ANNUAL REPORT

stepping into the future

Dear Friends of PDS,

Whenever I'm asked why I came back to PDS to serve this interim year, I'm quick to try to explain the enormous creative energy that emanates from this place.

In any given week, there seems to be an endless array of individual and group endeavors and activities that are only possible in a school of lifelong learners who value their connections with each other.

This fall we've enjoyed summer-like weather, glorious new art spaces, renovated and expanded libraries, numerous athletic victories, recognition of more than 25% of the Class of 2008 by the National Merit Scholarship program, terrific leadership from that senior class and the energy that comes from lots of talented new students. Over and over again, parents of our new students have related stories of how quickly their children felt included and a part of our community.

I trust the many articles and photographs in this issue of the Journal will help capture some of the wonderful energy and spirit that have filled the air this fall. I hope your schedule will include at least a brief visit with us. We're eager to show you our beautiful new spaces and let you catch the spirit of the place.

To Contribute Meaningfully

Interim Head of Middle School Warren Gould officially declared the First Annual PDS Flea Market "a HUGE success!"

PDS Flea Market

The event September 29 garnered more than $4,000 for the Fifth Grade Community Service Global Outreach program, but "most importantly, all involved had lots of fun," Mr. Gould said. "The event involved the class and parents in a wonderfully positive and meaningful way — and raised a lot of money for the Fifth Grade's curriculum-connected community service work this year."

Sybil Holland, Middle School community service coordinator, was delighted by the students' enthusiasm, as well as the response from the PDS community.

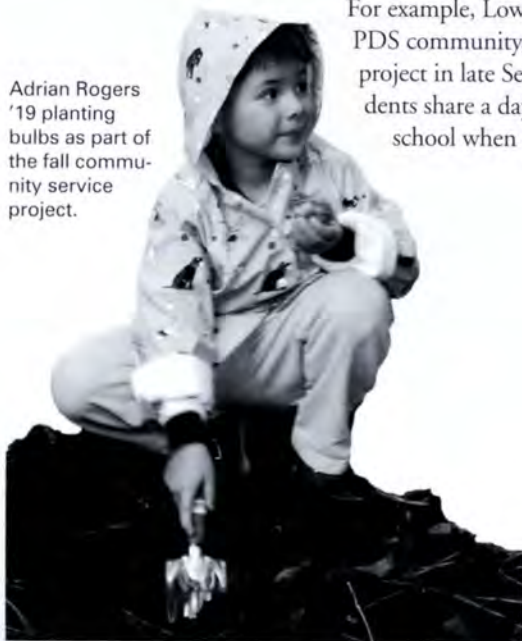

PDS families participated by donating fabulous items for sale, including furniture, exercise and sports equipment and toys, books and baked goods. Hundreds of customers stopped by campus to browse and buy. Indeed, the event was so successful, Ms. Holland is already thinking about the fifth graders' 2008 flea market.

"It was such a valuable experience for all of us," Ms. Holland said. "We learned a lot about organization and outreach to the wider community. Now we will discuss how best to put our proceeds to work for others."

Community Service is key to the PDS experience with service activities at all levels.

For example, Lower School focuses on service to the PDS community, with a campus beautification project in late September. While Upper School students share a day of service during the first week of school when each class tackles a specific project. ■

Heart and Soul

More than 1,000 members of the PDS community — students, faculty and staff — gathered September 10 to celebrate "Stepping into the Future" with the opening of our new buildings and new school year.

"I love the beginning of a new school year, crisp new empty notebooks, new pens, new courses, friends and teachers and this year, new spaces," Interim Head of School Lila Lohr told those assembled on the Colross lawn.

"But the real heart and soul of PDS isn't about spaces or note books or things..." she added.

"The soul of PDS is about how we work together and feel connected to each other."

"Stepping into the Future" was made even sweeter by a huge sheet cake (below) baked by Denise Adams, whose daughter Brandee graduated from PDS in 1999. The cake, decorated in celebration of the new arts wing, tasted as good as it looked when served to the entire school at lunch that day.

Five Pianos, Many Hands

The Music Department recently held a reception celebrating the donation of new pianos for the music practice rooms and the Judy Fox Room. Families enjoyed a tour of the new arts wing including studios and performing arts spaces. Guests also were treated to an informal performance by PDS students. ■

To Share Generously

Customers of the Nearly New Shop in Princeton not only find great bargains on clothes, they also help support financial aid for PDS students.

This year, more than $3.4 million in financial aid was awarded to PDS students on the basis of need. The shop, run by Parents Association volunteers and stocked with clothing donated by PDS families, contributes more than $50,000 annually to sustain those scholarships.

Tucked between Varsity Liquors and Redding Plumbers on Nassau Street, the Nearly New Shop has generated financial aid funding for more than 55 years, said Moira Mittnaucht, shop manager. The quality and range of merchandise generates sales, she said.

"Everyone feels like it's their best kept secret," Ms. Mittnaucht said.

She displays more than 200 donated items daily, Monday through Saturday, including men's, women's and children's clothing, featuring many name brand, classic items such as navy blazers and overcoats. Pricing is based "on what I'd pay" as well as the condition and make of the item, Ms. Mittnaucht said.

Some of her most loyal customers are PDS families and Princeton University students, she said. Students especially seek vintage or "funky chic" clothing. "The '80s are alive and well at the Nearly New Shop," she said.

The Nearly New Shop accepts donated clothing as well as consignment items. Donations can be placed in the designated box at the Lower School bus entrance. The shop at 234 Nassau Street is open 10 am – 5 pm Monday through Saturday.

PDS Welcomes New Trustees

Princeton Day School is pleased to welcome seven new members to the Board of Trustees. These distinguished members, elected in June 2007, bring to their trustee roles a longstanding history of community service, leadership and management expertise.

Investing in Excellence Reach for the Stars Challenge

As PDS enters the final year of the Investing in Excellence Campaign, gifts and pledges total $43 million against the $50 million goal. The generosity of our community and a shared belief in PDS has made this campaign a success.

Now a generous group of individuals has taken the lead in helping us complete the campaign with a challenge gift of $3.5 million.

This group will match dollar for dollar every gift or pledge to either the Annual Fund or Campaign up to a total of $3.5 million between October 15, 2007 and May 15, 2008. ■

Diversity

Making friends who are not like you, learning about different cultures in your own community and openly discussing different perspectives are critical skills our students need to become engaged citizens and responsible adults.

Mary Williams, attended the Summer Diversity Institute sponsored by the National Association of Independent Schools.

The seminar, which PDS Director of Diversity and Multicultural Affairs J Howard described as “life-altering,” engaged faculty in exercises and discussions prompting participants to think in new ways. “It really helped us look at diversity issues with fresh eyes and sparked our creativity,” he said.

Putting what they learned into practice, PDS teachers and administrators are engaging students of all ages in diversity education. Throughout this academic year — and beyond — our goal is to celebrate and recognize the diversity of the PDS community while encouraging inclusivity, making each member feel valued.

“We have so much to share with one another,” Mr. Howard said. “I look forward to helping everyone in this community connect in new and more meaningful ways.” ■

Message in a Bottle

Led by a large group of teachers and staff from all corners of campus, PDS this year is focusing on becoming a more environmentally responsible community.

We are making special efforts to turn out lights when leaving classrooms and offices, to switch from paper to reusable coffee cups and to reduce the amount of paper used for copies. Even our youngest members are doing their share.

Instead of each Lower School student receiving a small bottle of water with snack, Flik Food Service Director Brian Mochna is enabling teachers to serve water from a pitcher in reusable cups. Fourth graders have the responsibility of gathering up the cups and returning them to the campus center, where Flik staff wash them for the next day.

This small change in routine has made a big difference — as PDS students have proved!

Fourth graders calculated that Lower School had been using more than

Fourth graders, from left, Nicholas Chen, Ben Applegate, Amanda Cooleen, Victoria Lach and Abbey Devlin, help gather used water cups to be washed and reused.

40,000 water bottles each year — enough to reach in a single file line from PDS to the Princeton public library!

In Upper School, Will Asch’s algebra students determined that Poland Spring, for example, produces 6 acres of water bottles stacked 8 feet tall per week. (6 acres/week) (52 weeks/year) (43560 Square feet/acre) (8 ft high) (0.6 conversion for shape of bottles) = 65,235,456 cubic feet water/year.

(65,235,456 cubic feet water)(62.3 lbs/cubic foot) = 4,064,168,909 lbs of water per year.

Editor’s Notes

In hopes of saving both trees and money, Princeton Day School recently launched a monthly, online newsletter, ePDS.

Moving to an online newsletter enables PDS to reach more members of our community, to share news more often and to avoid the environmental and economic costs of print newsletters.

In addition to receiving the Journal, you will be invited each month via email to view stories and photos reflecting PDS school life, athletics, the arts, alumni and student achievements.

Published the first week of each month, ePDS is always accessible via the News/Events page or the Alumni page of our school website www.pds.org.

For the safety of our students, the newsletter is password protected. To view the newsletter, please log in with size of the fleet of trucks transporting bottled water, the class estimated that hundreds of millions of gallons of gasoline would be required to ship the bottled water to market.

PDS sustainability efforts are guided by Upper School teacher Liz Cutler, who received the 2007 Bogle Award for her proposal to encourage PDS students to understand the global consequences of our actions on the environment and develop ways to reduce the environmental damage caused by our facilities and programs. More sustainability news to come as the effort continues! ■

A conversation with Interim Head of School Lila Lohr

During the 2007-08 academic year, PDS is being guided once again by Lila B. Lohr, a popular and effective former Head of School fulfilling the interim leadership role while the Board of Trustees concludes its nationwide search for a permanent leader.

This fall, Ms. Lohr returned to PDS having led the school from 1995-2000. She brings a wide range of educational expertise with her, including experience as head of Friends School of Baltimore and headmistress of St. Paul's School for Girls, as a teacher and administrator at The Bryn Mawr School in Baltimore, as a current trustee for both Garrison Forest School and Goucher College and as a writer of numerous articles on parenting issues. Ms. Lohr holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Vassar College and a Masters of Science in education from Goucher College.

On the very day movers were scheduled to deliver her belongings to PDS, Ms. Lohr took time to share her thoughts on returning to campus and her goals for the upcoming school year.

"My most important role is to do whatever I can to make this a terrific year for the students at PDS," Ms. Lohr said. "After all, this is not an interim year in their education..."

"In that way, the fact I have been here before is a plus; I may have a better sense of context and continuum."

Along with the entire PDS community, Ms. Lohr celebrated as students and faculty moved into the wonderful new facilities opened this fall. Expanded Middle School and Upper School libraries, dedicated studio spaces for photography, ceramics, painting, sculpture, architecture and a home for the popular PDS fencing program, as well as a dance studio, recording studio, and an expanded student fitness center will give students and faculty more room to learn, explore and create.

"...we are a community of learners, both children and adults..."

— Lila Lohr, September 17, 1995
Installation Ceremony

I've had lots of new experiences (and) met such a wonderful variety of people."

Working for a business in the education sector, traveling and becoming a grandmother have "helped me grow as an educator," Ms. Lohr said. Gaining a "real world" view of education proved that her heart is in the classroom – not a corporation. Visiting other countries instilled a deeper appreciation of the opportunities and resources available in the U.S. And her four grandchildren have encouraged her to look beyond today to "the legacy we want to leave our children."

Spending three years as head of a JK-12 Quaker school in Baltimore, Ms. Lohr witnessed the community's deep-rooted respect for differences and developed a new appreciation for the process of reaching consensus, as well as an ability to move forward with decisions while maintaining a genuine respect for

"These new arts facilities are exactly what this program has needed," Ms. Lohr said. "The arts program is absolutely fabulous and it's a miracle the faculty and kids have been able to do what they've done in such cramped and dark quarters...It's an incredible improvement to facilities that it would be fair to say were outdated."

Yet cutting the ribbon on new PDS facilities was not exactly where Ms. Lohr had envisioned herself this fall. Asked if it seems like only yesterday since she was on campus, Ms. Lohr adamantly shakes her head. "Some of it feels so familiar, so comfortable, but it doesn't seem like yesterday – the school has progressed and changed," Ms. Lohr said. "And I'm not exactly the same, which is a very good thing..."

Search Update

The Head of School Search Committee in September selected finalist candidates who visited PDS and met faculty, students and parents early in October. Search Committee Chair Treby Williams '80 anticipates recommending a new Head of School for approval by the Board of Trustees this fall.

Each finalist visited PDS to meet with members of all the school's constituencies, from whom the Search Committee solicited feedback for each finalist, Ms. Williams said.

Finalists were selected from a strong group of candidates interviewed at PDS by the Search Committee members over three days. During those visits, candidates were given tours of the school by members of the Head of School Search Advisory Committee, who provided feedback to the Search Committee based in their interactions with the candidates. Interim Head of School Lila Lohr also graciously met with each semifinalist.

"Each finalist is extremely excited about the prospect of joining PDS and looks forward to meeting more members of the community and seeing the school in full swing – as opposed to the weekend," Ms. Williams said. "We are especially looking forward to introducing the finalists to our school's greatest assets – our outstanding faculty and students." ■

differing opinions. "I also came to recognize the power of silence – getting away from the notion that for every statement there has to be a response," she said.

Ms. Lohr hopes to draw on those experiences to manage school operations at PDS, including launching searches for permanent heads of middle and lower schools. This year, those roles are being fulfilled by Director of Academic Affairs Warren

Gould (interim middle school head) and veteran teacher Cindy Peifer (interim lower school head). Their experience at PDS and in the classroom will guarantee a productive and enjoyable year for students, Ms. Lohr said.

"Life will go on as it should," Ms. Lohr said.

Indeed, PDS will be moving forward with several initiatives this year, including an expanded focus on diversity and sustainability, Ms. Lohr said. Board members will be reviewing a proposed strategic plan focused on diversity and several faculty and staff members are eager to share what they learned from attending the National Association of Independent Schools Summer Diversity Institute. "We will continue to look for ways to both understand and celebrate our diversity," Ms. Lohr said.

Throughout the year, a campus group of faculty and staff also will be looking at ways PDS can become more environmentally responsible – from reevaluating Lower School snacks to cultivating a vegetable garden. "I credit my now grown children with first educating me over 20 years ago about the importance of recycling," Ms. Lohr said. "I have no doubt that our students will have lots of creative suggestions and will bring real energy and passion to this arena."

Sitting in an office with temporarily empty bookshelves and an uncluttered desk, Ms. Lohr was eager to welcome students back to campus. Because while many things have changed during her absence, Ms. Lohr knows students will always be the focus here. And the tradition of encouraging students to task risks and explore remains as strong as ever.

"At the heart of the PDS experience are outstanding teachers who stretch, encourage and prod their students to reach beyond themselves," Ms. Lohr said. "It's remarkable." ■

PDS Steps Into The Future

This fall, the Princeton Day School community cheered the opening of new arts studios, expanded performing arts facilities and redesigned libraries.

Together, we celebrate these beautiful and functional spaces, the school's most ambitious construction project since campus opened in 1965.

Students, especially, have embraced the new spaces. They linger during lunch, nestled in cushioned chairs in the Upper School library's second-floor reading lounge. They study on a Philippe Starck sofa in the courtyard. They mingle in the Middle School Boulevard, experiment in the drama and music rooms and explore the latest exhibit in the renovated Anne Reid '72 Art Gallery.

These visual and performing arts spaces complement the extensive remodeling in 2006 of Shepherd Commons, McAneny Theater lobby, locker rooms and athletic department offices.

The new spaces – plus a state-of-the-art fitness center opening in January – reflect the generosity and commitment of PDS parents, alumni, faculty and staff who have raised more than $43 million toward the Investing in Excellence Campaign goal of $50 million.

"A project like this takes lots and lots of people working together," said Interim Head of School Lila Lohr. "We are grateful for all the thought, planning and hard work that has made our dreams come true."

"It's so beautiful. The natural light really impressed the students."
— Susan Reichlin, Middle School art teacher

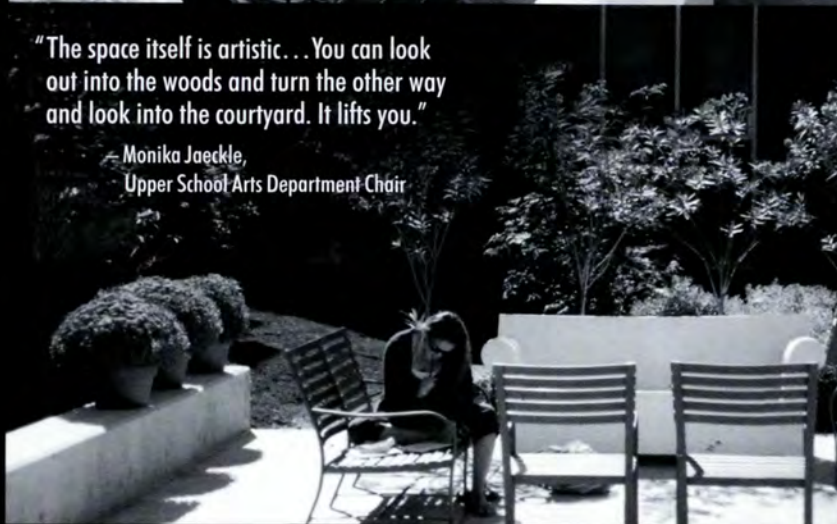

"It would be a challenge, even in New York City, to find a more beautiful dance studio."

— Andrew Parkhurst,
PDS Artist-in-Residence for dance

"The space itself is artistic... You can look out into the woods and turn the other way and look into the courtyard. It lifts you."

— Monika Jaeckle,
Upper School Arts Department Chair

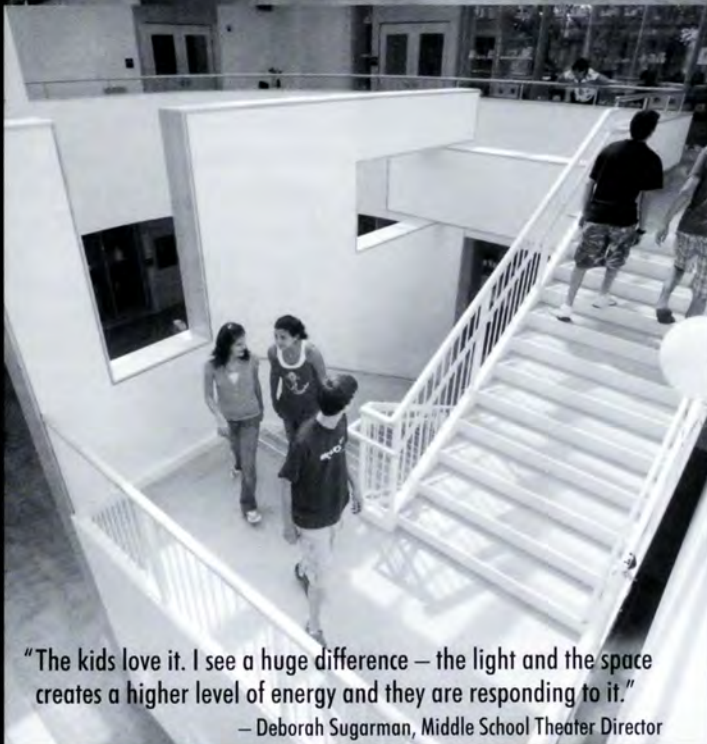

"Our vision is to have the courtyard as part of the demonstration space. The atrium, hallways and courtyard are part of a changing landscape."

— David Burkett, Upper School architecture and design teacher

Fast Facts

- 47,000 square feet of new space
- 35,000 square feet of renovated space
- 33 iMacs
- 13 pottery wheels
- 5 music practice rooms
- 2 new elevators

"The kids love it. I see a huge difference — the light and the space creates a higher level of energy and they are responding to it."

— Deborah Sugarman, Middle School Theater Director

PDS Notable

Randy Melville '77

Recognized Nationally for Ethical Leadership

Before he ever came to Princeton Day School, Randy Melville '77 was recognized as an exceptional athlete and scholar.

Those talents – and a little prodding from his mother – won him recognition at PDS, such as the 1989 Alumni Service Award and induction to the PDS Athletic Hall of Fame in 1999, and propelled him to achievements on the court and in the classroom at Princeton University. Upon graduation, he continued to earn accolades as an enterprising and energetic executive at top U.S. corporations, most recently as Senior Vice President of Sales at Frito-Lay.

But even for this accomplished PDS graduate, being named one of only five executives nationwide to receive the U.S. Naval Academy's inaugural Leadership Excellence Award was special.

"I was humbled, honored and very happy," Mr. Melville said.

The Leadership Excellence Awards, sponsored by the Harvard Business Review and the U.S. Naval Academy's Stockdale Center for Ethical Leadership, were announced in June to honor selected executives who embody the principles of ethical leadership, developing people, and delivering consistent results.

Nominations from chief executive officers around the nation were considered by a panel of judges from business, industry, and academia, chaired by Thomas A. Stewart, editor and managing director for Harvard Business Review.

In addition to celebrating excellence, Mr. Stewart said the recognition "will raise the level of conversation about what leadership excellence represents through examples of men and women who make a difference to your organization every day."

Introducing Mr. Melville at the awards ceremony in Annapolis, Frito-Lay North America President and CEO Albert Carey recalled how Mr. Melville surprised his national sales managers by inviting and recognizing top entry-level sales personnel during the company's national meeting – providing a clear example of both teamwork and respect. "He clearly puts people and personal principles first," Mr. Carey said.

Randy Melville '77

"He's a great collaborator and a great example for the young people in our organization," Mr. Carey added. "He's built a wonderful team and empowered others to reach their own potential."

Mr. Melville joined the PDS community as a sophomore – but his mother recalls that at first, he wasn't sure the Princeton campus was the right place to pursue his goals. "He wanted to follow his older brother" as a basketball star at Trenton High School, Anne Melville said. In fact, she said, the young Mr. Melville tried to fail his PDS entrance exam in hopes of playing for the well-respected Trenton team. But his mother said she knew PDS was the best place for him academically.

"He was quite upset with me about that," Mrs. Melville said. "But he thanks me now."

Mrs. Melville taught all her children to judge people as individuals, regardless of where they live, what car they drive or what color they are. Those lessons helped Mr. Melville make lifelong friends at PDS – and have inspired his approach to life in the corporate hierarchy.

"He learned the value of friendship and the value of leadership," she said.

As a PDS student, Mr. Melville said he learned "to expand my horizons both intellectually and academically, and to work with others who may have a different point of view than my own."

Mr. Melville urges today's PDS students "to develop the ability to move beyond their comfort zones and develop a healthy intellectual curiosity."

That comfort zone may be defined by similar interests or likes, gender or ethnicity, Mr. Melville said. "They need to move not only within that circle, but outside of it. I think this is where they will find their greatest personal growth."

But the best thing about this particular award, Mr. Melville joked, may be proving to his sons, once and for all, "there is nobility in being a sales person." ■

On Stage

Middle School performers are putting their new drama studio to good use, preparing for the Dec. 13 performance of "Get Smart."

MS Drama Teacher Deb Sugarman describes this year's middle school play as an adaptation of the pilot script for the 1960s television show written by Mel Brooks and Buck Henry. "It should be great fun," she said.

As this issue of the Journal went to press, rehearsals also were underway for the Upper School Fall Play, "The Diviners" by Jim Leonard, scheduled for performances Nov. 1-3 in the traditional theater-in-the-round style. The play tells a powerful, poignant and humorous story about a small town torn apart by a tragic drowning and the devastating effect of the Great Depression.

The Diviners

Margery Miller

This spring, Upper School actors will perform "Working" book by Nina Faso and Steven Schwartz, a musical based on the best-selling book of interviews with US workers by journalist Studs Terkel. This musical, with performances Feb. 20-23, explores the worklife experiences of a parking lot attendant, corporate executive, newsboy, schoolteacher, housewife, firefighter, waitress, mill-worker, sailor and others. ■

PDS Artists, from left, Noni Ammidon '08, Sarah Matthes '09 and Ariel Ruvinsky '08 join Gallery Director Jody Erdman to plan the Student Driven exhibition.

Student Driven

Seniors Ariel Ruvinsky and Noni Ammidon, along with Class of 2007 graduates Kristina Budelis, Rachel Heller, Margaret Curran and Yannick LeJacq, recently organized a successful exhibition of original paintings, photographs and prints at a popular Princeton café.

The artists, who became friends during PDS art studio classes, began planning the "Student Driven" show about a year ago.

"We selected the title based on the principle that all of these artists work inside and outside of the classroom, pushing their creativity to the limit, making the drive an art form of their lives," Ariel explained.

Mr. LeJacq and Ms. Budelis earned the Anne Shepherd Humanities Award as juniors. As seniors, Ms. Budelis received the Photography Award, and Mr. LeJacq received the Art Purchase Award. Both also have been recognized at the Drexel University High School Photography Exhibition, a competitive national show.

Mr. LeJacq and Ms. Curran were editors of Cymbals, the PDS Upper School literary magazine. In addition, Ms. Curran received the Writing Award and shared the Visual Arts Award with Ms. Heller as seniors.

Ms. Heller, now a freshman at Simmons College in Boston, selected paintings created during her junior year at PDS while studying with Jerry Hirniak.

"Mr. Hirniak pushed us to build up images using the paint, rather than draw with the medium," she said. "These paintings are important to me because I consider them my first 'real' paintings."

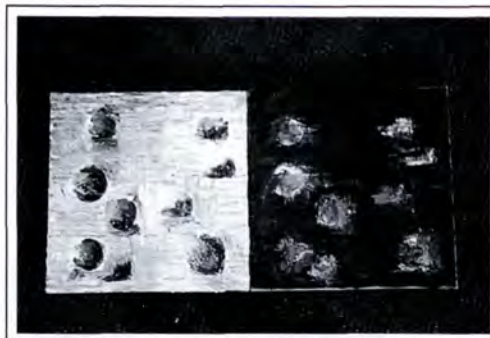

"Art continues to be a constant in my life," she said. ■

Art Exhibits

Princeton Day School Alumni Exhibition

December 3 - January 18

PDS alumni from across the country are lending their work for the school's fourth alumni exhibition. The show will include many works from at least 40 artists including photographers, painters, sculptors, ceramicists and installation artists, Ms. Erdman said.

