Councilman wants last call at clubs earlier

O.B. council tables measure, with one official fearing impact on the 'nice bars'

BY SUE M. MORGAN
Staff Writer

Bars, restaurants and other establishments with a liquor license will be able to keep serving drinks until 3 a.m. for now, thanks to the Old Bridge Township Council's tabling of an ordinance that would have made the last call an hour earlier.

The council voted 6-1 Tuesday night to table the measure until it determines whether the proposed earlier closing time would adversely affect establishments such as restaurants that sell liquor for on-site consumption.

In light of two reported violent incidents at After Dark, a Laurence Harbor go-go club, Ward 4 Councilman G. Kevin Calogera had proposed the ordinance mandating the 2 a.m. closing time, which is now in place in Sayreville and other neighboring municipalities.

Calogera said the proposed ordinance might discourage patrons from coming into bars located along Route 35 in Laurence Harbor after visiting drinking establishments in neighboring towns that have closed for the night.

"We're drawing people into town who have been drinking in other towns," Calogera said.

Under the ordinance, businesses with consumption or club licenses would be required to close at 2 a.m., except on Jan. 1.

However, a few of Calogera's colleagues raised the possibility that establishments with no history of violent incidents could be unfairly punished for the problems associated with other businesses.

Council Vice President Larry Redmond requested a list of businesses within the township that would be required to comply with the earlier closing ordinance if enacted.

Redmond, who has previously said he would like to see After Dark and two other go-go bars in the township permanently closed, stressed that restaurants such as TGI Friday's on Route 9 might suffer financially if required to close earlier.

"I wanted to target the go-go bars," Redmond said. "By changing the times, you might be affecting the nice bars."

"That is why I want a list," Redmond continued. "If it is across the board, I have concerns."

Calogera replied that he would ask the township clerk's office to research whether restaurants receive a different type of liquor license than do nightclubs or bars.

Ward 1 Councilman Joseph Hoff stated that, if enacted, the ordinance would especially hurt bar and tavern owners in Laurence Harbor, some of whom have operated their businesses for many years.

"You'd better think long and hard before you start penalizing the people who made this town," Hoff said.

However, Calogera stressed that he is not confident that security measures reportedly taken at After Dark since the two violent incidents will be sufficient to protect the public.

"I would hope that as the Ward 1 councilman you would have some concern about the residents of your ward," Calogera told Hoff.

State: Borough had the right to revoke club's liquor license

Krome owners plan to pursue all options to get license reinstated

BY JENNIFER DOME
Staff Writer

A decision by a state administrative law judge to uphold the revocation of a Sayreville nightclub's liquor license was affirmed last week by state Division of Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) Director Jerry Fischer.

In a Sept. 9 ruling, Fischer agreed to adopt the decision of Judge Anthony T. Bruno from the Office of Administrative Law, Mercerville, which itself upheld the Sayreville Borough Council's decision in December 2000 to revoke Krome's liquor license.

Krome, formerly Club Bené and operated by Kozy Lanes Inc., is allowed to hold only alcohol-free events at the nightclub on Route 35 south and Old Spyce Road.

"The neighborhood has been returned to the people," Mayor Kennedy O'Brien said in a statement issued Friday. "No longer will residents have to deal with violence, traffic gridlock and public drunkenness in front of their homes. We are pleased with the decision of the ABC director and thank him for helping to preserve this neighborhood."

The nightclub is operated by Tom and Joseph Beninato Jr., sons of the original owner of the 50-year-old Kozy Lanes Inc.

Tom Beninato said Monday that the club owners intend to send neighbors of the nightclub a letter to see how many people oppose the establishment operating with a liquor license. Once they know how many oppose the liquor license, the company will bring the issue back to the Borough Council, he said.

"We'll see if this is still a democracy," he said. The council has the ability to approve a resolution rescinding the revocation

Art project's broken tiles symbolize broken emotions

Sandburg students express feelings through art on anniversary of 9/11

BY SUE M. MORGAN
Staff Writer

OLD BRIDGE — When the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks rolled around last week, Carl Sandburg Middle School art teacher Vicky Grasso knew she wanted to do something to enable her eighth-graders express their reactions to the day.

But instead of just talking about their feelings, they decided to channel them by breaking ceramic tiles.

"We're done talking," said Grasso, who is in her eighth year of teaching in the district. "We wanted to express feelings," she continued. "What better place to do that than in an art class?"

Together, Grasso and her 16 students devised a timely art project — drawing and painting patriotic designs on the ceramic tiles and then smashing them into pieces. The resulting jagged, broken tile pieces could then be mixed together to form a mosaic of images relating to the terrorist attacks and the emotions generated by it, Grasso explained.

"It was my idea to paint the tiles," Grasso said. "It was (the students') idea to break them."

On Friday, several of Grasso's students stood around an 18-inch square, 36-inch high, bilevel four-legged metal table diligently arranging the painted tile pieces into the red, white and blue mosaic.

Two students, Jessica Pittius and Jordan Pyne, eagerly filed down the broken tiles' sharp edges. Meanwhile, Amanda Russo and Jessica Dobbin filled in the spaces between the tiles with caulk, using their fingers to maneuver between pieces.

"Wouldn't it be easier to use a caulking gun?" one of the student artists asked.

"Yes, but it's not as much fun as if you do it yourself," Grasso replied.

Actually, Grasso said, the original idea was to try to fit all of the tile pieces onto the table one by one. However, when they could not all fit on the table's two surfaces, the students came up with the idea to break the tiles.

That was accomplished by placing the tiles in a plastic bag and dropping them on the hard floor, Grasso explained.

Pittius, joined by classmates Michael Ginsiorsky and Kim Labella, did those honors last Thursday, Grasso said.

Knowing that they would be breaking up pieces of their classmates' creativity unnerved the trio and their teacher. No one could predict what the results would look like, Grasso said.

VERONICA YANKOWSKI
Eighth-graders Jessica Pittius (l) and Jessica Dobbin grout and caulk between the painted tiles on the Sept. 11-themed memorial mosaic created by their art class last week at the Carl Sandburg Middle School, Old Bridge.

However, when the plastic bags were reopened, both students and teachers were pleased.

"It's totally experimental," Grasso said of the work in progress.

The World Trade Center's lost but not forgotten twin towers are the focal point of the project. Arranged on the tabletop in blue acrylic paint, the tile pieces forming the towers appear fragmented.

Variations of red and blue letters spell out "NYFD," "USA," "hope" and "peace," and the numbers "9-11" surround the towers. Assorted renderings of an American flag decorate both levels of the table's surfaces.

"No one will ever forget what happened on September 11, 2001" is the prevailing sentiment spelled out on the table's lower shelf. Pictures of hand-drawn flowers, hearts and other designs fill out the rest of the space.

The students first drew the pictures or words of their choice using a permanent black marker, Grasso said. They were then instructed to fill in their pictures or words with the red, white and blue acrylic paints.

"They were given (those) three colors to express themselves however they wanted to," Grasso said.

In particular, Grasso displayed a larger piece of tile reading "United we stand, divided ..." in red, white and blue letters, as drawn by student Dorian Mambelli.

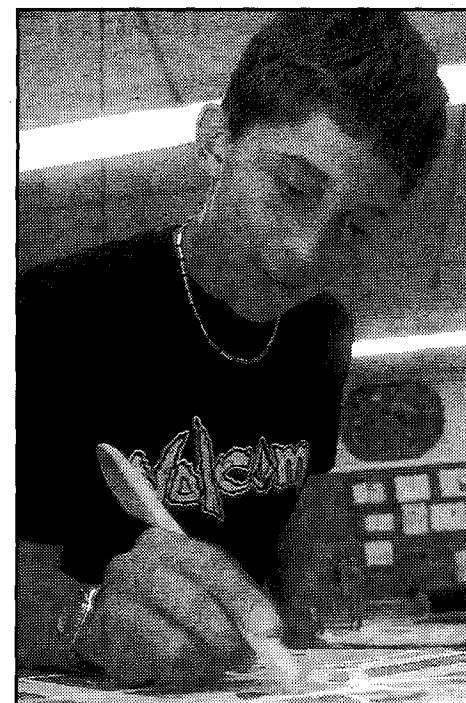

"This is one of the best tiles," Grasso said.

The project belongs to all the students, who have been taking turns arranging, filing, grouting and caulking on various days during the art class period, she said.

"This is one of the most cooperative groups I've ever worked with," Grasso said.

Once the mosaic is finished, the table will likely be displayed in the classroom or perhaps temporarily in the school's library, Grasso said.

"We wanted to do something to commemorate the day," Grasso said. "We made our own little memorial for the classroom."

Skate park construction likely to begin this winter

BY JENNIFER DOME
Staff Writer

SAYREVILLE — The Borough Council is expected to approve a bid Monday from an Old Bridge-based contractor for the construction of a skate park.

As the result of recent negotiations with the borough, Star of the Sea Concrete Corp. is expected to receive the contract to build the facility in Kennedy Park, off Washington Road.

The company was the lowest bidder when the council previously advertised for the 10,000-square-foot park project. However, its initial bid of $313,000 was still $13,000 more than the grant the borough will use for the project.

After negotiating with Star of the Sea, a cost of approximately $290,000 was agreed upon by both parties, according to Borough Engineer Jay Cornell of CME Associates.

With the anticipated awarding of the contract, the project will move forward in three phases. First, the contractor will submit three conceptual plans for the concrete skate park, which will be built near the small pond in Kennedy Park. The council and a subcommittee led by Councilman John Melillo and consisting of borough residents — some of whom are skaters — will examine the conceptual plans, Cornell said.

Once a plan has been selected, the contractor will put together the project specifications and construction can begin. Cornell said he expects construction to start late this year or early in 2003.

The plan is to construct a park that can be used by skaters of all levels and skills, Cornell said. Therefore, the park will be divided into sections based on abilities — from beginning skaters up to a more advanced user, he said.

Originally, the council approved the use of steel rods to construct the frame of the ramps. The ramps themselves would have been made of wood and covered with a material to make them smooth, Cornell said in February.

With this option, the park would have been built on asphalt at the old tennis courts near MacArthur Avenue, Cornell said.

However, since wooden ramps are known to wear out in two to three years, Cornell recommended that the borough use concrete to construct the park. Concrete requires less maintenance, he said, but it would mean digging a trench similar to that of a pool.

Officials have said that, not only will the skate park be a great benefit for children in the borough who are looking for an alternative to organized sports, it will also complement the recreation facilities already available in Sayreville.

O.B. man is victim of murder/suicide

Vincent LaBianca, 33, is among three dead in Manhattan office

BY SUE M. MORGAN
Staff Writer

OLD BRIDGE — A township man who a year earlier escaped from the burning north tower of the World Trade Center was killed Monday when he and a female co-worker were reportedly shot by their supervisor, who then turned the gun on himself in their midtown Manhattan office building, police say.

Vincent LaBianca, 33, a fraud investigation manager for Empire Blue Cross Blue Shield, was shot and killed by John Harrison, 53, of Mount Holly, Burlington County, who had summoned LaBianca and co-worker Isabel Munoz, 36, of Valley Stream, N.Y., into Harrison's office for a conference at approximately 8:20 a.m., according to New York City police.

Police reports indicate that Harrison was an assistant vice president for fraud investigation and was also a former FBI agent.

All three victims were pronounced dead at the scene, according to Police Commissioner Raymond W. Kelly, who held a press conference later Monday morning at Empire Blue Cross Blue Shield's offices at 1440 Broadway.

An investigation into the incident, which police believe stemmed from a dispute between the three employees, is ongoing.

Police found two guns, a 9 mm Smith and Wesson and a .45-caliber Glock, at the scene.

Munoz was a fraud investigator who reported to LaBianca, who in turn reported to Harrison, according to Julie Anderson, manager of public affairs at Empire Blue Cross Blue Shield.

Anderson declined to comment on what the dispute between the trio might have been about.

LaBianca had been employed with the health insurer since 1990, she said.

The company had formerly been housed on 10 floors in the north tower of the World Trade Center before that building was destroyed, Anderson said.

The company has since been temporarily relocated near Times Square and one other New York City location, Anderson said.

LaBianca had fled from the burning north tower's 24th floor and even escorted others down the building's stairwells in the incident, according to Glenn Kaye, a neighbor in the Sayrewood South section of Old Bridge where the victim and his wife Doreen have lived for five years.

"The ceiling tiles were falling around him," Kaye said, "but he helped his friends out of the tower."

After escaping the building, LaBianca had walked to the Brooklyn Bridge and crossed the span into his native borough, Kaye explained.

From there, he borrowed a friend's boat and piloted it to Highlands, arriving home unharmed that night.

LaBianca was an ideal neighbor who hosted Christmas parties for area children and helped his neighbors by lending tools and assisting with home improvement projects, Kaye said.

"He was the best neighbor anyone could have," said Kaye, adding that LaBianca had recently helped another resident by putting a fence around their house.

Kaye, as well as other neighbors in Sayrewood South, said they were disturbed by earlier media reports that LaBianca might have been involved romantically with Munoz, and that the killings stemmed from Harrison's jealousy over that.

"I don't believe a word of it," Kaye said.

LaBianca arrived home every night "like clockwork" and spent every weekend with his wife, Kaye said.

The couple was hoping to start a family soon, he added.

Dorothy Syms, LaBianca's mother-in-law, also disputed reports that her son-in-law had been involved with Munoz.

"What people are saying is not true," Syms said. "We're trying to clear his name."

Now, in ways reminiscent of how they worked together after Sept. 11, LaBianca's neighbors are banding together to support the grieving family.

LaBianca took pride in the appearance of his home and was constantly working to improve it, Kaye said, noting that the neighbors plan to care for the home.

In a statement issued by Empire Blue Cross Blue Shield, the company announced that it will cooperate with police in its ongoing investigation.

The company is also offering crisis counseling to its employees.

"Our first priority is the safety and well-being of our employees," said Michael Stocker, Empire Blue Cross Blue Shield CEO.

"Our deepest sympathies go out to the families and friends of the victims."

Man indicted in carjacking

SAYREVILLE — A 26-year-old Ocean County man was indicted Thursday on charges related to a January carjacking that authorities say originated in the parking lot of Club Paradise, located on Route 35.

A grand jury in state Superior Court, New Brunswick, indicted Alex Figueroa, of Lakewood, on charges of carjacking in the first degree, kidnapping in the second degree and aggravated criminal sexual contact in the third degree, Assistant Middlesex County Prosecutor Andrea Carter said. If convicted, Figueroa could face up to 30 years in prison, Carter said.

According to police reports, Figueroa carjacked a blue 2000 Pontiac Montana from the Club Paradise parking lot between 1:30 and 2 a.m. on Jan. 26. A 28-year-old woman was in the car at the time and the keys were in the ignition. The woman, whose friend owned the car but had gotten out to go inside the club, had been warming up the car with the motor running, but had turned the vehicle off and fallen asleep by the time the man entered the car, the assistant prosecutor said.

The female woke up while the suspect was driving and realized a stranger was driving the vehicle, Carter said.

According to Carter, Figueroa allegedly touched the victim's inner thigh and propositioned her to have sexual relations, to which she declined. The female was eventually dropped off near a gas station in Freehold Township, Monmouth County, police said. Lakewood police later apprehended Figueroa after they reportedly first observed a suspicious vehicle and subsequently learned it had been reported stolen from the club.

Grants fund more cops in schools

BY JENNIFER DOME
 Staff Writer

Two municipalities in Middlesex County have been selected to receive federal funding to place police officers in their schools.

According to a press release from the office of U.S. Sen. Robert Torricelli (D-N.J.), the state received more than $6 million through the COPS (Community Oriented Policing Services) in Schools program, funded by the U.S. Department of Justice.

