C. E. THANKSGIVING.

LECTURE ROOM TOO SMALL TO ACCOMMODATE THE PEOPLE.

Congregationalists Give Praise to the Divine Source of Earthly Blessings.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Congregational Church held a special Thanksgiving service last evening. It was at first planned to hold the meeting in the lecture room, but owing to the large attendance it was held in the main body of the church instead. The room was very comfortably filled with the Christian Endeavorers and their friends who heartily enjoyed the meeting, especially the very interesting address of Henry M. Maxson.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh Day Baptist Church was specially invited and a large number of them were present.

After an opening hymn and prayer by Rev. C. L. Goodrich, a double quartette, composed of Miss Eda Beekman, Miss Bayne, Miss Julia Belknap, Miss May Lovers, Horace J. Martin, William Jessup, Lyman Allen and Charles Belknap, rendered a selection "Now Thank we all our God."

A reading "For an Autumn Festival" was rendered by Miss Addie Parker Jackson in her usual finished and artistic manner.

After another hymn and reading of a passage of Scripture by Mr. Maxson, there was a solo by Horace J. Martin entitled "A Beautiful Land on High." It was finely rendered and was greatly enjoyed by all.

Following this came the address by Mr. Maxson. His topic was "Thanksgiving," and he commenced by contrasting Thanksgiving Day with the other holidays of the year.

He called it the great home festival when the wandering sons and daughters returned to the old home to meet once more. After speaking of the gradual passing away of the old-time Thanksgiving Day, he gave a brief outline of the history of the day from the time of its institution by the Pilgrims, through the first legal Thanksgiving Day made by proclamation by George Washington in 1789, up to the present time.

"What have we to be thankful for?" he said, and spoke most emphatically of the Christian Endeavor Society. He then told of the different arenas of work for the society, what it had already accomplished, and what it should do in the future. After many words of interest in regard to Christian Endeavor work, he spoke on reasons for thankfulness in the situation of our country today.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich dismissed the meeting with the benediction after a Thanksgiving collection had been taken up.

The instrumental music was furnished by Miss E. A. Whiting on the piano and D. M. Gardner on the organ.

Ragan, Thanksgiving Eve.

The Thanksgiving Eve entertainment in Plainfield will be a wonderful trip up the Rhine and through Switzerland, conducted by H. H. Ragan in Music Hall. The price of a reserved seat for this magnificent illustrated lecture will be 50 cents, and for 75 cents a course ticket including the Yosemite and the Yellowstone can now be procured at Leggett's Pharmacy, corner of Park avenue and Front street.

The Detroit Free Press says:

"His subject, 'The Rhine and Switzerland,' was exceptional, not only in the subjects offered for illustration, but for the opportunity it gives the lecturer to draw on the legendary lore of 'the snowy summits old in story.' Both of these advantages were taken by Mr. Ragan. The photographic views illuminated by the oxyhydrogen light were far superior to those usually given by the stereopticon. Their photographic properties are lost in their realism, and the scenes on the Rhine, its quaint villages and moss-covered castles, the valleys and mountains of Switzerland, were pictured with rare vividness. Not least in their artistic merits is the fine coloring of the pictures. All this Mr. Ragan embellishes with a running comment of historical narrative, interesting description and fabled anecdote. He is a lecturer of more than usual merit, and his word-painting is quite as interesting as his illustrations."

History of Plainfield.

The November meeting of the Plainfield Branch Alliance will be held in the lecture room of All Souls Church Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 27, at 3. All women interested are cordially invited to attend. The subjects considered will be as follows:

History of Plainfield.
Settlement and founders.
The course of its development.
Distinguished men.

For rheumatism I have found nothing equal to Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It relieves the pain as soon as applied. J. W. Young, West Liberty, W. V. The prompt relief it affords is alone worth many times the cost, 50 cents. Its continued use will effect a permanent cure. For sale at Reynolds's Pharmacy. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

LITTLE HAROLD IS DEAD

The Flobert Rifle Wound Was Fatal.

THE SHOT FIRED BY A PLAYMATE.

Distressing Accident Illustrating the Danger of Permitting Firearms to Be in the Reach of Children—Two Families in Deepest Grief Over the Occurrence.

The lamentable accidental shooting which was recorded in The Daily Press of Saturday, and in no other paper, terminated fatally yesterday morning. There have been many conflicting stories afloat concerning the sad affair, but the following is the true statement of the case.

Clarence Rocap, son of Charles E. Rocap, was 11 years old November 18. Harold Greenleaf, only son of George E. Greenleaf, a draughtsman of the Pond Machine Tool Company, was just 9 years old. The boys lived side by side, and on Saturday both boys begged their mothers to let them go and play football at MacDonald's in Evans.

The boys went off together and played football for some time. It seems that there are several older boys in the neighborhood who own rifles. Clarence had been with these boys and watched them try to drill lead out of an old rifle, some days previous. This old rifle had, unknown to Clarence and Harold, been sent off to be repaired; but in the barn stood two other rifles.

As the boys stopped playing football, they all wanted a drink save Clarence. He went into the barn. Harold Greenleaf stood near the barn door, and Clarence took up what he supposed to be the old rifle, and playfully raised it in the air and let go the trigger. He had no sooner let it fall than Harold Greenleaf fell.

Clarence Rocap ran to him and said: "What's the matter?"

Harold said: "I'm shot!"

The boys gathered round him, and Clarence pulled open his shirt, and saw blood. He told the boys to get a rag quick. He himself held his finger over the bullet hole until the rag came. Then the people in Mr. MacDonald's house carried him into the sitting room. Kind neighbors ran to the factory for Mr. Greenleaf, and the boys ran to the coal yard of Davis & Stevens, whence telephone messages were sent. In about fifteen minutes three physicians were there, Drs. G. W. Endicott, E. W. Hedges and B. Van D. Hedges. Clarence ran home crying, and himself covered with blood.

Mr. and Mrs. Rocap hurried to Mr. MacDonald's. The doctors found that the bullet had entered the breast bone, glanced off below the heart, and then they could not trace it.

Dr. B. Van D. Hedges remained all night with Harold, and at 11 internal bleeding set in. At 8 a. m. Sunday the doctors said it was only a question of a few hours. About 11 death came.

Clarence Rocap had never had a firearm, and never had been allowed to use one. He is nearly prostrated with grief. Mr. and Mrs. Greenleaf have a greater sorrow, for it was their only son; and the bright little curly-headed fellow was a great favorite.

While Clarence is blamed for using the rifle, it is also felt that the men were at fault who permitted a loaded gun to be where so many small boys constantly play.

Both boys were nice children. Clarence was in Miss Humpston's class at school, but Harold had never yet gone to school, being tutored at home.

The County Physician and police investigated the matter thoroughly, yesterday, and exonerated all parties concerned from blame. After consulting with the Prosecutor, the County Physician issued a burial permit.

The boys who witnessed the accident were Bert Brandon, Bert King and Samuel McDonald. The rifle was owned by Wm. Morgan.

Thanksgiving for the Poor.

The Relief Association intends giving the usual Thanksgiving dinner this year to its beneficiaries and the town poor. It is hoped that the many friends of the society will contribute generously, as is their custom, towards the supply, for the number to be helped is always a large one.

Contributors of money, vegetables and poultry may be sent to the Relief rooms, 303 West Second street, Tuesday, Nov. 27, and until noon Wednesday, Nov. 28.

If poultry be sent, chickens or turkeys not exceeding in weight 8 lbs are requested.

FALLIE AMES BROOKS, Secretary.

Conductor Hatfield's Train Stopped.

When the New Jersey Central train due at Perth Amboy at 9:05 a. m. reached there Saturday Conductor J. B. Hatfield of Plainfield reported that his train had been bombarded with stones or shot while passing through the woods just south of Woodbridge Junction. No one was injured, but several windows were smashed. Some of the passengers said when they reached Perth Amboy that the train had been shot at, but others claimed to have seen three boys throw stones.

FIRST PHILHARMONIC.

GRATIFYING REPETITION OF FORMER SEASON'S SUCCESSSES.

Miss Lillian Blauvelt Captivates a Critical Audience, and the Instrumentalists Give Rare Example of Perfect Orchestral Harmony.

The New York Philharmonic Club gave a perfect performance in the Casino of the Country Club, Saturday night, and the soloists who assisted were thoroughly successful in pleasing a critical though indulgent audience. H. O. Newman is to be congratulated upon his public spirit in bringing the Philharmonic Club to Plainfield, and again upon the generous response accorded to his request for subscriptions, for the Casino was well filled at the club's first appearance of the season. That the series will be one of the most successful ever inaugurated in this city is now assured.

The work of the club members, Saturday, was on a par with that finished excellence which has made them famous. No matter how intricate the subject, their rendition seems always to be equally dextrous and sympathetic. They always present the selection in the manner which would most please the author, were he present, and that art lends added charm to their own genius.

The programme presented Saturday has been printed in these columns, and it is difficult to single out any part of it as being particularly well played; the whole being so satisfactory. The new piece by Gilest was received with marked favor, likewise a Gavotte by Hofman.

Henri Hasagman's cello seemed imbued with life under his deft fingers. The El Dances by Popper, a wonderfully difficult selection, was presented in all its striking beauty by the player. On encore he played an adagio by Gutterman.

Miss Lillian Blauvelt, as Mrs. Smith is still named on the concert stage, won the admiration and one might almost say the affection of everyone present. Her grace of manner added to personal charms made her natural talent seem more pronounced than that of any singer who has appeared in Plainfield for years. Her voice has a flexibility and clearness of tone that is seldom found with one of such sweetness as hers.

Encores were demanded of her after both her selections, and she responded most graciously. Her husband accompanied her, and his playing was so modulated that her clear, firm voice was always well supported. Her encores were Mrs. Beach's "Ecstasy" and Van der Stucken's "Fallth Fallth." Miss Blauvelt studied under Van der Stucken.