Peter Cook

February 3 - March 2

The Gallery will feature a collection of oil paintings by artist Peter Geoffrey Cook, a farmer, a builder (who built his own home), an athlete, an ice hockey coach at Princeton University, an art teacher at Princeton Country Day School, a Phi Beta Kappa Scholar, a musician and a painter.

His portraits of former head of Princeton Country Day Henry Ross and former head of Princeton Day School Doug McClure currently hang in Colross. His son, Peter B. Cook, describes his later paintings as being "more and more concerned with light. In his last painting, done in 1992, there's a dazzling blast of light on water that I take as an emblem of the world full of hope that defines Peter Cook."

Garden State Watercolor Society

March 10 - April 29

The 37-year-old Garden State Watercolor Society will host a juried exhibition with a combination of work from members and associate members.

Watercolor Society president Charles McVicar says "the quality of work is terrific, combining watercolor compositions in every genre."

PDS Student Exhibitions

May 1 - June 4

The Gallery will end the season with an exhibition of works by Upper School students and the final Senior Thesis Exhibition.

Artwork by Thomas Beale.

Anne Reid '72 Art Gallery

Gallery Director Jody Erdman opened the new art space in September with an exhibit featuring the work of New York artist Thomas Beale.

Mr. Beale works with materials collected at the end of their lives, such as fallen branches, driftwood and scattered shells. He transforms these raw materials over months, creating units that are custom fit, piece by piece, to create the final artwork.

In October, the gallery featured recent work by David Burkett, Tina Dadian, Jody Erdman, Jerry Hirniack, Eileen Hohmuth-Lemonick, Aren Irwin, Natasha Nolan and Susan Reichlin.

"This exhibition showcases a wide range of media, methods and conceptual ideas which will allow an increased dialogue between students, faculty and the community," Ms. Erdman said.

Later this fall, Adam Stanforth, a New York City artist who graduated from the Rhode Island School of Design, will display his paintings in the gallery. ■

Alumni in the Spotlight

Following a five-month stint in Hong Kong working on video game development, Michael Highland '03 returned to Princeton in July for a public screening of his film "As Real as Your Life" exploring his own "addiction" to video games and the potential for video games to influence society.

The short film, viewed by an audience of about 75 adults and students at the Princeton Public Library, started as a school video project and later was revamped with input from a producer friend living in Los Angeles. The original purpose of the film, Mr. Highland said, was "more self-therapy than anything else – it was my way of coping with my addiction."

Since then, the film has garnered acclaim at film festivals throughout the U.S. and Mr. Highland, a senior at the University of Pennsylvania, has expanded his mission to include depicting video gaming from a player's perspective.

"So much media about gaming comes from a non-gamer viewpoint," he said. "I wanted to share what it is emotionally like for a gamer."

Michael Highland '03 talks with fellow video game fans following a showing of his film "As Real as Your Life" in Princeton.

While videography was introduced during his years at PDS, Mr. Highland said he was focused on Fine Arts and Architecture at that time. Yet he credits Upper School art teacher Jerry Hirniak with influencing his filmmaking today.

"I think having a broader experience in visual art has certainly helped produce the non-conventional approach I take to video," Mr. Highland said. "Jerry Hirniak always pushed me to experiment. Because of that, I don't think about film as a 'filmmaker', and hopefully my work does not suffer the clichés that plague so many student and amateur films." ■

Choreographer Andrew Parkhurst, Upper School Theater Director Stan Cahill and Middle School Drama Director Deb Sugarman discuss the 2007-08 season.

A New Season for Performing Arts

As an actor, playwright and director, Stan Cahill has experienced both the luxury of a film set trailer the size of McAneny Theater and the austerity of an off-off-off Broadway production dressing room. This year, he'll be drawing on that range of experience to guide the PDS theater program.

Mr. Cahill, who also served on the faculty at Pepperdine University and, most recently, St. Paul's School in Concord, NH, was attracted to PDS by its reputation for excellence, specifically in the performing arts. And after directing theater at a boarding school, he looks forward to the energy and enthusiasm parents bring to the PDS theater program.

"I like the fact parents are involved; they can give us a hand," he said. "That's exciting."

Mr. Cahill plans to build on the strength of the PDS program, maintaining the traditional performance line-up of a fall theater-in-the-round dramatic production with "The Diviners," a spring musical, "Working" based on the best-selling book of interviews with US workers by Studs Terkel, and a multi-day performing arts festival. Yet his professional experience will guide this upcoming year.

"I am a classically trained actor, so I tend to gravitate toward the classics, Moliere, Checkov, the Greeks, Shakespeare," said Mr. Cahill, a graduate of New York University. "Then I get sick of it and go 180 degrees the other way – fringier stuff; edgier stuff – or I take a classic and shed a new light on it..."

"I'm not a very mainstream guy."

Mr. Cahill also is eager for students to help shape the future. He understands that theater – even at a school with a tradition of award-winning productions – is more about teaching students, taking risks and teamwork.

"I want to stay in touch with what worked – but also see what we can change to build on what you have done," he said. "...The kids have a pretty cool opportunity to make some decisions that will inform the program here. Maybe 10 years out, some PDS theater classes will be doing stuff started by them."

"The more people the students work with, the better,"

— Stan Cahill

Working with students as capable and intellectually curious as those at PDS widens a theater director's horizons, Mr. Cahill said. "Such intellectual rigor is exciting," he said. "You can pick out a play that's not in the usual high school canon."

In addition, Mr. Cahill wants to move PDS students "outside this bubble" by touring the area with some PDS performances. He also plans to bring guest artists – including many friends and colleagues from New York City — to campus for a day or a workshop.

Farther down the road, Mr. Cahill would like to share the creativity and craziness of the Edinburgh Fringe Festival with PDS students. Having traveled to Scotland with students from St. Paul's School, he declared the global performing arts festival "the biggest eye-opening experience" for young performers.

At PDS, Mr. Cahill will be joined by Tom Buckelew, musician-in-residence, as well as Andrew Parkhurst, Artist-in-Residence for dance and choreography.

"The more people the students work with, the better," Mr. Cahill said. "They've got new faculty – a new theater director, a new choreographer. This is their opportunity to be part of something, to create something new." ■

"Threefold Sun" photographs by Taj Forer

Taj Forer '00 recently opened his first solo photography exhibit in NYC at the Yossi Milo Gallery North. The exhibition features handmade 20 X 20 inch prints of portraits and interiors taken during travels across the U.S. Following the influence of Rudolf Steiner, founder of the Waldorf school movement, Mr. Forer illustrates a simple and organic lifestyle.

Mr. Forer is a founding editor of the contemporary photography publication Daylight Magazine and artist-in-residence at the North Carolina Contemporary Art Museum. His gallery show includes color photographs from the series Threefold Sun, a monograph by Mr. Forer published this fall by Edizioni Charta and dedicated to Upper School photography teacher Eileen Hohmuth-Lemonick. The exhibition runs through December 15. ■

Greetings from the Director of Athletics

How often we hear people comment how time flies. I can certainly relate to this sentiment, all too well, as I begin my tenth year as Director of Athletics at Princeton Day School. It seems like yesterday when Lila Lohr visited me in San Diego CA to discuss the position and to share with me the wonderful qualities of PDS and the special sense of community.

With a bit of guilt, I continue to feel that I enjoyed an unfair advantage as a candidate. You see, it was one of those quintessential southern California days — 75 degree and sunny, and hence, Lila was in a particularly good mood! Well, even if it did mean leaving southern California behind, never for a moment have I regretted this decision. PDS exceeded Lila's billing and to this day I still feel very fortunate and humble to represent our school as the Director of Athletics and to work in support of our many student-athletes.

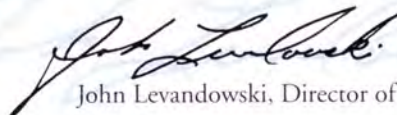

My pride in PDS peaked as we showcased our athletic teams during Fall Athletic Weekend. The event began Friday evening with a barbecue, team skits and a bonfire. The overall spirit and general good fun were contagious and served as a vivid reminder as to why athletics are so important to the spirit, health and well-being of any school.

On the following day, our team took to the fields and, in front of large crowds, our players competed with great energy and enthusiasm. All our teams came away with performances to make them proud. We finished the day with a combined record of 5 wins-2 losses and 1 tie. A great day in every respect! A special thank you to our Athletic Booster Club and to all our volunteer parents who worked tirelessly in support of Fall Weekend. It was a team effort — players, coaches and parents!

On a similar theme, I'd like to share another event worth highlighting. On Friday, Sept. 7 — again with the support of our Booster Club — we rented lights and hosted a night football game to kick off the season. I doubt a larger crowd of alumni, parents, faculty, students and friends has ever assembled on our campus in support of an athletic event! Once again, community spirit was in full swing as our lower school students lined up to greet our team when they took to the field. It was priceless and I'm pleased to say that their inspirational deed paid off as our varsity team defeated Morrisville High School in a hard-fought and exciting contest (19-16).

As we look ahead, through the generous efforts of many, we are looking forward to opening our new athletic wing replete with a state-of-the-art fitness center and athletic trainer's room. Both facilities will have a positive and profound impact on our athletic program and, more importantly, on the health and safety of our students-athletes. I hope you can visit campus to tour the new facilities early next year. We would be very excited to show you the new space.

On behalf of all our coaches and the entire Athletic Department, I thank you for sharing your interest and support with PDS athletics. Go Panthers!

XC Champions

PDS boys Cross Country captured the Patriot Conference Championship, with five runners in the top 10 including Erik LeFebvre '09 at Third Place. PDS earned 34 points, leading runner-up Rutgers Prep by 19 points.

"This is a wonderfully talented, and very young, group of runners," said Coach Eamon Downey. "They are learning, and mastering, one of the crucial elements in the success of any XC team — running as a pack."

Adam Fisch '11 came in Fifth, followed by Charlie Behling '10 in Seventh, AJ Rubin '11 in Ninth and Cameron Dunbar '09 in Tenth.

Director of Athletics John Levandowski also praised the team, saying "their commitment was evident from Day One of preseason and their efforts and sense of team paid off in a great performance. This is a real tribute to our students and coaching staff!"

Beyond PDS

• Keely Langdon '07 was named a 2007 High School All America player for lacrosse. Keely was a Varsity player for four years on three PDS teams: soccer, basketball and lacrosse. She received the 2006 Coaches Award for her offense and was named to the All Area, All State Prep and All Packet and All Trentonian teams. Keely helped lead the PDS varsity LAX team to a 15-3 record and a finish as runner-up in the Prep A State tournament in an overtime duel with Oak Knoll. She is attending the University of Pennsylvania where she plays lacrosse.

• Jonathan Hofmann '06 teamed with his mother Joyce to capture the mixed B doubles flight at the James E. Cryan Memorial Tournament in August at Mercer County Park. Jonathan and his mom won 6-4, 6-0.

• Betsy Welsh '04 was back in New Jersey recently, leading her University of Vermont field hockey team to victory over Rutgers University.

Betsy, captain of the UVM team both her junior and senior years, was an outstanding athlete at PDS. She started on the Panthers Varsity Field Hockey team all four years, led the team as captain in 2003 and was named team MVP in 2001 and 2003.

Betsy was a standout player in ice hockey and lacrosse at PDS, too. She earned both the Silver P recognizing an outstanding middle school athlete and Gold P as an Upper School athlete.

Betsy also received the Sacks-Wilner Award as a senior in recognition of her courageous and successful battle against cancer, which was diagnosed before her junior year. Betsy recently celebrated five years of good health.

• Alyssa Briody '03 was captain of the Amherst women's varsity lacrosse team and was named to the All-American First Team in lacrosse for the second consecutive year. She also became the fourth player in Amherst history to exceed 200 career points. Alyssa's siblings, Patrick '06 and Katie '07, are perpetuating the family lacrosse tradition at Colby College.

Guillaume Cossard '10 outmaneuvers his opponent.

Princeton Day School and Stuart Country Day on their annual trip to the U.S. Open Qualifying Finals organized by PDS Head Varsity Coach, Patty Headley.

Panthers in the News

• Mike Shimkin '08, has set a new rushing record for Princeton Day School football. Mike rushed for 144 yards with 19 carries during an Oct. 6 game, bringing his total yards to 2,585 with three more games remaining this season. The previous PDS record of 2,490 yards was set in 1976 by Billy Martin.

PDS Head Football Coach Bruce Devlin cheered Mike, saying "He's the real deal; works hard and always makes me smile. When this young man started here, I told his parents I saw something special in him, and that he'd do something great here, and today he proved me right."

Mike has been a starter on the PDS Varsity since his freshman year. This is his second year as one of the team's co-captains.

• David Holland '08 captured the title of the 2007 U.S. Junior International Hard Court Championships at The Atlantic Club in Manasquan. The tournament, one of many grouped into the USTA Junior National Championships schedule, featured 32 players from the U.S. and around the world. David is currently ranked second in Boys' 18s in Middle States and 36th nationally.

• Neil Karandikar '10 won the OCPT Summer Classic 16-and-under sectional tournament in July. Neil is currently ranked in the top twenty in the Middle States 16-and-under division.

Mike Shimkin '08 rewrites the record books for rushing in varsity football.

• Samantha Lieb '11 reached the finals of the 16-and-under Labor Day Championships, a national open tournament attended by many of the countries' strongest players. A few weeks later, she captured the Mercer County first singles title, dropping just five games throughout the tournament and becoming the first freshman MCT champion since 1998.

Samantha's victory marked the first time a PDS girl has won the singles championship for Mercer County. Her success helped the Panthers finished fourth overall in team standings.

• Samantha Asch '13 (Currently ranked #2 in Middle States for U-12) has been invited to play on the Nike Junior Tennis Tour which begins at Stanford University this fall. Samantha also won the 12-and-under division of the Labor Day Championships in Glen Cove, Long Island.

New Line-Up

The PDS Athletic Department is excited to announce that Jessica Katz was recently named as our new head Varsity Girls Basketball Coach. Coach Katz takes charge after coaching our JV team and assisting the varsity for the past three years.

Coach Katz, a middle school Humanities teacher, graduated from Williams College where she was captain and leading scorer of the junior varsity basketball team. Prior to her college experience, Coach Katz was captain, leading scorer and MVP of her high school team.

"After assisting the varsity team last year, I know I can help the girls further develop their talent and I look forward to watching them grow together as a team," Ms. Katz said. "I am excited about being a head coach and building a program that helps create formative experiences and lasting memories of success and accomplishment for these girls."

Bob Wilson also has joined the PDS ranks as Varsity Softball Coach. He comes to PDS with a resume including his role as a founding member of the Hamilton Girls' Softball Association, head coach of the Hamilton Hurricanes (various teams ages 10-18), coach of the Junior Olympic Development Program, pitching instructor for beginners through college and assistant coach at Ursinus College, whose pitching staff earned national recognition by the NCAA.

Scott Bertoli, the former Trenton Titans captain and current PDS hockey coach, has been named Interim Assistant of Athletics for the 2007-08 academic year.

"Scott served as the head coach of our boys' varsity hockey team last season and thoroughly enjoyed his role in being a member of the PDS community," said PDS Director of Athletics John Levandowski. "Scott is extremely excited and grateful for this opportunity and is looking forward to working with all coaches in support of our athletic programs."

Before joining PDS as head varsity boys hockey coach in 2006-07, Mr. Bertoli participated in a number of sports. At Princeton University, he led the hockey team to an ECAC Championship. Soon after graduation in 1999, Mr. Bertoli signed with the Trenton Titans. As team captain for the past eight years, he has earned numerous individual, team and league honors.

PDS Athletic Assistant Katherine "Kat" Smithson, captain of her St. Lawrence University Division 1 Women's Ice Hockey Team, will be leading the 2007-08 PDS girls varsity team, along with Gretchen Jaecle as assistant girls varsity ice hockey coach.

Coach Smithson joined the PDS community this summer after earning her Masters Degree in Educational Administration from St. Lawrence. Prior to St. Lawrence, Ms. Smithson attended the Millbrook School where she was a tri-sport athlete and captain of soccer, ice hockey and lacrosse teams. Mr. Levandowski praised the new coaches, saying "I am confident in their ability to lead the team and provide a rewarding experience for our girls."

G. Luke Hensel is the new Athletic Trainer. Mr. Hensel comes to PDS with impressive experience in the fields of preventive medicine, rehabilitation, fitness training, strength training and conditioning. He earned a Masters Degree in Sports Medicine from Armstrong Athletic State University in Savannah GA, where he also worked as the school's Athletic Trainer. At Armstrong, Mr. Hensel performed both care and education in sports' health for all NCAA Division II teams and staff of the institution. He has been very active in the soccer world, having coached a number of girls' teams, including the four-time NCAA Women's National Champions Baptist Bible College team. ■

PDS Coaches and Varsity Football Players were overwhelmed — as was Morrisville — by the Panther PRIDE displayed at the opening game under the lights.

In a note to the PDS community, Assistant Coach Chris Devlin said the community spirit helped motivate players to hang tough and defeat Morrisville 19-16.

The banner by second-graders, the middle school showing and the backing of Upper School, as well as parents and faculty "was great," Assistant Coach Devlin said. "From the moment the ball was kicked off, until the final horn when you rushed to the field to congratulate the football team, you guys were wonderful and a big part of the victory."

"The Booster Club was a huge part of this night, too," he said. "So to all, once again, many, many, many thanks!"

CHRISTOPHER BUTLER writes: Just a brief update from Massachusetts. My wife Jennifer and I had a daughter in the fall. Charlotte Jane was born on October 2nd. Everyone is happy and healthy. Hope all is well down in Princeton!

BETH CARROLL writes: Beth and Charles Carroll had a wonderful tour of Egypt in February. It began with a stay at the Oberoi Mena house in Giza – a former royal hunting lodge. You see the incredible pyramids from your patio, and a short walk brought you to the three pyramids, the Sphinx, and a camel ride in the desert. Cairo is an amazing city, filled with glorious objects from long ago (3500 BC), exotic bazaars, and some of the world's worst traffic. They visited the magnificent temples at Abu Simbel in the south, and drove through the Sahara to the Aswan Dam. A three-day Nile cruise was relaxing, fun, and featured stops at many amazing temples. In Luxor the Temple of Karnack was a highlight, as was a night tour of a market and the beautifully lit Luxor Temple. An evening felucca ride was a really fun adventure. The Valleys of the Kings and Queens are spectacular! The ancient cities of Memphis and Sakkara are fascinating, and include more pyramids and wonderful hieroglyphics. Back in Cairo, the Egyptian Museum houses the world's greatest collection of Egyptian antiquities. King Tutankhamen's treasures and the royal mummies are breath taking. The Egyptian people were very friendly!

His "retirement" to his home in Rochester, VT will be short lived as he leaves for the Middle East in August 2007 to work as a consultant for the Ministry of Education in Dubai, in the United Arab Emirates. Art will assist the Ministry of Education by working as a mentor to principals in the public schools as they embark on a significant reform effort to implement a new English and Math curriculum and transition to student-centered learning communities. Art's wife, Kristina, will accompany him to the UAE.

2007 Robert C. Whitlock Award for Distinguished Teaching: Aaron Schomburg

As the second-graders spill into his science classroom, Aaron Schomburg can barely conceal his glee at the confusion and outrage about to erupt over last night's homework assignment.

Having handed each student what appeared to be an identical strip of white paper with a black ink dot and instructed them to dunk the paper in water and carefully observe the results, Mr. Schomburg is now confronted with results ranging from inky gray stains stretching the length of the paper to "Nothing happened."

"What happened? Didn't you do the assignment?" he asks.

Of course they did the assignment – these are second-graders, after all – but their dots did nothing. Members of the "Nothing happened" crowd protest, while their classmates wonder if they did something wrong.

Patently, Mr. Schomburg calls each student to the front of the room where he tapes their papers to the blackboard, displaying dozens of reactions. With a smile playing at the corners of his mouth, Mr. Schomburg then declares the class will have to work together to figure out why the results vary so widely.

Over the next week or so, they will ponder "The Secret of the Black Dot," discussing how variables – hot or cold water, paper or glass container, type of ink – affect outcomes. And in the process, Mr. Schomburg will have hooked yet another group of PDS students on the mystery and magic of science.

Such creative enthusiasm has earned Mr. Schomburg the 2007 Robert C. Whitlock Award for Distinguished Teaching, our school's highest honor for faculty. This annual award is presented to that Princeton Day School faculty member who best demonstrates the exceptional teaching skills, devotion to students, courtesy, zeal for knowledge and pursuit of excellence, as well as the qualities of gentleness, patience, dedication, and professionalism that were the hallmarks of Bob Whitlock's 42-year teaching career.

Presenting the award in June, former Head of School Judy Fox thanked the Lower School science curriculum coordinator for having "sewn, cultivated, and blossomed a first-rate science curriculum — one that didn't even exist when he arrived 15 years ago."

With pond-mucking, star-gazing, and boat-racing, Mr. Schomburg has captured students' imaginations as well as initiated an organic garden, hydroponics and helped develop a glorious Pretty Brook orchard. His pond study project has created a meaningful and lasting partnership between PDS and Trenton students focused on scientific and interdisciplinary exploration.

His approach is evident in his classroom, where visitors and students find fossils, conch shells, a pond water aquarium, test tubes, star charts, butterfly collections, canoe paddles, a telescope, one-half of a moose antler, inflatable planets, buckets of sand, weights and scales, beakers and test tubes, and incubators.

"Science is always changing – it never gets old," Mr. Schomburg said.

Mr. Schomburg grew up in a blue collar New Hampshire town where his father taught English literature in the public school. Watching his dad make Beowulf and Shakespeare come alive for students and, in turn, how students respected his father, inspired Mr. Schomburg to pursue a teaching career.

"I liked the idea that you could be kind of an influence in a positive way," he said.

Today, his own two daughters meet their father in his classroom after school – a situation Mr. Schomburg appreciates. Having his own children in class – where they still call him "Dad" – creates a nurturing environment for all students, he said.

"It helps foster relationships with other kids. They feel very comfortable stopping by and talking," Mr. Schomburg said, adding that "as a parent, you also go to birthday parties and sports events. It makes it more of a community."

This feeling of community, bolstered by friendships among faculty, staff and families, creates a unique opportunity for children and adults to grow and learn, Mr. Schomburg said. Teachers from JK-Grade 12 share ideas and parents are eager to offer support and expertise, he said.

In a letter to Mr. Whitlock's family, Mr. Schomburg wrote "I rarely share how blessed I feel to not only teach at PDS but also to be able to have my two daughters attend this wonderful institution.

"I did not have the good fortune to attend a private school or to grow up in a diverse and culturally rich environment and so, in many ways, I feel that each day at PDS allows me to grow and become a richer individual." ■ imaginations.

Back to School: PDS Alumni
Return as Teachers

by Kelly Rouba

Growing up, Natasha Jacques Nolan's family instilled in her an appreciation for the arts. But, it was her Upper School photography teacher Eileen Hohmuth-Lemonick who helped her discover her niche.

"I think she had a big impact on why I love photography," said Mrs. Nolan '00. "Photography seemed to be the medium I connected with right away. Drawing and painting didn't fulfill my vision on how I wanted to express my art."

Mrs. Nolan later attended Syracuse University, where she majored in photography. Following graduation, she worked as a manager in a photography studio where she found she enjoyed working with children. She began assisting in the art department of an all-boys school in London and upon her return to the U.S., she worked as a substitute teacher at The Hun School. This year, she decided to return to Princeton Day School – as a teaching intern.

The PDS intern program is designed for college graduates who are committed to the teaching profession. Those who are accepted into the program are provided with full-time classroom experience coupled with educational study.

Throughout the 2007-08 school year, Mrs. Nolan will be working with students in kindergarten through fourth grades as a Lower School art intern. Ms. Hohmuth-Lemonick "made me passionate about photography and I know she touched other students," Mrs. Nolan recalled. "And that's what made me want to be a teacher."

Like Mrs. Nolan, quite a few PDS graduates have pursued careers in education, inspired by teachers here.

"The teachers at PDS were also very important people in my life and role models," said Marjorie Wallace Gibson '84, whose four children attend PDS. "I really valued (the teachers) back when I was there and I value them now as educators for my children. They are getting a phenomenal education."

Mrs. Gibson began a career in banking after college – but said teaching was something she always considered. Now a Lower School intern, she believes her experience at PDS influenced her decision to re-enter the classroom.

Last fall, Mrs. Gibson spoke to the Head of Lower School about her interest in teaching and then applied to the intern program. "I just really wanted to take advantage of this great school and the talented and dedicated people in the PDS community," said Mrs. Gibson, who is working with students in first and second grades this year.

This year, Mrs. Gibson and Mrs. Nolan are joined by James A. Bird '03 as Lower School teaching interns, making all three Lower School teaching interns PDS alumni – an unusual, but significant, coincidence.

Interim Head of Lower School Cindy Peifer appreciates the presence of alumni on her staff. PDS faculty includes 10 former PDS students and many other alumni teach elsewhere.

"It's great because it's a clear statement about how much these graduates value our school," Ms. Peifer said. "That they want to come back here and learn about teaching is a tribute to the teachers who taught them."

Second-grade teacher Paris McLean '00 also went through the intern program four years ago. "It allowed me to get accustomed to the PDS style of teaching and it allowed me to find myself within the school," he said. "It opened me up to things I didn't even think of – different ways to teach reading and writing and different ways of learning."

Paris McLean '00 • Rosalind Waskow Hansen '81 • Jim Laughlin '80

Mr. McLean, who also is the assistant varsity football coach and head varsity basketball coach, said he knew from the age of 12 that he wanted to be a teacher. Several years later, he began attending PDS and was able to experience what it is like to teach young children. "I joined the Teacher Assistant Program where you work with kids in the Lower School and I kind of got a feel for PDS," he said.

After completing the internship program, Mr. McLean was proud to be offered a teaching position at PDS. "I really wanted to work at PDS," he said. "Being a teacher is invaluable. You can help people who are struggling and you can help people find their way."

Rosalind Waskow Hansen '81 is another alum whose interest in teaching was sparked by her experience at PDS. From eighth grade through senior year, Ms. Hansen said she encountered teachers simultaneously demanding and nurturing. Former faculty members such as Clare Lockhart and Sally Gilbert, as well as Jim Walker and Harry Rulon-Miller, who are still at PDS, made a lasting impression.

"I just loved my experience," she said.

Ms. Hansen, who has been a teacher in New York, England, Boston, Colorado and San Francisco, now coaches junior varsity girls' lacrosse and field hockey at PDS. This year, she also is teaching some Upper School advanced science courses. "I think I knew all along I wanted to be back in a classroom," she said.

