A trailblazing plan for cyclists

Spadaro unveils ambitious plan for network of township bicycle paths

By VERA CARLEY

THE REVIEW

EDISON — Riding down an orange-carpeted town hall corridor on a bicycle, Mayor George Spadaro began peddling an 83-mile bicycle circulation plan in Edison Tuesday.

According to the mayor, the plan is aimed at reducing traffic flow in the congested community.

"Bicycle travel has become, if not impossible, certainly highly risky," he said. "We are trying to expand bicycling for even an amateur."

With the aid of neighboring Metuchen, Mayor Spadaro said the three bicycle routes he mapped out, extending from one end of Edison to another, would be a success in getting people out of their cars.

Explaining the three-pronged approach to the cycling strategy, he said one route would take bikers over abandoned railroad right-of-ways, another would extend under high-tension wires and on other utility easements in the township, while a third would make way for cyclists on the road.

With roads widened to allow for the cyclists, a 40-foot lane would be provided for riders on some of Edison's busiest streets. Other roads would be designated as part of a bicycle path by signs only.

To get the project in gear, the mayor said he would provide funding in the fiscal 1995-96 budget; however, he would only estimate it would cost "seven figures" before the 10-year project would be completed.

Part of the plan, which will not cost the township any money, is the effort to utilize narrow strips of grass set aside as utility easements and the abandoned Conrail line.

Running from Perth Amboy to South

Plainfield, the railroad line cuts through Edison and Metuchen and is already used by many bicyclists in the area. Under the umbrella of the Middlesex Greenway Coalition, residents throughout the county have been working to get the deed to the property to secure the passive trailway.

With recent efforts to sell off a portion of the abandoned rail, there has been some (Please turn to page A-3)

'Move your cabooses'

Town, resident in zoning dispute over trains

By VERA CARLEY

THE REVIEW

METUCHEN — Ernest Docs is going to have to move his cabooses or get slapped with a fine by the borough.

For nearly 20 years, Mr. Docs has parked three red wooden cabooses on a wooded lot on Amboy Avenue that abuts the NJ Transit rail line.

Mr. Docs was issued a summons for violating several of the township's zoning ordinances two weeks ago. Zoning Officer Jim Anderson said Mr. Docs was given a notice of violation seven years ago but has not bothered to move his cabooses an inch. Then Mr. Docs appealed to the Board of Adjustment to keep his cabooses parked, but was denied.

"For some unknown reason there hasn't been any action," said Mr. Anderson. "The borough administration brought it to my attention recently. There has been no compliance with the zoning board resolution to remove those structures."

According to Mr. Docs, the cabooses were brought to the borough as part of a development plan for the lot. He said the ultimate goal was using the antique cabooses, which are 80 feet long and 9 feet wide, for a small gift shop, and architecture and real estate of-

Docs explained. According to Mr. Docs, a tentative outline of the development proposal was submitted to the Planning Board in the 1970s. Since then, he said, the plans and cabooses have been gathering dust. Although nothing new has been done with the property since then, Mr. Docs said he still plans to use the cabooses and will fight the summonses.

The borough has more important violations to focus on than his, Mr. Docs said. Citing another incident in which he was issued a summons for stockpiling wood chips adjacent to the cabooses, Mr. Docs said he went to municipal court three times before having charges against him dismissed. "The stockpile was for public use and was given out for free ... The people who cut the trees for the borough came nights and weekends and put them there," he said. "The borough said it is illegal. ## Township may get cable pact

THE REVIEW

EDISON — The Township Council is on the brink of approving a new contract with TKR cable.

Councilman David Papi, one of the negotiators, said the agreement would end three years of litigation with the cable company.

"It's unique to our town," he said.

The township had a 10-year contract with TKR that expired in 1992.

Because the contract is not finalized, Mr. Papi said he would not discuss the specifics of the agreement.

But Councilman James Kennedy said a "most favored nation" clause is included. The clause allows the township to receive anything beyond its contract that other municipalities receive in negotiations.

Mr. Kennedy said that will allow municipalities to have the same quality of cable access.

Other municipalities in the area have negotiated greater local access, receiving cable equipment for schools and the municipality, and improvement in the quality of service.

Based on other contracts hammered out by TKR, Councilman Bill Stephens said he sees the proposed contract as "nothing special" and "run of the mill."

Refusing to discuss the details of the contract, Mr. Stephens said the "sixth largest municipality in the state should have been able to do better."

Both Mr. Stephens and Mr. Kennedy said numerous residents had complained about the quality of service provided by TKR. Mr. Kennedy said this contract would help solve some of those problems.

Preparing for a tough test

School board to ask voters for $20 million

By VERA CARLEY

THE REVIEW

METUCHEN — The last time the school district built a school was in the 1960s, when the high school was completed. At that time the high school was considered an excellent facility, offering students a positive environment in which to learn.

Thirty years later, the school's serious space problems led to a supply closet being turned into a conference room.

Although not the only instance where the district has moved out supplies to make office spaces, this was cited as an example in the school board's call for a $20.65 million capital improvement plan.

For the homeowner with a house valued at $180,000, the plan would translate into a $300 increase in taxes.

The tentative plan, presented by a special citizen task force Tuesday night, outlined a series of repairs and improvements needed in the four district schools.

Improvements slated at the high school, running $9.19 million, ranged from refinishing the gym floors to adding 10 new classrooms and a television production studio to expanding the cafeteria and school library.

The task force recommended adding four new classrooms to Edgar School. The $5.99 million plan for the school calls for building a new gymnasium, library and music room while repairing the building's facade.

Two additional classrooms were recommended for Campbell School. With the total cost of improvements at the school running $3.17 million, the plan also outlined the construction of a nurse's room,

'I think the board will look at it and recommend some downscaling. I would love to be able to afford everything that was presented last night, but I think we have to be realistic'

—Joan Fish

President, Metuchen Board of Education

music room and expanded library.

The blueprint for $2.3 million worth of improvements at Moss School calls for building four small group rooms, installing window screens and upgrading the school's playgrounds.

Moss, along with Edgar and Campbell schools, is also scheduled for roof repair while all schools are scheduled to have fire doors and acoustic ceilings installed. Asbestos would also be removed from the school buildings under the proposal.

Besides responding to the problems with the schools' physical structure, the plan recommends spending money to address the district's technology needs. Improvements to and upgrades of computer labs at Campbell, Edgar and Metuchen High School are recommended.

Board President Joan Fish agreed with the expansive proposal's suggestions, but said it will probably be downgraded to become more palatable for the Metuchen taxpayer.

"We will go through the plan school by school and make a decision," she said. "I think the board will look at it and recommend some downscaling. I would love to be able to afford everything that was presented last night, but I think we have to be realistic."

The price ranges on the improvements are very loose, she said, and should come down. (Please turn to page A-3)

Council criticizes 'inflated' water utility revenue

By VERA CARLEY

THE REVIEW

EDISON — As plans to sell the Edison Water Utility move forward, Township Council members are boiling about the way business is being done at the 60-year-old system.

Councilwoman Jane Tousman said last month 300 ratepayers got hit with delinquency notices after paying their water bills. The township's billing company corrected the error, she said, but only after "seniors had been horrified their water would be turned off."

Aside from the computer glitch, Councilman James Kennedy said there is a more costly mistake on those bills. He said some 30,000 South Edison residents are being overcharged for their water.

The water rates were adjusted 1½ years ago to make up for a $1 million shortfall in the utility's budget. The increase in the water rate was doubled to make up the difference, with the understanding they would be changed within six months, Mr. Kennedy said.

Nearly a year later, he said, the rates have remained the same, allowing the township to increase the utility's revenue. Mr. Kennedy charged the administration is using those inflated figures to make the utility more attractive.

The councilman also alleged keeping the rates higher allows the administration to bury hidden costs in the utilities budget. For example, he said, some of the mayor's staff is paid from the water utility budget.

"Councilman Kennedy is speculating. I think his speculation is way off base," Mayor Spadaro said.

Mayor Spadaro said a water rate study is being done now to determine how much ratepayers should be doing out for their glass of water.

"If the decision is that it's too high a rate, it would be adjusted down until the difference is made up," he said.

But before reducing those rates, the township will need to know whether it can afford to maintain and repair the system under the revised numbers, he said.

Rescuing a historic resting place

Firefighters donate time to restore damaged headstones

By VERA CARLEY
THE REVIEW

EDISON — Fallen headstones used to litter the ground of St. James Cemetery, until a group of volunteers decided to give this historic resting place a lift.

Three firefighters from Fire House No. 2 on Route 27 donated their time to remount the 100-year-old headstones from the earth last Friday. By Monday, they had raised 57 of the 66 fallen tombstones.

Notably, the hallowed ground is the final resting place for Revolutionary War British soldiers and Mary Moore, a 41-year-old woman burned at the stake for being a witch in 1731.

But volunteers never had the chance to prop up the alleged witch's headstone. Legend has it, the tombstone was stolen by a teenager and placed as a souvenir in his closet until the following day, when he was killed in a Route 1 traffic accident. Finding the tombstone, the teen's brother smashed it to pieces.

On Monday, the volunteers tried to pick up the remaining pieces of other fallen headstones.

"It's a shame. I thought something has got to be done," Jack Campbell said. "It shouldn't look like that for a cemetery."

Mr. Campbell said he was moved to clean up the cemetery after being disturbed by its appearance while walking by with his wife.