Sol Maroonson proved himself a brilliant young violinist. He was forced to respond to a vigorous recall, and gave Germany's national hymn. This he played in a very wonderful manner, carrying the air and an intricate accompaniment without a break.

The quartette of violins, viola and cello was certainly as harmonious as any number on the programme. Many present doubtless wished that Eugene Weiner, the flutist, might have been named for a solo. He is leader and manager of the Club, and has been a familiar figure of the concerts ever since the old days when they were given in the First M. E. Church. He is the only remaining one of the originals. It is hoped he will be given solo part in the next concert on Tuesday, Dec. 18, when Miss Clara C. Henley, soprano, and Conrad Behrens, basso, will be the soloists.

SIGHT, SILENCE, SONG.

NOVEL PUBLIC MEETING OF THE W. C. T. U.

Temperance Truths Told by Stereoscopic Views—A Large Audience Impressed by the Service.

The "Silence Meeting" held in Music Hall yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. proved to be as interesting as it was novel, and it was enjoyed by an audience that crowded the hall.

The meeting was opened with Congregational singing, led by Horace J. Martin. This was followed with pleasing vocal solos by Miss Kittle Glenn, Miss Etta Krymer and Miss Beate Blair.

The selections by the trio, Mrs. B. T. Barnes, piano, P. Ludwig Conde, violin, and Firmin Ferrer, cello, was delightfully rendered; and added much to the interest of the meeting.

The novel part of the programme was the exhibition by use of stereoscopic and large canvas of Scripture selections and quotations from eminent men and leading newspapers in regard to the liquor traffic. Except during the singing not a word was spoken.

The whole affair was decidedly successful in carrying out the purpose of the women, that of spreading temperance truth.

J. Hervey Doane, Walter Freeman and Curt Gotthel made the excellent slides, and manipulated their exhibition.

Plainfield's School of Music.

The musical recently given by the advanced pupils of the Plainfield School of Music at their rooms in the Babcock Building is an event which should mark an era in the history of Plainfield.

Avowedly musical as the population is, many are yet ignorant of the exceptional advantages offered here at home for thorough and scientific study; but a brief review of events whose direct bearing may have been overlooked will prove that the claim is not without a firm basis.

Nearly two years ago, Walter Arnold Hudson of New York opened a studio of voice culture in Mr. Hulet's rooms on West Front street, and introduced himself to the public through a recital which he gave in the First Baptist Church with the kind assistance of Wm. E. MacClymont. Mr. Hudson came to Plainfield wholly without local influence, relying for success upon the belief that genuine merit, if united with patience and earnestness of purpose, will ultimately win recognition. That recognition has been won, and is perhaps the more secure because it has come slowly.

In the Spring of 1893 Mr. Hudson moved his studio to the Stillman Building, and a year later he conceived the idea of founding a school of music, for which purpose he associated with himself Wm. E. MacClymont and P. Ludwig Conde.

Mr. MacClymont's qualities as a musician are so well known in Plainfield that they need no comment, but it is pleasing to note that his merits have attained more than a local recognition, as is proved by his membership with the New York Manuscript Society.

Mr. Conde also has an excellent local reputation of long standing, and his ability as a teacher of violin and cello was well illustrated by the work of his pupils in the concert which he gave in the Casino the evening of May 1. His studies in Germany during the past summer have undoubtedly fitted him to do even better work.

Of Mr. Hudson, as the founder and director of an institution whose need has long been felt, it may be well to speak more fully. A pupil of the elder Lamperti (to whose training is due the fame of the prima donna Albani), Mr. Hudson has reaped every advantage to be gained from a thorough course of study with the great teacher. The superiority of his method is evident from the ease of his tone production, the remarkable distinctness of his enunciation, and the perfect evenness of tone quality throughout the whole compass of his voice, while his artistic interpretations evince a mind of deep musical sympathy. That he has the gift of imparting a practical knowledge of those qualities which make his own singing so admirable, was demonstrated by the work of his pupils, Miss Stevens and Mr. Bond, who, after but little more than a year of study, successfully rendered the soprano and tenor solos in the performance of "The Holy City" given in the First Presbyterian Church July 8.

In these days of charitism and pretence, the work of a thorough and conscientious teacher cannot be too highly valued; and Mr. Hudson deserves the gratitude of the musical public for his individual work, as well as for the foundation of a school of music of the highest standard.

Nolan's Light Sentence.

Edward Nolan, who sold Jersey Central metal to Junkman Haulenbeck, was sentenced by Judge McCormick to 30 days in jail. The lightness of his sentence was because he materially aided in Haulenbeck's conviction.

As already stated in these columns, Haulenbeck got one year in State Prison. His wife wept bitterly in court.

CANDIDATES SPEAK.

School Board Nominees State Their Position.

IT IS AS THE PRESS PREDICTED

They Decline to Be Bound by the Resolutions of the Convention Which Nominated Them, and Say It Will Be the Duty of the New Board to Test the School Law.

The following was sent to The Daily Press today for publication:

To the Voters of the City of Plainfield: GENTLEMEN—We note the expression of opinion made by the Republican Convention regarding Senate Bill No. 51.

There has been no intention on the part of the Board of Education to act otherwise than in accordance with all laws relating to their duty; and whoever may be future members of that Board will no doubt pursue the same course.

It will be the duty of the new Board to ascertain just what their powers are, a duty that cannot be avoided, whoever may be members of it and whatever may be their individual opinions in regard thereto.

Should the voters of Plainfield decide to retain us in the positions we have occupied in the Board we will serve the interests of the city as well as we can. Should we be relieved of duty we will take no exception and express no regrets. Respectfully,

J. B. PROBASCO.

LEANDER LOVELL.

Plainfield, N. J., Nov. 24, 1894.

[This reaches the voters of Plainfield after Messrs. Probasco and Lovell have filed their acceptances of the nomination for School Trustees. Before nominating them, the Republicans in convention adopted a platform which is virtually repudiated in this communication. Directly after their nomination Chairman E. R. Pope said: "They are certainly bound to that platform. They cannot honorably accept the nomination without agreeing to abide by the resolutions." The announcement of their independence is made at such a late hour that the citizens have now no opportunity of preparing a ticket against them. By law no nominations are possible after tonight.

OLIVER L. TWEEDY.

From The San Angelo Standard, Texas, Nov. 17, 1894.

The city was startled Thursday night when the news arrived from Knickerbocker that Oliver L. Tweedy had died there suddenly of heart failure at 6 Thursday evening. Oliver L. Tweedy was one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Tom Green County. He came to this county about fifteen years ago from Plainfield, N. J., and became interested in commercial pursuits at Knickerbocker, where he has lived ever since. Every year of his life added new names to his list of friends, and it is no mere empty praise to say that he was one of the best liked and most respected citizens in the county. His warm heart, genial, kindly ways and open hand will be sadly missed at the little village in the hills and here in town, where his frequent visits were always enjoyed. The funeral services will take place today at the residence of his brother, Joseph Tweedy, on Beauregard avenue, at 4 p. m. The remains will be taken to Danbury, Conn., for interment.

Thanksgiving's Turkey Trip.

The sale of seats for the elaborate production of "A Trip to Turkey" which comes to Music Hall Thanksgiving night has opened at the box office and from all indications they will have an immense house. This company is composed of artists of merit, the production is full of sparkling music, songs, dances, a strong chorus and ballet led by the European sensational dancer, Donna Dean. The costumes are gorgeous in Oriental beauty and the special scenery magnificent in every detail.

He That Rutch His Tongue.

Lawrence Wallace of Fanwood, who on Wednesday afternoon was committed to jail by Judge McCormick for being noisy in the court room, was set at liberty Friday afternoon.

In discharging him Judge McCormick said that the Court hoped his experience had taught him a lesson; such characters as he, if they see proper to enter a court room, should remember that silence must be observed.

Fraternal Visit.

Several members of the Grand Army of this city will go to Jersey City this evening to attend the reception given by G. Van Houten Post to Commander-in-Chief Thomas Lawler of Illinois, and Staff and Department Commander John Shields of Flemington and staff in the Tabernacle, Jersey City.

Four Dead in One Family.

A sad case of affliction to a family near Stony Hill, whose names we are unable to learn, is the death of four children during last week by that dreaded disease, diphtheria.

TROLLEY PROGRESS.

PISCATAWAY ALMOST UNANIMOUS IN ITS FAVOR.

Rev. J. B. Cleaver Appears in Opposition—The Company Has Secured the Right of Way—Another Meeting Soon.

A large attendance made a lively meeting of the Piscataway Township Committee and voters Saturday morning and afternoon. Rev. J. B. Cleaver appeared in opposition to the enterprise, but chiefly for personal reasons. The company has secured nearly all the frontage in the township, and 90 per cent. of the lineal frontage, and 75 per cent. of the assessed valuation in the township.

The meeting was adjourned, to meet again Monday, Dec. 3.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTEBOOK.

It was announced by Superintendent Maxson this morning that the arrangement of prizes for the essay of "Tobacco, Its Use and Abuse" had been changed. Instead of a general contest open to all the school, there will be a special prize of $3 for the best essay in each class. The date on which the essays are due has been changed from Dec. 10 to the first Thursday after New Year's Day.

It was also announced that the donations for the regular High School Thanksgiving offering would be received tomorrow and exhibited on the platform in Assembly Hall before they are distributed.

The High School boys played basketball Saturday afternoon. Two games were played between the regular team and the scrub, both of which the regular team won, first by a score of 25 to 0 and in the next 13 to 0. The goals were made by George P. Smith '98 and Volney F. Green '96.

The last practice before the match games will be held this afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

There was a meeting of the Senior Class immediately after dismissal. John V. Beekman, Jr., was elected vice president.

It was decided that the class should unite in their donation for the High School offering. Valentine Gander was appointed a committee to take charge.

NINETY-FIVE.

The Black Crook.