While teaching in California, Ms. Hansen helped guide another PDS alum into teaching. As a host of the annual San Francisco alumni party, she connected with Charles Denby '00 who had just moved to the area. "I recognized the name – I loved Mr. Denby when I was at PDS," she recalled.

She urged the younger Mr. Denby, who was doing some political fundraising, to visit her school and consider substitute teaching. "He became a long-term substitute physical education teacher," she said. "Now he's in the second year of the school's new teacher institute."

While he was substitute teaching, Mr. Denby discovered that he also enjoyed working with students. The Institute provides hands-on education for young teachers, pairing them with experienced colleagues. This year, he will be teaching students in kindergarten through fourth grade.

Although Mr. Denby didn't enter teaching right out of college, he grew up respecting the role and gained new appreciation for the influence teachers have while a student at PDS.

"I think the great thing about PDS is you get to have close relationships with your teachers," he said. "I'd say the teachers I really connected with were some of the younger teachers. I was close enough in age that I could really relate to them...It gave me great values for life."

The TAP program also helped him grow to enjoy the profession. "I'd say the TAP program gave me a little bit of exposure. Basically, it was an opportunity for (PDS) high school students to work with Lower School teachers. I would go in a couple times a week and help (students) with a reading assignment or math assignment," Mr. Denby said.

Jim Laughlin '80, who teaches kindergarten at PDS, also looks back fondly on his years as a PDS student. "I loved school and I always admired the teachers," he said. "I know that I was kind of a pain to them sometimes, but the whole experience, I loved."

After Mr. Laughlin participated in the intern program, he was placed in a kindergarten classroom and hasn't left. "It happened that was the grade that I got and I loved it," he said, adding, "Those kids are just learning to read and write. Everything is new and exciting."

"As the song says, 'I go to PDS because it is the best'," said Mr. Laughlin, whose two children now attend PDS. "I just wanted to afford them, as a parent, every opportunity that I can to succeed and PDS is a great place for that. It has great support and great faculty." ■

This statue on Lantau Island stands 34 meters high, reportedly the largest Buddha
in the world.

Upper School Teacher Dave Freedholm was one of only 16 educators selected nationwide to participate in a U.S. Department of Education Fulbright Fellowship journey to China.

Mr. Freedholm, who has been teaching at PDS for 13 years, described this trip as the "next step" in a learning process he started some years ago by traveling to India. Those journeys have shaped his teaching of Sacred Traditions and prompted him to lead groups of students to India and Nepal in 2001 and 2005.

*"It was an amazingly full month that really illuminated for us
the new China in all its complexity."
- Dave Freedholm*

Under surprisingly clear, blue skies, I found myself standing on a very long set of steps leading up to what is reported to be the largest sitting Buddha in the world. It is located on the relatively unpopulated Lantau Island in Hong Kong and stands an impressive 34 meters high. As I gazed over the beautiful landscape around me, I felt as if the remaining steps up to the base of the Buddha were the final steps of my trip to China. Of course they weren't, literally. But this last climb felt like an ending of sorts.

I had left San Francisco on June 27, part of a group of teachers from all over the U.S. selected to be part of the Fulbright-Hays Seminars Abroad trip to China. Run by the National Committee on U.S.-China Relations, the tour was escorted by Prof. Rick Belsky, a well-known China expert from CUNY, and Liu Weiming, a former Fulbright scholar and high school English teacher. All of these connections, and our status as an official delegation from the U.S. Dept. of Education, opened doors in ways we had never dreamed possible.

Our group met with a series of amazing individuals, from high government officials in the field of education to experts in AIDS research, sustainability, and economics. We visited with one of China's leading feminists, Wu Qing. At 70, she is

The area outside of Beijing is filled with the factories and the immigrant laborers that sustain the city's economy and are helping prepare the city for the Olympics. As migrants, they do not automatically receive the public education given to official residents. We visited Beijing Dandelion School (above), run by a dedicated staff who are attempting to bridge this gap by providing quality education to migrant children.

In addition to visiting religious sites, we made all the usual tourists stops.

(left) I was graciously hosted by the family of Zhang Zeyu who lived in a nice apartment in the outskirts of Beijing. We had the opportunity to talk about many things...and what struck me was that people-to-people contact brings out the best in us. Mrs. Zhang even taught me to make dumplings.

As a teacher of world culture and religion, I was especially interested in China's religious history and current religious life. Xian held some of my favorite sites, such as the Great Mosque built during the Tang dynasty.

a bundle of energy, belief, commitment, and passion for helping others. The daughter of the famous writer Xie Bingxin, she has survived the trials of the Cultural Revolution and emerged as a noted scholar and activist, particularly on behalf of rural and migrant women in China.

We toured educational institutions from prestigious universities and elite middle schools to small schools serving immigrant children. Along with that, we made the usual tourist spots visiting the Great Wall, Tiananmen Square, the famous terracotta warriors in Xian, Shanghai's Pearl Tower, and Hong Kong's Peak. It was an amazingly full month that really illuminated for us the new China in all its complexity.

As a teacher of world culture and religion at PDS, I had a special interest in visiting places connected to China's religious history and current religious life. Perhaps my favorite places in this regard were in historic Xian. The Big Wild Goose Pagoda is a large tower and temple in memory of the famous monk Xuanzang who traveled to India in the 7th century bringing back with him many important Buddhist scriptures. Also in Xian is the Great Mosque built during the Tang dynasty, a place of great beauty and quiet in the midst of a bustling metropolis.

As I stood on those steps beneath the great Buddha on Lantau Island, I was filled with a sense of wonder, exhaustion, completion, and a bit of sadness as my trip drew to an end.

The moment reminded me of a line from a poem of Su Shi, "A tired traveler stranded at the end of the world, gazing homeward, heartbroken."

My heart was sad about having to leave China and my new friends. But I was happy to return to my PDS students and colleagues, enriched by this amazing trip.

I am extremely pleased to report that when the dust settled on a very busy school year it was clear that it had been another extraordinarily successful year in terms of philanthropic support from all corners of the Princeton Day School community.

In the pages that follow, you will find the names of those generous and loyal individuals whose gifts of time, talent and resources are the foundation upon which the school's quality rests. The school would not exist, much less thrive as it does today, without the ongoing devotion of the broader school community – and to all of you we owe our solemn gratitude and our pledge to provide the very best educational experience we possibly can to the children entrusted to us today and in the future.

Highlights of the 2006-2007 year include:

- Over $8 Million in New Gifts and Pledges

Gifts and new pledges to the school totaled just over $8 million and supported all facets of our work here on campus through new endowments for faculty salaries and financial aid, funding for the beautiful new and renovated facilities that opened just a few days ago as I write this letter, and direct support to the school's daily operations through the Annual Fund.

- Annual Fund — All-Time Record High of $1,095,365

Support of the Annual Fund reached a new all-time high – nearly $50,000 more than last year. My thanks must go to many alumni, parents and friends of the school whose generosity made this achievement possible, especially to our Annual Fund Co-Chairs parent Marc Brahaney and alumna Melissa Rosendorf Calvert '91, and the more than 150 Annual Fund volunteers who wrote letters, made calls and brought the total to this record high mark.

- Capital Campaign – Ahead of Schedule at $42,500,000 Toward $50 Million Goal

The capital campaign continued to make steady progress, and as we enter the final year of this historic $50 million five-year effort, the total stands at $42,500,000 given or pledged with several significant commitments in the offing.

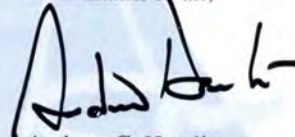

Much work and many additional gifts will be required to reach the goal, but I am confident that the efforts of the more than 75 campaign volunteers and the generous support of the PDS community will put us “over the top” by next spring.

PDS Pride

Very, very few independent day schools receive this level of volunteer and financial support from their respective communities of alumni, parents and friends. We should all take great pride in the statement this makes about PDS and the community of individuals listed herein who choose to help ensure the school's continuing strength.

Finally, I would like to thank my staff for their tireless efforts, their commitment to the school's mission and their professionalism, which is the hallmark of their work in support of those who teach and learn on our campus. The school is fortunate to have them on its team, and I am honored to have the opportunity to call them colleagues.

With thanks to all,

Andrew C. Hamlin
Director of Advancement

Princeton Day School complies with all federal and state laws prohibiting discrimination in its admissions, employment and administrative policies.

The Princeton Day School Annual Report is a publication of the Development Office. It includes contributions received from July 1, 2006 through June 30, 2007. Every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy and completeness of this report. Please accept our apologies for any errors or omissions and report them to the Development Office at 609-924-6700, ext. 1251.

The May Margaret Fine Society

Established in 1998, the May Margaret Fine Society recognizes those loyal alumnae/i, parents and friends who have informed the Development Office that they have made provisions for Princeton Day School in their estate plans. We recognize that this is a partial listing, and ask those who have taken this important step to inform the Development Office and have their name(s) added to this list.

Including the school in their will, establishing a charitable trust while maintaining life income, or naming the school as a life insurance beneficiary are some of the ways these individuals have helped secure the long-term strength of Princeton Day School.

Endowment Report

Endowment Funds in Support of Academic Programs

Total endowment funds restricted for this purpose as of June 30, 2007: $332,776

❖ Asian Studies Fund

Established in 2007 by an anonymous PDS family for academic support for the JK-12 Asian Studies program, which may include faculty salaries, equipment, guest speakers, and events that enhance the Asian Studies program at Princeton Day School.

❖ Mary (Polly) R. Hamill Memorial Fund

Established in 1996 with gifts from family and friends in memory of Trustee Mary (Polly) R. Hamill, supplemented by the Board of Trustees and by Mrs. Hamill's mother, Mrs. Joseph Townsend. The annual income is to fund Middle School programs that support and strengthen the education of young women, and foster in them the skills and confidence to most fully achieve their potential in life.

❖ David Noyes Lecture Fund

Established in 1984 with gifts from parents in memory of Princeton Day School teacher David Noyes. Annual interest to fund guest speakers in the Middle School in the general subject of American History.

❖ Pioneers in Science Fund

Established in 2003 through the initiative and generosity of Trustee Marc Ostro. Supplemented by other Trustees and friends of the school. Income from the fund underwrites the annual expense of bringing to the school a guest lecturer who has excelled in the field of science.

❖ Anne Rothrock Lectureship Fund

Established in 1996 with gifts from family and friends in memory of Upper School teacher Anne C. Rothrock. The annual income is to support the Anne C. Rothrock Lecture, an annual event that brings to the Upper School students and faculty a guest speaker whose expertise is in areas of public policy or important contemporary social issues in order to foster debate and engage students in a lively discussion of the issues.

Endowment Funds in Support of the Arts

Total endowment funds restricted for this purpose as of June 30, 2007: $464,342

❖ Lively Arts Program Fund

Established in 1984 with gifts from Samuel W. Lambert and Louisa G. Lambert in honor of Mr. Lambert's mother, Mary H. Lambert of the Miss Fine's School Class of 1919. The fund has been supplemented in subsequent years by friends and family, the E. E. Ford Foundation, The Bunbury Company and The Baldwin Foundation. The annual income originally was restricted to bringing to the campus artists and performers from Lincoln Center for performances and to support the teaching of art at PDS. It subsequently was renamed the Lively Arts Fund and was expanded to include artists and performers from other than Lincoln Center.

❖ Gary M. C. Lott Fund for the Arts

Established in 2004 with gifts from alumni, family and friends in memory of longtime PDS Upper School teacher and History Department Chair Gary M. C. Lott. Annual income supports the purchase and display each year of an outstanding student's artwork for the school's permanent collection.

❖ John D. Wallace, Jr. '78 Memorial Guest Artist Series Fund

Established in 1991 with a gift from Mr. and Mrs. John D. Wallace '48 in memory of their son, John D. Wallace, Jr. '78. The annual income is to support guest artists who come to the campus each year to promote the arts in all three school divisions. At the discretion of the donors, principal may also be used.

❖ Winstanley Memorial Fund

Established in 1990 with gifts from family and friends in memory of Mark Winstanley of the class of 1990. The annual income is to be used to purchase art work by seniors, for the school's permanent collection.

Endowment Funds in Support of Facilities

Total endowment funds restricted for this purpose as of June 30, 2007: $41,414

❖ Charles Artandi Fund

Established in 1992 with gifts from Dr. Susan Artandi and her grandsons David A. Ragsdale '90 and Daniel A. Ragsdale '93 in memory of her husband and their grandfather, Dr. Charles Artandi. The annual income is to fund the maintenance of the flagpole and the surrounding area near the school entrance.

Endowment Funds in Support of Faculty Salaries and Benefits

Total endowment funds restricted for this purpose as of June 30, 2007: $5,725,138

❖ Academic Excellence Fund

Established in 2005 through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Shechtel. Annual income is restricted to supporting professional development opportunities for teachers as well as academic and extracurricular initiatives that create or enhance academic enrichment opportunities for students.

❖ David C. Bogle Award

Established in 1995 with gifts from family and friends in memory of David C. Bogle, who devoted seventeen years of service to PDS, most notably as the Director of Development. The annual income is to be awarded each year to underwrite an outstanding faculty initiative that most clearly advances the pursuit of teaching excellence at Princeton Day School.

❖ Class of '94 Faculty Enrichment Fund

Established in 1994 with gifts from the parents of the class of 1994. Annual income to support faculty salaries and benefits.

❖ Faculty Salary Enrichment Fund

Established in 1986 with gifts from The Bunbury Company and many Princeton Day School parents and alumni. The fund was supplemented regularly in subsequent years by The Bunbury Company, Mr. Samuel Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Grounds, and many parents, alumni and friends of the school. The annual income is to provide general support to the faculty salaries and benefits.

❖ The Faculty Enhancement Fund

Established in 2004 through the generous gift of an anonymous Princeton Day School family. Annual income is to support professional development opportunities for members of the faculty.

❖ Miss Fine School Sabbatical Fund

Established in 1991 through the leadership and generosity of Susan Schildkraut Wallach '64, Jane Aresty Silverman '63 and many Miss Fine's School alumnae. The annual income is restricted to supporting the Miss Fine's Sabbatical, awarded annually to a deserving member of the Princeton Day School faculty.

❖ Johnston Enrichment Award Fund

Established in 1987 with a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Johnston. Annual income supports professional development opportunities for faculty that enhance and enrich their teaching expertise and their students' classroom experience.

❖ Carroll O'Brien Kane Fund

Established in 2000 in honor of former Lower School teacher Carroll O'Brien Kane and her twenty-six years of devoted service to the students of Princeton Day School. Funded by gifts from her children T. Gibbs Kane '61, Richard S. Kane '70 and Katherine K. Nichols '74. This permanent endowment fund generates annual income restricted to helping underwrite ancillary educational expenses incurred by the families of faculty and staff whose children attend Princeton Day School.

❖ Lila Boyce Lohr Fund

Established in 2000 with gifts by school trustees in honor of Lila Boyce Lohr, Head of School from 1995 - 2000. Annual income is distributed at the discretion of the Head of School in the form of "Lohr Grants" to support the needs of the PDS faculty and academic initiatives that strengthen the educational programs at Princeton Day School.

❖ Mario Fund for Science

Established in 2003 through the generosity of the Mario Family, this fund provides annual income restricted to supporting summer study opportunities, coursework, related seminars and conferences, and other professional development opportunities for science teachers at Princeton Day School.

❖ The Minerva Fund for Professional Development

Established in 2007 by an anonymous Princeton Day School family, The Minerva Fund generates annual income to fund the continuing professional growth of PDS faculty and staff, including conferences, seminars, workshops, graduate courses and other professional development opportunities that support teachers and enhance the educational experience of PDS students.

❖ Ostro Grant Fund for Interdisciplinary Programs

Established in 2000 with a gift from Dr. Marc J. Ostro and Dr. Evelyn Godin-Ostro. The annual income from the fund is to support increasing and strengthening interdisciplinary studies at Princeton Day School. A grant is awarded annually to support a faculty initiative that enriches the school's teaching curriculum through the integration of two or more disciplines.

❖ Parents Association Faculty Enrichment Fund

Established in 1987 with funds raised by the Parent's Association at the Squibb Benefit and supplemented in 2005 by the Parents Association. Annual income is restricted to support faculty enrichment programs.

❖ Carl Reimers Distinguished Teaching Chair Fund

Established in 1999 with anonymous gifts in honor of long-time faculty member Carl D. Reimers. This first fully endowed teaching chair at Princeton Day School provides annual income to underwrite the salary and benefits of an outstanding member of the faculty chosen by the Head of School in consultation with the Division Heads. Exceptional teaching and devotion to students are among the criteria considered.

❖ Rosenberg Science Grant Fund

Established in 2000, with gifts from Dr. and Mrs. Leon E. Rosenberg. Annual income from the fund is to be used to provide ongoing incentive and financial support for enhancing science education at Princeton Day School. Each year, a single grant will be awarded to a Middle or Upper School science teacher whose proposal for using the funds is viewed by the selection committee as having the greatest potential for effectively and directly strengthening the science education program at Princeton Day School.

❖ Shepherd - McCaughan Sabbatical Fund

Established in 1976 with gifts in honor of Wes McCaughan. Annual endowment was originally restricted to scholarship, later directed to support faculty sabbaticals.

❖ Robert C. Whitlock Award Fund

Established in 1993 with gifts from Mrs. Robert C. Whitlock, family and friends in memory of long-time architecture teacher Robert C. Whitlock whose career at Princeton Country Day and Princeton Day School spanned 42 years. The annual income is to fund the Whitlock Award for Distinguished Teaching, the school's highest honor for faculty. The annual award, which funds professional development opportunities, will be presented to that Princeton Day School faculty member who best demonstrates the exceptional teaching skills, devotion to students, courtesy, zeal for knowledge and pursuit of excellence, and the qualities of gentleness, patience, dedication, and professionalism that were the hallmarks of Robert Whitlock's teaching career.

Endowment Funds in Support of Financial Aid

Total endowment funds restricted for this purpose as of June 30, 2007: $10,635,111

❖ Elinor Shreve Barclay Memorial Scholarship

Established in 2001, with a gift from Edward S. Barclay, Jr. '57, in honor of his mother Elinor Shreve Barclay and her years of service, from 1952-1974 as a teacher at Miss Fine's School and Princeton Day School. The annual income is restricted to support Princeton Day School's financial aid program.

❖ Class of 1980 Sandy Bing Scholarship

Established in 2005 by members of the class of 1980 on the occasion of their 25th reunion. Named in honor of former Upper School Head and Interim Head of School Sandy Bing, in recognition of the guidance and friendship he so freely provided their class. The annual income supports the school's general financial aid program.

❖ Class of '84 Scholarship

Established in 1984 by the parents of the class of 1984. The annual income supports the school's general financial aid program.

❖ Concordia Scholarship Fund

Established in 2004 through the generosity of the Directors of the Concordia Foundation. The annual income supports the school's financial aid program and is to support students who demonstrate financial need and whose educational options are otherwise limited.

❖ Elizabeth C. Dilworth Scholarship

Established in 1968 with gifts from family and friends in honor of long-time Miss Fine's School Trustee and Princeton Day School Board Chair Elizabeth C. Dilworth. Supplemented in subsequent years by Mrs. Dilworth, and in 1991 with many gifts in memory of Melissa Dilworth Gold '61. The annual income supports the School's general financial aid program.

❖ Endowed Scholarship #1

Established in 1999 with a gift from an anonymous donor. Annual income will be used for an Upper School student, preferably for the child of a Princeton University administrator or faculty member whose parent(s) have demonstrated financial aid need as determined by our financial aid application process. If such a candidate is not available in any given year, that year's allocation (or balance of the allocation) may be used at the discretion of the Financial Aid Committee to support the special needs of other PDS financial aid students.

❖ Olivia Fill Scholarship

Established in 1987 with a gift from PDS parent and former Trustee Olivia Cox Fill. The annual income is to support an African American female student who has qualified for financial aid.

❖ Richard A. Fox '00 Memorial Scholarship Fund

Established in 1999 with gifts from family and friends in memory of Richard A. Fox from the class of 2000. The annual income supports the school's general financial aid program.

❖ Eric Haring Scholarship Fund

❖ Helen's Fund

Established in 2005 with gifts from Beverly and Jack Gallagher and others in memory of Mrs. Helen Glickman. Annual income is to be used to support the special needs of Lower School children.

❖ HK Hochschild Scholarship

Established in honor of Harold K. Hochschild, a PDS parent and trustee of both Miss Fine's School and Princeton Country Day School. The annual income is to support the school's financial aid program.

❖ Joyce Johnson Scholarship

Established to provide general unrestricted support to the school's financial aid program.

❖ Robert Wood Johnson Jr. Scholarship

Established in 1975 with a gift from the Robert Wood Johnson, Jr. Charitable Trust. Supplemented in 1997 and 1998 with additional grants from the Robert Wood Johnson, Jr. Charitable Trust made at the request of Trustee Emeritus Betty Wold Johnson. Annual income supports the school's financial aid program.

❖ Page and Otto Marx, Jr. Scholarship Fund

Established in 1999 and supplemented in subsequent years by the Page & Otto Marx, Jr. Foundation. Annual income is to provide financial aid to support deserving minority students, and if possible, to minority students in the Lower School.

❖ Dean Mathey Scholarship Fund

Established in 1981 and regularly supplemented with gifts from The Bunbury Company and the Pocumtuck Company in honor of Dean Mathey, Sr., a major benefactor of Princeton Day School and the individual who donated the land that comprises the current school campus. The annual income supports the school's general financial aid program.

❖ The David Mathey '47 Scholarship Fund

The David Mathey '47 Scholarship fund established in 2004 with a grant from the David Mathey Trust in honor of David Mathey of the class of 1947. The annual income is restricted to supporting Princeton Day School's financial aid program.

❖ David Mottley Scholarship Fund

Established in 1976 with gifts from classmates, family and friends in memory of David R. Mottley of the class of 1977. The annual interest is to support the financial aid program at Princeton Day School.

❖ Michele Namm Epperson '90 Scholarship Fund

Established in 2005 with gifts from family, classmates, and friends in memory of Michele Namm Epperson of the class of 1990. The annual interest is to support the financial aid program at Princeton Day School.

❖ Marcia G. Nappi '52 Sunshine Fund

Established in 2007 with gifts from the MGN Foundation. This fund will generate income each year to support the special or unforeseen needs of PDS students whose economic circumstances make it difficult or impossible to participate in educational or extracurricular opportunities generally available to other PDS students.

❖ The Martha L. A. Norris Memorial Scholarship Fund

Established in 2005 through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Shawn Ellsworth and their children, John L. Griffith III '99 and Alyssa A. Ellsworth, in memory of Mrs. Ellsworth's mother and John and Alyssa's grandmother. Annual income is restricted to supporting the school's annual financial aid budget, and if possible a student who has demonstrated a volunteer commitment to serving others.

❖ PDS Scholarship Fund

Established in 1978 and supplemented in subsequent years with many gifts designated to support the general scholarship budget at Princeton Day School. The annual interest is to support the financial aid program at Princeton Day School.

❖ PDS Upper School Scholarship

Established to support the school's financial aid program and meet the unforeseen or special needs of Upper school students who qualify for financial aid.

❖ Anne B. Shepherd Scholarship

Established in 1977 and supplemented in subsequent years by Mrs. Shepherd and later by many colleagues, friends and family who made gifts in her memory. Annual income supports the school's financial aid budget, and if possible, an enrolled minority student for his or her junior or senior year.

❖ Noel Stace Scholarship Fund

Established in 1981 with a gift from The Pocumtuck Company in memory of Noel J. Stace from the class of 1947. The fund is supplemented regularly by The Pocumtuck Company. The annual income is to be used to support general financial aid.

❖ C. V. Starr Scholarship Fund

Established in 2000 with a grant from the C. V. Starr Foundation. The annual income is restricted to supporting the general financial aid program.

❖ The Elaine and Sydney Sussman Scholars Fund
Princeton Day School

Established in 2007, The Elaine and Sydney Sussman Scholars Fund provides support for up to three students new to the Upper School who demonstrate superior academic performance and who qualify for financial aid. Students will be selected without regard to race, religion, ethnicity, or gender, and will demonstrate intelligence, ambition, persistence, integrity and an exemplary work ethic.

❖ Arthur H. Turner, Jr. '76 Memorial Scholarship Fund

Established in 1989 with gifts from family, alumni/ae and friends in memory of Arthur H. Turner, Jr. of the class of 1976. The annual income is to support the financial aid program.

❖ Stuart van V. Willson '76 Scholarship Fund

Established in 1983 with a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Matthews, in memory of Stuart van V. Willson. The fund has been supplemented in subsequent years by the Matthews and by other friends. The annual income is restricted to support financial aid at Princeton Day School.

❖ Wallace Family Scholarship Fund

Established in 1999 with gifts from Margaret Cook Wallace '27 and Mr. and Mrs. John D. Wallace '48. The annual income is to support the school's financial aid program.

❖ Marjorie Williams '75 Scholarship

Established in 2005 through the generous support of members of the class of 1975 and many friends in memory of Marjorie Williams of the class of 1975. The annual income is to support the school's financial aid program, and if possible a student who has demonstrated a special interest or ability in writing.

❖ Frederick Woodbridge '78 Fund

Established in 1986 with gifts from family and friends in memory of Frederick Woodbridge of the class of 1978. The fund was supplemented in 1993 with gifts received in memory of his father Mr. Dudley Woodbridge and again in 2005 by Mrs. Woodbridge. The annual income is to both underwrite the annual cost of the Woodbridge Award, presented each year to that graduating senior who has exhibited outstanding leadership qualities in developing class unity and spirit, and to provide general support to the school's financial aid budget.

❖ Helen Woodruff Scholarship Fund

Established in 1985 through the estate of Mrs. Helen Woodruff. The annual income is designated by the Trustees of Princeton Day School to provide general support to the school's financial aid program.

Endowment Funds in Support of Student Prizes

Total endowment funds restricted for this purpose as of June 30, 2007: $74,071

❖ William R. Plapinger '75 Cross Country Fund

Established in 1999 with memorial gifts from the family of William R. Plapinger '75. The annual income is to be used to underwrite the annual budget of the PDS cross-country team and to fund an annual award to the cross-country team runner who, in the eyes of the cross-country coach(es), is the most valuable member of the team.