Mr. Campbell said he and fellow firefighters Milton Asprocolas, Greg Gush and Ken Zewrotniak offered to donate their time and muscles to lift up the grave markers. However, the men were surprised by the resistance they experienced from the township.

"Nobody wanted the responsibility to do the job. I volunteered and they turned around to ask me if I have insurance," Mr. Campbell said.

After several discussions, an arrangement was finally reached whereby the township covered the insurance costs, allowing the group to move in with a backhoe.

Mr. Asprocolas said the group dug out around the fallen stones, which were then propped up by blocks. The stones, wrapped in cloth, were then tied with nylon straps to the backhoe and lifted before being glued back to their base.

"It was easier than we thought it would be. Without machinery it would have been too heavy," Mr. Asprocolas said.

But some of the cemetery's fallen tombstones will remain toppled forever. Made of sandstone, these grave markers are too delicate to move, so they will remain permanently entombed by the earth.

Caller's tip leads to arrest of apartment burglary suspect

Edison Police

EDISON — Responding to an anonymous phone call Saturday, police apprehended a man they believe broke into a Durham Avenue apartment during the afternoon.

Called to the scene on a tip of a burglary in progress, police were met by the caller, who pointed out his neighbor's broken ground floor window. While one officer guarded the window, two other officers attempted to enter the apartment from the front door.

Shouting out repeatedly for someone to open the door, the police attempted to slip the lock. When they unlocked the door, it was flung open by a man later identified as Lamont Benjamin.

The suspect fit the description given by the caller. Questioned by police, Mr. Benjamin admitted he had no key to get into the apartment and did not have permission from the owner.

Police reported it was also apparent Mr. Benjamin did know the owner, who was away for the Memorial Day weekend. Mr. Benjamin told police someone else broke in and unlocked the door for him.

The suspect then was arrested for burglary.

Mr. Benjamin also told police his mother and brother live in apartments in the complex.

A Plainfield Avenue resident reported her apartment burglarized between 9-11 a.m. Sunday.

Police said the 35-year-old victim shrubs from the front of the building, police added.

Police said the total value of the stolen plants is $1,500.

A Reading Road resident got back her 1984 black Ford Escort while her ex-boyfriend got time for stealing the car.

The victim told police her ex-boyfriend, Anthony Enis, was removing his possessions from their apartment on Reading Road when he took off in her $4,000 car.

Police said the car was later recovered after he talked to his girlfriend's mom. Then Mr. Enis told the victim's mom he was parked in the Price Club parking lot. The suspect got the cuffs and was arrested for theft of a motor vehicle.

A three-foot lantern lawn man statue was knocked over and damaged on a Mount Pleasant front lawn between midnight-7 a.m. Saturday.

Five rhododendrons were stolen from the front of Bocchieri's Farm Market on Route 1 north between 8 p.m. Friday and 7:30 a.m. Sunday.

The total value was unknown.

Convicted developer proposes land swap with township

By VERA CARLEY

THE REVIEW

EDISON — A convicted developer is looking to make a deal with the township.

Nicholas Visco, convicted in 1992 for attempting to evade strict federal wetlands regulations, is requesting the township engage in a land swap.

Mr. Visco is offering the township 13.97 acres of property in the Dismal Swamp for 1.41 acres of township-owned property in an adjacent area.

In a letter to the township, Mr. Visco claims he bought the property from the township without knowing a substantial portion of the tract was wetlands.

Federal law limits the amount of fill that could be used on a wetlands area to one acre.

The swap, the letter states, is an "effort to economically utilize this property and minimally disturb and/or fill wetlands."

However, the deal also hinges on final site plan approval for either single-family homes or garden apartments and necessary county, state and federal approvals, including a one-acre fill permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for the property.

Mr. Visco said no discussions had taken place regarding the swap.

"All we did was write them," he said. "I don't own the property. It's been transferred to my children."

But Councilwoman Jane Tousman said she doesn't care who is proposing the deal if it means more development.

"Whether it's him or his children, he's still looking to develop wetlands," she said. "Why should we give him more wetlands? His aim is still to build in wetlands. I would not trust him to stay out of the wetlands."

Ms. Tousman said the two township blocks and lots Mr. Visco wants have already been delineated as wetlands. Hudson Partnership Inc., Mr. Visco's company, completed an environmental study on the property in 1989, delineating the wetlands on it.

A dedicated environmentalist, Ms. Tousman added the township lands are designated as Green Acres and are restricted from being developed. Although Mr. Visco is now crying foul, claiming he was not advised the property he was purchasing was wetlands, Ms. Tousman said Mr. Visco knew about the status of the land.

"I was at the hearing when the property was sold. I protested that this area was wetlands," she said. "He did put in for a hydraulic study on it."

Taking the same stance on a possible deal between Mr. Visco and the township as she did when the majority of the council accepted a legal agreement with developer Paul Sansone, she said it was "buyer beware."

Ms. Tousman warned the township at that time about a possible precedent they were setting by agreeing to the $2.4 million settlement with Mr. Sansone, who claimed he was guaranteed a certain number of lots on the property.

"I don't think we should do it," she said firmly. "I still feel he is trying to skirt the wetlands law."

Ms. Tousman said she would fight to preserve those parcels of land. But as of yet, the council has not discussed the issue in session.

"Nothing has been said or done about it," she said. "I just wish it would go away."

Councilman Raymond Koperwhats said the issue has not been put on the agenda by the mayor or council. Ultimately, Mr. Koperwhats said the council has jurisdiction over the matter and will have to make a decision. Mr. Stephens said it is obvious what the decision should be.

"It seems to me, we guarantee two pieces of land won't be developed if we don't swap it," he said. "So why would we do it?"

Councilman Robert Engel said the details given by the letter were too vague for the council to act. He said it would probably be a good idea if Mr. Visco, or a representative, came before the council to discuss his plans regarding the property.

Mr. Visco was convicted in 1992 after an investigation led by FBI agent Joseph Vitovich. The U.S. Attorney's office tried the developer twice after the first court case ended in a hung jury.

The developer was convicted for lying on an Army Corps of Engineers wetland filling permit. Mr. Visco never served a day in jail, but was sentenced to do community service.

Water utility revenue debate at boiling point

Mayor Spadaro added he is also concerned about the quality of water being sold to South Edison residents. Still seeking council approval for a $180,000 physical assessment of the utility by T&M Associates, an engineering consulting firm, the mayor pitched the study as a "precursor to rehabilitating the system."

Spending the money to maintain and repair water mains, he said, enhances the value of the water utility. He said the cost would be passed on to the buyers.

Agreeing that a study needs to be done, Mr. Kennedy said the council agreed with the mayor's proposal and requested a financial analysis also be done. He said an audit of the utility had been stymied because of incomplete record keeping.

"He agreed, but he has yet to go out and get that done," Mr. Kennedy said.

Until those studies are completed, he said it is premature for the township to move ahead with selling the utility.

Mayor Spadaro said it will take many months and possible years to sell the utility. So far, the township has requested an expression of interest and detailed qualifications. Five companies have shown interest, the mayor said for a possible deal for a joint-venture operating or outright buying the utility.

town took them and used them at the pool; other people came and used them around different properties ... Wood chips are a health hazard? The schools asked for some and public works was sending them to the lot for them."

Mr. Docs said other merchants are also being affected by overzealous enforcement of the zoning laws in Metuchen. A store owner, he said, was almost erroneously cited for placing a bench in front of his business. The bench, however, was placed there by the borough, Mr. Docs said.

"Merchants and a lot of people are upset," he said.

Bike paths proposed for Edison

The mayor said Edison will have to do a better job making bicycling more accessible by changing the township's traffic, land use and parking ordinances. Those township laws would be changed to require businesses to provide a certain amount of parking spaces per the number of car spots.

And town hall will have to add its own parking spaces for cyclists, according to Greenway Coalition member Walter Stochel.

"The township could take the lead and promote using bicycles by installing a bike rack at town hall to prove the era of the car dealer is gone, and that we've become less of an auto-centric township," said Mr. Stochel.

Board to ask voters for $20 mil

Ms. Fish said the board will make its determinations during the next six weeks. Then, a cost-factor analysis of the adopted plan will be done.

Using the Highland Park school district as a model, Ms. Fish said Metuchen hopes to present a referendum to the public in early December.

Promising the board would work diligently to inform the voters on the importance of passing the ballot question, she said "it's definitely needed and overdue."

Metuchen police

Police charge two with DWI

METUCHEN — A man who flagged down police was arrested for driving while intoxicated and using license plates other than those issued for his 1983 Buick Rivera 8:56 p.m. Monday.

Police said Keith Wargo, 26, of Van Buren Avenue got out of his car, parked in a Main Street parking lot. Rushing toward a police car, he said he needed a doctor.

Police said Mr. Wargo's speech was slurred, he was pale and looked like he was going to pass out. After passing out several times during police processing, he was sent to the hospital, police said.

Police also found the wrong license plates on Mr. Wargo's car. The correct plates were found behind the passenger seats.

Central Avenue resident Martin Paul was arrested for driving while intoxicated 10:16 p.m. Monday.

Driving a 1987 red Chevrolet Suburban wagon, Mr. Paul passed a patrol car. Noticing the car had no tail lights, the police stopped Mr. Paul on Middlesex Avenue.