The attraction to be presented in Music Hall, Saturday, December 1, is the world-famed spectacular romance "The Black Crook." It has been played more times than any play known to American theatre-goers. The scenery of which there are tons, is alone worthy of especial attention, and when the superb dramatic cast, the charming ballets, the dazzling costumes and the sumptuous transformation scenes are considered, not to speak of the numerous European specialties, it is easily the most imposing production that our citizens will have a chance to witness this season. Its long run at the Academy of Music, New York, and its success on tour last season, should lend additional interest to the engagement here.

All Souls Lectures.

A fine course of lectures has been arranged for All Souls Church, to take place as follows:

Dec. 7—"Walt Whitman", by Rev. Marie St. Croix Wright.

Dec. 14—"A Half Dozen English Cathedral", by Rev. Hobart Clark. Illustrations by Wm. L. Gibbs.

Jan. 4—"The War between China and Japan", by Rev. Watari Kitashima, Ph.D. Jan. 18—"The Labor Problem", by Hon. Roswell G. Horr.

Feb. 1—"George Eliot the Poet", by A. Emerson Palmer.

The lectures are to begin at 8. Course tickets, $1, will be on sale at Hebard's and Leggett's drug stores.

Watching Park Newcomer.

Messrs. Hand & Runyon have sold one of their choice Watching Park properties to Frank Hand. The location is Fairview avenue. The price was $6,500. Mr. Hand and family will take possession about the middle of next month.

Plainfielders in It.

Barnett, Cumling and Monte Scott are among those who take part in the bicycle races in Madison Square Garden this week.

Orange and White.

The Music Hall boxes occupied by the Kappa Delta Phi of the High School, at the great Ragan lecture Thanksgiving Eve, will be decorated with the new society colors, orange and white.

Mr. Ira P. Wetmore, a prominent real estate agent of San Angelo, Texas, has used Chamberlain's Cough, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in his family for several years as occasion required, and always with perfect success. He says: "I find it a perfect cure for our baby when troubled with colic or dysentery. I now feel that my outfit is not complete without a bottle of this Remedy at home or on a trip away from home. For sale at Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager."

BILL MARLIN'S
THANKSGIVING.

BY CAPTAIN W. E. SHELTON.

(Copyright, 1894, by American Press Association.)

"I ain't complainin' of grub or grog aboard this 'ere raft, but if the old man had been so eminded as to take my advice and leave the cook's cat aboard stiddy hevin her over the rail soon's we left port the brig 'd a-been makin' into Boston in another week stiddy hevin gone to Davy Jones', and him, with the rest of the crew, clawin' seaweed 'longside of her. I wouldn't scar a rope's end fur this 'ere turn in the tide," continued Bill, takin an extra half hitch in his lashing's, "if I hadn't made a date with a shipmet o' mine, Lijah Hawkins by name, hailin from New Bedford, when he's afloat, but now bein ashore in them 'ere parts. When I pass my word, Jack, it's same's if I signed articles, and that's mor'n I've done aboard this crib."

The raft was made of spars and empty pork barrels, with a cutdown jib rigged on a jury mast forward, and our stores and dunnage in a lead colored chest lashed amidships alongside of the water cask, and the whole drippin' outfit rolling on the seas, climbin' up hill and down dale in the trough and clawin' off sideways like a fiddler crab.

Accordin' to our reckonin, this was the 13th of November (year '45), and three days before the brig Nancy of Portland, from Liverpool into Boston, with a cargo of tin plate, had been struck by an easter, and the captain had driven her before the winds for 48 hours under next to bare poles until her fore and main sticks went overboard in an extra gale, and her rotten old hull sprang a-leak. When the old man gave up the pumps, expectin her to go down before mornin, we provisioned the two quarter boats regular, and the captain, hevin the compass, and Bill Marlin, bein mate of the Nancy, hevin only the ship's barometer to sail by, the crew was that crazy to go in the captain's boat that they swarmed over the side and swamped her before our eyes, leavin' Bill and me leamin' on the rail and the old man and all hands goin' to the bottom like lead afore we could heave 'em so much as a rope's end.

Me and Bill eased away the other boat, and when she struck the water a cross sea stove her against the brig and crushed her like an eggshell.

"Shipmet," says Bill, "it ain't fittin to go to sea jist yit, and what we've got to do is pump 'er," and pump her we did all that night, watch and watch, the other one lashin the raft. By mornin the water had gained nine inches on 'us, and the ship had settled that much by the side. Bill's face was long, but he allowed it warn't no use to put off till the raft was shipshape and her stores lashed proper, so we worked and pumped till near noon and swung the whole outfit overboard by the mizzin-mast boom and got onto it in our oldskin pajamas and clear of the Nancy in time to see her go down bow on.

When I asked Bill what the nature of his engagement with Hawkins of New Bedford might be, he said it was social and religious and included wearin' alongside and heavin aboard a Thanksgiving dinner, and he had the old man's consent beforehand for the cruise ashore.

"I was two year shipmet with Lige aboard a Bedford whaler up north in '38 and '9, and then I struck him agin in '43 aboard a West India lime juicer in the coastin trade, and comin into Boston on time we had shore leave together on Thanksgiving day, and bein New England born of honest fisherfolks we kept the day proper, accordin' to our lights. The next I seen of 'Lige after we left the lime juicer was when we saw breakin' out the Nancy's cargo alongside the Liverpool docks him a-celebratin his last day ashore afore the schooner sailed for New York and long with 'im a Kato Frisco, and after cruisin around with them two all day, bein sober, I made the date with Lige and seen the two aboard the Lightfoot, which was a three master and a heavin of her anchor then and there for to put to sea."

Bill hevin said them words, a green sea combed over his end of the raft, and when he came up blowin he pulled the glass out of his pocket, and holdin it up he says, eyin it careful: "She's gone up five points, Jack, since we shipped, and I 'low she's moderatin. What quarter's the wind in?"

"How do I know?" says L. "Hain't the old man got the compass?"

"So he has," says Bill, "and he ain't needin of it either, hevin made port. I've been 20 years afore the mast," continued Bill, lookin' grieved, "in nigh as many ships, and I've observed that when a sailorman ships in a hurry he gineraly carries some article in his dunnings what he'd better left behind."

The glass was right, and before night set in the sea had moderated perceptibly, and although we were awake all night securely lashed to the raft, drenched with salt water and hevin nearly perished with cold, hope revived at the comin of daylight. The runnin seas had quieted to long smooth swells, and then the sun came up over the port bow and put new life into us. We unlashed ourselves from the chest, where we had been sittin back to back for eight hours, and spread the bit of sail and set her course west, as there away New Bedford lay, and Bill swore while there was a biscuit in the locker he'd do his best to keep his date.

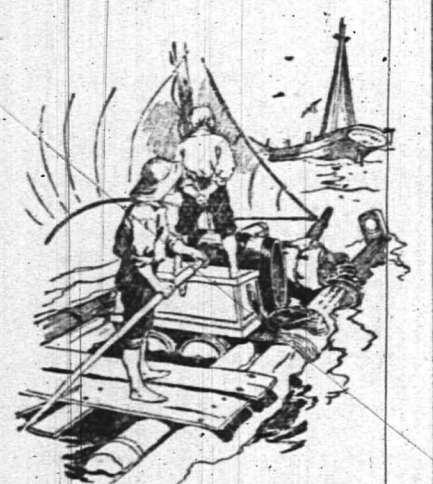

"Lige Hawkins is an out and out sea lawyer," said Bill, "and altho' 'tain't no use I'd feel more easy in my mind to know she's headed for Bedford." Then we ate some pilot bread and dates out of the chest and took a swallow of rum and rummaged down to the pipes and "bacy and took off our oldskin pajamas to let the sun have leeway onto our woollens. Bein refreshed, Bill set on the chest and tended shew while I lay astern and held her across the swells with a long oar.

"I won't say as I altogether like this," remarked Bill between pulls at his pipe, "but I tell you, Jack, the next ship I sign aboard 'll be after I 'xamin her sticks. It's my opinion then as was on the Nancy had dr'ot into 'em, not to mention the hull."

"I'm glad you're expectin to have the chance to sign again, Bill," I said.

"In course," cried Bill. "I've been shippin aboard one tub after another all my life, and I 'low to keep on doin of it."

After that the weather held fair, with plenty of wind astern, and we worked the raft, watch and watch, and got our regular sleep. On the sixth day of the cruise, which was the 24th of the month, some wreckage hove in sight dead ahead, and when we made it it proved to be the two masts of a schooner held together by the stays, with booms and gaffs and main sheets complete and all the halliards.

"More dr'ot," says Bill, "but I reckon we better wear ship and tackle to it." The sea bein calm, we did so, and Bill got off his togs and boarded the sticks, with a line about his middle and a meat knife from the chest in his teeth. It was an all day's job, but with an occasional dram to keep out the cold we got off the sails and floated the masts end for end and lashed one on our starboard side with the boom across the stern and the other to port with her boom across the bows, and with the gaffs turned up and guyed forward and rigged with canvas we had a craft that no sea could make under, although it might sweep us off.

"There," says Bill after we got her under way, with the sun an hour high over the port bow, "she may not be fast, but she's stanch, and we're b'illin away for Bedford."

Afore sun set we sighted a ship to leeward beatin up against the wind, and when she came alongside she hove to and sent off a boat.

I was feelin mighty chipper at the prospect of seeing the American flag again, but Bill Marlin sat on the chest amidships puffing away at his pipe.

"Lower away the mainsail and ease 'er," roared Bill.

I lowered the sail, and the raft laid to, and by that time the boat swung alongside, eight oars up, man-o'-war style, and the starchiest Yankee mate in the stern that ever sailed out of Boston.

"Come, tumble aboard here, men," says the airymate, "and be quick about it. There's no room for that chest."

"Where ye bound?" says Bill Marlin, takin out his pipe and spittin to windward.

"What's that to you where we're bound?" growls the mate from Boston. "Look a-here," says Bill Marlin, "I've got a date with a shipmet in New Bedford, and your bow looks to be onto the wrong end o' the ship. I ain't goin back to Liverpool, and you better git your boathook out o' my sta'b'ard sail."