❖ Thomas Bencze Art Scholarship

Established in 1984 with gifts from family and friends in memory of PDS, parent Thomas S. Bencze. An annual scholarship award is presented at the Senior Awards Ceremony to a dedicated art student in the senior class whose intention is to pursue further education in the field of visual arts.

❖ John D. Sacks-Wilner '80 Award Fund

Established in 1980 by Dr. Doris Sacks-Wilner and with gifts from family and friends in memory of John Sacks-Wilner '80. The fund was supplemented in 1993 with gifts in memory of Dr. Erwin Sacks-Wilner. The annual income is restricted to funding the John D. Sacks-Wilner Award, given each year to that member of the graduating class who has shown exceptional determination, courage and self-command.

❖ Anne Shepherd Humanities Prize Fund

Established in 1988 with a gift from Professor and Mrs. Theodore K. Rabb in honor of Anne B. Shepherd whose teaching career at Miss Fine's School and Princeton Day School spanned 55 years. The annual income is to fund an award presented to a junior boy or girl who has the highest standing in the humanities.

❖ Regina Spiegel Memorial Fund

Established in 1997 with gifts from friends and family in memory of Middle School music teacher Regina Spiegel. The income is to fund the Regina Spiegel Award, given annually to an eighth grade student talented in the arts.

Endowment Funds in Support of Student Programs

Total endowment funds restricted for this purpose as of June 30, 2007: $75,387

❖ Class of 1977 Community Service Scholarship Fund

Established in 2006 by members of the class of 1977 to provide annual grants for PDS students' community service projects.

❖ The Scott M. Mauney '95 Memorial Fund

Established in 1998 by a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. White in memory of Scott M. Mauney of the class of 1995. The annual income is to support substance abuse education programs in the Upper School.

❖ The Peter W. Merle-Smith '85 Memorial Fund

Established in 1999 with gifts from Mrs. Fowler F. Merle-Smith and Margaret F. Merle-Smith Bergstrand '83 in memory of Peter W. Merle-Smith of the class of 1985. The annual income is to support substance abuse education programs in the Middle School.

❖ The Susan E. G. Moll Fund for Community Service

Established in 2004 with gifts from family and friends in memory of PDS parent Susan E. G. Moll. Income supports an annual Upper School assembly on the subject of serving others and provides supplemental funds to the community service program for underwriting new student initiatives and other opportunities to enhance the community service program at Princeton Day School.

Investing in Excellence Campaign Donors

As we end the fourth year of the Campaign and enter our final year, gifts and pledges total nearly $43 million against the $50 million goal. We can only be optimistic that we will be successful – and it is because of your support. Thank you for your belief in PDS today and PDS in the future.

PDS received three remarkable gifts this year. A PDS family pledged $1,000,000 toward professional development opportunities for teachers. This incredible gift is a tremendous endorsement of our teachers, and will provide opportunities for ongoing faculty enrichment. PDS also was the grateful recipient of a $500,000 gift from a foundation supporting scholarships at PDS. And, finally, a third gift from a PDS family of $750,000 in unrestricted support giving the Board of Trustees the flexibility to designate this generous gift to one of the three campaign strategic objectives — faculty salary and professional development endowment, financial aid endowment, or facilities.

Our progress was most notably represented by the $25 million in new and renovated buildings that opened in September. They include new art and music spaces, classrooms, and libraries for our talented teachers and students. We began last school year with newly renovated interior athletic spaces including locker rooms and offices for coaches and athletic staff. Walking through the building, you can already sense the possibility and excitement generated by these state-of-the-art facilities.

We are grateful to the members of our community who have already stepped forward and supported the school. Their generosity, coupled with future donor support, helps create a solid foundation for PDS students, teachers, and families now and for decades to come.

AlumniNews

Dear Alums,

Hello from PDS! The campus is particularly alive and vibrant with the school year starting on a high note welcoming students, faculty, administration and alumni to a newly renovated PDS!

I felt a chill of excitement when I first walked through the main doors and instead of seeing the familiar brick wall I was embraced by a sun-filled spacious corridor that seems to stretch forever complete with floor to ceiling windows and fluid, curved architecture. My exhilaration continued to build as I toured the fabulous new arts studios, libraries and athletic facilities. PDS looks better than ever and I personally invite each of you to come and tour when you can or use it for yet another great reason – besides friends and fun – to come back for Alumni Weekend 2008!

The goal of the Alumni Board is to help you stay connected to PDS and we have an enthusiastic and energetic Board including alums from MFS, PCD and PDS; all of whom have been having a great time planning events we hope will entice you to stay in touch. Our first events this fall were a success and we send thanks to everyone who attended the Boston Regional Gathering in October and the New York party in early November. Special thanks to Wendy Gartner Rowland '53 for generously hosting such a wonderful event.

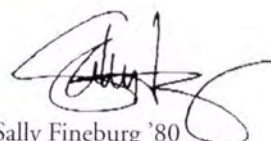

Whether you've just graduated or haven't been in touch for a while, we encourage you to mark your calendars with the following dates! Most immediately, our Princeton Regional Gathering will be Wednesday, November 21. We will be announcing a new schedule that should make it easier for folks to attend the Alumni Games, Friday, November 23. Plus, we have Family Skate Day, January 1, Career Day, Friday, April 11 and of course Alumni Weekend complete with Alumni Awards and Reunion Class parties May 16 and 17.

Between events you can stay connected through our virtual Alumni Community at www.pds.org. The Alumni Online Community is an easy and simple way to connect with friends. Access an up-to-date Alumni Calendar, share photos and news, update your contact information and join the PDS career resources network.

Finally, I want to thank Jud Henderson '92 for his recent leadership of the Alumni Board. It truly is a privilege to work with such a dedicated group.

We look forward to seeing and hearing from you. Please feel free to contact us with questions, thoughts or ideas.

Come join the fun!!

Selection Criteria

Alumni Awards

- The Alumni Service Award is given to an alumna/us whose efforts to give back to the community and/or Princeton Day School reflect the highest ideals of the school. The recipient is someone who inspires others by his or her example of sensitivity or generosity.
- The Alumni Achievement Award is given to an alumna/us who has achieved excellence in his or her chosen field and who has made a commitment to helping others. The recipient is someone who inspires others by his or her achievement.

Athletic Hall of Fame

- Athletes
 Player nominees must have attended Miss Fine's School, Princeton Country Day School, or Princeton Day School for a minimum of two years. Athletes become eligible for consideration five years after the graduation of their class. Inductees will have compiled an exceptional interscholastic athletic career or otherwise distinguished themselves through outstanding athletic achievements and exemplify the highest ideals of the school.
 Selection is based primarily on athletic accomplishments while at Miss Fine's School, Princeton Country Day School or Princeton Day School. Subsequent achievements in athletics and other areas are also taken into consideration.
- Coaches
 To be eligible for consideration as a coach, nominees must have retired from coaching at PDS after working at the school for a minimum of five years. Selection is based upon an exceptional coaching career, which brought great credit to the school.
- Extraordinary Achievement
 The Selection Committee also considers for induction those nominees:
  - a) who have achieved extraordinary success in athletic endeavors or programs not offered by the school;
  - b) whose distinguishing athletic achievements occurred subsequent to their time at school;
  - c) whose example of uncommon commitment, dedication, and support of our athletic program is worthy of special recognition.

Please send nominations to the Alumni Office,
 PO Box 75, Princeton, NJ 08540 or you may submit nominations online at www.pds.org/alumni

Alumni Spring Fling

Whenever PDS alumni get together, it's a party!

Our Spring Fling gathering draws alumni in the Princeton area, as well as those returning to campus to share advice with juniors and seniors during Career Day. Special thanks to hosts Jud Henderson '92 and Matt Henderson '89 for making everyone feel so welcome!

Sharing tips on landing internships and that elusive FIRST job, New York city alumni shared their experiences and advice with alumni just graduating from college and those still in college at the Young Alumni Networking Party in NYC, hosted by Giovanna Torchio '98 at the offices of Jack Morton Worldwide. Everyone enjoyed meeting and reconnecting with fellow PDS alums living and working in the Big Apple.

Stay tuned for dates of upcoming Young Alumni Networking events by checking www.pds.org.

Laddie Sanford '04, Matthew Levine '01 and Mitch DePace '04 swap news.

Stephanie Friedman '01 catches up with Scott Feldman '93, Matt Levine '01 and Michael Fishbein '01.

Alyssa Briody '03 enjoys meeting with Steve Acunto and his wife Veronica White '94 and Danielle Horowitz '04.

Spotlight on Young Alumni

by Joanna Bowen '03

This past spring break, instead of spending a week lying on the beach or partying all night in a bar, 190 Villanova University students (including Ellen Cook PDS '06!) worked for Habitat for Humanity in Slidell, LA. Habitat for Humanity (HFH) is a non-profit, Christian organization that was founded by Millard Fuller in 1976. With volunteers, HFH builds houses which are then sold to families at no profit with affordable mortgages. HFH firmly believes in the motto, "a hand up not a hand out." Families who will be receiving these homes also must work a certain amount of hours for HFH as well. Villanova has always had a strong Service Break Experience program, sending more students on HFH and mission trips both domestically and internationally, than any other university in the country.

as the message scrawled on the side of a house. "It's only a test. God wants to see what we are made of. Have faith."

In our work as a large group of 190 we found hope as well. Villanova prides itself on its community; it emphasizes to its students that we can do our best work when we place ourselves in a support system that nurtures our own and others unique gifts. Our time in Slidell together was a way to put our beliefs about community into action. Every morning, all 190 of us met together with members from Habitat for Humanity for a short prayer and instructions for the day before heading out to work. At our worksites, we had the opportunity to work side-by-side with other Villanova groups. It was inspiring to look down the street of Habitat homes and see students hard at work siding houses, lifting trusses, and decking roofs.

Often during our lunch breaks, future homeowners would stop by to see the progress that was being made on their houses. All of the homeowners have been displaced by Katrina. Many are friends and are excited to be able to raise their children together in a new neighborhood. They shared with us what it was like to survive the hurricane, and confirmed that little help was given to them by the government.

We also found ourselves being warmly welcomed into the Slidell community. Many churches opened their doors to us, providing us with places to sleep and shower. My group was treated to some fabulous southern cooking, as different parishioners of the church we stayed at provided us with pulled pork sandwiches, jambalaya, and gumbo for dinner. We were also often stopped by members of the community who offered their thanks for our work for the week. On our first day in Slidell, part of our group was waiting in the parking lot of a restaurant, when a local stopped to briefly chat. Upon learning why we traveled to Slidell, he sincerely thanked our group. Another group's lunch was paid for by a stranger in the airport, again moved by the work we would be doing. Any item of clothing that said Habitat for Humanity was an instant conversation starter with locals, or other volunteers who were also serving in the area.

After my week in Slidell, it seems that I should be the one doing the thanking. It seems that I should be giving thanks for the opportunity to participate in this experience, for the simple comforts that were provided by many who were still recovering themselves, and for the opportunity to be transformed and inspired while serving.

As a member of the class of 2007 at Villanova, I have had the privilege of working for HFH in Alamosa, CO, and Fort Smith, AK on previous trips. Both trips, where I first served as a participant and then a leader respectively, allowed for our groups to not only serve, but to explore our faith, to strengthen relationships with each other, and to build community. My time on these trips has been the source of my greatest inspiration while at Villanova; these trips have literally changed my life. They strengthened my faith as a Catholic and propelled me to continue to serve both with Habitat for Humanity, other service organizations in Philadelphia, and with the Augustinian Volunteers after I graduate.

However, my week in Slidell was unlike my previous trips. I was not prepared for the devastation that still exists in the Ninth Ward over a year after Hurricane Katrina hit. Our group drove through several of the hardest hit areas of New Orleans, in an attempt to better see for ourselves the aftermath of Katrina. The Ninth Ward looks as if the flood waters receded yesterday. Debris still litters streets in front of blocks and blocks of destroyed homes. Red Xs by rescue crews are still visible, showing how many people, both dead and alive, were found in each house. While in other destroyed areas of the city residents are living in FEMA trailers in their driveways, the Ninth Ward is virtually void of any residents. Yet, in the midst of this devastation we found signs of hope, such

Tales of the City

Huck Fairman '59
Xlibris

A collection of two separate novellas, Tales of the City, explores the lives, perspectives and relationships among a group of writers, artists and performers in New York City.

The first story, St. Mary's Bar, explores the reactions among a group of friends to what appears to be a racially motivated arrest and their efforts to ascertain the truth surrounding the episode. The story, told from multiple perspectives, follows how this event interrupts their lives in unique ways and to varying degrees.

The second story, Slipshod Watchman, is told by an actor whose loves and losses unfold as he travels back and forth in time.

Mr. Fairman has focused on writing following a career as a filmmaker, producing and directing documentaries for nonprofit organizations such as the United Nations and Planned Parenthood, and screenwriting.

Curves of Steel

Edited by Jonathan Stein '76
Coachbuilt Press/Phoenix Art Museum

A renowned automotive expert, Jonathan Stein puts in context the fabulous autos recently displayed in the Phoenix Art Museum and pictured here in more than 190 pages of photographs, including some vintage black and white images.

This is the third book for Mr. Stein, associate publisher of Hagerty's Magazine, who also has written for Automobile Quarterly and many other U.S. and British publications. He also has judged at many consourse events and consults for automotive auction houses and museums.

Bad Girls: 26 Writers Misbehave

Edited by Ellen Sussman '72
Norton Publishing

As editor of this one-of-a-kind anthology, Ellen Sussman explains her deviant endeavors, stating "I behave badly to set myself apart. To test myself. To push myself. To prove something. To shock someone... I behave badly because I can."

She invited 25 other bad girls to share their stories – and they did.

Ann Hood lies, Mary Roach confesses. Lolly Winston blasts the music; Susan Straight puts the pedal to the metal. Erica Jong, the original bad girl, challenges her own claim to that fame. Susan Cheever almost flunks out of prep school and then flunks her chance at redemption. Caroline Leavitt marries and cheats; Kim Addonizio celebrates a one-night stand. Roxana Robinson commits forgery.

The pages bristle with danger. The writers are digging deep—bad behavior lies in their souls. And what they bring to the surface reveals truths about their psyches – and, perhaps, our society.

Ellen Sussman '72 recently visited Borders Books and read from her anthology of essays.

Bobbie Harper Lawrence writes:

Joan Taylor's former husband, William W. Ashley, passed away in August 2006 in Santa Rosa, CA. He practiced medicine in California for 60 years, first in San Francisco and then in Eureka.

I had an email from Nan (Lily Buchanan) Agar with some news about her and other classmates.

Nan attended her 65th reunion at Smith College in Northampton last May. We are all looking forward to our 70th Miss Fine's School Reunion in May 2008. Where, oh where, have the years gone??!

Helen Crossley writes: After 40+ years at McLean Gardens, watching the gradual completion of the nearby, glorious Washington National Cathedral, I've closed out and sold my two-bedroom condo in D.C. My usage dwindled as my former USIA colleagues retired or were moved into the State Department, and the drive down I-95 got worse and worse.

Much of the stuff I'd accumulated got thrown out; with a lot of strain and effort, the rest was moved to an "Adult Community" called (what else?) Princeton Commons in Brick Township, near Point Pleasant on the Jersey shore. The trip from here takes just over an hour with much less gas and traffic risk. So my next task — on top of two archiving jobs I haven't finished (my father's papers and a USIA collection) — is to unpack and dispose of some 50 packing boxes in Brick (help welcome!). But there's still an 84-year accumulation of stuff in the house my parents built on Battle Road, so I'll be here for a while.

Joan Taylor Ashley lives in San Francisco and has recovered from a broken hip.

No new news from me (Bobbie). After 64 wonderful years of marriage, life is very sad since my beloved Merle passed away last January, but I am fortunate in having our oldest (Linda) and our youngest (Jim) living nearby here in Ann Arbor and I see a lot of them. And my 9 great-grandchildren all live in Bloomfield Hills, MI which is only 45 miles away.

Our daughter Robin Lawrence Henderson, is the proud grandmother.

Hope Thompson Kerr '53 visited with Anne Carples Denny '53 in Richmond last winter.

Another mini-reunion took place this June when John and Caroline Savage Langan, and John and Wendy Hall Alden traveled to Chilmark on Martha's Vineyard to spend a few days with me at our family cottage near Squibnocket Beach. We had a wonderful time; some sight-seeing, walking, good food, and

It was great to hear from many of you this past Christmas!

Jane Gihon Shillaber wrote that "Mike and I flew to Seattle, WA, on August 25 (our 50th Anniversary), and boarded the 'Vision of the Sea' and cruised to Alaska. We stopped in Juneau, Skagway and Icy Strait Point. Then we sailed to Victoria, British Columbia and back to Seattle. Beautiful weather and gorgeous places. Everyone in Alaska and Canada wears Bermuda shorts. It was 80 degrees!"

Hilary Thompson Kenyon and Hope Thompson Kerr took a trip last fall to Eastern Europe — Budapest, Zagreb, Sarajevo, Dubrovnik on the Adriatic coast, Split and Lovran on the Dalmatian coast, Ljubljana and Venice. Hilary called the trip "an historical adventure," and added that if we wanted to get a feeling for the beauty of the scenery, we should go to see the new "Casino Royale," as Bond took almost the same trip. Hope also mentioned going on a golf outing to Ireland last year. Both twins seem to fit a lot of golf into their busy lives.

The Christmas letter from Mary Roberts Craighill notes the marriage of son, Peyton M., in May, in Washington D.C. The couple is now living in NYC, where Peyton began a new job in December as Assistant Director of Polling for ABC News. Daughter, Cecily, is Development Director at the Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania, and does a lot of traveling. Mary's husband, Peyton G., continues on the staff of the Church of the Redeemer in Bryn Mawr, PA, and had another trip to China last fall as a translator and cultural interpreter for an international children's Olympics to promote peace and mutual understanding through a shared experience in athletics and art. Mary and Peyton plan to move to the Kendal Retirement Community in Lexington, VA, toward the end of this year.

I am very much enjoying life at the Kendal Retirement Community of Crosslands here in Kennett Square, PA, so I know Mary and Peyton are making a good move! I am playing some tennis, singing in my church choir, and doing some volunteer jobs, one of which I find particularly fun and interesting — foal-sitting — at the U. Penn Veterinary School. This involves spending about one day a week during the first half of the year at the New Bolton Center, Penn's large animal hospital, just down the road from Crosslands. Volunteers are assigned to a sick/at-risk foal, and "baby-sit" him/her in a stall, making sure their IV's are flowing smoothly and do not get tangled up, helping them up and down from naps (on mattresses) making sure they don't fall down in the process, helping to hold them down when blood is drawn, and keeping them clean and dry. This can be quite demanding. But they are "babies" and do sleep a lot of the time. I saw an article in a local paper a few years ago about this volunteer opportunity, and was intrigued. My daughter, a veterinarian, encouraged me, and I really look forward to my days there.

Finally, Caroline Rosenblum Moseley and I had a delightful lunch together in Princeton earlier in January. She and Roger were about to take a trip to the warm climate of Mali in Africa. I'll fill you in on that next time!

In June we spent two weeks on a great trip — Great Rivers of Europe — on a river boat from Amsterdam to Vienna. This summer I enjoyed singing with the Masterworks Chorale Summer Sings...Brahms: Requiem, Verdi: Requiem, and Faure: Requiem. A week at Cape Cod (playing golf); a week in Killington, VT (playing more golf); a week on the NJ Shore with some of my family. On the way back to MA we had lunch with Connie Rohr Reiter (History at MFS in the 50s) at her home in North Jersey. It was a very special visit! Our cottage in the NH woods has been our headquarters for golf expeditions in VT and NH. Retirement is super!!!

Daddy died in April, and we buried him on their 76th wedding anniversary. Mother (now 92) is not holding up too well, although her physical health is excellent. She is living in a lovely facility in Virginia, near my niece.

I moved to my dream house, pasted on the side of Signal Mountain in Chattanooga, in February. The view is to die for, and I have two guest rooms, so everyone is invited for a visit.

which gave concerts in Johannesburg, Praetoria, Port Elizabeth, Grahamstown and Cape Town. We also have two new grandchildren, Owen Michael, born in April to our daughter Cathy in Winchester, MA, and Ethan Drake, born in July to our daughter Betsy in San Francisco.

I wonder what Mrs. Shepherd would have thought of Al Gore's latest book, The Assault on Reason? I imagine she would have agreed that the decline in the use of print and increasing reliance on electronic images that "elicit emotional responses, often without requiring reflective thought" have played a major role in the current debasement of our political processes. "Like the boarded up business district of a small town bypassed by an interstate highway, the marketplace of ideas in the form of the printed word has emptied out."

Let's hope PDS alumni will be among those helping us to find our way back to a place where reasoned discourse plays a much greater role in shaping our policies.

Alice Marie Nelson writes: My news is brief. I'm still semi-retired and working 3 days a week training Customer Service personnel for Tiffany & Co. but expect that I will be fully retired by the end of November. My exciting news this year has been the performance of a song recital in Connecticut at a public run-through and then in England on July 22 at the Claxton Opera (just outside of Norwich, Norfolk). Ute Goller flew over from Stuttgart to be there and so we were able to catch up with our news of the last couple of years. Other ex-colleagues and friends also flew over from Germany and Ireland as a surprise, so a good time was had by all. All best to you.

Laura Travers Pardee writes: Fred and I spent the month of May in Italy, Croatia and Switzerland. We rented an apartment in Florence for a week, then went on to Venice for several days before leaving on a cruise of the Dalmatian Coast, returning to Italy for a couple of days then on to Switzerland. Thirty of Fred's Princeton classmates and their wives chartered the M/V Monet just for us. Bos Crowther, Barb's widower, and his wife Gerry (she's a Wellesley classmate of mine) were among the travelers. In Switzerland five couples rented a beautiful chalet in Morgins for several days. Now we're making plans to take our two granddaughters to Italy next year for the month of June.

Cicely Tomlinson Richardson writes: Joan Pearce Anselm responded to my July news plea with "Lots of travel news for us, with Vietnam and Cambodia last spring, Vancouver BC and boat trip in the Inside Passage this summer, India in December/January. We are still actively judging dog shows around the country, watch for Klaus on television at the Invitational Shows early in December from Long Beach, CA.

Kathleen (Kay) Dunn wrote in July: We've just returned from an incredible trip in S.E. Alaska on a small boat (65 guests) on a family tour from Sitka to Juneau, complete with kayaking and Zodiac rides — orcas, humpbacks, sea otters, puffins, black and brown bear, mountain goats, glaciers, etc. We took son Jon, his wife and two grandchildren aged 9 and 11. It was an amazing week of adventure, bonding, fabulous food and incredible scenery. We have a new appreciation of the wilderness splendors of our 49th state and how important it is to retain them.

The rest of the summer, between family visits, I'll be writing on my never-ending book on the Alumnae of Simmons College, 1906-1980, and preparing to teach this fall and winter. For a variety of reasons, I'm teaching more in the next 10 months than I usually do. (So much for Kay's professor emeritus status!)

Charlotte Cook reports: Am fully retired now, have rebuilt our house on Martha's Vineyard, and husband Craig and I are off on a safari to Tanzania on July 23. We'll also be taking in the wedding of a professor friend of mine who has been doing DNA research with two Maasai villagers in rural Tanzania, and is sponsoring five children to secondary school education in the nearest town, and is generally beloved by them. Ceremony will take place in one of the villages, and last a minimum of 24 hours — this should be quite an experience! She also talked me into sponsoring a village child for school this past year, so we will be able to meet him too.

An update from Anne Harrison-Clark: This has been "a year of recovery" for Anne but also one in which she has taken on a major new challenge — running for and winning election to the Fords Colony Home Owners Association Board at a time of transition.

Still owned by the developer, Fords Colony, which includes three golf courses, tennis courts, a network of roads and other community amenities, is to be entirely owned and governed by the homeowners in 2010. There now are 4,000 residents in 2,100 homes, but the population is projected to rise to 6,000, then to 10,000 (the size of Princeton when we were growing up), although new home starts are slow right now. As one of Anne's new board responsibilities, she recently wrote an excellent piece on preparing for the avian flu pandemic.

From nearby Norwich, VT, Marina Turkevich Naumann reports that she will be off with her daughter Kristin PDS '82 and eight-year-old Esme to Rome and Athens, via Sochi, Russia for most of October. A bit of geography: Sochi is the resort city on the eastern coast of the Black Sea that was recently chosen to host the 2014 Winter Olympics.

Some 15 miles up the Connecticut River, I (Cicely Tomlinson Richardson) am more likely to be found at home, having "retired" from the managing editorship of the Journal Opinion last fall after 10 intense years. I'm still the reporter for Orford and Fairlee, which keeps me in touch with activities in these sister towns flanking the river, and, as forecast a year ago, our eldest and her family are happily ensconced in their new home — 15 minutes away — with our two eldest grandchildren thoroughly enjoying their new school, friends and seasons (after many years in seasonless Florida).

Lucile Stafford Proctor sends in a newspaper clipping about her son Thomas Patrick Proctor's marriage in March 2007 to Darcy Michael Ann Wolcott of Bridgewater, CT and writes: "A magical, fairytale wedding made all the more special because my new daughter-in-law is truly a gem and the Communion made the ceremony so memorable."

Betsy Thomas Peterson writes: Like Kay, I went north, but a very different kind of trip, rafting in the Yukon, about 10 miles from the contested North Slope of the Alaska National Wildlife Refuge. Very beautiful and wild, hard to imagine wanting to spoil that country for a few years worth of oil. Hope all is well with you!

Lockie Stafford Proctor's youngest son Toby was married December 31 in Ridgefield, CT to Darcy Wolcott — "a fairytale wedding complete with four Navy swordsmen forming an arch and stopping traffic to get the crowd across from St. Stephen's to the historic Lounsbury House. Kinny Hubby Gallup and George Gallup PCD '45 were on hand, too!"

Lockie joined Gloria Nilson Real Estate after Peyton closed. "It is not exactly exhausting work at the moment, to put it mildly."

Anne Harrison-Clark found Charlotte Cook's piece in the fall class news to be "on target," especially about the influence of the school on all of us. "For me, the school, the class and Webber's PCD '56 have become family," she said. Anne spoke of the commonality and excellence of our education that allows us to "get together and speak the same language." She marveled that "the trust level is so profound."