A final warning Adolescent rites of spring do not require alcohol

Prom and graduation can be among the happiest times in anyone's life. Years down the road high school seniors will probably look back at the moments when they danced close with their date at the prom and when they were handed their diplomas and were free to face the frightening and hypnotic future.

For most high school seniors, prom and graduation is a time for celebration and happiness.

But for a few it can mean tragedy.

Each year students in high schools all over the country will celebrate these rites of spring with a few drinks. Feeling invincible, they will then hop into a car and drive. This dangerous mix often ends in tragedy.

Teens have been continually warned about the dangers of drunken driving. They know the law is out to get them — they know they could lose their precious driving licenses and face fines and insurance surcharges that will take many summer vacations working at the mall to pay off.

National and local organizations dedicate their energies to warning of the dangers of drinking and driving. The remains of a car involved in an alcohol-related accident are placed in front of the school, serving as a sober reminder of what could happen if a student courts disaster.

Just because students are graduating from high school and moving on to college or the working world doesn't give them the right to drink.

In recent years, a successful leader in the fight against adolescent drunken driving has been Project Graduation. The program has had a high success rate of keeping students off the road and away from the bottle. Project Graduation is a yearlong program which ends with an all-night party for students on graduation night. It offers a safe, effective opportunity for students to have fun without alcohol and drugs.

With graduation time nearing, Project Graduations in our communities are winding up their dedicated efforts. Most of the funds have been raised and the final plans are being made. The parents, educators and students who have worked hard on Project Graduation deserve the support, both moral and financial, from residents and businesses in our communities.

Despite all these warnings and all these efforts, there will always be a handful of students who will tempt fate. These should be the happiest times in a teenager's life — alcohol doesn't add to that fun. Why blow a whole life for a few beers?

Letters to the editor

Writer hears 'political doublespeak'

To The Review:

It is time for Councilman James Kennedy to come clean with the public.

At the council meeting May 10, there was a heated debate about the council's proposal to remove the township chief of staff. During the debate, Mr. Kennedy was questioned about his application for the job of director of finance and his subsequent vote to remove the position after he was denied the job.

First, it was wise of the mayor to pass Mr. Kennedy over for the post. He is not an MBA. In fact I am uncertain whether he has a college degree and, if he is a college [graduate], in what discipline.

Second, Mr. Kennedy stated he applied for the job and that was as far as the issue traveled. He further stated that his application was never seriously considered.

I seem to remember that several newspapers published articles about his proposed application. It seems only fair to raise the following issue: If you were not seriously considered for the job, who told the press you were a candidate? If it was the mayor, it would seem that you got more serious treatment than any other candidate. If it was you, it is wrong to use the press to advance your personal employment agenda.

During the debate over the council's decision whether to fire Edison's chief of staff, Mr. Kennedy stated that after he was denied the job he wanted, he did not remove the position of finance director from Edison's ordinance. Rather, in his own words, the council removed the money from the budget.

This is political doublespeak in its most embarrassing form. Mr. Kennedy should know that in today's hard times, people do not work for no money and an unfunded job is no job.

Jim Kennedy is trying to make the people believe that he did not want the $75,000 that he would have earned if he were qualified and accepted as finance director. In reality, when he didn't get it he was vindictive and in effect said, "If I can't have the job, no one can."

They say you can fool some people some of the time, but Mr. Kennedy has fooled no one with his political doublespeak. Please do not embarrass us any more.

Program success is often unnoticed

To The Review:

I am a mother and a professional addiction counselor at Rutgers University. I recently attended a legislative breakfast sponsored by the Middlesex County Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence and learned of the many cuts Congress is considering that will affect many of our community-based alcohol and drug prevention and treatment programs.

These programs work and hundreds of young people's lives are saved because of these programs. One of the problems with our successes is that they no longer drink and drive, they don't get into trouble any more, they graduate from Rutgers, they work hard, they have healthy children. In other words, we don't hear about them. I know these young people because I often counsel them at Rutgers. Some have been able to come to college because they were able to get the help they needed in our public schools.

As members of our community we need to support prevention and treatment efforts and vote for people who support them. The more individuals in our communities who get the help they need, the less likely it will be that we will suffer from their alcohol and drug abuse.

End 'silly' debate over Edison bonds

To The Review:

Ross Perot's campaign theme song in 1992 was "Crazy" by Patsy Cline. That seems to be a fitting theme for Edison's Township Council.

There is a debate going on between the council, led by its financial wizard, James Kennedy (graduate of which financial college unknown) and Mayor George A. Spadaro.

In 1991, it seems that Edison sold bonds in order to raise money for the transition to a fiscal year budget. Currently, the money raised from the bonds is in some financial institution gaining interest for interest. Edison, of course, pays interest on the bonds, but from all accounts it seems that we are paying less interest than we are earning. In short, the bonds are earning money for Edison.

The mayor has proposed either taking the money and returning it to the taxpayers by lowering their taxes; using the money for projects that will benefit the town, like improving roads and parks; or letting the money stay in the bank and earn interest for the town. The council has gone out and asked a bond attorney for fee quotes because the council wants the township to use the money that was raised to buy back the bonds. This will, obviously, deplete the bank account where the money currently is, and result in Edison gaining no interest.

I am neither a banker or a lawyer, but it seems that the debate is rather simplistic. The council's plan does not have the result of Edison gaining any interest on our money (because there will be no money left). The mayor's plan to lower taxes is most appealing because of the steep increases we all suffered this year.

There are too few opportunities for politicians to help taxpayers and the council should take advantage of this one.

So please, to all involved, end this silly debate. Enact the mayor's plan to put the taxpayers first and lower property tax rates and for one, put the public good first.

GOP uses 'insults and dirty tactics'

To The Review:

Now that the Edison Republican Party has selected its council candidates, I hope the taxpayers/voters of Edison watch carefully the happenings during the campaign.

Sylvia Engel, Edison Republican chairwoman, laid down the ground rules and her candidates have agreed to her every wish. Both David Papi and James Kennedy, who were censured by their party chairwoman, have fallen into line, especially after she issued a word of warning. She said, "Kennedy and Papi pledged that they will not break party ranks and will work with the party bosses. In fact, Kennedy vowed his lack of loyalty to their party boss was something that will never happen again."

In his presentation, the audacious David Papi figured he'd score a hit by insulting the Democratic slate of candidates with the "mushroom" reference! However, this man needs to take a hard look at himself and his running mates and he will recognize that they are the real mushrooms, so bad that they're sprouting spores. It's not too early to consider the issues at stake, not insults and dirty tactics already begun by the Republican machine.

It would be a travesty if persons of his caliber remain in office. The people of Edison deserve better — and the Democratic candidates are the ones who will give us a government above reproach. We must cease the runaway political spending for lawyers, consultants, and studies which will bankrupt our town.

Cold War casualty: Childhood

Each time I see a Memorial Day parade, I know we're supposed to be honoring the brave men and women who gave their lives so we could be free. At least, that's what everyone tells me.

But no matter how hard I try, I can only think of the frightening aspect of future wars as I watch the veterans march on Memorial Day. And this week especially, as troops descend upon Sarajevo, I can only think of death and destruction.

Images fill my mind ... I am sitting in the attic playing with my father's World War II paraphernalia. His green fatigues hang on a nail in the dim light that filters through a dirty window. The motes of dust in the air give a dreamlike quality to my surroundings. I smell mothballs and mildew. It is 1957 and I am 7.

A white helmet hangs on a nail. There is some sort of triangle with the letters "CD," which Daddy tells me stand for Civil Defense. There is something scary and threatening about the helmet. But when I show it to my friends, they ooh and aah and I feel important.

Flash to age 10: Daddy had told me how during World War II, he never saw combat because of a head injury in his youth. But I often look at the scrapbook of his tour of duty in Germany and his mementos from the Nuremberg trials.

I have also heard tales of "The Bomb," the one they dropped to "end the war." Though I have not seen films of the carnage on television (or perhaps I just have not been allowed to see), I have heard that people, even kids like me, were killed. And those who didn't die were misshapen and burned. It fills me with horror.

Air raid drills are held weekly in my elementary school. My teachers explain that New York is a very big city and if the Communists drop "The Bomb," we may be trapped in the "fallout." My child's mind pictures people falling off the globe, screaming.

When we hear the high pitched warbling sound screaming out of the loudspeakers, we must line up at the classroom door and file into the hall. We sit, backs against the walls, and bury our heads in our crossed arms. It has been explained to us that there is no glass in the halls, so we won't get cut. We are so naive we believe flying glass would be our biggest problem if "The Bomb" hit.

We are not allowed to speak during these drills ... not even a whisper, as if the marauding "Commie" bombers will find us if we don't remain perfectly still. It is a time of fear. My throat constricts. You see, they never tell us it's a drill. We wait fearfully, scared to death this one may be real.

So I develop a plan. I live only two blocks from the school. Deep in my heart, I realize that if "The Bomb" hits, we're going to die, though I never say the unthinkable out loud. All I know is, I want my mommy. I want my daddy. I want my dog Buff. So I decide to run home if the air raid siren sounds.

The next time the siren sounds, my teachers have to restrain me to keep me from tearing out of school and down the street. It results in a "scene," a black mark on my permanent record; a scorched blister of terror etched on my psyche.

Children nowadays are less naive and impressionable than I was. Maybe they can deal with countries that terrorize and bombs that kill. I was an over-imaginative child, and I have not lost that trait.

