

Board OKs pact with principals

Unilateral move enrages union

By Lily Ling

EDISON — The Board of Education may have been attempting to end a yearlong standoff between it and the district's principals and supervisors union when on Monday it unanimously approved a two-year contract, but, according to the union, the matter is not over.

In what Board President Nancy Levine called a decision "to exercise its option," the board rejected the 7.53 percent and 7 percent increases suggested in a fact finder's report and instead voted to implement a 5.72 percent raise retroactive to the 1989-90 school year.

She also said a salary increase for 1990-91 will be "related to the dollar increase received by teachers with comparable training and length of service in the district."

The board is in the early stages of negotiations with the 700-member teachers union whose contract expired July 1.

John A. Shafranski, chief negotiator for the 42-member administrators union, however, expressed surprise at the board's action and

Township seeks landfill expansion

By Thomas R. DeCaro

EDISON — The Township Council will seek state Department of Environmental Protection approval to continue operating the municipal landfill beyond August 27, the date upon which the DEP has ruled it must close.

At the same time, it is preparing for the eventual closure of the 35-acre dump off Meadow Road.

On Wednesday, the council hired Leon J. Sokol, a Hackensack attorney, to handle the request to expand the landfill vertically to 120 feet, which is some 30 feet higher than allowed under the Middlesex County Solid Waste Management Plan.

The request, according to Sidney Frankel, council president, first must go to the county's Solid Waste Advisory Council for consideration and then to the county Board of Chosen Freeholders. From there, it will go before the DEP for that agency's approval.

Sokol is the attorney who was retained by the township last month and successfully argued before the state Board of Public Utilities for an increase in the tipping fees at the dump — from $19 to $48 per ton. The increase was approved by the BPU and is slated to go into effect Thursday.

He will be paid up to $10,000 to

Coalition urges town: Revoke Rivertown OK

By Kathy Hall

EDISON — In addition to a pending federal Environmental Protection Agency cleanup, the area formerly known as the Raritan Arsenal may be subject to new studies, investigations and public hearings — if the Coalition for a Better Edison has its way.

In May, David Papi, coalition president, submitted a written list of appeals to the Township Council, a list headed by a proposal to "revoke and withdraw all approvals already given to the Raritan Center owners to build the Rivertown project by the Planning Board."

"I feel this is critical," said Papi, citing the suspicion that munititions, mustard gas and other hazardous materials remain buried at the site.

Papi also proposed that the owners of Raritan Center "initiate a study on existing buildings which have been built on known or suspected contaminated areas, to evaluate the effect these hazards may be having on the employees who work daily in these buildings."

"The EPA is already down there, and it would be critical to have that information and find out if people are being exposed to it," Papi said.

"The important thing is that we find out what's down there before

Tax hikes spark call for appeals

By Thomas R. DeCaro

EDISON — Township residents who are angry about the soaring property tax rate can do something about it, according to James Kukor, Republican municipal chairman and one of the founders of Citizens Upset with the Tax Situation.

"We're urging mass tax appeals," Kukor said. "We want to turn the system right on itself."

If enough residents file appeals, he noted, work at the Middlesex County Taxation Board will grind to a halt and may force an across-the-board reduction in assessments of residential properties in the township.

To help property owners who want to file an appeal, Kukor said, CUTS will hold a tax appeal information seminar July 29 at the Edison First Aid Squad No. 2 building, New Dover Road. The meeting will begin at 1 p.m.

CUTS was formed earlier this year in response to the township's fiscal crisis and an administration budget that has more than doubled the tax rate for municipal purposes.

Most residents felt the brunt of that increase on Saturday when they received their tax bills, Kukor said.

The total property tax rate for homeowners in the garbage districts, he said, is up 30 cents per $100 of assessed valuation — 18 cents for municipal services, 4 cents for Middlesex County, 6 cents to support the school district and 2 cents for garbage services.

Given those figures, the owner of a house assessed at $200,000 will pay $600 more in taxes this year and will face an additional increase at the end of the year when the other half of the school tax increase kicks in, Kukor said.

He noted that other residents involved in CUTS, several members of the Republican Municipal Committee and he have received many phone calls from homeowners who are upset with the tax increase — and they expect to receive more.

According to Kukor, it is not possible to file a class-action tax appeal on behalf of all township homeowners but if enough residents file individual appeals, it might force the Taxation Board to take a look at the township and lower assessments across the board.

Edison properties, he said, were reassessed during a boom in the housing industry. Now housing sales are on the decline and will be for the next two years, he said, so homes in the township are assessed at 18 to 30 percent above their market value.

Tax appeals, he said, are filed when individuals believe their

Borough mulls methods of restoring Tommy's Pond

Environmentalists urges scientific study

By Georgia Vosinakis

METUCHEN — The seasonal death of fish at Tommy's Pond has attracted the concern of environmentalists and borough officials who intend to get to the bottom of the problem.

The borough has had to chemically treat the Lake Avenue pond for the past two years to curb the growth of algae, but the algae combined with a decrease in the oxygen supply of the pond has caused the fish to die.

"A natural problem with all ponds, especially shallow ones like Tommy's Pond, is that they eventually turn into marshes," said Louise Bruno, a member of the borough's Environmental Commission.

Bruno presented a proposal to the Borough Council last week that she said she hoped would remedy the situation and restore the pond to its original status.

"I think it'd be useful to find out exactly what's wrong with the pond," said Bruno. She proposed that the borough employ Coastal Environmental Services to conduct an investigation of the pond's condition.

Bruno said the commission had invited the company to send a representative to look at the pond and, in January, Barry Krinski, the company's environmental scientist, visited the pond along with Robert Yunker, the borough's public works director.

For $2,500, the company will perform an in-depth four-step analysis to find the best solution for the restoration and preservation of the pond, Bruno told the council during a meeting last week.

Under a proposal prepared by Krinski, the four steps include a quality data analysis of the baseline water, an analysis of the composition of the sediment which has been increasing along the bottom of the pond and a field analysis of the pond's status. The firm also will prepare a restoration and management plan for the pond to monitor its condition and prevent future problems.

According to Bruno, the condition of the pond will be periodically monitored by members of the Metuchen Environmental Commission and representatives of Coastal Environmental Services. She said the company will then make recommendations based on the findings.

"I think $2,500 is a lot to spend for a little mud-hole," objected John Latsko, a Libertarian Party candidate for Borough Council, who said his concern was for borough taxpayers who would have to pay for this expert advice.

"It's money well-spent for the community ... in terms of the pond's preservation and its long-term use," countered Councilwoman Pamela Brown, Tommy's Pond, which sits off Lake Avenue in Metuchen, may be a refuge for ducks, but it sometimes proves hazardous to fish. An annual loss of oxygen in the water kills a large number of fish each year when the weather turns warm. The Borough Council is considering ways of addressing the problem.

The proposed purchase of uniforms for the township's auxiliary police and crossing guards was put on hold Monday because Township Council members wanted information on how often the uniforms are purchased.

Council members, who expressed surprise concerning the cost for each uniform, also wondered what was included in the price, which exceeds $900 each. The township's regular police officers purchase their own uniforms with an allowance from the township which totals $750 per year, according to the council.

A plan to award a six-month contract for recycling services to the firm currently handling the pickup of recyclable materials for the township was put on hold Monday.

Township Councilman John Hogan suggested that Edison could save the more than $200,000 cost of the contract if it went the route of other municipalities — that is, having its Public Works Department pick up the materials.

According to Hogan, the township has to look for more productivity from its employees as well as ways of getting more for its money. In addition, he said that it appears less material is being recycled now than when recycling began and that the hauler actually has less to pick up.

Council President Sidney Frankel, who noted the cost of the service has increased by approximately 20 percent, gave Hogan the job of looking into how other municipalities are handling recycling.

Track and field events for children 5 through 12 years old are planned for the "Summer Playground Olympics" this Thursday at noon in Matthew Drwal Stadium, Edison High School.

Township children should register for the event at their local playground. For more information, call the Edison Recreation Department at 287-0900, Ext. 310, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. or 985-8931 from 6 to 10 p.m.

Township Councilman Michael DeMatteo soon will meet with Township Engineer William Lund in an attempt to formulate a buyer's protection ordinance.

DeMatteo said he wants developers to be responsible for completing a checklist of items about which prospective home buyers are made aware before they make their purchase.

More than $20,000 in refunds for unused disposal tickets was paid to various haulers Wednesday by the Township Council.

According to township officials, most of the firms were taking bulk items to the municipal landfill and now are being directed to the Edgeboro landfill in East Brunswick.

More refunds are expected in the future as the municipal landfill, which is expected to close soon, no longer accepts bulk items.

The Township Council on Wednesday adopted a vendor's manual.

The new manual is for firms which do business with the township and contains information on such things as bidding procedures and requirements, said Barry Larson, business administrator.

The vendor's manual complements the recently adopted purchasing manual, which codified rules by which the township purchases items.

Eleven top business organizations in Middlesex County will co-sponsor the Middlesex County Business and Industry Expo '90.

The event will take place October 24 and 25 at the Pines Manor, Route 27 and Talmadge Road. Businesses are invited to sponsor one or both of the two gala mixers in the exposition area of this event — on October 24 from 5 to 9 p.m. and on October 25 from noon to 2 p.m.

All sponsors will be mentioned in press releases, advertisements and "The Guide to Expo '90." Company names will be prominently displayed in the expo area and invitations will be mailed to all organization members, guests, vendors and their guests.

Commitments must be received no later than August 27 and a fee of $200 for each mixer may be mailed to Middlesex Business and Industry Expo '90, 255 Old New Brunswick Road, Piscataway, 08854. For more information, call 457-9607.

In addition, business-related seminars will be held on October 24 from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. and on October 25 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. with each session lasting one hour and 45 minutes. The cost is $200 per session. For more information or to reserve space for a seminar, call 457-0183.

The Police Department's Crime Prevention Bureau will conduct bicycle safety and registration programs in three sections of the township next week.

The South Edison session will be held Monday at Thomas Jefferson Middle School, Division Street; the Clara Barton session will be held Tuesday at Herbert Hoover Middle School, Jackson Avenue; and the North Edison session will be held Wednesday at John P. Stevens High School, Grove Avenue. All three sessions will be held from 9 a.m. to noon.

The programs will provide instruction on rules of the road, riding safety and bicycle inspections and maintenance.

Todd Hoang received a $1,000 scholarship from the Kiwanis Club of Metuchen during the Metuchen High School graduation ceremony June 14. Hoang will be attending Cornell University in September.

The scholarship is awarded annually to a Metuchen High School graduate. Scholarship funds are raised through various fund-raising Kiwanis Club activities. The major fund-raiser this year was the sale of recyclable bags for leaves and grass.

The Kiwanis Club meets at 12:15 p.m. every Tuesday at Mai-Ling's Restaurant, Main Street.

The party will be held July 20 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Metuchen

Panel reneges on vehicles for firefighters

By Thomas R. DeCaro

EDISON — The Township Council has decided to hold off on the purchase of two new four-wheel-drive vehicles for the Fire Department.

The council had informally agreed to the $40,000 expenditure at its work session Monday night after Acting Fire Chief Al Lamkie argued that the vehicles were necessary for emergency response use.

However, on Wednesday night at its public meeting, the panel decided not to act on the Fire Department's request.

According to Council President Sidney Frankel, the matter will be studied further.