Anne kept busy after reunion with a wonderful trip to Tuscany and her life in Williamsburg, "a destination point for many friends and family; we have just enough time to change the sheets in between." [More info later...]

The main event in October was the week-long Harrison family reunion, when descendants of presidents who were born in Virginia arrived from all over the country to be honored by the Virginia Historical Society. Anne said that their biggest dinner included 27 Harrisons, and four more arrived the next week.

For several months, Anne's "clipped wing" (a severely damaged ankle) gave her lots of time to read the "wonderful things" people brought her. She particularly recommends The Devil in the White City, by Erik Larson (a story of bringing Chicago into its own in the early 1900s — "it's fascinating to watch how our second city grew") and Mary, Janis Cooke Newman's novel about Mary Todd Lincoln — "unbelievable."

Joan Pearce Anselm wrote that she and Klaus enjoyed a trip to Egypt and Jordan last fall and were planning more trips. "We both feel very fortunate to be able to do these exciting travels and are going to keep going as long as the good health holds up and the money doesn't run out!"

"Alison Hubby Hoversten, Kinny's baby sister, living here in Denver, joined us for our Christmas Eve meal, together with our son Alex and his wife, Yuping and two small children. News has it that George and Kinny Hubby Gallup (See In Memorium page 98) have newly been presented with their first grandchild. Congratulations!"

Joan said she was "in the middle of a good read," What Is the What and recommends Woman of Egypt by Jehan Sadat, as well as Places in Between and Book Seller of Kabul.

The class photo was taken at our festive class dinner. What you can't see are the dear husbands: Gerald Beale, Larry Kaufman, Bill Sutphin and Joe Wisnovsky. Alissa and Bill received congratulations for the Longest Marriage Award, 49 years!

Helen Wilmerding and Gerald treated us to a delicious dinner at their home, catered by Helen's son, Alan Heap, chef/owner of Cox's Market. Alan and his wife, Marguerite, are opening a new Princeton restaurant, Calico Grill. Their PDS fourth-grade daughter, Brooke, Helen's granddaughter, played the violin for the Reunion Maypole Dance. It brought back fond memories for many of us old-timers.

and seven grandsons. Son Brian, 45, is recovering from a second bout with leukemia. Greg, 42, works in partnership with Larry at Merrill Lynch. Julie, 38, is a human resources manager. "We're thrilled she has met a wonderful man and they will be married on Labor Day weekend." It was inspiring to hear Anne honor her father's journey to America, totally alone, at 13, and her parents' hard work to provide the best America could offer.

Mary Strunsky Wisnovsky had a close call with colon cancer four years ago, but after successful surgery, she's now healthier than ever, having quit smoking while in the hospital. Following a series of jobs in public relations and development, Mary is now Director of the Friends of the Princeton Public Library. Her husband, Joe, after 35 years of commuting to New York, now works at home as a consulting editor for Farrar Straus and Giroux. Their younger son, Peter, is a software engineer in California. Their older son, Rob (PDS '82), is the Director of the Institute of Islamic Studies at McGill University in Montreal. He and his wife, Laila, who is a professor of history at McGill, have two children, Simon (16) and Jasmine (7),

We want to express special thanks to Sue Barclay Walcott for so many years as class correspondent. She was vacationing at reunion time. I hope to catch up with Sue, and her partner, Robert van Vranken at their vacation home in VT.

Nancy Miller is enjoying retirement after 40 years of teaching kindergarten and second grade, 33 of them at PDS. In 1995, Nancy was honored as the first recipient of the Robert Whitlock Award for Distinguished Teaching. Congratulations, Nancy! She enjoys gardening at the cozy house she built next to her parents' home, where her brother Bob Miller '51 lives. Nancy adores her great nephew, 4-year-old Alex. She also adores Willie and Teddy, her two Maine coon cats. Nancy swims a mile a day and plays in a handbell choir at Nassau Presbyterian Church. She is an active member of the Princeton University Chapel. She still keeps up with the Bristols and her whole PDS community.

Ros Webster Perry won the Traveled Furthest Award. She and her husband, Richard, live in Santa Barbara, CA. They have two daughters and six grandchildren. They started a small publishing company, with books on Mexican architecture and quilting. Ros has worked diligently in honor of her grandmother, Marie Webster, an influential early 20th century quilt designer. Ros spearheaded renovation of the family homestead in Marion, IN, now a National Historic Landmark and home of The Quilters Hall of Fame. Her best memories of MFS are the class shows and hanging out with friends. She still dreams of a paperless desk and more time for family. Ros remembers being very scared about the first day of kindergarten at MFS. Ros's mother advised her to "just follow Kinsa Turnbull around," and that led to a very active and fun-filled first day of school.

Nancy Hagen Spaulding was happy to be back for reunions and East Coast visits. Nancy had four retail stores in Hawaii which she sold when they moved to the San Francisco area. She became a college recruiter and served as Director of Admissions for three colleges. In 2003 Nancy and Vern retired from California to Windsor, CO. Then West Nile Virus/encephalitis left Nancy with an inability to speak or walk. After 2½ years of therapy she can function normally. Now she'll be forming a support group at a rehab center for people with brain injuries from illness or accidents. Nancy has her hands full, as caregiver, with Vern's health problems. They are thrilled that Vern has been accepted as a candidate for a kidney transplant. Nancy has learned a lot about health care options. She loves working with people and volunteers at the concierge desk in a new trauma center. Their two sons live on opposite coasts, but visit at least once a year.

I talked with several more classmates by phone. They all send their love to everyone. Eugenie Rudd Fawcett said, "Did we ever think 50 years could pass so quickly?" After her graduation from Radcliffe in 1961, she married Jim. They moved to Tyrringham, MA where they have both been teaching all these years. Jim teaches English. Eugenie teaches Latin at Berkshire Country Day School in Lenox. She and Jim have four children, three sons and a daughter, and five grandchildren from 10 years old to a new baby this May. She stays in touch with Suzy Scarf Webster '58 who lives outside Oxford, England. Eugenie is godmother to Suzy's youngest son, Daniel.

Betsy Baker Carter and Paul have been married for 45 years. They live in Ridgewood, NJ. "Most of Paul's career has been at Columbia University in central administration, including stints as provost and executive vice-president." Betsy got an MA in art history from Columbia and taught for a while. Her "best work" was a tribute to her father, well known critic and teacher, Carlos Baker. "I brought his last book to press after his death." Betsy and Paul have a daughter, Catherine, in the publishing business in New York City, and two attorney sons, Michael in Paris and Steven in California.

Sandy Strachan Froehlich and husband Warren have lived in northern Maine for most of their 46 years of marriage. Sandy is the dietary manager for a nursing home. Warren retired earlier than planned due to back surgery and a bout with cancer. Their daughter, Wendy, lives close by with her husband and kids. Their son, Donald, is a chef in Portland.

In May, Bettina Burbidge Hummerstone was traveling in Greece. Tina retired two years ago as head of Oak Knoll, a K-12, coed Catholic school in Summit. She was formerly Head of Middle School at Stuart Country Day in Princeton. Prior to that she was a teacher and administrator in independent Quaker schools. Tina is living with her son, Jim, in Connecticut. She built an addition on their house and has recently purchased a weekend house overlooking Long Island Sound. Jim works in marketing communications for a global financial firm, UBS. Her daughter-in-law, Anna Maria, works at Yale. They have four children. Tina says, "I'm the nanny, the one who is home with the kids during the week." Her daughter, Amy, is an architect in northern NJ, and has three children. Her seven grandkids range in age from 4 to 12. The family keeps her busy. Otherwise, she loves to read and travel.

Ros, the two Nancys and I enjoyed honoring my ex, PDS Alumni Achievement Award winner, Bob Hillier '52. I am summering in Vermont, just south of Burlington, on the shore of Lake Champlain, where our son, James Hillier, is a kindergarten teacher at the Lake Champlain Waldorf School in Shelburne. I love being just around the corner from James, Shari and their three kids, aged 3-7. James built an ultralight airplane from a kit and buzzes my camp regularly (when the air is still). I pray a lot. When it gets really cold I still travel back to India. This will be my twelfth winter in India, where I work in an alternative clinic. My passions are meditation, stretching yoga exercise, peace, healing and wholeness. What's wholeness? Finding out may be our life's journey. Please call or email news.

50th Reunion

Nancy Hudler Keuffel writes: Unfortunately my notes for the last issue of the Alumni Journal never made it into print – probably lost in the internet ether! PDS posted them in the monthly online newsletter ePDS on the About Us page of the school website www.pds.org (Username: pds and Password: panther).

However, I am not sure how many of you access that site so I am repeating parts of my lost column and adding some new items. But the biggest new item that I want to add is to remind you of our 50th Reunion on May 16-17, 2008. We would love to have all classmates there – those who graduated and those who went on to other schools but were in the class in Lower, Middle or Upper School. It will be fun! At any time regarding information you would like to include in this column or information regarding our reunion please feel free to email me at: acornhk@aol.com

I called Ellen Freedman Dingman and learned that she and her husband, Tony, have lived in Raleigh since the 1970s. Prior to that Ellen was an Assistant Dean at Wheaton College where Tony was Director of Theatre. Ellen's career path has been education and children and for the last twelve of her twenty-five years was with the Raleigh Public Schools where she was Coordinator of the program for Children at Risk. The Dingmans have two children, Scott and Lisa. Scott is a commercial photographer who has a line with Avanti cards as well as doing work for Duke Medical School and the tourist bureau for the state of South Carolina. He has a wonderful website, www.scottdingman.com. He and his wife, a former graphic artist, have two sons ages 5 and 7. Lisa, the Dingman's daughter, lives in Summit, NJ. Prior to having children she had been Assistant Dean of Students at Carnegie Mellon and then at Duke. Currently Lisa and her husband, Jonathon who works at Google, have two children – a three year old daughter and a one year old son. Ellen and Tony are enjoying retirement and especially like spending time at their log cabin on Lake Champlain.

Linda Mullaly Masten and her husband live in both Stockton and Carmel, CA. After Miss Fine's she matriculated at University of Colorado where she majored in Russian. Linda, now a lawyer and CPA, practices tax and estate law in both locations. The Mastens also have a home outside of Christchurch, New Zealand and she was on her way there when we spoke. The Mastens have a daughter who is a CPA in Portland, OR who is also the mother of their two grandsons. The Mastens are recreational railroaders and own railroad spurs in California. They have traveled by the pump cars used on railroads through western Canada. Linda is looking forward to our 50th. She had returned to one reunion where the attendance was sparse – two persons from our class – and I guaranteed her that we would have a better showing in 2008!

Ann Lea Fries and her husband have left the Princeton area and are now in Savannah, except for the summer months when they enjoy their home in Nova Scotia. Ann also said that they plan to do some "serious traveling."

Christmas greetings from Emily Vanderstucken Spencer and Suzy Scarff Webster indicated an enthusiasm for attending our 50th reunion. Emily travels to Tucson to get out of the chill of Maine in winter and Suzy travels lots to visit her six grandchildren – all under about age four – who live all over the world.

An email from Betsy Carter Bannerman who has lived in San Francisco since 1969 says that her son is in his last year at Northeastern University in Boston. Betsy expects him to return to California. Betsy is looking toward retiring from substitute teaching and child care, but plans to continue writing. No surprise she is at the gym every other day! And Betsy says that "reunions look doable."

Sarah Adams Model and her husband Klaus have the travel bug and have planned a wonderful trip to Greece, Spain and Italy in September for their 40th wedding anniversary. A trip East from California for our reunion appeals to Sarah also.

Now a word about the new online newsletter that I mentioned at the start of this column. Go to www.pds.org, click on About Us, Click on ePDS and insert user name pds and password panther and you can then access not only news of the school, but of alums!

Take care. Send me your news! And see you in May!

Nancy Smoyer writes:

In response to my plea for news, we got a flood, starting with this from Joan Yeaton Seamon. "O-kay, o-kay, as my two-year old grandson would say. Let's see. As of February this year we now have 4 exceptional grandsons; Matthew (5 months), Mark (8 years), Luke (2 years) and Scott (7 months), the lesser known disciple. All live in northern Virginia so we see them lots – either here or there. Always a delight. Son John is at the Pentagon – Lt. Colonel now. Son James is in Austin at Dell Corporation tho' often in Malaysia for the company. Daughter Julie is Assistant General Counsel for General Dynamics in Falls Church, VA. Hal and I mostly hang out here in Williamsburg playing golf and tennis and enjoying retired life so much. In October, we will be off to Kenya and Tanzania."

Kasa Lowndes Cotugno says that she is "working at a theater group in San Francisco, doing office admin semi-volunteer work, nice to be around stimulating creative people."

I, Nancy Smoyer, have been doing a lot of traveling this year, starting with a surprisingly entertaining trip to Egypt and Jordan. It was fun to discover among all the antiquities that the Egyptians have a great sense of humor! In the spring we had a big reunion of the Red Cross women who went to Vietnam, always a nostalgia-filled journey for me to tap into that part of my life. I then went to Billy's 40th reunion at Dartmouth, something I'd thought about doing for many years and finally worked up the courage. Although it was bitter-sweet, it was easier than I had feared. I'll go back again. Our regular family reunion with David's family in July was the last trip (until September, November and January to Africa!).

I found Ann Davidson Zweede as she moves around the country helping her daughters. She spent the last year near Hanover, NH with Lisa and two granddaughters, and is now back in South Carolina. Michelle has been in DC, but her husband just got a job at the University of Texas in Austin so Ann might be going there to help with her 3-year-old grandson during the transition. Her other daughter Ani and son are in SC near Ann. As time and circumstances permit, Ann has been doing volunteer work at Montessori, a domestic abuse shelter and literacy council.

For some of us, dealing with life's transitions is on our minds, along with news of family and friends.

Cynthia Weinrich wrote, "I continue to see Tibby occasionally in NY or MA, am happy that my hip replacement two years ago has more or less given me my life back, and continue to feel that I have more things to do than time to do them in. Of course that question has to do at least partly with choices, I guess, and I've been trying to give a little time and thought again as to what mine are, and why, and need they be, and how could they change. Occasionally this morphs into 'Whose life am I living?', and what is or would be 'my' life? This also comes with a bit of unease (in addition to the possible unease of the subject) of thinking that this is (or 'should' be? — my sister has this warning about the 's'-word — 'should'!) a question for 25 or 35 rather than post-60, but on the other hand, perhaps that's just a too-common mistake, and it's a question that could be asked of ourselves every day of our lives, and into our 90s (or however long we have)!"

Tibby Chase Dennis contributed her thoughts after reading a draft of the classnotes sent via email to the class. "Folks, I never expected to do this, but reading these notes has inspired me to add just a few words about my own new life 'passages' and goals and 'cutting edges,' etc. Having now been retired four years, during three of which I did so much fill-in reference work that I didn't even FEEL retired (!), I am finally making that transition. Now (like many, I'm sure) I actually seem more busy and more involved with people, groups, activities, etc., than when I was working!! I have been thinking lately of Tucky (now Anne) and of the times we used to get permission to leave study hall to go to an empty room and work on articulating our 'philosophies of life.' Because I've suddenly felt inspired, after decades of being torn in all sorts of intellectual/religious directions (ranging from Radcliffe to evangelical Christianity!) to try and put a few thoughts in writing so as to integrate it all! As a result, I feel that I now need to put some serious energy into reflection/prayer, etc., and begin to make some changes in my life... though I have NO IDEA what those changes might turn out to be!"

Polly Busselle Bishop '61 and Trish Ward White '61 in Maine.

Polly Busselle Bishop also added some news about transitions. "Don and I are as usual in Maine in the new house we built overlooking Penobscot Bay. Our second daughter bought the other one, so this summer we're having more and more grandparenting opportunities. Our little Ensign (23-foot sailboat) is great for kids. The little lobster boat provides endless excursions and picnics in this beautiful area. I'm still working on my manuscript, having written and rewritten it several times now, and I think it's amazingly gotten better. Kudos to Tibby for her careful reading and comments. Stay tuned. My goal for this year is to get it accepted and published by someone. What a goal! And then to start traveling — every day some awful other thing happens to people I know and I am so anxious not to put things off any longer."

Lucia Norton Woodruff continues the trend with this. "Just had a huge Woodruff family reunion in Maine including our 2-year-old granddaughter. My brother, John ('Chip'), was there too. Next week I will be playing in my usual summer chamber music workshops so I am practicing up a storm. Anyone want to start an email dialogue about aging? And I don't mean just 'organ recitals' as my dear mother-in-law used to say. I mean learnings and ways to give to something greater than our little arthritic joints and diseases! In many ways I feel freer than I have ever at this stage of life — in spite of feeling at times as if it is a whole new ball game with completely different rules! How about the rest of you?"

Trika Smith-Burke tells us, "I will finally be retired from New York University as of August 31, 2007. Hard to believe!! I will still be involved with Reading Recovery, the early literacy intervention program that I have been involved with for the last 20 years. Our founder, Dr. Marie Clay, just passed away in April. I suspect that most trainers feel the same way I do — a tremendous sense of responsibility to continue to implement this very successful, first grade intervention and help it to evolve based on the latest research.

"On a more cheery note, I had a great reunion with the Smith family, the first in 18 years on St John's Island in South Carolina. We have also celebrated the wedding of my niece, Elissa Hart (Cary Smith Hart's MFS '64 daughter), in Sacramento CA to Josh Mahan whom she had met at Harvard Law School. The Hart family and I attended a second reception in Corbin, KY, in the Appalachian mountains, Josh's home. Of the 200 people there, I think at least half were Josh's relatives! I have never felt so welcome!

"My latest challenge has been my diagnosis with Stage I breast cancer picked up during my annual evaluation. Since I am considered high-risk group, an ultra sound located my cancer, not the mammogram. Then it was confirmed with a mammogram and a biopsy. I just want to encourage all of us to continue to be vigilant with annual check-ups including ultra-sound if you are in a high-risk category. After a successful lumpectomy (and no chemo because the cancer was caught so early), I am doing very well and about to start a clinical trial radiation regimen. In this study the researchers are testing the issue of position for radiation, prone (on one's stomach) versus supine (on one's back) in order to do the least amount of damage to lungs and/or heart. Also, the duration of the treatment is three weeks instead of six weeks (the usual treatment). A blood sample will allow them to check genetic factors if I have serious side effects, for future research. I am excited about being part of a research study to help women and that also helps me shorten my treatment as well as find the best position to receive the radiation. It is definitely a win-win."

And Julia Cornforth Holofcener gave us an account of her movements around over the past three years. I counted five moves, not counting their final (?) move back to France. Herewith an abbreviated version.

"For almost three years, I have been fulfilling a commitment I made to my parents (and myself) to take care of them when they could no longer live alone." Julia then described how she and Larry moved her parents from "their home of 52 years on Westcott Road" in 2005 to several towns in an effort to help them in their declining years. Her father died in April at age 95, and Julia writes, "we buried him in Princeton on their 76th wedding anniversary." Mrs. Cornforth is a healthy 92, living in Virginia near one of Julia's children.

Julia goes on to say, "As for Larry and me, we are beginning a new life in the south of France. We had sold our house in Normandy and were able to buy a sweet home in a mountain village an hour and a half north of Narbonne and a flat on the Mediterranean. Larry began painting seriously two years ago and is planning a whole new career. Me? I envision lots of long walks enjoying the countryside and once again experimenting with French cooking. We are not sorry for a second that we came home from France to take care of Mom and Dad, but to be able to return to France realizes a dream I have had since I was 17 and experienced the trip of a lifetime in a 6-week adventure with Madame Archer in the summer of 1960.

At 64, I am certainly the most fortunate person in the world and filled with gratitude for all I have. I am truly blessed!"

That's all for now, but be thinking about a reunion next spring/summer/fall so we can carry on this conversation in person.

Susan Mathews Heard writes: Bruce and I just returned from a wonderful adventure in Peru, which kept me from joining our 45th Reunion. Instead, we hiked Machu Picchu, Cusco, the Sacred Valley, Lake Titicaca and Arequipa. We traveled the country by luxury trains, enjoying the beautiful views of the snow-capped Andes along the way. This visit enabled me to trace my father's footsteps. After college, he spent three years, from 1940-1942, as a photographer for an archeological expedition that explored other Incan ruins in the Sacred Valley. Having the opportunity to see where he lived and worked was a memorable experience!

Susan Mathews Heard '62 recently returned from a wonderful adventure in Peru, which kept her from joining the 45th Reunion.

Back at home, I am thoroughly enjoying the golf lessons I am taking in preparation for my eventual retirement. But in the meantime, I continue to love the work I do and the people I do it with. I look forward to seeing many of our classmates at our October reunion.

Win writes: I am delighted to report that I am celebrating my 20th year as a breast cancer survivor! I was 44 when I was diagnosed with Stage II BC, with three lymph nodes involved. I had a mastectomy and then chemo once a week for 52 weeks up at Yale. I know we all lost friends and family members to this terrible disease and I feel truly blessed to still be here 20 years later. As I told my then 7-year-old daughter when she asked right away if I was going to die (my mother died of lung cancer at age 48) I said I certainly would some day but I still had too much nagging to do to die any time soon. So I wish you all good health and many more years of nagging! Hope to see many of you in Colorado in October.

Gail Cotton writes: Good news from Cindy Brown. She will be coming to Estes in October for our reunion. She ran into Charlotte Stetson, quite by accident, in Essex, New York near Cindy's Adirondack camp. Charlotte was there with a friend for an Adirondack Council gathering. Charlotte is still living in Middlebury, has two children, and has retired from working for Vermont Community Services. Cindy wrote it was fun getting a chance to visit and that Charlotte hasn't changed a bit! I returned from three wonderful weeks in Australia visiting with my son, Colton, and his family on July 21st. I was accompanied by my oldest grandchild; Andrea, 22; and Alexia, 10; and Bo, 7. Alexia and Bo are the same ages as Colton's daughters and they are all very close. Since my last trip, Colton has moved to the Daintree Rainforest about an hour and a half north of Cairnes. The coastline north from Cairnes is gorgeous. Colton's new home is in a stunningly beautiful area surrounded by rain forest. I saw wallabys three times while sipping my morning coffee on the verandah. We were also extremely fortunate in seeing an immature male Cassowary in the wild while returning from snorkeling on Snapper Island. In addition to enjoying Colton's property and nearby beaches, we did a day trip to Kuranda which has really changed since my last visit in 1992. We rode the train up and returned on the new Skyrail which goes over the canopy of the rain forest. The aerial views are incredible especially Barron Falls. My grandchildren left a week before I did and I was able spent a truly memorable week with my son.

Alice Jacobson

alice_jacobson@comcast.net

Alice Jacobson writes: It is impossible for me to comprehend that in June of 2008 we will be celebrating our 45th year since we wore those white dresses and carried those orange tea roses. I can remember when I was in my 20s looking at class notes and pictures from people who had been out of school for 45 years; I was amazed that such old people could still move from point A to point B. And now we ARE those people, hardly old and mostly moving.

As usual, it was wonderful to hear from those of you who sent e-mails. Ellen Levy wrote that she is introducing Waverly Art Cards, printed and signed original miniature landscapes and fine art. She invites us to visit her website <http://www.waverlyartcards.com>; you can order cards and envelopes at the site, and you can see some of her extraordinary images as well as find a link to drop her a note. I hope you'll take the time to look up the site.

Lee Gardner Shult sent news that she is loving retirement. She and her husband celebrated by traveling for five months in Central America and studying Spanish. They have rented their home in California for two years, and they are living in their cabin in the national forest in southern Oregon. They are off again to India in January 2008. We are hoping to see each other when they are in Portland.

Virginia Elmer Stafford wrote that she is busy with her grandchildren. The week she wrote, Ginny was off to New York City with her 9-year-old grandson to collect her 12-year-old granddaughter who is visiting for the summer from her home in Spain. Plans call for Ginny's daughter and 2-year-old grandson to join them in August...which will bring the number of grandchildren together at one time up to 5. She says, "As you may be able to tell, they are the joy of my life." Ginny and her daughter are still operating their boutique and online business, and she, too, invites us to visit the new web site: www.aquiboutique.com; they have women's, men's and kids clothing and accessories. Ginny reports she is still doing some counseling, and she closes with what we all must be feeling, "...I can't believe I'm now 62!"

Pamela Sidford Schaeffer and her husband Leonard visited China in October for a remarkable trip. They were last there in 1984, and Pam reports that the growth has been astonishing. Now that the Schaeffers are in their new home and no longer in a rental apartment, they have been able to get a puppy, a Wheaten Terrier named Tuck. Pam and Leonard gave their son David and his wife Amy a litter mate, and they are all having a great time with the dogs. She also said, "Alice (Jacobson) and Laurie (Rogers) came to Los Angeles for a few days in May, and I had a great time showing them some of the tourist spots (read: Disney Concert Hall not Disneyland!) We are old, cultured and politically correct, but we still giggle like school girls." She and her family are traveling in Sicily in August, and she looks forward to exploring the "Greek and Roman ruins which are supposed to be the best, and then there's the Soprano Family to get to know. Evidently the Mafia is alive and well there and even more interesting than the people in New Jersey."

I, of course, had to write back immediately and question whether such a comment was "politically correct." We three did have a wonderful time in LA. We are planning a weekend together on Cape Cod in September. I'll be in Massachusetts doing an accreditation visit to an acupuncture college, and Laurie and I will rendezvous at the Schaeffer's place in Brewster. It is wonderful having this renewed friendship with Laurie and Pam, and we do enjoy each other and learning of the different paths our lives have taken. We all have most interesting tales to recount, and I know the rest of you do as well.

I, too, want to invite you to learn about my coaching and consulting business, and I invite you to visit my web site at www.alicejacobsoncoach.com; I thoroughly enjoy my work, and it has taken me to Carson City, Nevada, and Kalispell, Montana, this summer. My partner and I have a new pup, a Cavalier King Charles Spaniel named Wally. He brings joy (and a little frustration when he acts his age) to our lives.

Please take a moment and send me your news. If u cn rd this msg, u cn snd nws!

Elise Rosenhaupt Noble writes:
I recently sent out a request for news and commentary, and landed up, as we say here in New Mexico, with the following news.

Susie Howland Farrell reported: I became a grandmother in March and will go thru it all again in January! Catherine (oldest daughter) had a baby girl on March 25th named Eleanor Grace (Dunn). She's married to the adorable vet, Mike. Amanda is due January 19th. She's married to the pianoplayer Scott Kilwein. Amanda is having a boy. This is the most joyous time of my whole life. I am having a wonderful time and it's almost scary because it just keeps getting neater every day!!