Among the beneficiaries is Sayreville, which has been awarded $250,000 to fund two police officers for the school district. The other area municipality is South Brunswick, which will gain three new police officers for its school district, thanks to a $375,000 grant. The grants will reimburse the municipalities for the salaries and benefits of the officers over the next three years.

"Parents should not have to worry about their children's safety when they send them off to school every day. With officers patrolling school campuses, parents, children and teachers can concentrate on education pursuits, not random violence," Torricelli said in the press release.

In order to be eligible for the funding, the applying towns had to demonstrate a need for police officers in the schools.

Sayreville police Sgt. Richard Sloane noted that the schools don't have to be experiencing criminal problems in order to need police officers.

"The climate right now is to have an officer in the school," Sloane said.

In Sayreville, the two officers will cover the 76-acre campus that includes Sayreville War Memorial High School, the borough library and the Sayreville Middle School grounds, the police sergeant said.

Among other responsibilities, the two officers will be involved with teaching DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) classes, holding special programs about violence and weapons, diffusing potential problems, and coordinating any other police response that is needed, Sloane said. Currently, there are two police officers teaching DARE classes at the schools, but they will not necessarily be the officers appointed to work permanently in the schools, Sloane said.

The department will need to hire two additional police officers for the patrol division to replace two more experienced officers who will be stationed at the schools, Sloane said. He said he hopes to get the two officers into the schools this year.

"We are grateful to the U.S. Department of Justice for a grant which will help make the Sayreville schools even safer," Sayreville Mayor Kennedy O'Brien said. "By providing us with funds over a three-year period, we have the opportunity to develop and nurture a top-notch school safety program that will ensure that nothing hinders the learning process for our borough children."

South Brunswick Police Detective Jim Ryan said the grant for the three new police officers will enable the hiring of three new patrol officers, and the placement of three senior officers in the township's schools.

There are four police officers working in the schools now who are funded through the COPS in Schools program. One of the officers works at the high

Continued from previous page school, two work at each of the two middle schools, and one rotates between the seven elementary schools, Ryan said. The police department will meet with Superintendent of Schools Dr. Sam Stewart to determine where the three new officers will be placed.

"The program's been a big success so far," Ryan said.

He added that many students and parents have given the department positive feedback about the school resource officers. Ryan said he believes the school officers' success is why the township was chosen for an additional award. The school officers play an instrumental role in helping to curb problems with the more than 8,000 students in the school district, Ryan said.

"That's a big population to try to manage," he said.

Often, the officers help prevent potential conflicts by tipping off the patrol officers about problems that could arise after school hours, Ryan said. The officers also help to facilitate school programs on subjects such as drunken driving, and they deal with any criminal activity that takes place at the schools, the detective said.

O.B. victims remembered in beachfront ceremony

BY SUE M. MORGAN
Staff Writer

OLD BRIDGE — As bagpipes wailed, hundreds of mourners, mostly township residents, approached the shoreline carrying red and white carnations. Some held candles, shielding their flames from the brisk winds.

Upon reaching the water, five police officers, all of whom had witnessed the devastation at Ground Zero a year ago, gathered red and white carnations and placed them into a white wicker basket. The police then carefully tossed the flowers into the dark waters of the Raritan Bay, creating an eerie effect of red and white in the night as solemn spectators sang "America the Beautiful" and "God Bless America."

Local police, firemen, emergency medical personnel and rescue workers who assisted at Ground Zero a year earlier were recognized at a township-sponsored twilight memorial and interfaith service held Sept. 11 at the Old Bridge Waterfront Park to commemorate the first anniversary of the terrorist attacks.

However, there were the 12 civilian casualties from Old Bridge who received special recognition as their family members were seated in a reserved section near the podium used by township officials and religious leaders.

Faith Miller and Joanne Howard, who lost their husbands, Robert Miller and Joseph Howard, Sept. 11, thanked all those present and the community at large for their support and generosity over the past year.

"Who would have thought that on such a beautiful September morning, our loved ones would go to work and never come home?" Miller asked.

In a specially designed program, biographies written by family members commemorated Miller, Howard and the 10 other victims from the township — Krystine Bordenabe, Mark Broderick, Steven Paul Chucknick, Chuck Costello, Michael Davidson, Jose Marrero, William E. Micciulli, Bernard Pietronico, Elvin Romero and Mark Shulman.

Leading the ceremony, W. Thomas Badcock, the township's director of parks, recreation, and social services, introduced the speakers, officials and musical groups participating in the 90-minute event.

One speaker, Port Authority Police Officer and township resident Robert May told those lining the boardwalk and beachfront that he still remembers seeing an inter-office memo dated Sept. 11, 2001 lying on the sidewalk near the twin towers' remains.

"It was a memo dated Sept. 11 that never reached the other person," May said.

He also recalled 37 fellow Port Authority officers who perished in the burning towers.

"They were my family," May said.

Photographs showing the twisted remains of the twin towers, a soot-covered New York Police Department cruiser, the damaged storefront of a Brooks Brothers outlet, and pieces of paper strewn about city streets were displayed on the side wall of the new Hoff Pavilion located at the Laurence Harbor park's police substation.

Police Capt. Dennis Cronin, who had led a contingent of 17 township police officers to Lower Manhattan in the afternoon following the attacks, recalled how Detective Glenn Cavasin dutifully photographed the devastation despite mixed emotions about doing so.

By taking the photographs, Cavasin was concerned that he was violating sacred ground. He had expressed his trepidation to the police captain as the two stood among the ruins, Cronin said.

"[Cavasin] didn't know if he could take one more picture," Cronin recalled.

"I told him those pictures were a permanent record of a crime scene, the ultimate crime scene," Cronin pointed out.

Capt. John Dewhurst of the Cheesequake Volunteer Fire Company recounted the courtesy and gratitude shown by members of a Crown Heights, Brooklyn, fire company when he and members of his unit went to that borough to back them up.

Members of that company, Dewhurst recalled, were digging in the rubble at Ground Zero and needed a back-up crew to relieve them at the firehouse.

"Those that came back made us coffee, made us breakfast," Dewhurst said. "We came to help them, but they made us feel at home."

David Merwin, president of the Old Bridge Township Emergency Medical Service and the Laurence Harbor First Aid Squad, called for more volunteers to join not only rescue companies, but other community organizations as well.

"We haven't seen the volunteering we thought we were going to see, but hopefully that will come," Merwin, an event organizer, told the crowd.

"Let's get out and volunteer," Merwin went on. "That's the American spirit. That's what these people died for."

Bookending the memorial ceremony, the Rev. Joseph Szulwach, pastor of St. Laurence Parish, led the invocation, and Rabbi Jonathan Lubliner of the Congregation Beth Ohr led a closing prayer.

Preacher Yusuf Dandu of the Islamic Center of Old Bridge and the Rev. Raymond Burnett of the Community Covenant Church, Laurence Harbor, led interfaith prayers calling for peace, tolerance and understanding among religions and races.

Members of the Junior ROTC from Old Bridge High School presented the colors.

In addition to the Friendly Sons of the Shillelagh bagpipe band, which performed as the carnations were thrown, the Salk Middle School Select Choir and the Old Bridge High School Band performed patriotic music. H.C.F. Praise and Worship Team, a gospel music troupe from Union, rounded out the evening.

Mayor Barbara Cannon thanked Merwin, Lisa Cooney, the assistant director of parks, recreation, and social services, and mayoral assistant Diane Amabile for organizing the event, which was also attended by state Assemblyman Samuel Thompson (R-13), eight Township Council members and several municipal administrators.

of its liquor license, Beninato said.

The club's only other option, he said, is to appeal the decision to the Appellate Division of state Superior Court.

"We need to keep it in an appeal mode so the license stays active," Beninato said.

The borough found in December 2000 that the nightclub was in violation of several stipulations attached to its renewal three months earlier. The borough filed 21 charges against the nightclub, including noise violations and disruption of traffic flow on Old Spye Road. One charge against the nightclub, serving alcohol to a minor, was dropped because it could not be proved, Tom Beninato said.

In early October 2000, the charges were compounded when police reported a fight that resulted in the arrest of a 22-year-old New Brunswick man after he fired his .22-caliber automatic handgun into the air five or six times. The man was subdued and arrested by Sayreville police Sgt. Robert Lasko. Judge Bruno found that the evidence presented by the borough was factual, and that the club failed to present testimony directly contradicting Sayreville's testimony. The only exception was that Bruno found that Sayreville did not present sufficient evidence for its claim that Kozy Lanes changed its trade name three separate times without properly notifying the borough. Fischer affirmed Bruno's decision, upholding 17 of the 20 charges against Krome and agreeing that the liquor license should be revoked.

"In addition, violating the special conditions imposed on the license represent further threats to the health, safety and welfare of the general public. For these reasons, I cannot find that the local issuing authority abused its discretion in revoking [Krome's] license," Fischer wrote in his final conclusion of the case. Tom Beninato said he feels the charges against the nightclub are not severe enough to warrant the revocation of the liquor license.

"I'm frustrated, to say the least," the club owner said. Krome has been holding teen dances every Saturday and rock concerts once or twice a week since the liquor license was revoked almost two years ago, he said.

Closing time

Calogera opposed delaying the ordinance. Ward 2 Councilman William Baker and Ward 6 Councilwoman Lucille Panos did not attend the agenda meeting.

On June 22, two After Dark patrons were stabbed in the nightclub's parking lot after they were allegedly involved in an altercation with members of rival motorcycle gangs. That incident, which police said occurred at 2:30 a.m., resulted in four arrests.

Three weeks later, on July 13, Buffalo Bills wide receiver Charlie Rogers and a female companion were arrested at After Dark following an alleged physical and verbal confrontation with township police. The pair had reportedly refused to leave the nightclub after the 3 a.m. closing time, prompting club security to call police.

That incident came just five days after a July 8 township council meeting where officials had voted 5-2 to renew After Dark's liquor license on the condition that its security detail be increased. Panos and Councilman Edward Testino had voted against the renewal.

Redmond, who was not present at the July 8 meeting, had publicly expressed his opposition to renewing that license and previously voted against renewing the license for a second go-go bar, Club 516.

the world would be a better place.

Our View

Trading of ethics charges shows silliness of politics

There is no municipal election in Old Bridge this year. However, one would hardly be able to tell that from recent events down at Town Hall.

The partisan politics and the back-and-forth bickering reached a new low recently when a police captain filed an ethics charge against a former councilman regarding a vote he cast three years ago, in September 1999.

The charge is that Roman Sohor, a Republican who is now Planning Board chairman, voted with the rest of the council to award a contract for drainage improvements at residences that included the home of Sohor's mother-in-law.

Granted, Sohor's action at that time may not have been the smartest move — abstaining might have been a better idea in order to steer clear of what some would argue was a potential conflict of interest — but this was a long time ago now. It should have been dealt with then.

It is being brought up now because Sohor himself had filed an ethics charge just days earlier against Democratic Councilman Larry Redmond. Sohor charges that Redmond acted in a conflict of interest when in August he voted to introduce a budget that creates new police positions, while Redmond's son is known to be a candidate to fill one of those positions.

The Republicans were correct in crying foul after Redmond's vote. Even the township attorney agreed there could be a conflict of interest on Redmond's part.

However, while saying the police positions are needed in Old Bridge, Redmond apparently realized he could be in hot water, and he was ultimately able to convince his peers to bail him out by rescinding the budget and introducing it all over again.

Regardless, Sohor says his charge against Redmond still stands, and he wants the matter to be adjudicated by an ethics board.

While at least his charge was filed in a timely manner, pursuing it at this point seems like a waste of time and energy. One could argue that Redmond has already faced the consequences in the form of negative, perhaps embarrassing coverage of the story.

In fact, since the budget Redmond helped introduce has been rescinded, perhaps it is the council majority who now has to answer for spending money advertising budgets twice rather than once.

As for Cerra's retaliatory complaint against Sohor, what can we say?

The silly season has no beginning and no end in Old Bridge.

Party owes her mother an apology

When my mother moved to the town of Old Bridge, little did she know that she would be bitten by our self-proclaimed resident "junkyard dog" Capt. William Cerra.

How low will Capt. Cerra and the Democratic Party go to justify the unethical behavior of Councilman Larry Redmond?

My late mother was a decent, honest, hardworking individual. To say that she personally profited from a Lakeridge West draining project is a disgrace. The Democratic Party of Old Bridge owes the entire family of the late Catherine Moran an apology.

Schools also have an obligation to teach ethics to students

I read with interest the story on Old Bridge Superintendent of Schools Dr. Nicole Okun's orientation address to faculty and staff, as reported by Sue M. Morgan in the Sept. 6 issue of the Suburban.

I found nothing to disagree with in Dr. Okun's exhortation to her audience to "think outside the box" for creative solutions to problems, or in telling her people to encourage a student's thirst for knowledge and to work to provide the latest technology to teach the rapidly changing skills required in today's world. What I did not read was any mention of teaching students to be good citizens and instilling a measure of ethics in tomorrow's leaders.

Whose ethics? Schools are timid about teaching any kind of ethics or morality, placing that responsibility with the parents. As a diverse multi-ethnic society, we can disagree on definitions of ethics, on what society demands of us in terms of behavior to our fellow citizens. But we have taken some ethics and made them into laws to be followed. And every place that our diverse texts and traditions meet in a moral or ethical imperative, civic behavior can be taught to support parental guidance or to instill some ethics where none have been taught.

We have only to examine our understanding of laws against theft to see that theft not only refers to stealing Hondas from the park-and-ride. It also means that those bright, well-educated Enron executives cannot cheat shareholders and bankrupt employees' 401K plans.

If I can borrow an expression from Superintendent Okun: while we "work together to raise the bar for each student in Old Bridge" with regard to learning, we need to raise it as well to instill stronger ethics in the next generation.

Although I have no children myself, I cannot think of anything more important than a quality education for all children in knowledge and skills and in ethics and good citizenship.

Need for speed humps shared by many streets in Sayreville

In response to the letter to the editor from Michael Brodziak ("Speed Humps Offer Community More Benefits Than Detriments," Suburban, Sept. 12), I live on North Edward Street, and our street also experiences the same conditions as he described.

If the township is being petitioned to put in speed humps/bumps, it will need them all throughout the township. We have younger families moving in now on our block as the older ones leave, and they have small children who are learning to walk. When learning, the children tend to run more than walk, and God forbid if someone were to come speeding down our road and hit one of them.

My neighbors are excellent, and are always yelling for these speeders to slow down. But that doesn't remove the problem — it's constant. I've seen police parked on our street numerous times, and I'm sure they've ticketed speeders, but you can't always have a police officer sitting on someone's street using radar when he or she has other, more pressing issues to attend to.

I just want you to know, Mr. Brodziak, that you're not alone. We on North Edward Street have the same problems as you do.

New gallery showcases works by area artists

Nance S. Ciasca never buys the trinkets that vacationers usually take home as souvenirs. Instead, the Atlantic Highlands resident takes home artwork by local artists, a custom that inspired her to open Atlantic Artisans, a new gallery that opened recently at 84 First Ave. in Atlantic Highlands.

"We vacation at Martha's Vineyard every year, and it's filled with galleries exhibiting the work of local artists," she explained. "When my husband and I go souvenir shopping, we don't buy T-shirts; we buy art by a local artist on the street.

"That was my goal in planning the gallery," said Ciasca, whose gallery focuses exclusively on the work of local artists and on making fine art available and financially accessible to the public.

Prices for artworks range from $5 for a pen-and-ink drawing to $3,000 for an acrylic painting. Media include watercolor, oil and acrylic paintings, pastel, photography, sculpture, woodwork, mosaic, stained glass, pottery, jewelry and textiles.