"What time are you due in New Bedford on that timber crab?" says the mate, laughin.

"On Thanksgiving day," says Bill. "Whenever that is."

"Well, that's tomorrow by order of the governor of the commonwealth of Massachusetts," says the mate.

"You might a-missed yer reck'nin," says Bill.

"No," said the mate. "Here's a Boston paper a week old with the proclamation in it," and with that he hove the newspaper onto the raft.

"Well, where be we anyway, shipmet?" says Bill, softenin.

"We're five days out from Boston," says the mate.

"A-beatin and a-clawin up agin a head wind and sea," says Bill, scratchin his head and pullin the glass out of his pocket and holdin it up.

"Are ye comin aboard or ain't ye?" roared the mate, standin up in the stern.

"Stan by, shipmet," says Bill, "and leave me time to settle. Fair and stiddy at that. Thanks kindly, officer," says Bill, standin up himself alongside the chest. "The raft keeps her course for Bedford."

"Anything you're short of?" says the mate.

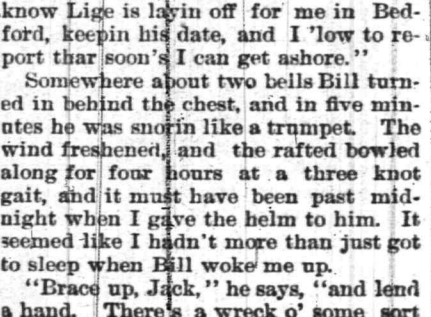

"I wouldn't refuse a little extra grog and somethin ready cooked," says Bill.

While we were layin for the donation the moon came up off the stern post, and Bill spelled out the governor's proclamation. The mate did uncommonly well by us, and besides the grog sent as a four pound lump of plumduff. And the quartermaster who brought it had been a shipmet of Bill's somewhere in the China seas, and a finer night with a fair wind I never saw aboard ship than that was time we got under way.

"I never knew any luck come of changin ships at sea when the other one was goin in the wrong direction," says Bill, "though I wouldn't mind boardin one headed for the 'Merican coast. I know Lige is layin off for me in Bedford, keep his date, and I 'low to report that soon's I can get ashore."

Somewhere about two bells Bill turned in behind the chest, and in five minutes he was snorin like a trumpet. The wind freshened, and the rafted bowled along for four hours at a three knot gait, and it must have been past midnight when I gave the helm to him. It seemed like I hadn't more than just got to sleep when Bill woke me up.

"Brace up, Jack," he says, "and lend a hand. There's a wreck o' some sort layin off the sta'b'ard bow, and I 'low to sheer up and board 'er."

WHEN WE SAT DOWN TO THE SPREAD.

Sure enough, not two miles away was a hull layin rather low in the water, with the mizzinmast standin.

"I've had my eye onto her for an hour," says Bill, "and I'm a lubber if she don't belong to the two sticks we some up with this mornin'."

THANKSGIVING.

a belayin pin in his hand, smorlin like a porpoise. "Why don't ye speak a ship afore ye board her?" says he, cussin awful, and then he threw up his hands and dropped the pin.

"My God, forgive me!" he says. "It's Bill Marlin."

"What of 'tis?" says Bill, gettin on his pins, mighty sore and put out. "What sort of a d—d blue nosed sea lawyer of a walkin' ghost be you any way to shoot up out of a wreck and nigh skeer the life out o' two honest sailormen off a raft, and them swamped and starvin? I'm a fo'castle cat stuck in tar of I didn't think better o' you, Lige Hawkins," and with that they fell a-foul of each other, waltzin all over the deck, and while they was at it the Kanaker sailorman walked his black legs out of the companionway and began to dance around the two.

"Today's the day," says Bill, punchin Lige in the chest and gettin the Boston newspaper out of his oilskins. "There's the governor's proclamation. Read it."

"Well, I'm d—d!" says Lige, leerin at it upside down.

After Bill shook hands with the Kanaker man from the guano ship he introduced me all round and explained to Hawkins how we had left the Nancy and how we had refused to go on board the ship for Liverpool the night before.

By that time the sun was lightin up Hawkins' bald head, and he a-gapin at Bill, with his breeches in his hand, which the nigger had brought to him.

"Now," says Bill, "what be you layin here for, Lige Hawkins, and what's become of the skipper and the crew of the Lightfoot?"

"What am I layin here for?" says Hawkins. "I'm a waitin for a ship into Boston. The old man and the rest o' the hands went aboard a bark bound into Bristol two weeks ago, and wanted me to go along with them, but I told 'em I'd see 'em d—d first, hevin a date with a shipmet in New Bedford on the 'Merican coast."

"Git into yer togs," says Bill. "We've got a chest full of plumduff and grog aboard the raft."

The Lightfoot was loaded with wool and some light merchandise, and when the crew left her Hawkins said the sea was so rough the skipper expected her to swamp, and it was all they could do to get off the men. There was no lack of provisions and stores on board, and the Kanaker man and I turned in and did the cooking, and Bill nailed the governor's proclamation to the mizzenmast.

"Business is business," says Bill. "What's the bloomin cargo worth, Lige?"

"Nothin where she lays," says Hawkins, sorry. "If we had her into port, she'd be good for 100,000. It's a pity, Bill, so 'tis; but there ain't a yard of canvas onto 'er."

"That 'n'd be $25,000 apiece, allowin four lays into 'er share and share," says Bill.

"Waal," says Hawkins, "what of it?"

"Nothin," says Bill, "only I've brought along two mainsails and yer fair d' sticks."

And with that the two went down the fore chains onto the raft.

By dinner time they had got a new set of sails onto the mizzenmast, hoisted the chest on board and laid their plans for riggin' light canvas forward and takin the prize into New York, all of which we afterward did.

When we sat down to the spread on deck, besides the plumduff and the grog, we had soap and salt junk and marmalade and coffee, and Bill said, considerin of what we'd gone through and what we had before us, he'd be willin to give a small lay into the cargo for a sea parson to say grace onto the grub.

"When we had cleared the board, we brought out the pipes and bacys from the chest, and all hands 'lowed we had plenty to be thankful for."

"I'm a plain sailorman," says Bill Marlin, "and a yo heave ho, but when I makes a date with a shipmet I'm goin for to keep it if so be I can, and the same for Lige Hawkins from New Bedford town, and a yo heave ho, heave ho."

The wind was fallin off, and we beat up slow. When I turned out, she was clean out against the sky, her mizzenmast swayin across the stars, but by the time we made her it was gettin daylight. The sea was like oil when we came alongside and hitched onto her fore chains and climbed on deck.

"I ain't deryin," says Bill, "that there's comfort in standin on solid oak agin, and she ain't so bad store, but I reckon we could work her by riggin some o' our spare canvas forr'd. Jist you leer into the galley, Jack," says Bill, "and I'll spy out the cabin."

With that he went rollin aft till he pitched up alongside the stumps of the mainmast.

"More dry rot, Jack, just like I told ye," roared Bill, lookin back.

That minute I near fell over into the chains, for up out of the cabin companion behind Bill was a human head as bald as a grape shot.

"What the h—l," says the head, and Bill was that skared, being powerful superstitious, that he started to run and caught his toe in the main hatch and rolled over on the deck. The bald-headed man came out in his shirt, with

THANKSGIVING.

THANKSGIVING day is hailed with equal and uniform delight by the lovers of turkey and the lovers of football. In fact, the honors of this ever pleasant and interesting festival are divided between the rich and toothsome bird and the almost universal pigskin sphere. After the turkey, the plum pudding; after the plum pudding, which soothes and sustains one like the kiss of a summer girl by the moonlit sea, the football.

Some men go from the country to the city to see a game of football, while others go from the city to the country, when there is no game, to shoot birds. But they all eat turkey if this divine bird comes within their pecuniary reach. The Ethiop who is so unfortunate as to have no pecuniary reach worth speaking of must depend upon his natural reach to penetrate the foliage of his neighbor's tree and pluck therefrom a Bartlett pear. Some men will eat corned beef and Irish stew on Thanksgiving day and imagine that they are doing the day and themselves justice. Such men are moral monstrosities that defy analysis. Those who would attempt to fathom them and arrive at an intelligible and satisfactory solution could make more money writing visiting cards with a telegraph office pen. Not more vain would it be to attempt to preserve in musical notation the spirited barcarole of the overripe November pig or to attempt to sound the depths of a country plumber's sophistry with an ordinary plumb line.

The old fan tailed gobbler will no more strut about the farmyard with the dignity and hauteur of a retail floor-walker. No more will he wave his great scarlet wattles like a danger signal preparatory to chasing the small boy, who would make him the unwilling recipient of a bucket of cold water. No more will he sit in a statuesque ball on the old elm and look wistfully over the russet cornfield, whose furrows are picturesquely punctuated with dull gold pumpkins. He has heard the whining winds of autumn rustling in the rosy foliage and his blazing side whiskers for the last time. Yesterday he was full of hope. Today he is full of chestnuts, and his drumsticks play a solo of joy on the souls of the people congregated about the table, especially that of the small boy, whose eyes throb with joy and who is as full of anticipation as the turkey is full of dressing. What a beautiful study is the old gobbler as he lies upon the platter, bronzed to a crisp, with his white meat shining through his tawny envelope that ever and anon breaks with a sound that sends ripples of softest music across the lilled millponds of our souls!

When the turkey is so good, it is no wonder that he usurps that portion of our inner man usually set apart for plum pudding or pumpkin pie. The man who likes plum pudding better than turkey, if such a man exists, should not fail to change matters by putting the last first and the first last. A Shanghai on Thanksgiving day scratches gravel in the background of oblivion. He is more remote and obscure than is a baseball player in the height of the skating season or a furrier in the sweltering dogday.

