good."

The Chiefs took the lead on a oneyard sweep by Cook with just :37 left in the opening quarter. The run culminated seven-play, 38-yard drive after a 29-yard Edison punt. John Motley's extra point sailed wide to the left and the Eagles were down 6-0.

Edison took the lead with only:17 remaining in the half on a 20-vard run by Dave Cannon on a draw play up the middle. The drive covered 37 yards in two plays after the Eagles stopped Cook for a one-yard loss on a fourth-and-one. The other 17 yards came on a pass from quarterback Jim Deland to Cannon. Mark Santiago added the extra point for a 7-6 halftime advantage. "We think Dave Cannon is terrific and, basically, he's inexperienced," Reiter noted. "He didn't start on the freshman team and played only one junior varsity game as a sophomore because of an injury. This year, we knew he was fast, but we had no idea how good he'd be. He's as good a back as A.J., but they're different types. A.J. cuts better, but Dave runs hard and weaves in and out well. And Dave can't stop on a dime like A.J., but he's tough. A.J. is one of the best back's we've seen. He can change directions real quick."

"Cook is as valuable as my right leg in a race," Higgins offered. "Cannon is a super ball-player, but I wouldn't trade A.J. for him. He took control late, which is what we wanted

The Chiefs took the second-half kickoff and were forced to punt. The Eagles then marched 68 yards in just three plays, all runs by Cannon. The first was for 15, the next for four and the third play went for 49 yards and the touchdown. Cannon ran up the middle, broke out of the pack at the 45 and was gone. The extra point was blocked and the Eagles led by seven with 8:44 left in the third period. But from that point, it was all Pis-

"I talked to the kids at halftime and told them I'd be 100 years old before I got my 100th win," Higgins commented. "I just told them to go after it. They rallied well. I think it was the constant banging at them that wore them down in the fourth quarter.

The Chiefs scored their second touchdown, Cook's second of three,

Silva of Midwood Avenue was inching out of Charles Street through a break in traffic November 7 in an attempt to turn left on Wood Avenue when his 1984 Cadillac was involved in a collision with a 1983 Dodge driven by Edward W. Miller of Grove Avenue. Patrolman John Dauber re-ported the Dodge was passing to the left of cars stacked up for the light at Oak Tree

The same scenario was played on James Street November 7 when Cynthia Adams of Watchung attempted to guide her 1988 Plymouth from the Parsonage Diner parking lot through a break in traffic so she could turn left on James. Approaching to the left of the stopped traffic, according to Patrolman John Dauber, was a 1986 Pontiac dri man John Dauber, was a 1986 Pontiac driven by Andrew A. Kuziemski of Player

A bicycle ridden by Duane Juhasz, 13, of Crosby Avenue, slammed into a car November 7 in the Kilmer Plaza parking lot. He was uninjured. Donald J. Fisher of Jones Place told Patrolman John Luminiello he had just entered the lot from Division Street and was attempting to pull his 1986 Chrysler into a parking spot when he observed three bicylists racing down the incline from Route 27 According to Fisher, he immediately stopped his car but one of the bicycles ran into it. Juhasz told Luminiello he looked to the side as he and two friends came down the hill and when he looked forward he saw the Chrysler but couldn't stop in time.

Elizabeth A. Dewhirst of Crowells Road told Patrolman John Luminiello she was traveling east on Woodbridge Avenue November 7 when the driver of a 1978 Ford she was following pulled to the center of the roadway near Duclos Lane. Assuming that it was going to turn left on Duclos, she said, she began to pass when the Ford pulled to the right and struck her 1987 Ford and left the scene. Luminiello reported the car was traced to a new Brunswick resident.

WHAT IS CAR SEARCH?

CAR SEARCH is new company based on Middlesex County. CAR SEARCH was designed to serve the public in finding just the right automobile that fits both you and your pocketbook.

WHY SHOULD I

USE CAR SEARCH?

Although purchasing a new car or truck should be an enjoyable experience, high pressure dealerships, phoney ads and incompetent salespeople can make this purchase a nightmare.

free and cost efficient.

IS CAR SEARCH LEGITIMATE? Yes. The CAR SEARCH format was developed by Patrick Norcia and Michael Dixon who having had years of experience in the automobile business would like the opportunity to make your next purchase hassle-

Sydney Fisch is our secret weapon in Hillsborough.

As the manager of our Hillsborough office, Sydney is sharing her success formula with her salespeople. During her last year in sales, she originated 54 listings with total production over $11 million. So why did we ask such a top performer to become a non-competing manager? Because at Weidel, our managers use their knowledge, creativity and enthusiasm to enhance the performance of their salespeople. We look for talented, successful people to run our local offices and they respond.

Managers like Sydney give our salespeople a competitive edge. That's just one of the reasons we continually outpace the markets in real estate sales.

And you can benefit from our managerial expertise. To see how, give Sydney a call at (201) 359-7100.