"It's fine art, but I'm trying very hard to get the point across that affordable art is the way to go," she said. "Sea of Artisans," the gallery's inaugural exhibit, includes works by Adrienne Shippee, Marge Levine and Germaine Murray, all of Atlantic Highlands; Megan Gilhool, North Long Branch; Linne Grant and Joseph Prusky, Middletown; Gail Griffiths, Ocean; Lyndsley Frazier-Dellomo, Long Branch; Jennie Meares, Matawan; and Vicky Culver, Howell. Ciasca traded a career as a middle school teacher in Jersey City to fulfill her dream of running her own business.

While she tossed around different ideas, she was committed to locating the business in Atlantic Highlands, where her family has operated a business for 35 years.

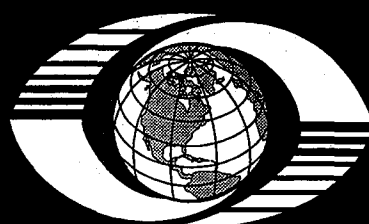

"I have roots in the business community," she noted. "Plus, it's an up-and-coming town, and I wanted to be a part of that." A frequent gallery visitor, Ciasca came up with the idea of opening a gallery in Atlantic Highlands, a Bayshore town experiencing a resurgence. Ciasca went to art shows and galleries to sound artists out about their needs.

"I found painters and photographers, serious artists, who said there was a need for gallery space," she recounted. With input from friends and family, Ciasca converted a space formerly occupied by a coffee shop into an intimate gallery space. Doing some of the work herself, she created a neutral background that highlights the artworks on exhibit and invites browsing. At the gallery opening in August, some 500 people showed up on a balmy summer evening, overflowing onto the sidewalk outside Atlantic Artisans, where a buffet was set up. According to Ciasca, response from the art community has been overwhelming as well.

"Since I've opened, artists are walking in and asking how they can be a part of it," she said. But Ciasca is limiting gallery space to locals and deferring requests from out-of-area artists. Shows will change every three months at Atlantic Artisans, which is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday, noon to 3 p.m. Sunday and by appointment.

Coalition unveils 'Give blood' message at EBHS

State and local groups launch program to promote blood drives

BY VINCENT TODARO
Staff Writer

EAST BRUNSWICK — In an attempt to rally students and adults to give much-needed blood donations, a state coalition kicked off its new Schools Care program at East Brunswick High School on Friday.

Initiated by the New Jersey School Boards Association to commemorate the victims of Sept. 11 by inspiring people to give blood, the program was launched with a press conference that included officials from numerous governmental and nonprofit agencies. It also included a blood drive in which school staff members donated.

"Schools Care, the program we are launching today, facilitates blood donation efforts. It also provides New Jersey's public schools with a way not only to commemorate the victims of 9/11, but also to contribute to the community spirit that grew out of that tragedy," said Edwina Lee, executive director of the New Jersey School Boards Association.

The program will help students organize in-school blood drives or support community blood donation efforts throughout the fall and holiday seasons, she said.

"After the 9/11 attacks, thousands of New Jerseyans rolled up their sleeves, resulting in a massive amount of blood donations," Lee said. "But donated blood has a shelf life of only 40 days. By the time the holidays rolled around, New Jersey's blood supplies were again at critically low levels. They remain at low levels today."

A new state law makes it easier for students to donate. McGreevey signed legislation earlier this month that allows students who are 17 years old to donate without parental consent. Previously, 17-year-olds needed consent.

The primary sponsor of the bill to lower the age, state Assemblyman Samuel D. Thompson (R-13), took part in Friday's event in East Brunswick.

East Brunswick High School has two annual blood drives, one in October and another in May, according to Barbara Godwin, director of recruitment for the Community Blood Council of New Jersey. The fall drive usually collects about 100 pints of blood, while the spring event gets slightly more.

High School Principal Robert Murphy said the drives usually get between 200 and 300 students donating.

"I'm proud of the contribution that students and staff make to the blood drives," said East Brunswick Board of Education member Patrick Sirr.

"Our students have always shown off the best parts of our community," Mayor William Neary said.

Jennifer McCammon, an English teacher at the high school and its adviser to the National Honor Society, said the next student blood drive will be held on Halloween. She said the district had about 125 students donate in last fall's drive, and is hoping to get at least 200 this year. The drive will also be also open to faculty.

Vivian Chen, a senior at the high school and a member of the National Honor Society, said the group tries to make the blood drives fun and provides food and drinks to students who donate. Last year, the honor society used a Dracula theme to add a light touch to the event.

Tiffanie Wong, another senior and member of the honor society, said the students are scheduled for different times, and the process takes each student about an hour.

Godwin said the Community Blood Council of New Jersey, based in Trenton,

FARRAH MAFFAI

She said the purpose of the Schools Care program is to increase the number of drives and the number of pints collected.

Donations made by high school students in general represent 8 percent of the state's blood supply, a larger proportion than contributions from college students and the military.

Once the blood is donated, it goes to the laboratory at the Community Blood Council Center, where it is tested before being shipped to New Jersey hospitals.

Despite being a very dense state in terms of population, New Jersey actually needs to import blood from other states, Godwin said. The reason for that, she said, is that 20 to 30 years ago New Jersey did not have as many facilities for specialized medical care as it does today.

"Patients had to go to hospitals out of the state," Godwin said. "Now, more procedures are done in New Jersey, so more blood is needed."

"New Jersey, home to some of the world's leading medical centers, transfuses more than half a million units (pints) of blood annually for organ transplants, heart surgeries, cancer treatment, trauma care and other lifesaving efforts," Gov. James McGreevey said in a prepared statement that was read at Friday's event. "New Jersey chronically experiences a daily deficit of blood, requiring the importing of one-third of its total blood supply."

"The state of New Jersey continually faces blood shortages," said Rita Polchin, spokeswoman for New Jersey Blood Services, New Brunswick. "These shortages result in our state importing approximately 70,000 units of blood in order to care for the patients in our hospitals who require these lifesaving transfusions."

Godwin said that, during times of war such as World War II and Vietnam, Americans felt they had good reason to give, as they could see wounded soldiers who needed blood. Nowadays, there needs to be another impetus.

"Now, we're selling the idea that it's a good thing to do, an altruistic thing to do," she said.

Many people are so busy today that they do not have time to donate, she said.

"We hope to have a campaign to sell the idea to the public," she said.

Donna Lawder, an account manager with the Community Blood Council, said all the blood collected through Schools Care goes to patients in New Jersey.

Educators and students seeking information on blood drives can visit the School Boards Association's Web site at www.njsba.org, which features a Schools Care "how-to" kit for organizing drives in schools or supporting those already planned in the community.

Used Cars to be Sold for $99!

Record-breaking new sales cause abundance of pre-owned automobiles.

EAST BRUNSWICK, NJ- William R. McDonagh, President of McDonagh Chrysler Jeep located on Route 18, has just announced plans to have a $99 used car and truck sale this Saturday, September 21st, 2002 between 9am and 2pm at his dealership.

According to McDonagh, the dealership, which he acquired a year ago, has been experiencing a tremendous amount of growth. Sales have been so good, that the dealership is continuously breaking sales records. With new vehicle sales at an all time high at the dealership in East Brunswick, the quantity of used car trade-in's in their inventory has been increasing at an alarming rate. These additional vehicles must be sold at any cost.

In addition to dealer trades, extra vehicles have been purchased at incredible savings from banks, repossession companies, auctions, credit unions, lease companies, rental companies and other dealers. This sale will make vehicles available that would not normally be sold to the general public.

According to Mark Inshassi, the dealership's General Manager, "This will be a sale like none other before." Customers interested in participating can arrive as early as 8am to inspect the entire inventory. All vehicles will be displayed on the southern side of the dealership. Every vehicle will be cleaned and fully prepared for delivery. Then, at 9am, Inshassi will mark the special sale price on each and every vehicle.

Vehicles in every price range will be offered during this sale, including some at $99. While looking through an inventory list, McDonagh said "The discounts offered during this sale are going to be amazing. For example, we have an incredible 1990 BMW 735 iL that is a beautiful vehicle that we would normally sell for over $8900 that will be offered during the sale, this Saturday, for under $4,000. This will truly be a once-in-a-lifetime buying opportunity."

When questioned about financing availability for customers, McDonagh answered, "I've given the dealerships financing manager the resources to get any customers credit approved on the spot, regardless of their past credit history. This means that someone who may have a less-than-perfect credit history can participate in this sale, have his or her credit approved and drive their vehicle home by lunchtime on Saturday. Even if a customer's credit report shows a bankruptcy, divorce, tax lien, slow payment history, repossession, or if a customer is a first-time buyer, we can get them approved."

It was also stated that some of the area's largest automotive wholesalers will be on hand competing for your trade-in. Customers can get the maximum value for their present car now and during this sale, pick up a later model vehicle for far below current book value. Customers wishing to trade-in a vehicle should bring their title or payment book for immediate delivery. McDonagh will even pay off your trade-in, no matter how much you still owe on it.

But, as said by McDonagh, "After this sale ends at 2pm Saturday, we will resume our regular pricing, as well as send most of these surplus vehicles directly to auctions for liquidation. So, if anyone has been thinking about purchasing a good, clean and dependable pre-owned car, truck, van or sport-utility vehicle, this sale is definitely the time and event they have been waiting for."

So if you are currently in the market for a pre-owned vehicle, great deals are going to be right here, close to home, at McDonagh Chrysler Jeep in East Brunswick. This special, one day only, $99 Used Car Sale, will be held this Saturday, September 21st. Inspection starts promptly at 8am, and sale prices, starting at $99, will be posted at 9am. All vehicles will be sold on a first come, first served basis and Mr. McDonagh has requested that other dealers or dealer representatives intending to purchase vehicles for resale at their dealerships please not attend this sale.

McDonagh Chrysler Jeep is located on Route 18 in East Brunswick; 3 miles south of the New Jersey Turnpike Exit 9, 10 minutes north of the intersection of Routes 9 & 18, and only 10 minutes from the intersection of Routes 1 & 18.

Anyone who has questions or needs directions can call the dealership toll free at 1-800-639-5000.

Example: 1988 Nissan Sentra - 4cyl, 5 speed, ps, pb, no ac- VIN#JC779768, 200,181 miles; buy for $99. 1990 BMW 735 iL - 6cyl, auto, ps, pb, ac- VIN#LDC26617, 138,891 miles - Was $9000. Buy For $3,998. All credit based on approval; vehicle chosen, down payment, monthly payment & term may vary; bankruptcies must be discharged. Negative equity of trade carried over to new vehicle price. Prices include all costs to be paid except license, tax and registration. ©2002 FJL Advertising/McDonagh Automotive Inc.

Foerter, 65, recalled fondly by friends, fair associates

BY VINCENT TODARO
Staff Writer

EAST BRUNSWICK — Barbara A. Foerter, the longtime president of the Middlesex County Fair Association, passed away Sunday at the age of 65.

Foerter died at St. Peter's University Hospital in New Brunswick after a long illness.

A lifelong East Brunswick resident who resided until her death on a Riva Avenue farm, Foerter was for years the manager of the annual Middlesex County Fair, held each August on her nonprofit association's fairgrounds on Cranbury Road.

She also taught in the East Brunswick school district as an English teacher for 38 years, during which time she served as a cheerleading coach and an instructor for the student Shakespeare festival that she helped found.

"She was a wonderful friend," said Mary Ann Pawlek, the secretary and treasurer of the Fair Association. "She was really part of the family. She came here for holidays and birthdays after her parents passed away."

"She was just family; she was one of us," she said.

Walter Danley, a fair association trustee, said Foerter was a strong-willed person who always fought for what she believed in.

"She had a strong sense of right and wrong," he said, noting that he had known her for 27 years. "And if she felt something was right, she'd stand behind it."

"We were also friends; had dinners together," he said. "I knew her from when she was a teacher because my kids had her."

"She was dedicated to the fair and she was a teacher, so rules were rules," he said.

East Brunswick police Capt. Ralph Lamo said he also worked with Foerter for many years.

"I ran the police at the fair, while she was president of the fair association," he said. "She was very business-like, and she ran the fair committee. She was a nice person, and she always treated me well."

Four years after retiring as a teacher in 1999, she was selected for a spot on the school district's Wall of Honor.

In addition to her service with the fair association, Foerter was a member of the East Brunswick Grange and a volunteer for the New Jersey Science Olympiad. She was also a former member of the Middlesex County Board of Agriculture.

Foerter was predeceased by her parents, and is survived by her aunt, Rose Holsten of Monroe, several cousins and her pet Yorkshire terrier, Maggie, according to her obituary, provided by the Selover Funeral Home, North Brunswick.

Funeral services were scheduled for this morning, with a Mass offered at Our Lady of Peace Church in North Brunswick.

Chiropractor's invention makes beauty parlor visits easier

BY JO-ANN LAMON RECCOPPA
Correspondent

Sometimes a bit of detective work can lead to a new invention. Such was the case for Dr. Michael Najjar of Ideal Chiropractic, 2224 Route 9 south in Howell, when patients came to him complaining of neck pain, dizziness, light-headedness, and nausea following beauty salon appointments.

A successful chiropractor for 14 years with a keen interest in the health and welfare of his patients, Dr. Najjar established a definite pattern with the neck pain sufferers that included factors such as weekly hair appointments and the plus-60-year-old age group for which these weekly appointments are routine. After consulting with several salon owners, he learned the women spent periods of time reclined, with their necks hyper-extended over beauty parlor sinks. Though the salon operators rolled towels to provide a cushion between the neck and sink to relieve the problem, this solution offered little neck support and their patrons still remained at risk.

The solution was obvious to Dr. Najjar — reducing the hyper-extension of the neck would alleviate the pain and related symptoms. Thus the invention was conceived.

The Align-A-Neck cervical support device, designed by Dr. Najjar, is a neck support that anatomically contours to the cervical spine and reduces muscle tension while it maintains and supports the normal cervical lordotic curve. The device supports the entire neck, not just a portion of the neck, as the rolled towels offered by the hairdresser failed to do.

Satisfied his device would help his patients, Dr. Najjar decided further investigation was warranted to reveal additional conditions his invention could prevent. With more research, he uncovered symptoms for a condition known as "Salon Sink Radiculopathy," a nerve disorder that triggers acute, shooting arm pains which occur by hyper-extension and neck rotation during the shampooing process, causing limited range of motion of the cervical spine, a weakness in arm and neck muscles, and numbness in the arm (as well as the hand and fingers).

Continued detective work disclosed an even more startling need for the newly developed Align-A-Neck device. Dr. Najjar learned of research developed by Dr. Michael I. Weintraub, a clinical professor of neurology at New York Medical College, who determined and named a condition known as "Beauty Parlor Stroke Syndrome" — a stroke that occurs shortly after a salon visit when a patron's neck hyper-extension reduces the blood supply to the brain.

"Alleviating the cause for these serious conditions is only a matter of avoiding hyper-extending the neck and allowing the blood to flow properly to the brain," explains Dr. Najjar. "Obviously proper support and cushioning is necessary to avoid these problems, and my device cuts the risks associated with a simple visit to the hair salon."

With the welfare of his patients in mind, as well as the well-being of others at risk for Beauty Parlor Stroke Syndrome and Salon Sink Radiculopathy, Dr. Najjar has designed three products: the Align-A-Neck Sink Attachment, constructed of a rubberized waterproof material that is attached to the hair salon sink, the Align-A-Neck Chair Attachment with a metal brace that is designed to attach without hardware and is made of rubber with a plastic coating, is waterproof, and is both stain and dye resistant, and the Align-A-Neck Chair Back, which rests over the sink and has same dye/stain resistant properties.

"I'm delighted my device is generating so much interest and am gratified the Align-A-Neck can assist so many more people than it was originally conceived to help," says Dr. Najjar.

