An Incredible Line-Up for Imagine the Possibilities

Sixteen years after its inception, Imagine the Possibilities has doubled in size and scope. This program, made possible through the John D. Wallace, Jr. '78 Memorial Guest Artist Series Fund, allows visiting artists to spend two days on campus in a variety of situations, from presenting demonstrations to both small and large groups to leading workshops. This April, students in all divisions met and worked with an amazing group of artists.

Steve Jenkins who has written and illustrated more than twenty picture books for young readers, including the Caldecott Honor Medal-winning What Do You Do with a Tail Like This, shared stories of his ongoing interest in animals and photos from his childhood, as well as his artistic process as he assembles his amazing collages. The renowned author and illustrator also exhibited his works at the Anne Reid '72 Art Gallery.

Carmen Agra Deedy, a renowned storyteller as well as the author of eight children's books, including the New York Times Bestseller, 14 Cows for America, presented different stories of her childhood to the Lower School, Middle School, and Upper School students—all of them mesmerizing.

Steve Jenkins

Pam Munoz Ryan has written more than thirty books for young readers, from picture books for very young readers to young adult novels, including the award-winning Esperanza Rising, and shared her process with the Princeton Day School community.

Our students and faculty will not soon forget these inspiring interactions, which are a highlight of the school year for all.

Greg Mankiw

Leading Economist Greg Mankiw Delivers the Anne Rothrock Lecture

Princeton Day School was honored to welcome N. Gregory Mankiw of Harvard University to speak at the annual Anne Rothrock Lecture in April. Juniors and seniors, as well as members of the community, attended the lecture entitled "The Challenges Facing U.S. Monetary and Fiscal Policy." Professor Mankiw is a prolific writer and regular participant in academic and policy debates whose articles have been published in scholarly journals as well as mainstream media. His two popular textbooks, Macroeconomics and Principles of Economics, have been used in PDS economics classes for years.

Lisa Surace
Named Interim Head of Lower School

In May, Princeton Day School announced that Lisa Surace would be the Interim Head of the Lower School. Head of School Paul J. Stellato remarked to the faculty and staff, "Princeton Day School is fortunate to have in its midst an educator of Lisa's stature. I know you will join me in welcoming her as she continues and expands her efforts on behalf of our children, our families, and our school."

Ms. Surace began her role as a learning specialist at Princeton Day School eight months prior to her new appointment, serving as the learning specialist for grades Pre-K to 12, as well as the primary counselor in the lower school.

A graduate of Princeton University, Ms. Surace received her master's and doctoral degrees from New York University. She completed her studies in an APA-certified program in school/child psychology, and wrote her dissertation on The Student/Teacher Relationship as a Predictor of School Performance.

Before joining Princeton Day School, Ms. Surace served as an adjunct professor at Baruch College, Western Connecticut State University, and Fairfield University, and as a K-5 school psychologist in the Westport, Connecticut, school system. In addition, she joined the psychology staff of the Cincinnati Children's Hospital Medical Center in Ohio, and then played a similar role for the Madeira school system where she ultimately served as Director of Student Services for the Madeira schools.

In her new role at PDS, Ms. Surace will continue her work as learning specialist in grades Pre-K to 4, in collaboration with the lower school learning resource center. More specifically, she will assist in the coordination and management of students with educational evaluations. Mr. Stellato noted, "at each turn, and with every new responsibility, Lisa has distinguished herself as an advocate and ally of students and families."

Blue & White Day

In May, our entire student body celebrated Blue and White Day, a PDS tradition. From the PreK-12 relay race to the tug of war, good fun was had by all our Panthers.

Paul J. Stellato Awarded Klingenstein Fellowship

Princeton Day School was delighted to announce that Head of School Paul J. Stellato was awarded a Klingenstein Fellowship, a prestigious award for heads of school from Columbia University's Teachers College in May. The Fellowship is for the January 2012 Heads of Schools Program, and Mr. Stellato will spend two weeks at Columbia University participating in the classes and planned activities that comprise the program. Board Chair C. Treby McLaughlin Williams '80 remarked "this is a wonderful honor for PDS, and offers Mr. Stellato an extraordinary opportunity to engage with professors and peers on topics of leadership and education."

Meet Our New Peer Leaders

For more than 25 years, the Princeton Day School Peer Leadership program has brought together dedicated faculty and carefully selected seniors to teach, mentor and guide ninth graders into Upper School. Throughout the academic year, peer leaders conduct weekly discussions with freshmen on topics such as peer pressure, academic concerns, drug and alcohol abuse, and relationships. Peer leaders also host a family get-together to discuss conflict mediation between parents and adolescents. The result is a strong sense of community that endures long after commencement. The following seniors were chosen to be our 2011-2012 Peer Leaders: Nick Banks, Jenna Fritz, Connor Gibson, Matt Gluck, Mikey Gray, Conor Hassett, Cara Hume, Garret Jensen, Zach Lawrence, Maddie Miller, Annie Nyce, Carly Ozarowski, Eric Powers, Peter Powers, Adithi Rajagopalan, Callie Schneider, Charlotte Williams, and Paul Zetterberg.

PDS Mock Trial Team Triumphs

The talented mock trial team from Princeton Day School won the Mercer County Mock Trial Tournament in February, defeating fourteen competing teams including Lawrenceville, Peddie, Stuart County Day, and Pennington. "This is third time since 2006 that PDS has won the county tournament. Over that six year period, Princeton Day School has a 20-2 record in county competition, the best of any school in Mercer County," remarked Upper School History Chair George Sanderson, who heads the team. The team went on to finish third in the state in March.

Chariot Race

The Middle School students designed, built and raced their own chariots during Foreign Language Week this spring.

Two Middle School Teams Invited to Destination Imagination Globals

Last April, four teams from Princeton Day School competed in the 2011 New Jersey Destination Imagination Competition at Robbinsville High School. At day's end, PDS's two sixth grade teams came in second place in their respective challenges, and earned a place in the Destination Imagination Global Competition in Knoxville, Tennessee in May. Destination Imagination is an educational program in which student teams solve open-ended challenges and present their solutions at tournaments. Our two teams thrived at Globals, and in the words of Middle School Math teacher Arlene Cohen, "they had the time of their lives!"

Sustainability Update at Princeton Day School

- This past April, PDS Upper School English teacher and Sustainability Coordinator Liz Cutler received the Richard Rotter Award for Excellence in Environmental Education at the Annual Meeting of the Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed. The award is given each year to an area teacher who demonstrates a high level of enthusiasm and commitment to environmental education. Ms. Cutler also led the successful effort to make PDS a River-Friendly School, earning in May a Bronze Level River-Friendly Certification from the Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association. To top off a wonderful season of accomplishments, Ms. Cutler was asked to be one of nine Faculty Fellows (chosen from faculty nationwide) for the Student Climate and Conservation (Sc3) Congress run by the Green Schools Alliance and the National Conservation Training Center in Washington this past summer. The mission of the Sc3 Congress is to empower outstanding student and faculty environmental leaders with the skills, knowledge and tools necessary to address natural resource challenges and better serve their schools and communities.

- Princeton Day School Upper School student group EnACT together with PDS Sustainability Coordinator Liz Cutler hosted the first-ever PDS Eco-Conference, "Our Future, Our Challenge," in April. Nearly 100 students from all over the state attended to hear keynote speaker Dr. Emily Carter of Princeton University and several other notable experts on environmental issues and methods to take action. The conference, fully organized and run by PDS students, was an incredible display of students taking the lead and directly addressing the environmental issues that we face.
- Princeton Day School welcomed a small flock of chickens to the garden area this May. The chickens, housed in a modern, solar equipped coop alongside the organic garden, have been integrated into 1st, 3rd, 4th, 9th grade curriculum, and each lay an egg per day!

- The basin alongside the Lower School playground is undergoing a transformation into a meadow of wildflowers. The site, known as Kristy's Meadow, was dedicated to the memory of Kristy Anastasio Manning '81 at Alumni Weekend in May.

- Princeton Day School has hired Pam Flory to be the full-time Gardening Coordinator and Teacher beginning this September.

Introducing Farm Week at PDS!

This spring, Pretty Brook Farm became the site of PDS's inaugural Farm Week, a newly created program in the Lower School that offers all students the opportunity to visit with a variety of farm animals, including a horse, sheep, a nursing lamb, and goats. The program served to support and deepen the Lower School science and social studies curricula, as well as promote stewardship in our youngest students. An "Open Barn" event allowed parents and faculty to learn about the new program, to meet the animals and to brush up on some of the history of our gorgeous barn.

Each year at Grandparents & Special Friends Day, our second graders weave and unweave the Maypole, much to the delight of onlookers.

Grandparents & Special Friends Day

The Great Giveaway at PDS

On the last days of school in June, Princeton Day School students collected more than 350 binders, 150 spiral notebooks, 120 books, and seven full boxes of miscellaneous school supplies for HomeFront, a nonprofit agency serving Mercer County's homeless families. The PDS Great Giveaway was organized by the Upper School Community Council, the student group EnAct and Sustainability Coordinator Liz Cutler. Students from all three divisions participated this year, donating items in good condition and recycling vast amounts of paper headed for the landfill.

Princeton Day School Debuts at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival!

Twenty-nine PDS students, ranging from sophomores to graduating seniors, boarded the plane to the U.K. this August to perform the play 12 Incompetent Men (And Women!) by Ian McWethy at the internationally renowned Edinburgh Fringe Festival in Scotland.

Princeton Day School had been invited to perform at the Festival by the American High School Theatre Festival, which runs in conjunction with the Edinburgh Fringe Festival. Top high school theatre programs are nominated by state, regional, and national theatre organizations, as well as university theatre professors, to participate in AHSTF based on their most recent bodies of work, awards, community involvement, philosophies, and recommendations.

12 Incompetent Men (And Women), a humorous re-imagining of the American classic, 12 Angry Men, was an unequivocal hit. The production, directed by Artist-in-Residence Stan Cahill, was presented four times at the Grand Theater at Sturgeon's Hall during the festival, where our students performed alongside professionals from around the globe, including the likes of John Malkovich and Julian Sands.

Uniquely, students and professionals are judged on the same scale at Fringe, with normal amenities, such as sound, lighting and costumes, stripped down to the basics. When the wonderful UK reviews began to roll in, the PDS community was quickly notified along with daily updates, photos, and videos via Facebook, Twitter, and a well-maintained student blog entitled "Incompetents Abroad." Between performances, our PDS students experienced the Fringe Festival as spectators, seeing 20 to 30 shows, and craving more.

This was Princeton Day School's first journey to the Edinburgh Fringe Festival and Mr. Cahill's fourth. The school community banded together to fund this adventure, an opportunity Mr. Cahill has called "transformative." He went on to remark that the students "were humbled by the breadth of experience they gained in a couple of short weeks."

Spring Performing Arts Festival

In May, the Spring Performing Arts Festival featured a vast array of student-produced music, theater, dance, poetry, film and the premiere of Ian McWethy's 12 Incompetent Men (and Women!).

Eighth Grade Musical, "Oklahoma!"

The Class of 2015 gave us a memorable production of the musical "Oklahoma" this May.