Aside from actual wars (Korea, Vietnam and the Persian Gulf), I've seen many military interventions (Lebanon, the Dominican Republic, Grenada, Panama ...) and they all terrify me, because I never know how far they'll go.

And children should never again have to huddle, frightened, in school hallways.

GOP motor vehicle plans will be costly to the average resident

To The Review:

The Republican-controlled Legislature recently approved legislation that will turn the state's already notorious motor vehicle inspection system into an even bigger nightmare for drivers. This unfair policy initiative will victimize middle-class New Jerseyans, senior citizens, and students unable to afford to buy a new car or pay for the exorbitant expenses associated with repairs necessary to comply with the new emission standards.

At least 36 percent of vehicles are likely to fail the new (emissions) test, which takes effect next year. The 3.5 million New Jersey autos built before 1990 are most likely to fail. In fact, 46 percent of all failures will be 1989 model or older. Until 1998 motorists can seek waivers from the emissions requirement if they spend $75 in repairs on a pre-1981 vehicle or $150 on a newer model. But the total number of waivers would be capped at 3 percent of all failed cars and many motorists would have to spend hundreds of dollars more to pass the test.

The true impact of the testing would be delayed until 1998, when all motorists would be required to pay at least $450 in vehicle repairs to qualify for a waiver.

In addition, this legislation bootstraps the privatization and politicization of the state's inspection system because political insiders with the right connections will get the contracts to run the emissions tests. Instead of clean air, this bill provides welfare for the well-connected.

Haven't we learned anything from the State Commission of Investigation's (SCI) report published in 1985 under Gov. Kean warning against privatization of [Division of Motor Vehicles] agencies because of the fraud, corruption and abuse that was rampant in those DMV agencies that were privately run? Isn't it curious the governor wanted to abolish the SCI, a well-respected law enforcement agency until the idea ignited a firestorm of criticism? The idea of killing off the SCI after 27 years of success fighting crime, targeting corruption and weeding out public waste is ridiculous. (In response to criticism, the SCI was hurriedly put on life support by "temporarily" extending its existence for 18 months.)

Despite all the talk pointing to the federal mandate imposed by the Clean Air Act as the justification for imposing a new emissions testing system, in the 1,000 pages of the entire Clean Air Act only two were devoted to auto inspections. It was this administration that took this blueprint and made the policy decision to rely on enhanced inspections to meet 41 percent of its clean air attainment plan to reduce air pollutants.

Whatever happened to the original Clean Air Act measures that would have had a more direct and measurable benefit in reducing air pollution? Measures that would not have resulted in the victimization of middle-class New Jerseyans who can't afford to buy a new car, who need their car to get to work so that they can feed their family and pay their mortgage? Traffic-reducing programs such as offering incentives to encourage flextime schedules and telecommuting from home have fallen by the wayside as compliance is now voluntary and environmental concerns made secondary to economic ones.

At the same time individual motorists are forced to make the sacrifices and pay the costs of reducing air pollution, the corporate community is allowed to escape its responsibility. A key program that would require that cleaner-running cars be sold in New Jersey and other states in the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic region has stalled before the Environmental Protection Agency.

I believe that New Jerseyans are entitled to a fair plan that achieves the most clean air benefits without wreaking financial havoc on hard-working families and senior citizens. Families should not be forced to choose between paying their mortgage and putting food on the table or spending as much as $500 to have their car repaired.

I urge the governor to use her clout in Washington to get approval for a clean air plan that does a better job of protecting the environment without placing the burden on the backs of individual motorists.

Edison council Republicans criticized for their conduct at meetings

To The Review:

The Edison Township Council meeting of May 10 was a fine example of what the Republican council members think of us, the taxpayers and residents of Edison Township. I can't address all the issues of the last meeting - it would take up too much room - but I will comment on the issues that I feel are important to the public.

First, Councilman David Papi attacks the new business administrator, Mr. DeRosa, about the new police vehicles. I suggest Mr. Papi take the Dale Carnegie Course to learn how to speak to the public and individuals. There is a correct way to address someone and a wrong way. Mr. Papi shows no respect for anyone and continued that attitude throughout the entire meeting.

The attorney who the Republican council members hired, Gary Stowell, gave an enlightening little speech as to how our money is being spent on these investigations. About all I could figure out from his speech is that he was very prejudicial towards our mayor and has absolutely no use for him but finds the council to be absolutely wonderful. Very one-sided situation there. I wasn't impressed with someone we have paid thousands of dollars to. We could have done it in-house and not spent a cent.

I found the colloquy between the public and the council with regard to the new council rules of procedure very interesting. First, as someone pointed out, we had nothing to compare the new rules with and thought that was sort of underhanded. As I see it, Council President [Raymond] Koperwhats wants the power to arrest anyone who is out of order. I didn't think we were living in a police state. Basically, the outcome is that the council wants to limit the speakers to as little time as possible and have complete power over everything. Who is looking out for the public's interest and who is in charge of the council? Looks like no one. They have unlimited power. Scary, isn't it?

Their attempt at getting rid of Arty Cifelli didn't quite come out the way they wanted it to. It was nice to actually see them speechless after the public portion. The public is a lot smarter than the Republican council members think. I congratulate the public for speaking up the way they did in support of Mr. Cifelli. I myself am very happy to see that Mr. Cifelli will still be with us.

What I really would like to point out is that the Republican council members have absolutely no respect for the taxpayers, business owners, or residents of Edison Township.

I was taken back at the council meeting of April 26 when Councilwoman [Eileen] Teffenhart shouted out "showtime!" when the [meeting] was opened to the public. Are we a joke to her? Who is she to ridicule what we have to say?

I would like to bring to Mr. Koperwhats' attention and some of the other members of the council that [former Mayor Thomas] Paterniti is not Mr. Paterniti, but Dr. Paterniti. This is done intentionally and I find it rather rude.

Unfortunately I had to leave the meeting after the vote on Mr. Cifelli, but was fortunate enough to catch the meeting on TKR Cable Channel 12 on Friday evening. What I saw bordered on barbarism. Councilmen Kennedy and Engel literally screamed at Dr. Paterniti over a fire truck. By the way, can the council members be ousted for being out of order? Messrs. Papi, Kennedy, and Engel were definitely out of order and were never asked to discontinue their irrational behavior. Where is the justice? I don't find any at these meetings. The council can behave in whatever way they feel like, but we the public have to go by the rules of procedure.

At one point in the meeting Dr. Paterniti was accused of politicking, that he was going to run for senator. Have they become clairvoyant now? If anyone is politicking, it is the Republican council members up for re-election. They don't need a campaign headquarters; they have the council meetings. Our tax dollars will fund their campaign since it's our tax dollars paying their salaries and funding their health benefits.

I encourage everyone to watch the council meetings on Channel 12. I'm sure you will find them very educational!

End GOP's 'boss rule'

To The Review:

As the election season approaches in Edison Township both political parties have selected their slate. The Democrats have four new candidates while the Republicans will continue running the same slate with the blessing of their party machine.

The Republican candidates were allowed to run only after they assured their party boss Sylvia Engel that they would never break ranks with the party and follow her wishes, regardless of the wishes and needs of the residents of Edison Township.

It's very strange that when Tony Yelencis was mayor and he had meetings at Boro Motors it was called the "Garage Gang." Well guess what? The Republicans have their own gang and it's called the "Diner Gang." They meet almost every day at a local diner to plot their own course and that of the taxpayers of Edison.

Well, they are handing out a lot of baloney and it's not for you or me and it's costing our taxpayers a lot of money. They're giving away fat fees for the lawyers, consultants, auditors, and computer outfits. They are so well entrenched that the Republican chairwoman gets confidential material sent to her that should really go to the mayor and council.

Enough is enough! It's time the residents of Edison unite and put an end to the boss rule.

Should teachers join council?

To The Review:

Question: Can Metuchen really afford to elect a majority of teachers to the Boro Council and Mayor's office? Please don't misunderstand me. I have great respect for our teachers and the invaluable impact they have on the youth of Metuchen. But, will they have the expertise required to respond to our fiscal concerns?

For example, if we were to encounter another leaking roof, this time at Borough Hall; how would they propose to pay the bill?

If teachers are running both the Board of Education and the Boro

Council, one can safely assume that teachers perks and salaries will not "spring any leaks."

With the upcoming review of the budget by the council, it is interesting to note that one Metuchen teacher will abstain. Two others, who teach outside Metuchen will provide the majority. In the interim, their mayoral candidate is waiting in the wings.

Commission says 'thanks'

To The Review:

The Senior Citizens Commission would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who came out to our dedication of the new senior building May 21. We thank God for giving us such a beautiful day.

We are sorry so many had to stand, but are grateful that so many showed their interest in the building and hope it continues. We need your ideas for programs that you would be interested in. Again we thank everyone too numerous to name for making it a day Metuchen will remember.

Memorial Day in a small town

Metuchen honors war vets with Main Street parade

By GAIL GASPAR
REVIEW CORRESPONDENT

METUCHEN — Army boots, sneakers, cleats and hooves pounded the Main Street pavement Monday in the borough's 35th Memorial Day parade.

To the tune of the same drummer, Metuchenites marched to celebrate the very lives of fallen soldiers — from the American Revolution to peacekeeping in Somalia.

This year's parade was dedicated to the celebration of the end of World War II, with former police chiefs Edward Studnicki, Joseph Perrino and Edward Leiss, and retiring Metuchen High School band director Ed Logue, as marshals. The police chiefs are military veterans.