Responding to my recollections of MFS food [if you missed this, I don't have your current email address; please email me so I can reach you], Martha Gorman Nielsen wrote, MFS basement food...spaghetti is all I remember and applesauce. None of it very good or interesting. Do you think they had a nutritionist? LOL .... and Alison Hubby having grapes and cottage cheese every day during our senior year to lose weight...with great results!

News....hummmmm....still married after 33 years to second husband Bob Nielsen (who is now retired). Wish I could retire too but like the lifestyle we currently have. Both my girls, Jenny and Missy Moses are GROWN... Jenny is 38 today [August 1] and has a beautiful daughter named Melissa who just celebrated her second birthday. Jen works for a law firm in Plainsboro. Melissa (first and only grandbaby) is perfect in every way, of course, and lives close by in Kingston so I get to see her often. Daughter Missy is married and living in San Diego, working for Frito Lay. Bob and I spend every weekend, and some weekdays too, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland on our 40 foot Bayliner. It is our summer home on the Chesapeake Bay, one that can move as we want. I still work for the Mercer County Office on Aging ...19 years now and I see Dabby Bishop Palmer every so often as our social work backgrounds bring us together on the professional front. Was sorry to miss the reunion in May.... maybe the next one! Best to you and all the gang of '65.

Peggy Woodbridge Dennis also responded. She wrote: First, a much belated thank you, thank you, thank you for last spring's reunion. It was wonderful to have the time and space to reconnect, if only with a few old classmates. I'm seriously thinking about trying to emulate your achievement, maybe next summer (when Blanche and any other academic slaves are free to participate) at what is now my vacation home in Vermont. My mother dumped the "barn house" on me last December. Now it's out of her estate and off her hands. And I get a whole new set of taxes, bills, homeowners insurance, repairs, etc. to deal with long distance. I might as well get some special use out of the ownership, don't you think?

My family chugs along, better than ever. Husband, Bob, continues as Director of the Macroeconomic Analysis Division at the Congressional Budget Office, happy in his work, enjoying his colleagues, no plans to retire. Son, Peter, starts 3rd year at Catholic University Law School this autumn, while son, Alex, starts 3rd year at McDaniel College majoring in biology. After years of being treated for ADD and clinical depression, Alex spent a summer getting "neurofeedback therapy" and it worked! He's now completely off anti-depressants and medications. His personality has come out into the sunshine; he's managing his work and life well and getting top grades with nothing to hold him back. What a miracle! I continue to plug along with civic and political activism projects. And we continue to work on the house we designed and built 17 years ago. With any luck, we'll have finished it in another 17 years.

Bob and I took a great vacation in Tanzania this summer. Did a safari seeing animals and birds galore in the Serengeti, the Ngorongoro crater and Lake Eyasi, then joined a different group to climb Mount Kilimanjaro. How fabulous to arrive at the summit in time to see the sun rise over the fields of snow. How glorious to be 60 and still be able to take on such challenges.

Other news: Lauren Adams Fortmiller and her partner Pam Thiele are moving to Denver from Sag Harbor this summer.

Tom and I (Elise Rosenhaupt Noble), recovering house renovators, fell off the wagon last October and are now working on a compound up the road from where we've lived for almost thirty years. In the fall of 1969, we lived in the smallest of the compound's casitas when we first landed up in Santa Fe. No one did a thing to take care of the compound since then, so our project, Déjà Vu, will keep us out of trouble for a good while. The best is planting trees, training vines onto fences, and watching the native grass we planted spring up. Who says you can't have fun watching grass grow?

Karen Fraser writes: Perhaps the only non-coastal residing graduate of Miss Fine's School, writing from Fort Wayne IN...to say that oldest son Fraser (Coffeen) married his girlfriend Jen (who took his name!) on Father's Day weekend this summer, at a lovely event in Chicago, outdoors, lots of laughter – a wonderful time.

Only slightly marred by the fact that I broke my shoulder an hour before we were to leave for Chicago, while walking my largest dog (of four), as she saw a duck and a rabbit and I thought I could control her. I was mistaken! And I didn't think to let go.

So perhaps – way sadly – I'm the first in the Class of '65 to have a "mature break." It's a fact that I can now tell when the weather is about to change. With that talent, the porch rocker and talk of "the good old days" can't be far behind!

Come out to Indiana – I'll pour you some lemonade and we can set a spell. Love to all.

Former New Jersey state senator and 2002 Alumni Service Award recipient Bill Schluter recently teamed up with Benjamin

Brickner PDS '00 to write an opinion article for the Trenton Times editorial page focused on New Jersey's Clean Elections pilot project.

Mr. Schluter, former chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Ethical Standards, states that "Clean elections levels the playing field of financial resources available to competent candidates. In New Jersey, incumbents with established name recognition and networks of support routinely outspend their challengers, often by an order of magnitude of ten to one, or more... To be sure, the Clean Elections program isn't perfect and must be carefully adapted to suit New Jersey's peculiar political climate. Nevertheless, the program remains superior to politics as currently practiced and holds great promise for fundamental reform in a state that urgently needs it."

Colin McAneny writes: I have been retired for 12 years after a career as a geologist for the US Army Engineer Waterways Experiment Station, which took me to many interesting places in the US and around the world. I have three surviving children, having lost one; and four grandchildren. I sing in a church choir, act occasionally in the Vicksburg, MS little theater and serve as a volunteer treasurer of the local Habitat for Humanity affiliate.

Malcolm Cleland writes: After a career in community service, I am now retired, living comfortably just south of Denver, CO. My wife, Martie, and I enjoy our four sons' families, including five grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. Our biggest concern is that one of our grandchildren's husbands is serving in Iraq. Every day, we pray for his safe return.

George Gallup Jr. writes: The big news in my family is the birth of our first grandchild, Daisy, born October 15 to my daughter, Kingsley PDS '84, and her husband, Les, who live in Durango, CO. Daisy's birth brings to mind a project that I would like to propose for new parents (and grandparents) reading this publication.

As doting parents (and grandparents), we take countless photographs of our kids (and our grandchildren) as a permanent record of their childhoods. But just as valuable a record, I believe, is keeping an ongoing journal on the comments children make, even at a very early age – their outrageously funny and unexpected, and sometimes highly perceptive, observations about life, family and friends. Unless we record these comments they will fade from memory, and be lost forever.

Perhaps you, the reader, have kept such a journal. If not, let me note that for about 20 years (with gaps) that the first thing I did when getting to the office in the morning was to type on one page the activities and verbatim remarks from the preceding 24 hours, of my three children – Alison, George '82 and Kingsley '84 – weaving this material into a rough stream-of-consciousness story form. Five years ago I presented each of my kids with a bound four-volume set, titled A Father Remembers.

As you can imagine, it is a huge kick to read and re-read these lively and revealing biographical accounts. And at a deeper level, these accounts – particularly if they are continued through the early teen years – help to give young readers a clearer sense of themselves and their role in the family, and above all, to help them realize how appreciated and loved they are.

In writing these pages over the years, I kept reminding myself, "a day unrecorded is a day lost."

On June 28, 2007 Norm Dorf died at home. A memorial service was held July 10 at the Princeton University Chapel. Peter Knipe and Ken Scasserra attended. Part of the service included sharing memories of Norm, one of which was a wonderful letter from Charlie Fischer addressed to Norm's mother Ruth MFS '57 and his girlfriend and companion Marie Lewis. Marie read what Charlie wrote about how they met, their times as neighbors and classmates, and their friendship over the years.

The Class extends its deepest sympathy to Norm's mother Ruth, his brother Bob '56 and his family, his sister Molly '65 and her family, his daughter Tracy, his sons Tom and Whitney and their families, and Marie.

Now to the good news. Carl Ackerlof reports he is still on the faculty in the Physics Department at Michigan. He gets to go to various interesting places around the world working on a neat astrophysics project. Carl says the gory details are at www.rotse.net.

Therefore, I have asked two class members, Bob Dorf and David Smoyer, to update other class members and alumni on their lives. My plan is to get at least two of you per issue of the PDS Journal to send me information about yourselves. Pictures are also welcome. Following is news from Bobby and David:

From Bobby: Just to fill you in on all those details that are slowly slipping from my memory banks, here is a little update on the Dorf

The Erdman Family — including a dozen PDS alumni — gathers in Edgartown. Alumni include Amory Hare PDS '10, Phoebe Hare PDS '14, Spencer Mooney PDS '13, Michael Erdman PCD '50, Peter Erdman PCD '43, Harold Erdman PCD '39, Billy Erdman PDS '76, Caroline Hare PDS '75, Margie Becker PDS '73, Jody Erdman PDS '72, Carl Erdman PDS '76 and Nick Hare PCD '59.

Family. Patty and I continue to live in the Vail Valley, and in spite of our exceptional market, I have not yet accumulated enough to retire; not that I would anyway. My office is still on Bridge Street in downtown Vail, although Patty and I live about 30 miles away, in Eagle, where the winters are a little milder, and the summers are a little longer. I have been blessed to have children who love the mountains as much as we, so my daughter Heather, 35, is putting her Middlebury degree to good use by selling real estate along side me, and spending the rest of her time with Porter, 6, and Jensen, 4. Both put her to the test which gives me no end of pleasure, since she was such a handful. Poetic justice. Heather lives about 6 blocks from us in Eagle, so my house is regularly trashed. Patty can't get enough of them, and I can't get enough sleep. Erik, 37, just finished his residency at U Va in orthopedic surgery, and will depart for Winston-Salem and a year of fellowship at Wake Forest specializing in hand and elbow surgery. His original idea was to live in the East, however, the introduction of his son, Mack, 3, to skiing, changed his mind. Although unconfirmed at this time, he is rumored to be returning to the Colorado Mountains after next year. I suppose the parents are the last to hear. His daughter, Anabel, 1, hasn't skied on her own yet, but has been on them and has been backpacked all over the slopes. Won't be long for her.

Patty and I do manage a few extended vacations to our Mexico home in Mazatlan. We try to spend November and May there, and invite any classmates to join us. We have lots of room on the first hole of a very nice golf course. I try to play at least 18 holes every day while there, but still manage to enjoy the beach which is only a block away. Besides skiing in the winter, I still try to get on the ice for a little drop in and semi-organized hockey twice a week. The legs don't go as fast as I'd like, but I haven't run into any kids who can skate faster than the puck.

Unfortunately, brother Norm passed away in June. He had been suffering from cancer for this last year, but succumbed to a heart attack. We weren't prepared for this so suddenly. It has been especially hard on my mother, who, at 97, continues to enjoy exceptional health and mental acuity. She no longer runs the 100, but her electric cart is one of the fastest at Meadow Lakes in Hightstown.

From David: Family update from the Smoyers: All are well, scattered across the country following their different interests. Mark (40) lives with his wife Jennifer Reese and their two children (ages 10 and 6) in Mill Valley, CA. He is deputy sports editor at the San Francisco Chronicle. She is the lead book reviewer for the magazine Entertainment Weekly. Amy (38) and her husband Jaime Muleiro are in New Haven with their two children (ages 10 and 5). She works for the Yale-sponsored Center for Interdisciplinary Research on AIDS and is just starting on her doctorate in social work at Hunter College in New York. He is just starting as the social worker on staff at Woodhouse Academy in Milford, CT. Laura (36) and her husband Chris Myers are in Portland, OR with their three children (ages 9, 7 and 5). She teaches math at Portland Community College and he is the upper school librarian at Oregon Episcopal School, a K-12 independent school which is much like PDS in size. All three of our children and their spouses are heavy volunteers in their kids' elementary schools. Mary teaches in a Boston public elementary school and may soon be joining me in retirement, for which I am well-prepared to give hints — having happily been at it for more than a decade now.

1957

James Carey Jr.
545 Washington Street
Dedham, MA 02026-4438
tim_carey@nobles.edu

Tim Carey writes: On the weekend of the 17th and 18th of May, the PCD Class of 1957 celebrated its 50th reunion. Returning to your school or college years after graduation can be a daunting experience, and I have to admit that I felt a degree of apprehension as I made my way down the Turnpike toward Princeton. My wife Mary is a Princeton graduate, and we had visited three or four years ago, but this circumstance was different, seeing and spending time with people whom I had not seen for up to fifty years. Now that I look back on the weekend, I can say without reservation that it turned out to be a personal highlight.

Thanks go primarily to Bob Smyth and Rob Kuser who arranged a dinner at a small restaurant in Lawrenceville on Friday night. In attendance were Bill Morse, Andy Harris, Rob and their wives. Bill Smith, Bob and I rounded out the group. Aside from a noisy rehearsal dinner that made it difficult for us to hear each other, we had a wonderful time getting reacquainted. The food was great and the conversation lively. Within moments it seemed as if we had been together just a few weeks before.

The next morning we convened at the school campus for a breakfast reception, followed by a moment of remembrance for the members of the class who are deceased. Standing in a circle, we, including Jim Shea's sister, Susie, spoke informally about each classmate, Jim, Tyler Gatchell, Webb Harrison, Ralph Smith and John Thompson. Sad as the occasion was, it did bring about some good laughs as we recalled times in the old school building at Broadmead and in other parts of town. We recalled Jim and his ability as a soccer player. Many of us had visited his home in Lawrenceville where his mother was always gracious and made us know our places when we got out of hand. Tyler was always the life of whatever was going on. It certainly was no surprise that he went on to establish himself as a central player on Broadway. Webb was the person we all looked to as a scholar and athlete. The sadness lies in his not finding the elusive happiness he sought. But I can say that he was then and remains now an important figure in my life, a person with a great sense of humor and an ability in his early life to carry the burden of great success with apparent ease. Ralph was a mystery to many because they did not really get to know what lay behind that dour exterior. He was, in fact, one of my better friends. He and I spent a great deal of time entertaining ourselves by creating a fantasy radio show revolving around his love of music and his talent at the piano. I just tagged along thinking I was the next Frank Sinatra. I also remember the time that he had not completed an assignment for Mr. Gorman, and his excuse was that his mother had dropped a fried egg and the yolk spread all over the paper! Funny and imaginative he was. John was the man among boys, it always seemed to me. He knew people in Princeton that we did not, the kids who went to the high school, an older and tougher crowd. But what endeared him to us was his sense of adventure, testing limits, trying things that were tinged with a little danger and excitement. Where we might have been conservative, John was always pushing us to go places, literally and figuratively, where we did not always feel comfortable. I gather that is how he lived his life as well. Bob Smyth and Jerry Gildar, who had stayed in touch with John over the years, fondly remembered him as a fun-loving, warm guy, who had more than his share of adversities. Nonetheless, shortly after he overcame them and found peace, his weakened heart gave out. It is ironic that the most vital part of John ultimately failed him at the end.

One of the highlights of the two days was Andy Harris, about whom you will no doubt read in the alumni magazine, and who was the recipient of the school's annual Alumni Service Award. Although now retired from regular practice, Andy was, for years, an ophthalmologist in Salem, OR. But his view went well beyond the confines of that city. He has served "in several local, national and international humanitarian organizations including Physicians for Social Responsibility, the US affiliate of International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War.... He was on the board for 13 years, served as its national president in 1998 and received the Oregon Peacemaker Award last year" (excerpt from the Alumni Awards brochure). In his retirement, he is involved in a program for retired doctors who assist in disaster relief in developing countries. All of us at the presentation felt proud to be in the company of someone who has given so much of his life to assisting others.

Following a long lunch which also included Jerry Gildar, Stu Robson and Steve Crawford, who had driven from Maryland for the day and who headed home following the dinner that evening, we crossed town to the PCD building on Broadmead. It is now used as a pre-school. I do not know exactly how the visit struck others, but my memory of the place was its size, the long corridors, the cavernous rooms, the large people. Walking through the building some fifty years later, I felt brogdingnagian! It seemed only a couple of steps from Mr. Whitehead's room to the bench outside of Mr. Ross's office. We shuddered as we tiptoed past Mr. Clark's room and made our way up to the second floor where Mr. Gorman ruled. The room was empty, probably had not been used since the school moved to the other side of Princeton. The steel framed windows, the stained ceiling tiles, the lights with their circular metal bands for deflecting the glare and even the air "purifiers" were as they had been fifty years ago. Close your eyes and there is Mr. Gorman sitting at his desk at the back of the room often prodding us with his long pole to make sure we were on task. We departed though the corridor up three steps and passed by the room where Mr. McAneny taught, his dramatic readings echoing in our minds. The study hall room stood empty and small now. I still can remember where I sat, and I could see Mr. Smyth seated above us at the front of the room. Extraordinary what memories come flooding back when you revisit a place. This hour, arranged by Bob Smyth, was among the most powerful of the weekend.

That evening we had a quiet dinner in one of the school buildings. The highlight of the evening was the presence of Bud Tibbals and Wes McCaughan. Bud is 91 and sharp and active. When he saw me he said something to this effect: "Let's see, Tim, you went to St. Lawrence and then transferred to Middlebury." I cannot even remember what I ate for breakfast this morning. Wes was just the same, alive and involved in his retirement. Both regaled us with stories of the days at PCD, the troubles that Henry Ross dealt with over his time as Headmaster, the changes that occurred when the school moved and joined with Miss Fine's and their memories of us when we were at the school. Toward the end of the evening, Bud posed a question that I find myself thinking about often: "Do you all realize how lucky you were to grow up in this town and to go to this school? I had not really thought a great deal about that idea, taking for granted that many had had such good fortune. But the reality of being free to go where we wanted when we wanted without fear was a luxury that I know my 13-year-old kid does not enjoy. We cruised the town on bikes, skated carefree from Princeton to Kingston for a day of hockey, played softball, caught a glimpse of Einstein on occasion, had the run of the University, sneaked into reunion parties, and rarely, if ever, were we concerned that anything might happen to us beyond a mild scolding. The town is so different now, new stores, more traffic and people, but the sense is familiar, well-heeled, beautiful and safe. I see now how fortunate we really were.

The only real disappointment for all of us who attended the reunion was that others we had hoped to see were not able to return for the two days. I am not sure what we will be doing or where we might be in another five years, but I will return for the 55th weekend if anyone else is game. I now realize fully that though years and experiences separate us, convening brings back so much of what was healthy, fun and important in our early lives. Thanks to everyone who played a hand in making us feel welcome and part of an era in the school's history that remains unique.

Finally a plea! I have not done a good job as class correspondent. I freely admit that. But if you who were at the reunion will forward more personal information about what you are doing I will make sure that I write it up in the issue that follows this one. To those who did not make it, I beg, plead, urge and even demand that you do the same. I want to give everyone a reason to look for the Class of 1957 and see it filled with information. I too am tired of the blanks! Best to everyone.....

Some Notes:

Bill Morse, after an early academic and administrative career at Yale and the U of Texas, has been an educational consultant in Westport, CT. these last 25 years, and his wife, Cece Saunders, is an archaeologist.

Bill Smith has been a commercial banker for 40 years and is presently the Deputy General Manager of the Bank of China. He is married to Maria, a banker-lawyer, and they have two children, a daughter who is an assistant principal in Florida and a son who is the founder of an internet advertising business in Ann Arbor.

Pony Fraker is living in Berkeley and is the William Worster Professor and Dean at the School of Architecture at the University. He and Molly Kuntz, his wife, have two children, Colin and William. Alison, his oldest child from his first marriage, died from injuries sustained in an automobile accident when she was a student at Middlebury College. Jessica, his second child is the mother of three of Pony's grandchildren. He remains active in hockey and became a national champion tennis player as a Super Senior.

Jerry Gildar has been a long-time art and architecture molder and caster. He is married to Chuckie Slider and has a son, Ed, who is married and living in Hong Kong. He is an active gardener.

Adam Hochschild remains in California with his wife Arlie, both writers of considerable renown. Adam has written six books to date and is now working on another. Most of his works focus on human rights issues. Arlie is a sociologist at Berkeley. They have two children and one granddaughter. He, like others, is "hoping and praying for deliverance of this country out of the hands of George Bush!"

Rob Kuser and his wife Mary Kay are enjoying retirement after Rob stepped down from his career at The Bank of New York. They have two children, Chris and Katharine and two grandchildren. Their third child, Jim, died in 2003. Rob and Mary Kay plan to travel, and Rob hopes to get involved in charitable work in the future.

Bob Smyth has just retired after 34 years of service in the New Jersey state government. His wife Deb is a pharmacist and his son, Rob, has just completed his first year of college. He remains active in youth hockey and is an avid Princeton sports fan.

Tim Carey continues to work near Boston at the Noble and Greenough School where he has been for 31 years. His wife Mary is English Department Head at Brookline High School. Their daughter Zoe (13) has just completed her first year at Nobles. His oldest daughter, Fari, is married, has one child and is a psychologist in the Ithaca school system. Edie, his second child, is a singer-songwriter who tours the country playing at schools and colleges and in coffee houses. She is actually making a pretty good living at it! Turns out Rusty Mathews has been in the lobbying business here in D.C. for several years since leaving various posts for Congressional committees in the 80's and 90's. Through his firm, Dickstein Shapiro LLP, Rusty advises clients in a wide variety of industries on legislative and public policy issues. To my email, I got this reply from Rusty:

"John Ritchie! Now there is a voice from the past. Thanks for tracking me down. There is a partner here at the firm, Howard Vine '71, who is a PDS graduate. He keeps asking me if I get alum stuff from PDS – but you are the first contact I have had. I figured the PCD guys just fell through the cracks. I've stayed in touch with Berkshire classmates and teachers and folks from Ohio U – but completely out of touch with PCD. I am divorced and living in Arlington, VA, and have a daughter, Meg, who has been teaching English in Thailand since she graduated from Earlham College in May of this year. My son, Graham, is starting his freshman year at Eastern Michigan University this fall."

By the way, I found out from other sources that Rusty's son Graham tended goal for his high school's varsity hockey team. Like father, like son!

In the previous issue of the Journal, it was reported that President Bush had nominated Ford Fraker as the new Ambassador to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. I am pleased to report that Ford was confirmed on March 29, 2007, and officially sworn in on April 11, 2007. At the confirmation hearing, Sen. John Kerry (D-MA), the subcommittee chair, told Ford, "I think you are enormously qualified," and Sen. Dick Lugar (R-IN) praised him for his "special talents." Let's wish Ford the best of luck in this very important diplomatic role.

We love photos for class notes!

To achieve the best results, here are some tips for sending photos that will look great when printed in the Journal.

For traditional prints:

- 4 X 6 glossy prints work best, matte or textured prints do not reproduce well.

For digital photos:

- Set your digital camera to a high quality photo resolution.
- JPEG photo files should be a minimum size of 200K. Otherwise there is simply not enough data sufficient for printing.
- Send your files as a JPEG.
- E-mail your photos as attachments; do not include them in the body of your message.
- Do not use HotMail to e-mail photos. Hotmail automatically compresses photos to an unusable size.
- Please identify everyone in the photo and provide a caption.

It is important to know that we cannot reproduce photos from a Web site or from photocopies, paper laser printouts, magazines or newspapers. We must have either a traditional paper print or a digital photo file. We cannot guarantee use of photos that do not meet these guidelines.

Lynn Hoffman writes: It's summertime and the living is easy — so easy, in fact, we have very little news to report. Traveling seems to be a theme for this edition of the class notes.

Linda Stanier Bergh and Polly Dickey Cockburn and their families had Sunday lunch together in London in July. Linda and her husband, Bill, were visiting their daughter, Courtney, who is getting her master's at The London School of Economics.

There was a note from Dale Marzoni Kellogg. "I'm back from my short but amazing trip to China! Although many of my expectations were accurate (huge, almost unimaginable numbers of people, much of the country still agricultural) I was so impressed by the drive and energy of the cities and the people I met. While English is still not spoken, even in the big cities (Beijing taxi drivers usually have none and all the hotels give you cards with directions in Chinese so you can get home!), I predict that by next summer when the Olympics begin, many, many people will have enough to give directions, say hello, etc. I'm retired, and meanwhile, am working on getting my astrology practice set up. I am having cards and flyers printed, and working with two other astrologers weekly, practicing and keeping my skills sharp while I wait for clients. I'm also going to put up a website.

Debbie Hobler writes: "I've continued my research on F.S. Church, a Victorian artist who was friends with my great-grandparents and grandmother in NYC. This spring, following a great trip to Kentucky's underground caves with my sister Mary Hyson '68 and her family, I traveled to Toledo, OH and Grand Rapids, MI. In Toledo, I spent a few days with a wonderful F.S. Church collector who owns 21 of his oil paintings—amazing experience to see so many of his paintings at once—and then drove to Grand Rapids, where Church was born, and spent five days hunkered down in the public library which houses a large collection of his art work and letters. I'm now reviewing my three years of collected research materials, and hope to start writing by the fall. Do not, as my mother does, ask me when I will be finished!" I, for one, won't ask, but I can't wait for an update when the time for the next collection of class notes rolls around.

From Lynn: Life remains about the same for me. I've been getting reacquainted with old friends, making new ones and getting acclimated to East Coast weather. I went to Florida to visit some friends earlier this summer. I've spent time before on the east coast of FL, but this time I got to see central FL and the Tampa Bay area. Central FL is full of orange groves, cattle, horses (including miniature horses) and lightning. I could have done without the latter, but was told that it's a regular occurrence during that time of year. Upon arrival in Orlando, my luggage was held up because of lightning and when my friend and I drove west to Palmetto, we traveled through an electric storm the likes of which I hadn't seen in a long time. Las Vegas just doesn't have that kind of weather. My flight was delayed going home too, but not because of bad Florida weather, but because of severe weather in Philly. I was due home at 9 p.m. but didn't crawl into my own little bed until about 4 a.m. While I enjoy the rain and hadn't seen that much in Las Vegas, I could do without lightning.

Patience Morgan-Irigoyen got me this quick note just as I was about to go out to dinner with a friend, but I wanted to make sure it made our class notes. She writes: "Since our amazing reunion I've been thinking so much about all of us and how the Miss Fine's / PDS years have informed my life. Now that my parents are gone, PDS and a few of my parents friends are the only link I have to Princeton. I always wondered how it would feel to not have a "home" there. I feel so lucky to have had the chance to know you all again, as we are now, with all our pain and joy, kids, or not and, of course, our sisterhood still intact and so full of meaning and depth of feeling. I feel so full of love for all of you! Debbie and Andrea gave us this gift and I will always be grateful for that.

