This is the Formal Announcement of the Spring Season in

Rothberg's Suits and Topcoats

But there is nothing formal about the Clothes.

They embrace every size, shape, style and point of view that Plainfield men demand and Rothberg initiative can supply.

There was an inebriate in a New York bar who said he could whip any man in the room. Nobody disputed it. Then he said he could whip anybody in New York City. Nobody questioned that. Then he extended the challenge to New York State, and got away with it. Finally he said he could whip any man in the U. S. A., and a little fellow from New Jersey knocked him down. Then the man got up and admitted he had made a mistake in trying to cover too much territory. This is the hardest advertisement for us to write because we have so much territory to cover. But we also have a whole season ahead of us. So we'll just cut it short with this single statement:

"That in spite of a world-wide shortage of wools, we have assembled for this Spring the greatest line of fabrics ever shown in the Rothberg Store, and a collection of models in both Topcoats and Suits which no other store in Plainfield can beat, for variety or style—that's a modest statement and not covering any more territory than we know we can handle."

The Latch is out—Come in.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS WILL HAVE A RUBBER DAY

Saturday, April 7, from 2 to 5 in the afternoon, about 25 boys representing the Employed Boys' Department and the High School Group will visit as many Lays in the city for old rubbers and any other salable material which might be gathered in this time of spring cleaning. We are hoping that everybody will help the boys in this work and encourage them in their effort to raise $50.00 to support the Y. M. C. A. work in the country, State, and especially special work done for the soldiers on the foreign field, and for what special effort might be put forth for our own soldiers who have been called to duty in case of need.

Whatever you have on hand that you know can be sold as junk please be ready to give to the boys as they call at your house, or if we are notified in advance, either by phone or postal card, we will make special effort to call at the time you may suggest.

The boys will appreciate your co-operation and you will be glad to have had a share in the work which is benefiting larger numbers of boys and men in the country and State as well as in our own city. Start to gather all the old rubber you have about and give it to the boys on Saturday, April 7.

COLONIA HOME IS OFFERED AS HOSPITAL

Railway, March 21.—Mrs. Charles D. Freeman has offered her house in Colonia to Governor Edge, to be used as a hospital. If needed, the building to be equipped as a hospital by the Mercy Committee of New Jersey.

The Freeman home is one of the finest residences in this section of the State. It was erected about eight years ago and is located in the hills of Colonia. It commands a view of the surrounding country for miles.

In addition to the large reception hall and parlors there are bed room suites with baths, on the ground floor and many rooms on the upper floors. X-ray hall extends around the entire building.

FRELINGHUYSEN WILL SUPPORT THE PRESIDENT

Washington, March 21.—Senator Frelinghuyesen returned to the Capitol yesterday, prepared for the convening of the extraordinary session of Congress Monday. The Senator called at the White House to pay his respects and express Secretary Taft's confidence that the President would receive vigorous support from him in the international situation.

Senator Frelinghuyesen is expected to return today. He has been at home undergoing medical treatment.

THE BIGGEST THING ABOUT THIS FOUR

Is the Buick "Valve in Head" Motor
Very little actual argument springs from price. The most obvious, and yet the most erroneous, way to sell these new four-cylinder model Buicks would be to call attention to their low cost. In reality, it is the last reason in the world why you should buy a Buick, although a reason that has its appeal to a great many people. The best reason is the world why you should buy it is because it has a Buick Valve-in-Head Motor.

Two Ranges of Power at Your Command

More truly than any other car, the Peerless Eight is ready to serve your social or sporting requirements with equal success.

The Loafing Range

In its Loafing Range the Peerless gives you that quiet, smooth, flexible, distinctive performance that you would expect in a car of real class.

The Sporting Range

You have only to open the throttle wider, thus release the double poppets and feed your motor full rations, to change the whole character of your car.

Let us demonstrate this "dual personality" of the Peerless Eight which makes it a car of almost unbelievable contrasts.

M. E. CONFERENCE TO ORDAIN DEACONS

Six Young Men Pass Final Examination at Executive Session Held Today

A. T. Logan, M. J. Newberry, Roy Minne, Horace E. Dewey, Arthur Kneelson and B. S. Custard, candidates for ordination, appeared for final examination at an executive session of the Newark Conference, in Hagley street church, Newark, this morning. They will be ordained as deacons tomorrow morning.