"These are vehicles that are used in emergency response," Lamkie said Monday. "They will not be used by inspectors."

According to Lamkie, the 1991 Ford Broncos — which would be equipped with sirens, lights and radios — would be used by the two captains on duty while the cars they presently use would be put to use on the day shift by fire training and fire prevention officers.

Two other cars — one 8 years old and the other 10 years old and both with more than 100,000 miles — would be turned over to the township garage as surplus vehicles, Lamkie said.

"They're in pretty bad shape," he said of the cars the department will scrap. "They're rusting apart."

The only argument against purchasing the vehicles at Monday's meeting came from Councilman Thomas McGotty. He said that, given the township's fiscal problems, the council should wait until January 1991 and buy the cars out of next year's budget.

"We can make it through the year with the vehicles we've got," he said.

However, Councilman Henry Cackowski said that it would take several months from the time they are ordered for the cars to arrive and the council should not postpone the decision.

While he did not object to the purchase, Councilman Michael DeMatteo suggested that vehicle purchases for all departments, including police and public works, should be made at one time.

He said that buying all vehicles at once could save the township money. Not only is it possible that it could bring better prices, he said, but it would provide a savings because fewer bond ordinances would be drawn up.

Councilman George Asprocolas called it a good idea and said a purchasing agent would be needed to oversee such a program.

Meter reader's observation leads to arrests in Edison

By Charles Everett

EDISON — A meter reader for Public Service Electric & Gas Co. took notice Monday morning when she saw the front door of a house on Wilson Avenue being pried open.

Her observation led to the arrest of three people from the Boston metropolitan area on a variety of burglary, drug and weapons charges stemming from the break-in.

Taken to the Middlesex County Adult Correction Center were Jeffrey W. Vitol, 34, of Boston, Mass., and John W. Cox, 20, and Karen L. Mitchell, 26, both of Roslindale, a Boston suburb.

Cox and Vitol, both of whom have been convicted on felony charges in the past, are being held in lieu of $150,000 bail with no provision for posting 10 percent in cash. Mitchell is being held in lieu of $100,000 bail, also with no 10 percent provision.

According to police, the PSE&G worker was reading meters in the neighborhood and reportedly saw Vitol and Cox using a screwdriver late in the morning to pry open the house, whose owner was visiting a neighbor at the time.

When Patrolmen Brian Parente and Joseph Perrotte arrived at the scene, they found Cox leaving the house and Mitchell sitting inside a car parked in the driveway.

Cox and Mitchell were taken into custody at the scene. Vitol, who reportedly escaped through a rear window, was apprehended 30 minutes later by Patrolman Thomas DeChirico while hitchhiking along Route 1 South.

Also discovered by police were a plastic bag of uncooked rice, several packets of heroin, a .32-caliber handgun with the serial number removed, and four rounds of ammunition. All were allegedly found inside a briefcase in the trunk of the suspects' car during a search.

Vitol, Cox and Mitchell have been charged with burglary, possession of burglary tools, possession of heroin, possession of heroin with intent to distribute, possession of drug paraphernalia, unlawful possession of a weapon and defacing a weapon.

The two male suspects also have been charged with possession of a weapon by a convicted felon.

Boy, 15, caught on video shooting off bottle rocket

By Charles Everett

EDISON — A teen-age boy from the township who decided to have some fun on the day after the Fourth of July later found out his idea of fun had blown up in his face.

One boy, 15, fired a bottle rocket toward a house on Cambridge Road from the handlebars of a bicycle belonging to another boy, 16. The teens rode off and the bottle rocket blew up with no damage to the dwelling.

What the two boys did not realize was the homeowner recorded the entire escapade with his home video camera. He played the tape for Patrolman Andy Nagy and it clearly showed the bicycle and what the boys were wearing.

Nagy checked the neighborhood and found the two teens a few blocks away on Preston Street.

The youth who shot off the bottle rocket was arrested on a charge of harassment. He was driven home and released in the custody of a neighbor.

According to police, the teen with the bicycle claimed the suspect had committed other acts of mischief to the same dwelling on Cambridge. The older youth was not charged, and he was released in the custody of his brother.

Wanted man caught in Edison

EDISON — A man who was arrested when he allegedly tried to cash a stolen check in the township happens to be wanted in several other jurisdictions.

John Yeachslein, 26, of Elizabeth, is being held in the Middlesex County Adult Correction Center in lieu of $20,000 bail with no provision for posting 10 percent in cash.

Yeachslein was taken into custody after he walked into the Acme Check Cashing Service, Route 1 South and Pierson Avenue, around 1:15 p.m. July 2 and, police said, presented a check for $4,822.32 drawn on a company in Liberty Corner.

Patrolman Scott Benedickson said the check was one of about 60 that had been reported stolen from the Liberty Corner business on June 23.

The suspect also allegedly had in his possession a forged employee identification card and a forged Social Security card, according to police. He allegedly was driving a 1987 Lincoln which a lookout confirmed had been stolen June 23 in Elizabeth.

Yeachslein has been charged in Edison with two counts of receiving stolen property, one count of falsely incriminating another person, one count of attempted theft by deception and one count of forgery.

Panel wants dump open make the case for keeping the landfill open.

Meanwhile, the council also awarded a $9,000 contract to Kupper Associates, a Piscataway engineering firm, to prepare a work plan for the dump's closure, which includes capping the landfill and installing the necessary monitoring equipment.

Barry Larson, business administrator, told the council Monday that the work plan will involve meeting with DEP officials to determine agency requirements, conducting initial tests and formulating a plan for the landfill's closure. Only after that process is complete could work on the actual closure begin, he said.

According to Frankel, it would be advantageous for the township to keep its landfill open — at least for the time being.

He noted that if the landfill is forced to close in August, the township would have to dump its garbage at the Edgeboro landfill in East Brunswick. However, it is possible, he said, that Edgeboro will be placed on the federal Environmental Protection Agency's National Priorities List of Superfund sites — a decision expected to be made in October — and then Edison could be liable for a portion of the cleanup cost at that dump.

"If you dump just one load, you share in the liability for the cleanup. That's my understanding of how the federal law works," he said.

"If Edgeboro is made a Superfund site," said Councilman Michael DeMatteo, "then I'd want to hire an attorney to go to the state to find out why they forced us to go to a Superfund site and made us liable for its cleanup."

Borough eyes pond study

adding that the pond embodies "a bright passage" in the lives of many borough residents who have taken their children there to fish or ice-skate.

Tommy's Pond, according to Brown, is one of the borough's 117 significant historical non-residential landmarks which join approximately 105 historic homes cited for historical preservation under a proposed borough ordinance. The controversial ordinance has received increased opposition in the past few months and was, most recently, the subject of a forum sponsored by the Libertarian Party.

"We've never utilized this type of service before," said Wiley of Bruno's proposal. "We have someone who volunteered to dredge the pond for us, but we're concerned about safety."

Officials fear an increase in the 4-foot depth of the pond may invite disaster for young ice-skaters. Dredging would deepen it from 6 to 8 feet, according to Councilman James Dudley. He suggested the creation of a shelf with a maximum of 3 feet around the pond's perimeter to satisfy the safety concern — that is, he said, if dredging is determined to be the answer and most cost-effective approach to the situation.

"That's exactly the problem," declared Donald Kahn from the audience.

"Various residents have suggested approximately 10 different possible remedies," said Kahn, a member of the borough's Planning Board and its liaison to the Environmental

The Edison landfill had received a rating of "unacceptable" in May and was fined $150,000 for various violations, according to Councilman John Hogan.

Some of the violations are being addressed on site, Township Engineer William Lund said, noting, for example, that a leaking tank that stores fuel for equipment used at the landfill had been repaired.

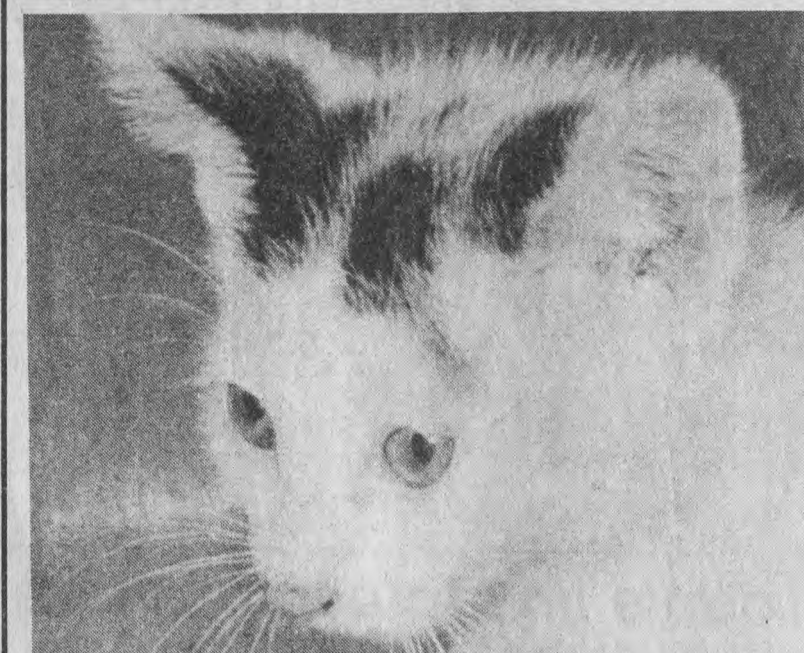

On June 27, the township received a letter from John V. Czapor, director of the state Department of Environmental Protection's Division of Solid Waste Management, who said that a recent topographical study indicates that the dump's elevation is at and in some areas exceeds design limits. For that reason, Edison was given 60 days to cease its landfill operation.

Mayor Thomas H. Paterniti has said it is important that the landfill remain open beyond the DEP deadline in order to raise the additional funds needed to close it in an environmentally sound manner.

While the township has set aside approximately $5 million for closure, it is estimated that $8.5 million will be needed for the project.

Edison, Metuchen and Highland Park are the three municipalities that dump their garbage at the Edison landfill.

There are two other landfills in the township that have ceased operations — Kin Buc, which is 95 feet high, and ILR, which is between 105 and 110 feet high. Should the DEP approve of Edison's request to raise the municipal landfill's height to 120 feet, it would become "the highest peak in town," said Hogan.

Jessie (top) is an orange and white mixed breed 4-year-old female dog that is housebroken while the puppies (bottom) are 6 weeks old. The kitten is 10 weeks old and is litter-trained. All are among the animals available for adoption at the Edison Municipal Animal Shelter, which is open weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

CUTS calls for appeals

homes are assessed at figures that are too high.

The seminar will provide homeowners with information on how to go about filing the appeals, according to Kukor, who noted the process is fairly simple.

To expedite the process, he said, residents should take to the seminar a tax appeal form and information from the property tax card for the property they own. Both are available at the tax assessor's office in the municipal building, he noted.

According to Kukor, the card gives information about the size of the lot owned and the improvements made to the property including details about the house.

Photographs of homes attached to the appeal are helpful but not necessary, he added.

Kukor said that should the attempt to lower assessments be successful, it may force the township's all-Democratic governing body to exercise fiscal restraint.

"The problem with the Democrats," he said, "is they have no inclination to control spending. This will force them to exercise a conservative approach."

The tax increase is especially hard on senior citizens and young couples, Kukor added, noting that some now may face the disagreeable choice of moving out of town or giving up owning a home.