One by one, each participating organization presented itself before Ronald Nelson, a major general in the Marine Corps Reserve, at a reviewing stand draped with bunting at Main Street and Hillside Avenue. Among the first to appear were Marines in uniform, Army soldiers in fatigues, veterans on foot and in chauffeured vehicles.

Several Borough Council members and Mayor Susan Marshall marched on Main Street, as did the MHS color guard bearing multicolored flags.

The MHS band, on the occasion Mr. Logue later called one of the most important performances of the year for the students, played "The Marine Hymn" before several hundred spectators.

Karen Adler of Edison, who watched the parade with her 5-year-old daughter Jill, recalled marching with her Long Island high school band. She came Monday to generate "enthusiasm" in her daughter for the day.

Though Jill would not find the Disney or Snoopy floats she anticipated, Mrs. Adler believed the parade to be a fine one, highlighting the center of town.

"It's like Small Town U.S.A.," she said of Metuchen.

Another Edison resident, Bill Levine, attended with his 10-year-old grandson Danny Levine. Danny said the fire truck with its lights was particularly "cool," while his grandfather reflected on the parades watched as a child with his own grandfather.

Mr. Levine's grandfather was one of the few remaining Spanish-American War veterans who used to march alongside Korean War veterans more than 40 years ago.

"He used to love to march," Mr. Levine said, repeating his grandfather's song of some 50 years ago:

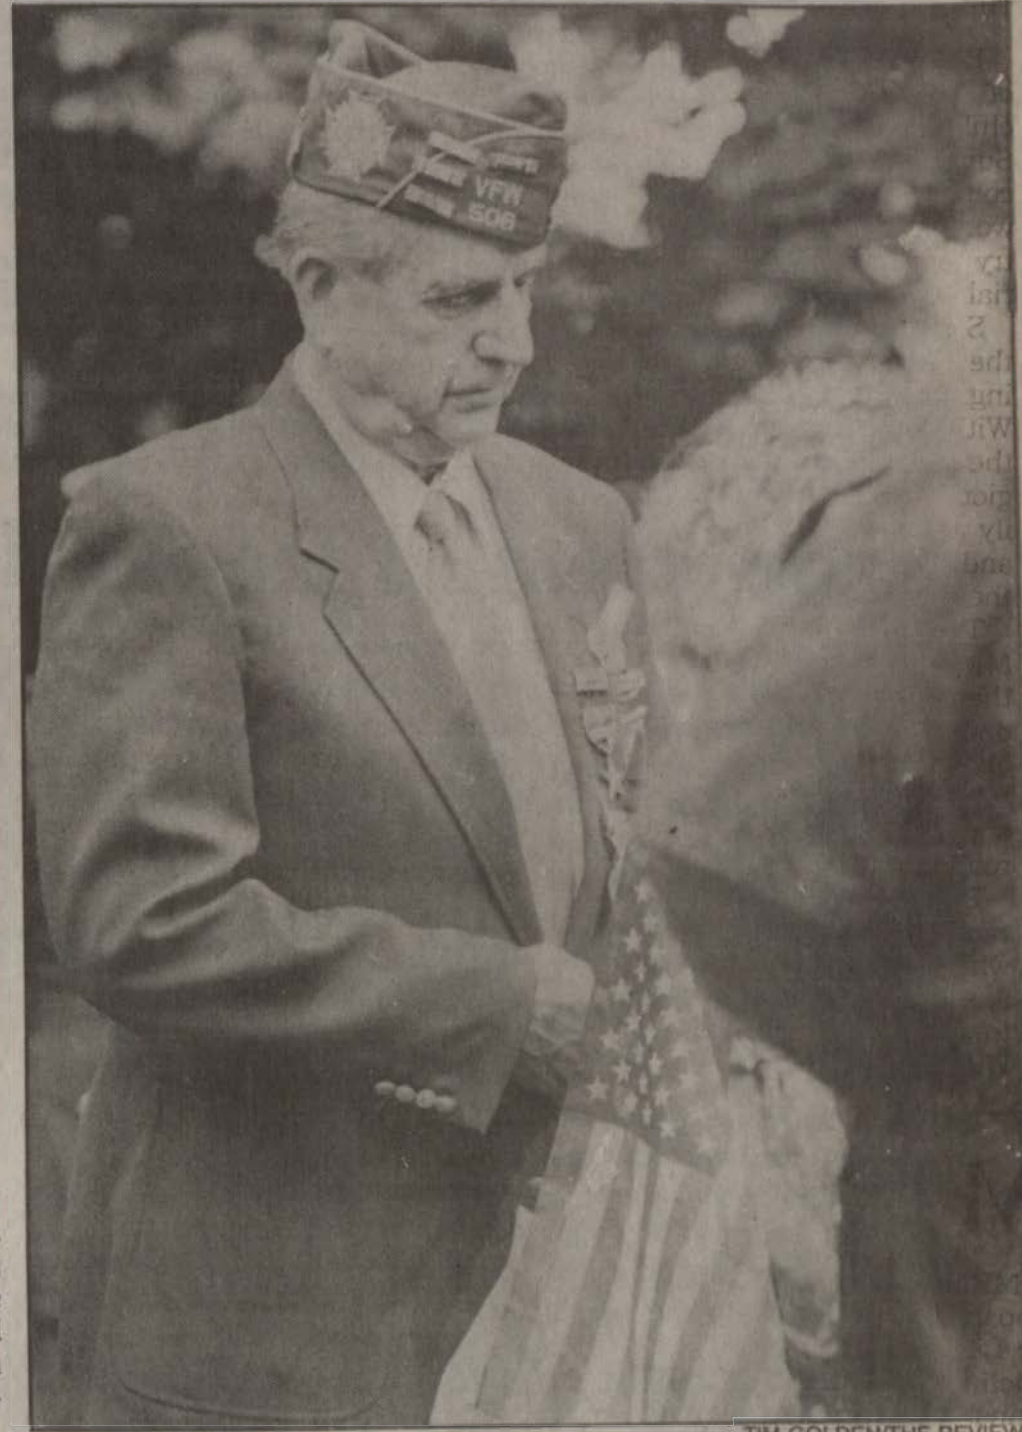

*Spain, Spain, Spain
Why did you blow up the Maine?
It'll be a hot time in the old town tonight!*

Under cloudy but dry skies Boy Scouts, Metuchen First Aid Squad volunteers, and library workers in red shirts passed. Several antique cars, including a Corvette, rolled along the parade route from Main Street to High Street to Lake Avenue.

Children along the parade route scampered for lollipops and candy bars distributed by some of the parade participants. For Evan and Darrin Swan, it was a candy bar caught by their father, Tom Swan, that provided a highlight of the day.

"But then he gave it to a little girl who wanted it," lamented Evan.

As always, where there is cause

Michael Yednak, one of five brothers who are all veterans, takes part in Monday's services at Memorial Park. Mr. Yednak was a U.S. Army 9th Infantry veteran during World War II. He saw action in North Africa, Italy, on D-Day and at the Battle of the Bulge. His unit suffered 4,500 men killed in action during the war.

for celebration, there appears Metuchen's "Pink Lady," Grace Knox, a lover of all things pink. In the absence of ticker tape she tossed candy bars with red and blue ribbons from her pink-and-white Cadillac on a day marking 50 years of freedom from Axis power.

Park ceremony serves as memorial

By GAIL GASPAR
REVIEW CORRESPONDENT

METUCHEN — Under gray skies, Metuchenites gathered at Memorial Park not to mark the informal start of the summer season, but the end of something — American lives lost in the line of duty.

In opening remarks at the ceremony, Suzanne Colitre Nann, vice chairwoman of the Memorial Park Commission, thanked all service men and women "for life as we know it today."

Nina Hand, a local theater director, sang a majestic rendition of "The Star-Spangled Banner" in the grove of trees that serves to pay homage to each of Metuchen's fallen soldiers.

Retiring Metuchen High School band director Ed Logue, one of four honorary Grand Marshals for the Memorial Day parade, recalled that his own father had served in World War I.

Though Mr. Logue said he had not served in the armed forces, he recalled living through many more wars, and hopes to have passed along to his band students the importance of the occasion.

Beth Figue, a former telecommunications specialist in the armed services, attended the day's ceremonies with her daughter Nina. Four years of service in the Army and another six with the Coast Guard Reserve, she said, "prepared me for a civilian career; that's for sure."

"I always feel a connection with the military," said Mrs. Figue, a member of the Memorial Park Commission. While on active duty 1976-79, she was stationed first in Savannah, Ga., and later in Japan, during times of peace.

'I feel like a citizen of Metuchen today,' said Major General Ronald Nelson, noting the familiarity of the community members with one another

Guest of Honor Major General Ronald Nelson addressed the crowd on the origins of Memorial Day and on the events that occurred 50 years ago to the day.

"I feel like a citizen of Metuchen today," he said, noting the familiarity of the community members with one another.

But Gen. Nelson also bemoaned the absence of remembrance in some areas of the nation. In one Philadelphia paper, some days earlier, the general said there appeared a letter asking, "Why bother calling it Memorial Day?" The writer of the letter maintained that the substance of the celebration was, in fact, boating and barbecues.

"Those who do not remember the past are bound to repeat it," Gen. Nelson told the crowd. On the lighter side, several children who had decorated tricycles, bicycles, wagons and even strollers in the colors of the day — red, white and blue — were presented gold-tone trophies by the Recreation Commission.