Princeton Day School Athletics Fall 2011

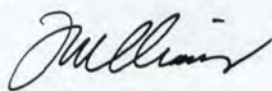

As a new member of the Princeton Day School community, I have to say that I'm extremely excited by the opportunities this school year presents. I'm also impressed by the level of support I've been given by the entire school community. PDS has a strong, proud tradition of athletics excellence and I plan to continue that tradition as your new Director of Athletics.

Our fall seasons have started well and our teams are defending championships in boys soccer, cross country, girls tennis, and girls soccer. The teams have a lot of new faces since many seniors were a part of those championship teams in 2010-11. Although young, our coaches are confident that our teams will be right in the hunt again this year.

We have all of our schedules online at www.pds.org and invite members of the PDS community to come out and support our Panthers. I hope that current families as well as our alumni and their families will find the time to visit our campus and take in a few games. You will love the experience.

PDS has embraced me and my family, and I look forward to getting to know you all as our school year progresses. I am anticipating great things in the upcoming seasons.

Go Panthers!

Middle School Athletics Growing in Leaps and Bounds

This past year, Princeton Day School made the decision to add a track and field team for 7th and 8th grade student to round out the athletic offerings in the Middle School. The brand new PDS Middle School track and field team ended their season on a high this spring: high jumping, high vaulting, high energy and plenty of high spirits.

"We had a blast," says Mark Adams, who is head coach of the team, department head of health and PE at PDS, and a former track competitor. Adams, who was joined by assistant coaches Rome Campbell and KellyAnn Westgate, reported that the turnout was strong; almost 30 boys and girls signed up for the new team.

The team competed against some well-established track and field teams including Grover, Pennington School, Wardlaw-Hartridge, Timberlane, and Fisher in Ewing, the last two middle schools fielding close to 100 students on their respective teams. The PDS team competed in events including the 100-, 200-, 400-, and 800-meter dashes, 4x100 relay, high jump, long jump, 110-meter hurdles, shot put, discus, and the mile. Many students placed well and earned some medals—even some silver ones. Adams was pleased with the team's results: "We had some great competition, with good performances from the kids. I highlighted to the kids at the end of the season that we got to set lots of records," he chuckles.

The creation of the track team was supported by many parents and especially by Head of Middle School Steve Hancock, with the recognition that it would fill a current need that had emerged in Middle School sports at PDS. Adams adds, "The beauty of track is that we had plenty of kids that just did discus or shot put or ran. The variety of events of track really met the needs and talents of lots of different students." Having successfully made the hurdle of its inaugural season, the team looks forward to an even stronger finish next spring!

SPRING 2011 SPORTS NOTES

great
panther!*

Varsity Baseball • As defending state champions, the PDS varsity baseball team knew it would be difficult to repeat last year's glory. The team began the season with an inexperienced pitching staff and six new position players. Everyday, however, the team worked hard and continued to improve. They fought through some key injuries and played well in spurts. The team had big late-season wins over cross-town rival Princeton and a dramatic come-from-behind win over West Windsor North on senior day. Seniors Skye Samse and Jon Walker were All-State selections finishing off outstanding high school careers. Junior Sean McCoy and sophomore BJ Dudeck were honorable mention All-State selections. With a number of returning players and a new commitment to the game, the future looks even better for PDS baseball!

with a number of big showings as the team beat cross-town rivals, the Hun School, for the first time in more than ten years as well as beating Pennsylvania powerhouse Chestnut Hill in an away game in the rain. Post-season awards honored seven players with All-Prep and Bianchi Division recognitions. The 2011 varsity lacrosse team will say goodbye to six seniors but is looking forward to the strong and talented group of freshmen that will be joining the program. Go Panthers!

Boys' Tennis

• Midseason, we had several excellent wins that improved our stats to an even record of wins and losses. Junior Matt Kilgore avenged a loss from earlier in the season against Sahag Kohli of Lawrence High School to lead us to a team victory over the school. The same week, our senior Max Gebhardt avenged a loss against Pennington's first singles player to lead our team to a win over previously undefeated Pennington. We were pleased with the excellent competition we had all season, with four doubles teams making the varsity. Senior Meade Atkeson and juniors Jeff Strauss, Oren Karsen, and Brendan Clune were instrumental in leading the team to compete intensely. We also saw the rise of underclassmen DJ Modzelewski and Adam Strauss-Goldfarb who regularly competed in the varsity line-up. It was a season of great competition, camaraderie, and learning for our team.

Girls' Varsity Lacrosse

• The girls' lacrosse season was a very successful one. The team finished with an 11-7 record. Led by an experienced and very talented senior class, this team played in the semifinals of the MCT and the Prep A State tournaments. They consistently demonstrated outstanding skills, teamwork and sportsmanship. Highlights included wins over local rivals, a team from the UK, and a prep team from Maryland. The future looks bright for girls' lacrosse at PDS. Best wishes to the members of the class of 2011—we will look forward to seeing them play at the next level.

Boys' Varsity Lacrosse

• The boys' varsity lacrosse team finished the season with a 10-5 overall record, with strong showings in the state (semifinalist) and county (lost 6-5 in the quarter finals to the eventual winner)

championships. This season was marked

Skating • The skating team participated in a ranking system provided by Ice Skating Institute, which tracks skating development nationally. All team members passed one developmental test or more, and participated in an annual High School Team Spirit Show. This year we had an outstanding season and the team chemistry was fantastic.

Golf • With a roster of fourteen players, the focus of the season was to see individual improvement in addition to practicing in a smarter way. Working on the short game was recognized as the quickest way to lower a player's score. Finishing 8th out of 10 at the prep tournament gave us a benchmark for next season.

Softball • This was a challenging season for PDS softball. With two new coaches at the helm, numbers that were often in the red, and a lot of winter weather in the early days of spring, it did not look good during our early practices. However, as the season moved on and the weather got warmer, every member of the team found themselves in a position where they would grow, whether it was their softball IQ or the lifelong lessons that were learned on and off the course. Every player embraced the number "9" as their personal motto, knowing that on any given day they were the ninth player. The character, commitment, and unity that developed as a result were nothing short of inspirational. Although our record didn't show it, this season was groundbreaking in many ways. We are extremely proud of our girls and cannot wait for next spring.

Campbell and Downey Retire After A Combined 64 Years of Coaching at PDS

By Phoebe Outerbridge '84

Rome Campbell

Jerome (Rome) Campbell wears many hats around the PDS athletic department, but he might feel most at home on the tennis court. This past spring, however, marked the first time Coach Campbell was not working with the boys' varsity tennis team on volleys, serves, or ground strokes.

After 27 years of coaching boys' varsity tennis at PDS, Campbell has turned over the coaching position to Will Asch. Campbell, a health and P.E. instructor for grades pre-K through 12, will continue to coach three middle school teams: football, boys' basketball, and the newly created coed track and field team.

Campbell will also continue to help coach off-season for campers enrolled in the PDS Summer Programs' tennis camp, an offering that he helped create when he joined PDS in 1983.

A product of the PDS boys' varsity tennis program and a source of pride for Coach Campbell is David Holland '08, who now plays for Duke University. Holland appreciated Campbell's light-heartedness and sense of fun on the court: "Every day at the beginning of practice he would make an effort to get a couple of laughs from his players. I feel like it made all the guys really enjoy their PDS tennis experience, no matter what their level was."

"I love what I do—it's not a job to me. I have been very blessed to have had some outstanding athletes come through the program," he says. "It's also very gratifying to me when I can help a kid get into a school with a Division I or Division II program."

Eamon Downey

"I have never known a fall without competing, teaching, or coaching cross-country since I was about 15," remarks Eamon Downey, who after 37 years, is stepping down from his post as the varsity cross country coach (but will continue teaching history in the upper school).

A competitive track and long-distance runner, Downey came to PDS in the fall of 1973 to teach middle school history and to coach the MS and US cross-country teams. After eight years he shifted from teaching history in the middle school to the upper school, and soon after, became chair of the history department.

Downey says one of the highlights of his PDS coaching career was the 1991-1992 season, when he was still training with the varsity runners (doing pace work and distance runs), and the team placed extraordinarily well in the state championships: "One of our stars was Justin Geisel. We were so good that year—we placed 1, 2, 3, 7, and 11. It was legendary!"

While Downey says he is ready to move on and leave the team in the capable hands of its new coach, Merrell Noden, he continues to appreciate the many memorable seasons of competition, and the sport that he is passionate about. "If you're going to go, go out on a high note," states Downey, who was named cross-country coach of the year by the Trenton Times last year, and whose team also recently won the state title two years in a row.

Minerva Grants for Professional Development

David Figueroa and Tarshia Griffin-Ley

The Minerva Grants for Professional Development provide financial support for members of the Princeton Day School faculty to enhance the craft of teaching through conferences, seminars, graduate study, or other such opportunities as the award winners may determine. Recipients will have demonstrated records of superior achievement in and beyond the classroom, as well as evidence of great promise in the years to come.

Princeton Day School awarded two Minerva Grants to David Figueroa, for research in the areas of digital technology, historiography, and student-centered learning, and to Tarshia Griffin-Ley for graduate study at Rider University.

Ostro Grant for Interdisciplinary Education

Amy Beckford, Alesia Klein, Rebecca Mungai, Maryann Ortiz, Cindy Peifer, and Tara Quigley

Established in 2000, the purpose of the Ostro Grant for Interdisciplinary Education is to provide ongoing incentive for increasing and strengthening interdisciplinary studies at Princeton Day School. A grant is awarded annually to support an outstanding opportunity to enrich the school's teaching curriculum through the integration of two or more disciplines.

The faculty recipients of the Ostro Grant are required to give a presentation to colleagues about what was learned through the interdisciplinary offering and how these lessons can be applied to further strengthen the educational programs at PDS. When appropriate, classroom demonstrations incorporating new materials/techniques/technologies or practices are also required of the grant recipients.

This year, the Ostro Grant was awarded to Middle School teachers Amy Beckford, Alesia Klein, Rebecca Mungai, Maryann Ortiz, Cindy Peifer, and Tara Quigley for building iPad class curriculum in preparation for NCSS annual convention workshop.

The Johnston Faculty Enrichment Award David Burkett

Established in 1987, the Johnston Faculty Enrichment Award is made annually to a selected teacher to underwrite the pursuit of professional development opportunities related to their disciplines, which will significantly enhance and enrich their own professional expertise and their students' classroom experience. The recipient of this grant is selected by the Head of School in consultation with the Division Heads.

Princeton Day School was pleased to present the Johnston Award to David Burkett, who attended a TASIS workshop in France this past summer.

The David C. Bogle Award for the Pursuit of Teaching Excellence

Paris McLean, Alesia Klein, and Cecilia Marquez

Established in 1995, this award is in memory of David Bogle, who devoted seventeen years of service to PDS, most notably in the development office and who, in the words of his twin brother, "was an educator at heart." Income from this fund "will be awarded each year to underwrite an outstanding proposal – submitted by a faculty member(s) – which in the eyes of the Head of School and Division Heads most clearly advances the pursuit of teaching excellence at Princeton Day School."

This year, Princeton Day School awarded the David C. Bogle Award to Paris McLean, Alesia Klein, and Cecilia Marquez for faculty, parent, and student workshops on the topic of How to Build Cycles of Academic Success.