Group seeks investigation

people start getting sick," said Walter Stochel Jr., the coalition's vice president.

Currently, the only item on Papi's list that is being implemented is that of an ordinance "protecting the home buyer."

The proposal reads, "No one should purchase a unit at River-town, or a home in the area, without first knowing it is built on a former military site used for storage, shipment and decommissioning of ordinance (ammunition and related materials) arms and machinery, and that they are adjacent to Kin-Buc, ILR and the Edison landfills."

"It's irresponsible to build on these spots when you have the deed, and you know they are for non-use," said Stochel. "At the Rivertown meetings, no one mentioned munitions. No one. They are going to have to move a lot of dirt in construction, and they are going to hit stuff."

Council President Sidney Frankel said that the buyer-protection proposal "is drafted and is circulating among council and Planning Board members as well as department heads. The summer is slow, so I don't think we'll see anything introduced before September."

"Personally, I'm always happy to help the consumer, which, in this case, is the homeowner," he said.

"We are in the forefront of protecting the quality of life in Edison," said Mayor Thomas Paterniti. "I am happy to see that people are concerned about environmental protection, and we're willing to work with them."

Board decision irks union

argued against calling the proposal a contract.

"This cannot be called a contract. A contract denotes an agreement between two parties," he said. "They are trying to impose a settlement. We are not happy, and we intend to pursue legal action."

Shafrenski said that the board's action constitutes an unfair labor practice and took issue with the board's right to impose a settlement.

"There exists provisions to protect a board from a stubborn association," he said; however, he noted that the union accepted the fact finders' recommendations while the board rejected them.

"If this board can get away with this, no board in the state of New Jersey would have to negotiate," he added. "They could just establish a position and stick to it until the negotiation process is exhausted. That is not the intent of the law."

Principals and supervisors have been working without a contract since July 1, 1989. Negotiations between the administrators union and representatives of the board began in December 1988, and despite the efforts of a state-appointed mediator in October, the parties have remained at an impasse.

In February, the dispute was submitted through the New Jersey State Public Employees Relations Commission to fact finder Joel Weisblatt.

Weisblatt, an impartial jurist mutually agreeable to the board and administrators association, was charged with collecting evidence and submitting recommendations for resolving all issues in dispute. On March 14, Weisblatt conducted a hearing on the matter and on May 10 delivered his report and recommendations.

In announcing the board's decision, Levine read from a prepared statement explaining that the increases suggested by Weisblatt were too high.

"After subsequent negotiations with the association, we came to the conclusion that the impasse would not be broken and decided to implement what we feel is an very fair contract," she said.

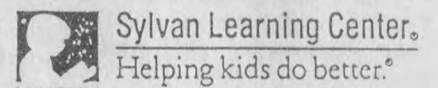

"We are at a point, however, where we must recognize that our professional employees receive salaries that are among the highest in the state," she added. "To be fiscally responsible, we must hold the line in order to avoid a situation where our salaries would become excessively high and impose an undue hardship on local taxpayers."

A taxing situation

Last weekend, Edison homeowners received their property tax bills. We suspect most still have not gotten over the shock.

Many saw total increases of more than $600, and those up on current events know that the statement they received in the mail might well be just the beginning of their tax woes.

While it is not likely such a large local tax-rate increase will occur again next year — after all, it will be an election year — it is also unlikely that the tax rate will go down.

What is not unlikely, however, is that many of these Edison homeowners who already face higher property taxes also will pay higher state income taxes under Gov. Jim Florio's "fairer income tax rates."

Two-income families with a combined income of more than $70,000 will be affected by the higher rates, and beginning next year, they will receive a smaller homestead rebate than those families making $70,000 or less.

If this is not enough good news for "those most able to pay," consider this: Less of their money going to the state in the form of income tax will come back to Edison in the form of state aid to the school district. Edison, after all, is a property-rich district and not entitled to an increase in aid that poor districts such as New Brunswick will receive — the fact that New Brunswick already spends more per pupil notwithstanding.

Of course, families making $70,000 or less will receive more in homestead rebates — perhaps as much as $500. But we have to wonder how much, if any, property tax relief it will bring in Edison, for the increase residents were hit with this year gives the town a higher base upon which to work next year.

Then, of course, there is the higher state sales tax, which affects everyone, and it is now applied to more items and services than ever before.

And, if all this weren't enough, federal taxes will be going up thanks to a president who forget to read his own lips and a Congress whose penchant for raising tax dollars is surpassed only by its desire to spend them.

Incidentally, Metuchen residents fare little better.

In addition to a large local property tax increase, they too will have the new state and federal taxes to pay. And, like Edison, Metuchen will receive less school aid from the state.

An opposing view

Florio answers queries on state's new tax plan

A commentary by Gov. James Florio

The last few weeks have been a historic time for New Jersey.

We ended a decade in which middle class people paid more than their fair share, and we began to do the things that will make New Jersey a better place to live in the '90s and into the 21st century.

We passed the largest property tax relief program in the history of New Jersey. We changed an unfair income tax system where families in the middle struggling to make ends meet on $50,000, were paying the same rate as millionaires.

We did a lot all at once, and we've gotten a lot of questions from people.

That's understandable. I'd like to deal here two of the most commonly asked questions.

Will I pay higher state income taxes?

For about eight of 10 taxpayers the answer is no.

If you are married or the single head of a household and your income is $70,000 or less, you won't pay any more in income taxes. If you're single and earn $35,000 or less, the same is true.

After that, income taxes go up gradually, with the largest burden falling on those most able to pay. Our state's wealthiest citizens — families making more than $150,000 and single people with more than a $75,000 income — will pay a top rate of 7 percent.

Three-quarters of the $1.2 billion we are raising will come from people earning over $100,000. That's consistent with a philosophy of fairness I think we all share. For too long, the wealthy in New Jersey have contributed less than they can, leaving it to the middle class to pay the freight.

Incidentally, every penny we raise from the income tax will go to reduce property taxes. Again, most of the property tax relief is targeted on the middle class.

Will I get my Homestead Rebate?

This year, every homeowner and tenant will get their rebates. It will come in the mail this fall a little later than usual. The delay is because of the serious financial problems we faced this year — problems we finally resolved with the passage of a new, balanced budget in June.

Next year we're going to make some changes that will bring more property tax relief to people who need it most — the middle class.

Any family or single person with an income of less than $100,000 a year will get a rebate. If your income is between $70,000 and $100,000, you're guaranteed $100. If it's $70,000 or less, you're eligible for a rebate of up to $500. That's what I mean by help for the middle class.

Here's how it works: If your property tax exceeds 5 percent of your taxable income, you get the difference, up to $500. If your property tax doesn't exceed 5 percent, you'll still get $150.

Renters also qualify. There will be a rebate of $35 for those earning between $70,000 and $100,000. Since they don't directly pay property taxes, 18 percent of their rent is considered their property tax share. If that share is more than 5 percent of their income, those earning $70,000 or less will also get every penny back, up to $500. Even if that rental share is not 5 percent of their income, renters under the $70,000 income level will still get $65.

I think this is a fairer system. It gives a bigger break to people in Cape Cod houses than those who live in mansions. It's another way we can ease the burden on middle class people.

Take a moment to figure out where you will stand. There's an excellent chance that, between property tax relief and the fairer income tax rates, most people reading this article will come out ahead. That's the way it should be.

You work hard for your money. And because you deserve a dollar's worth of value for every dollar you send to Trenton, I cut $2 billion in spending before I signed the state budget last month. It's why I'm cracking down on state cars, telephone credit cards, rail passes and other bureaucratic waste and inefficiency.

These are steps we need to put New Jersey on sound fiscal footing so we can remain a state of opportunity.

They're based on the same common sense values we use to run our families: You don't spend what you don't have, and you only ask people to contribute their fair share. No more, no less.

Group's link to center goes way back

To the Editor:

We are writing this letter to provide historic information about a North Edison community group and the significance of the group's link to the newly constructed community center in North Edison. The new center is located on Grove Avenue near Inman Avenue.

The North Edison Civic Improvement Association Inc. recently held a reorganization meeting. Newly-elected and installed officers are Abdur-Rahim Rasheed; president; Jerry R. Hill, vice president; Herb Gasden, treasurer; and Delores Harris, secretary.

The purpose of the organization is to secure the blessings of civic pride for ourselves and our children, promote the general welfare of our community, and foster the general welfare of the state and nation.

Membership is open to all residents of North Edison. Meetings are held at 7:30 p.m. the first Tuesday of each month, except July and August, at the Mount Pleasant Baptist Church, Grove Avenue.

As part of its commitment to the community and in cooperation with the township, the association has adopted the playground on Beatrice Parkway. Members of the association met at the park on a recent Saturday morning and thoroughly cleaned the park.

A well-attended neighborhood picnic was held June 30 at the Beatrice Parkway playground. Each attending family brought a covered dish.

The North Edison Civic Improvement Association Inc. was initially organized in the '40s under a similar name. Residents at that time recognized the need for a neighborhood recreation center for the children. They were successful in opening a center with assistance from women of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church, Plainfield, and donations from others, including the township, which hired Minnie Belle Veal as director of the center.

Mrs. Veal dutifully served as the first and only director until her death a few years ago. The center had been on the site where the Foodtown supermarket is now located, at Inman and Grove centers.

As urban renewal programs entered the township, the building was purchased by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Money realized from the sale of the building at that time was placed in escrow in anticipation of replacing the center. However, when the association learned that a building would be erected by the township, the money which was in escrow was donated to the township to assist in the construction of a new center. The new center, which will be opened soon, will be named the Minnie Belle Veal Center in honor of Mrs. Veal and recognition of her community services.

The association has been very active in community affairs for many years. It is largely responsible for many improvements in the North Edison area, including the name change of the area from Potters Crossing to North Edison. It was also very involved with urban renewal proceedings and the civil rights struggle.

For additional information about the North Edison Civic Improvement Association, contact the president, Abdur-Rahim Rasheed, at 396-9048. You can also contact the group's public relations co-chairpersons, Jerry Hill at 381-1456 or Mary Holmes at 381-1835.

Make the right choice on abortion issue

To the Editor:

Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York and other elected officials speak out in defense of abortion. A person in the pro-choice movement said, "I don't care what Cardinal O'Connor said; I must answer to a higher power." How true it is!

I can understand how a non-Christian can be for pro-choice. They base their feelings and beliefs on the freedoms we as Americans enjoy. I think without my Holy Bible I could almost agree with pro-choice.

We who call ourselves Christians must someday answer to this higher power, his name being Jesus the Christ. As Gov. Cuomo said, "He is a God of love and wants us to show his love to each other." The question then is: who is showing the true love of God?

Is it Christian love to say to a Christian woman or girl, "Yes, it is all right to have an abortion," when we know from God's word, the Holy Bible, it is not?

Maybe calling abortion murder sounds like we are calling them murderers and to them it does not sound like love. It sounds to them more like, we hate you, you murderers.

As stated before, we must all answer to a higher power. Christian and non-Christian will one day have to give an accounting of their lives to God. Is it real love not to give the warning?

Do we as Christians have this freedom of choice?

God does give us a freedom of choice. The choice to believe in Jesus the Christ as Saviour and Lord. When we make this choice to believe in Jesus, he then becomes our Saviour and Lord. Maybe some do not understand Lord. That's like the Supreme Court all rolled up in one and there will be no appeals to the Lord's judgment.