Thanksgiving day is a day of tender dreams that fill our souls with sweetest music. Usually it is a still, gray day, during which the dark, leafless trees stand sharply etched against a liquid atmosphere in which you can hear the partridge drum and the blue jay squawk a mile away. The smoke curls from the old farmhouse straight into the air, and from its quaint windows the crow can be seen circling wistfully over the old cornfield, with outspread wings, as if fearing to break the silence of the scene. And the old farmer is thankful that his sons have come back to spend this festive day with him at their old home. They are delighted, for once more they scent the roasting gobbler and dream of cracking the wishbone again, just as they did when small boys. And again they will have the dear old nightmare in the attic room that is colder than the barn in winter and hotter than the potato patch in summer. But they are really no happier than those who celebrate the day in a New York flat that is so small that it does not furnish sufficient elbow room to carve a turkey and therefore compels the family to have a fricassee or a canned turkey, neither of which is a dish equal to the requirements of so glorious an occasion.

The only time that Thanksgiving is not a success is when the turkey is so tough that the only way it can be disjoined seems to be by blasting it with dynamite. Such a turkey fills the conscientious housewife with horror and makes her register a vow to ever after subject the turkey to a thorough drubbing with a rolling pin in the same way that she does the average mustang steak. A turkey should be treated in this fashion before the dressing is inserted or not at all. Yet the gobbler is a peerless classic fowl that does more for Thanksgiving day than Thanksgiving day does for him, and we should cherish the sweet associations that surround him from the Greco-Roman with his drumsticks to the tug of war with his chaste enameled wishbone.

R. K. MUNKITZ.

BREAKING THE WISHBONE.

When to Lose the Wish and When to Win It.

A charming young widow who wants to break a wishbone with you is one of whom you should beware. She is very tantalizing, chic, clever, and, oh, so awfully sorry you didn't get your wish! The young widow is a mind reader and knows just what your thoughts are while you are holding the bone and looking down into her eyes. If you have to look up into a widow's eyes, there may be some hope for you, but when she looks up and you look down she can read every one of your thoughts. By the way, there is only one, only has been one, only can be one, thought passing through a man's mind when he is breaking a wishbone with a charming young widow—possession! She knows it as plainly as though written indelibly upon your forehead. That is her particular forte. And when you break the bone and find yourself possessed of the short end she will look up into your eyes with a look that will cause your poor back hair to crimp and say, with that pitying tone of voice never so well modulated as by a widow: "I am so sorry you lost!"

No matter what the after result of a good dinner may bring forth, you cannot help but hie yourself away to some quiet resort obscure from prying and meddling eyes and bury your disappointment in beer, books or blues.

But when you break a wishbone with a sweet young girl it is a very different thing. Sweet young girls' hearts were made to be broken like the wishbone. You secure a deal of paradise while breaking bones with a sweet young girl, whereas you get generally wormwood and gall when you break bones with a fair widow. You throw all your art into the act of breaking a bone with a young girl, but when you break a bone with a fair widow you throw your heart in against her art, and she beats you nine times out of ten.

The best place to break a bone with a fair widow is in the corner of a snug sitting room, with the lights turned low. A man's heart fire glows more vividly upon his cheeks then; also it is more fun for the widow. She quite pre-

"I AM SO SORRY YOU LOST." fers earnestness of purpose and is ever ready for a tilt of hearts against arts. You might win a prize in the lottery of life if you would break a bone with a fair young girl with your heart as fixed upon the one purpose—possession—as it was with the widow.

Did you ever break a bone with a staid old aunt whose fortune you hoped to possess? If you lose your wish, your fortune is made, for she'll put you down as a real nice nephew without scolded fancies, but if you win she'll pierce you with a look and say: "I expected you wanted me to hurry up and die."

Always make it a point to lose your wish when breaking a bone with an expectant aunt who has a fortune.

When a colored gentleman breaks the wishbone of a turkey, he always throws the shorter end over his left shoulder. That means that he wishes next year's hen and turkey roasts will not be locked nor guarded by a bulldog.

My wife broke a bone with me last Thanksgiving. She won her wish, but has not got it. I haven't been very witty this season; hence have not written the way to that sealskin sack.—H. S. Keller.

Reflections.
The kind word, costing the giver but little, may make glad a lifetime. A word may be an illuminated thought and become the most treasured of keepsakes.

Some there are whose kindness is so delicately rendered as to make it beyond description.

That creed that is lived out in freely caring for others and doing kind deeds is not to be doubted.

The heart has a language that records deeds as well as words, according to its own interpretation.

The Joy of It.
Thanksgiving day is almost gone, And peace reigns overhead, And mother's joy—her own sweet boy—Is trundled off to bed.

Yet what are those unearthly sounds That pierce the midnight air? And what's that throbbing noise we hear Come running down the stair?

It is our little household pet, Who tosses upon high And wages an unequal fight With turkey and mince pie.

Philosophical.

Wife (gazing at the baby)—Think, darling, how much we have to be thankful for this Thanksgiving.
Husband—That's so. It might have been twins.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Avian Lane, formerly of Plainfield, is visiting friends in town.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Wilson F. Fulper this morning.

Mrs. Jacob Thorn, mother of Edward F. Thorn, passed her ninety-third birthday Tuesday.

Charles J. Zimmerman of West Front street is suffering with a number of abscesses on his left leg.

John D. Holmes of Honesdale, Pa., and his wife (Miss May Cortright) have been visiting Mrs. Holmes' parents of East Sixth street.

The youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. John Wakefield of Park place, who had a relapse Saturday of that terrible malady, diphtheria, is a little better today.

John Morton arrived home yesterday from Scotland. He was a passenger on the Lusitania. The voyage was a very stormy one, and part of the time the decks were kept clear.

Edward Nelson, the faithful ticket agent at the North Avenue station, had the rare pleasure of a Sunday off, yesterday, and spent it at the home of his brother William in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Hannah C. Adams, who has been visiting her son Henry E. Adams, 306 Orange street, leaves tomorrow for her home, Indianapolis. She is in the 83d year of her age, and in excellent health.

Wm. Uhrhahn and Edward Jacot took advantage of the beautiful Sunday weather to enjoy a visit to Brooklyn. In the afternoon they escorted two beautiful belles through Prospect Park, and were the envy of all beholders.

Paul Ackerly, for the past year a faithful member of The Daily Press staff, today attached himself to The Elizabeth Herald, as editor of that paper with an interest in the business. The Press wishes him abundant success.

Miss Margaret Mac L. Eager is in town and will superintend the final drill of the National Festivities. Miss Eager has just returned from Portland, Oregon, where she has conducted a brilliant and successful kirmess, with audiences of 3,000 and 4,000.

The singing yesterday at the sessions of the Sunday school of Trinity Reformed Church, was more enjoyable than usual by the accompanying notes of the clarinet, in the dextrous hands of Lyman R. Allen. Mr. Allen will be urged by the school to continue playing each Sunday.

J. W. Coddington, Fred Hul and Joseph A. Blatz returned yesterday morning from a hunting trip of one week in Virginia. They visited Ohio-hominy and White Oak Swamps, Malvern Hill and other places and met with good luck. They brought back over 150 quail, large numbers of rabbits, etc.

Rev. Franklin G. Warnick, formerly of this city and now of Matawan, published in The Mystic Mirror a portrait and biography of Rev. P. S. Gibson, pastor of Mt Olive Baptist Church. It is an excellent record of brave fighting for an education against heavy obstacles, and of rich success in the self-chosen work of Gospel ministry.

Most distressing affliction has come to the household of William Blinn, who lost his wife under peculiarly sad circumstances this morning. Mrs. Blinn was in her twenty-seventh year, and beloved by a large circle of friends. The funeral takes place from the German Reformed Church on Craig place Wednesday afternoon at 2:30. Mother and infant child will be laid to rest together. Mrs. Blinn was a sister of Charles Selbel, driver for No. 3 Engine Company. Rev. Mr. Hauser will officiate at the funeral.

Joseph E. Smith died at his home, 12 Wilson avenue, yesterday, at the age of 43. He had been ill for a year with a complication of diseases. Decedent leaves a wife, a son and three daughters. He was for many years employed as a coachman by Charles Potter, Jr. His brother, Adam Smith, works there now, and other brothers, Michael and Martin, are employed by Dr. Boone and James Clark respectively. The funeral will be held at the house tomorrow morning at 9:30 and in St. Joseph's Church at 9.

The gift of portraiture makes of its possessor a benefactor of mankind. That it is largely possessed by N. E. King of 483 Lexington avenue, Brooklyn, is proved by his latest Plainfield work, a painting of W. L. Force, late senior proprietor of The Daily Press and Weekly Constitutional. The likeness of Mr. Force has been placed on the sanctum wall above the desk which was his; and his old associates, cherishing his memory, find it so like his living presence that it almost seems as though he were again a familiar figure of the daily life from which his kindly nature and valued counsel are sorrowfully missed.

The Socialist-Labor Ticket.

The local leaders of the Socialist-Labor party visited Justice Newcorn's office Saturday evening and made arrangements for the ticket which they will run at the election next month. To make the ticket legal required the affidavits of twenty-three men.

Those nominated and accepting are:
For Mayor—James Bell.
For Councilmen—
First Ward—Otto J. Piehler.
Third Ward—Claus Wallander.
Fourth Ward—Frank Cullen.
School Trustees—Jacob Grieb, Arthur Scott.

It is expected that John James will be put on the ticket for Assessor and those in charge will meet at Justice Newcorn's office this evening, and have Mr. James added to the list.

Forced to Work on Sunday.

Owing to the treacherous nature of the material encountered Saturday on Putnam avenue, Foreman Clark and his gang worked there all day yesterday, and completed the pipe laying to Woodland avenue.

Today they are working on Grant avenue with a good supply of pipe.

The indications are that no further delay will occur from lack of pipe.

George Lewis of Manning avenue began this morning as a hackman, having purchased a rig from Augustus U. Zinger of Jackson avenue.

Simplicity and Charity.