The target market for the Align-A-Neck device will be hair salons, where salon owners could conceivably be liable for the health of patrons at risk for these serious conditions.

Early detection for cervical cancer can save lives

Each year many women ignore the need for various health screenings and consequently could put their health at risk. Among the screenings that are extremely important for a woman to have is a Pap test.

A Pap test, or Pap smear, is a simple test used to detect precancerous or cancerous cells in the cervix. This test can save lives since it has the ability to detect cancers early, in time for a cure. Riverview Medical Center, Red Bank, offers women these tips to help get effective results and ease anxiety when going for a Pap test.

"A Pap test is simple and painless and is over in a few seconds," explains Marilyn Loh Collado, vice chairwoman of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Riverview Medical Center. "It is usually performed as a part of a woman's annual gynecology exam."

Dr. Loh Collado recommends that a woman start being tested at age 18 or earlier if she is sexually active. "Women should be tested annually unless directed otherwise by their physician," she said.

To perform the test, the physician will swab a small sample of cells from the cervix. The sample is then sent to a lab for testing. If the test comes back questionable, other tests will be performed, such as a repeat Pap test, HPV testing, and/or a colposcopy.

Depending on the results, the physician will discuss appropriate follow-ups and treatment with the patient.

Dr. Loh Collado stresses that just because the first test comes back abnormal, there is no immediate reason to worry. Many factors can affect the test results. "The physician performing the test should be aware of prior abnormal Pap smears and whether the patient is pregnant or taking birth control pills or other medications," Dr. Loh Collado explains. "To ensure the most accurate results, women should avoid using tampons, having intercourse or douching for 24 hours prior to the test."

The American Cancer Society estimates that 13,000 new cases of cervical cancer will be diagnosed this year, and 4,100 women will die of the disease. The earlier cervical cancer is detected, the better the chances of recovery. Some of the symptoms of cervical cancer include abnormal vaginal discharge, spotting, bleeding or no symptoms at all, but they may also be signs of other conditions. Women should consult with their doctor if these symptoms occur.

Riverview Medical Center offers health screenings for women as well as support groups for women facing cancer and the necessary treatments that lie ahead. For more information about support groups and screenings, call Meridian Health Line at (800) 560-9990.

Medical Center providing free prostate cancer screening

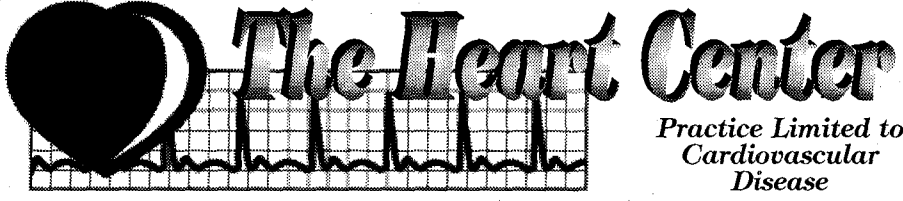

Prostate cancer is the most common malignant cancer among men in the United States (excluding skin cancer) and is now the second leading cause of cancer death in men, exceeded only by lung cancer. According to the American Cancer Society, about 184,500 American men will be diagnosed with prostate cancer this year.

In observance of Prostate Health Month in September, Jersey Shore Medical Center, Neptune, will hold a free prostate cancer screening program on Sept. 19 from 5-8 p.m. in the Oncology Services Department located in the Ambulatory Care Center.

Screenings are conducted by certified urologists, and include a physical exam and PSA blood test.

Men who are between 50 and 75 years old, and those at risk with a family history of prostate cancer or of African American or Hispanic heritage are eligible for the screening. Please note those who have participated in past prostate screenings at Jersey Shore Medical Center, or have had a prostate exam in the past 12 months, are not eligible.

Preregistration is required. To register, call the Meridian Health Line at (800) 560-9990.

September is observed as Cholesterol Education Month

In a nation of more than 287 million people, the American Heart Association (AHA) estimates 102.3 million to have total blood cholesterol levels of at least 200 milligrams per deciliter, including 41.3 million who have levels at or above 240. Amazingly, there still exists a certain passivity regarding the topic, either from those who are unaware of the potential risks associated with high blood cholesterol or from those who are simply unconcerned. For this reason, the National Cholesterol Education Program (NCEP) has designated September as Cholesterol Education Month, providing Americans with a basic understanding of the fatty substance.

Contrary to popular misconception, cholesterol does serve a beneficial role in human life, helping the human body to build new cells, insulate nerves, produce hormones and aid in digestion. Normally, though, the liver produces enough cholesterol on its own to meet all bodily needs. What Americans should be concerned with is the amount of cholesterol that enters their bodies via dietary sources, such as animal-based foods like milk, eggs and meat. Too much cholesterol in a person's bloodstream can lead to cardiovascular disease, the No. 1 cause of death in America.

Unfortunately, high blood cholesterol is generally asymptomatic, placing the burden of detection mostly on the patient.

"The national standard recommends that every adult over the age of 20 should have a fasting lipid profile, providing them with a knowledge of their cholesterol levels," said Robert Faillace, M.D., attending cardiologist at Deborah Heart and Lung Center, Browns Mills. "If the profile meets the guidelines for 'normal,' he or she should then be tested every three to five years. If it does not meet the guidelines for 'normal,' those individuals should schedule to meet with their physician and discuss some type of dietary or perhaps medical intervention to lower their cholesterol level and thereby decrease their risk for heart disease and stroke."

Dr. Faillace says that high blood cholesterol is mostly a phenomenon of one's lifestyle, though there do exist some factors that are unavoidable, such as heredity and increasing age.

"Certainly there is a small percentage of people whose high cholesterol is related to genetics," said Dr. Faillace.

"But for the most part, it is usually a combination of excess calories, excess fat, excess weight, and little or no exercise."

Making the onset of high cholesterol worse is that, if left untreated, it could lead to diabetes, hypertension and the development of plaque, which leads to heart disease and stroke.

According to the AMA, there exist two main ways to lower one's cholesterol, either through therapeutic lifestyle changes (TLC), which include a cholesterol-lowering diet, physical activity and weight management, or through drug treatment. The TLC diet is a low-saturated-fat, low-cholesterol eating plan that recommends less than seven percent of daily caloric intake come from saturated fat and that a person consume less than 200 mg of dietary cholesterol per day. If cholesterol-lowering drugs are needed, they are used together with the TLC treatment to help reduce low-density lipoprotein (LDL) or "bad" cholesterol, the main source of cholesterol buildup and blockage in the arteries. High-density lipoprotein (HDL), or "good" cholesterol, prevents build up in the arteries and protects against heart disease.

There are, however, some simple steps people can take in their everyday lives to prevent the onset of high blood cholesterol:

- Choose foods that are low in saturated fat and cholesterol. Saturated fats, those fats that are hard at room temperature, such as red meat, butter, palm oil and coconut oil, trans fatty acids, such as margarine, and dietary cholesterol raise blood cholesterol. Monounsaturated fats, such as olive oil, and polyunsaturated fats, such as nuts and seeds, do not.

- Participate in physical activity of moderate intensity for at least 30 minutes a day. Regular physical activity can help lower LDL cholesterol and raise HDL cholesterol levels.

- Don't smoke.

Prevention remains the best medicine to elude potential problems associated with high blood cholesterol.

If you have reason to believe that you have, or are at risk for developing, high blood cholesterol, contact your primary care physician. ## Report finds less inflammation, better heart health in physically fit females

Physical fitness may have an anti-inflammatory effect that protects women against heart attacks, according to a report in Circulation: Journal of the American Heart Association. Cardiovascular disease is the No. 1 cause of death of American females, according to the American Heart Association, claiming the lives of close to 503,000 women annually.

In a recent study, researchers compared the level of physical fitness in 135 women from three ethnic groups to their levels of C-reactive protein (CRP). CRP level indicates inflammation.

Elevated CRP is associated with a two- to five-fold increase in the risk of heart attack. The researchers found lower levels of CRP among the most fit Caucasian and Native-American women compared with their less-fit peers. African-American women, however, failed to show the same strong correlation.

People with elevated CRP levels should begin regular exercise with guidance from their physician, said Michael J. LaMonte, Ph.D., an author of the report and director of exercise testing and research at The Fitness Institute, division of cardiology, LDS Hospital in Salt Lake City, Utah.

"Our data really support the current public health recommendation that a physically active and fit lifestyle is conducive to overall good health, and in particular to cardiovascular health," he said. "We are not talking about a marathon runner's level of fitness. We are talking about being active on a regular basis, and a good benchmark is to be able to walk a mile and a half in about 30 or 35 minutes."

LaMonte and his colleagues hypothesized that physical fitness might protect against high levels of CRP. They analyzed data from a subset of 44 African-American, 45 Native-American, and 46 Caucasian women who were part of the Cross-Cultural Activity Participation Study (CAPS) in the mid-1990s.

In CAPS, physical fitness was determined by testing women on a treadmill while speed and angle of elevation were increased every two minutes. The women continued on the treadmill until they reached their point of exhaustion. Each woman's treadmill time was adjusted for her age because fitness declines as the body ages, said LaMonte. Women in each of the three ethnic groups were divided into three levels of fitness — low, moderate and high — on the basis of their treadmill tests.

Previous studies of CRP and fitness had simply asked participants to estimate the amount they exercised. "The treadmill is much more accurate than self-reporting in determining fitness," said LaMonte, an assistant professor of medicine at the University of Utah.

LaMonte and his colleagues used a highly sensitive immunoassay test to determine the CRP level in frozen blood samples that were drawn from the 135 women during CAPS. The blood was taken after a 12-hour fast and 24-hour abstinence from exercise and smoking but before their treadmill tests.

The researchers assessed CRP levels by race, fitness, obesity and waist size. They found that:

- CRP levels were 0.43 milligrams per deciliter (mg/dL) in African-American women, 0.25 mg/dL in Native American and 0.23 mg/dL in Caucasian women.

- Women with low fitness had significantly higher CRP levels (0.43 mg/dL) than those in the moderate (0.26 mg/dL) and high (0.23 mg/dL) fitness categories.

- CRP was also significantly elevated in women with the highest body mass index (BMI). Body mass index assesses body weight relative to height. It is an indirect measure of body composition that correlates with body fat in most people. People with BMI values from 18.5 to 24.9 are healthy; from 25.0 to less than 30.0 are overweight; and 30.0 or greater are considered obese. Average CRP in women with a healthy BMI was 0.19 mg/dL, in overweight women 0.34 mg/dL and in obese women 0.42 mg/dL.

- Women whose waists measured more than 35 inches had CRP concentrations of 0.42 mg/dL, while those with lesser girth had average CRP levels of 0.25 mg/dL.

The researchers emphasize that because of the small number of women in their study, the results — however intriguing they might be — must be considered preliminary.

"The real test of their validity is for someone to do a large, long-term study that looks at the effect of changing people's activity levels on their C-reactive protein, and also to see if the overall risk of cardiovascular disease changes," LaMonte said.

CAPS was funded by the National Institutes of Health and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention as part of the Women's Health Initiative Community Trials. It was led by Barbara E. Ainsworth, Ph.D., senior author of the report.

CATARACTS AND BLOOD THINNERS

A cataract is a clouding of the lens in the eye. Removing the cataract and inserting a clear plastic lens inside the eye restores vision. This is the most common surgery in the United States with over 1.5 million cataracts operations performed last year alone. Many cataract patients are often on blood thinners such as Coumadin, Aspirin and Plavix to prevent stroke or blood clots. Until recently these patients had to stop taking these drugs prior to surgery to prevent bleeding. Unfortunately, this exposed these people to a risk of stroke. However, surgeons, skilled in Clear Corneal Surgery no longer have to stop these blood thinners. By operating through the cornea, the clear layer in the center of the eye where there are no blood vessels, the operation can be performed while still taking these medicines.

At Atlantic Medical Eye Care, we use this technique and many other modern surgical techniques and equipment to give the highest quality and safest care. ## Have children's vision checked at beginning of school year

Nearly 80 percent of preschoolers have never had their vision checked.

September is Children's Eye Health and Safety Month. As parents in New Jersey send their children to school, Dr. Robert Scharfman of Old Bridge is reminding them to have their children's eyes examined.

"About one-quarter of school-aged children experience vision problems. In the 3- to 5-year-old age group, one in 20 has a problem that could cause permanent vision loss if untreated," says

Dr. Scharfman.