"Even the helmets of several kids were incorporated into their overall design," said Recreation Director Nancy Goldberg.

Winners of the bike decorating contest were Jonathan Alijewicz, Chris Pisano, Lisa Palmisano, Caitlin Clearly, Ellen Mertz, Colin Ryan, Sarah Sterling, Will Gatlin, Jenna Alijewicz, Andrew Brown, Robert Pisano, Marcia Post and Marybeth Gazzale.

The program ended with a gun salute by members of the American Legion and the playing to "Taps" by the Metuchen High School band.

Following the ceremony, the American Legion provided participants and spectators with complementary hot dogs and soda at their Lake Avenue headquarters.

TV dinners fit for mom's fan club

Long before I inherited the job of cooking dinner for my own family, I watched my mother slave over the stove for hours on end cooking family dinners. She created masterpieces on the stove or behind the door of the oven 365 days a year. Everything was prepared from scratch. Tomato sauce never came from a jar, soup never came from a can and TV dinners were unheard of.

I remember my brother, sister, and I begging our mother in the frozen food section of the grocery store to purchase TV dinners. Mom's grimace said "no!" in a language only we could understand. Mom knew our likes and dislikes. She was dead set against purchasing the prepared frozen meals.

Our motivation behind wanting the TV dinners was evident to mom. She saw through our feeble attempts to manipulate the situation. She knew we only wanted the TV dinners so we could do as the name implied: eat dinner in front of the TV. In the end mom caved under the pressure and her form of a compromise was struck. Much to the delight of our taste buds, her deal did not include a little metal section tray lined with fried chicken or sliced turkey on top of stuffing, instant mashed potatoes, and a sprinkling of peas and carrots. Mom's bargaining chip was stone-ware plates covered with an abundance of meat and colorful vegetables.

Kitchen Memories

Madeline Gazzale

On numerous occasions when dad worked late, mom would surprise us with her version of a TV dinner — a homemade meal served on the family room cocktail table in front of the boob tube. Out of all these shared casual sit-on-the-floor childhood dinners, the night Frankie's pork chop got away is one we'll never forget.

One shout of "dinner's ready!" sent Frankie racing toward the kitchen. With plate in hand he picked his pork chops first and proceeded to pile on the vinegar peppers, rice, and peas. His enormous serving of rice and peas spewed all over his pork chops. There was no order of assemblage on his plate. He could have cared less about neatly arranging the meat and vegetables so they didn't interfere with each other. He was in a hurry to get back into the family room before us so he could change the TV channel to a program he preferred. As he raced to get there first his dinner plate esaped his grip and plummeted to the floor. The crash of his plate overly filled with food was muffled by Frankie's hysterical screams.

"My pork chops! My pork chops! I dropped my pork chops!"

Mom ran to his aid. My sister and I hekkled in tow.

The rice held its ground on the braided rug. The peas rolled in all directions. Our dog Holly pounced on the food faster than the speed of light. Mom narrowly escaped with Frankie's pork chops. The rolling peas were lapped up with Holly's outstretched moist tongue. The rice was inhaled.

Mom refused to waste good meat — there were no more pork chops in the pot. She washed Frankie's pork chops off, kissed them up to God, and reheated them in the frying pan. A fresh serving of the bountiful vegetables complemented the twice-cooked chops. This time there was no shout from the kitchen of "dinner's ready!" Frankie received waitress service at our table for three.

We flipped the channels while dining on "Miss Lizzie's TV Dinners." The Three Stooges, The Flintstones, F Troop (Wrangler Jane was sister Pat's heroine), and I Love Lucy crowded the airwaves.

Later in the evening an over-worked mother stretched out on one end of the sofa. An exhausted father reclined on the other end with his short tired legs reaching for his hassock. I curled up between. Dad's rounded belly served as my pillow for most of my childhood years. Pat and Frankie shared the love seat. When their love had endured enough for the day, one of them would take to the floor in front of the TV. A harmonious, peaceful feeling consumed the room as we shared time together laughing at sitcoms and crying at dramas.

In light of today's deteriorating moral standard of prime time programming, it is often difficult to find a show suitable for family viewing. As far as TV dinners go, the sodium and fat content are enough to make anyone think twice before eating one. So call it tradition, call it mother's intuition, but I'll gladly follow in my mother's TV dinner footsteps. With any luck a rerun of Little House on the Prairie will be on cable during one of my children's impromptu TV-side dinners. And if that should be the case, I'll be more than happy to pull up my tray and join them.

Eagles land in two championship games

By MARK CLIFFORD

THE REVIEW
 The Edison High baseball team has shown remarkable fragility off the field and resiliency on it this season en route to a 21-6 record and engagements in two tournament finals this weekend.

Edison will take on Hunterdon Central at East Brunswick today at 2:30 in the Central Jersey Group 4 championship game. Edison will then return to the same field tomorrow at 2:05 to meet Piscataway for the championship of the Greater Middlesex Conference Tournament.

"We've faced good pitching all year long and we hope the experience of facing everybody's ace all year will pay off for us," says Edison Head Coach Jim Muldowney.

Edison will indeed be challenged by a pair of formidable adversaries in this weekend's scheduled starting pitchers: Hunterdon Central's crafty Justin Lucas (3-1) and Piscataway's hard-throwing Bryan Malko (9-2).

The Eagles earned the right to play today by virtue of a 2-1 victory over Middletown North in Tuesday's sectional semifinal behind a complete-game pitching performance from senior ace Brad Bava (9-4).

Muldowney's pitching options for the weekend will depend on the status of junior Anthony Napolitano, who's been diagnosed with chicken pox since starting on the mound in Saturday's 4-3 GMCT semifinal triumph over J.P. Stevens.

Napolitano could return any day now, as could Chris Larrondo, the team's starting leftfielder and a catalytic offensive force who severely injured his ankle weeks ago while playing basketball in gym class.

The prognosis, however, is not too hopeful for seniors Jeff Plank and Brian Peters, the erstwhile starters who've been sidelined the rest of the season due to injuries suffered in a car accident.

"This has been an unbelievable year," Muldowney laments.

If Muldowney has to go to his bench, he has to hope one of his younger players can step up, as has sophomore pitcher-outfielder Jeff Feldman on several recent occasions when the team has sorely needed a boost on the mound or at the plate.

It has been that kind of resourcefulness that has enabled Edison to come up with an improbable number of one- and two-run victories behind stellar pitching and an offense that specializes in winning ugly.

Unfortunately for the Eagles, both of their opponents this weekend also have a well-earned reputation for being gritty, if not pretty. "This team has a toughness about it," says Hunterdon Central Head Coach Barry Cregar of his 16-9 Red Devils. "It's not extremely talented but they all just like to play the game."

Hunterdon Central proved its mettle Tuesday by knocking off highly-regarded Hillsborough 8-5. The Red Devils feature near-500-hitting Ryan Faulkingham, who wears uniform No. 7, and a fine all-around catcher in Luke Haug (No. 2), should provide an interesting standard of comparison to Edison's own top-flight backstop, Frank Soos.

GMCT No. 6-seed Piscataway has pulled itself up by its cleatstrings to earn a rubber game with Edison after the teams split their two contests earlier this season.

And while Piscataway Head Coach Bob Giberna professes a careful sense of respect for Edison, he thinks the Eagles have nothing on his Chiefs in the character department.

"They have a lot of talented players," he says of Edison. "But we're a team that likes to play in the big games and I really feel our kids are ripe for this kind of a game."

Three teams that pride themselves on their pluck and resolve, converging at a neutral site.

It doesn't get any better than this.

A few members of the fine stable of sprinters Metuchen High will take to this weekend's state meet at South Plainfield High: Adam Newmark, Charlie Schneckloth, Tyrone Ross, Jabari Chavis, Ryan Manatch, Stephanie Baran, Rachael Lorch, Kelli Redding, and Jen Vignali.

Metuchen boys and girls win state track sectional

By MARK CLIFFORD

THE REVIEW

The Metuchen High boys and girls track and field teams picked up some momentum for this weekend's State Group 1 Meet at South Plainfield by winning Saturday's Central Jersey Group 1 sectionals in convincing fashion.

The Lady Bulldogs outclassed their competitors, beating second-place Bernards 168-142. Metuchen dominated the boys field by an even wider margin, earning a 163-73 advantage over runnerup Spotswood.

Lanyka Brown was especially impressive, winning the 100-meter dash in 12.4 seconds, the 200 in 25.4 and the 100 high hurdles in 15.8. She also took a third with a 15-10 in the long jump, one place behind teammate Tiffany Ellis' 16-4.

"Last year we pulled back Lanyka's training a little too early," said Metuchen girls Head Coach Tony Maselli. "This year we trained her in the 400 through the winter and half of the spring, and now have her doing just the sprints. It's made her much stronger."

The girls broke or tied several school records Saturday. Brown and Ellis finished 1-2 in the 200 with the identical time of 25.4, tying the school mark set in 1986 by Gail Giddens; Ellis lowered her own Metuchen record in the 400 by a one-tenth of a second with a first-place time of 58.0; and Janelle Pocknett equaled Patrina Powell's 1991 shot put of 33-10 $\frac{1}{4}$  while winning that event.

Personal-best times among the Lady Bulldogs were established by Brown in the 100 and the 200; Ellis in the 200 and 400; Angela Sprunger in the 400 (1:01.1, third place); and Lauren Durgin in the 1600 (5:45.4, fifth).