We smile at the childlike simplicity of the kind-hearted man whose charity "believeth all things, hopeth all things," even of those whom the man of the world distrusts. "But," as Dr. Holmes says, "the angels laugh, too, at the good he has done." Dr. Dobbin, an old-fashioned clergyman of Dublin, was noted for his kindness to the poor, and for the simplicity which trusted them as though they could be guilty of no deception. Once a man was begging at the clergyman's carriage window. Having no change about him, he handed the beggar a guinea, saying: "Go, my poor man; get me change of that, and I will give you a shilling." He never saw the beggar's face again. One day his wife, on coming home, found him in the hall with his hands behind his back, as if hiding something. She insisted on knowing what it was, and he timidly brought out from behind his back a roasted leg of mutton. He had quietly taken it from the spit in the kitchen, to give to a poor woman waiting at the door.—Youth's Companion.

A Household Treasure.

D. W. Fuller, of Canajoharie, N. Y., says that he always keeps Dr. King's New Discovery in the house and his family has always found the very best results follow its use; that he would not be without it, if procurable. G. A. Dykeman Druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best cough remedy; that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. Why not try a remedy so long tried and tested. At L. W. Randolph's Drug Store. Regular size 50c, and $1.00. Our price 45c. and 90c.

REMARKABLE CURES

Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

To THE PUBLIC:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.

I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

JOHN CORSON.

THE CASE OF MR. PETER G. EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten Physicians Had Failed.

To THE SICK, SUFFERING AND AFFLICTED:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.

I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks' time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

PETER G. EYCK, Bissell, Hunterdon Co., N. J.

SARAH ORNE JEWETT IS PREEMINENTLY THE NOVELIST OF NEW ENGLAND LIFE. WHO IS SO QUALIFIED AS SHE TO WRITE OF THE OLD PURITAN FESTIVAL OF THANKSGIVING?

Her latest tale

IN A COUNTRY PRACTICE.

IS A THANKSGIVING STORY OF ABSORBING INTEREST.

All there is of pathos and humor in the lives of the country folk of New England has been delightfully portrayed in her writings. It is difficult to believe that any reader will not at least be interested by a perusal of the story we shall present. Here is a bit of her manuscript.

In a Country Practice

Dr. Best, the ad professor and king of the medical school was talking eagerly to a pleasant-faced slight young student who stood before him. The younger man had taken his degree and received his diploma only the day before, he had graduated at the top of the class and as Dr. Best had said to one of his fellows as they sat together signing the diplomas, he was the only man in the class who really had a genius for his profession.

Dr. Best was a New York physician of wide reputation and had kept his professorship in the medical school of one of the small inland colleges both because it was his own college and because the fees were high. His lectures covered, gave him almost the only vacation that he could

LIBERTY IN HIS DEATH

Suicide of One of the Leather Bank Thieves.

Aged Frederick Baker, Who With Samuel Seely Secured $343,000, Drowns Himself at His Flushing Home To Escape Arrest—No Trace of the Fugitive Bookkeeper.

New York, Nov. 26.—Superintendent of Police Byrnes and the police of all large cities in the United States are searching for Samuel G. Seely. His defalcation at the Shoe and Leather Bank is $343,000, according to last accounts, but may be even more. Most of this money, the police believe, he has with him, despite his counsel's protest to the contrary.

Frederick R. Baker, the aged confederate of Seely, has committed suicide. His body was found floating in the bay at Flushing, L. I., where he resides. His family has disappeared, and all efforts to trace any of the missing money through him have failed. Financial circles are greatly excited, as the theft is the largest known in years.

Frank W. Angel, counsel for Seely, was seen at his home in Jersey City. "The defalcation," said he, "which began about nine years ago, started, according to Seely's statement to me, through an honest mistake in bookkeeping. But the confederate induced Seely to allow other overdrafts, which Seely did in full expectation that the promise to make good the deficiency would be fulfilled."

"To conceal the overdrafts falsification of the books became necessary. As I understand it, the confederate was able to keep his bank account by making bona fide deposits of say $200 or more at a time, Seely giving him credit for $1,000, and to conceal these false credit entries Seely would from time to time make transfers from other accounts."

"What became of the $343,000, which Seely assured me had been kept by his confederate, is a mystery that may never be satisfactorily solved."

"I believe that the confederate invested the money in real estate through a 'dummy' and so thoroughly covered his tracks that the property may never be found."

"What became of Seely's comparatively insignificant share of the enormous plunder is even more a mystery than what became of the lion's share kept by his confederate. Seely's salary was only $1,800 a year, and this was not much, if any, more than enough to pay taxes, water rates, insurance, repairs, interest on the mortgages on his house and his living expenses."

"The latter was by no means extravagant, and his wife did not even keep a domestic servant, but did her own housework. Neither Seely nor his wife dressed extravagantly."

"It was a week ago last Friday that Seely came to my office and made his confession to me. Besides advising him to give himself up to the district attorney at once, I urged him to tell all he knew about his confederate's transactions so that the bank might recover some if not all of the stolen money, which would lead to mitigate his offense. I did not advise him to abscond."

"No message of any kind has been received from the absconder. Mrs. Seely, whom I saw, is dangerously and probably fatally ill, wholly on account of her husband's defalcation. She does not know where he is and is unaware of the immense amount for which he is a defaulter, or the practically life-long imprisonment to which he is liable when captured."

FOILED BY A WOMAN.

Saved a Train from Being Held Up by the Cook Gang.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 26.—A plan to hold up an east-bound train on the Kansas & Arkansas Valley railroad by the Cook gang was discovered and frustrated by the railroad officials.

When the train reached a siding near Fort Gibson it was flagged by a woman who had run five miles to warn it of a hold-up which had been planned. Twenty-five armed men had taken possession of a section house.

The wife of the section boss eluded the watchfulness of the guard, and resolved to leave the train. She ran to the next station and gave the alarm. Armed men were placed on board, and the train pulled slowly by the section house where the bandits were concealed, but no attempt to hold up the train was made. The bandits discovered that their plans were known.

Mgr. Satolli at Wilmington.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 26.—Catholics of the diocese of Wilmington had the honor of a visit from Mgr. Satolli, the papal delegate, who came to join in the re-dedication of St. Joseph's church at Dupont's Banks, after its enlargement and general improvement. He also participated in the blessing of the three handsome altars recently presented to the church by J. Smith Brennan, of Wilmington, by the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and by the sodality of the church. The services at the church began with a mass celebrated at the house of sisters by Dr. Papi, Mgr. Satolli's secretary. Then the ceremonies of dedication and the blessing of the altars began. They were participated in by Mgr. Satolli, Bishop Curtis and the Catholic clergy of this city.

FOUND A GREAT VILLAGE.

Another Cliff Dwellers' Settlement Discovered in Arizona.

Prescott, Ariz., Nov. 26.—The most wonderful village of cliff dwellers extant has just been discovered in the Bradshaw mountains.

The village is one of the most inaccessible canyons, and has never before been seen by white men. It was stumbled on by accident by two prospectors, White and Williams. From the description they gave there is no doubt that this is the largest village of the kind ever discovered. It is located along the high banks of Willow canon and the houses are estimated to number 260.

There are three natural terraces in the canon wall and the dwellings open back from them. Narrow steps in the rocks, now almost worn away seem to indicate that this was the method employed in ascent and descent.

Several of the houses were explored and large quantities of pottery and some instruments were found. In one house a skeleton of a man not over four feet eight inches in height was discovered. The canon at this place is half a mile wide, and shows every evidence of having been cultivated. As far as known no other evidence of cultivation has ever been discovered of this departed race.

A party is now being organized to thoroughly explore the newly found village.

CHEROKEE BILL WOUNDED.

His Thigh Bone Shattered and His Arm Injured.

Claremore, Okla., Nov. 26.—Jake Hill, a cow boy, employed on the Halsell ranch, has reported that while hunting cattle he came across Cherokee Bill and Verdigris Kid at Bird creek. Cherokee Bill was dressing the wound in his thigh and took out of the wound a piece of bone about an inch long. The wound was very much inflamed as a result of a cold, making the flesh around it black and ghastly. He declares he will not have a doctor dress it, for he does not know of anyone he could trust. He also has a wound in his arm and a slight scratch across the breast, both results of the fight at Talala. Verdigris Kid was not wounded.

Cherokee Bill swears he will kill Buck Bruner, the deputy marshal who has been wearing Cherokee Bill's hat as trophy of the fight at Talala.

He wants to rob one more train on the Kansas & Arkansas Valley road, after which he is going to cross the ocean and quit his life of outlawry.

AN HEIRESS IN PRISON.

Mrs. Adelaide Featherstone in a Wisconsin Jail for Larceny.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 26.—Mrs. Adelaide Featherstone, the heiress to a fortune, is an inmate of the house of correction, where she is serving a sentence for larceny.

After languishing in the county jail for four months awaiting trial, she pleaded guilty. It is said she took this action in preference to requesting aid from her wealthy relatives.

It is believed the woman could have escaped conviction if she had demanded a trial, and it is thought that even if she was convicted a fine instead of imprisonment would have been the penalty inflicted.

THE MUFTI OF MOOSH.

He Is Decorated for Slaughtering Christian Armenians.

London, Nov. 26.—A correspondent in Constantinople says:

"It is announced officially that the Turkish subjects in Sassoun are attending to their business and peaceful travelers are not disturbed. This announcement is made boldly, despite the fact that the foreign embassies know the contrary to be true."

"The mufti of Moosh has been decorated although he is one of the officials implicated in the recent excesses. The Armenians are anxious to know whether the powers will make united representations."

Bound and Robbed.

Montclair, N. J., Nov. 26.—Two men entered the waiting room of the Greenwood Lake railroad station at Bloomfield, where acting ticket agent C. W. Jacobus was in charge. While one covered him with a revolver the other emptied the cash drawer, which contained about $400. This done they proceeded to tie the agent hand and foot and hurried away.