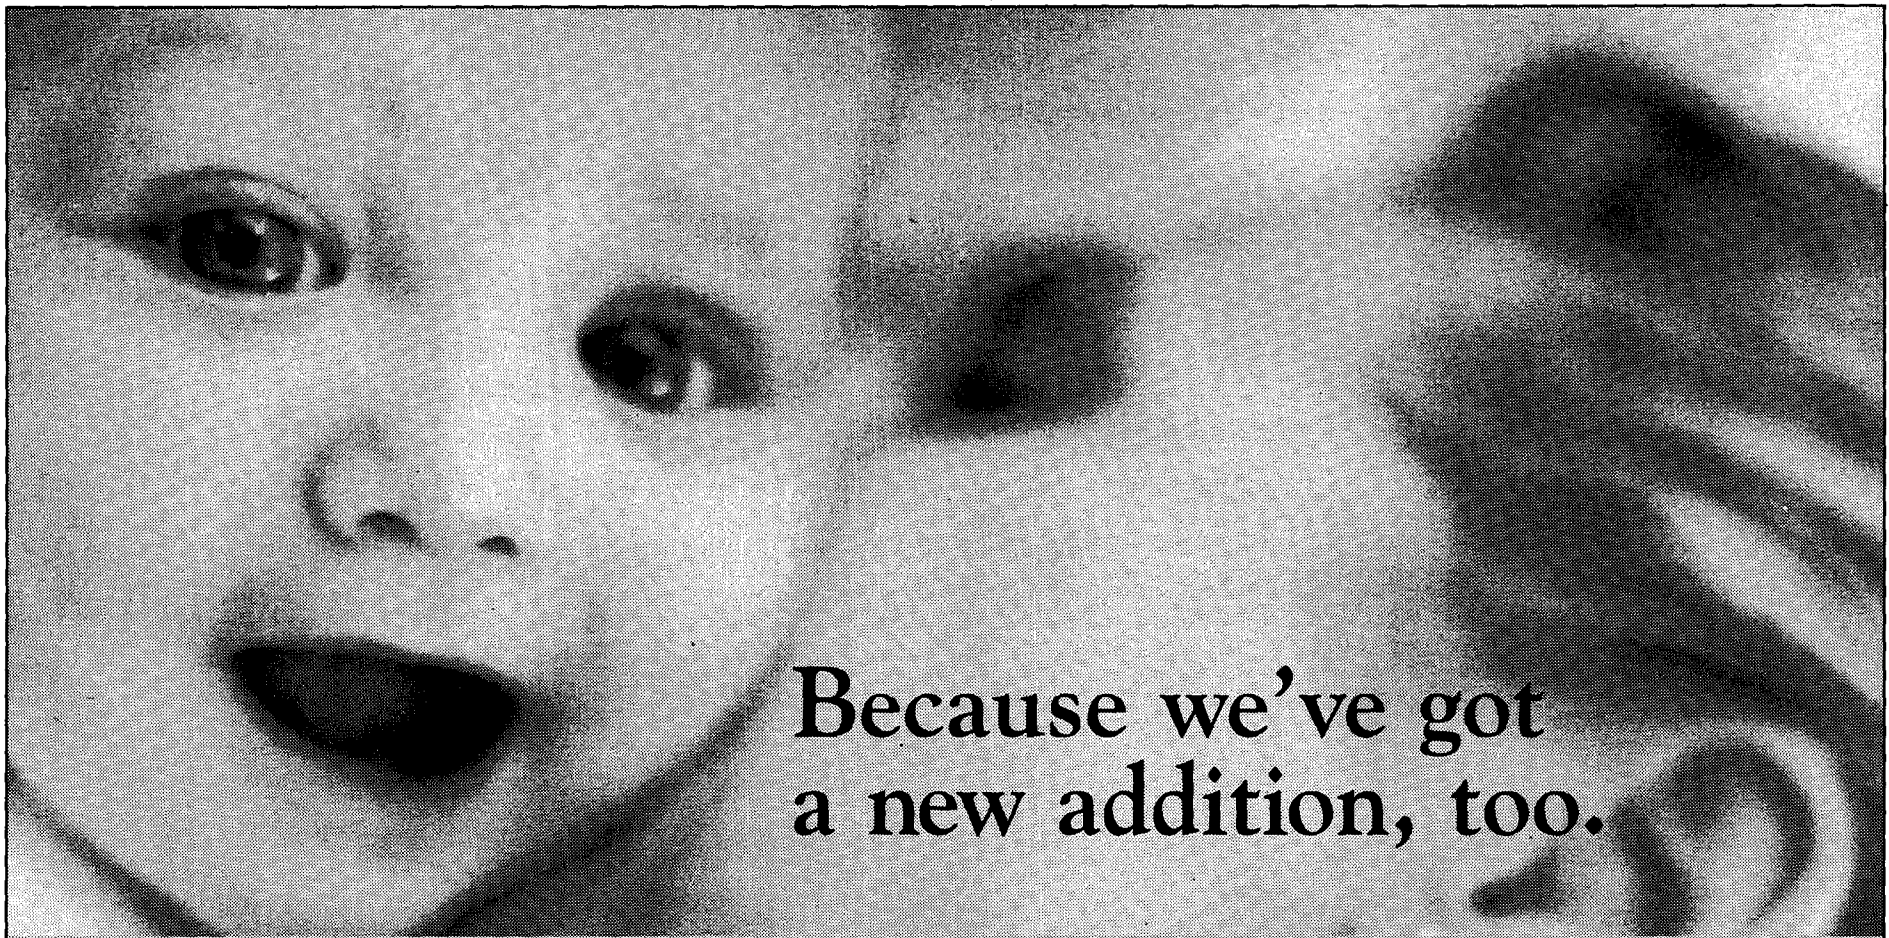

"Eye problems that affect children's vision may not be noticed during a regular physical exam, but a simple eye screening can usually detect vision problems before they become serious," he adds. "Children often experience changes in their vision, which may occur without parents or children noticing them. When kids have trouble seeing the blackboard or the words in a book, learning and recreational activities can suffer. The key is early detection and treatment."

Dr. Scharfman points out that while vision problems can interfere with school performance, it's important to distinguish them from learning disorders that can't be treated with glasses or eye exercises.

Common eye problems for toddlers and preschool children include "lazy eye" (amblyopia), crossed eyes (strabismus), drooping of the upper eyelid (ptosis) and refractive errors (nearsightedness, farsightedness and astigmatism).

In addition to eye conditions and disorders, eye injuries are another leading cause of vision loss in children. An estimated 40,000 sports and recreation-related eye injuries occur every year and most of them happen to children. Dr. Scharfman recommends that parents set a good example for their children by always wearing protective eye gear when playing sports, working in the yard, using harsh chemicals or working on the car.

RAGWEED SEASON

Ragweed pollen triggers 60 percent of allergic reactions in this country, making it the most common allergen. Symptoms are pesky and persistent, as ragweed season runs from late August through the autumn's first frost, typically in mid-October. Labor Day weekend usually marks the onset of increasing pollen counts and exacerbated symptoms. Sufferers of ragweed allergies have trouble avoiding this pollen due to its propensity to travel hundreds of miles. Removing ragweed from the garden, therefore, rarely alleviates the symptoms, which include an itchy nose and eyes, sore throat, and nasal congestion. A low ragweed pollen count is in the high teens, while anything above 50 is considered extremely high. Last year saw pollen counts soar to the 70s and 80s.

It's that time of year again! Don't go through another season of sneezing, coughing, and wheezing. Talk to an allergist about ways to control your symptoms so you can have a worry-free autumn. # West Nile virus: be aware, not alarmed

By Kenneth W. Faistl, M.D.

As news reports of West Nile virus cases continue to appear across the U.S., New Jerseyans should remain aware, but not overly alarmed, about the mosquito-borne viral disease. However, federal health officials expect the number of human cases to peak this month and recommend that people practice common sense to avoid getting mosquito bites.

Mosquitoes lay their eggs in standing water. Health officials urge homeowners to eliminate stagnant water in gutters, birdbaths, flowerpots, buckets, discarded tires, pools and other types of receptacles with decaying matter. It's also a good idea to wear long-sleeved shirts and long pants when outdoors at dawn, dusk and early evening; use an effective mosquito repellent containing DEET or permethrin; and make sure screens on doors and windows are in good condition.

The West Nile virus is transmitted through the bite of a mosquito that has picked up the virus by feeding on an infected bird such as a crow. After an incubation period of 10 to 14 days, infected mosquitoes can transmit the virus to other animals or humans. The virus is not transmitted from person to person or directly from birds to humans. There is also no evidence that humans can get the virus from handling live or dead infected birds. Report any dead or dying birds to the state health department. The presence of virus in these birds acts as a sentinel monitor, letting health authorities know that the virus is in the community.

Most people who are infected with the virus won't show symptoms. Those who are most susceptible are the elderly, the very young and those with weakened immune systems. Symptoms usually appear three to 15 days after the bite of an infected mosquito. In mild infections, which generally last three to six days, symptoms include fever, headache, body aches, swollen lymph glands and possibly a rash. There are no known long-term effects due to mild illness.

West Nile virus infection usually does not result in a severe illness. Only about one in 150 infections will result in severe neurological disease; advanced age being the most significant risk factor. West Nile virus may result in West Nile encephalitis, an infection of the brain, which is more commonly reported than meningitis. The risk of West Nile encephalitis is higher for persons 50 years of age and older. These more severe infections produce headache, high fever, neck stiffness, muscle weakness, confusion, disorientation, convulsions, paralysis, coma and rarely, death.

There is no specific therapy available for infection with West Nile virus. In the case of West Nile encephalitis, intensive supportive therapy may be required, such as hospitalization, intravenous fluids, breathing support, prevention of secondary infections (such as pneumonia and urinary tract infections) and good nursing care.

Currently, the testing procedure to determine a human case of West Nile Virus encephalitis is time consuming and complex. Blood and other fluid samples are sent to the Public Health and Environmental Laboratory for a test that detects certain antibodies. If positive, these samples are then forwarded to the National Centers for Disease Control and Prevention for final confirmation.

The best treatment against West Nile virus is prevention. By following precautionary measures, New Jerseyans can reduce their chances of getting infected with the disease. If you have symptoms of West Nile virus, contact your family physician.

State law requires testing for private wells

Officials say law will provide expanded access to information

BY ALISON GRANITO
Staff Writer

Before buying or selling a home which relies on a well for its supply of drinking water, the well will now have to be tested for an expanded range of contaminants, according to a new state law.

The Private Well Testing Act, which became effective earlier this week, requires that private drinking water wells undergo sampling at a state-certified lab when the property on which the well is located changes hands.

"Raising awareness about the importance of regularly testing private wells is an important step towards ensuring a safe drinking water supply for all New Jersey residents," said New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Commissioner Bradley M. Campbell in a statement last week.

According to the DEP, approximately 12 percent of residents statewide depend on private wells for their drinking water.

Under the new law, testing done on private wells will be expanded to include testing for a wider range of contaminants. The new testing regulations, which took effect Tuesday, require testing for total coliform, nitrates, iron, manganese, unsafe pH levels, lead, and all volatile organic chemicals. Volatile organics include especially dangerous chemicals such as benzene and trichlorethylene, for which maximum contaminant levels have been established by state regulations.

In addition, testing for mercury will be required for nine high-risk counties in southern New Jersey and along the shoreline, including Monmouth County. Previously, New Jersey's safe drinking water regulations required only new private wells to be tested for a shorter list of contaminants before being placed in service.

"New Jersey residents have a right to know that the water they drink is clean and healthy," Campbell said, describing the law as an attempt to provide "better information about water quality."

As a result of the new regulations, before a buyer and seller close on a real estate transaction where a well that provides drinking water is involved, the well will need to be tested at a DEP-certified laboratory. The tests are expected to cost between $450-$650.

After the tests are performed, the laboratories are required to submit the data to the DEP electronically. The DEP must then report all contaminated wells to county or municipal health authorities within five days.

"The testing will provide environmental and health agencies with data about groundwater in areas that may require additional investigation," said Campbell.

DEP regulations specify that "raw" or untreated water, which has not been treated by a filtration system, must be tested, so that the sample accurately represents the condition of groundwater in the aquifer, which may be different from the condition of the water that comes out of faucets in the homes where a treatment system is in place.

As a "right to know" law, the Private Well Test Act does not require that any specific remedy be taken if pollution is discovered in the well water, meaning that remedies to the problem must be negotiated between the buyer and seller of the property.

DEP estimates suggest that the new law will impact approximately 20,000-30,000 real estate transactions per year.

More information on testing requirements are available through a toll free hotline at 1-866-4PW-TEST or on the DEP Web site, www.state.nj.us/dep.

Annual Old Bridge Day Fair scheduled for Oct. 5

The sixth annual Old Bridge Day Fair will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Oct. 6 at the municipal complex, Route 516 and Cottrell Road.

The fair will feature live entertainment, craft and retail vendors, a business showcase, food, amusements and a parade.

Judging for the township's scarecrow competition will take place during the event. Prizes will be awarded for The Ultimate Bird-Scarer, a scarecrow that has moving parts or makes noise when the wind blows; The Contemporary Scarecrow; The Traditional Scarecrow; and The Most Original Scarecrow. Entries will be on display Sept. 28-Nov. 2 at the municipal complex.

Free bus transportation will be provided for those residents who do not drive or who need assistance getting to the fair.

For more information on the bus schedule or the fair, call (732) 607-7940 or visit www.oldbridge.com. For more information on the scarecrow competition, call (732) 721-5600, ext. 2190, or e-mail events@oldbridge.com.

Audubon Society offers chance to explore Raritan

The New Jersey Audubon Society is presenting "Exploring Raritan's Shores" during September and October. Locally, the outdoor seminars will be Sept. 27 at Treasure Lake, Aberdeen and Oct. 11 at Whale Creek and Seidler Beach, Laurence Harbor. Both seminars will take place at 2:30 p.m.

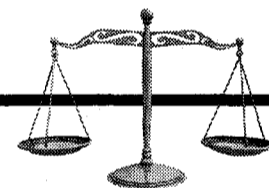

The presentations are a series of family-oriented environmental education seminars explaining the ecological importance of stream corridors, salt marshes, tidal wetlands and natural beach front.

The seminars will take place at sites identified by the Raritan Bay wildlife habitat report, a publication produced by the society after a 3-year wildlife and habitat inventory.

Additional seminars will be Sept. 28 at Conaskonk Point wetlands, Union Beach, and Oct. 12 at Raritan Bayfront Park, South Amboy. Both take place at 9:30 a.m.

For more information, call the society's Sandy Hook Bird Observatory at (732) 872-2500.

Country Fair promises fun for all

BY SANDI CARPELLO
Staff Writer

MONROE — Organizers of the township's 14th annual Country Fair say this weekend's event will be a good time for a good cause.

All proceeds from Sunday's fair, sponsored annually by the nonprofit Mother's Club and the Monroe Recreation Department, are donated to organizations including the township's Fire Department, EMS and Rescue Team, children's organizations and children's baseball leagues, according to Marguerite DaFoe, chairwoman of the fair.

The Mother's Club rents space to various craft and food vendors to benefit the Mother's Club donation fund, which will also benefit from a 50/50 raffle.

The fair will also include an array of entertainment for both children and adults. DJ Wacky Wayne Jr. will spin records, a sidewalk band will entertain, and the township's own Wolverine Flag Cheerleaders will perform demonstrations.

Children can enjoy pony rides, a petting zoo, pumpkin painting and a moonwalk.

Traditional pageant-like contests such as Little Miss Monroe and Town Squire for children ages 3 to 5 will also be held.

Admission is free for the Country Fair, which will take place Sunday from noon to 6 p.m. at Thompson Park on Perrineville Road in Monroe. Fireworks will start at dusk.

Pets are not allowed. The rain date for the event is Sept. 29. For more information, call (732) 251-3566 or (732) 723-5000.

9/11 victims: Who they were, not how they died

BY GLORIA STRAVELLI
 Staff Writer

The photographs show them in the prime of their lives — celebrating at weddings, posing proudly in uniforms, smiling contentedly within the circle of their families.

Nancy Gawron looks into the faces of the husbands, wives, sons, daughters, brothers, sisters and friends who perished in the World Trade Center and Pentagon attacks and on Flight 93 on Sept. 11, 2001 and sees people who were living life to the fullest.

"Almost every photo I get is at the best time of their lives, because that's how the family wants to remember them," said Gawron, who has taken on the awesome task of sketching portraits of victims of 9/11 for anyone who asks.

"It's always at their happiest time," observed Gawron, a portraitist known for her colored-pencil portraits. "I just got one of a man on a horse. He loved to ride, and that's the way they wanted to remember him."

Gawron was fortunate: Her husband and son, both of whom work in Manhattan, were unscathed by the attacks. But she shares with the victims' families the common experience of having waited for word following the disaster.

"The main reason I got into this is that...I lost contact with them for several hours," she recounted. "I was in the same position at that point as the rest of the families. I experienced the same kind of panic that everyone else did."

"As far as deciding to do this, I was just like everybody else; I wanted to do something," she explained. "I'm an artist, and this is what I wanted to do. I feel as if I am a part of the healing process."

At first, commissions came through word of mouth and notices she posted. She mailed flyers to the families of the 33 Middletown victims and contacted Cantor Fitzgerald (the firm lost 658 employees in the attacks), which posted her offer on its Web site.

She completes one portrait each day, working five days a week.

Large Enough to Serve You - Small Enough to Know You!

"I began doing the portraits two to three weeks after 9/11, and I've been doing them since. I get two to three calls a day from all parts of the country. The requests are now up to 300," said Gawron, who has already completed 186 colored-pencil portraits.

"This is a long-term commitment," the Red Bank artist noted. "A friend figured out that at a portrait a day, potentially doing 3,000 people — that's 10 years."

She caught up twice, but the number of requests has increased with the notoriety that has come with news articles and TV appearances such as a segment on her posthumous portraits on 48 Hours on CBS.

Not unexpectedly, most of the requests come from wives.

"The largest percentage of victims were males in their prime, generally between 20 and 35 years old," she observed. "That was the biggest surprise to me. The whole group was so young."

Early on, callers were local; now she often gets e-mails from far off. Most want to share their stories.

"I found that part of the gift is listening to the story," she explained. "They want to tell it again — to say where he was, whether they got a phone call. So sometimes the phone calls take a while. I just feel that's part of the gift."

Gawron has set no time limit on her project.

"I will do this for as long as [requests] come in," she said. "To me, it would be penalizing the families that take longer to heal. Some are ready to deal with it right away; some aren't."

Besides portraits of individual victims, Gawron fills requests for couples and for family portraits — some that depict families that will never be.

"One hundred twenty-four babies have been born since 9/11," she said. "In a lot of cases, I'm creating a family portrait because they'll never have one."

For the composites, Gawron asks for several photos to help her create a cohesive grouping.

"I have to try to figure a way to combine them so they work," she said.

Gawron manages to do so by copying and adjusting the size of images, and in a few cases, she has even managed to place a lost father's arm around a child he never had the chance to embrace in life.