The report of the treasurer shows the following receipts for the fund for proacher's aid from $128,000 to $500,000.

Bishop Luther Wilson, speaking at a banquet held at the Robert Treat Hall's last night, said that this is the time for men and women to declare their loyalty to the American flag, not as a mere piece of bunting, but with true patriotic spirit. He also urged that the conference amply provide foraged ministers and pay them dollar a dollar, the same as one would pay his butcher or baker.

There was considerable criticism expressed at the Laymen's Association meeting regarding the temporary legislation at Trenton, and a resolution was adopted recommending that in case of war there be national prohibition of the sale of liquor. Several political leaders were attacked for their opposition to local option.

BARROUGH TOURISTS TO START HOME SOON

Mr. and Mrs. C. Frank French, of Washington avenue, who have been spending some time in the South, expect to start for home the forepart of the coming week. They are at present at St. Augustine, Fla., and report to their local friends a most enjoyable trip.

GERMANS RETIRE BEFORE PERONNE

Special to Courier-News: Berlin, March 31.—Another German retirement east of Peronne was admitted by the German war office today. The retreat was carried out along the Peronne Fins road after an engagement between the German and superior forces of British. The Germans gave up their positions on the Ruysalcourt, Sorail line, north-east of Soissons, as the report. The French tried in vain to gain ground near Neuville and Margival, being repulsed with heavy losses by German outposts. In Artois, on the northern edge of the new battle line, the Canadians attacked the German line four times, but were repulsed.

Wiring Your House Is Really a Simple Matter

It will surprise you to know how little disturbance is made in wiring your house for electric service.

Your friends will tell you that the wiremen leave the house in as good a condition as when the work started.

That there will be no re-papering, no smuttiling of the plaster.

Expert wiremen will astonish you by the ease in which they fish" the wires between the walls.

It sounds like a big job but it isn't. These expert wiremen are rapid workers, and in just a few days—sometimes only two—they are gone, and you are left with an electrically lighted house—a genuine convenience and delight.

The advantage of being able to eliminate such drudgery from your home through the use of an electric iron, a vacuum cleaner, a washing machine.

The satisfaction which can be had through the use of an electric chafing dish, a peccolator, tea pot, toaster, heating pad, and so on.

Cheerful lights just where you have long wanted and needed them—on the side wall at either side of a dressing table or bureau, at the head of the bed, in some cozy corner and at such points where nothing but the right combination of lights can give the soft, restful effect that is so essential in creating an atmosphere of repose and refinement.

The cost?

We've just worked out a new easy payment plan.

Let us show you how little it will cost you and all about the plan.

RELIGION OF SOUTH AMERICA DESCRIBED

Rev. T. B. Penfield Gives Last of Series of Talks at the Y. W. C. A.

"The Religion of the People" was the subject of the last of a series of four talks on "South America" by Rev. Thornton B. Penfield, of Englewood, given at the Y. W. C. A. yesterday afternoon. As on the other three occasions there was a large and appreciative audience. The speaker said that most of the religious life of the country was to be found in the large cities. Very little attention is given to religion in the country or rural districts.

Mr. Penfield told of the marked progress now being made by the Protestant missionaries working in South America, adding that the opportunities seemed to be unlimited. He traced the religious life of that country from the time of the Indians, the first settlers, until the arrival of the Spaniards and the various other races. He told how the Indians worshipped their gods, describing some of the interesting customs.

Mr. Penfield said that while much drunkenness was to be found in South America, there was an absence of excessive drinking of intoxicants west of the equator, which fact he was unable to explain. In Chile there is one saloon for every twenty-two inhabitants. The speaker emphasized the fact that it was the white man who had taken this liquor to the natives.

There is one section of South America where no estimate of the population can be made, said Mr. Penfield. So far as known there are three hundred tribes there, but it is a remarkable fact that no person who has ever penetrated this section has ever returned.