Jacobus soon managed to slip free, and at once notified the police, who were given a good description of the robbers. The country is being scoured for them.

Rich Gold Mines Discovered.

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 26.—A veritable bonanza gold mine has been found at the very summit of the Cascade range of mountains near Slate creek. Two young men from Anahortes named Barron and Gerrish are the lucky finders. The boys got $12,000 with plenty of the same rich dirt in sight. Miners have flocked to the new Eldorado.

Dr. Whittemore the Victim.

New York, Nov. 26.—Dr. Francis S. Whittemore of Sandwich, Mass., is now known positively to be the man who met death Saturday night at the Cortland street elevated railway station, while trying to rescue his friend, Geo. H. Basley, from death.

Denounced Secretary Carlisle.

Boston, Nov. 26.—The Knights of Labor freight handlers at their meeting denounced the $500,000 bond issue and called for $500,000 in legal tender to break the alleged gold ring.

New York, Nov. 26.—Elias Gillery, supposed to have been killed by a train and buried in Potter's field, walked into the morgue and denied that he had lost his life.

"Pansy" Butler Disappears.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Nov. 26.—Ex-Congressman Walter Butler, author of the resolution making the pansy the national flower, has mysteriously disappeared.

Hired Men Burned To Death.

Pana, Ill., Nov. 26.—The large barn of P. L. Dodge, a wealthy farmer, was destroyed by fire. Two hired men were burned to death.

Thirty Soldiers Killed.

Rio Grande do Sul, Nov. 26.—Thirty men were killed in a fight here between veteran soldiers and recruits.

GREAT STORMS AT SEA

Incoming Steamers Report Many Terrific Gales.

Numbers of Vessels Overdue at Various Ports and Stories of the Destruction of Numberless Craft Related—Sailors Drowned Off Cape Charles, Va.

Boston, Nov. 26.—Three overdue steamships, the Kansas, Venetian and British Queen, have arrived here all partially wrecked. They report the roughest weather known in years, and their officers say they have never seen so many wrecks, as were passed by the steamships.

All the vessels ran into hurricanes, and lost part of their boats and wood-work. The Kansas also lost one seaman who was washed overboard last Thursday night.

Grave fears are entertained for the fishing fleet, there being nearly a hundred small vessels out, from which nothing has been heard.

Cape Charles, Va., Nov. 26.—The schooner West Hampden has gone ashore on Diamond shoals. She is a complete wreck, having been pounded to pieces by the tremendous seas. Her crew of four men are supposed to be lost.

Baltimore, Nov. 26.—The Neptune line steamship, Gov. Ino, which sailed from Shields, Eng., for Baltimore Nov. 3 is several days overdue and there is considerable anxiety felt for her safety.

Incoming vessels uniformly report severe storms on the passage across. It is thought that the Gov. Ino may have been delayed by an accident to her machinery.

Chatham, Mass., Nov. 26.—A gale with furies of snow is blowing here. The weather is the fiercest known in years. Fully two hundred schooners have taken refuge in the harbor. A tremendous sea is running outside and it is reported that a large three-masted schooner has gone on the rocks outside the point. Nothing is known of her crew.

Philadelphia, Nov. 26.—The American line steamship Indiana from Liverpool for Philadelphia is a week overdue.

The Indiana, though a small steamer in comparison with the more modern liners, is a staunch vessel and in buffeting the seas some of her machinery may have broken and thus compelled her to proceed slowly. The Indiana has 140 passengers aboard, all steered.

The Pennsylvania from Antwerp, is also a few days overdue. The steamship Calvin has arrived and reports passing on Nov. 21, life raft with a bucket attached to it. "Number 2" was painted on the raft. It was the kind used by passenger steamships.

The wreck of the coal laden schooner Teresa Williams is reported. She was bound from Boston to Camden. Her crew was saved.

New York, Nov. 26.—The steamships Paris and Lucania, both arrived here two days overdue, for the first time in their history. The officers of both vessels report tremendous hurricanes. The Paris passed the wreck of a water-logged bark and a schooner dismantled and deserted.

SHE USED A HATCHET.

Mrs. Warhurst Probably Fatally Injured Ezekiel Lake.

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 26.—Elihu J. Warhurst is locked up in the central station charged with a murderous assault with a hatchet on Ezekiel Lake, residing in a large corporation building at 36 Towers street. Lake was accused of stealing a horse blanket. Then Mrs. Lake used a stick over Lake's head. He got into the corridor leading to his own rooms, when Mrs. Warhurst, who followed him, picked up a father's hatchet and struck him on the neck with it.

She struck a glancing blow, cutting an ugly wound, but not quite severing the jugular vein. Dr. Westall was summoned and found Lake in a weak condition from the loss of blood. The doctor thinks that Lake will recover if no complications arise. Two very serious assaults have previously occurred in the same building.

JACK THE RIPPER JAILED.

The Atrocious Murderer Alleged To Be In an English Asylum.

New York, Nov. 26.—A special correspondent in London states in positive terms that "Jack the Ripper," the perpetrator of the series of shocking murders in the Whitechapel district, is confined in an English lunatic asylum where he has been locked up for the past three years.

The correspondent states that it was Dr. Forbes Winslow, one of the most celebrated insanity experts in the United Kingdom that revealed the fact.

The revelation is particularly interesting just now, as it sets at naught the theory of some people that the series of murders recently committed in Denver were done by the same hand that horrified London.

Died from Her Bu. ns.

Middletown, Conn., Nov. 26.—Mrs. Martin Crowell of Rocky Hill, while going down stairs with a lighted lamp, fell and broke the lamp and was burned severely about the face and body before she was discovered. She died from her injuries two hours afterwards.

A Murderer Killed in a C' nre.

Carrollton, Miss., Nov. 26.—Claude Moss, a murderer, was shot and instantly killed in a church here last night by Marshal Chatham, who was trying to arrest him.

Bishop Haman Officiated.

Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 26.—The cornerstone of St. John's United Evangelical church has been laid by Bishop Haman. The new church will cost $5,000.

COULD HARDLY BREATHE.

Cataract of the Nose, Throat, and Bronchus—Life Made Miserable by Headache, Pain and Cough.

Lida McQuinn, No. 1230 South Third street, Philadelphia, in conversation with a reporter, said: "I had a very bad case of cataract of the nose, throat and stomach, with frequent headaches, pain under the shoulder blades and a horrible cough. I had to keep my mouth constantly open day and night to breathe, and felt as miserable as one possibly could. I was advised to try Munyon's Catarrh Cure. I am happy to say that from the beginning I felt relieved and continued to grow better until now I am entirely well. I am so thankful that this remarkable remedy was ever discovered, and hope others will take advantage of my experience."

Have you Catarrh? Are you willing to investigate a treatment that cures Catarrh by removing the cause? If so ask your druggist for a 25c bottle of Catarrh Tablets. The Catarrh Cure will eradicate the disease from the system, and the Tablets will cleanse and heal the affected parts and restore them to a natural and healthful condition.

Munyon's Homeopathic Home Remedy Company, of Philadelphia, put up, specifically for nearly every disease, which are sold by all druggists, mostly for 25 cents a bottle.

HOW PORT ARTHUR FELL

Japanese Officers Tell of the Great Battle.

Marshal Oyama and Admiral Ito Describe the Capture of Port Arthur.

Fort Belonging to the Chinese. Twenty Thousand Prisoners Taken, with Cannon and Ammunition.

Tokio, Nov. 26.—Marshal Oyama has sent this report from Port Arthur:

On Nov. 21 the Japanese army attacked the forts near Port Arthur. The light division stormed and captured the fort to the westward of the artillery parade ground at 8:30 in the morning.

It then advanced in the direction of Port Arthur. The left division stormed and captured the fort southeast of Hachiviso. On the 22d the two divisions took all the other forts. The enemy fought bravely throughout the attacks.

The number of Japanese killed and wounded exceeds 200. The killed, wounded and prisoners of the enemy can not now be estimated.

A great quantity of ammunition and other materials and many cannon were taken. The enemy numbered more than 20,000.

London, Nov. 26.—A Port Arthur correspondent sends this dispatch:

"Marshal Oyama had approached Port Arthur steadily for two weeks with his army in two divisions. Progress was slow and difficult, as the roads, where there were any, were poor and the artillery could only be brought forward only after the pioneers had prepared the way."

"The villages were almost empty of supplies. Many of them had been plundered by the Chinese."

Skrimishing began on Nov. 17. Every fort had heavy artillery, which was used with effect. The large Krupp guns at Hokinan apparently were served by skilled artillerymen and were especially destructive.

"On the evening of the 21st the Chinese still held eight or nine redoubts on the coast and had twenty guns in working order. The Japanese bivouacked on the hills. Early in the morning of the 22d they began storming the redoubts."

"They captured Fort Laomu after a sharp short fight. The other positions were captured in quick succession without heavy losses to the Japanese. Eighty guns and an enormous quantity of rice were taken. It was wholly a land fight. The course of events was signalled to the Japanese fleet off the coast."

Admiral Ito, in his report, says: "Port Arthur was taken on the 22d by the army alone. The united squadrons merely attracted the attention of the enemy's seaward batteries. Since yesterday I have been removing the torpedoes from the mouth of the port, dockyard and arsenal. The ships in the port are handed over to the naval department. The dockyards and arsenal are in perfect working order."

Admiral Ito neglected to specify more closely the report that there was a naval battle. It is believed that the ships in question are Chinese warships which took refuge at Port Arthur after the battle at the mouth of the Yalu and although fully repaired, did not venture out again. Unofficial news is to the effect that Admiral Ito did not take part in the attack because the entrance to the port was studded with torpedoes and all the usual landmarks for the guidance of pilots had been removed.

A dispatch boat has left Ping Yang inlet for Port Arthur to convey the Mikado's congratulations to Marshal Oyama.

MANGLED BY WHEELS.