To streamline the process, Gawron begins by putting the photos in an opaque projector and sketching the outline projected onto a mat board.

She lightly sketches the outline in pencil and then begins filling in details, using pencils in two tones of sepia and white that give the portraits a vintage look and simplify her work since skin, hair and eye color are the same in each.

Her starting point is always the eyes.

"Once I have the person in the portrait looking back at me, then the portrait is alive," she explained. "The person I'm trying to capture is in it. Then it feels like I'm just filling in the rest."

Undaunted by the task before her, Gawron begins each weekday in the same manner.

"I get up, have breakfast and go to ship the portrait from the day before," she explained.

Gawron's packager gives her a special flat rate for shipping, and that is the only cost to survivors for her portraits.

When she returns, she begins the portrait she will work on that day.

"I have just turned it into a spiritual exercise for myself," she explained. "When I start a portrait, I call the person by name. I ask for their assistance. At the end, I thank them for any help they gave me."

"When I call on the person, there are times the portrait changes a bit," she confided. "I've learned to trust it and let it go whenever it's going. I've had enough feedback.

I'll get a note from a family that I've exactly captured the expression in their eyes."

Gawron compiled a scrapbook of the portraits to show to families and found that the book has helped put a human face on a tragedy of immense proportions.

"Originally it was for the families," she explained, "but it's had a role and impact far beyond that."

"It's a very strong reaction people have when looking at it," she added. "It forces them to get out of the mindset that this was just a large number of people. They have to look into individual faces of people. I have found it changes their view of the whole thing."

The project means Gawron spends long hours each day at the drawing table in her upstairs studio, getting little exercise and leaving no time for favorite pursuits like gardening, but she senses her destiny in the work she is doing.

"When I look back, part of me believes this is what I came to the planet to do. I've been preparing for a very long time," she said. "There are all these things that had to fall into place to make me able to do this."

Chief among these is her ability to work quickly, honed as a commercial artist with a New York advertising agency where working on tight deadlines was routine.

Gawron also developed the sepia technique she uses for the portraits 20 years ago. Although it didn't have a commercial application, she liked it and kept using it.

Two years ago, she mounted "We Are All One," an exhibit of 65 multicultural portraits.

"That was part of the preparation for this," she said. "At the time, I was doing a lot of spiritual study. The whole focus of that show was really part of what I'm doing now."

Gawron's own spiritual belief in an after-life also factors in.

"I don't see them as gone, so it allows me to do what I'm doing," she said.

"I have a mental image of the whole bunch of them," she added. "When I call them by name, they sort of step forward and help me. I couldn't do this project without that belief. It would be overwhelming."

"I feel very privileged," she said. "My focus and reward is with the families. I get these absolutely gorgeous thank-you notes every day in the mail and [via] e-mail. How could you possibly be down? The families are unbelievably appreciative."

"One woman told me that she hung the portrait in her 5-year-old's room and that her daughter laughed when she saw it because her father always made her laugh," she recounted. "How can you measure that?"

"Women who've had babies since — how can you measure being able to give that to them? They say to me, 'Now I know what we would have looked like.' There's no way I could be down," she explained.

"I wouldn't change a moment of it," Gawron said. "It's an unbelievable experience."

Design Hardwoods: All floor covering choices under one roof

BY EILEEN KOUTNIK
Correspondent

Design Hardwoods' extensive selection of hardwood floors, tiles and carpets allows customers to find the perfect floor coverings for their home.

As a third-generation family-owned business, Design Hardwoods has been serving homeowners, builders, contractors and architects for more than half a century. The Design Hardwoods showroom is located on Route 34 in Morganville. In addition, they have a boutique for hardwood flooring on Route 35 in Middletown.

"We started as a hardwood flooring company and through the demand of contract builders we expanded into rugs and tiles," Julian Kroll, managing partner, said.

Kroll said, "We can help the customer do a complete home renovation or a single room. We are a one-stop shop for all floor coverings."

Design Hardwoods has a comprehensive collection of unfinished and pre-finished domestic and imported hardwood floors. If customers are interested in ceramic tile and stone, they can choose from natural stone, marble, granite and slate tile to name a few. If customers prefer carpeting and rugs, they can choose from wall-to-wall carpeting and custom-designed contemporary and oriental rugs.

"Hardwood flooring and natural stone are the most popular. The natural look is very popular right now," according to Kroll.

When customers enter the 11,500-square-foot design center at the Morganville site, they "are in for an experience," said Kroll. The design center is divided into three display sections: hardwoods, ceramic and stone, and broadloom and rugs.

Design Hardwoods has custom-built their displays, which allows customers to see how the tile, carpet or hardwood will look and feel. "When people come in they get to see a large quantity of flooring right on the spot," according to Kroll. For example, tile and natural stone are displayed in 35-foot floor pads. "Actually walking on the floor assists clients in visualizing what the installed floor will look and feel like," he said.

In order to help customers find the best possible product for their home, salespeople will talk with the customers to help get a feel for their home, the motif and look they are trying to achieve.

Over the years Kroll said that customers are choosing to install hardwood floor in areas that were traditionally done in vinyl or tile, such as the kitchen and foyer. Also, if it's within a customer's budget, some are choosing hardwood flooring for the entire first floor of their home. As for stone and tile, it really depends on the activity of the room. He said customers are still using carpet for the bedrooms.

"Many times they (customers) know the feeling they want but don't know exactly what the right product is. It can be very overwhelming," Kroll said. "We then bring them over to the product we feel will work with them."

In addition to helping customers choose the right floor covering for their needs, designers on staff will give interior design assistance at no extra charge.

Design Hardwoods is located at 65 Route 34 in Morganville. It is open Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information, call (732) 332-0900 or visit the Web site at www.designhardwoodfloors.com.

Visit Design Hardwoods' 11,500-square-foot showroom to find the latest in hardwoods, ceramic and stone, and broadloom and rugs.

FALL HOME & GARDEN

A guide to seasonal home repair projects

You can blame pop culture or blame the media, but the truth is, women have always had to wait around for "Mr. Fix-It" when things go bump, then crash in the house.

Well, times are continually changing, and when "Mr. Fix-It" is unavailable or worse — not handy at all — women are rolling up their sleeves, grabbing a socket wrench and tackling home improvements.

The winter season is approaching, and there are several home-improvement projects lying in wait for eager hands. Take a look at how to master them, courtesy of Dare to Repair: A Do-It-Yourself Guide to Fixing (Almost) Anything in the Home (HarperResource), by Julie Sussman and Stephanie Glakas-Tenet. Filled with detailed step-by-step illustrations for many of the repairs, the book is instructive, motivating, witty in tone and downright fun. Following are some of the easy home-improvement projects the book contains:

- Winterize plumbing — You may not be ready to pull out your winter clothing, but don't put off covering those exposed water pipes in your home and winterizing your exterior water faucets. Whether you live in a new home with a frost-free exterior faucet or in an older home with a hose bib (common exterior faucet), your faucets are vulnerable during a harsh winter. The most important thing you can do to prevent faucets and pipes from freezing is to rid them of any water before winter. This project culminates in capping off exterior faucets with a cold weather faucet cover and covering exposed pipes with insulation. This job requires relatively few tools, including lubricating spray, an adjustable wrench, a rag and a cold weather faucet cover.

- Clear gutters and downspouts — Gutters and downspouts are important parts of your home's exterior drainage system. They help prevent leaks in walls and the roof by draining away rainwater and melting snow every year, so it's important to maintain them, especially in the fall and winter. Decayed leaves and mud can block the flow of water in the gutters and mineral deposits can lead to corrosion.

- Cleaning the gutter system is not a difficult job, but it may be time consuming depending upon the size of your home. You'll need a ladder, a garden hose with spray nozzle, a bucket or a plastic grocery bag for collecting the leaves and a garden trowel or scoop to clear out the caked-on mess. You may also want to enlist a friend to help you correctly angle the ladder against the exterior of the home.

- Bleed hot water radiators — Many older homes utilize hot water radiators instead of a forced-air system. To help the system work efficiently, you need to clean it regularly and bleed it every fall. To bleed a radiator means to remove the hot air trapped inside that is blocking the flow of heat. Older radiators typically require a valve key to turn the bleeder valve; if not, a screwdriver might work.

- The secret of the circuit breaker — Electrical systems are often a mystery to people, but they are responsible for running most of the appliances in your home. If you have a power outage, you should know how to quickly assess and remedy the situation.

Every home, whether it's an apartment or mansion, has either circuit breakers or fuses located in the main service panel (typically a metal box). The purpose of circuit breakers and fuses is not to provide electricity to your home, but rather to protect the wires they're connected to from overheating. If too much power surges through the system, the circuit breaker will trip or the fuse will blow to cut off the power to your appliance, lighting fixture or other electrical item.

It's important to know that when working with a fuse or circuit breaker, you should only use one hand while keeping the other at your side. The reason is that electricity will always find the quickest path to the ground. Therefore, if you have one hand on the main service panel and one on a fuse or circuit breaker, you could receive an electrical shock.

Whether you're living on your own, trying to save money, or out to prove a point, you will celebrate the emotional — and financial — rewards of mechanical know-how this season. To pick up a copy of Dare to Repair, visit your local bookseller.

FALL HOME & GARDEN

Bring the elegance of stained glass into your kitchen or bath

Your home is your refuge from the outside world, a place where you surround yourself with family, memories, treasures and laughter. Because no two people are alike, no two homes are identical, either.

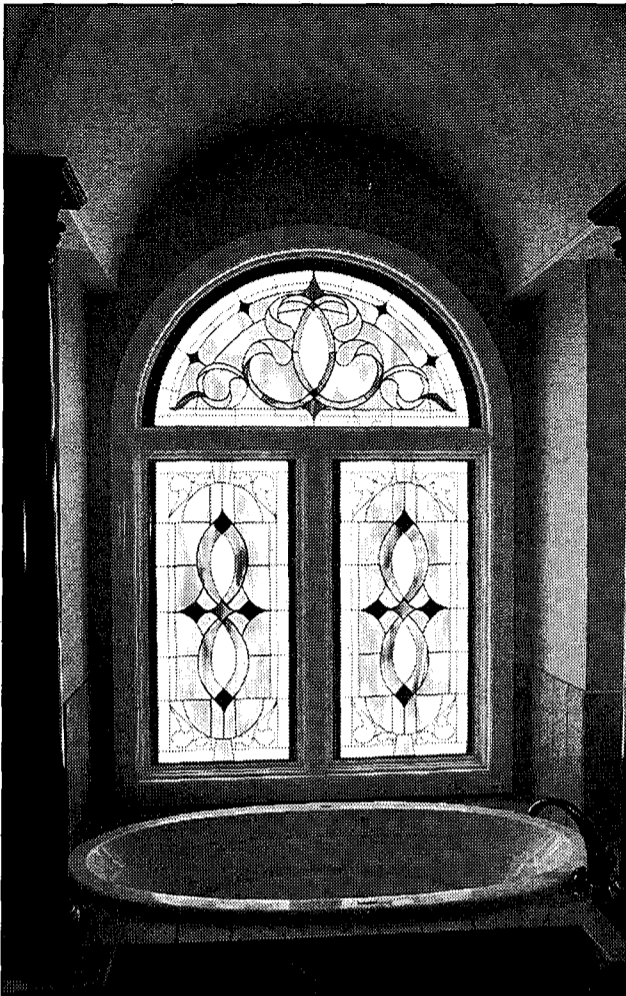

Even if your house looks like every other house on the block from the outside, on the inside, you have a chance to express your individuality, to make your house a place that reflects who you are.

There are countless ways to personalize your living space. Even a fresh coat of paint in a new color can make a big difference. When you think about ways to enhance your windows, instead of drapes consider decorative glass. It is easier than you think to add the distinctive touch of stained glass to your windows.

Stained Glass Overlay (SGO) creates beautiful glass using colors and patterns that complement your existing design scheme. "We bring the traditions, craftsmanship and artisanship from early centuries to our art and trade every day," says company president Michael Cassidy. The company offers more than 200 colors and textures to choose from when making your selection. Each project is handcrafted; the glass is UV resistant and as durable as safety glass. "Our designers handle all the details as they work together with the customer to enhance the windows and glass that surround their life," adds Cassidy.

A decorative glass panel can be swapped out for existing glass, which is the case with smaller pieces, such as cabinet windows, or it can be installed up against the existing glass, creating a seamless appearance. The process used to apply the stained glass pattern to the glass makes it extremely strong and allows for versatility of installation.

While decorative glass can be used in any window, two rooms that really benefit from the color and interest it adds are the kitchen and the bathroom. The possibilities are endless. Your kitchen window looks out on your neighbor's garage? Choose decorative glass in the Rose Bouquet or Autumn Jewels pattern, and you will have a view of beautiful flowers all year round. In the bathroom, you can add privacy to the glass shower stall by adding decorative glass. Try Seaside Whisper for a water-inspired theme.

If you need help deciding on a design, don't worry. The SGO designer has an extensive library and catalog of custom work the company has completed for clients over the years. The patterns represent blueprints of history, culture and modern design. Your designer can offer suggestions and provide valuable tips on which design and colors would work best for you.

For example, when choosing colors for your decorative glass, keep in mind that bright, intense colors will add warmth to north-facing rooms that get little or no sunlight. On the other hand, cool colors, such as blues and greens, can cool down a south-facing room subjected to too much sunlight.

In addition to adding interest to your windows, decorative glass can also solve some common problems by adding privacy, blocking out UV rays that can fade furniture and carpets, and dealing with uniquely shaped windows that can be hard to accessorize.

Decorative glass can also be used in front-door sidelights, skylights, ceiling light panels, light boxes, mirrors, sliding glass doors, cabinet and furniture doors and room dividers — just use your imagination. "Any room and any home can be made more personal and more beautiful with the addition of decorative glass," says Cassidy.

Stained Glass Overlay serves customers across North America and in more than 30 countries around the world. For more information on finding the designer nearest you, or to find out about franchise opportunities, visit www.stainedglassoverlay.com or call (800) 944-4746.

Milestones

Fratello-Zick

Anthony and Dawn Fratello

Dawn Colleen Zick, daughter of Linda and Stephen Zick of the Parlin section of Old Bridge, was married Aug. 18 to Anthony Thomas Fratello, son of Joann Leitch of Little Egg Harbor.

The Rev. Daniel Meenan performed the ceremony overlooking the Monmouth Beach waterfront at The Channel Club, where the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Maid of honor was Janine Spade of Freehold. Bridesmaids were Nicole Borg of Keyport; Lauren Henning of Brick, cousin of the bride; Jeannie Langan of Sayreville; and Jennifer Sziveri of Monroe.

Best man was Marc Fuentes of Old Bridge. Groomsmen were Rich Caruso of Brick; Michael DeCrosta of the Colonia section of Woodbridge, cousin of the bride; Troy Oprandy of the Fords section of Woodbridge; and George Scifo of Old Bridge.

A reception was held at The Channel Club.

The bride is a graduate of Cedar Ridge High School, Old Bridge, where she earned a certificate in cosmetology. She is a hairdresser at Unique Hair Studio, Matawan.

Her husband also is a graduate of Cedar Ridge High School. He is a sales manager at Oasis Ford, Old Bridge.

The couple resides in Howell.

Schibinger-Scalzo

Mr. and Mrs. John Schibinger of East Brunswick announce the engagement of their daughter, Jennifer Larisa Schibinger, to John Christian Scalzo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Natale Scalzo of Cliffside Park.

The future bride is a graduate of East Brunswick High School and Rutgers College School of Business, New Brunswick, where she earned a bachelor of science degree in marketing, magna cum laude. She is vice president of human resources and co-owner of MindTrust Consulting Services, Middlesex.