For four of those five years I worked at George Jackson Academy, a small private school for students in grades 4-8 in the East Village. It was very rewarding to give these deserving boys a chance to go to great schools independent day and boarding schools throughout the Northeast.

The preserved working farm just three miles east of Bordentown has thrived under the care of the Kuser family for three generations. The farm includes more than 60 acres of woods, two streams and two ponds. The original classic dairy barns house classrooms, offices and equipment and are run on solar energy. The current small animal barn is home to a flock of ducks and chickens that provide eggs, as well as, small herds of Alpine goats and Shetland sheep that provide milk and wool respectively. This combination of natural environments and sustainable businesses add to all that students and families can experience and learn when they visit Fernbrook Farms. Former PDS faculty member Marna Matthews is working with Larry at the Fernbrook Farms Education Center

Larry has been married to Susie for 38 years, has three children and 5 grandchildren. Oldest daughter Meg visits the farm regularly with her three boys who love to explore the farm and drive the tractors. Youngest daughter Lexi was married on the farm last year and now lives in San Francisco.

George V. Packer

Princeton Day School was saddened to learn that George Packard, faculty member and chair of the English

Father of Cynthia Packard '76, Leslie Packard '77, Susan Packard '78, and Michael Packard '83, Mr. Packer was a beloved teacher and mentor to his many students. The nursery business was started in 1982 after Larry left PDS. He had been growing Christmas trees since 1967 so it was a natural transition to take over the farm and diversify the products. The nursery now grows over 340 acres of trees, native plants, unusual conifers and rhododendrons that are sold to landscape contractors, arboretums, and garden centers from Maine to Virginia.

Just recently I received a great note from Ellen Sussman '72, saying that I had told her that if she wanted to be a writer, she would have to write every day for six hours. Nice of her to blame me for her hard work. I continue to write and teach, about half time, at both the graduate level and freshmen "comp" every other semester. A good balance. My wife, Anita Helle, is the director of the School of Literature, Writing, and Film at Oregon State University, and is a Sylvia Plath scholar. We live in Corvallis, Oregon, where OSU is located, and spend our weekends in Portland, a fine city. I've had a lot of wonderful teaching years, at Reed College and Bard College among others. But my most exciting teaching was still at PDS. Being a department member with Anne Shepherd, Moyné Smith, George Packard, and Huson Gregory, among others, with the support of Doug McClure and Beverly Williams, now that was terrific. The students made the teaching wonderful. I can't read Macbeth, or see it, without thinking of teaching it in tenth-grade English."

- Kaye Vosburgh who taught at PDS (from 1968 – 1970, she thinks) has continued teaching. However, instead of biology and IPS she is teaching ikebana, the art of Japanese flower arranging. Her students are adult women and men in upstate New York and the Boston area. Kaye retired from classroom teaching at PDS to become a mother in 1970. After spending 10 years at home, Kaye returned to teaching at Albany Academy for Girls for a year. Then she took a year off to plan a new kitchen and have it installed. She kept busy with hobbies of tennis and a new interest, ikebana. The first lessons in flower arranging were exciting, using her biology background to grow and select and care for the flowers and her visual appreciation of nature to create naturalistic designs. Kaye studied the Sogetsu School which is one of 100's of ikebana schools, but it is a very contemporary school which emphasizes personal expression and creativity. With her newfound skill in arranging, Kaye joined a garden club in 1985 and entered Flower Show School to become a judge. She is now a Master Judge and a Flower Show School

Design Instructor. She continued studying Japanese arranging and has become a teacher, first grade Komon. Kaye teaches over 60 students in four locations in New England and New York and demonstrates to Garden Clubs through out the region. Two years ago she did a flower arranging program for the New Jersey State Garden Club at their fall meeting.

- After "retiring" from PDS, Judy Williams (and her husband) took teaching jobs at the American School in Switzerland (TASIS), which is in the southern Swiss city of Lugano. Last year she taught first grade to 15 children from five different countries. The students were fun and kept her busy. On weekends they were able to travel a bit and last year's excursions took them to England, Tuscany, Venice, Luzern, Zurich and Morocco, plus numerous hikes throughout Switzerland. Their daughter, Christina '94, is in Cincinnati doing a one year fellowship in trauma surgery. That will compete her medical training and she can look for a real job in a hospital. Daughter, Austin

Judy Williams

'97, is married and living in Denver. She just quit her advertising job and she plans to go back to school to get a degree in anthropology.

How TO SAY Goodbye?

*Interviews conducted by Linda Maxwell Stefanelli '62 and Evan Thomas
Interviews edited by Kathryn Rosko*

In June, Princeton Day School bid farewell to a group of beloved and highly-regarded, longtime faculty members: Steve Bailey, John Baldwin, Helen Bodel, Tina Dadian, Harvey Lee, Judy Michaels, Cathie Miller, and Kate Winton.

These exceptional teachers—all of whom taught at the school for more than fifteen years each—touched the lives of so many students and colleagues, and made a truly indelible mark on Princeton Day School. This summer, we had the opportunity to speak with a few of these PDS luminaries about their memories of the school, advice they received from students and colleagues alike, and what's next for them.

How many years were you at PDS, and what position(s) did you hold?

Judy Michaels: 37 years. I taught Upper School English, full time, served for a few years as a class advisor to the 9th grade, and around 1979 founded and coordinated the Lincoln Center Program in New York City in aesthetic education for students in grades PreK-12. I worked to bring professional teaching artists into our classrooms for hands-on work, preparing students to see live dance, music, and theater productions provided by Lincoln Center Institute. In 1989, after my first sabbatical year, I became artist-in-residence for poetry, dropping back to three-quarter time so that I could give poetry workshops across the grades and subjects, write and publish my own books, and, in general, further the interest in poetry at PDS.

Kate Winton: 25 years. I first came to PDS in 1984 and spent my first three years teaching English in the Middle School before moving to the Upper School. Over the years I ran the SEED program (Seeking Educational Equity and Diversity), served on multiple committees, and spent my last two years as dean of the wonderful class of 2012.

Cathie Miller: 24 years. PDS hired me to be the librarian for the lower and middle schools. After the building of the new lower school the smallest children were traveling the longest distance for their library books. The separation of the library services called for the creation of a new library and a new librarian. Jenny

I loved working at PDS...the freedom to develop curriculum, build relationships with students, and to work with colleagues and the administration to shape the school and its culture was wonderful and unique.

— John Baldwin

Mischner became the first to manage the new library space and I remained as the middle school librarian. I was ultimately named Head Librarian to supervise the three facilities.

John Baldwin: 23 years. I taught Upper School and Middle School math, Architecture, Woodworking, and Geography. I also coached MS JV and Varsity Volleyball (two state championships as varsity coach). I was Chair of the US Math Department.

Steve Bailey: 22 years. At first I was a teacher in the Math department teaching computer courses because there was no computer department. I also taught astronomy and physics for a few years. Later on I became Director of Technology, then Coordinator of Technical Services.

Helen Bodel: 17 years. Middle School and Upper School Latin and Greek.

"...I am proud that I was able to make kids feel that they could learn just about anything..."

— Helen Bodel

What made you stay at PDS?

John: I loved working at PDS...the freedom to develop curriculum, build relationships with students, and to work with colleagues and the administration to shape the school and its culture was wonderful and unique. It didn't hurt that the loves of my life, Kate (Winton) and the kids, worked and studied at PDS.

Kate: I stayed because it was a place where all voices were valued. I stayed because of engaged students and families, committed and interesting colleagues and administrators, and the opportunity to play a role in the shaping of programs and policies at the school.

Steve: At the beginning it was because my kids were getting a great education here. After they left, I stayed because I enjoy working with the people here, both faculty and students.

Judy: I stayed at PDS because I enjoyed my colleagues and students so much, and because the school allowed me to grow and change and offered such great professional development support (especially through the Parents Association).

Cathie: At PDS, I found colleagues who felt as I did about the importance of reading in the life of a child.

"...many of the most important moments of my life center around PDS."

— Kate Winton

John Baldwin

Helen: I moved from Boston to Princeton with my family, knowing I already had a job at PDS; I'd never taught in a coed school before. I'd already been teaching for twenty years and now had to learn about teaching girls and boys in the same classroom. Perhaps that was a force behind staying—learning new ways of teaching. That, and the joy my children found in the school—they adored their teachers and their friends, and still hold those memories dear.

What is unique about PDS?

Judy: I've visited and presented at a lot of independent schools, but PDS strikes me as unique in its desire and ability to help students discover who they are and develop their strengths, as opposed to focusing on grades and getting into the "right" college.

Helen: I found the faculty to be capable, interesting, powerfully inventive, and awfully smart about and kind to kids.

John: It was always a place where divergent views were embraced.

Cathie: The value that teachers put on their personal learning. Teachers read, travel, attend classes and continually stretch themselves to be more aware of the world around them and to enlighten their teaching.

Steve: I think that the relationships between the faculty and the student body are what make PDS unique. The faculty here are a dedicated group who work very hard to make each of their classes a place that encourages students to do their best. As important, if not more so, is what happens outside of classes during extra help sessions or other time spent together by teachers and students. Bonds are formed which can last decades after graduation.

What is your most memorable moment at PDS?

Kate: Having been at PDS 25 years, watched both my daughters move through three divisions, met and married the man I love, and taught hundreds and hundreds of students, many of the most important moments of my life center around PDS. I have a batch of purely joyful memories of seeing a student who struggled as a ninth grader blossom on the field or on stage or in my Psych Lit class. One of the great opportunities, which came at the end of my tenure at PDS, was being a dean and getting to know a full class of students, many of whom I had never taught.

John: Getting to know, fall in love with, and marry the beautiful Kate Winton.

Steve: I have many memories of appearing on stage for the Performing Arts Festival in May. My most memorable time was acting in the Christopher Durang play Wanda's Visit with Kate Winton, Susan Stein, and Rich Dreher.

Cathie: More years ago than I can remember a teacher at a MS Christmas party stopped what was going on to thank me for the help I had given her and others. It was the best present ever.

Helen: The realization that I would get to think about curriculum and teach with Todd Gudgel for a decade or two; there is no one more talented or more generous.

Judy: There've been a lot of memorable moments. The kind I love the most are when I start reading a student's piece of writing and find that she or he has created something truly authentic, sometimes at considerable risk.

Steve Bailey

What are you most proud of in your career at PDS?

Steve: I am most proud of helping to bring technology into the school. When I started in 1989, we had Apple II computers and there was no internet. Now everyone is connected.

Cathie: That PDS has three professionally staffed libraries for its three divisions. People who have been here as long as I have will perhaps remember what a long road this was to achieve.

John: I was always willing to work for and even fight for the needs of the school and the students.

Kate: I'm most proud of my efforts to speak out and work hard on behalf of students and to help the institution be the best it can be. I have loved the collaborative work I've done with colleagues and administrators, from developing ninth grade curriculum with Judy Michaels to performing at Festival with Susan Stein and Steve Bailey to sharing ideas about class unity with my fellow deans and Carlton.

Judy: I'm probably proudest of keeping the Lincoln Center Program (now called the Lively Arts Program) and the poetry program going over the years.

Helen: I think that I am proud that I was able to make kids feel that they could learn just about anything; that they felt smart about learning Latin and wanted to keep taking it despite its challenges.