Mr. Penfield spoke of the early work of the Franciscan and Dominican Monks and the Order of Jesuits which was founded by Ignatius Loyola, who had a much higher conception of religion, and who really instituted the first missionary work in the country. He then gave a brief history of the work being done by the missionaries of the Protestant denominations to the present time. He said that some of the natives who had heard of conditions in North America, had said that the missionaries ought to first "clean their own house" before trying to go into foreign lands.

THROUGH THE WICKET

The Ladies' Nest of Owls will meet Monday evening at 8 o'clock for important business.

NOTES FROM P. H. S.

The Easter vacation began yesterday. High school students will resume their studies again on Monday morning, April 9.

Howard Stelle, the recently elected editor-in-chief of the Oracle, announced to the school yesterday morning during chapel exercises that it was necessary to create a new office, namely, the office of assistant literary editor. Howard Stelle, editor of the Junior Class, has been appointed to fill that office.

A business meeting of the Senior Class was held Thursday afternoon. Horace Hunker, Jr., president of the class, presided. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read. The treasurer's report was as follows: January, $48; expense January 25, for play bags, $1.25, leaving $47.75 in the treasury.

The presentation of gold rings, as basketball awards, was made to the members of the High School Basketball team yesterday. The rings show a model of a basketball with "H. S. 1917, thoroughbred, THOMAS" and the names of the players. Among the players are: Captain Arthur Kyle, Manager Everett Case, Phillip Miller, Theodore Snyder, Morris King, Chester Alexander, George King, and Sheldon Candray.

The aim of the class is to make the play, "Monsieur Perceon's Journey" a financial and dramatic success, and to attach these aims the High School Dramatic Society is organizing a concert. Tickets were distributed among the members of the class, which may be exchanged by purchasers at Miller's drug store. The business success of the play will depend on the business manager, De Witt Swackhammer, and the assistant business managers, S. W. McAnany, Jr., and F. Smith. The stage manager is "Cohen" Millard, who will be assisted by Maxwell Hite.

Easter exercises were observed yesterday morning in the High School auditorium. A selection of Easter hymns were sung by the club and the High School Glee Club sang the "Hymn of the Road of Calvary," an Easter cantata. Those who sang with the glee club were: The Misses Agnes Griffin, Irma Dubois, Marjorie Tiers, Irene May, Hazel Coddington, Lois Lofezar, Cora Satterly, Anna Sherwin, Clara Hadley, Edna Montgomery, Lillian Merriam, and Carol Avery. Among the boys were: Fred Van Orden, Russ Daponek, Charles Ward, Fred Ross, Edward Cronin, Everett Case, Leonard Lewis, Charles T. Todd, S. W. McAnany, Jr.

Clarence J. Woodman, of the faculty and graduate of Colgate University, spoke to the student body yesterday's chapel exercises, and urged the school to support the boys' Athletic Association next Tuesday evening. The Colgate University is sending its renowned glee and instrumental clubs to the Plainfield High School. They will give their concert next Tuesday evening in the High School auditorium, after which dancing to music furnished by the Van Orden orchestra will serve as a pastime. Mr. Woodman called for the support of the school financially as well as socially. The tickets cost about one-quarter of the price that New York people paid a short time ago at a similar concert in that city. All tickets must be exchanged at Miller's drug store for reserved seats.

LINCOLN QUARTET DELIGHTS AUDIENCE

The Lincoln University Quartet, of Oxford, Pa., appeared in the Washington school, last evening, under the auspices of the Dunbar Club, and delighted the large audience. The readings by E. S. Young were greatly enjoyed and the fine melodies and solos were unusually pleasing.

The University is one of the foremost colleges for colored men in this country and many great leaders of the colored race have received their education there. At this school of the musical entertainment a dance was held, which added to the enjoyment of the evening.

ALASKA WAS BOUGHT FIFTY YEARS AGO

Treaty Was Signed by Which This Country Bought It From Russia

Fifty years ago yesterday the treaty was signed which closed the purchase of Alaska from Russia, for $7,200,000, and in June following the treaty was ratified, and Alaska officially became the property of the United States, October 9, 1867.