Horrible Death of Three People at Green Springs.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 26.—A terrible accident occurred at Green Springs, Pa., resulting in the death of Isaac Taylor, aged 60 years, his wife, aged 38, and a Miss Kidwell, aged 17 years.

They were crossing the south branch bridge on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad when the New York and Chicago express train, westward, came thundering along at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour and struck them.

They were hurled into the river below, a distance of fifty feet. All were instantly killed. They were badly mangled, the body of the young lady being horribly mutilated. The engineer said he did not see them until he was within two car lengths of them, and then it was utterly impossible to stop the train.

Murdered the Rebel Puck.

Oaxaca, Mexico, Nov. 26.—The government authorities here have received advice from the state of Yucatan of the assassination of Puck, the notorious rebel Indian chief. He was at the head of the powerful Indian tribe of Yucatan that for many years has caused the general government an enormous outlay of money and the loss of several thousand soldiers. Puck was killed by a subordinate chief of his own tribe.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

Fate and Harvard Men Recovering from Sundry Bruises.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 26.—Harvard men are feeling rather sore over the result of the football game. It is not that usual feeling of soreness that comes after defeat, but something worse.

The men all feel that the Harvard team outplayed the Yale team, and but for "that Yale luck" and Empire Boviard's decisions, the victory would be where it rightfully belongs.

The players, at least those who live in the vicinity of Boston, have all gone home, but will meet at the quarters in Auburndale. There will be no practice and the practice Friday will not be in secret. Wednesday morning the team leaves for Philadelphia to play the University of Pennsylvania.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 26.—Fred T. Murphy, the Yale football player, who was knocked insensible in the game against Harvard, returned to this city in good condition.

He alighted from a cab about 9 o'clock last night on the college campus and walked to his room as unconcerned as if his name had not been spoken by more mouths than any other person's in America within the past twenty-four hours. He will suffer no permanent effect whatever from the encounter with Mackie's boot and will play with Yale in the annual game with Princeton at New York next Saturday.

DISCUSSED THE RACE PROBLEM.

Opening Session of the Christian School of the Kingdom.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 26.—The convention or "School of the Kingdom" to be held under the auspices of the American Institute of Christian Sociology and the "National Institutional Church League" opened at Plymouth tabernacle with an address on the race problem by Rev. W. E. C. Wright, D. D., of Cleveland, O. He was followed by Prof. D. Augustus Straker of this city, who delivered a short address on the same subject.

Rev. Dr. Harmon of Iowa, president of the American Institute, will preside over the deliberations of the convention which will last eight days.

Among the prominent persons who will participate in the proceedings of the convention are Prof. Edward W. Bemis, Ph.D., L.L.D., of the University of Chicago; Samuel Dickie of Albion college; Rev. Charles A. Dickinson, D. D., of Boston; Rev. J. L. Scudder, D. D., of New Jersey; Prof. J. R. Commons, of Indiana State university and Rev. Thomas C. Hall, D. D., of Chicago.

THOUSANDS WERE LANDED.

Immigrants During the Year Just Ended Came in Floods.

Washington, Nov. 26.—An exhaustive review of the operation of our immigrant laws is presented by the annual report of Herman Stump, United States superintendent of immigration, just made public.

It shows that during the fiscal year, 1894, ended June 30, 288,220 immigrants arrived in this country of whom 255,631 were landed, 2,389 debarred from landing because of being under contract to perform labor made previous to their arrival.

Of the immigrants landed, 96,000 were destined for New York state, 42,000 for Pennsylvania, 25,000 for Massachusetts and 22,000 for Illinois. The others were scattered throughout the United States, no other state receiving a greater number than 10,000.

Immigrants destined for southern states all told did not exceed 12,000.

WOULD BURN THE TOWN.

Incendiaries Attempt To Destroy Zanesville, Ohio.

Zanesville, O., Nov. 26.—A systematic attempt was made to destroy the city by fire. At first a false alarm called the engines to the eighth ward, and while they were trying to locate the fire, an alarm rang in from the seventh ward, a mile distant, where a large barn was burning.

Five minutes later fire broke out in a vacant house in another part of the city, and then there was another alarm from the ninth ward, also an outlying district.

The department was unable to take care of them all and a house belonging to William Muller was consumed and another one slightly damaged.

Considerable excitement exists as the fire is regarded as an attempt to burn the town for the purpose of plunder and robbery.

A Train Kills a Woman.

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 26.—An unknown woman was struck by a freight train and instantly killed at the Sterling crossing. The body is at the morgue awaiting identification. She was apparently 45 years of age and wore a black cloth dress, a long black velvet cloak and a black hat. Nothing was found on the body that would identify her. Her face was mangled and her features are unrecognizable.

Another Double Tragedy.

Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 26.—A terrible tragedy was discovered in the southern part of the city in a house on Woodward street, occupied by Jacob Mohow and Mrs. Kate Donan. The dead body of Mohow and the unconscious body of the woman were found with bullets in their brains. The supposition is that Mohow shot the woman and then committed suicide.

Honored the Fenians' Memory.

Dublin, Nov. 26.—Large parades in honor of the executed Fenians were held in Cork on Limerick. The mayor presided over a memorial meeting of 6,000 persons.

PAPERS POSTAGE FREE

Postmaster General Bissell Is in Favor of It.

Extension of the Civil Service Rules Advocated in His Annual Report.

What the Postal Department Has Cost the Government—Against Government Telegraph Lines.

Washington, Nov. 26.—Postmaster General Bissell has made his annual report. He favors the extension of the civil service law to all postoffices, and a rigid examination of the second-class department. He also favors the amendment free of all bona fide newspapers and magazines.

Going into the details of last year's business, he gives the following figures: The number of miles of post-route run, 1,100,000. Number of stamps manufactured, 8,200,000. Number of envelopes manufactured, 1,800,000. Number of postal cards manufactured, 1,500,000. Pieces mailed, 15,700,000. Letters mailed, 7,400,000. Mail matter distributed and re-distributed by railway postal clerks, 27,500,000 pieces. Number of pieces handled in the dead letter office, 24,000. Daily transactions in money order business, $1,100,000. Daily expenses, $231,100. The deficiency in postal revenues for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1894, was $3,243,935. The total revenue derived was $75,080,479, and the expenditures $84,324,414.

For the current fiscal year Mr. Bissell estimates that the expenditures will amount to $90,339,485, leaving an estimated deficiency of $5,971,736, and his estimates for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, place expenditures at $91,059,283, and the deficiency at only $4,151,876.

Regarding the abuses of second class privileges he says the volume of second class business grew from 143,000,000 pounds in 1888, to 256,000,000 in 1893, more than doubling in six years. Mr. Bissell says also no one can believe that such an increase is legitimate, and he adds that it is estimated that during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1894, out of about 451,000,000 pounds of mail matter of all classes carried, 290,000,000, or nearly two-thirds, went under the second class rates, leaving a net loss to the government on its transportation of $16,973,000.

"This calculation," the postmaster general says, "applies to transportation alone. The separate cost of distribution and delivery I will not attempt to estimate, but any one can see that these items of expenditure would largely swell the loss."

Continuing he remarks that he does not advocate a change of rates now levied upon legitimate newspapers and periodical magazines. His purpose is to urge the withdrawal of low postage rates from the large class of pretended periodicals that are now improperly enjoying them; not only on account of the inherent propriety of that course, but because he is almost hopeless of ever seeing the financial condition of the department properly established until such withdrawal is brought about. The most conspicuous class of these pretended periodicals, he adds, are what are now generally known as serial paper covered books.

During the last six years, the post-office department has accepted for entry 24,304 new publications purporting to be of the second class, yet according to a prominent newspaper directory, the net increase of newspapers and periodical publications during the same time was 3,747, or 15 per cent. of the number of entries.

If these so-called periodicals were shut out, he concludes, bona fide newspapers could be carried free. He then speaks of extending the civil service law, and takes up the postal telegraph scheme. He differs with Mr. Wanamaker, and says that the idea is wholly impracticable and as Great Britain's annual deficit is $800,000, it would, in this country, amount to $25,000,000.

HAD THE CHILDREN.

Boarded With a Woman in Detroit, but Holmes Took Them Away.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 26.—The Detroit police were asked to look up Mrs. Lucinda Burns and ascertain whether she had in her possession the two children of Pitzel, whom the insurance swindler, H. H. Holmes, confessed to Philadelphia police that he had left with Mrs. Burns while in this city Oct. 12.

The woman was found in a cheap boarding house on Congress street. At first she refused to discuss the matter, but finally denied that she had the children or knew where they were or had ever seen Holmes.

Later Mrs. Burns withdrew her denials and said she had had charge of the children for several weeks. Three weeks ago, however, Holmes came to the city and took them away, she knows not where, at the same time beating her out of a $2 dollar board bill.

A VICTORY FOR PASKOLA.

It Receives the Official Endorsement of Eminent Experts and a Jury of Representative Citizens.

The suit brought by Ohio's Food Commissioner against a Cincinnati druggist for selling Paskola on the ground that it was nothing but glucose, resulted in a great victory for Paskola and a verdict against the State.

During the course of the trial, Prof. Shaller of the University of Cincinnati, testified that Paskola was not glucose, and even if it was, it would be harmless. He also bore witness to its activity as a digestive agent.

Prof. Wm. Dickore of the Miami College, testified to the same facts. So did Prof. Schmidt, the chemist of the Board of Health, Prof. Wm. Hoffman and others.

A practical test was made in court, showing the digestive action of Paskola on eggs and meats of various kinds, whereas glucose under precisely the same conditions produced no effect whatever.

This test but confirmed the experts' statements and proved Paskola to be of great value in indigestion and wasting diseases.

This verdict disposes of the malicious attack that has been made against Paskola by interested rivals, and suits have now been brought against the proprietors of a well-known emulsion of cod liver oil for having given wide circulation to a false formula and other misrepresentations regarding it.

The animus of this attack will be the better understood when it is stated that Paskola is being largely used in the place of cod liver oil.