What was the best lesson you learned from a student at PDS? A fellow colleague?

Judy: I remember a ninth grade boy telling me in a conference, "But Ms. Michaels, I don't really like just sitting still and talking about books." A useful reminder to me to vary my learning approaches and limit my use of book discussions—and a good justification for the value of bringing artists into the classroom for hands-on activities. From a long-time colleague, a mentor for me when I first came to PDS, I learned the values of play, inventiveness, and irreverence as I watched him create imaginary literary critics and imaginary quotations whenever he had a particular idea he wanted his students to explore.

Helen: That visiting colleagues' classrooms is just about the MOST important thing any teacher can do in order to learn fast and get clear about a variety of things connected to teaching, and implement new ideas into classes—no matter who the teacher, or what the subject, or age group of the kids.

Kate: Listening to all the voices—even the ones we don't particularly want to hear or those who have been silent—made me a better teacher, and I believe it makes a community a stronger and richer place.

Cathie: From the students, I have to say that I have learned that each person has something amazing to bring to the school. Just when I had thought that a particular student was really hard to please with a reading selection or a requirement of the library I would discover something about another part of them that bowled me over with the depth of their commitment or talent. From the teachers I have learned that I could always be a better teacher.

John: To always try to listen. Questions or comments kids make always make me see new ways to understand the math and to present it. My colleagues are all crazy smart, and have tons of experience—you would be a fool not to want to hear how they see the world. Believe in people...everyone is trying to be the best they can that day.

"...PDS strikes me as unique in its desire and ability to help students discover who they are and develop their strengths..."

— Judy Michaels

How do you want to be remembered at PDS?

John: I don't think institutions really remember people, but to paraphrase Warren Zevon, I hope my former students and colleagues just keep me in their hearts for a while.

Kate: I love John's Warren Zevon quote! Here is my own spin on it: my sense is that institutional memory is held by the people who remain and those we've touched along the way, not by the institution itself. I'm not sure we get a vote in how we'd like to be remembered, but if I had the choice, I'd hope to be remembered as someone who worked hard to hear each student's voice, help each find her own voice through writing, and voice my concerns when I had them.

Helen: That my students and colleagues found in me something to remember at all: a kindness, a bad Latin joke, an interesting classroom tangent.

Judy: I'd like to be remembered for my work with poetry and the arts.

Cathie: I hope the teachers and students remember how wonderful I felt it was to be privileged to work in this atmosphere.

Steve: Whether I want it or not, I think people will remember me for my Halloween costumes, especially the last one (Lady Gaga!). I hope they will also remember me as someone who helped them with technology when they needed it.

What advice would you give to new teachers at PDS?

Kate: I'll share the advice I received when I first came to PDS 25 years ago: sit at a different lunch table every day until you've met everyone in your division, then eat lunch at different times until you've met everyone in the school. In the meantime, look for possible mentors, recognizing that good mentors are as interested in learning from you as they are in teaching you the ropes.

Judy: I'd advise new teachers to listen hard to their students and to seek out interesting and inspiring colleagues with whom to collaborate.

Cathie: New teachers should take advantage of the many opportunities to learn from the teachers here and to pursue professional development. The commitment of PDS to the growth of its teachers is unusual and to be lauded.

Helen: Relax; have fun; and, if you collect it, give it back right away!

Harvey Lee

What will be your last memory of PDS as you step away?

Kate: I will hold dear the photo of the whole junior class that they gave me in the final assembly—they organized it all on their own, and I was really touched!

Cathie: I will remember the hard work and effort Janet Dickson has put into her role in the MS library. The program could not have continued to grow without her. The additional role she has taken on as assistant to for the MS plays has contributed in a major way to their success.

Helen: The conversations I still have, hope to have with dear friends, even though I live far away in Asheville and Spetses. So, I suppose, making more, different sorts of community memories; from afar.

Steve: As I leave PDS, I will remember the last Commencement, where both the seniors and I were saying goodbye to a place where we have spent some very good years.

What is your next step?

Kate: John and I will be working with former PDS student, Roopa Purushothaman '96 as she launches Avasara, a caste-blind, leadership academy for girls in India which opens 2012. This year, we'll be consulting on curriculum and pedagogy, and if all goes well and I can stand the heat, we'll pick up stakes and move there next fall. I suspect our teaching lives will be abroad for the next few years, and then who knows?

Cathie: My next role will be that of grandmother to a little girl who is expected on September 26. Emily Miller '93 and her husband are expecting our first grandchild.

Judy: No single next step, though I have plans for more writing, more cancer activism, more travel. The hardest and most ongoing one, to be quite honest,—a journey of many steps—will be learning to live a life without my husband, who died just a few months ago.

Helen: I'm living in a wonderful house about six blocks from downtown Asheville; neighbors are groovy, friendly, and generous. As for the next step, ask me later, after I've taken it and have figured out what it was!

Steve: The Peace Corps! We are scheduled to go to Panama on January 10th. We decided a few years ago that we wanted to do something else before retiring. We talked to various people who had been in the Peace Corps and decided we would like to do it. We like traveling, and we don't mind living in Spartan conditions. We are looking forward to experiencing a new culture.

"...I hope my former students and colleagues just keep me in their hearts for a while."

Remembering Jim Walker

PRINCETON DAY SCHOOL MOURNED the loss of a dear colleague and beloved member of the faculty, Jim Walker, who died peacefully at his home in June. Beginning his tenure in 1976, Jim served the school well and fully for 35 years, as Math Department Chair for 18 years, Chair of Academic Affairs Committee for five years, and, for a decade, as Dean of Students. On most fall afternoons, he could be found on Baker Field, where, as head coach of both junior varsity and varsity football for two decades, he and his teams enjoyed great success, capped by a state championship in 1980. A recipient of the Robert C. Whitlock Award for Distinguished Teaching in 1997, he embodied the qualities celebrated in the School's highest honor for its faculty: "Exceptional teaching skills, devotion to students, gentleness, patience, courtesy, zeal for knowledge, inspiration, and pursuit of excellence."

Head of School Paul Stellato observed: "The qualities that so distinguished Jim Walker as a teacher, advisor, and coach – those of honesty, decency, integrity, and optimism – live on in the scores of students who were fortunate enough to sit at the foot of this master teacher, as they do in those members of the faculty, staff, and administration who served with, and were inspired and encouraged by, this gracious, patient man. Although he has left us well before his time, we take great comfort in knowing that all he taught us – about our work, ourselves, and our School – lives on."

Jim is survived by his wife, Barbara, long-time member of the Princeton Day School English department; and his children, Jeff '88, and Kerry. A service of remembrance of Jim Walker's life at Princeton Day School was held on Sunday, June 12, in the McNeney Theater. Here are some excerpts from the remarks made at the ceremony:

"Dad was a renaissance man. A gentleman, scholar, athlete, teacher, coach, mentor, husband, father, grandfather. He did anything he set his mind to with confidence and attention to detail, which inspired us all, especially his family, my stepmother Barb, sister Kerry, and me."

— Jeff Walker '88

"Mr. Walker told us stories about how he was a coach. He was referring to his football years. But Mr. Walker was still a coach in math class. He was on your team. He was your biggest fan. He taught with devotion and patience."

— Ben Fisch '08

"I'll miss Jim's steadiness in my life. And I'll miss his friendship and laughter, his common sense and reliability, and his inspirational example of dedicating himself to doing one thing extremely well for an entire lifetime."

— Andy Hamlin

"Jim approached academics, advising, and athletics with the same love, with the same discipline, with the same sense of fair play, always expecting effort, and even passion from those whom he taught and coached and adjudicated as teacher, Dean or as referee."

— Father Dan Skvir

"Of all the journeys that we make in our lives, there comes a time when only one journey is required of us, beyond which we cannot know. And even if that time comes too soon, our only task then is to make that journey well. Jim did so with the same gentle strength that he gave to all his good works."

Justin Krebs '96

*Contents: Political Ideals.
Apply Liberally.*

By Phoebe Outerbridge '84

Justin Krebs '96 didn't listen to his grandmother. If he had, he might have titled his recently released book "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy Too," instead of 538 Ways to Live, Work and Play Like a Liberal. He also could have changed the name of his nationwide franchise, Drinking Liberally, to Getting Together Over Beverages to Discuss Politics after he received an e-mail message from an angry member of MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Driving). But Krebs prefers liberal use of words like—well—"liberal."

"Actually, the Drinking Liberally website prominently states 'As you drink liberally, always drink responsibly,'" asserts Krebs, founder of Drinking Liberally and its umbrella organization, Living Liberally. The Drinking Liberally website

Liberally franchise, which includes Drinking Liberally, Reading Liberally, Screening Liberally, Laughing Liberally, and Eating Liberally. (No sign of Breathing or Sleeping Liberally...yet).

"It was the spring of 2003 and the Iraq war had begun, a pretty depressing time for progressives," says Krebs, recalling the nascence of the group that would become Drinking Liberally. While he initially felt dismay about the U.S. engagement, he realized even his own like-minded friends in the liberal city of New York weren't getting involved and speaking their minds. "A friend and I began this project to get our own friends to start talking and thinking about politics in our natural habitat. Our aim was to connect our social worlds with our political worlds," says Krebs.

"Our aim was to connect our social worlds with our political worlds"

(livingliberally.org/drinkingliberally) is command central for the 231 chapters around the country (and four international ones).

Though the name "Drinking Liberally" may not smack of political correctness, Krebs is PC in the literal sense. Krebs, who calls himself a "political and cultural entrepreneur," advocates living a life that is truly in harmony with one's political ideals (preferably liberal ideals), on a day-to-day, not once-per-four-year, basis. Political engagement is at the core of Krebs' vocation, and is what launched the momentum of Drinking Liberally—and ultimately the whole Living

Krebs and his pals would meet every Thursday night at Rudy's bar on the west side of Manhattan to talk politics, and before long friends of friends, then total strangers, would start showing up. Purely through word of mouth and a few blogs and Yahoo groups (this was all pre-Facebook), attendance was growing exponentially.

The fact that one of the regulars at Rudy's weekly rants coined the name "Drinking Liberally" is something Krebs says captures the spirit of the whole endeavor. Its organic outgrowth to other pursuits was rapid. "People took the idea and ran with it and made the idea their own, and it spread to other cities. Our own chapters started meeting at cafes, doing bicycle outings, seeing movies together,” explains Krebs, who ultimately developed the Living Liberally brand.

“I always had the political activist’s mindset,” says Krebs, who currently lives in Brooklyn with his new wife, Casey Selzer (who one could say practices birthing liberally—she is a midwife). While his parents were engaged politically and discussed current events at home, Krebs cites his years at Princeton Day School as having a significant impact on his career direction. “PDS is a small enough school that everyone ends up getting involved in multiple projects,” says Krebs, who seized this opportunity by joining the performing arts program, being class president, community council student body president, an editor of the Spokesman, and a member of the model U.N.

While he sought to continue a similar trajectory at Harvard, he found the student government at the college less fulfilling, and more akin to “Roberts Rules of Order,” a term he uses liberally and disdainfully. In contrast, he notes, “At PDS you became involved because you wanted to create change; it was a useful, proactive way of improving the life of students.”