How will Jesus judge us? From his word, the Holy Bible.

Just a few words from the Holy Bible: Jesus said, "Why do you call me Lord, and do not the things I tell you? Not everyone who calls me Lord will enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of God." Would it be God's will to abort the unborn? Would the creator of life then want it destroyed?

We hear over and over again, "It's my body; I can do what I want with it." I hear God say, "You are not your own, you were bought with a price, therefore glorify God in your body."

Most pregnancies are the result of sins of fornication and adultery. Why do you think Jesus said to flee from these sins? The sex urge was just as real, just as strong then as it is today. We can't use that excuse; it won't stand up with Jesus on judgment day.

How often have elected Christian officials said in the Apostles' Creed, "I believe that Jesus is coming to judge the quick and the dead?" That statement of faith includes both believer and unbeliever.

Jesus said, "You are either for Me or against Me." You can't sit on the fence and try to be on both sides at the same time. You talked of God's love.

Yes, all these sins, including abortion, can and will be forgiven on the condition that they are confessed as sins and that forgiveness is asked for through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus the Lord.

The freedom of choice is yours. The King of Kings and Lord of Lords has given you a choice. Make the right one.

Criticism of police draws sharp response

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter in rebuttal to a letter published on June 29 titled "Police should set example."

The Edison resident stated in his letter that on June 15 at approximately 8 a.m. he was stopped in traffic on Plainfield Avenue under the railroad bridge. He observed a patrol car attempting to make a left turn out of the Metroplex office building onto Plainfield Avenue. The officer turned on his emergency overhead lights and stopped traffic. He then pulled out of the Metroplex onto Plainfield Avenue, traveled a short distance down Plainfield Avenue and then turned his emergency overhead lights off. The officer then continued on his way as if nothing had happened and it appeared to the resident that there was no emergency at that time. The resident felt the officer did this for his own personal benefit so he did not have to wait in traffic.

I would like to comment that it is not uncommon for an Edison Police officer during his normal tour of duty to receive an emergency call over his radio from a citizen who needs help immediately. These calls range from holdup alarms in banks to a 1-month-old infant who has stopped breathing. Every second counts when it comes to saving a life, and that 1-month-old infant cannot wait for an officer to take his time getting there because some disgruntled motorist cannot give the officer a chance to pull out of a parking lot.

It is also not uncommon for an officer to receive an emergency call, start to respond to the location, only to be told to disregard going there, because, for example, another officer was closer to the scene. This more than likely explains the actions of the police officer that the resident observed on June 15.

It appears that the person who wrote "Police should set example" is an impatient, selfish motorist who was thinking of no one but himself the day of the aforementioned incident. I think if he was to take a better look, he would see that the Edison Police Department, as a whole, serves and protects the township in a professional manner. If he or someone he loves ever needs assistance, he will see that the officers he mockingly referred to as Saturday-night cowboys may end up being his knights in shining armor.

Keep up the good work, boys!

facts and comment

Tax revolt: alive and well

Voters in the recent California primary narrowly approved a referendum doubling the state's gasoline tax. Pundits quickly concluded that people's resistance to high taxes has abated.

Nonsense. Anyone who has recently visited the nation's most populous state can testify to its increasingly clogged highways.

The tax receipts are specifically earmarked for highway expansion and maintenance.

Only under such special circumstances will voters concur with a tax boost. If that increased levy had been for general revenues, it would have been resoundingly defeated.

Politicos on all levels may wish it otherwise, but the majority of American voters are not yet convinced they are undertaxed.

Helping the economy

Cut taxes, don't raise them. — Capital gains. A reduction here would stimulate the financial markets, thereby reducing the cost of capital.

It would also stimulate the flow of capital to optimum opportunities and new enterprises, ensuring our future in an increasingly competitive high-tech world.

Federal receipts from this levy would go up $10 billion to $15 billion in the first year. Empty state coffers would be replenished.

— Social Security. The current payroll tax was based in 1983 on pessimistic assumptions. Growth and productivity have been better. This year's boost should be rolled back to the 1989 level.

Payroll taxes hurt job creation, especially in small businesses. A cut would stimulate growth.

Other measures would also help. — The Federal Reserve should let interest rates come down. Gold prices wouldn't be so low if inflation were about to take off.

— The Fed and the Treasury should forswear bashing the dollar for trade balance purposes, which would do wonders for bond prices.

Two principal drains on government budgets — education and health — are both suffering deep systemic flaws.

Genuine reform in both areas would ease fiscal pressures and deliver better results.

Menlo Park: 'difficult to find a pleasanter locality'

By David C. Sheehan

EDISON — There is a section of the township that literally put Edison on the map. The Menlo Park neighborhood gave the community lasting worldwide renown through its association with the name of Thomas Alva Edison. It was in Menlo Park that "The Enchanter" (as Thomas Edison came to be known) developed his most famous inventions — the phonograph, an electrical distribution system, electric dynamos, an electric railroad, and, of course, the incandescent lamp.

When Edison lived on Christie Street, thousands came to Menlo Park to marvel at his new "invention factory" and gawk at a large open field with many wooden posts topped by those marvelous light bulbs.

Known to be quite a showman, Edison would go to great lengths to showcase a new invention. Actress Sarah Bernhardt, who visited Edison and his workers at the Menlo Park laboratories to help him promote the incandescent lamp, said of the inventor: "I looked upon this man of medium size with a rather large head and noble-looking profile and I thought of Napoleon. There was certainly a physical resemblance between these two great men, and I am sure that one compartment of their brains would be identical. I do not compare their genius. One was destructive, and the other creative."

Yet as is true with the rest of Edison Township and the Menlo Park section, the township has a history aside from the fame Thomas Edison brought.

Newspapers of the mid-1930s have provided various histories of the community. Francis Jehl, an Edison biographer who worked with the inventor, authored "Menlo Park Reminiscences," and a Doctor David Trumbull Marshall recorded his remembrances of the Menlo Park area. These sources provide a charming and interesting glimpse into the Menlo Park of many years ago.

"My earliest recollections of Menlo Park date back to 1876, before (Thomas) Edison came out there and put the place on the map," Marshall wrote. "My father used to conduct a Sunday school in the railroad station at Menlo Park. Mr. Noah Mundy used to lend father his fat horse and carryall and he drove the three miles to Menlo Park every Sunday afternoon. I sometimes went with him. I was about ten years old at the time. I can remember one of the songs we used to sing: 'Safe in the Arms of Jesus.' Curiously, I never think of Menlo without recalling that song."

Area of summer homes, Thomas Edison's laboratory was 'almost a paradise'

The Raritan Weekly newspaper of February 13, 1939, reporting on the history of the area, states that "the village was known as a place of beautiful homes. Many New Yorkers maintained summer homes there and at Oak Tree."

The Weekly goes on to quote an 1873 edition of the New Brunswick Fredonian: It is believed that the name Menlo Park was chosen "looking rather to its future than its present, and certainly its surrounding fully justify the cognomen and the very name is suggestive of the real appearance of the place. At some not very distant date, Menlo Park will be more widely and more favorably known and should it fail in becoming what its natural position and facilities entitle it, it will not be for the lack of enterprise and liberal-minded men who are ready and willing to push on the prosperity."

"Besides the natural beauty of the situation, the distance from New York is only 24 miles and from New Brunswick distant only seven miles. With regard to the present population, I can only give you an approximate estimate, although we sent out an individual to take the census some time ago. ... And we are afraid he has had some difficulty in discovering the natives, or else the distance between the neighbors is so great that he has not yet fulfilled his arduous task. ...

"There are some very pretty situated residences principally belonging to gentlemen from the city who make Menlo Park their home during the summer, some even remaining through the winter season and as a good many lots belonging to the Menlo Park Association have been sold to New Yorkers and others, no doubt the coming season will see neat and comfortable villas springing up and adding to the beauty and prosperity of the place. In fact, it would be difficult to find a pleasanter locality where one can escape the dust and the turmoil of the city and obtain the rest required after a hard winter's work — rest which cannot be obtained at any of the fashionable seaside watering places."

Jehl described Thomas Edison's Menlo Park as follows: "There was a path leading to a side gate in the rear of the office building. Beyond it stretched Christie Street, running north and south past the picket fence on the east side of the compound. The second was Mrs. Sarah Jordan's Boarding House, where all the workers in the laboratory lived and which later gained fame as the first dwelling house ever lighted by electricity. Edison's home was down the road from the boarding house. Beyond his house was the highway (now Route 27)."

The Daily Graphic of April 2, 1878, also gives a description of Menlo Park:

"We went over to Menlo Park ... to see Edison and his wonderful inventions. Menlo Park is not a park; it is not a city; it is not a town. It is composed wholly of Edison's laboratory and half a dozen houses where his employees live. ...

"Just north of the track is a long, plain white wooden building full of windows and two stories high," the report continues. "This is the laboratory of the Jersey Columbus whose name has suddenly become famous. Many telegraph wires are festooned from it."

Perhaps the most glowing description of the Menlo Park area was given by Marshall, who described Menlo Park as "a paradise uncorrupted by political strife, renowned for its fine country homes. The quiet peacefulness has not yet been broken, even by political strife; so verily it must be almost a paradise and so far we have not been saddled by a boss, consequently taxation is light, and we can look forward to some time without fear of our prosperity requiring a ring and a boss to manipulate our surplus funds."

Bush made right move

To the Editor:
We commend President Bush for taking action to suspend the dialogue between the United States and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The recent failed terrorist attack on Israel by a constituent body of the PLO, the Palestine Liberation Front led by Abul Abbas, clearly contradicts Yasser Arafat's 1988 declaration in Geneva renouncing terrorism in all of its forms. Failure of the PLO leadership to condemn this attack and to take appropriate measures to discipline Abul Abbas left the United States with no alternative but to take this action.

We are aware that the Bush administration views the dialogue as useful to the peace process. However, we trust that the dialogue will not be resumed if the PLO fails to take the aforementioned actions.

We believe that the integrity and credibility of U.S. policy in regard to the conditions for sustaining the dialogue as well as efforts to combat terrorism were reinforced by Bush's step. We also welcome his expression of the continuing U.S. commitment to the peace process.

Metuchen council's all wet

To the Editor:
Though the Borough Council's intentions may be good, it stepped in the wrong puddle at the July 2 meeting by proposing to hire an environmental expert at $2,500 to tell it what it essentially already knows about the algae condition in Tommy's Pond.

The water is stagnant, fish die for oxygen, ducks' excrement breeds algae, and mud and silt from storms accumulate as sediment. Added up, you have a hostile impact on this very small pond.

The Borough Council is trying to take a picturesque watering hole, dredge it and expend more taxpayers' money. Like everything the Borough Council has done in the past, it has started out with a Tommy's Pond and ended up with a Spruce Run or Round Valley Reservoir, all at Metuchen taxpayers' expense.

Councilwoman Pam Brown even pointed out the only practical recreational function the pond has is ice skating. Algae won't prevent the water from freezing, so why is an environmental expert needed?

I think that the Metuchen taxpayers would be better served if the Borough Council kept its big foot out of this puddle.

Be a supportive friend

To the Editor:
Sunday has been proclaimed the fourth national Memorial Day for Children.