Her fiancé is a graduate of Cliffside Park High School and Boston College, Chestnut Hill, Mass., where he earned a bachelor of arts degree in political science. He received a juris doctor degree from Rutgers Law School, Newark. He is a litigation associate at Shearman and Sterling, a law firm in New York City.

A July wedding is planned.

John Scalzo, Jennifer Schibinger

Stork Club

JoAnn and R. Alberto Araya of Old Bridge announce the birth of their son, Inti Alberto, July 30 in St. Peter's University Hospital, New Brunswick. The baby weighed 7 pounds and joins his brother, Dakota, 3 1/2. Grandparents are Marta and Armando Ancheta of South Ozone Park, N.Y., and Raschid Araya of San Jose, Costa Rica. Great-grandparents are Mina Marie Owen of Lee's Summit, Mo., Margarita and Ned Cranston of Los Angeles and Ubaldo and Eraida Alpizar Blanco of San Jose.

Child safety awareness to be topic at MOMTalk

East Brunswick police officers Mike Knoll and Bob Witting will discuss child safety awareness at the next meeting of MOMTalk, a parenting education and support group, set for 10 a.m. on Oct. 1 at East Brunswick Congregational Church, 402 New Brunswick Ave.

The officers will address the issues of "stranger danger" and what children can do if they find themselves in a potentially dangerous situation with a stranger. The presentation, which is aimed at both parents and children, will include a video and a question-and-answer period. Parents with children of all ages are welcome to attend.

MOMTalk meets from 10 a.m. to noon every Tuesday at the East Brunswick Congregational Church. Parents have the opportunity to participate in group conversation while their children play in the same carpeted room. Participants may drop in for any amount of the two-hour meeting.

The group encourages parents to connect, support, educate and empower each other and to provide resources and services to the community.

Upcoming events include an Oct. 8 outing to Johnson Park, Piscataway, and an Oct. 15 group discussion titled "Parenting Then and Now."

For more information, call (732) 416-9231 or e-mail info@MOMTalk.org.

ATTENTION SAYREVILLE RESIDENTS

The Sayreville Water Utility will begin its annual Hydrant Flushing Program beginning September 16, 2002 until October 31, 2002. Flushing hours will be from 7:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m.

Due to current drought restrictions the flushing schedule may be interrupted at times to ensure an adequate supply to our customers.

During this time, you may experience periods of discoloration as well as low water pressure. We urge you not to do any laundry during these times. We anticipate the program to end the last week in October. We apologize for any inconvenience this may cause.

Thank You

Police Beat

All items in Police Beat are taken from police department records. All suspects are presumed innocent until found guilty in court.

OLD BRIDGE

Vandals broke into two classrooms at the Carl Sandburg Middle School on Route 516 between 5:30 and 7:30 p.m. last Thursday, according to police. The suspects damaged a computer and other equipment by tossing and breaking raw eggs inside one of the rooms, according to a police report filed by a school custodian. School officials estimated the damage to the computer and equipment to be $1,100, according to the report. Police believe that the unknown suspects were familiar with the layout of the school because the eggs were removed from a home economics classroom and thrown into an adjacent special education classroom. There were no known suspects or witnesses as of Monday afternoon. Police reports indicate that it is believed all students present inside the school during the estimated time of the actions were under the supervision of parents or teachers.

SAYREVILLE

Police arrested a borough resident and charged him with driving while intoxicated after responding to a motor vehicle accident on Glynn Court at 3:31 a.m. Saturday. According to police reports, a truck being driven by a resident of Glynn Court, Kenneth E. Wolfie, 24, overturned while rounding a corner. Responding police officers determined that Wolfie, who was not injured, had been driving under the influence. He was additionally charged with consumption of alcohol in a motor vehicle and reckless driving, according to police reports. The Sayreville First Aid Squad transported Wolfie to Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital, New Brunswick, for treatment. He was later released on his own recognizance.

A borough resident was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated after police responded to a motor vehicle accident on Pulaski Avenue at 11:49 p.m. Sept. 11. According to police, Frank Sharkey Jr., 36, of Main Street, was allegedly seen by police running from the scene of an accident on Pulaski Avenue toward a wooded area behind a deli on the same street. After an investigation, Sharkey was charged with leaving the scene of an accident, driving with a suspended license, driving an unregistered and uninsured vehicle, and driving while intoxicated. The Sayreville First Aid Squad transported him to Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital, New Brunswick, for treatment. He was later released on his own recognizance.

A resident of the Parlin section of the borough was arrested on drug-related charges at 1:20 p.m. Sunday. According to police reports, Kevin E. Echols, 22, of Borelle Square was arrested following a motor vehicle accident on Ernston Road in which he was injured. While helping Echols, police officers allegedly observed a plastic bag containing a green vegetative substance in the door of the vehicle. After subsequent blood tests, Echols was charged with driving under the influence of a controlled dangerous substance, possession of marijuana, possession of a controlled dangerous substance in a motor vehicle, and possession of drug paraphernalia, police reports said. Police said Echols had injured his leg in the accident and was transported to Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital, New Brunswick. He was later released on his own recognizance.

A motorcycle was stolen from a residence on Canal Street between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. Saturday, police reports said. The 2002 Honda CVR600, valued at approximately $8,200, had been parked in front of the complainant's residence.

A borough resident was arrested and charged with four counts of criminal mischief at 9:45 p.m. Saturday. According to police reports, Raymond Saverino, 35, of Washington Road is accused of smashing the windshields of four vehicles parked on Outlook Avenue, near Pat's Pub. Saverino was located in the area and identified by witnesses at the pub, police reports said. The suspect was transported to the Middlesex County Adult Correction Center, North Brunswick, and held in lieu of bail.

A 1996 Honda Accord was stolen from Woodlake Drive between 9 p.m. Sept. 12 and 6:10 a.m. the next day, and was later recovered by the Rahway Police Department, Union County. The locked vehicle, valued at approximately $8,000, was parked on the street, and was found to be missing after the complainant brought her garbage to the curb, police reports said. An hour after filing the report, the Rahway Police Department recovered the vehicle, which was then missing four chrome wheels, valued at approximately $2,000. The vehicle was transported back to the Sayreville Police Department and retrieved by the complainant.

MONROE

A township man was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated on Sept. 3, according to police. Police said they were dispatched to the area of Route 33 at the report of an erratic driver. The vehicle in question was located on Mills Road. Its driver, Richard Skeba, 61, of Mills Road was determined to be intoxicated, police said. He was additionally charged with reckless driving and was released to the custody of a family member.

Police arrested and charged Gennaro Orlando Jr., 21, of Manalapan, and William Huwyler, 19, of the Morganville section of Marlboro with possession of less than 50 grams of marijuana, according to a police report. On Sept. 14 at 12:30 a.m., police received a report of a loud party occurring in the wooded area behind Forman Avenue. Police report that seven individuals were found at the scene. Orlando and Huwyler, who were among the seven individuals, were allegedly found to be in possession of marijuana. They were processed and released on their own recognizance.

Police arrested and charged Brian Haggerty, 21, of Woodcrest Circle with aggravated assault, making terroristic threats and possession of a weapon for an unlawful purpose on Sept. 15 at 9:29 a.m., according to a police report. The arrest was made following an investigation after a 25-year-old East Brunswick man came into police headquarters at 5:45 a.m. the same day and reported he was assaulted that morning with a sword while visiting Haggerty's home. According to police, the two men had an ongoing dispute over the sale of a car. The victim told police he was struck twice with the sword, once on the leg and the second on the hand. The victim was treated at police headquarters by the Monroe Township First Aid Squad but refused to be transported to the hospital, according to police. Haggerty was lodged at the Middlesex County Adult Correction Center, North Brunswick, in lieu of $15,000 bail.

EAST BRUNSWICK

Six motor vehicles were burglarized last weekend inside the development of the Club at East Brunswick, Wycoff Way, according to a police report. Unknown suspects pried open the locks of detached garages in order to get to some of the vehicles they burglarized, police said. A total of $250 in cash was taken from the vehicles. The perpetrators also took various items from a freezer in one of the garages, along with soda and paper towels. The break-ins occurred during the overnight hours between Saturday and Monday, police said.

Knights hold on to top spot with rout of No. 8 Colonia

Sayreville, Spotswood also impressive in week one wins

BY DOUG MCKENZIE
Staff Writer

If you didn't know any better, you wouldn't have thought that a new football season had begun this past weekend.

Many of the teams that were among the top teams of the Greater Middlesex Conference (GMC) last year picked up where they left off, while the teams that struggled last season continued to do so in the opening week of the 2002 season.

With the exception of the Monroe Falcons, who many expected to play better than they did against New Brunswick on Friday, most of the local teams reverted to the form they displayed toward the end of last year.

And among the five local teams in action, nobody was more impressive than the top-ranked Old Bridge Knights, who trampled Colonia 38-0, in a one-sided affair that did nothing to diminish expectations in Old Bridge this fall.

The Knights took control on the game's first play from scrimmage, when Brandon Nolan took the ball and ran 78 yards for a touchdown. The Knights are expecting to see more of the same from their explosive senior back this year, as he will be the key to what should be an dynamic offense.

But Nolan was just one of several stars for the Knights on opening night. Senior Anthony DePalma provided the Knights with 14 points, including a 30-yard field goal, five PATS, and a 39-yard touchdown pass from his brother, David.

And as for the Old Bridge defense, everyone on that front played well, displaying the type of championship-caliber balance that will win its share of games this year for coach Bob DeMarco's squad.

Old Bridge led 14-0 at the half after Nolan's run and the DePalma brothers' TD connection. Meanwhile, Colonia had no success moving the ball, as the Old Bridge defense impressively stopped both the run and passing attack. The second half was even more one-sided as the Knights added two more Nolan touchdowns (from 15 and 32 yards, respectively), a DePalma field goal and a five-yard scoring run to close out the scoring.

With their week one triumph in the books, the Knights look to further strengthen their standing as the GMC's top team when they take on Woodbridge tomorrow night. The Barons did not play last week, but are looking forward to opening their season with an upset of the Knights. Game time is 7 p.m. in Woodbridge.

While Old Bridge was dismantling Colonia, the Sayreville Bombers were flexing their muscles against Edison to the tune of a 42-6 win.

Senior quarterback Dan Huff put on a show for the hometown crowd, throwing for two TDs and rushing for two more as the Bombers established themselves as one of the GMC's top teams. But Huff was just one of many stars of the day.

The Bombers' special teams continually outplayed Edison, as they burned the Eagles twice on kick-offs. Senior Junior Jabbie opened the scoring in the first with a 65-yard punt return for a TD, while junior Keith Simpkins padded a 28-0 lead with a 59-yard return of his own for a score.

The Bombers were up 28-0 at the half, and continued to pour it on in the third quarter with a Simpkins run, and a 42-yard TD pass from Huff to junior Mark Poore.

The Bombers' defense was stellar throughout, allowing only a late TD to the Eagles when the game was nearly over.

Sayreville will look to make it 2-0 tomorrow when they host a North Brunswick team that is reeling from a 56-0 loss to J.P. Stevens. Game time is 7 p.m.

The Spotswood Chargers were another set of big winners this past weekend, trouncing Sussex Tech, 69-0.

Head coach John Fiore's squad did everything right on Saturday, jumping out to a 27-0 first quarter lead, and continuing to pour on the offense as the game progressed, while the defense repeatedly shut down any and all Mustang attempts at moving the ball. The Charger D allowed one yard of total offense.

Junior quarterback Danny Osofsky got off to a fast start, tossing four first-half touchdowns, from 31, 18, seven and 37 yards, respectively. The recipients of the scoring strikes were Brett Eckman, Dustin Katcher and Kyle Ust. Osofsky used pinpoint accuracy to carve up the Sussex Tech secondary, giving a glimpse of what Spotswood hopes to do to their GMC Blue Division foes this season.

The Chargers are certain to get a challenge tomorrow night when they take on the 1-0 Middlesex Blue Jays. Middlesex is coming off an emotional come-from-behind win over South Hunterdon, in which the Middlesex defense proved its mettle against a solid Eagle offense, allowing only 175 total yards of offense. Game time is 7 p.m. in Spotswood.

As for the Monroe Falcons, their week one match-up with New Brunswick did not play out as they had imagined it would. Head coach Jim Griffin's squad entered the game extremely confident that this would be a breakthrough season for them, and viewed the Zebras as their first victim.

But what they didn't expect was to turn the ball over as much as they did, making it easier on the explosive New Brunswick offense.

The Falcons were plagued with sloppy play on offense, which made things difficult on their defense.

New Brunswick jumped out to a 13-0 lead after the first quarter, before Monroe stormed back take the lead at the half. Senior fullback Nick Asta opened the scoring for Monroe, finding the end zone from five yards out in the second quarter. Monroe took the lead shortly thereafter when junior running back James Boyd scampered in from four yards out make the score 14-0, with the ensuing two-point conversion.

But the lead did not last long. New Brunswick responded with a 53-yard TD pass, and then intercepted an Eric Gaston pass and returned it 36 yards for another touchdown to make the score 25-14.

DAWNMARIE SANWALDT

Spotswood junior quarterback Dan Osofsky looks for an open man during the Chargers' season-opening win over Sussex Tech on Saturday. Osofsky was one of the GMC's top offensive performers, throwing for four touchdowns to lead his team to a 69-0 win.

The turnover problem got worse for Monroe on the ensuing possession, when Chris Kovach lost the ball and the Zebra's Sean Lockhardt pounced on it. The Zebras went on to add two more scores, while the Falcons could only manage a late 15-yard TD pass from Gaston to Jared Axelrod.

Monroe left the field very disappointed in its play, and ready to make up for it this week. Coaches will tell you that they hate to play good teams coming off bad losses, and Carteret is the group that will test that theory on Saturday when they travel to Monroe for a 1 p.m. start. The Ramblers did not play last weekend, but are ranked seventh in the GMC based on the return of several offensive players from what was a dynamic offense last season.

St. John Vianney, Holmdel, is another team that will need to bounce back from a week one loss, after dropping their opener, 38-14, to the Shore Conference's top-ranked team, Wall.

The Lancers played well against a well-balanced Wall team, but could not pull off the upset in a game where the Lancers were simply overmatched by the Crimson Knights. Vianney fell behind 17-0 before Adam Hansen returned a kickoff 83 yards for a TD to get his team within 17-7. Wall responded with a 78-yard kickoff return of its own, effectively closing the door on Vianney's upset bid. Vianney added a late score when Hansen ran for 76 yards, but by then Wall had the game in hand.

This weekend, Vianney will look to get in the win column when it hosts Monsignor Donovan on Friday at 7 p.m.

The East Brunswick Bears seemed to pick up where they left off last year, dropping a 35-0 contest to No. 4 Piscataway.

The Bears did very little right on Friday, allowing 362 total yards of offense, while only managing 31 themselves, and fell behind early to the talented Chiefs.

The Chiefs represented a tough week one assignment for an East Brunswick team that is confident it will improve this season, after last year's dismal 0-10 campaign.

The Bears will look to prove their improvement tomorrow when they host an Edison team coming off a 42-6 pummeling at the hands of Sayreville.

Based on the strength of their schedule (playing in the highly competitive GMC Red Division), the Bears will not have many chances to notch wins this year. Tomorrow night represents an opportunity they need to take advantage of. Game time is 7 p.m.

The defending Central Jersey Group I champion South River Rams were off last week, but will open their season on Saturday by hosting Dunellen. The Destroyers are expected to be an improved team this year, and certainly affirmed that belief with a 50-6 trouncing of Morristown-Beard on Saturday.

However, many opposing coaches still believe the Rams are the class of the Blue Division, and expect them to be one of the teams to beat in Central Jersey Group I once again, despite the loss of their two top offensive players from last year, Zack Earvin and Mike Feaster. Game time on Saturday is 1 p.m.