After Harvard, Krebs did some improvisational comedy, but thereafter decided to take on short-term projects (lasting no longer than six months) to test the occupational waters. After a stint working for Hillary Clinton’s New York senate campaign and then in her senate office, along with a job promoting the New York City park system, things started to crystallize for Krebs. “One job arena was becoming clearer: advocacy and public affairs,” he says.

After his Living Liberally franchise began to explode, Krebs began hearing more and more from the disparate chapters around the country, and about how its members engaged as liberals. He decided to write a book that told the story of Drinking Liberally, but also that tackled the topic of what it means to be a liberal.

“Conservatives have a four-point coda of their beliefs—strong military, family values, low taxes, small government—that they can rattle off. But there isn’t necessarily an equivalent for liberals,” explains Krebs, who nevertheless asserts that 538 Ways is not “especially a political book.” “It’s about the liberal lifestyle. What is it that we—people who call themselves liberals—are all sharing in this country, whether we’re in the Deep South or in the Northeast?”

While he tries to encourage fellow progressives to put their beer, food, book, and entertainment allowances where their ballots are across the four corners of the country, Krebs also spends part of his work week managing another venture close to his home, and his heart—The Tank. Krebs co-founded The Tank, an uber-groovy, not-for-profit multidisciplinary alternative art space (soon to reopen at a new address in midtown Manhattan), to provide a venue for fledgling artists of all ages to present an array of eclectic art and performances at a low cost to the public. “We have done some political comedy shows, debates, music, film, dance ... this theatre is about having a public space where all kinds of expression can find a home,” he explains.

Justin, pictured here with Head of Upper School Carlton Tucker, visited PDS in May to present to the Upper School assembly.

Political engagement is at the core of Krebs' vocation

This concept of an arts “commons” that puts on an estimated 500 shows a year dovetails with his 538 living liberally ideals; Krebs equates being a liberal with the idea that “we’re better off when we live for each other than when we live only for ourselves.” With Living Liberally growing at a rapid pace—all the more fueled by the steady buildup of the political climate in anticipation of the 2012 elections—it seems many others around the country agree. Another pitcher please!

A few of Justin Krebs’ favorite ways to live like a liberal:

LETTER FROM

Paul J. Stellato, Head of School

"Better shun the bait, than struggle in the snare."

— John Dryden

TEMPTATION IS A FUNNY THING. Foolish as it might seem, I believe an informed appreciation and deep reverence for temptation are characteristics of a refined mind and attentive heart. While school people (and every parent) spend their time trying to convince their youthful charges of the wisdom of Dryden's pithy observation, those of us far removed from our youthful indiscretions to place them in some relief may actually pine for a time when each new day offered temptations too great to number. We may have become more virtuous. We may have become wiser. Or we may have chosen to succumb to less venal temptations: collecting wines, growing roses, or timing the market. Perhaps the shift occurs at the very moment we come to understand the powerful link between temptation and consequence. (Better shun the bait, than struggle in the snare.) Perhaps we have a better sense of our responsibility for not just ourselves but for others. Perhaps it is easier to avoid the mess than it is to clean it up. So how to talk to the school about temptation without sounding like my father?

As I looked out on the audience seated in front of me at the first upper school assembly of the year, it occurred to me how great the gulf was between me and them: the span between the graying head of school and his ever youthful charges was at least forty years and growing by a decade each minute. Frankly, given the current pace of change in our culture, I might as well have been a minor, Old Testament prophet – the kind our ninth graders come across in Bill Stoltzfus's Bible class – translating the Word for those whom he hopes might one day may find the true path.

Yes, my faculty colleagues and I may have less and less in common with these young movers and shakers, but, in a school community of high achievers and restive strivers, we share an inclination to one particular transgression: we are daily tempted not to make any mistakes. Many of us (including their head of school and a host of his faculty colleagues) exhaust ourselves trying to get through the day without making a mistake. If, in skirting calamity, success attaches itself to this avoidance effort, we are happy to take credit for the plan. Yet, try as I might, the mistakes rush like a torrent.

What, then, to make of these mistakes, gaffes, missteps tumbles, and wrong turns? As the person occupying the most formidable bully pulpit in the school, I sent this simple message: I have sworn off the temptation not to make a mistake and am pleased to report a record of stunning achievement.

The quality of our mistakes matters, though that quality is impossible to measure at the moment of commission. More important, though, are the nature and quality of our responses: what we make of our mistakes, how we rebound and reassert ourselves in the throes of disappointment or embarrassment. The mistakes I recall most vividly are those I did not have permission to make; they have proved to be of little use to me. Those from which I have learned the most I was allowed and encouraged to make. Their value to me grows with each passing day. Exceptionally equipped as they are, as the mission statement proclaims, "to prepare our students to act knowledgeably, to lead thoughtfully, to share generously, and to contribute meaningfully," our faculty reveals its greatest strength at the moment our students need it most: in the midst of struggle and disappointment. Clearly, when our students and alumni speak of the relationships they have developed with members of the faculty, it is likely those bonds did not form and grow in the midst of unalloyed triumph.

I am no advocate of temptations of a baser sort: sloppiness, carelessness, thoughtlessness. But one day, in a classroom or on the stage or a playing field, the brightest, most able student among us will stumble, fall, and wonder if he or she will ever rise again. How he or she rises may prove to be the lesson of a lifetime. To ask for anything less would be a tragic mistake.

The Princeton Day School iPad Pilot Program: A New Vision for Learning and Teaching

Harnessing the Power of a Singular Device

By Kathryn Rosko

What if students had at their fingertips one tool to help them complete most, if not all, of the tasks associated with a comprehensive project? What if that tool were available today?

The Middle School students at Princeton Day School have the unique opportunity to participate in an archaeological dig, right here on campus, each September. This project is an amazing way for the 5th grade students to take part in an integrated learning experience in the humanities. First, the students learn about the elements of culture and how archaeologists use their discoveries to advance our understanding of ancient cultures. Then each class builds their own culture using those same elements (food, work, religion, shelter, etc.) and creates “artifacts” which are buried for another class to excavate, record, and analyze. Finally, the analysis is later compared against the original intent of the students. This project requires the students to engage in research on ancient cultures, take photos of their finds, keep a field journal, and ultimately create a database of their discoveries.

The Apple iPad has exploded onto the cultural scene and in record time has changed the way people receive and record information. Though educators have been exceedingly quick at identifying the tablet as a device for the classroom, many have struggled with how to use the tool effectively. It’s clear that its benefits for learning are vast: the iPad delivers text, images, and video instantly, is kinesthetic, features only one open screen at a time, has a battery life of about 10 hours, and, at just over a pound in weight, is very backpack-friendly (some might even argue that it replaces the backpack).

Using the example of the archaeology project, it’s reasonable to assume that the students could use their iPad for the entire project. From doing research on specific search engine apps, to taking photographs and recording video, to keeping a journal on site, to tracking and organizing their discoveries, to ultimately having all the information at their fingertips at any given time, the iPad would transform the experience.

The faculty and staff of Princeton Day School have been eager to create an iPad program for the school that will enhance the comprehensive and rigorous curriculum in place, and position the school as a leader in 21st-century learning. Two years ago, a faculty task force came together with the goal of utilizing computers and/or devices to increase student engagement. It was crucial to be specific in educational objectives, and to have the ability to accurately assess the impact of the device on student engagement. With the advent of the Apple iPad2, the group determined that the singular device offers a new learning style that is very comfortable for this generation of students, and allows faculty to both employ a cross-disciplinary approach and accommodate different learning styles.

As Steven Hancock, Head of the Middle School, who spearheaded the project, recently remarked, “the iPad2 is a relatively new device and has great potential to positively impact a child’s educational experience. Schools across the country are beginning to explore its use in classrooms, and we believed the time was right to pilot a program at Princeton Day School.”

Launching an iPad Pilot Program for the Middle School

This September, Princeton Day School announced the kick-off of a unique three-year iPad Pilot Program for our Middle School students, beginning with a program for 5th and 6th grade students for the 2011-2012 academic year. At the beginning of the school year, each 5th and 6th grade student was presented with their own iPad2, creating a 1:1 student to tablet ratio. The thinking behind piloting the program with our youngest Middle School students was that they have yet to develop a relationship with their textbooks.

The safety of Princeton Day School students is always of the highest priority, which is why the devices will be managed by the school, and used solely as an educational tool. And with the conversation of technology now focused on one device, families, students, and teachers are connected to each other and able to work collaboratively on issues such as limits, controls, and opportunities.

A crucial element of the Princeton Day School iPad Pilot Program is that PDS faculty are designing and creating new apps based on the comprehensive curriculum developed over the years at the school. Apps now in development include a search engine called in which students can research any given topic (e.g., Islam, the Renaissance), and receive accurate and appropriate sources for their work; an online record of student reading that replaces traditional book logs; and apps for grammar and spelling.

The Middle School iPad Pilot Program is funded through the generosity of parents and friends of the school. Director of Advancement Kathy Schulte commented, "we are continuing to seek support from additional families to completely fund the three-year program. It is our intention to fully integrate the iPad into the Middle School curriculum at the end of three-year pilot program."

Exploring U.S. History on the iPad2

As the Middle School iPad Pilot Program begins, the Upper School History Department is launching a pilot project for the 10th grade class, using the digital edition of the primary textbook, Give Me Liberty!, written by the Pulitzer Prize-winning historian, Eric Foner.

A section of sixteen 10th grade students was issued an iPad2 at the beginning of the year, which included the newly-released digital version of the text. Note that this isn't merely a digital version of the textbook, but rather a digitized version of the textbook, which includes primary source materials (including songs), podcasts with the author, quizzes, and the capability to take notes and highlight portions of the text. This group of students will use the iPad version of the text exclusively and will use the device for all class activities throughout the year. The remaining 10th grade students will continue to use the actual textbook, and will also function as a control group for this project. Over the course of the year, the History Department will conduct surveys to measure the impact of the iPad version of the text on the academic engagement of our students. History Department Chair George Sanderson, who spearheaded this project, noted "these surveys will provide us with important data for our Middle States evaluation, as well as for our ongoing evaluation of technology and student learning."

Mr. Sanderson went on to remark "PDS will be perhaps the first school engaging in this kind of study. We were interested in creating a specific program that could be measured accurately."

"The wisdom and vision Steve Hancock and George Sanderson bring to all of their work with student and faculty now reside in a handheld device," noted Head of School Paul Stellato. "We are standing on their shoulders once again, this time to survey a landscape no one has seen before."

Some key points of the Princeton Day School iPad Pilot Program:

- This program allows Princeton Day School to offer each 5th and 6th grade student access to his/her own iPad2, creating a 1:1 student to tablet ratio.
- Princeton Day School faculty are designing and creating new apps for the iPad2 based on the school's comprehensive curriculum.
- Safety for students is of the utmost importance, which is why the iPad2 devices are managed by the school.
- The program is interdisciplinary, offering faculty the opportunity to create curricula across departments, and students the opportunity to study a topic in multiple classes.
- Each Middle School teacher also receives an iPad2, offering the opportunity to collaborate with each other on the technology, and leading to increased professional development and growth.
- The iPad2 offers a consistent platform which leads to cohesive scheduling, no forgotten homework or attachments, and a more sustainable model with less paper.