The Compassionate Friends, a self-help, non-profit, non-denominational, international organization which offers understanding, friendship and information to bereaved parents and siblings, has 614 chapters in the United States with 17 here in New Jersey.

Through monthly meetings and newsletters, a lending library and a "help line," grieving parents support each other in fostering the physical and emotional healing after they have experienced the death of a child of any age and from any cause.

We ask everyone to join in with the entire country and those abroad on July 15 in observing Children's Memorial Day and to be a supportive friend and neighbor to those parents (and siblings) who have faced the untimely tragedy of burying a beloved child.

President Bush's Volunteer Action Award has been bestowed this year on the national office in Oak Brook, Ill., to honor all the U.S. chapters whose individuals make unique contributions to their communities through volunteer service and to focus attention on innovative, outstanding volunteer efforts.

The Central Jersey Chapter has been of service to bereaved parents for 12 years, and we appreciate and welcome the financial contributions from community supporters in order for us to continue reaching out to bereaved parents.

Parents who call system of grades unfair welcome school board's plan to change it

By Lily Ling

EDISON — Robin Mayer was a good student. As a senior in the Class of 1989 graduating from John P. Stevens High School, she decided to apply for a $20,000 scholarship offered by the Electrical Worker's Union No. 3, for which her father worked.

She was not selected for that scholarship, and she very nearly missed being accepted to the college of her choice, the State University of New York at Binghamton.

All this was because of the inequitable grading system used in Edison schools, her mother Janet Mayer charged.

"Her B's were being automatically transcribed into a numerical grade of 80 when they really represented 90," explained Mayer. "She needed an 85 to be eligible for the scholarship. The scholarship was instead awarded to a student whose school used a 10-point grading system."

Mayer further asserted that her daughter would have been rejected by Binghamton had she not intervened.

"I made calls and asked them (admissions personnel) to look further," she said. "They had to hand do her application. Electronically, the grades would not transcribe."

Concerns such as the one expressed by Janet Mayer prompted

One resident says proposal is a lowering of standards

a proposal which will radically revise the present grading system in Edison schools, a system which has been in place as long as Edison has had a high school.

Dr. Joseph Kresky, assistant superintendent of schools, presented at Monday night's Board of Education meeting a proposal to change the meaning of letter grades throughout the district.

The letter grade of A, for example, will no longer mean 100 to 93. Instead, A will be assigned to grades ranging from 90 to 100 but with further delineations of pluses and minuses.

Also, failure of a course will be determined at 65 instead of 70 under the old policy.

"We have been hearing in recent years ... more and more ... from students, teachers, parents and guidance counselors that our students may be at a disadvantage when compared to other students," said Kresky.

He added that he feels this is a perceived problem and stressed that he knows of no substantial evidence that "our students have been denied entrance to a college of their choice or a scholarship because of Edison's grading policy."

Nonetheless, research conducted by Kresky's office over the last school year, including a survey of 16 school districts, samples from a self-assessment profile underwritten by the Educational Testing Service (producers of the nationally used Scholastic Aptitude Test) and the input of teachers districtwide, have led to the recommended change.

"Most districts have a 10-point system," he said. "And an overwhelming majority of teachers supported it. Colleges also recognize the 10-point system to be the most common."

According to Mayer, a new grading policy came under serious consideration starting in November when she and Marla Lind, representing a group of parents, approached Kresky and presented their views.

"We called him on the phone and brought him evidence from schools that we had contacted," she explained. "We called schools which we believed to be comparable with Edison. Most of them have a 10-point grading system."

She noted they contacted about 10 different schools.

"We were surprised they acted so quickly," said Lind. "We really didn't think the change would be made in time for our children. We did it for kids in the future."

While most of the opinions voiced by members of the public present for the first reading of the proposal on Monday were supportive and even grateful for the change, the policy is not without its detractors.

Township resident Burton Gimelstob expressed his concerns for the middle and average student.

"You are taking away from students the initiative to learn," he said. "What are we going to do next? Tell our kids the mile race can be seven-eighths of a mile? Are we going to lower the baskets on the basketball court to make them easier to hit?"

Gimelstob warned that this policy will artificially deflate the failure rate among students.

"Failing at 65 instead of the old 70 will enable politicians and others to say, 'See how few students fail?'" he said.

Nevertheless, the proposal was accepted unanimously by the board on a first-reading basis.

Kresky said that he anticipates the board will approve the policy "as is" at the second reading during the August meeting.

In that event, Edison will have a new grading policy effective September 1.

This weekly column is devoted to sharing with you, our readers, the different kinds of delightful, delicious cuisine in our area.

SHOGUN 27 RESTAURANT
3376 ROUTE 27
KENDALL PARK, N.J.
201-422-1117

I wasn't prepared for what I found at the Shogun 27 Restaurant in Kendall Park. This was evident to me as soon as I saw how large the building and the parking lot was. This was not going to be the usual Japanese restaurant I was accustomed to seeing. Once inside, passing through oriental gardens on both sides of the lobby, I also knew that this would be an unusual dining experience. Manager Victor Shen greeted us at the door and asked if we wish to sit at a table or the hibachi. We chose the hibachi, but after seeing the other dining rooms, including the tatami rooms (private rooms where you leave your shoes at the door and sit in a low chair at a low table) a second and third visit would be necessary to appreciate a true Japanese dining experience.

Besides the hibachi, tatami rooms and traditional Japanese dining Shogun 27 also has a Sushi Bar as well as banquet facilities for private parties and corporate meetings. This is undoubtedly the largest and most complete Japanese restaurant that I have ever been to.

The hibachi room serves meat and seafood entrees, cooked on a broad hibachi grill by a skilled hibachi chef. You will marvel at the speed they display while cutting shrimp or meat, or when they flip lemons or shrimp tails in the air and proceed to catch them in their chef's hats.

Shogun 27 has 18 hibachi entrees and 9 specials. Entrees include soup, salad, hibachi shrimp and vegetable appetizer, noodles, fried rice, green tea and ice cream. Some of the choices are sirloin steak for $14.95, sirloin and shrimp or scallops for $17.95, or steak and calamari for $14.95. You definitely will not leave hungry!

If you choose to sit in the spacious dining room, or in one of the four tatami rooms, you can order sushi, sashimi, tempura or teriyaki entrees, combinations of two, or appetizers of each. The selections are endless.

Sushi and sashimi are raw fish dishes with the former served over vinegar-flavored rice and the latter with crisp vegetables. But not all of the fish is served raw (saltwater fishes are the only kind served raw). Several types of the fish, such as mackerel, squid, shrimp and octopus are cooked or marinated, while salmon is served smoked. Shogun has 12 shushi or sashimi entrees at prices ranging from $9.50 to $17.95 for an all tuna sashimi.

Tempura entrees (7 in all) are deep fried choices from chicken, pork, fish, shrimp, oysters and vegetables. Tempura prices range from $7.95 (vegetable tempura) to $14.95 for lobster tempura.

Teriyaki entree (16 total) are broiled choices of beef, lobster, chicken, salmon, or seafood combinations. Teriyaki prices average about $10.25 to $13.45. Both teriyaki and tempura entrees include soup, salad, rice and tea.

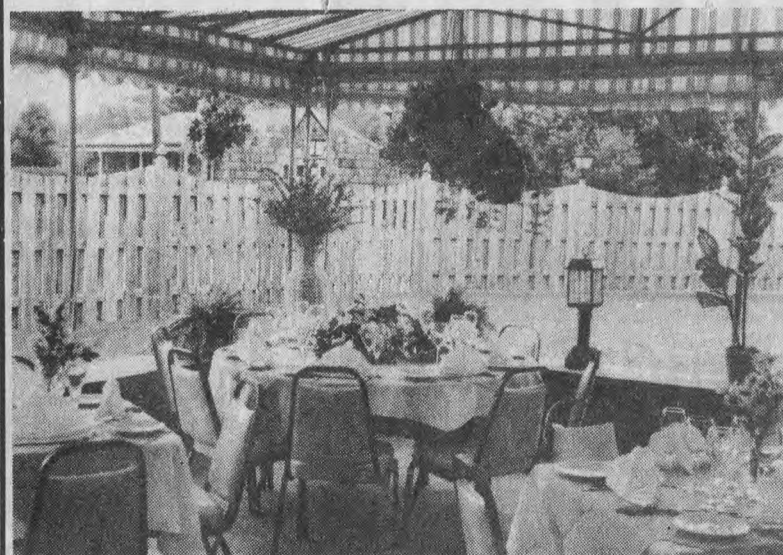

Shogun 27 has a separate bar and several Japanese beers are offered, as are the traditional sake (rice wine) and plum wine. A full range of other wines and spirits as well as cocktail specials are available.

For authentic Japanese food, made with the freshest and finest quality ingredients available and expertly prepared, a trip to Shogun 27 is in order.

A man's true-life tale of wartime adventure

By JEAN WHISTON
If nothing less than a four-alarm fire could make you put down a totally engrossing book then be prepared to spend two or maybe three very late nights in the company of Far Hills resident Joseph S. Frelinghuysen.

Passages to Freedom, just recently published by Sunflower University Press of Manhattan, Kan., is the story of Frelinghuysen's capture in Africa by the Germans during World War II, his internment as a prisoner of war in Italy, his escape and, finally, the brutal trek to freedom through the valleys and across the towering mountains of Italy's Abruzzo region.

So engrossing is Frelinghuysen's day-by-day account of living with fear, hunger, cold and dirt so deeply ingrained that his body erupted with painful boils, the reader, even if aware that Frelinghuysen is alive and well in Far Hills, will turn each page wondering if he made it to safety.

But what also emerges from this suspenseful chronicle are the portraits of the other POWs with whom Frelinghuysen shared his perilous journey — especially Dick Rossbach — and the men and women of the remote and poor Abruzzese villages and farms who shared their meagre supplies of food, tattered clothing and their masserias and huts with the English and Americans, knowing that discovery by the Germans meant certain death.

Perhaps the most telling portrait of all is that of Frelinghuysen himself although he expresses surprise when told this. It was not intentional, he says, and perhaps, he speculates, he was too close to the book as its author to be aware.

And just so what kind of a man does Passages to Freedom portray? A man who is cautious; not daring or heroic but one possessed of deep wells of courage, loyalty, an ingrained belief in duty and following orders. "Stick-to-itiveness" may best describe it.

That was a word much favored by his father, Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who was a United States senator from New Jersey from 1916 to 1922. The elder Frelinghuysen, a veteran of the U.S. Calvary in Cuba, had a well-worn example with which to impress upon his son the need to never shirk his duty, to never give up. And that was A Message to Garcia, the story of Lieutenant Andrew Summers Rowan, who battled jungles, alligators, snakes and desperadoes to deliver the message with which he was entrusted to the insurgent who was helping the United States drive the Spanish from Cuba.

The elder Frelinghuysen taught his lesson well as did the private spartan-like schools that Joe Frelinghuysen attended while growing up in Somerset County.

"You got so you accepted it," he says of the canings, the daily ice cold showers and the snow on the bed because of the rule that the dormitory windows must be kept open.

The man that was formed and who went off to war as a captain with the venerable U.S. Army's 1st Division was well equipped to endure his own passage to freedom and the moral choice he was forced to make between keeping his word to his friend Rossbach or carrying a heavy burden of guilt for many years to come.

"That was one of the toughest things I ever did in my life," says Frelinghuysen of the visit he paid to Rossbach's family upon his return to this country.