Maselli gives his team a strong chance to duplicate last year's state title.

"We've lost some people from last season but we've also gotten so much stronger in the sprints," he says. "I think we're a lot more balanced overall."

On the boys side, sophomore Tyrone Ross led the team by making a triumphant return to the hurdle events after sitting them out all season.

"He injured his hamstring in the winter," explained Metuchen boys Head Coach Marty Holleran. "So this was the first time this year I had him run the hurdles because I was concerned he might re-injure himself."

After re-acquainting himself to the events in only one week of practice time, Ross established new personal bests in both hurdle races with a second-place 15.2 in the highs and a first-place 56.3 in the intermediates.

Personal bests were recorded by several other Bulldogs as well, including Chavis' 22.2 for first place in the 200; Adam Newmark's 49.8 for first in the 400; Steve Bonica's 2:04.4 for fourth in the 800; Jared Masters' 1:41.1 for first in the discus, and Jason Klundt's 40-6 $\frac{1}{4}$  for sixth in the shot put.

Halleran is now looking forward to the state meet at South Plainfield.

"We've been second four years in a row," he says. "But this is perhaps our best chance to win it ever. We probably have the most balanced team in it." (See page A-13 for meet results)

A Bulldog's determination

Metuchen miler overcame two operations to earn a trip to the state meet

By MARK CLIFFORD

THE REVIEW

Metuchen High sophomore Sean Ryan began the new year spending 23 days in the hospital while undergoing and recovering from two major operations.

Saturday, he ran a mile in 4:45.3 to win a silver medal in the Central Jersey Group 1 track and field championships at Hunterdon Central High in Flemington.

Because he placed among the top six finishers in his event (the 1600, won by Chris Kulick of Bernards in 4:44.1), Ryan will advance to this weekend's State Group 1 meet at Jost Field in South Plainfield, hoping to complete a comeback that almost everyone had deemed improbable until just a few weeks ago.

"At the time of the second operation, we thought the whole year had been shot," remembers Sean's mother, Georgiana. "Later we thought maybe he'd be able to get back to practicing, but not actually competing."

"I never thought he'd be able to compete this season," Metuchen Head Coach Marty Holleran says of his evaluation of Ryan when he was first cleared to start jogging in April.

"Most of the season, everyone was telling me, 'It's okay, you're just coming back,'" says Ryan of his teammates' modest expectations about his return to the track.

Ryan says even he didn't expect to be able to run this well, this soon.

"Now I'm pretty much physically up to it — it's probably more mental than anything else now," says Ryan of his struggle to recover his confidence and his willingness to train and race all-out again after such a long layoff.

It's no wonder Ryan and those around him didn't anticipate such a rapid recovery, considering that he had suffered a ruptured appendix which necessitated an operation Jan. 2, and various complications which required more surgery 10 days later and placed him in critical care.

"He's never sick, never even has a cold," says Georgiana of her son. "So we figured he was making up for all that time."

Nevertheless, Ryan improved dramatically from the time he first got back on the track, competing in his first race May 2 and steadily progressing to the point where he's now fit to run with the best Group 1 runners in the state this weekend.

No matter what happens at South Plainfield, Ryan says he's regained his racer's edge and has proved something to himself that he hopes will benefit him in next year's cross country and winter and spring track seasons.

"That's why I'm really glad I'm racing this year," he says. "So next fall when I start cross country, it won't be my first race since January."

Ryan will also know he has what it takes to overcome difficult setbacks.

"He's a very talented kid and very focused," says Holleran. "Those kinds of kids have a tendency to bounce back quickly."

Semifinally! After 12 innings, Edison wins wild GMCT game

By JEREMY SINGER
REVIEW CORRESPONDENT

The team that suffered the last frustrating play of the day also suffered the defeat when the J.P. Stevens and Edison high school baseball teams locked up for a thrilling semifinal clash Saturday in the Greater Middlesex Conference Tournament.

Edison won the game 4-3 in 12 innings when Hawks pitcher Harold Eckert fielded an attempted sacrifice bunt by Ed Sirico and threw the ball down the right field line. Mike Kane, who had singled and stolen second to lead off the inning, scored the winning run over 3½ hours after the game's first pitch was thrown.

"It's a shame the game had to end on a play like that," said Edison Head Coach Jim Muldowney, whose team will play Piscataway in the GMC final tomorrow. "It's a shame that someone has to lose a game like that."

Sirico laid the bunt down successfully despite having two strikes against him.

"I felt confident he could do it," said Muldowney, who admitted his team has had trouble bunting all year. "He's been in that situation before, and he's always been able to do it."

Edison's victory overshadowed a 14-strikeout performance by J.P. Stevens starting pitcher Kevin Wright, who kept getting stronger and stronger as the game progressed.

After allowing three runs on four hits over the first three innings, Wright settled into a nearly untouchable groove, allowing no runs on two hits over the next six. That effort earned a standing ovation from the fans when he departed after the ninth inning.

"After 150-plus pitches, we weren't going to let him go any longer," J.P. Stevens Head Coach Art Collazo said of his decision to pull Wright in favor of the hard-throwing Eckert. "Harold was fresh and rested, and it made sense to bring him in."

Eckert pitched fairly well, allowing one hit, four walks (one intentional) with four strikeouts in two-plus innings. But in the end, it was his defensive miscue that permitted the game's final unearned run.

"If we didn't make errors, we would have won the game," Eckert said. "I don't think they're a better team than us. Edison has had a lot of luck through the years."

According to Collazo, however, the game could have been won by either team long before J.P. Stevens experienced that tragic 12th inning.

"If we had better execution throughout the game, it wouldn't have come to that," Collazo said.

Edison took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Frank Soos, who had two hits and drove in two runs in the game, singled home Brad Bava, who had walked and advanced to second on an error by Eckert, who was then pitching shortstop.

The Eagles increased their lead in the third inning when Bava singled home Kane, who had walked and stolen second. After Bava advanced to second on a wild pitch, Soos drove him home with a double and Edison led 3-0.

After the third inning, Wright was like a new pitcher. He struck out the side in order in the fourth and retired 13 of 15 batters through the seventh inning.

"There was a stretch of three innings where he (Wright) didn't even throw a fastball. We were just swinging at that pitch in the dirt," Muldowney said. "We didn't put on an offensive show."

When Edison did put runners on after the third inning, it was rarely able to move them along. Soos, Anthony Napolitano and other Eagles repeatedly failed to sacrifice runners until Sirico's bunt in the 12th.

Napolitano, Edison's cleanup hitter and starting pitcher, uncharacteristically struck out four times and stranded five runners in five at-bats.

Two days later, Napolitano was diagnosed with the chicken pox, meaning he may have been performing at less than full strength.

Napolitano managed to get by on the mound for the first few innings by bending but not breaking. Stevens (11-12) stranded six runners (four in scoring position), over the first five innings.

The Hawks strung together singles in the sixth by Mike Vidnansky, Jim Russoniello, Mike Gerdes and Brian Chmielewski to cut the lead to 3-1 and load the bases with one out.

In a closer's situation once reserved for the now-injured senior Jeff Plank, sophomore Jeff Feldman stepped to the mound in relief and met with considerable misfortune.

Feldman walked Kmiec to force in a run. On the next play, Bava fielded a hard grounder hit by Adam Garsh and misfired on an attempt to force Gerdes out at home, allowing the Hawks to tie the game.

J.P. Stevens' starting pitcher Kevin Wright struck out 14 Eagles Saturday, but received a no-decision in a 4-3 loss.

Edison shortstop Brad Bava prepares to slap a tag on J.P. Stevens' Jim Russoniello during Saturday's 4-3 victory in the semifinal of the Greater Middlesex Conference Tournament.

Edison teams roll through early rounds of states

The Edison High softball team was scheduled to play yesterday at Middletown South in the NJSIAA Central Jersey Group 4 Tournament championship game.

Edison (17-9) advanced to the final Tuesday with a 3-0 victory over Sayreville. Megan Ryan improved her record to 13-6 by overpowering Sayreville (15-5) in the sectional semifinal. She surrendered only four hits and no walks while striking out five.

"Ryan pitched a masterful game," said Head Coach Ken

Bjornsen. "She's really at the top of her game now."

Ryan also helped her own cause at the plate, driving in two runs with a bases-loaded hit in the fourth inning. Dana Witt drove in Bernadette Murphy for Edison's final run in the next inning.

Edison 5, Hunterdon Central

2— Edison upset top-seeded Hunterdon Central (25-2) in last Thursday's sectional quarterfinal as Witt slapped a fifth-inning single to drive in the go-ahead run.

Lisa Bosso and Kristen Coyne also punched in runs with singles and Ryan went the distance to pick up the victory in the circle.

East Brunswick 1, Edison 0— Ryan matched the three-hitter thrown by Bears ace pitcher Melanie Bozzo but lacked enough offensive and defensive support from her teammates needed to win last Wednesday's Greater Middlesex Conference Tournament quarterfinal against East Brunswick (19-3).

A pair of infield errors and her own wild pitch permitted East Brunswick to plate its only run in the third inning.

BASEBALL

Edison earned a trip to today's NJSIAA Central Jersey Group 4 final against Hunterdon Central by topping visiting West Windsor-Plainsboro last Thursday 2-0. Brad Bava controlled the game from the mound, racking up eight strikeouts. George Toth singled and Brian Chaloka walked to set the stage for Anthony Napolitano's two-run knock in the third. Edison improved to 19-6, while Windsor fell to 14-9.