REPORT FROM

The Chair of the Board of Trustees

DECADES AFTER COMPLETING OUR SCHOOLING, we still make resolutions in August for the beginning of the “new year” in September. The dynamic energy of Autumn at Princeton Day School reinforces that sense of beginning as students, faculty and staff consider new possibilities and opportunities before them. This fall, the Board of Trustees, will also focus on future possibilities and opportunities when we come together for a two-day retreat with Robert Evans, an organizational psychologist and leading school consultant to hundreds of schools throughout the U.S and the world.

In preparation for the retreat, Trustees are reading Evans’ book, The Human Side of School Change: Reform, Resistance, and the Real-Life Problems of Innovation. Evans observes that technological, social, economic and political change is accelerating so sharply that we can no longer treat as a given fundamental things we once took for granted (e.g., books being critical tools for learning.) He argues that this unprecedented pace of change challenges all institutions to become “learning organizations” highly attuned to the constantly changing flows and eddies of our environment. Our school’s philosophy statement describes PDS as a “community of inspired and inspiring learners.” Like students, faculty and staff, the Board of Trustees is dedicated to continuous learning in support of the decisions we make, the opportunities we pursue and the possibilities we choose to forego.

At the retreat, Robert Evans will facilitate a conversation that explores the intersection of Princeton Day School’s mission and aspirations and the evolving challenges and opportunities for independent schools over the next decade. Head of School Paul Stellato will discuss his vision as he begins his fourth year leading PDS and Trustees will offer their perspectives, expertise and knowledge of our school.

The upcoming retreat is part of an ongoing education program for Trustees, which includes sessions with secondary school experts; benchmarking with our peers; bimonthly reports from PDS senior administrators; presentations by faculty members; and meetings with students. In addition, “101” sessions led by Board members and school administrators deepen Trustees’ knowledge of particular topics like the school’s budget, its admission process and financial aid program. As Trustees, we are committed to continually expanding our understanding of the emerging issues and opportunities for independent day schools and identifying areas on which to focus in the years ahead.

The Board’s capacity to promote an institution which itself is capable of learning is, of course, largely dependent on the quality of its members. PDS benefits from the dedicated service of extraordinary trustees. On behalf of the school and myself, I wish to express deep gratitude to each of the five recently retired Trustees who brought a wealth of experience and expertise to the board and to PDS. I also wish to publically welcome our dynamic group of five new Trustees, each of whom will contribute meaningfully to the work of the Board.

As I enter my 45th year as part of Princeton Day School’s community of learners, I look forward to the exciting possibilities in the “new year.”

It was particularly satisfying to work with Paul Stellato, in his initial years, as he established strong leadership of this enduring institution."

Frederick A. Hargadon

Fred Hargadon, Retired Dean of Admission, Princeton University:

"What I valued most about my time as a PDS trustee was the opportunity to observe just how much the enviable success of a school like PDS is the result of a shared sense of purpose and a shared dedication to the pursuit of excellence in achieving that purpose on the part of each of its constituent parts: students, parents, faculty, staff, administration, alumni, and trustees. I admired its combination of thoughtful leadership, great teamwork, and vibrant community spirit."

MESSAGE FROM The Advancement Office

AS I SIT DOWN TO WRITE THIS LETTER for the 2010-2011 Annual Report, I am struck by the strength of the Princeton Day School community. You will find pages upon pages of names that have supported our school this year. In fact, there are more than 2,000 names and yet, when I look closely, I see individuals.

I see a current parent... who understands that we rely on support of the school beyond the tuition dollars he is paying each year.

I see an alumna... who graduated from PDS just last year and wants to show her gratitude to her teachers and knows the importance of giving back.

I see a teacher... who has taught at PDS for twenty years who sends a clear message to the community by supporting the school where he teaches.

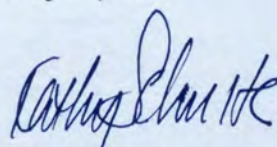

I see a grandparent... who shows her gratitude for the education her grandchild is receiving by supporting PDS.

There are, in fact, pages upon pages of stories because each person listed has his/her own personal reason for supporting Princeton Day School. We are a great school because of each and every person listed on these pages. It is my pleasure – and the pleasure of my colleagues in the Advancement office – to get to know so many of you. We know Princeton Day School is a special place and your support sends a clear message that you also believe it.

I see ... a community

Thanks to you and so many others, we had a record-breaking year of fundraising. The Annual Fund raised $1,302,732, which was a 14% increase from last year. This is the most the school has ever raised for the Annual Fund. In fact, overall, the school received $3,175,409 in gifts and payments on existing pledges. We were able to support the arts, sustainability, technology, athletics and our faculty through the generosity of designated gifts above and beyond the Annual Fund.

It is my sincere pleasure to thank you for your amazing support this past year.

Princeton Day School complies with all Federal and State Laws prohibiting discrimination in its admissions, employment and administrative policies.

The Princeton Day School Annual Report is a publication of the Advancement Office and reports on gifts received from July 1, 2010 to June 30, 2011. Every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy and completeness of this report.

Please accept our apologies for any errors or omissions and report them to the Advancement Office at 609-924-6700.

THE MAY MARGARET FINE SOCIETY

Established in 1998, The May Margaret Fine Society recognizes those loyal alumnae/i, parents and friends who have informed the Development Office that they have made provisions for Princeton Day School in their estate plans. We recognize that this is a partial listing, and ask those who have taken this important step to inform the Development Office and have their name(s) added to this list.

Including the school in their will, establishing a charitable trust while maintaining life income, or naming the school as a life insurance beneficiary are some of the ways these individuals have helped secure the long-term strength of Princeton Day School.

Tracey Gates
Director of Alumni Relations

Welcome from the Alumni Board!

Having arrived at PDS for the first day of school in 1986, I had no idea of the opportunities that were in front of me. Now looking back, the new friends, the great teachers and the remarkable experiences all form the backbone of my memories of attending PDS. Twenty-five years later, I am equally excited about the current school year and the events that the Alumni Board has planned for the alumni body in the current school year.

This year we welcome five new members to the Alumni Board: Lucy Brinster '78, Aly Cohen '91, Pat Courtney '85, Chris Gerry '99 and Marlee Sayen '02, all of whom have already been hard at work representing our alumni with creative ideas and enthusiasm. Additionally, Whitney Ross '84, a veteran of the Alumni Board, has agreed to become the Vice President for the Board.

Stay tuned for details about our Young Alumni NYC party in the fall and our All Alumni NYC gathering around the holiday. Our 4th Annual Young Alumni Pub Night will be held at the Nassau Inn Tap Room on December 22nd.

Thanksgiving is also right around the corner, so come out and join us at PDS for our annual Thanksgiving games on Friday, November 25th that will feature alumni hockey, soccer and basketball games and a fun family skate for you to enjoy.

Stay connected through our Alumni Community on our website at www.pds.org. Please share with us what you are doing. You can also find us on Facebook at PDS Alums.

We are always looking for creative and different venues and events, and we welcome your ideas. Please get in touch with Director of Alumni Relations, Tracey Gates, at tgates@pds.org if you have an idea to share or are interested in hosting an event, as well.

I look forward to welcoming you at our events this year!

Here are some excerpts from the day...

"There was one universal wish I heard over and over from locals that I met when I traveled. And it was their desire to go to school. No matter what their age or gender they wanted an education! They know that it would change their lives forever. I knew from my days at PDS just how important their wish was. An education changes individuals, villages and nations.... No matter where my travels take me it is clear that we all have similar hopes and dreams. And we can accomplish these dreams working together united across cultural divides. And yes..... one person can make a difference. My desire to 'give back' did start at PDS where I learned the importance of a good education as a firm foundation."

— Dede Pickering '71, Winner of the Alumni Service Award

"I want to tell you instead that everything that I have been motivated to do, and have been fortunate enough to be in a position to do over the past ten years, began here with my PDS community. And I want to thank you, my PDS community of teachers, friends, parents, staff and administrators for this undeniable fact.... It is here, at home, at PDS—from my family, teachers, and closest friends—that I have been shown how one can make the world more beautiful, more just, and a little bit more equitable, everyday. For this, I cannot thank you enough, and it is to you that I credit all that I may have done or be able to do in the future."

— Marissa Vahlsing '01, Winner of the Outstanding Young Alumni Award

Princeton Day School was saddened to hear of the sudden death of 2011 Athletic Hall of Fame Inductee Peter Morse PCD '61 on September 19 in Lagos, Nigeria. A geophysicist by vocation, Peter was also a gifted teacher and coach who shared his athletic talent with players around the world. Here are some remarks made at Alumni Weekend by Peter's brother Bill Morse PCD '57.

"Peter set an example for me of how to parent, how to give, share, communicate and pass on precious experiences, sharing what he had learned.... He led, trained and played with many teams across the globe, always giving, coaching soccer or squash, making new friends, developing athletes, leaving his mark.... What was and is Peter's special gift? Keeping it positive and fun, as a coach he brought the best out of everyone; he nurtured, by example, his family, his teams, colleagues and community. I have had many world-famous squash coaches. None came close to Peter's gifts as a teacher. All three of Peter's children, Perrin, Dave, and Meroe, (who graduates from Medical School in New Orleans today), are more than great athletes, they are leaders recognized by their peers, they have captained many teams. Like their father, each in his or her own way, has led by bringing out the best in others."

I couldn't be more pleased. I've been able to get in touch with most of our remaining class members.

Adelaide Comstock Roberts is always such a delight. She went on vacation this summer with her sister to England—the Cotswolds. A great favorite of mine as well. She was also in touch with Joan Williams Cox who was vacationing in Fishers Island, another beautiful spot. She had been traveling in Italy. Drop me a line sometime, Joan, I'd love to hear from you.

Alice Roberts Pierson spent a good part of her summer on Cranberry Island in Maine, a favorite haunt of hers. Addie tells me it's a great place to go.

Blaikie Forsyth Worth enjoys going north as well. Addie tells me she often stops to see her en route. Apparently her brother-in-law lives in Washington Depot, CT as well as Addie. Blakie enjoys art as well. Her husband and Blaikie have a good talent for it. Good for you, Blakie.

Kitten Bryan Bulkley tells me her daughter has a super job. She lives in London with her family. She is a journalist and travels all over the world quite a few times in a year. Kitten and her husband were on their way to Michigan, a place they enjoy so much. Their Aspen house sounds lovely with a great view from her own home that takes in a beautiful view of the mountains that surround her.

Eugenia Warren Herbert – I tried her several times, but never made a connection. All is well, Eugenia, I trust.

Nancy Hurd Norris reported that she enjoys Michigan, as well. She is well occupied with her children. Apparently, she has been widowed twice and now it's Nancy who sits in the saddle alone. Knowing Nancy, I'm sure she is a great mother. Carry on, Nancy. I enjoyed our long chat so very much.

Phoebe Gulick Snow apparently had a fainting spell, just before I called. However, she is well now – one of those spells that has no answer. She has two children – a boy who lives in the West, I believe in California, and a daughter who lives close by.

Sue Palmer Robertson's phone number as listed in the class roster is incorrect. I tried to reach her but couldn't. Please let PDS know if you have her number.