The purchase of Alaska, which was then known as Russian America, was accomplished through the efforts of William H. Seward, of Auburn, N. Y., grandfather of Miss Anne H. Seward, of the Hartridge school, this city. Mr. Seward was then serving his second term as Secretary of State, having served his first term in that capacity in the cabinet of President Lincoln, and being continued in the cabinet in Lincoln's second term, and through the term of the latter's successor, Andrew Johnson.

Mr. Seward saw great possibilities in Alaska as a possession of the United States, and he purchased a means of removing a foreign land interest from the Western Continent. The main part was the cause of some criticism, and the distance from the United States in those days of limited transportation facilities, made the purchase seem to some people unwise. In the light of later days it has been proved a valuable acquisition, and showed Secretary Seward to have been far in advance of the men of his day. Since that day Alaska has yielded over sixty-six times the amount of its purchase price, an average of its purchase price every year, although for the first seventeen years Congress paid no attention to this possession.

The population is about 10,000 whites and 15,000 Indians and Eskimoes. The first settlers were devoted to fish and fur industries, but the minerals have been found and developed by the more recent inhabitants, who have discovered untold wealth in them.

Alaska was first explored by Russians, under Behring, looking for fur-bearing animals, in 1741. They came across from Siberia, where Asia and North America approach each other within a score of miles, and where it is thought the aborigines of this country crossed from Asia in small boats, before the days of the mound-builders, and started the race of Indians who were here when Columbus discovered America.

CHAS. A. McPHERSON, DIED LAST NIGHT
Charles Alexander McPherson, of Richmond street, died last night at an advanced age. Arrangements for the funeral will be announced in Monday's issue of this paper.

TRADE COUNCIL WOULD SAVE SHIPS

Urges Care In Impressment In Event of War.

New York, March 31.—The National Foreign Trade Council at a meeting here advised resolutions urging the government to protect as far as possible in event of war the trade routes of the country. Twenty-five members of the council, including trade officials and members of a business group, attended and members at a distance many on the Pacific coast, telegraphed their approval of the action.
The council's greatest immediate concern was the European blockade through systematic impressment of merchant ships, which militates against economic resources of the war. A resolution was adopted calling for the government and semi-official trade organizations to devise a method of co-operation with those engaged in foreign trade and shipping whereby the tonnage available for established trade may be conserved in the interest of economic as well as military defense and necessary impressment may be effected with the least without a trial of summer for the shortest period of time consistent with national security.
The council urged also that the Webb bill, which the senate failed to pass, be passed by the Sixty-fifth congress in order to place American exporters on an equal footing with combinations of foreign buyers equipped to depress the price of American products. The council also voted for a non-partisan recommendation that the United States tariff system, "whatever its underlying principle," be provided with resources for the improvement of foreign trade by commercial treaties, agreements of executive authorization to have developed limits and for its safeguarding under circumstances in the markets of the world.

FIVE AMBULANCES GIFTS.

Red Bank, March 31.—In the event of war New Jersey ambulance company No. 1 of this place is to have five ambulances, the gift of Charles A. Wimpheimer of Long Branch. This is the first time the ambulance company of the company up to six ambulances; one having been presented last summer by Mr. and Mrs. C. Allen Hudson of Shoreway.
Besides the automobile ambulances, Mr. Wimpheimer will give the organization $1,000. He is interested in hospital and sanitary work and is on the board of governors for the Monmouth Memorial hospital of Long Branch.

MORE TROOPS MOBILIZED.

New York, March 31.—Three thousand more men are to be mobilized in pursuance of its plan to give "police protection" to public works and buildings. Under the department's orders these mobilized are mustered into the federal service to perform the same duties as the 60,000 members of the militia already set in a score of states.
The additional troops ordered out are New York's Forty-seventh and Twenty-third infantry and Second New York's A. Georgia field artillery, and Companies B and F, Tenth field artillery, Connecticut.

KING GEORGE OF BRITAIN GOES ON WATER WAGON.

London, March 31.—It is no longer necessary to speculate to place any doubt upon the fact that the late King George V is a guest at military headquarters in London. The king's departure for the continent in conducting an active campaign for political purposes is a possibility which is not being considered by the king's physicians. It is believed the king is so well even at this time that he will be seen at the coronation of his grandson, the prince of Wales.