Bombers ready to compete for GMC White Division title

Sayreville girls loaded with talent, experience

BY WARREN RAPPLEYEA
Staff Writer

With a veteran lineup, including 12 seniors, the Sayreville War Memorial High School girls soccer team is looking to improve upon last year's 11-5-2 record.

Last season's coach Steve Fischer's team reached the semifinals of the NJSIAA Central Jersey Group IV Tournament before losing to Steinert, 2-0.

Thus far the Bombers are 1-1, having downed Woodbridge, 3-1, and losing to Union Catholic.

Sayreville has solid players throughout the lineup. The offense includes junior Kim Griffith, the Bombers' leading scorer a year ago with 15 goals and six assists. Griffith has three goals already this fall.

Seniors Jessica Roy (six goals), Tara Hromyak, and Antoinette Basile can also score. In addition, the forward line has been bolstered by the return of senior Renata Batista, who did not play last year, after scoring 22 goals during her previous two years on the team.

The midfield is particularly strong with co-captains Meredith Phair and Rose Camuto, both four-year starters.

Seniors Marissa Jack and Lindsay Kelly, junior Lynda Dabo, and sophomore Laura Fiorentino round out the midfield corps.

Defensively, the Bombers will be without sweeper Natalie Wika, a third-year starter who is out with a sinus problem, until early October. Fischer has tabbed junior Kayleigh Cesare to play sweeper in the meantime.

Senior Nicole Gallagher, junior Carolanne Restivo and sophomore Crystal Sager, are the fullbacks in front of senior goalie Melissa Braun, now in her third year in nets. Robin Bennett is the reserve keeper.

In addition, Fischer has one freshman, Lauren Bednarz, a versatile player who is likely to see action at several positions, the coach said.

"One of our strengths is our senior leadership," Fischer said. "Our two co-captains are doing a great job, and other seniors are setting a good example."

While the Bombers are excellent defensively, there should also be plenty of offensive firepower. With plenty of speed up front, opponents must be careful if they focus too much on Griffith; and Phair, Camuto and Fiorentino can score from the middle.

"We'll be a much harder team to defend against because of our balance," the coach said. "With this kind of team we also have high expectations. We're training to be champions, and the girls expect a lot from themselves."

Sayreville had just one game this week, yesterday at South Plainfield. The Bombers are scheduled for three matches next week, Tuesday at North Brunswick, Sept. 26 at home against Colonia, and Sept. 28 at Monroe.

Rams may be the team to beat in GMC's Blue Division

South River girls also hope to challenge for CJ Group I title

BY RICHARD JEROME
Staff Writer

There's plenty of cause for optimism on the South River High School girls' soccer team this fall.

After all, Coach Kerry Sinclair's Rams have nine returnees from last year's squad, which went 16-3-3 and made the sectional finals, losing to Spotswood, 4-3 on penalty kicks in overtime.

Thus far, SRHS is 2-0, with blowout wins against Carteret (12-2) and Bishop Ahr (10-0). Still, Sinclair is cautiously understated.

"We should be pretty good," he said. "We have several seniors who are real players."

Among them are goalie Tammy Wood, a team captain whose coach feels she may be the top keeper in the Blue Division; four-year starter Jennifer Yong Yow, another captain, who gives the Rams great speed at sweeper; and center-midfielder Katie Daly, who is an offensive catalyst for the Rams.

"She's all over the place, the team sparkplug, and she piles up a lot of assists," said Sinclair.

Other key 12th-graders include captain Christine Jones at fullback and halfback Heather Herrick, a four-year starter.

Certainly one of the team's brightest stars is a junior, Christine Mongelli, whose 34 goals last year placed her fourth in the area in scoring.

Sophomore Tara Takac, at stopper, brings considerable club experience to the varsity, as does center-midfielder Laura Kahse, another soph who is in her second varsity campaign. Her freshman sister, Melissa, is at fullback, while Rosa Graca, in her second year with the big club, is at halfback.

South River also has two other sisters who bring a great deal of speed to the field — freshman Sarah Petruska and her junior sibling Kristen.

Sinclair, who is assisted by Sarah Stout ("a tremendous asset," he said), leads the Rams against Metuchen today.

"We've only beaten them a couple of times over the years, so it should be interesting," he said.

South River faces New Brunswick tomorrow.

The Rams may very well be the team to beat in the GMC Blue Division this year, but should face serious challenges from Bishop Ahr, Spotswood and John F. Kennedy.

Spotswood returns its two top scorers from last year, but may struggle with a lack of depth as the season progresses. The Rams are looking forward to a rematch with the Chargers, and will get their chance next Friday when they host Spotswood in what will be the first meeting of the division's top two teams.

O.B. boys' team ready to pick up where it left off

Knights have plenty of talent back from last year's 12-6-3 squad

BY WARREN RAPPLEYEA
Staff Writer

A veteran defense leads the way for the Old Bridge High School boys' soccer team as it looks to make a return trip to the NJSIAA Central Jersey Group IV tourney.

Last season the Knights went 12-6-3, reached the quarterfinals of Central Jersey Group IV and finished second in the Greater Middlesex Conference Red Division.

"We do have some experience, particularly on the back line, but it will be a baptism to varsity for some of our new guys," coach Rich Mould said. "I think we'll be all right. It just may take us a few games to get going."

That may be true as Old Bridge lost its first game to Hunterdon Central. The Knights were slated to play East Brunswick at Geick Park on Wednesday and will visit South Brunswick tomorrow.

Senior Bob Karmel, who split the net-minding chores last year, is the starter this time around. Chris Reardon, a junior who tended goal for the junior varsity last fall, will also see time between the pipes.

Dan Rispoli, a three-year starter, anchors the defense, along with fellow senior Bryan Fitzgerald. Senior Dave Haczyk and junior Andrew Suozzo, who both saw marking duties last season, are the other starters. Kevin McCormick, a senior, and Neil Christiana, a junior, are the reserves.

Steve Villalobos, another third-year starter, is the key player in the middle. Seniors Joe Niemi and Chris Sedefian, and sophomore Tim Lucas are also likely to start. All three saw varsity time a year ago. Seniors Scott Cohen, Steve Pauls and Chris Valentino will come off the bench.

While the defense is solid, Old Bridge lost several key players, who together represented a total of 38 goals, to graduation, including Scott Gahagan, now playing at Rutgers; Ed Cwiek, who plays for Delaware; and Ian Gorham, a member of the Stevens Institute soccer team.

Nevertheless, Mould expects that his team will score goals. Speedy junior John Leone, who notched eight markers a year ago, heads the forwards. Fellow junior Will Dwornikowski and seniors Justin Brock, who led the JV in scoring, and Dan Amalbert are the other strikers.

"John [Leone] has really stepped it up for us," Mould said. "He's going to be tough for other teams to guard. Justin [Brock] has a nice touch around the net and our other forwards have a lot of speed, too, and they'll get their opportunities."

"We have the makings of a very good team," Mould added. "The key though will be playing like a team, covering for each other and helping out. Our guys have shown that they can do it; now they have to do it every game."

The following are the results of the Tamarack Women's Nine-Hole Golf Association's Sept. 5 outing. The game played was par 3s and par 5s, half handicap. Mary Ann Gelsinon won Flight A with a score of 11, followed by Edythe Gutman (11), Joan Hoskins (13) and Ellie de la Bandera (15). Joan Semen won Flight B with 13, followed by Shirley Maas (14), Marion Batchelor (14) and Inge Robinson (15). Rosann Marosy won Flight C with 8, followed by Anne Jawidzik (11), Marge Wukitsch (14) and Gloria Frock (15). Gutman had the fewest putts with 14.

The Old Bridge Warriors played another tremendous game of soccer against the Battle of Monmouth Predators, which has shaped up to be a rivalry bringing out the best in all the players. The Warriors maintained possession for most of the game and dominated the attack. Outstanding defense was played by Hursh Vasant, Liem Nguyen, Rich Einwechter, Dave Abrams and Jonathan Breen. The tying goal was scored in the last 10 minutes by forward Dan Albrecht with the assist by midfielder Mike Joilibois. Forwards Daniel DiLeonardo and Roman Makarov kept the pace up on the attack all game and found plenty of holes in the opposition's defense. The central midfield play of Kevin Reseter, Khaled Issa, T.J. Glynn and Tony Pahumi was key as they not only ground down the Predators' attack but led the offense as well. Left wing Paul Schuster was injured on a hard tackle and was out for the rest of the game, and Alex Colin brought in fresh moves to maintain the draw. Goalkeeper Philip DiMauro was not as busy in goal as usual but did make what may have been a game-saving "punch out" of a very strong Predator shot.

The CNJ United, an U12 boys' travel soccer team, captured first place in the 21st annual South Brunswick Invitational Tournament. CNJ United defeated teams from Hillsborough, Montclair, North Brunswick and Union. This was CNJ United's sixth tournament victory in the past year. The team is Gabriel Aquino, Joe Brisindi, Thomas Brynkiewicz, Tommy Cahillane, Michael Chiosi, Mohamed Conteh, Greg DeMaio, Nic Giraldo, Ryan Iannuzzo, Sean Lawrence, Dennis Mooney, Tom Parkinson, Petar Pavkovic, Michael Pluta, Mike Salazer and Matt Sepe. CNJ United is coached by Art Pluta and Dan Cahillane and assisted by Kian Barry and Danny Cahillane. CNJ United is affiliated with the Central New Jersey Silver Bullet Soccer Club.

Registration is being accepted for the Old Bridge fall ice hockey youth instructional program, sponsored by the township Department of Parks, Recreation & Social Services. The program will be held Sunday evenings at the Old Bridge Sports Arena. Youngsters ages 5 through 12 will be instructed on the fundamentals of hockey, including stickhandling, passing, and shooting. Participants are required to wear full equipment. The 90-minute sessions are broken into two age groups: 5-8 and 9-13. The 5-8 group runs from 5:15 p.m. to 6:45 p.m., the older group runs from 6:45 p.m. to 8:15 p.m. The cost is $200 for Old Bridge residents and $250 for nonresidents. For more information visit the arena Monday through Thursday from 7-8:30 p.m. or call John Piccolo at (732) 721-5600, ext. 4025, or (732) 679-8339.

The U10 Old Bridge Rockets travel soccer club defeated the Toms River Titans 2-1 to capture their first win as a travel soccer club Sunday in Toms River. Goaltender Ryan Morelli led the charge with 11 saves, while Christian Llerena, Jordan Morelli and Sami Abdisubhan combined for 21 stops. Adam Eyerman scored twice on assists by Richard Loeffler and Jordan Morelli. Charles Mantione, Shawn Orzechowski, Sean Safari, Shane Raymond and Steven Contreras also powered Old Bridge in a well-played, total team effort.

The Sayreville Athletic Association will be accepting basketball registrations Sept. 21, 28 and Oct. 12 from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. at the Morgan Complex, located on Woodland Avenue. Registration fee is $40 for one child; $70 for two, and $80 for three or more. For more information, call (732) 721-2301.

The Sayrewoods South Little League will hold registration Sept. 27 from 7:30 p.m.-9 p.m.; Sept. 28 from 10 a.m.-noon; Oct. 18 from 7:30 p.m.-9 p.m.; and Oct. 19 from 10 a.m.-noon. The fee is $65 for one child, $85 for two or more, and $50 for T-ball (5-year-olds). A work bond of $100 is due at registration. The 2003 season includes all boys and girls born between Aug. 1, 1986 and July 31, 1998. A copy of his/her birth certificate is required at registration for all new players. Registration will be held at the SWSLL Clubhouse, on Fox Street (off Cindy Street). For more information, call the clubhouse at (732) 679-6500.

Registration for the Sayreville Recreation Department Wrestling Program is currently under way. The program is open to both boys and girls through the eighth grade. No previous wrestling experience is necessary as the experienced coaching staff works with the children, breaking down into groups by experience and age. Registration is $60 for residents and $65 for nonresidents, and is being handled by the Recreation Department. Call (732) 390-7092 or (732) 390-7096.

The Sayreville Bomber Football Touchdown Club will host a night of professional wrestling featuring big name national wrestling superstars on Sept. 28 at the Sayreville High School gym. Already signed to appear are WCW legend Disco Inferno, ECW wrestlers Simon Diamond and Julio Dinero, and WWF favorite The Patriot. The first 400 people will receive a free gift courtesy of WWE. Tickets will be sold at the Bombers varsity football game this Friday night. For information, call (732) 888-1704.

An established U11 AAU travel baseball team is looking for players to compete in the spring/fall 2003 season. The squad is an established team based out of Robbinsville called the Robbinsville Cobras. The Cobras are currently ranked third in the state and have been ranked during the course of the 2002 season in the top 75 teams in the United States, according to ussportsrank.com.

The Cobras play baseball approximately 10 months over the course of the year, and are going to be trained for the 2003 season by Dave Gallagher and his staff. They travel throughout New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland, and gained a national berth to play in the AAU Nationals this year but opted not to participate so that the players on the team could play in their respective recreational league tournaments.

The Cobras play under High School Federation Rules and Regulations, which means they can use big barrel bats, do head first slides, lead and pick off runners. All interested players should call Seth at (609) 259-9566, Tony at (609) 259-2643 or Mike at (609) 324-8102. You can also e-mail them at cobrabaseball@mindspring.com or check out their Web site, www.leaguelineup.com/robbinsville.

The Cobras will be holding tryouts for the 2003 team on Sept. 22, Oct. 6 and Oct. 20, from 8:30-10:30 a.m. at Tantum Park. Tantum Park is located off of Meadowbrook Road in Robbinsville (field 3). In order to be eligible, players must not turn 12 before Aug. 1, 2003.

Monthly payments are for 30-year conventional fixed rate mortgages as detailed below. Ask about: Lower Downpayments • Lower Monthly Payments • Other Options
 For purchase prices up to $375,875 monthly mortgage payments (principal+interest) quoted in our ads are to qualified buyers, based upon a 20% downpayment and a conventional 30-year fixed rate loan at 6.375% with 3 points, A.P.R. 6.723%. As an example, a $199,000 loan would mean 360 monthly payments of $823.97. For purchase prices from $375,875 to $612,500, the monthly payments are to qualified buyers based upon a 20% downpayment and calculated at 6.625% with 3 points on a "jumbo" 30-year fixed rate mortgage with an A.P.R. of 6.934%. An example of a $350,000 loan would mean 360 monthly payments of $920.55. Figures herein are approximate and do not include property taxes, hazard insurance, or homeowners association dues for a condominium purchase. Interest rates quoted are as of June 26, 2002, and subject to change. Not responsible for typographical errors. I want to ask you a question. It may sound crazy! It may sound wild! If I could prove to you beyond a shadow of a doubt there is a 10 year old, proven home-based business system which, by working 8-10 hours a week consistently for a 2-3 year period, you could be earning $2,100-$3,600 each week in ongoing income with minimal ongoing requirements and retire with that same ongoing income, 2-3 years later...Would that be something you would consider evaluating? I'm looking for two motivated, ambitious self starters. 732-238-7131

PRAYER TO ST. JUDE

Oh Holy St. Jude, Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue and rich in miracles, near Kinsman of Jesus Christ, faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present and urgent petition. In return, I promise to make your name known and cause you to be invoked. Say three Our Fathers, three Hail Marys and Glorias. Publication must be promised. St. Jude pray for us all who invoke your aid. Amen. This Novena has never been known to fail. This Novena must be said for nine consecutive days. Thanks. S.C.

ST. JUDE NOVENA

May the sacred heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Sacred heart of Jesus pray for us. St. Jude, worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, hope of the hopeless, pray for us. Say this prayer nine times a day. By the eighth day your prayer will be answered. Say it for nine days. It has never been known to fail. Publication must be promised. Thank you St. Jude. J.B.