I've been working in my studio on a few new pieces, doing volunteer work at Morgan's day school still, despite his having graduated and surviving living without him at home with Mario & me. This has not been so easy, but, then again, not as hard as I would have thought. I saw Andrea, Debbie, Katherine and Carol before Christmas, last year. I saw Andrea for lunch in NYC last fall or spring! When was it Andrea??? Getting old! I look forward to more of the same and seeing others of you soon.

I had carpal tunnel surgery on my left hand, so now both of my hands are 'fixed.' I participated in "Open Studio Days" at the arts center where I have my studio and, as a result of that, got several new commissions.

Saw Sarah Jaeger on 'Crafts in America' segment on PBS. How wonderful for Sarah & how well deserved. Her work is so beautiful. I hope everyone got to see it."

I got to see it and even taped it so I could share it with friends. I'm still a bit star struck about things and was bouncing around going "I know her, I know her, I went to school with her!" I'm such a kid about these things and I love to celebrate the success of my friends. Patty wants to know when the next reunion will be. Anybody have any suggestions?...

Guess that's all the news that's fit to print this time. Hopefully we'll hear from more of you the next time.

Susan Fritsch Hunter writes: I think I can speak for many of us who attended our 40th PDS reunion in May, and say that it was a really good time and a great opportunity to rekindle old and new friendships. More and more of us arrived at the PDS campus as the weekend progressed, starting with the Alumni/Faculty and Staff Reunion Friday night. Jo Schlossberg McConaghy and her husband Bill, Martha Miller and her husband, Steve Ricci, Mary Woodbridge, my husband, Bill Hunter and I had dinner under the tents, took pictures and started catching up with people we hadn't seen in a long time.

On Saturday, it was on to the Grand Gathering of Alumni Classes where Jo and I, as members of the reunion committee, accepted the Clas of 1966 Participation Cup given to our class for achieving the highest percentage of Alumni Fund giving. Thank you, everyone, for your generosity. We were sorry that reunion co-chair, Laura Peterson, couldn't attend reunion, after all the hours of work she had put into organizing it. A family medical emergency kept her at home that weekend.

After the award presentation, Jane Borgerhoff and her children Corie and Arthur joined Mary Woodbridge, the McConaghy's and the Hunters for an Alumni Shore Luncheon.

Our class party at Pretty Brook Farm that evening brought more classmates – Julia Lockwood, Weezie Huntington and husband Paul Moran, Franny Gorman and Marta Nussbaum Steele. We had a wonderful meal, gave a moving tribute to those classmates, friends and teachers who have died, and told stories and news about what we have all done since graduating in 1967!

On Sunday, Chris Otis and Betsy Gilliam Brown and husband, Peter Brown, joined all of us for a wonderful brunch at Woody's house on North Road.

I'd say we all look great, and our busy and fulfilling lives are doing the Baby Boomers proud!

Mary Young Bragado and husband Max Bragado-Darman have had an exciting year. On March 31, their daughter, Ilia Bragado-Young, was married to Pepe Concejo in Valladolid, Spain. "The day was full of beautiful moments, and Ilia was ravishing," Mary writes. "The celebration really lasted the whole time we were in Spain, in crescendo the five days before the wedding and in decrescendo until five days after. Our house was full of friends, family, contagious mirth and much happiness. Pepe and Ilia will be living in our home in Valladolid. He has a flooring business, and she is teaching ballet."

On July 28, Mary, Max and family celebrated the wedding of their son, Julio Bragado-Young, who married Jennifer Alexander in Carmel Valley, California. Both Julio and Jennifer dance with the American Ballet Theater.

In May, I took the train into New York and saw Julio perform

the role of Bottom in "The Dream," choreographed by Frederick Ashton and Jennifer perform in Balanchine's "Symphonie Concertante." It was a thrill to watch them on stage and meet up with them afterwards – to Max and Mary's credit, their very talented son is down-to-earth, courteous and charming.

When Julia Lockwood sent in her class news in July, she was about to leave with her family for three weeks in Spain – two weeks with husband Marc Miller's family in a villa north of Barcelona and then a trip to Madrid. Julia and Marc's daughter Rachel is spending the year at Trinity College in Dublin working on a master's degree in English and Irish literature. "The younger girls and I went to our annual Spice Cam (Indian culture camp) in Johnstown, PA over July 4," Julia wrote. "I enjoyed the [PDS] reunion greatly."

"I had a great time at reunion," wrote Marta Nussbaum Steele, "and lunched with Betsy [Gilliam] beforehand. Work goes well. I practice writing jacket blurbs. We put an illustrated museum guide into design last week; the museum will open next spring just about when the guide, which really displays the treasures of the collection, also comes out. I'm managing the project." (editor's note: Marta has moved to Washington, D.C. where she is an editor of journals and books at Dumbarton Oaks in Georgetown.)

Anne Morgan Battle wasn't able to attend reunion, but she left a cheerful voice mail message. She is living in Princeton, married to Craig Battle, and has two boys, ages 28 and 32. "I do decorating for people," Anne said. "Life is good. I feel very blessed and grateful."

This is truly a year of reunions. In March, I had lunch with Laura Peterson and Marta Nussbaum Steele in Georgetown, and in June, Bill, our daughter Becky and I traveled out to Montana and spent several days with Phoebe Knapp Warren, her husband Paul and son Andrew. They cooked us great meals, we all rode horses out at the ranch and went fishing on the Big Horn River. Phoebe was preparing sculptures to exhibit at a gallery in Denver, CO, and she and her family have their hands full managing their large cattle ranch south of Billings. She said she would love to have guests!

My family is doing well. Lauren will start her senior year in the nursing program at Simmons College in Boston, has been elected captain of the Simmons Varsity Tennis Team and won the Blue and Gold athletic award in tennis. Joycie graduated from the Loomis Chaffee School and is a freshman at Colorado College, and Becky is an eighth grader who loves to ride horses.

This year, I won first place in the 2007 Association of Free Community Papers (AFCP) competition for community service editorial writing. Judges deemed a series of articles I wrote on the plight of evicted public housing residents "great investigative reporting on a community issue having a dramatic impact on residents." My trip to New Orleans in April to attend the AFCP newspaper convention was an eye-opening one, and I wrote a series of articles on the after-effects of Hurricane Katrina. I hope to return to New Orleans to do volunteer work next year.

Laura Peterson writes: "It's nice to have Marta Nussbaum Steele in town. She loves her new job in Georgetown as an editor at the renowned, Harvard-affiliated Dumbarton Oaks research library and collection, and has an apartment near Embassy Row opposite the venerable Cosmos Club. She recently accompanied Scott and me to "Hamlet" at the Shakespeare Theatre and we got to talk to the young and engaging actors who played Hamlet and Ophelia afterwards. Scott and I also had a great visit in June with Bree Rosi Merrick and her husband Gary Crispens at their lovely home in the countryside outside of Durham, NC. We made friends with their beloved golden Labs, watched the deer grazing just beyond their porch, enjoyed the gourmet dinner Bree prepared, and caught up on things like their romantic wedding at a beachfront resort in Jamaica."

Mary Hobler Hyson writes: News! News! NEWS! I am thankful for an abundance of news from classmates coast to coast and across the Great Pond.

There was a mini-reunion in June in Princeton with Lisa Lawrence, Sia Godfrey Bauer, Lynn Hehr Sanford and Connie Sayen Ban. Lisa is a free-lance artist in New Mexico, often painting murals that have a southwestern flavor. She's been living at her mother's house, getting it ready to sell as Mrs. Lawrence has moved to Stonebridge, a retirement community in Skillman. Sia, who lives in Burlington, VT is enjoying part-time work as a real estate agent and presently is spending time in Blue Hill, ME. I will visit her for a few days at this lovely family-owned waterfront home in July. Lynn has been a life-time supporter of MFS/PDS. She is not only an alum, but her kids went to PDS, too. Connie's love for the wee ones keeps her committed to her job as a nursery school teacher in the Princeton area.

Rumor has it that in June, Ingrid Selberg traveled from her home in England to Princeton to celebrate the occasion of her father's 90th birthday. Congratulations.

I always look forward to receiving Leigh Keyser Phillips' Christmas letter from the cold north of Vermont. She wrote, "I am still practicing law, and serve on the boards of the YWCA and the Flynn Center for the Performing Arts. I am also on a committee for the Leave A Legacy program. I took a Master Gardener course last winter and am now busy trying to correct all the things I did wrong in the gardens over the years! Traveling has included trips to Florida to escape the snow and to visit the three grown children in Boston and Los Angeles."

Mary Hobler Hyson '68 was surprised by her parents with front row seats at a Smothers Brothers performance in Trenton and a backstage visit with Tommy and Dickie.

The highlight of my (Mary Hobler Hyson) year was a surprise gift from my parents: front row seats at a Smothers Brothers performance in Trenton AND spending half an hour with Tommy and Dickie backstage afterward! You might recall that I had a mad crush on Tommy in my teens.

I had met him twice before in the late '60s. And almost 40 years later we reunited. It was like seeing old friends. Hugs for all. What a kick!

Joe Chandler dropped me an e-mail from Portland ME, saying "Nick, my 19-year-old, has finished his first year at Hampshire College. He will be going to the O'Neill Theater Arts center in Moscow for a semester. I am very proud of him."

Another email from June was an update from Annie Fulper. "Life in PA is relatively uneventful at the moment – which is okay by me. My daughter, Ella, is home after her freshman year at The New School in NYC. It was a big change from her four years at George School. She hopes to go to France in August to visit her many relatives. Silvere, my husband, is still painting murals. I'm still working at McCarter Theatre as a subscriptions manager and performance supervisor. I am also doing a little writing."

In closing, I'd like to mention that I am to join the ranks of grandparenthood, courtesy of my son, Christopher and his wife, Sarah. Nathaniel is due to arrive in October. Can't wait!

It's always a treat to hear from classmates. Remember, it's as easy as dropping me an email.

Blair's daughter, Brita, graduates in June and will attend Tufts University in the fall; son, Lucian, will enter 9th grade at Trevor Day School in NYC. Last but not least, Jack Calhoun and I married September 2006 and live on Harrisville Pond in historic mill town of Harrisville, NH.

Gale Colby Mirzayanov writes: My youngest stepson, Suttar, graduated from Valley Forge Military Academy this June. I have a 5-year-old granddaughter, Camilla Colby. Hope to see you all in 2 years.

Basil Stetson '70, Fred King '70, Buzz Woodworth '73 and Fred Erdman '70 crossed hockey sticks recently when the Florida Leafs played the Essex Foxes. These Hockey legends — at least in their own minds — started playing Pee Wee hockey together back in 1959.

Ann Wiley writes: Basil Stetson wrote last April, right after the deadline for the spring Journal: "It has been a zillion years since I have visited PDS and I have really lost touch. However, I thought the following might be of interest to the alumni news. This weekend I played in the U.S. Hockey over 50 national tournament. I was on a team called the Florida Leafs and, we played the Essex Foxes with Fred King, Fred Erdman and Buzz Woodworth '73. The two Freds and I started playing Pee Wee hockey together back in 1959! We continue to be hockey legends... unfortunately, just in our own minds!

Fred Erdman recently wrote: "It was a great surprise when Basil walked into our locker room. I hadn't seen him in 30+ years and needed him to introduce himself. We expect to be on the ice against his Florida team next year."

Allison Gilbert Kozicharow sent a photo of her girls, Maggie and Nicky, in London this past summer. (Doesn't Maggie look just like Allison?) Maggie was visiting her sister who is getting her master's in Russian Art from University College London. Allison and Hilary Martin, and their husbands, Gene and Kevin, spent five days this summer visiting Allison's dad and his wife in Asheville, NC.

Margaret Meigs wrote: "In 2005, Paul and I moved from northwest Philadelphia to the Art Museum area — to be closer to Paul's commute to Wilmington and to Boathouse Row. Paul is an avid rower and I have become one in self-defense (it is fun). I can now walk or ride my bike to my job in Center City. We also wanted to downsize as we are almost officially empty-nesters. Sarah graduated from Rhode Island School of Design this year and is working in apparel design in NYC. Nick is at Temple, living in West Philly. Nell is a freshman at Trinity this fall. My parents live in Princeton in the Windrows retirement community on Rte. 1, so I am often back in Princeton."

Bruce Plapinger and his wife, Karen, live in Elkton, MD and make annual treks to Hilton Head, SC on their boat for the winter. They do software development for the retail industry. More recently Bruce has become more involved with his family's commercial real estate business. He hasn't seen too many PDS alumni except for his brother, Keith '74, and David Stark '71.

Bruce Plapinger '70 and his wife, Karen, readying to set sail.

Marjorie Shaw has started back to work full-time this year, teaching gross anatomy at Howard Medical School. She writes: "It has been a slow re-entry, working as a volunteer docent at the National Museum of Health and Medicine, then part-time teaching, now a real job. I feel rejuvenated, instead of pining over my emptying nest (Alison is sophomore at Columbia University, and Carolyn is a sophomore in high school.) I recommend it."

Bumper White had visits this summer from Fred Erdman and Deebes Young at his new house on the coast of Maine.

Jack Kilgore wrote: "Greetings to all! My wife Kim and I are in Nantucket with our six-year-old daughter, India. We are also with Westie, the Westie. We live in

New York and India goes to a school called Spence. Hope she gets as good an education as I received at PDS! Westie does not go to school, but she should. I own a private art gallery in Manhattan and specialize in Old Master paintings. We sell works to private collectors and to museums throughout the world. It is great fun. Sad day today. I just learned that Miss Hilda, our Beta fish, died in New York. We had this fish for two years. I have not told Westie or India yet. Best to all my PDS pals!"

Wendy Lawson Johnston McNeil is a grandmother! (Is she the first for our class?) Her daughter, Lawson, had a baby boy on June 3rd. His name is Chanan Kairos Wijesooriya. Wendy reports: "It is awesome being a grandmother!" She and Tom are building a log cabin in Yemassee, SC and hope to be there a lot during the winter. Her work on the Guggenheim Museum board is busy and interesting as Chair of Governance/Nominating and Education. She travelled to Abu Dhabi last January to check out a potential new museum project.

Erik Heggen wrote: "In 37 years I've never sent anything in for the Journal but don't want us 70's people to look pathetic. So....I've been living in North Bay of San Fran (Marin County) for about eight years after living in New York on the Upper West Side for 24 years. Working for corporate office of Trader Vic's Restaurants, which is a lot of fun. But getting bored here and thinking always of moving back to NYC but it's just too hard to get an apartment. Think sometimes of moving back to Princeton but would end up driving around all the time with Bob Salup and then nothing in my life would have changed! Bob Peck is living in East Bay and I see him occasionally which is great — happy to say that Bob is the same as he was in high school. It's weird getting older but thrilled I still have the long hair I had back at PDS! Would love to hear from anyone and everyone - email trvics@aol.com or TRVICS@AOL.COM"

Robin Murray had the chance to visit with Peter Worthington, his wife, and their daughter Hanna, now working with her father, and Peter's brother Tom Worthington '71 and his wife Melissa, and daughter in Minneapolis at the end of June. They enjoyed a dinner at Lake Minnetonka and then a leisurely brunch on Sunday. All are in good health. Robin was in Minneapolis as part of her three year term as the regional director for NJ on the national board of the American Institute of Architects. She is currently teaching at the Masters of Infrastructure program at the NJ School of Architecture. She has received a $100,000 grant to publish her spring studio on rural regenerative development and to include 5-10 case studies of rural NJ municipalities. The studio worked with Delaware Township, Hunterdon County to create examples of sustainable new hamlets and villages using cutting edge energy, water and waste systems, agribusiness and rural economic development.

Eve Robinson sent a photo of her daughter, Olivia Fraioli, age 14, with the following news: "Olivia was chosen to attend the USA Hockey National Development Camp for Girls 14 years old in Rochester, NY representing the Atlantic District (NJ, PA and DE). This means she was one of the top

100 skaters in the country in her age group. She attended the camp July 21-27, 2007. My other daughter, Sophia, will be a sophomore at University of Vermont, Burlington, and studying anthropology. I'm very proud of both my girls! As for me, I am still the Executive Director of the Montclair

Community Pre-K (MCPK) in Montclair, NJ. The school is nationally recognized for its exemplary approach to education and supporting families. MCPK is the mentor program for the state of New Jersey Department of Human Services initiative, Strengthening Families through Early Care and Education. Outside of work I play as much tennis as I can, hoping to someday actually be a good player! (You would think I would be better at it, having a tennis pro for a husband!) I can't believe we are headed to our 40th! Very scary indeed."

I wasn't able to sneak in one of my long weekend trips to Europe this year, but instead went to South Dakota for five days in July. I am now the poster child for the South Dakota Bureau of Tourism. Who knew what a great state it is? Our first adventure was seeing the fireworks over Mount Rushmore; we were miles away but it was still spectacular. (To be closer, you need to be in the park by 11 am!) We drove through Spearfish Canyon, the Badlands, Custer State Park and the Black Hills National Forest and visited Mount Rushmore and the Crazy Horse Monument. Magnificent scenery. This is my 22nd year working at PDS, and finally it has come to me that I don't need to work 10 hour days every day. I now have time to go to the movies usually every week. I somehow got talked into working on the capital campaign at church and I am on the Development Committee of an after-school program at a low-cost housing neighborhood center. My main passion, though, is the work our church continues to do in Haiti.

Just over two years until our 40th reunion. I think the only way to improve on our 35th is to encourage even more people to attend. So mark your calendars now for May, 2010 and plan to be in Princeton.

the personal assistant to Jack Markell, State Treasurer of Delaware, supporting Jack in his run for governor.

Jim and Anne have recently reconnected with Hilary Morgan and her partner, Robin, meeting them for dinner in Annapolis and brunch in DC. It has been fun getting to know each other again. On weekends and in the summer, Anne and Jim spend their free time at their house in Fenwick Island, DE, swimming, kayaking, reading, and hanging out with a great group of beach community friends. They have recently taken up the hobby of geocaching and sometimes take along their Jack Russell terriers, Cali and Maggie. Part of last summer was spent reconnecting with family in Cape Breton, with plans to return this summer to begin looking for property. If anyone is ever in the area of Fenwick or Baltimore, ring us up! I'd love to hear from Liz, Susan, Robin, Jeff, Roger, Daryl, and any of the old crowd.

Safe, good schools, great mix of cultures, etc. Be sure to let me know if you or anyone you know is thinking about making a trip to South Asia. We really enjoy having visitors from back home.

Sandy: As for me, my family is doing well — and I am beginning my second semester at Goddard College (in Vermont) — yes, I am still working as a technical editor in Cambridge, Mass., but I am also working on getting my MFA in Creative Writing — with a focus on poetry. Lots of work of course, but it seems like the right thing to be doing at the right time!

Molly Sword McDonough passes on news from:

Jeff Streed: To give you a more complete update on what I have been up to, I have been a Greek and Latin teacher here in Alexandria, VA for 25 years now, though I taught in England at Rugby for a year and studied in Italy for another. It is a good and fine life, though a bit removed from the real world. They give us food and a house that they fix when it breaks, and pay our bills, and let us out for vacations. I guess it is somewhere between camp and a 'home', but we kinda like it. I have been on a bunch of archaeological digs in Greece and Italy over the years and we or I go to Italy whenever I can work up an excuse. The youngest of our three boys was born in Perugia, but I would not recommend that avenue of birthing to everyone. Great hospital food, though! For my 50th this summer, we are going up to New Brunswick in Canada. We bought a little land up there on the Bay of Fundy and we are going to sit on it and dream about a summer house. Dreaming doesn't cost much!

Molly's note: It was great fun to see Jeff Streed in Princeton in June, sitting on the grass at a "Blue Curtain" (Curtis Webster produced) free concert in Peteranello Gardens! I must admit that I walked right past him, as he smiled and "sort of" waved, and I wondered, "who the heck is this guy?" Luckily, Curtis filled me in, and Jeff was immediately taken off of my "suspicious characters" list. Jeff was in town for a week as he graded AP exams in Greek and Latin, so those of you whose children have taken that classical path can take it up with Jeff if their scores were not what they should have been! Interestingly enough, Curtis' daughter, Theo, is studying classic languages at Rutgers!

Molly Moynahan writes: Just so everyone knows, there is life after fifty! I am on a bike trip through northern Illinois and my butt is very sore but it's great. It's nice to hear what everyone is doing. I am writing, happy — please get in touch if anyone comes to Chicago. It would be really lovely to hear from you.

Anne Russell's response to my request for a serious, profound essay from our classmates on "Life at 50" (and I must report that I got nothing, from anyone....I'm still waiting.....!!):

I have to confess that I only wish to be able to create the appropriate Gary Larsen cartoon. Sort of like the one with the two deer talking. One with the bullseye on its chest and his companion comments, "bummer of a birthmark, Hal."

I will have to ruminate on this one. I suspect I am better at those editing marks on the side after so many years of teenage essays.

Suffice to give my new address below. Departure date is July 2. Loads and loads of unfinished business after these two years in the States, but did help my parents which feels good. Now I have to sort out how one covers health care in one's dotage when one has not put in enough quarters for Medicare. Anyone have any suggestions? Visitors welcome. Cheers!

David Apgar writes: BlueOrchard, the oldest of the for-profit micro-finance funds, is taking me on as a risk manager and investment strategist for a trial period to see if one can help manage the risks of a Geneva-based lender to village banks remotely from Washington, DC. I'm fortunate to have a second book coming out next year that argues the heaps of data now burying us have more or less ended the information revolution — and proposes a way to figure out what really matters amid all the noise. Wiley's Jossey-Bass imprint is publishing it (no, Curtis, McGraw-Hill wasn't interested) under the title Relevance. I'm hoping it will be of more general interest than my first, called Risk Intelligence, that came out last year but was more popular with reviewers than readers. No family to report, unfortunately.

John Brinster reports: Turning the big 50 in September (17), not ready for that yet. Son Kyle graduated PDS class of '07, is off to Lehigh University. He had a wonderful interning experience with Molly Sword McDonough at Patriots Theater at the War Memorial, in Trenton, for his PDS Senior Project. Son Jeremy is in PDS class of '09, and doing very well.

John and Lucy celebrated their 10th year in the travel business. Anyone with travel needs call John or Lucy '78 at Cruise Holidays in Flemington, NJ.

Molly Sword McDonough reports: Kyle Brinster was a fabulous intern at the theater this spring, and it was a treat to help provide a "PDS Senior Spring Project" for one of our own! And to make John feel better, we are half-way through the big "50" year for our class, and so far, all reports from "the other side" are GREAT!

I had the great pleasure of singing with my PDS Senior Spring Project mentor, Roo Brown, at the 50th anniversary of Spring Sing (an a cappella conglomeration) in Philadelphia this spring, when Roo joined our group, Jersey Transit, for an alumni set. Roo was our first director, 19 years ago! Jersey Transit is looking for a bass, in case there are any forlorn, former collegiate a cappella singers in the Princeton area looking for a great group, and a return to the spotlight! Okay, it is a really small spotlight, but we have a lot of fun! E-mail me, if you're interested!

Eric Dunn writes: Thank you for rounding up news from our classmates. This is the week I have described to our kids as "the heart of summer vacation", and it would be hard to imagine them more cheerful than this morning as Gregory (13) headed off to computer gaming camp with his best friend and Sarah (10) boarded the carpool for tennis camp with her friends. Susan and I are not too busy with work, which is helpful, since our longer-than-expected minor remodel before moving into a new house is finally coming to a head this month — we hope to move in just before the kids start school. Earlier this month we were at a guest ranch (what used to be known as a "dude ranch") in Montana with a number of members of the extended family. Lots of fun, and full of photo-ops.

Apart from work and family, I have been plugging along with piano lessons — now in my sixth year as an adult student. My usual dose of easier Mozart and Beethoven pieces has recently been leavened with the theme from the "Pink Panther," but mostly I stick to classical. I also had a chance to read a draft copy of David Apgar's book that he mentioned in his note: I think David is going to be the most famous member of our class.

Elliot Pilshaw '75 and his son Zev in their pool, splashing around and having fun.

Elliot Pilshaw '75 and his partner John celebrating his 50th birthday on a vacation in Key West.

Elliot Pilshaw writes: Just a quick update from me! I turned 50 this year, and actually found it to be less of a big deal than turning 40. Whereas turning 40 seemed like it really marked the end of "being young," by the time I turned 50, I realized that you're as young as you feel. The wisdom of age made turning 50 feel more like an accomplishment, rather than something to be feared. I feel very good about this time in my life. I adopted my son Zev as an infant six years ago from Guatemala, and he is growing up into a terrific, sweet and delightful little guy who's about to enter First Grade.

I also have fallen in love with a wonderful man, and am very happy — finally in a beautiful relationship. My lover is John Chaffin, originally of Athens, GA. He's a professor of Special Education Law at Nova Southeastern University here in Miami. He's a great guy, and we love to sing and travel together. I also completed a 3-year renovation of a vintage 1930's home in Miami Beach, which I now live in. It was a huge project, but I'm so happy with the way it turned out.

I've been involved in a number of choral singing projects, as well as some local community musical theatre, singing here and there. Had a wonderful visit with Hilary Morgan and her partner Robin when they were in Miami a few months ago running a Marathon. We sat down and played songs at the piano and sang for each other, which we hadn't done since high school. I've had some e-mail correspondence with Abi Chilton, Dick Gordon and Evelyn Turner, and it's been great to catch up with all of them. My dad and younger brother still live in Princeton, and I come up to visit occasionally.

The only sad news is that my mom Zelda Segal passed away about 3 years ago at age 73, from depression which led to suicide. As you can imagine, this was a huge shock and a painful loss. As time has passed, I've found ways to come to terms with it, and to find some peace in remembering all that was beautiful and strong about my mother, as she was a quite a remarkable, creative, outspoken and courageous person, as well as a very devoted mother and grandmother.

Life is most definitely a mixture of the very bitter and the very sweet, and all that falls in between. I've been blessed with much sweetness these days, especially with Zev and John in my life. Much love to all."

In college news: Lia Grigg (Ellen Albert's daughter) is going to Dartmouth; Sarah McDonough is going to Wesleyan; Kyle Brinster is going to Lehigh. Any other college news?

In birthday news: August "50's": Alison Hopfield Liland, August 30 and Shelley Gordon!