As for myself, Dave died 4 years ago and I still miss him. I'm living with my daughter Abby. She has a charming large cottage, which she has decorated herself. It bespeaks her many interests. Quite a lovely home. Sandy, my son, lives in nearby West Branch in a picturesque English home with a lovely garden that he tends himself. All those many trips we took to England when the children were younger really caught his interest. I love his home, it's large with a nice bit of property. As for myself, I have developed a terrible disease called Lymphodema that no one wants, believe me. Your legs swell terribly and it's hard to walk. I have a walker that is a great help. I still manage to get out quite a lot. I went to visit my sister, Mary, up in Keene, New Hampshire. It's a college town; nothing like Princeton but most charming. There is nothing like a sister to be with and her delightful husband, as well as their children and their families who drop by to stir the air a bit. You might be interested to know how many of us Pettits are left. Mother has died, of course, as well as my dear, dear twin sister; my older sister Annie; and Karl Junior. Remaining are Mary, Walter, Bill and me. Mother lived to be 105 and Daddy 96. Hope to see more of the good life myself.

Did you know that I lived in New York with Polly Dickinson '58? She is in wonderful shape. Looks as if she just stepped out of Bryn Mawr. She was wonderful and always most interesting. My other roommate was Kate Cosgrove '46. Always such a great friend. In our day we "spun New York on its heels." Other friends I hear from are Diana Morgan Olcott '46 who lives in Vermont! She said that she was happy indeed, when I drove down with my niece – Helen Pettit – from New Hampshire in 111 degrees to New York and to know that we lasted it! Kay Gulick Gardner '48 comes to see me every time she is able. Al '44 and she are very good friends indeed – it seems to be an adoration that we enjoy! I'm very fond of them. Keep Well.

Lucy Law Webster wrote: "I had two marvelous 80th birthday parties, one before the actual date, May 12, and one after. The first was organized and hosted by my sons, Daniel Webster and Alexander Webster, and held at my favorite indoor-outdoor restaurant a few blocks from here with 28 friends and family members, including the youngest of my four grandchildren and people I have known and worked with for as much as 40 years. Guacamole and margaritas topped the Tex-Mex menu. The second party was at Planet Earth Round Table Salon with about 40 people discussing media outreach on global issues."

The time has come for me to step down. I believe I have served long enough as class secretary.

Please send any news you want to have published in the Journal directly to the classnotes editor, Ann Wiley '70, at awiley@pds.org.

Thanks and bye-bye. (But I'll still like to keep in touch with classmates by email, or phone.)

News from Ellen Jamieson Franck: Ellen and her husband, Ernie, hang out in Sea Cliff in the summer. They hosted a mini-reunion of nearby Jamieson relatives, and received a few other visitors, including grandchildren and a granddog while the children went camping. They are in the process of relaunching a sailboat that has been on a trailer for 15 years. Then they will see if they remember how to sail! (Good luck, Ellen!)

Nicky Knox wrote that she is feeling a long way from Princeton out there (Santa Fe, NM) in the land of drought and wildfires. It has been a disaster of a summer all over the Southwest. Nicky had some "technical difficulties" in the late spring, which landed her in intensive care and brought her lifelong friend and our Miss Fine's classmate Mary Tyson Goodridge to Nicky's bedside. Mary Tyson has since had her arm broken in an accident this summer caused by a careless driver on an Austin freeway. Life can be challenging for sure. Nicky said she has been doing a lot of reading this summer and had just finished The Greater Voyage, which is a fun and interesting read. She continues to have the company of her son, Tom, and grandson, Jasper. Life is rarely dull with an 11-year-old in residence. He has begun 6th grade. Nicky's Michigan grandson is now eight and a half, and in a wonderful Montessori school in Grand Rapids. On a final note, Nicky wrote, she was so sad to read in the last Journal that Bill Dorman '51 had died in Ireland. He was a fine person with a wonderfully dry sense of humor and a delightful smile.

Lucy Busselle Myers has been working on a book that is coming out in November, People and Place: Oral Histories and Photographs of Ipswich Seniors. She has collected and edited oral histories of 30 Ipswich seniors, all over 80; her colleague, Terri, has taken photographs of each one. It's been an exciting project, with lots of community involvement. Lucy said that's all she has done for months, and can't wait until it's published.

Laura Travers Pardee and her husband, Fred, went to Houston for the graduation of their oldest grandchild, Ben Pardee, from the Kinkaid School. He is a freshman at Bates College in Maine. A real change of climate! No sooner had Laura and Fred returned home (FL) than they left to go north for Fred's 55th reunion at Princeton. Laura said it was a real treat to see Barb Kohlsaat von Oehsen there. After the reunion, Fred and Laura visited old friends in PA and DE before returning to FL. Their two granddaughters were with them from Denver for ten days in July, and they enjoyed kayaking, beaching it, museum visiting and other activities with them. Fred and Laura have been working hard to improve their golf game. (Have fun, you two!)

Barbara Kohlsaat von Oehsen wrote that she heard from all ten of her grandchildren on her birthday! She was with six of them, and her four sons, and they had a great time together. When she wrote, Barb had just returned from VT. She and her dog traveled north with Tom's boys, ages 11, 13 and 15. They had a ball all together sharing lunches and dinners, tubing, swimming, shooting guns (!), hiking and playing games - a lot of laughing. Barb is busy reading, participating in Pilates, PT and dog therapy with Nelly in a nursing home and a nursery school. Barb's real happiness is spending time with Tom's and Stewart's kids. The summer has flown by!

Your faithful secretary, Chloe King, had a busy summer, too. Our trip to Egypt planned for last March was cancelled because of the political situation in Cairo. We plan to go in November. Summer activities have been golf in NH and VT; a week on the NJ shore with some of my family; reading with a new Kindle; knitting projects for special people; and counted cross-stitching (which is making me blind!). We have spent much of the summer at our cottage in NH. Thank goodness Irene did not attack our area in NH which she surely did in other parts of the state and in VT. I stay in touch with Connie Rohr Reiter (history), Corky Cohan McGuinness (music), and Kit Green (physical education).

Such fun to keep up with their news. Thanks to all who sent news... hope others will join next time. Life is good!

The best news for MFS '56 came from Pat Henderson Lincoln who, during a recent exploration of Facebook, "found our dear former classmate and AFS student in 1955, Inge Birkholm and got in touch with her." In the course of emailing each other, Pat let the rest of the class know, launching a flurry of renewed contacts. Inge, who still lives in Odense, Denmark, shares a birthday with Pat and was with us for junior year.

She wrote to Pat, "That year has meant so much to me, you cannot imagine. I made AFS a professional career. After my return, I was very involved in voluntary work locally, and it continued for many years. In 1967 I was 'headhunted' to become the National Representative, i.e., head of the Danish office of AFS. Even today I am still active in the Danish AFS, having been involved in creating a 'senior' committee. The impact of my year at Miss Fine's and with all of you has been enormous, and I have very fond memories of the whole class."

This news goes out as classmates are planning to gather for a clam-bake in Kennebunkport, ME, after this issue of the PDS Journal goes to press – more in the next issue.

First, the news from those who can't make it to Maine:

Lockie Stafford Proctor announced the birth this summer of another grandchild, John Legare Proctor ("Jack"), born on July 15 to Darcy and Toby, Lockie's youngest son, who live in East Longmeadow, MA. Lockie is "thrilled with the middle name as it is old SC Huguenot stuff from our family, which would have made my dear mom happy as well."

Toby Proctor started a new job soon after in Springfield at Mass Mutual but he and his daughter Ella (2½) were able to join Lockie and her extended family at the Basin Harbor Club for a couple of days while Darcy and Jack had a few bonding days at home. "Can't believe I am starting all over again -- my oldest grandchild is 19!"

Pam Thompson Sinkler-Todd reports "not much new, but I am very delighted to have sold several pieces in my June show in a Center City gallery – and have been invited to show in a Christmas show...my re-entry into the art gallery market was a success!!"

"Most exciting," Pam adds, "my daughter and her family will be visiting here at the end of August. This trip will be the first time for their two children to come over to the States! After that, I will be going to visit my sister, Hilary, her daughter and granddaughter, which ought to be great fun!"

Molly Wade McGrath will be hosting friends from London. Word has it that she has a new book out, Rooftop Gardens.

Anne Harrison-Clark and Bob Vaughan have moved in closer to Williamsburg, within walking distance to the golf course for Bob, and to William and Mary for Anne. She plans to resume law school classes there this fall.

Pat Henderson Lincoln and Dick will be in Hawaii at the time of the clam-bake, and Marina Turkevich Naumann and Bob will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary in their usual peripatetic fashion.

Betsy Thomas Peterson and Kay Dunn Lyman have been organizing the Maine trip around the clam-bake hosted by Betsy Hall Hutz and Rudy – in between their other activities and travels.

Betsy T. "had another great trip through the Grand Canyon in May, 18 days down the river in dories ..."

And Kay and Dick Lyman finally reported that they have "successfully completed our move to Sweden, ME in late June, happily selling our condo in Lincoln, MA. We are now trying to combine two fully equipped homes into one. A great deal of stuff will go to the Sweden Historical Society's Garage Sale in mid-August."

Charlotte Cook checked in during August from her sister and brother-in-law's home near Sun Valley, Idaho, "organizing for a river rafting trip, which they, my husband and I, and my brother will begin tomorrow."

On her return, Charlotte continued, Margy Pacsu Campbell "will be visiting me on Martha's Vineyard before our Maine gathering."

From the Alumni Office:

Anne Gildar Kaufman wrote that her daughter, Julie, had her first child, Jack, on February 1, 2011. Her husband, Alex is very excited, as is the whole family. Jack is grandson #8 for Anne.

From Susie:

Susie Smith Baldwin: "Our 55th is our MFS Finale, our last organized reunion. Don't miss getting together with great old friends and great old memories. Hard to believe the ninth grade photo was taken 57 years ago. Let's encourage classmates from K-12 to join us. You'll hear about festivities from our Reunion Committee over the winter."

Helen Wilmerding: "Just back in Princeton from Maine. Gerald is limping along after breaking his hip in late January. Two and a half months divided between hospital and rehab in London. The Queen paid after the lovely wedding. I am healthy except for low thyroid and an ear that my dermatologist has attacked twice for basil cell carcinoma. If only I could paint."

The class photo reminds me how much credit is due our fearless class leader, Kinsa Turnbull, for making our schooldays remarkably pleasant. Our health will get boring as the decades pass, but Kinsa's songs were our 13 year old Porter/Gershwin magical melodies.

Mary Strunsky Wisnovsky: "I'm retiring August 31 after 40 years in the work force. Looking forward to playing more bridge, traveling, getting more exercise, etc."

Susie Smith Baldwin adds: "I had a delightful lunch with Jim and Eugenie Rudd Fawcett at their unique country home in Tyringham, MA in August. Eugene vacationed there in childhood before settling to raise a family. According to Eugene their Shaker Settlement Historic District home was "the second Shaker Settlement to open and the first to close". Eugene and Jim celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary in September. They enjoy their four adult children and families. One son and family is even living with them while renovating their Shaker house next door. Eugene and Jim continue to teach Latin and English, respectively, at Berkshire Country Day School."

