DIFFERENT WAY.

There are different ways of doing things, some sensible and some foolish, some straightforward and open, while others are as dark and tangled as the thicket of the forest.

It is reported from Washington that Secretary Charles F. Smith has received official data collected for a judicious review of the present tariff.

Whereupon certain Republican editors declare such procedure to be a glaring innovation on the modern plan of tariff making.

It is decidedly a gentleman. The Harrison-McKinley tariff was constructed by an entirely different process from the Insular Democratic method. A score of advocates of tariff protection have been put to rest by the tariff.

The country by its overwhelming majority has demanded tariff reform, the adoption of a revenue system that will furnish means for an efficient and frugal administration of government will promote the general public interest, protect all interests and benefit people alike, but deny special privileges to any.

To attain such an essential result integrity and justice must go hand in hand with practical business intelligence, and they who would honor the people must honor the people.

That is the Democratic way.

FOREIGN INVASION.

A terrible free trade invasion has been discovered.

It appears that natural gas flows through pipes into the city of Buffalo, they are not being any prohibition against it in the McKinley tariff.

What an awful fact! Why did not the authors of that renowned protective measure impose a tax on foreign gas?

True, the McKinley bill declares that a duty shall be levied upon materials of foreign manufacture, articles of nearly as they are manufactured, but no protection experts can be found to tell what natural gas is made of.

The dilemma is head-splitting.

The country may be in danger of a new blow-up because of such a wretched lack of patriotic statesmanship.

The only plausible excuse is, that during the Republican legislation of McKinley, and our own Congress, domestic gas totally eclipsed all other claims.

The crisis is alarming!

HE IS RIGHT.

As is well-known, Senator Henry D. Wilson, editor of the Boston City Democrat, is one of the few Democrats in the New Jersey legislature.