5,200 Pairs of Women's Stockings at 85c—Monday

They are silk stockings of the $1 grade; but because the threads run here and there a bit uneven, a little better in some places than in others, they are priced at 85c. No holes or darns. Nothing to impair wear.

We have searched many pairs without finding even the thickest threads. But all go to the one price, 85c.

Plain black, white and a wide range of desirable colors. Mostly with cotton tops and soles. So fine and sheer in quality, the thrifty will buy them by the dozen pairs.

HELPS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

BY VIRGINIA CARVER LEE

In accordance with this department Miss Lee will gladly answer any inquiry relative to domestic economy, a stamped envelope being necessary for a personal reply. Address care of "Housewife," Plainfield, N. J.

Some very crude ideas have been extended, and still receive some credence, in certain quarters, relative to the process of "hardening the constitution," as it is called. Unfortunately, many persons are not content with the fact that the constitution is "hardened" by undue exposure to the summer sun, the winter's wind, or the indulgence in strains or over-exertion.

Ill-informed mothers sometimes dip their infants into cold water in this same fallacious idea of manufacturing "hardness" to order. It is a constantly weakening, enervating process, and when the child succumbs to some acute malady, for want of stamina to stand it, and is said to have been taken away under the "mysterious" domination of "Providence," it ought to be known through the land that undue exposure does not toughen it and that the child died of it materially lowers the vitality.

The best way to harden the constitution is to take the best possible care of the person and see that proper food is provided, regular hours set apart for the feeding, immaculate cleanliness maintained in regard to the person and the surroundings, the rooms for living and sleeping purposes well-ventilated and plenty of sun and fresh air obtained on pleasant days.

Attention to these important details will do more to develop a robust constitution than any other means, and it should always be remembered that the exposure idea doesn't show the human body the consideration and care which it needs. It is not a garment, which is never made better, and frequently ruined, by being left out for hours on a blustering day, with a strong wind blowing.

Good care, however, of the body does not mean "coddling" or over-protecting. It means the use of an undue exposure in all things, and if little children play outdoors on the handsome playgrounds and they are constantly exercising and that their feet are well protected against wet and dampness.

Weak children are greatly strengthened by both sun and air baths and it would be well if every mother were so constructed that one room could be set apart for "sun baths"—a room on the sunniest side of the house, having a broad side of glass and so arranged that a uniform temperature could be maintained.

In this room, very young children will derive much benefit from playing in the sun, which is quite as good as the sun, they need plenty of sun to grow and develop. Care, however, should be exercised if the eyes are weak and the sun very strong, and if this is the case, it will be better to employ smoked spectacles to protect the eyes, rather than forego the daily sun bath.

Oil baths, if they are given properly, will convey considerable nourishment through the absorption of the oil and the "sun bath room" is just the place to give them. Sweet almond oil is best for this purpose and after the bath has been given by gentle rubbing with the lubricant, all superfluous oil should be wiped off with a soft cloth.

When salt baths are given, and these occasionally are very bracing, the sea salt should be used in the proportion of one heaping teaspoonful to every three quarts of water. Hot salt water baths should never be given unless under a doctor's orders, as they are apt to be very weakening. A little above tepid heat is best and they should be followed by a brisk, yet gentle, rubbing.

Of course, a bath of any kind should never be given directly after the child has been fed, but after the bath a little warm milk if it does not conflict with the regular feeding, will be found to act as a gentle stimulant and revitalize even the slightest of babies.

Let nothing said in this article be construed to mean that the little ones should be deprived of outdoor air and exercise, even in the cooler seasons, but apply a plea for protected exposure—an exposure stopping about the middle of the child to actually absorb from the elements.

THE SADDLEMAN'S STORY FOR TO-NIGHT BY MRS. TAWNER

HOW FRED FOUGHT THEM

Fred and his mother lived in a small house just on the edge of the great Edmonds estate. The father, who died six months before Fred was born, left the little home only half paid for, and now there was not enough money on hand to finish the purchase.

"I am going down town to sell my horse," said Fred as he finished his supper. "Maybe there will be an extra out and I can earn a dollar more than had usual."

"But, Mr. Edmonds," exclaimed the widow, "we have worked so hard and so long to raise the money. Can you not wait at least two months longer? Think how faithfully my husband served you for years."

