SLOGAN OF MARNE BY ANTI-BOULEVARDISTS

"THEY SHALL NOT PASS," DR. C. S. ROSEWELL SAYS

It is Claimed Outiders Came Into the City and Put a Stop to the Boulevard. "The News" повышила событий.

In the Auditorium Hotel last night, the group of Anti-Boulevardists met, and the toastmaster declared that "they shall not pass." He said that the people of Ocean Grove had been invaded by outsiders, who had come to the city with the avowed purpose of putting a stop to the Boulevard.

He said that the meeting was called to discuss the matter, and that he had no objection to any one speaking who had any facts to support his arguments. He thought that the Boulevard was a boon to the city, as it brought in thousands of dollars to the city each year, and he did not see how the people of Ocean Grove could do without it.

The meeting was conducted in an orderly manner, and many speakers were heard.

There was a debate on the question of the Boulevard, and the vote was taken at the close of the meeting, and the Boulevard was declared a success by a large majority.

Dr. Rosewell, who presided over the meeting, said that he was glad to see that the people of Ocean Grove were beginning to see the error of their ways, and that they were coming to see that the Boulevard was a great boon to the city.

The meeting adjourned at midnight, after a discussion of several hours.

Dr. Rosewell, who is a well-known anti-boulevardist, said that he was glad to see that the people of Ocean Grove were beginning to see the error of their ways, and that they were coming to see that the Boulevard was a great boon to the city.

The meeting adjourned at midnight, after a discussion of several hours.

A thirsty crow raised the level of the water in a long-necked jug by persistently drinking water from it. The crow, which had been standing on a fence near the jug, began drinking water from the jug and continued to do so for several minutes. The crow's beak was partially submerged in the water, and its body was partially submerged in the air. The crow's wings were extended, and its head was tilted back. The crow appeared to be drinking water from the jug, and it repeated this action several times. The crow then flew away, leaving the jug with its beak partially submerged in the water and its body partially submerged in the air.

The birds' beak was partially submerged in the water, and its body was partially submerged in the air. The birds' wings were extended, and its head was tilted back. The birds were drinking water from the jug, and it repeated this action several times.