An education at schools such as Groton and then Princeton University also prepared Frelinghuysen to master the art of writing spare but descriptive prose. He does not have to resort to unneeded adjectives to tell his gripping story or impart human dimension to the people who are part of it.

Frelinghuysen emerged from his ordeal as a prisoner attempting to gain the safety of the Allied lines with what only can be called true brotherly love for the Italian villagers and farmers who aided him.

In particular there is Bernardino to whom the book is dedicated along with Rossbach through whose eyes Joe Frelinghuysen is seen as a man who never lost his old world courtliness and sense of decency, qualities for which he endlessly was chided.

Through Frelinghuysen's efforts, Bernardino and his family came to the United States in the 1950s and settled not far from the Victorian house that once overlooked the Somerville traffic circle and in which Frelinghuysen spent his early boyhood.

Bernardino's children — one of whom was born on the night of October 23, 1943, as Frelinghuysen and Rossbach were being sheltered by the family — have become American success stories. And a lifelong bond has been forged between the patrician Frelinghuysen, a member of a family that came to the Raritan Valley in the 1600s, and the immigrants from the mountains of Abruzzo.

"I think there is a deeply spiritual relationship with Bernardino and his family," says Frelinghuysen of the ties that were woven almost 50 years ago.

Passages to Freedom is Frelinghuysen's second book. He was the co-author with Dr. Paul J. Kiell of Keep Your Heart Running, which was issued in paperback as The Complete Guide to Physical Fitness.

He also has completed work on a novel that tells the story of an Italian immigrant who became a green grocer in a North Jersey city and that of his son.

"I just haven't found a market for it," according to Frelinghuysen, who has made the rounds of publishers.

He temporarily has put the manuscript aside until he recovers from the assessment of an editorial consultant, who advised him that while it was "a very nice story" he obviously doesn't know much about Italy and the Italians.

Frelinghuysen emerged from his ordeal as a prisoner attempting to gain the safety of the Allied lines with what only can be called true brotherly love for the Italian villagers and farmers who aided him.

Passages to Freedom is Frelinghuysen's second book. He was the co-author with Dr. Paul J. Kiell of Keep Your Heart Running, which was issued in paperback as The Complete Guide to Physical Fitness.

He also has completed work on a novel that tells the story of an Italian immigrant who became a green grocer in a North Jersey city and that of his son.

"I just haven't found a market for it," according to Frelinghuysen, who has made the rounds of publishers.

He temporarily has put the manuscript aside until he recovers from the assessment of an editorial consultant, who advised him that while it was "a very nice story" he obviously doesn't know much about Italy and the Italians.

Musical production is a real family affair

BASKING RIDGE — Meredith Wilson didn't write "We Are Family" but the song could easily be taken for the theme of the production of The Music Man opening next week at Pleasant Valley Park in Bernards Township.

About a dozen families have more than one member among the cast, orchestra and crew for the musical comedy, which opens next Friday, July 20, and continues through July 21, 26, 27 and 28. All performances start at 8:30 p.m. and theatergoers should bring their own seating and refreshments.

In the event of rain, the performance will be held at the Ridge High School auditorium, South Finley Avenue.

The role of Harold Hill, the charismatic salesman, will be played by East Brunswick resident Jim Vagias, whose brother, New Milford resident Bob Vagias, will play Hill's nemesis Charlie Cowell.

Mayor Shinn is played by Hank Barre, husband of the director Jaye Barre. His stage wife is played by Irene Weaver, one of four Bernardsville Weavers associated with the production. Carol ine is assisting backstage while her twin Sarah and her father Bert are in the chorus.

Ethel Toffelmier "the pianola girl" and Constable Locke are played by real-life newlyweds Paula and Art Rood of Bridgewater. Mothers and sons include Marion and Gilbert Hagovsky and Maureen and Eric Zellweger, all of Basking Ridge, and Daisy and Jeffrey Ottman of Bernardsville.

Other leading roles are held by Stephanie Bratnick of Basking Ridge, Maria Abruzzese of Somerville, Megan McEnerney of Basking Ridge and Roberta Maher of Madison.

A contingent of Dunellen residents includes Jonathan and Charissa Chatten as well as Vance Kupiec, who plays the lispng Winthrop Paroo.

A 15-piece orchestra conducted by Norris Birnbaum of Basking Ridge will accompany the performance. Piscataway resident Ron Hemmel is in charge of musical direction for the production.

Admission to each performance is free. For more information, call 221-0275.

The Kiwanis Club of Edison at a recent luncheon meeting honored a Person of the Year from each of the township's three first aid squads, and Debra Giaquinto, club president, presented each of the men with a check for his squad. Edison firm to host classes in Stevens graduate program

EDISON — In response to the increased demand for environmental professionals, Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, has launched an off-campus graduate program in environmental engineering in the township.

The program will help full-time employees in the Edison area earn a master's degree in environmental engineering.

The specialty is growing in demand as government and industry undertake the hazardous waste cleanups they spent much of the 1980s studying. The American Academy of Environmental Engineers has predicted the country will need 18,000 new environmental engineers in the next 10 years but said that U.S. universities are supplying just 5 to 10 percent of that need.

"By bringing the classroom to the workplace, Stevens is helping professionals take advantage of the tremendous career opportunities in environmental engineering," said Dr. George Korfiatis, director of the Stevens Center for Environmental Studies.

The program is currently under way with a summer course called "Environmental Chemodynamics." Stevens plans to offer two courses in the fall and spring semesters, beginning this fall with "Environmental Biology" and "Physicochemical Processes for Environmental Control."

Applicants must meet the entrance requirements for the master of engineering degree administered by the Stevens Department of Civil, Environmental and Coastal Engineering. The courses, an extension of the regular on-campus program, are taught by Stevens faculty.

Classes will be held at IT Corp. facilities, Raritan Center. For more information, call Korfiatis at 420-5348.

EWING — It's a game comprised of individual accomplishments. But if a team is to be successful, everyone has to do it together.

That's exactly what led the Edison Angels to the Amateur Softball Association state championship in the age 16-and-under division last weekend in Mercer County.

"To win a tournament of this caliber, you need a complete team effort," said Angels' manager Ken Fox, who's assisted by Debbie Zimmerman and Ron Aulenbach. "Everyone contributed for us."

"We got sound pitching," added Fox, "and strong defense from our infield and outfield. It was a team effort offensively, but Sharon Morris, Jen O'Connor and Renee Lally had a good tournament for us."

A total of 24 teams participated in the double-elimination tourney Saturday and Sunday, with Edison winning seven of eight outings to take home the title and qualify for the ASA Mid-Atlantic Regional in Clark, July 21-22.

But to earn the championship, the Angels ultimately had to win the final two games against the Allendale Pacers, who'd handed Edison its lone loss (1-0) in the tourney's fifth contest.

Battling to stay alive, Edison thumped Allendale 8-1 in Game 7 as winning pitcher Donna Witt tossed a three-hitter. O'Connor went 3-for-4 with a double, triple and home run and Morris added a pair of hits.

In Sunday's deciding game — and the fifth of the day for Edison — the Angels again downed Allendale 9-3.

Nicole Bush, who attends Franklin High, pitched five innings and Witt went two, allowing seven hits between them. Stephanie Rivera, Jen Ambrosio, Michelle Morales, O'Connor and Lally led the Angels' eight-hit attack.

Edison had started the tourney with a 7-1 triumph over the Hamilton Hurricanes as Witt (Edison High) pitched a four-hitter and struck out three batters. Doubles by Traci Fox and Megan Wiechowksi and a triple by O'Connor provided the Angels with an early 3-0 margin and they were never caught.

The eight-run rule halted the next game after five innings as Edison blasted Union 13-0. The Angels scored seven runs in the second stanza with Morris, O'Connor and Lally doing most of the damage. Fox's triple highlighted a three-run uprising in the fourth. Bush, the winning pitcher, allowed just one hit.

In Saturday's final game the Angels topped West Milford 6-0 as Witt fired a two-hitter with three K's.

Edison scored twice in the fourth on O'Connor's double, Lally's triple and Morales' single. In the sixth, Morris and Morales singled and Lally ripped a double for two more runs.

Edison kept cruising as Sunday's action got underway, defeating Marlton 3-0 behind the pitching of Bush, who yielded four hits and two walks. The Angels got a run in the first inning on back-to-back doubles by Morris (2-for-3, two RBI) and O'Connor and broke through again in the third as Bush singled and Morris doubled.

But Allendale then snapped the Angels' streak by a 1-0 difference as Witt's strong performance on the mound (two hits, no walks) was wasted. The Pacers tallied the game's only run in the bottom of the seventh on a throwing error.

Edison girls nab another crown

By ALLAN CONOVER

EDISON — He hopes this is only the beginning.

"We have a reputation to uphold," said John Olekson. "We have a solid team, but there's a tough task ahead of us."

A year ago, the Edison Angels' age 12-and-under squad captured the Amateur Softball Association state and regional championships and qualified for the national tournament.

Olekson, coaching the Edison 12's for the first time this summer, saw his club win its initial major challenge Sunday when the Angels defeated Tabernacle 6-2 in the finale of the ASA state tourney on their home field.

Edison, which has a half-dozen 11-year-olds on its roster and seven 12-year-olds, won all four of its tourney tests and qualified for the Mid-Atlantic Regional in Johnson City, N.Y., July 21-22.

"We felt we had a very good team going into the tournament," said Olekson, whose squad now is 10-2 overall, "but our main concern was going up against some of these teams that had a lot of 12-year-olds."

The only returning Edison players from last year's successful club are Kelly Cudakiewicz, a 5-foot-6 first baseman, and Laura Dilkes, who's taken over the catching duties recently.

"Kelly has been a strong hitter all year," commented Olekson, "and Laura is just an all-around heads-up player, both fielding and hitting. She did a good job for us at catcher."

Olekson's daughter, Sherry, pitched all four games. In 23 innings on the mound, the right-hander struck out 38 batters, walked just 17 and permitted 11 runs.

In Saturday's opener of the eight-team tourney, Edison defeated Clifton 16-6. Dilkes went 4-for-4, including a double and three runs batted in, Olekson also had four hits, including a double and two RBI, and Brenda O'Connor had three hits and four RBI.

Edison 14's win in final inning

By ALLAN CONOVER

MARLTON — Doing the little things correctly can make a difference. For the Edison Angels 14-year-olds, the result was a state championship.

"We spend so much time out there, all by ourselves, working on catching the ball and fielding and hitting," mused assistant coach Bob Bierman. "It's nice to see it all pay off for us."

That it did. The Angels captured the state Amateur Softball Association age-14 crown Sunday by slipping past the defending champ Clifton Charmers 3-2 on Donna Regan's run-scoring hit in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Edison, which lost to Clifton in last year's finale as a 13-year-old club, had to knock off the Charmers twice this time in the double-elimination event.

Led by tourney MVP Debbie Bierman, who hit at a torrid .750 clip and supplied sterling defense at first base, and pitcher Melissa Maikos, the Angels won four of five outings in this South Jersey town to bring home state honors.

"It was a super weekend — we're real excited about it," commented Mike Corrigan, the Angels' manager. "The kids were under a lot of pressure but they came through."

The Angels began the tourney Saturday by nipping previously-unbeaten East Hanover 5-4, then downed Clifton 5-3 in a 10-inning battle.