I have absolutely no record of any September birthdays in our class! Clearly, my list is missing a few of us, so STEP UP you September birthdays! (Or, possibly, January, 1957 was just brutally cold and, while a great time to be born, maybe not a propitious month to be conceived that year?)

With October comes the 50 year turn-over for some of the youngsters in the class: Amy Stover, October 3; Stephen Mantell; Ruth Barch.

And November: John Joyce, November 17, actually, John turns 51 in 2007, so he is an "oldster!" ... Ralph Brown, November 6; David Beckwith, November 15?

And December: Ellen Albert, almost the baby of the class, December 4.

But the winner is, as far as I can tell: Eric Dunn!! Eric does not turn 50 until February, 2008!

The Class sends its sympathies to Lars Selberg and his family on the death of his father, famed mathematician Atle Selberg. In a note, Lars stated "While the death of my father comes as a great sadness to me, I take comfort in the many years we had, the opportunity for final goodbyes, and that we were all able to be at home with him at the end. Frankly, death rarely comes in sweeter trappings." He also shared a photo (below) taken during a family celebration, adding, "Shortly after this, Ingrid '68 and I took him to Galapagos for his 80th birthday, where he did two landings/hikes and a snorkel trip each day, much to the astonishment of the others on our boat."

(See story page 13).

A distinguished panel of judges, including leaders from the business and military worlds, selected five winners from a broad field of leaders nominated by their companies' chief executive officers. The winners have demonstrated ethical leadership, noteworthy contributions to the development of employees and an ability to consistently deliver outstanding results. The awards were presented at the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, MD as part of the Leadership Excellence Summit, a three-day business leadership conference exploring ethics, integrity and character.

My team is mostly 18 years of age to 24, with the other oldest being two 33-year olds. Yes, I get grief at every stage from these Young Breeds. Our 5-man bowling team has won back-to-back championships.

My son, Nevin, is entering kindergarten. I coach his soccer team, and he will start baseball in the spring. He is insane and insanely adorable. Daughter, Hartley, is an artistic devil. She also dances (Hip-Hop) and plays the piano. They are my precious peapods.

By the time you read this, we will have completed our Walk To Find A Cure regarding diabetes. We were shooting for $10,000 this year! Please go to Hartley's Web site to see how we did. <http://walk.jdrf.org/index.cfm?fuseaction=extranet.personalpage&confirmid=86728421>

From the indomitable Ben Dubrovsky, we hear "Our family has finally moved to what Sarah and Becky refer to as our 'forever house'. Enough bouncing around. We've settled in Lincoln, MA on a woody lot near where Alice grew up and where her folks still live. The highlight is that within a short walk through the woods we can be at a beautiful community pond. Sarah will be starting 2nd grade and Becky will be in kindergarten this fall. We haven't stumbled on any PDS folk up here (we miss having the McCords nearby, like we did in Savannah!). Anyone in the area or passing through should feel free to get in touch. Take it easy."

From the far less indomitable Jonathan Baker, we receive "Jonathan Baker was the guest of Barbra Streisand this summer in Zurich at the opening of her European concert tour. He knows her dog too. He did something with his life." No, he's not kidding. I've seen the pix. But JB hasn't fully explained how all this took place...yet.

Her first non-romance, Women on the Edge of a Nervous Breakthrough, is still on the shelves; her next release from Avon/HarperCollins is out in May 2008. [Muna, I am reading it...I am enjoying it...but I'm gonna have to read it in the bathroom. When the Monsters go to bed, I'm too tired to read like a normal human being does...sorry.]

Nick Donath writes in to share the following..."I am avoiding eating my fiber cereals in the morning because it gives me gas all day long. I also think I need my eyes checked because I seem to be playing tennis by sound only...not to mention my knees and back are stiff. I have paged Dr. Gordon Rubinfeld a couple of times, recently, with no response. So...Gordon...if you are reading this, please call me. Other than that, everything is great."

Nick also adds that he spent a lovely afternoon with John Hall in Vegas. One major topic of discussion was the recent trip to China, of John and wife May, to adopt their new, baby girl! Nick, of course, can only recall that her name is cute, so fill us in John and May. And a hearty congratulations! On a far less joyous note, we offer our condolences to the entire Donath family as Nick's Uncle Tim, whom many of us knew well, passed away recently in Arizona.

our 25th reunion. Some of our classmates may remember that I was unable to make it, as I had just been diagnosed with metastatic neuroendocrine cancer and had started chemo treatments, which continued throughout the summer. I have to say that the highlight of the summer was hearing from so many of my PDS classmates. The phone calls, cards, and e-mails people sent were a huge ray of sunshine during an otherwise foggy time. I just scrolled back through my old e-mails and found the following thread, which was prompted by a wonderful card (yes, snail mail!) I received from Roz Waskow Hansen:

Kristy: "Thanks for reminding me to join the Yahoo group [established by Linda Yuan Tookey so she could share reunion photos]. The pictures are great. The most striking thing to me, at this point, is that I have the same hairstyle as Mark Sweeney, Andy Charen, John Denny, Jon Drezner, Lawrence Shannon, Marcus Maryk, and so many other guys from our class. My hair started falling out a few days ago, so I just got it all shaved off. I have some lovely wigs that a friend of my mother's sent me; when I first wore one, a few of my friends said, 'Wow, nice haircut!'"

Roz: "Great to know that your sense of humor remains intact. At least you are in good company regarding the guys. If it gets too hot for a wig, you can go with the Rhoda Morgenstern scarf and big glasses look. As a matter of fact, it's quite chic and trendy now. Just look at Nicole Ritchie and the like. Also not a bad time to try a variety of looks...blonde, redhead, cornrows, so many options!"

(Roz and all the guys mentioned above: I hope you don't mind my having shared that, but words cannot describe the impact of such exchanges on the psyche. Also, I should note that the other day I was wearing a Harvard sweatshirt and Adidas track pants, and my husband remarked that with my newly curly hair, I'm starting to bear a striking resemblance to Mark Goodman. Finally, I'm happy to report that lest anyone get the wrong image in mind, I'm looking – and probably feeling, although it's hard to know – far more robust than Nicole Ritchie. Thank you very much!

Anyway, thanks to Mandy, Jane, Eva, Laura J., Tebo, Kevin, Axe, Goody, and others for getting in touch. Even though I couldn't make it in person, I was able to enjoy an ongoing reunion from the comfort of my couch. More recently, I've kept busy helping my brother Trey (class of 1982) establish the Seven Below Arts Initiative, an artists-in-residence and arts education program headquartered at The Barn, his former recording studio in the Vermont hills. It's very fulfilling building a new nonprofit program from the ground up, particularly one focused on such a positive and celebratory activity.

now getting ready to move, but it has come a long way since the floods of last year. If you're up on that part of the Delaware, please stop by. We have a great fishing spot out front and the Black Bass Inn is just down the street!

I wanted to thank everyone who came to the reunion last year. What a great turn out from far and wide! Next time, we'll be more organized, especially if someone else decides to organize it!

Please send me your news and I promise I'll make this column a habit.

3, 2007, Ted and John Short. Both are doing well and so are their sisters Lucy, 4; and Maggie, 2. As you well know twins are a real challenge and at my age, with two preschoolers in tow, even more so. I am just trying to get through these first few months with my sanity intact. Keeping a strong sense of humor is very important as you also probably know.

My husband Dave and I moved from Seattle to Lebanon, OH about two years ago and are enjoying it so far. We keep busy with soccer and swimming lessons for the kids and I am still trying to keep in shape, though I do not get much chance for field hockey anymore and have switched to running and triathlons in the past few years. I hope all our fellow alumni are well.

Now I'm in Seoul studying Confucianism at a school that has been teaching this stuff for a little over 1,000 years. Anyways, though I'm about to complete a one-year intensive course in the Four Books, I'm realizing that one never really finishes studying this stuff.

Now that I've put off the "real world" for so long, I'm about to dive head first into our family's business here in Asia. We manufacture and trade steel. For a history major, this is pretty foreign to me but I'm learning the ropes quickly.

Hello all. After 6 years of fun and adventures in Europe, My wife, Karen, and I have decided to move back to the US. My time here in Britain has been amazing and I've been fortunate to have made friends with people from all over the world here. Despite becoming a British citizen last year, a fantastic job opportunity is bringing me back to the US. Personally, I am looking forward to ample parking spaces, better customer service, less taxes, and cheaper gasoline; which is currently at $7.21 per gallon. I will miss good chocolate, proper ale, TV with less (and on certain channels, no) commercials, smaller cars, and the history. For example, our house was built around 1720, but is still considered "NEW" for insurance purposes. I'm looking forward to getting reacquainted with old friends that I haven't seen in a long while.

Mandy Rabinowitz writes:

Once again it is time to send a little update as to how everyone has been keeping busy in the last months. Since I last wrote we all attended an amazing reunion on the grounds of Colross. I must admit, as I fully expected, it was wonderful to see everyone who did attend. I think we can all agree that removing the bartender from our party was actually a great idea – as we all then got to mix our own concoctions which ended up leading all of us to the Ivy, and a late night dinner at Hoagie Haven, some things about Princeton will never change – and for that I think we are all grateful. I wish I could give more updates about what people are doing, but in the months since I have sadly forgotten – that's what happens when you get old apparently. A few of those in attendance, Reed Black, Dave

Bromwich (who gave another rousing speech to rival graduation), Rob Goldberg, Jordan Cooper, Janie Egan Bertelson, Louise Sturges, Charles Plohn, Ali Johnston, Mike Zarzecki, Jeff Schor, Tom Anderman, Ameesh Shah, Kelly Hoffer Atherstone, Hillary Harris, Cynthia Alvarez Biediger, Ellyn Rajfer, Abi Harper, Julie Hilimire and myself. If I accidentally left anyone out – my apologies We are after all on the cusp of 30!

So I can recount what has been passed along by Louise Sturges – who is quickly becoming my replacement. Once again she provided ample information on the whereabouts of our classmates. Louise writes: "I'm in London right now for my first opening abroad. I had two paintings in a group show here that opened on Friday at the Paradise Row Gallery in Whitechapel, East London. I sold one of the paintings before I even arrived! Marking the first painting to be in someone's private collection, who isn't related by blood. In other news I have finally completed my program at the International Center of Photography. The year culminated in a group show, which opened at the end of June. I had two large photographs and a 5x5 foot painting on display. Two weeks ago, I curated and hung a group show of 6 different photographers in the lobby of the Vortex Gallery in Chelsea and I am starting to prepare for another one which will open in middle of November. Oh, and I have started up a commercially angled photo team with my friend Xabier Tudela, called xL productions, and we had our first photo shoot just before I left. Other than that I am looking forward to a much-needed holiday next week up in Maine and a trip out to Santa Fe to visit old professors and eat some green chili with my mum.

As per others, Gayatri Bhatnagar is in Berkeley busying herself with her ayurvedic practices and acupuncture needles. Last time we spoke she was rushing between her two jobs at a spa and a clinic, respectively. Mariana Sparre and her brother were sweet enough to come to my opening at the International Center of Photography. Mariana is in Lambertville and working for artspan.com in New Hope. Ali Johnston was kind enough to house sit my cat when I was in Los Angeles this spring, after having run into each other in the darkroom at ICP. She organized and curated a group show at the gallery at Lawrenceville School in June. I believe that she is back out west now, enjoying more photography and the outdoors of the bay area. We are both pleased and looking forward to the PDS alumni art show coming up this winter." Thanks Louise!!!!

The August 14 article states: "Clean Elections levels the playing field of financial resources available to competent candidates. In New Jersey, incumbents with established name recognition and networks of support routinely outspend their challengers, often by an order of magnitude of ten to one, or more...To be sure, the Clean Elections program isn't perfect and must be carefully adapted to suit New Jersey's peculiar political climate. Her plan is to study abroad in Rome for the upcoming fall semester. She loved being an RA last year and is applying to be a dorm president for her senior year.

This summer Kyle Boatwright studied in Italy for six weeks, which turned out to be a fabulous experience. She also ran into Jim Butler on the street outside of her apartment in Siena, and later got to see Shira Concool '06 (who is having a great time at Yale) in Florence. She hopes all her old classmates have survived the sophomore slump...

Rajiv Mallipudi lived in Baltimore this summer, and stayed busy with biomedical engineering by researching microarrays which incorporate virus stamping. He's settled into a new apartment, and also finds it hilarious that Saya Russell now lives literally right above Subway, where he dines daily. He continues to play club ice hockey for Johns Hopkins, and last season his team was hilariously crushed by George Washington, which was led by the legendary PDS ice hockey captain, scholar athlete and goof-ball, Will Denise. And although he seriously wanted to, and could have, he did not take his teammate's sister to his hockey formal because he remembered how mad Jon Siani '06 got about that during his senior year prom. He's also still acting and directing in school plays, recently TA'd a stand-up comedy class and did a

Hannah Waters spent her summer interning at the Rachel Carson National Wildlife Refuge in Wells, MN, doing environmental research. She's also been spending a great deal of time on boats, leading scenic tours for tourists along the coast. She will spend the upcoming semester in Rome studying Latin with Hannah Heller, although they are in different programs.

Brett Gallagher, majoring in mechanical engineering at the University of British Columbia, B.C. Tanvi Goel also recently managed to get her driver's license. It may have come in handy during her family's move to Houston, TX, this summer. The Goel family relocated to Houston in August, after a 5-year stay in New Jersey. (Before her freshman year at PDS, Tanvi had just arrived in New Jersey from the United Arab Emirates.) PDS will miss Tanvi's two brothers, who are rising sophomores. Tanvi, who returns to Penn engineering school in the fall, still plans to make some visits to the Princeton area while in college.

Although Jeff Moll's father moved to California, Jeff reports that he can still be reached at 22 Florence Lane in Princeton. (Which, research reveals, is his girlfriend Tae Richmond's house.) Recently, however, Jeff and Tae have been spending time studying art history in Rome.

Jeff writes: "I just returned a few weeks ago after studying in Rome, Italy for five weeks with my girlfriend, Tae. The program was centered on two art history courses covering all of Roman civilization, ancient to modern. We had class on-site everyday, which was perfect for me because my experience with art history has always been very personal, and that made standing in the center of Bernini's piazza at St. Peter's or getting lost in the beautifully winding canals of Venice on a weekend trip so exhilarating and rewarding. After a short vacation in the south of Italy following the program, I headed back home to Princeton, NJ."

For the rest of the summer, Jeff has been working with a lawyer in Philadelphia, "proof-reading and reviewing securities contracts, and trying to make friends with the pages upon pages of SEC regulations."

Other '06 members who traveled over the summer include Sabrina Basu, Kiran Vepuri, Neil Sharma, Charlie Turndorf, and Ellen Cook. Sabrina went to Eastern Europe while Kiran and Neil went to India. Kiran tells me that he visited his relatives in Southern India, and that he hosted Neil on a tour around his family's town. Charlie went on a six-week trip to Tibet this summer. This is Charlie's second sojourn in Tibet. Finally, Ellen spent the summer in London taking classes at the London School of Economics with some other students from Villanova.

Jon Hofmann also told me about a vacation that he took. He and Sarah Martin went to visit Cait McPhaden and Mike Rappaport in Miami over Spring Break. Jon writes: "We swam with dolphins, toured South Beach and ate stone crabs. We all had a great time and are planning another visit this year!"

After returning from Florida, Sarah Martin went to work on her father's State Senate campaign. Her father, Bob Martin, is running as a Republican against Shirley Turner in the 15th district this fall. Sarah's summer job includes trying to get out the vote by making sure young people are registered.

Arvind Thambidurai has a summer job as well, one that provides him with a lot of shampoo. He is working in the IT department for cosmetics giant L'Oreal. Arvind reports that his job includes "big responsibilities and big discounts." Arvind also reports that he has access to the passwords for important L'Oreal servers. To Arvind's delight, his boss went on vacation in the middle of the summer, so he was left with his own office for a long period of time. When he was not working, Arvind used his office to sleep and read Harry Potter.

Class of '06 Assistant Dean Barbara Walker did not get a summer job, since she already has a steady job during the year. Instead, Mrs. Walker went back to college and took a summer class in Impressionism and Post-Impressionism at Princeton University. Mrs. Walker says that she hopes the Princeton class will help her teach her Art and Literature course at PDS this fall, and recommends a visit to the Princeton

Art Museum to anybody who is on campus.

Amanda Levy also went to school over the summer, trying to get closer to her degree in chemical biomolecular engineering at Penn. She is waiting for the winter to come again so that she can rejoin her ice hockey team, which plays other schools in the Delaware Valley Collegiate Hockey Conference. Amanda is proud of the fact that her coach was "almost in the NHL." Her coach, having not made the NHL, likes to throw parties for the ice hockey team. When not partying, her team is pretty mean on the ice. Amanda reports that the team finished third in the Delaware Valley conference and she herself placed sixth in the league for defenders.

Aaron Sashihara hasn't been getting much of a break this summer after graduation from the Infantry Training Battalion at the School of Infantry in Jacksonville, NC. Aaron is now a member of the First Battalion, Ninth Marines, otherwise known as the "Walking Dead." (Ho Chi Minh coined the nickname during the Vietnam War.)

Aaron writes: "I graduated SOI ITB and went to 'the fleet' 23 February. SOI ITB was our first real introduction to the art of killing people (firing a rifle on a range at boot camp isn't exactly the same as clearing houses with high-explosive grenades and live rounds); 'the fleet' — where combat-ready Marines are — expanded upon the rudimentary skills we learned in SOI ITB.

"Since February, we've been gearing up for deployment. Actually, it's really all we look forward to besides libo (liberty — time off). You practice killing targets for so long, that (this might sound sick) you really want to go and do it for real."

As of now, Aaron is scheduled to deploy to Ramadi, a Sunni city in Iraq's western Anbar Province that has been a gathering point for Sunni insurgents. Aaron doesn't yet know when he will deploy, but thinks it will be around February 2008.

Aaron added: "I miss school a lot (never thought I'd say that). But being in the fleet Marine force has given me invaluable perspective on the value of things

The newest members of the PDS alumni community celebrated their Last Hurrah Barbecue in August before heading off to new adventures.

— and, as cliché as it sounds, I really appreciate how important education is now. I guess I kind of took it for granted at PDS."

Finally, I (Mendy Fisch) returned from a year in Israel in June. I studied in a yeshiva, gave computer lessons to new immigrants, and volunteered for the Magen David Adom (Red Jewish Star) ambulance services. Working on MDA, I staffed the night shift (11 p.m. to 7 a.m.) since the Israeli volunteers liked to staff the day shift. Although I had to pass a course that taught me about all sorts of medical emergencies, my main job was dealing with the collapsible bed in the back of the ambulance. I put patients on it, took patients off of it, changed the sheets, morphed it into a chair, wheeled it around, and put it back in the ambulance. I even took it into the dispatcher room and slept on it when there were no calls.

The coolest call that I had was probably a Bedouin lady who was giving birth. When we got there, her husband's other wives were already helping her give birth, so we didn't have to do much. When we needed to take her to the hospital afterwards, though, I had to hold the baby, which made me really nervous because I was afraid I was going to drop it. The fact that the Bedouin family didn't live near any paved roads didn't make my job easier, but luckily I didn't drop the baby and we all made it to the hospital in time for the placenta to come out. The dumbest thing I did while working on MDA was I accidentally hit a patient over the head with a bed guard. The beds in Soroka Hospital had collapsible bed guards that I had to put up after moving patients onto the beds, and I accidentally hit a lady with one three times. She was not happy about it.

This summer, Adam Savitzky and I have been working on a website design business. We did some work for the internet startup Admish, which Jeremy Johnson '02 founded. I start Princeton this fall, so I am hoping to be around for more PDS events and to see other '06ers when they are around Princeton during the year. Thanks to everyone who sent me updates! You can send me more updates at mendyman@gmail.com.

Dan D'Argenio writes: Spent summer doing mathematics research — searching for a perfect parallelepiped.

Seth Stein spent three weeks this summer teaching English in Quetzaltenango, Guatemala before returning to the University of Rochester.

Amelia Baxter-Stoltzfus shared her belief in "permanent change" in an essay produced for National Public Radio's "I believe" series. To read her thoughts, visit www.npr.org

Class of 2007 - Senior Awards

Congratulations to all!

Alumni Service Award: Kevin Suyu

Kevin recorded more than 650 hours of community service during his high school career, but probably has done closer to 800-900 hours.

Sacks-Wilner Award: Katie Hartnack

This award recognizes a member of the graduating class who has shown resolution, courage and self-command, a student whose involvement with learning and commitment to excellence has been a notable aspect during upper school years.

Woodbridge Award: Mark Millner

This memorial award is presented each year to a graduating senior who has exhibited outstanding leadership qualities in developing class unity and spirit.

Edward J. Bloustein Distinguished Scholars Program:

Dan Gentile, Emily Kossow, Jenny LaMotte, Anna Liu, GJ Melendez-Torres, Andrea Spector, Ben Turndorf, Eden Williams, Joseph Yellin

English Award: Alec Gabin

Alec's enthusiasm for writing and literature is reflected in his generosity as a peer editor, his contributions to cymbals, and his participation in various poetry readings on campus and beyond.

Writing Award: Margaret Curran

Unafraid to follow where memory and the unconscious lead her, Margaret is a playful and poignant writer of poetry and the lyrical essay.

History Award: Yannick LeJacq

Having excelled in challenging courses offered by the department, Yannick impressed all who have worked with him with his intellectual and maturity.

Math Award: Andrea Spector

After finishing the PDS curriculum, Andrea completed on-line course work from Stanford University that includes multivariable calculus and ordinary differential equations.

Computer Award: Zach Miller

Zach has been one of the top students in Java programming, and was instrumental in creating a number of complex programs, and served as a PDSnet sysop for the past two years.

Hubert Alyea: Joe Yellin

Joe's knowledge in chemistry is far-reaching as is his willingness to attempt to understand the nuances of the atomic world.

Biology Award: GJ Melendez-Torres, Anna Liu

Both recipients have sought out understanding, found beauty in the relationships inherent in life's various forms – challenging themselves within an exacting curriculum – and dedicating themselves to the mastery of their discipline.

Chemistry Award: Andrea Spector

A keen observer, able to manipulate data, and possessing the intellect to find the abstract hidden meanings in that data, Andrea is a young woman of few words, but of strong conviction.

Physics Award: Oliver Elbert

Oliver's remarkable sense of patience, discipline, and clarity of thought has enabled him to gracefully and creatively find solutions to problems.

Elizabeth Fine Latin Award: Hugh Wynne

Hugh reads, translates, and speaks Latin with remarkable accuracy and subtlety — e-mailing, writing yearbook dedications and even trash-talking on the soccer field in Latin.

French Award: Ani Perold and Emily Kossow

Both recipients of this year's French Award have distinguished themselves throughout their language careers by their love for the language and the French culture, and, above all, by their passion for French literature.

Spanish Award: Andrew Elkin

A proficient and charismatic speaker both inside and outside of the classroom, and a talented and accomplished student of Spanish literature, Andrew has excelled at the highest levels of the PDS program.

Chinese Award: Ben Turndorf

Ben has shown great passion about learning not only the language, but also about understanding the culture of the oldest continuous civilization.

Dual-Language Award: GJ Melendez-Torres

G.J. is an intellectually capacious, passionate student who, having begun Latin in the 7th grade, read Virgil as a tenth grader and, as a junior, enrolled simultaneously in Latin, Spanish Literature and Ancient Greek.

Visual Arts Award: Rachel Heller and Margaret Curran

Through endless hours both in the studio and outside, Rachel and Margart pursued their unique visions and skills through different materials, subjects and approaches.

Bencze Award: Krissy Garber

This scholarship is presented to a dedicated art student in the senior class, whose intention is to pursue further education in the field of visual arts.

Photography Award: Kristina Budelis and Eden Williams

Kristina and Eden are recognized for demonstrating an extraordinary commitment to photography.

Art Purchase Award: Yannick LeJacq

Yannick's outstanding photographs have been selected for many juried exhibitions and earned him repeated awards and recognition.

Digital Media Award: Devon Ershow,

Joey Horowitz and Krissy Garber

These award recipients demonstrated technical ability, a commitment to storytelling, and an unwavering interest and passion for the capacity of film to communicate complex elements of human experience.

Ceramics Award: Jacqui Bowen

and Elisabeth Morgan

Both Jacqui and Elisabeth have mastered their craft and create with a compelling artistic voice.

Architecture Award: Chase Langdon

Chase clearly understands what works and what doesn't. His informative insight into each person's process and models changed critiques into dynamic roundtable discussions.

Music Award: Olivia Stoker,

Maddie Ferguson and Alec Gabin

These award recipients are active singers and/or composers, participating in the PDS Choir, the Madrigal Singers, productions and the a cappella program, as well as focusing on an independent study in music.

Performing Arts Award: Devon Ershow

Through his intense and unfailing commitment, Devon became a leader in the program and set the standard for others to follow. He is an individual of tremendous talent and generosity of spirit.

PDS Scholar Athlete: Nicole Auerbach

and Kevin Suyu

This award recognizes stellar academic achievement in the classroom and exceptional performance on the athletic field.

Frankie K. Sportsmanship Award:

Ali Hiller and Mark Millner

Ali and Mark are student-athletes who have been exemplary in terms of sportsmanship and athletic achievement throughout their high school years. They place the team above their own individual goals and have displayed integrity, commitment, leadership, and a true love for sports.

Gold P Girl: *Katie Briody and Keely LangdonGold P Boy: Bam Miller

The Upper School's Gold P Award celebrates sportsmanship, citizenship, team participation, and excellence in athletics.

Cum Laude List: Andrea Spector, Joe Yellin, Ben Turndorf, GJ Melendez-Torres, Anna Liu, Emily Kossow, Dan Gentile, Eden Williams, Bam Miller, Olivia Stoker, Jenny LaMotte, Nicole Auerbach, Andrew Elkin, Meg Francfort, Alicia Siani, Yannick LeJacq, Nina Crouse and David Coghlan.

Each year, the PDS Chapter of the Cum Laude Society inducts a number of students whose academic performance and citizenship fulfill this national honor society's guiding principles of excellence, justice, and honor.

Alumni Weekend 2008 | May 16-17

Join Princeton Day School, Princeton Country Day School and Miss Fine's School classmates for Alumni Weekend 2008. Our celebration features all your favorite events – plus tours of our new arts wing, expanded libraries and fitness center. Come see how PDS is building on the MFS and PCD tradition of excellence. See Journal page 64 for more details.