"That is true," returned the rich merchant. "But I told him, I want this land to build on anyway, and will be glad to get it. Be ready to move by the middle of May if the money is not ready, and his car rolled away up the handsome drive."

By the time the breathless boy reached the gate he felt above the stall was a glow of flame. He turned and the door, and seized a horse quickly turning on the water. With a splash, but he shot into the black night, but he only seemed to make the flames brighter. Durie was kicking in his stall as the cinders fell on his nose and back. So Fred dragged the horse out and tried to throw some water on him.

"I have called, madam," said Mr. Edmonds, "to tell you that if the last payment is not made on this property by May 15 I will have to claim it."

"Here is Durie," I saved him," cried Fred as he fell unconscious on the ground. But when he opened his eyes he was lying on a pile of straw.

He found the horse, but on a bed in a beautiful room and his mother was bending over him, while Mr. Edmonds stood smiling at the foot of the bed.

HEALTH NOTES

Plenty of water taken, both good and laxatively is good for the complexion. A glass of hot water taken before breakfast is good for the digestion. Fruits and green vegetables are also excellent. Grains bring on heart conditions and lung difficulties, it is said, because there is then a lack of fresh air taken into the lungs and the breathing is never deep enough. Therefore, to make it a habit to breathe deeply, whether you feel ill or not, one of the best remedies for the difficulty in hand, whatever it may be. Again, not only must pastimes be interesting, but they must hold one's attention and give one a goal to work for. No one man or woman can live without the aim in life. The joy or sorrow that comes must be remembered, but there must also be some thing ahead in view, or there is a stagnant state of mind which is unhealthy.

WITHOUT doubt one of the all-important features to be noted in the newest models is the tendency toward Oriental effects, notably Chinese, although the Turkish is also apparent. As usually is the case the reason for the influence easily can be traced. This time it seems due to the fact that, while the Atlantic Ocean has proven a difficult highway, ships can come across the Pacific with ease and safety, and we are receiving materials and suggestions from China while it is difficult to get them from France. In many instances, the Chinese effects are good for there is an infinite variety of design to be obtained from the Chinese source. The colors are exceedingly rich and beautiful, and the designers of the latter sort handle them with great success. One of the notable plays of the season shows the leading woman with gowns giving very marked evidence of the Chinese influence both in the coloring and in treatment. On the stage, the somewhat extreme Chinese effect is good, but for everyday use it certainly is to be looked upon as a matter of taste and accepted with reserve. The Chinese embroideries are beautiful. Nothing could be lovelier than some of the flower motifs that are familiar and there are wonderful conventional designs that can be used with great success, while the possibilities of Chinese coloring scarcely can be too earnestly extolled. Again, the simplicity of the Chinese sleeves is lovely and the kimono model is apparent in a great many costumes. Women of fashion are utilizing genuine Mandarin coats for evening wraps and Mandarin models are employed for those whose purses are of smaller size. What we know as the Turkish skirt or the full skirt that is turned up underneath and caught to a lining to give a hint of the Turkish trousers or the Souvay effect, is much shown and especially liked. Frequently one sees a Turkish skirt combined with a blouse, giving evidence of the Chinese suggestion in the sleeves and in the general form. Evidently the designers are seeking suggestion and inspiration from all the sources open to them. It is the part of the buyer to discriminate, to use the good and forswear the extreme. The Turkish effects are, as a matter of course, largely confined to evening and to dinner costumes. A very beautiful gown seen today is of silver gauze over a callet blue silk. The skirt is simple and full, gathered at the bottom, turned under and caught to a foundation. There is absolutely no trimming, for the designer knows well that trimming would spoil the wonderful material and color effect. The bodice is one of the very new ones closed at the back. There, it forms a Y and is simply full. At the front it is laid in tucks across the center that provide firmness and is draped into short sleeves to be most charming. A novel feature is the collar-like band of white satin which stands away a little from the neck at the front. There is a straight band or belt of the gauze with a flat bow of the pump sort, making a finish at the waist line. A dinner gown is of the soft beautiful satin that is so much liked in a very wonderful shade of red that matches the American Beauty Rose. Again, the skirt is perfectly plain but very full and turned under in Turkish style. The bodice is of embroidered crepe in exactly matching color with a half low round neck and long close fitting sleeves of the kimono sort. The neck and sleeve edges are finished in the simplest possible manner, and beneath the bodice is to be seen a foundation or lining of the satin that is simply straight under the arm. The giraffe in this instance is of velvet ribbon two inches in width, passed flat around the waist, finished again with a flat bow, but falling in loops over the skirt at the left side and with one end caught up to the shoulder. These costumes do not show exaggeratedly short length, but there is something of a tendency to make the Turkish skirt very short, so short in fact that it falls to be beautiful. At a notable dance of the week we seen such a costume in crease with silk stockings and slippers to match, but the expanse between the edge of the skirt and the top of the slippers was altogether too exaggerated to be really attractive or really beautiful. Frills of lace attached under the skirts and falling to give something of the parasol-like suggestion are to be noted in many of these extremely short skirts, but so far as the writer's observation goes, the best style calls for moderate length here as it does elsewhere. The skirts are worn by the smartest women and but forth by designers of the greatest repute are not the skirts that cause a sense of shock or suggest criticism as is the display of hoisery. Chinese coloring is always rich and you can use it in bits with wonderful success. If you have the artists eye for color you can make combinations that are a real delight. A costume completed this week is made of one of the lovely orange-like silks in an exquisite shade of lavender or wistaria color, and accompanying it is a stock collar and four-in-hand scarf of Chinese yellow crepe. Until you have seen that combination you would scarcely realize how lovely it is, but, as a matter of course, both colors must be well chosen. The danger in all such fashions lies in the fact that so many women are color blind or approximately color blind. They do not differentiate shades, and if they see a perfect costume of this sort they will copy it with variations of color that absolutely spoil the effect. It is not any lavender and any yellow that can be put together, it is only the correct shades that will produce the result. A second handsome costume that gives evidence of the Chinese inspiration is of oyster white silk with a plain plaited skirt and a loose showing embroidery in discs approximately two inches in diameter in distinctly Chinese style and coloring. The design is not given. It is embroidered onto the material for that special costume, and, as a matter of course, that treatment means distinction. The Chinese embroidery does not cover the entire fabric, but shows an irregular border, so to speak, of wonderfully combined colors that are really superb.