They came back Sunday to knock off the Merchantville Raiders 9-8 but suffered a 3-2 setback to Clifton before coming right back to take on the same team again in the finale, and pulling out the victory.

In the last game, a key defensive play in the top of the seventh enabled the Angels to maintain a 2-all deadlock and go on to win.

Clifton had the potential winning run at third base with one out when its batter dropped line on a safety-squeeze attempt. Wendy Olekson scooped up the ball and fired to first baseman Bierman.

But Bierman, instead of waiting at the bag for the throw, took several steps forward to snare the ball and quickly threw to catcher Erin Quaglia, who had the plate blocked and tagged the Clifton runner out as the large crowd which made the trip down from Middlesex County went bonkers.

"It was a big play — Bob (Bierman) came up with it," said Corrigan.

"We just added it to our repertoire last week," pointed out Bierman. "I picked it up from the Budweiser Belles. I guess it was the perfect time to call it."

The next batter was retired on a pop fly and it was still a 2-2 game with the Angels coming in to hit.

Quaglia singled for the Angels in the home half of the seventh, moved up on Mary Ann Craft's sacrifice bunt and scored the game-winner on Regan's one-out single into right-center.

The losing pitcher was the Angels' former teammate, Carrie Ann Ciccone, who'll be a freshman 9-8 but suffered a 3-2 setback

Midtown team rallies to victory

By WILLIAM WESTHOVEN

EDISON — For four innings last Friday at Thomas A. Edison Park, it looked as though Bill Brownlie's Edison Babe Ruth team was going to give him a nice going away present for his upcoming vacation trip to Cancun.

But in the fifth, crosstown rival Midtown ruined the bon voyage party.

After looking as good as they have all year while building up a 4-1 advantage, Edison's spotty fielding combined with some timely Midtown hitting turned a much-needed victory into a 6-4 loss.

"Errors killed us," said Brownlie. "They've been killing us all year."

The teams traded runs in the first, with Midtown breaking the ice on doubles by Jeff Abrams and Edison High School's freshman slugger Pete Rusinko. In the bottom of the frame, Edison tied it up on an RBI-single by Tyshon Kelton of Metuchen that scored Doug McCann.

In the second, Edison grabbed the lead on an unlikely rally as Midtown pitcher Jim Chambers got the first two outs easily, only to stumble against the bottom of the lineup. Chambers walked the No. 8 batter, George Roe, who quickly stole second, advanced to third on a wild pitch and scored on a single by the No. 9 hitter, Chris Krieger.

Edison extended its lead in the fifth. Pitcher Steve DeBrito led off with a walk and scored all the way from first on a triple by Roe that split the gap in right-center. Roe scored another triple by Todd Sak, pushing the score to 4-1.

DeBrito, who held Midtown to just three hits over the first four innings, tired in the fifth and Midtown took advantage. DeBrito fanned Aiden Lawlor, but Abrams followed by lining a pitch into left field that took a bad hop past Krieger and went for a triple. Abrams scored on a bloop single to right by Pete Inchausti.

DeBrito then walked Chambers and gave up an RBI-single to Rusinko that made the score 4-3. After Mike Russo popped out, DeBrito got Mike Russo to ground to third, but instead of ending the inning, it went for a run-scoring error that tied the game. Mark Pappas put Midtown in the lead with an RBI-single to center that McCann almost came up with on a sensational diving grab, but McCann's effort was ruled a trap.

"We had one good inning," said Midtown coach Ray Cancia of the winning rally. "But we didn't play very well."

Chambers struggled a bit himself in the fifth, giving up a pair of walks and a wild pitch that resulted in a second-and-third, one-out situation, but retired DeBrito and Dean Pollack to end the inning.

"All I had was a fastball," said Chambers, who held Edison to four hits over five innings, but walked six against only two strikeouts. "Everything else was flat."

Midtown added an insurance run in the sixth on a double by Abrams (3-for-4, three runs scored), two walks and a wild pitch, although DeBrito struck out the last three batters.

Abrams came on in the sixth to retire the side in order, fanning the last two batters to pick up the save (the game was called after six innings because another game was scheduled on the field at 8:30 p.m.).

Both teams, incidentally, should be well-represented on the Middlesex County Babe Ruth All-Star team, which will be selected next week. The All-Stars will be selected and coached by Cancia since Midtown is the league's defending champion. The squad will compete in the upcoming Babe Ruth state tournament.

Stores keeping up with trends

By RICKY BAILEY

A middle-age couple strolls into a local sporting goods store, showing considerable interest in the flywheel weight and upper body development capabilities of a rather top-of-the-line exercise bike.

Across the room stands a young lady studying a pair of indoor soccer shoes, admiring them because of the high arch. And in the corner there's a man inquiring about the proper knot to use with his fly-fishing outfit.

These individuals just make up a few of the millions of consumers that walk in and out of local sporting goods stores like Efinger's, Herman's and Dreiers.

"We are definitely servicing a more educated customer," said Gil Bubay, assistant manager at Herman's World of Sporting Goods on Route 22 in Green Brook.

Bubay, who lives in South River, has been at Hermans for over two years and has had to keep up with an ever-changing consumer.

"A lot of customers know just what they need," he said. "I have to show them the things that match their needs."

It's this kind of customer Bubay seems happy to serve.

"You have to be informed — we do a lot of training to keep up with our products."

One of the motivating factors in many of the purchases is the power of the media.

Although the excessive blitz of sports products has been critically viewed by many, information promoted through Consumer Digest and specific sports periodicals has kept the avid sporting goods shopper on target.

"The media gives the product a big boost," said Bubay. "It leaves an impression on the viewer."

One of the most forceful shifts in sports trends happens after major sporting events gain huge amounts of media attention — like Pele coming to the U.S. to play professional soccer in the mid-1970s, or Boris Spasski and Bobby Fisher squaring off in chess, or the World Cup soccer tournament of recent weeks.

"You always have your soccer enthusiast," said Bubay, "but the World Cup coverage has sucked up a lot of new fans."

Soccer, especially among the kids, is still riding high on the influence of the heyday of the great Pele and the North American Soccer League of over a decade ago.

BUT THROWN into the bin of batting gloves and mouthpieces are the bicycling shorts and

The Cardinalshipped the A's in a best-of-three series recently to capture the Major Division playoff championship of the Edison Boys Baseball League.

The pitching of Bobby Bellusio and Danny Briggs and the hitting of Frank Soos sparked the Cards, managed by Bob Bellusio, to victory in the deciding third game.

The Minor League crown went to the Red Sox, managed by Rick Rossens, who knocked off the Tigers.

In the Junior League, the Astros (managed by Jim Calantoni) ended the A's two-year reign as playoff champions.

leather athletic shoes that spearhead another increasing role in the typical sporting goods store — fashion.

"People are into fashion," said Bubay. "Sneakers and the fashion-wear keeps stores afloat."

It may be somewhat difficult to refer to a $50 to $170 item worn on your feet as mere "sneakers" but what used to be just canvas with a rubber sole are now soft leather uppers, in brilliant colors that can be air-pumped for a better fit. The term is now "athletic shoe."

Al Freehauf has spent the last couple of years managing the athletic shoe department at Dreiers Sporting Goods in Watchung, where the buying trends span all sports.

"They're still buying them," said Freehauf about the Chuck Taylor Converse classic sneaker of the past several generations. "But right now they're buying Nike more than anything."

The Nike sports brand has taken the industry by storm with a number of big-star endorsements, including those of basketball standout Michael Jordan and Bo Jackson of pro baseball-football fame.

"People really got hooked on the the Nike shoe and it's definitely because of Michael and Bo," said Freehauf. "You could get three pairs of many other shoes for the price of one of them."

It's no wonder that with such a high pricetag the shoe itself has a higher status in high school classrooms than the athlete that may be wearing them.

"A lot of people that wear the shoes don't play basketball," said Freehauf.

The basketball shoe is just one of many styles of footwear offered. Everyone from the wrestler to the mountain-climber can choose from a selection from their sport.

"The best-selling shoes are the cross-trainers," said Freehauf. "There are many people that play tennis, basketball, run, and a lot of other things, that can use a shoe like this. Now he can have one shoe instead of two or three."

One of the leaders in the specialized shoe market is a newcomer, thanks to innovative developments in plastics.

The Rollerblade is now on the scene and has singlehandedly brought hockey equipment off the ice and into every month of the year.

The Rollerblade is a modernized rollerskate operating on the same principals, except the wheels are set one behind the other on a blade, allowing a motion simulating ice-skating.

"They've been out now for about 10 years now and just getting to the stores in the last few years," said Freehauf. "You can see everyone on them."

WITNESSING A much broader scale of consumer development is marketing director Tim Efinger of Efinger's Sporting Goods in Bound Brook.

For generations Efinger's has serviced Central Jersey, and even beyond, and has been credited by Sports Trends magazine as being among the top 100 sporting goods stores in the country.

"The market is pretty trendy," said Efinger. "For instance, Nike. Anything that says 'Nike' sells. It's a problem for the consumer who may not know the difference between the Nike product and the same thing from someone else."

"Nike makes a good product and people are comfortable with a big brand name."

To handle today's amateur athlete, stores must diversify and give as much variety as possible to the customer.

"We have 10 different departments in our store," said Efinger. "We have someone in each of the departments that really knows the sport."

Efinger's offers one of the largest gun and archery departments in the area. There's a strong sporting sense as one works his way around the fishing tackle and camping gear.

"You should see how it is during lunch," said Efinger. "We have our regular lunch groupies that stop in two or three times a week."

As the introduction of various sports come and go, the buying trends have to be anticipated with a good feel for foresight.

"Lacrosse has really moved along well and so has the ice hockey equipment," said Efinger. "I'm concerned about hockey, though. There's only a limited amount of ice-time available for kids."

Since Efinger started working in the business as a teenager in the mid-1970s, the growth of the sporting goods industry, and all the accessories that come with it, has really filled the building on Route 28.

"There was a time when we had a full ping-pong table and a full canoe on the floor," said Efinger. "But now there's so much stuff as the technology moves ahead that we could never do that again."

son in the Angels' own tourney the previous week before Edison bounced back to beat them, was up next and the Angels prevailed 5-3.

Cudakiewicz and O'Connor both went 2-for-3, and Tiffany Delery's two-run double in the second inning pulled Edison into a 2-all tie.

O'Connor's RBI double and Bonnie Sicora's safety squeeze bunt gave Edison a 4-2 lead in the third and the host team added its final run in the fifth when Cudakiewicz singled and eventually crossed the plate on O'Connor's fly ball.

Olekson pitched a four-hitter, fanning 10 batters and walking five.

The Angels then knocked off South Jersey's Tabernacle team 4-0 in Saturday's final game as Olekson fired a four-hitter, walked four and struck out eight.

Dilkes and Olekson had the only two hits for Edison, which scored twice in the first inning and two more in the third, all the result of walks, passed balls and errors.

Sunday, the Angels had to come right back and defeat Tabernacle again, and they did as Cudakiewicz went 2-for-3 with a home run and three RBI, Dilkes contributed two hits and Olekson had the other hit.

Considered the visiting team in this game, Edison broke through with three runs in the top of the first on three hits, an error, O'Connor's sacrifice fly ball and Delery's RBI groundout.