TENNIS

Edison fell to 8-11 last Wednesday with a 3-2 loss to John-F. Kennedy-Iselin (14-3). Edison winners were Mike Tortajada-Chris Johnson (6-3, 6-2) and Vikash Modi-Deepak Mehtay (6-0, 6-2)

Stevens' love-fest

JPS tennis players rack up 6-0 sets

J.P. Stevens High's tennis team pushed its record to 15-1 last Thursday by blowing away winless Woodbridge 5-0.

Woodbridge, 0-16, offered little resistance to the Hawks, who lost a combined total of four games on the day. Stevens' winners were Sudhir Hedge (6-0, 6-3); Chetan Malpe (6-0, 6-0); Bernard Torralba (forfeit); Chris San Juan-Len Mesonas (6-0, 6-0); and Scott Poltrock-Brian Block (6-1, 6-0).

BASEBALL
J.P. Stevens dropped a 12-5 decision to visiting South Brunswick last Wednesday, just a day after upsetting the Vikings 21-11 in the Greater Middlesex Conference Tournament.

Harold Eckert drove in three runs as he and Steve Kmiec each smacked a pair of hits. Ed Altz took the loss to drop Stevens to 11-11, while South Brunswick climbed to 18-5.

Falcons fall to Piscataway

Mike Tornambe cranked out yet another homer but it wasn't enough to propel the St. Joseph's High baseball team to a victory Tuesday, as the Falcons fell 5-3 to Piscataway.

Dave Panzarasa took the loss on the mound for St. Joe's, which dropped to 9-12 while Piscataway improved to 14-10.

Lady Bulldogs run into a buzzsaw at Bound Brook

By NICK DIORIO
THE REVIEW

Metuchen High went into Tuesday's Central Jersey Group 1 semi-final softball game at Bound Brook knowing full well what to expect.

But, like many other Bound Brook opponents, the Bulldogs still couldn't do much about it as the defending state champion Crusaders ended Metuchen's ordeal in the fifth inning at 12-2 on the 10-run mercy rule.

"We wanted to be over .500 this year," said Diane Besser, head coach of the Lady Bulldogs (12-10). "We're going to take a little bit of everything from this game and try to learn from it."

"We knew Bound Brook was going to come in and do a lot of base-running against us," she added. "We also knew if we didn't have our heads up it was going to be a tough one for us."

Tough indeed. Trish Ulibarri-Rowley, the ace pitcher for second-seeded Bound Brook (23-4), limited Metuchen to four hits as the Crusaders advanced to the sectional final against Middlesex.

"We want to continue to push toward being Central Jersey champs and it looks as if the girls are taking the right approach," said Bound Brook Head Coach Steve Kania.

Leadoff hitter Lauren Fritzingler led the Crusaders with three hits and five stolen bases, which left Bound Brook Head Coach Kania pleased following the one-sided contest.

"She must have 40 stolen bases by now," he said. "And if she gets two bounces on a hit, it's over."

Metuchen pitcher Kristen Kimelski experienced trouble from the get-go against the experienced Crusaders as Fritzingler led off with a single and stole second while Ulibarri-Rowley drew a walk.

Fritzingler and Ulibarri-Rowley advanced to second and third on a wild pitch and Chrissy Allenovitch belted a single which brought in Fritzingler for a 1-0 lead. Soon after, Heather Yarashas' fly ball brought Disposing of grass clippings is costly, wasteful and time consuming.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY
M C I A RECYCLES

The Solution -
Recycling grass clippings at the source will help reduce the amount of waste going to landfills.

What YOU Can Do To Help

- Mix grass clippings into garden soil.
- Use your current lawn mower as is or add a mulching blade, or use a mulching/recycling lawn mower - save time, no raking and bagging, clippings are a natural fertilizer.
- Mow consistently and more often- avoid mowing more than the top third of growing grass for efficient mulching.
- Control watering and fertilizing times and rates to avoid unnecessary growth.
- Backyard composting* using grass clippings.
- Increase size of shrub and flower beds— less lawn = less clippings.
- Grow ground covers (such as Pachysandra, English Ivy or Periwinkle).

A prospect for army intelligence

By MARK CLIFFORD
THE REVIEW

This week's sports scholar is Stella Kim, a senior softball player at Edison High. Stella has also played for the school's soccer and winter track teams. She is also a seven-year veteran of Edison Angels softball.

Stella has a grade-point average of 3.67 and takes advanced placement courses in government, English, Spanish, and calculus. She's also vice-president of her senior class.

Stella is currently awaiting the final official notice of her admission to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

the military and given you some insight into what to expect?

Stella — My friend went to the Air Force Academy and he said West Point is more physically demanding, but all the women I talked to at West Point say it's not too tough to handle.

The Review — Which of your academic achievements are you most proud of?

Stella — Probably being named "Senior of the Month" in September. It's based partly on academics and partly on how involved you are in school activities.

The Review — Is there any place you've never been but would like to visit someday?

Stella — Probably either Europe or Australia. I'd like to travel around Europe just for the experience and I've always thought Australia would be great, too.

The Review — What was your favorite job you've ever had?

Stella — The job I have right now at the Edison Deli. I worked at the mall in a clothing store and had a really bad experience, but I like working at the deli because you get to know all the people by their names — it's kind of like a Mom-and-Pop store.

Sports Scholars is a weekly feature of the Review. To nominate a candidate, call Mark Clifford at 722-3000, Ext. 6343.

The Review — Why did you become interested in going to West Point?

Bishop Ahr is bumped from GMC tourney

The Bishop Ahr High softball team was given an unexpectedly early exit from the Greater Middlesex Conference Tournament last Wednesday when it was shut out 3-0 by host South Plainfield.

The No. 5 seed Lady Trojans (16-7) simply ran into a red hot pitcher in Joy Walter, the freshman sensation for the No. 4-seed Lady Tigers, who later went on to win the tournament and finish their season 21-6. Bishop Ahr managed only two hits on the day behind Emily Penksa's pitching.

BASEBALL
Bishop Ahr (12-11) suffered a 5-3 defeat to Notre Dame (20-7) in Tuesday's quarterfinal of the South Jersey Parochial A Tournament. Mike Ryan homered to give the Trojans a 1-0 lead in the first and Kevin Lawrence accomplished a suicide squeeze bunt to plate a run in the second. Lawrence took the loss on the mound.

Bishop Ahr 4, South Brunswick 2— Lawrence struck out seven and surrendered only three hits and no earned runs last Thursday while shutting down visiting South Brunswick (18-6). Scott Lewinski drove in two runs, and Lawrence and Mark Fiore each drove in one for the Trojans (12-10).

SCOREBOARD

EUSA SOCCER

EUSA Condors
The Condors won one match and tied three at the 15 Annual Westfield Memorial Day Tournament. Saturday, the Condors tied Charlottesville (Va.) Express 1-1 and Westfield United 1-1. Giancomo Berlingieri scored both of the team's goals. Sunday, the Condors beat Somerset Hills Athletic 5-1 and tied the Northport-Cow Harbor (NY) Vikings 0-0. Adam Biancosino and Berlingieri each scored twice and Jessica Ballweg added a goal. Assists were provided by Biancosino, Ballweg, and Ajax Tchakounte. Josh Barkan played four outstanding games in goal. Chris Cantalupo, Mujteba Haidri, Dan Hunter, and Mike Bratus all came up with excellent efforts as well.

EUSA Lady Bulldogs 2, Princeton Challenge 5
Sherryll Samicki scored twice, off assists from Kaci Redding, and Christina Martinez. Dana Honcharuk provided a game effort in goal.

EUSA Sharks 1, Somerset Hills Sonics 2
Nicholas Carpuso scored off a pinpoint pass from Yogesh Ravanan. David Levy recorded 12 saves in goal, with strong defensive support from Frank Feleski and Roger Schiffman, and Michael Robles.

EUSA Patriots 0, Metuchen Spirit 2
The Patriots suffered their first loss despite solid games by Danny Demkovic, Douglas Eichenblatt, and Michael Birch.

EUSA Condors 1, Central Jersey Cosmos 2
Chris Cantalupo scored off an assist from Jessica Ballweg. Adam Biancosino, Marcos Perdomo, Mujteba Haidri, Brian Farrell, Tim Collins, and Dan Hunter all played strong, aggressive defense.

EUSA Devils 0, Cauldwell-W. Cauldwell Cougars 3
Lauren Persico and Jennie Sullivan played well, but the Devils fell to 3-4-1.

EUSA Hurricanes 4, Readington 2
The Hurricanes moved within one victory of copying their flight's title. Nicole Hunter had a goal and two assists. Nikki Williams, Becky Wisniewski, and Christine Scarfuto also scored. Keeper Amy Kalista cemented the victory by thwarting three penalty kicks.

The Midtown All-Star Nine-Year-Olds beat Sayrewoods South 5-4. Midtown's 13-year-olds beat their counterparts from Sayrewoods 10-2 behind strong pitching by Derrick Liu and Joe Kraich. Both players also helped their own cause at the plate, as Liu amacked a double with the bases loaded and Kraich went 3 for 4. Shortstop Luke Volk and firstbaseman Chris Giddes made several slick fielding plays.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN -

(Never known to fail). Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3x). Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light all roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me, I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days, the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted.