COSTUMES of silk or of jersey made in simple styles and designed for morning wear, and costumes of dainty lingerie materials of Georgette crepe and of fine net for the afternoon, make the salient features of warm weather styles. We shall be rich in materials, we are colorful in the extreme when we go forth to watch the game of golf or perhaps participate therein, but we shall be daintily womanlike and cool in effect when we array ourselves for the afternoon visit, for the piazza, tea or for any similar function of social life. On the street, we are to wear a great deal of beige and of tan and grey and of other soft tones relieved perhaps but bright color, but, nevertheless, charmingly restful and pleasant to look upon. For the lingerie gowns of the afternoon, flit lace makes the favorite trimming and there are also wonderful embroidered trimmings that are very fascinating, and if you are so minded you can embroider the gown itself to get a really French effect and produce for a little money what would cost a fabulous sum if you buy it after it is passed from the designer to the agent and from the agent to the wholesaler and from the wholesaler to the retailer. When all these profits are paid, it is very nearly worth its weight in gold, albeit that weight is not extreme. Net is really wonderful for Summer gowns. It washes as perfectly as a pocket handkerchief, it is durable and it is the daintiest possible fabric. Organdie, however, is a close rival. Organdie gowns also are embroidered and sometimes trimmed with the flit lace. Organdie is essentially a dainty material, but if you are of an economical mind and desirous of obtaining a gown that will really see service, be careful that you purchase a good sort. To the untrained eye and to the casual observer, organdie may be all alike, but the fine French sorts, for which the big prices are charged, are given that regular crispness that remains after laundering by a treatment of the threads before the weaving is done. The cheapest sorts are treated after the weaving and after the first washing, are apt to lose the essential crispness. Fine cotton voiles are being used, too, and let it be whispered that both voiles and organdie and also handkerchief linen will be worn in colors as well as in white, and not infrequently, in the two combined. If you want to get the bright bit of color that owes its influence to a great many different causes you can wear a circle or a necktie or you can tuck a brilliant flower in the grille of quieter tone. With the Summer gowns hats are to be large and simply trimmed, and use of the very pretty fancies of the season is for the hat and parasol to match, that is to say, with the hat made with the brim of fine straw and the crown covered with material to match the parasol. Also, you may like to add a bag, for the wrist bag is a very important little accessory just now and if you have one for every costume you will have none too many to please. La Mode. What we know as the chemise gown or those that are literally in one piece from shoulder to lower edge and held by girdles are greatly liked, and they are used for lingerie and fine materials as well as for soft silks. There is a very pretty example in the illustration to the left. The plaits give extremely soft and becoming lines and since soft materials are the universal ones they do not give any sense of flare while at the same time they provide comfortable width. The bell-shaped sleeves and the round neck with the draped collar are important features for they are conspicuous in many of the newest models and many of the best ones. What is known as the tunic blouse with a belt makes another favorite. It is very charming of Georgette crepe over silk or for the crepe de chine gown, and you can, of course, use such a one as is shown here for crepe voile or for net. Net embroidered and worn over a full skirt of the same material would make a very dainty and charming costume. You do not need to exercise very elaborate embroidery.