Tabernacle scored once in the last of the first but the Angels went ahead 4-1 in the third frame, scoring on an error, and put the game away in the fifth when Cudakiewicz blasted a two-run homer to the right-center gap.

Olekson gave up five hits and four walks and struck out six batters.

The Angels are competing in two tourneys this week — in North Edison and Sayreville — and will enter a Babe Ruth-sponsored tourney next week before departing for New York.

man at J.P. Stevens High this fall. Ciccone did the pitching when the Angels downed Clifton in 10 innings, then was rested for the next meeting between the two squads, and hurled a no-hitter against Merchantville to put the Charmers into the championship game.

Bierman also helped the Edison cause in the last contest by making a superb backhanded stab of a one-hopper, saving at least one run.

Maikos, who'll be a Metuchen High freshman in a couple months, had pitched well in Saturday's tourney opener, when the Angels downed an East Hanover squad that had posted 26 straight victories. Jen Corrigan, playing first base in this game, made a key catch on a seventh-inning liner to help ensure the Edison triumph.

Then Edison took on Clifton for the first time, winning 5-3. With the score tied at 3-all in the top of the 10th, Bierman, a righthanded hitter, swatted a triple to deep right field and Maikos followed with a home run to left. Bierman went 3-for-4, including a run-scoring single in the first stanza.

The Angels began Sunday's action by nosing past Merchantville, with Quaglia's two-run homer in the sixth inning — giving Edison a 9-3 advantage — proving to be the deciding blow.

Merchantville rallied in the top of the seventh to make it close but Heather Dennis, the Angels' shortstop, came in to relieve Maikos and got the final out to wrap up the triumph.

"Heather did very well with a lot of pressure on her," said Corrigan. "She got us out of the inning — and out of the game with a win."

Angels' centerfielder Lizandra Morejon, who enjoyed a fine tourney defensively, smacked three hits in as many at-bats and Maikos connected for a two-run homer in the fourth inning.

Next was a return match with Clifton, which decided to rest Ciccone. The Charmers won 3-2, scoring the final run in the last of the seventh on an error. Bierman, whose solo homer in the sixth pulled Edison into a 1-1 tie, and Olekson both went 2-for-3.

But the Angels were up to the task in the decisive confrontation with Clifton and emerged with the championship.

This weekend the Angels will participate in a Babe Ruth-sponsored tournament, and they'll compete in the ASA Mid-Atlantic Regional on Staten Island July 20-22.

The Edison Angels' 13-year-old club also played in the state ASA age-14 tourney, posting a 2-2 record. Kelly Rowe did the pitching for them, shutting out Union and losing a tough 3-2 game to Clifton.

Angels fly high in state 16's division

The Angels bounced back, handing the South Jersey champion Berlin AA a 5-1 loss. Bush did the pitching in this one, permitting only four hits.

Lally, Morales and Ambrosio (double) led Edison's nine-hit attack and thus paved the way for the Angels' subsequent two-game sweep of Allendale for the championship.

Besides a sturdy attack and the impressive 1-2 pitching combination of Witt and Bush, the Angels were aided by the infield defense of second baseman Fox and shortstop Morales and first basemen Lally and Ambrosio.

The catching — handled by Morris and Metuchen's Dawn Penny — also was solid and the quick outfield was led by Wiechowski, O'Connor, Ambrosio, Rivera and Highland Park's Cheryl Lopez. The Angels committed just three errors in the eight games.

The Pioneer In Aerodynamic Styling Has Something Else That'll Catch Your Eye.

A high performance, German sedan doesn't have to be a luxury to own. Or to maintain. With the Audi 100, you'll receive 3 years or 50,000 miles of no-charge maintenance. That means Audi pays for all scheduled maintenance, all routine oil changes, even wheel alignments. Normal wear items like brake pads and wiper blades are included too. All of which makes maintaining the Audi 100 as affordable as purchasing one.

Ten reasons

why you'll enjoy your local Forbes newspaper mailed to you each week.

Issues and Answers

Every week your front page explores the issues that are important to your community. Not stories from another country. Not stories from another part of the state. Stories about your property taxes, zoning and recycling. Stories that affect you and your neighbors where you live.

Each week the opinion page brings you thoughtful letters to the editor, guest essays, and editorials on community issues. Topics that matter in your town and in your life. Forbes Newspapers weekly features the unique editorial cartoons of our staff artist, Barry Rumple.

Pages of savings

Sidewalk sales. Coupon pages. Savings, savings and more savings. Discounts. Unique merchandise. It's all in your local Forbes newspaper each week.

Community and High School Sports

Where else can you find the play-by-play coverage of the town's important games? Not just scores in tiny type. Whether it's baseball or soccer, for midgets or older adults, your local Forbes newspaper covers the field of local sports.

School happenings

Forbes newspapers are in the classrooms and on the playgrounds. Musicals, plays, class projects, science fairs. Awards. Honors. We tell you what makes your child's school different from the rest.

Special Seasonal Supplements

Whether it's football season or time to shop for new fashions, our special sections help you move with style from month to month. Enjoy the latest information, news and advertising on how to relish every season of the year.

Service Directories

Aluminum siding contractors to zany party entertainers. Plumbers to portrait artists. Each week you'll find hundreds of service professionals to ease the problems you face day to day. Turn to the Forbes Newspapers' classified section to solve your help wanted needs.

Police blotter

Crimes in Bedminster and Bound Brook, Middlesex and Metuchen. Not hijackings in the Middle East or espionage in Moscow. We report on the people and problems in your own back yard.

8

Real Estate transactions

Prices. Building permits. New owners. What's zoned commercial and what's residential. We keep an eye on the buyers and sellers so you know what changes are occurring in your community.

Entertainment

Each week we spotlight for the after dark crowd the best in clubs, restaurants, movies, theatre productions and visiting celebrities. Learn where to go for flea markets or four-star dining every week in your local Forbes newspaper.

Walker named manager of Weidel Martinsville office

Richard A. Weidel, Jr., president, recently announced the appointment of George Walker as manager of the Weidel Martinsville office. A member of the New Jersey State Million Dollar Sales Club since 1984, Walker has been in the real estate field over eight years. He holds his Graduate Realtors Institute (G.R.I.) designation, Broker's license and is a graduate of the Floyd Wickman Star Enhancement Program. For the past year he has served as field advisor for the Weidel Flemington office.

"We're proud to have George as a part of our team in Martinsville," commented Weidel. "His solid record in real estate sales, endless enthusiasm and most importantly, strong belief in the teamwork approach to success will play a major role in the continued expansion of Weidel in Somerset County."

"I'm proud to be associated with a company that has such high ethical standards," Mr. Walker noted. "I feel strongly about the manager playing a support role to their salespeople and the company's autonomous philosophy allowing individual freedom to grow makes me feel very excited about the opportunity to be a Weidel manager."

A native of Newark, Walker has lived in Hunterdon County for 28 years. Active in the Hunterdon County Board of Realtors on several committees and an officer of the Flemington Elks, he and his wife, Patricia, currently reside in Whitehouse Station.

Coldwell Banker Metuchen is top office in state

Wayne Frahn (left), president of Coldwell Banker residential real estate, congratulates Debbie Venedam and Bill Hanley for their efforts as managers of the Metuchen Coldwell Banker office in making it the top producer of revenue in 1989 in the state. Presently, Hanley is the manager of the Woodbridge office and Venedam is at the helm of the Metuchen operation.

Blau & Berg arranges lease for Edison Warehouse

G.T.C. Warehousing has leased 27,000 square feet of space at 30 Ethel Rd., Edison, in a transaction arranged by The Blau & Berg Company, exclusive agent for the building owner. The lease was negotiated by Allan R. Greene, vice president of Blau & Berg.

"The building offered several key advantages for G.T.C.," said Greene. "It has 22-foot ceilings, 30-by-40 foot bays, tailgate loading and an alarm system."

"The location was also a major factor," he added. "It is just off Interstate 287, within minutes of the New Jersey Turnpike and the Garden State Parkway. This provides access to a road network for the state and the Northeast and access to air, sea and rail shipping facilities."

"Good locations are the key to remaining competitive in today's business environment," noted Kenneth Crimmins, chairman of Blau & Berg. "The building's central location in the Northeast Corridor and its proximity to highways and shipping facilities make it an ideal warehousing location."

Cobroker was Bussel, Edison, who represented the new tenant.

Empty nesters should review finances when selling

Concern over taxes has made many empty nesters postpone selling until the age of 55 to qualify for a one-time capital gains exclusion. That could be shortsighted, said Carolyn Weber, a Vice President with Century 21 of the Northeast, because it may not take into account property taxes and other expenses that go with owning a home that no longer suits your needs, combined with the loss of income from the trapped equity.

"When the long term capital gains deduction was repealed in 1986 it put many older homeowners, the so-called 'empty nesters' on the sidelines. While their current home no longer suited their lifestyle, they were unwilling to pay a tax on the gains at the new, higher rate," said Weber.

"These homeowners are carefully watching the current debate over capital gains in Washington. And, if legislation is passed which lowers the rate at which capital gains are taxed, they may decide to act - with considerable impact on housing markets."

Until the debate over current tax legislation is finalized, Weber said, the wisest course for the majority of homeowners in their late 40s and early 50s - and those nearing retirement age - is to weigh the capital gains payment against the cost and inconvenience of staying put.

Her advice is basic: "Homeowners should talk with a qualified real estate broker about a realistic price their home might bring in today's market. Then they should calculate exactly how much tax they will be required to pay on the sale. For most people, this should be done with a qualified accountant or tax lawyer."

"Many homeowners are delighted to realize that expenses incurred during the purchase and sale of a home, such as commissions, legal fees and closing costs, can be deducted from their gains, reducing their tax liability. When the savings on property taxes, maintenance costs and other factors are taken into account the gains tax payment often begins to look far less imposing," she added.

Moreover, Weber noted, people also often overlook the income that can be earned on the equity in a home if they scale down to a more suitable property.

Sometimes the answer for those not yet 55, according to Weber, is to scale down in stages. A homeowner can sell a $400,000 home, trade down to one valued at $300,000 (paying a tax on the $100,000 gains) and then sell after age 55 and still be eligible for the $125,000 exclusion.

To get a rough idea of the capital gains tax liability on a home Weber offers this advice:

When figuring the gain on the sale of a home, an accountant will first determine the "basis", or the measure of your investment in a property for tax purposes. He will also need the selling price and the amount realized on the sale.

To figure the basis, take the original cost of your home and adjust it to reflect prerecognized increases or deductions. (Improvements, additions or other capital items are added to the purchase price to increase the basis. Depreciation you have claimed, gains incurred from the sale of a previous home that you have rolled over into your current residence, and deductible losses are subtracted from the cost, reducing the basis.)

Then, to calculate the gain, deduct the adjusted basis of your property from the expected net selling price (sales price less expenses, including commissions, legal fees, closing costs and repairs). The final figure should provide a rough idea of the amount you will be required to pay tax on. For most people the tax rate will be 28% or the marginal rate of 33%.

Weber cautions, "Homeowners may want to do their own calculations to get a handle on how much they will be required to pay, but they should be sure to verify the figure with an accountant or tax lawyer before making a decision."

Century 21 of the Northeast's Vice President said, "For some, the answer will be to put their home on the market. For others it may mean waiting to see which way Congress will go. In any case, as our population continues to age, decisions made by this group of homeowners will have increasing impact on the real estate market nationwide."