The All Important Accessory
THAT the accessory often makes or mars the costume is a fact well understood by the well-dressed woman. This season it is, perhaps, exceptionally important and here are good designs that will prove a real help. The parasol would be especially pretty for the linen or lingerie costume and if you like you can make a bag to match, using a panel design for each side. The little bag is in what is known as a modified saddle bag form and the design can be utilized for beads or for French knots or for running stitch combined with belts. It is absolutely simple and at the same time most effective. Beads would be pretty on satin, but on linen material you could use a highly mercerized thread to get a good effect. Every smart costume calls for a sash or a girdle, and with the simple ones neck girdles will be much worn.

Capital and Surplus $800,000

A United States Government Loan

Undoubtedly the Government of the United States will shortly offer for popular subscription a large bond issue to provide funds for emergency measures. While the terms and conditions are not yet available, there will probably be a large over-subscription, due to the strong patriotic spirit aroused by recent events, as well as to the opportunity thus afforded for obtaining a tax-free security of the highest grade.

All patriotic citizens will want to do their share when the opportunity presents itself and to that end this company will be glad to assist its clients and friends by handling their subscriptions to such a loan when, as and if issued.

"I Might Have Had A Hudson Super-Six"

Last spring many thousands of car buyers delayed their choice too long. They found our output two or three months oversold.

Don't wait as they did. It means long regret to say, "I might have had a Hudson Super-Six."

No Car Like It

The Super-Six motor is patented. No other car offers anything like it.

The difference is enormous. This one invention added 80 per cent. to motor efficiency. It almost doubled endurance.

The Super-Six holds all the worthwhile records. In speed, in hill-climbing, in long distance performance, nothing has ever matched it.

But it excels above all in endurance. It broke the 24-hour record by 52 per cent. It twice broke the ocean-to-ocean record in one continuous 7000-mile round trip.

Why It Endures

The thing we fight is friction. That wastes the power, and it causes wear. It is friction that destroys machinery.

In the Super-Six motor friction is almost ended. After thousands of miles under top-speed strain, this motor has shown no evidence of wear.

Again and again it has performed feats which would break other motors to pieces. Yet not a part or bearing was affected.

That's its supreme advantage. The Hudson Super-Six will outlive, probably, any man who drives it.

New Economies

This year we add a new gasoline saver in the form of radiator shutters that control in part the heat of the motor. We add a motometer. We put a primer at the driver's hand. We use a patent pneumatic carburetor which adjusts itself to every engine speed.

We are using bodies which, in beauty and luxury, excel anything you've seen. We use plaited upholstery made of rare-grade leather. We have a finish which is wonderfully enduring.

But the Super-Six motor means more than all. It means performance such as no other car can match. It means endurance such as other cars can't hope for. It means pride in your car.

Last year, because of this motor, Hudson outsold any car in the world with a price above $1100.

You want it for capacity, for service. Find this out, for your own sake, before we get oversold.