Ros Webster Perry: "Dick and

I traveled to New England for my Wellesley 50th reunion and to visit my sister, Kathie Webster Dwight '54. A wonderful trip!! My annual visit to The Quilters Hall of Fame in July was also lots of fun. However it ended uncomfortably when I had to spend the night sleeping on the floor of the Denver Airport, due to a massive thunderstorm that closed the airport for hours. I hope that's a 'once in a lifetime' experience. Our oldest grandchild is now checking out possible colleges, and our youngest just turned 5! Hope to see you all next year!"

An email for help with the class notes produced great results. Betsy Carter Bannerman responded almost instantly telling us that her son, Cody, has enthusiastically joined the Army National Guard and at that time was in boot camp in South Carolina. Betsy is still in "a bunch of singing groups and was in a flash mob singing Leonard Cohen's 'Hallelujah' at the Exploratorium in San Francisco..." And it got onto YouTube. Wow. I don't think I will top that for a while.

Faith Wing Bieler in Vermont is busy with "family reunions, summer concerts and theater..." I'm on a training regime for trekking the long distance Coast to Coast trail in UK in September. It begins in the Lake District. I hope to be fit enough to enjoy every step! My yoga study and teaching continues to be a joy."

Sarah Adams Model and her husband, Klaus, took a wonderful two-week trip to Germany that included a bus trip from Berlin to Munich.

Traveling seems popular with many classmates. Nan Nicholes Goodrich has given up adventure for a tamer trip to Bangkok to Beijing and the Amazon River and has bought a condo in Sanibel, FL. Cecilia Aall Mathews has been seen in London, Tuscany (where she thought of Susie and Villa Mercedes), northern India and Zurich, where she went to meet her new grandson. Abby Pollak spent 5 weeks on the trip of a lifetime including NYC, Paris, south of France and Morocco. Dana Conroy Aymond enjoyed acting (for the 4th time!) as her son's "sag wagon" while he participated in the Double Triple By-Pass Colorado biking event. Putting many of us to shame, Martha Strunsky Ilic reports "I have become somewhat of a jock in my old age - biking, hiking and playing tennis!!!" Jean Schettino Conlon (check her out at www.brumlconlon.com) is proud her son was nominated for an Emmy for his titles for the Penn and Teller show. Wendy Yeaton Smith is gardening, boating and grandparenting. I still mentor a now 13-year-old inner city girl. I took her and two of her friends to the beach for a week, see all of them about every two months for sleepovers at my home in Baltimore, and meet with Breona alone three or four times a month. I am learning far more than they are!!

From Penny:

This spring a small band of us gathered in England for the ninth consecutive off-campus MFS '60 reunion. Sally Hagen Schmid started the reunion phenomenon with a gathering in Florida in November '92 to celebrate our collective 60th birthday. Now, one year short of our 70th, Harriet Gaston Davison invited us to her daughter's country home in Cornwall. Eileen Baker Strathnaver, Anne Kales Howson, and I leapt at the opportunity. Expanding the ranks were Jeff Howson (Annie's husband), Frank Mead (mine) and Trisha Wedgwood, an English friend of Harriet's. It was glorious, as four days in Cornwall would have to be: cliffside hikes above the sea, visits to gardens burgeoning with spring flowers, pints raised in seaside pubs, and tasty meals collectively produced at the house's endless country table. It couldn't have been better, thanks to Cornwall's natural attributes and to Harriet's thoughtfulness and generosity at every turn.

MFS '60 Classmates Mary Lee Skinner Bayne, Carol Garrigues Scofield and Sally Hagen Schmid in Palm Beach, FL.

Carol Garrigues Scofield invites us to celebrate our 70th at her island in Rangely, Maine, next summer. She points out, however, that she will have beat us all to the finish line. A week after entering MFS, she was demoted from fifth grade to fourth, making her forever our class elder. She turns seventy this October, the same week she and Robert celebrate the 50th anniversary of their elopement! Carol's son, Curtis, is in his 21st year of teaching at the Kent School, daughter Liz owns a thriving Lake Placid flower shop, and granddaughter Ashley just attended the same Vermont summer camp that Carol's mother went to in 1923 and '24.

While most of us have bagged the work thing by now, Nancy Davis Sachner is still practicing long-term psychoanalytic psychotherapy and is serving her second year as President of the Connecticut Society of Psychoanalytic Psychologists. Married for as long as the Scofields, Nancy and Skip are commemorating 'a significant birthday and anniversary this year by doing some exotic travelling.' (Frank and I celebrated our 10th anniversary in June. Neophytes.)

News from two other MFSers. Caroline Godfrey Werth said of a family wedding in Switzerland this summer, "Wow, what a blast," and reported with justifiable pride that she managed to hold her own during a three-day hike in the high Alps. Derry Bush Jeffers continues to hold her own, too, in training dressage horses and students in dressage at her center in Virginia.

Please, everyone, do your best to come to Maine this summer. Getting together becomes more special with every year.

From Nancy:

We had a wonderful 50th reunion, with 15 out of our graduating class of 21 returning. Our ranks were happily swelled by Alice Artzt and Lucia Norton Woodruff who were with us during some of our MFS years. As Fiona said when we first started planning, we hoped everyone would come back, whether they were at MFS from kindergarten to 12th grade or just for a few weeks in third grade. I discovered that our class had gained a reputation when I was in the school on the Tuesday after the reunion. As I was looking at the Athletic Hall of Fame board, a teacher stopped to chat. When I said which class I was with, he said, "Oh, you're the class that put your chairs in a circle at the welcome party and talked up a storm." Yep, that was us!!

Sheila Long wrote: "The reunion was indeed fabulous! I really loved reconnecting with you all, some for the first time in 50 years! I went to Rome for two weeks at the end of June, where I had to try to speak Italian, including writing and delivering a presentation about our little community here in Windsor. I got a couple of people to correct what I had written, and found that everyone was really touched and delighted that I had made the effort to learn their language. I came back inspired to continue." She recommends reading Younger Next Year for Women, by Chris Crowley and Henry Lodge. "The idea is that we don't have to become decrepit and miserable as we move into our 70s and 80s. They claim that many of what we think of as the normal symptoms of aging aren't normal at all, and that we can prevent most of them, or make them go away by exercise, a good diet, being passionately interested in something (it doesn't seem to matter what) and being socially connected with other people. In France I was feeling increasingly disconnected from everyone, and am loving the reconnections."

Tibby Chase Dennis wrote in haste that "our lives are so hectic right now as we prepare for Chip's retirement from his church ministry here, at the end of September. In October we will be moving back to my little ranch house in Northampton, MA, and the task of paring down his belongings (from the 16 years he's been rector at these two Adams, NY churches), and my belongings (accumulated over 30-ish years since I bought the Northampton house) is challenging, to say the least! Often during these hectic days I pause to remember our wonderful reunion and the many rich conversations with so many. It was really a blessed time."

Fiona Morgan Fein tells us she too has been busy. "Since reunion, I've been to Middlebury, VT to hear a performance of La Rondine with a friend singing the lead, to Columbus, Georgia for a guitar convention, to VT again to visit friends and go the Marlboro Music Festival, and to Cambridge, MA to celebrate the engagement of our eldest granddaughter. Am looking forward to an annual weekend visit with a group of classmates from Wells at the end of September. Other than that it's guitar playing and Wells board of trustee activities. I loved our reunion and all the ensuing communications/conversations."

Trika Smith-Burke has family news, as well as reunion memories. "I am happy to say that I am a grand-aunt once again. Elissa, my sister Cary's oldest daughter who lives in Washington with hubby, Josh, and two- and-a-half-year-old, Lane, just had another baby, Eleanor Righter Mahan. Cary arranged a big family reunion in Martha's Vineyard over the Labor Day weekend and I was able to meet Eleanor for the first time."

"I loved our reunion this year. Seeing Sheila and Peggy, whom we all haven't seen for so long, was so special. I hope we can encourage everyone to come back the next time we get together. Growing older does seem to have mellowed us all!"

My (Nancy Smoyer) summer was busy with three short trips to the East Coast, including the great reunion. I love the nail we were given from the beautiful old MFS building. And I also enjoyed throwing the lacrosse ball around with some of the girls on today's PDS team. The sticks are different, but the graceful motions of throwing and catching were all still there. We've just completed the 13th year of our Stand Down for veterans, which I've been organizing since the beginning. It's an event where veterans can get many needs met to help them lead healthy, productive lives. A lot of work, but well worth it. Next trips are the Amalfi Coast in September and then, I hope, Australia in January, on my own!

Julia Cornforth Holofcener commented, "Getting together with my past is always a very emotional experience. I was struck once again with the fact that we had, and still have, an amazing class." The Holofceners are headed for England once again at the end of November. "We're selling the 100-year old log cabin on our 23 acres of woods in West Virginia, so we're in the throes of packing up. I really should have taken out stock in a moving company years ago. We miss the European way of life, and, I hope, the Shakespeare commission will be made final soon. We're headed back to the Isle of Wight in any case. Larry is now checking out houseboats! Life is always an adventure!"

So it is. Let's make our next big gathering when we all (except Polly!) turn 70!

A note from Linda Maxwell Stefanelli written to classmates about their upcoming 50th reunion:

Okay, so as Eloise would say, here's the thing — we have a rather major reunion coming up in 2012. While we were oh so busily falling in love and raising children and pursuing careers and blazing trails that needed to be blazed, 50 years have gone by. And while anyone can see we're still impossibly young and involved, here's the thing of it: 50 years is a milestone and, oh my Lord, absolutely deserves the most fantastic party.

To which Carol Estey responded: "ohmygoodnessohmygoodness"

"I am in shock. Could it really be that it has been 50 years? 50 YEARS??????? Holy Well that's not very Eloise like, I am so very sorry but..."

"So, there is an outside chance I could actually make it to this thing. I can't believe it! It falls between graduation here and my summer dance program that actually begins that Monday, so it would be tight very tight but possible! So, for the moment let's say it's going to happen."

"ohmygoodness I can't wait! Keep me in the loop."

Many thanks to Linda Maxwell Stefanelli and Tassie Turkevich Skvir for agreeing to coordinate our 50th Reunion in 2012. It has been fun and exciting to read the enthusiastic responses to Linda's initial e-mail about the reunion. I'm hoping we will have a large turnout for this momentous event.

Kate Sayen Kirkland wrote: "2012 is very busy for me, too."

I am finishing a book — a biography of Captain James Addison Baker, who was the founding director of the Rice Board of Trustees (among other things) and served from 1891 to 1941, when he died. Right now I am in a crunch period trying to finish my final draft for the copy editor. Then there will be all sorts of other steps for the book and its publication in time for Rice University's Centennial — with a big celebration to commemorate the opening ceremonies that were held in October 1912. The first president (Edgar Odell Lovett) was recommended by Woodrow Wilson, then president of Princeton, and modeled many Rice institutions after reforms introduced by Wilson while Lovett was teaching there.

Sonia Bill Robertson kindly took the time to give us an update as she was heading out the door for North Carolina. "Our daughter, Carey, is moving to Chapel Hill, NC, where she has received a great fellowship to a doctoral program in social work. It is very exciting for her and very far away for us. She has spent two months at home, which has been bliss. We have had such a good time. Times made all the more special by the unspoken knowledge that days like these won't happen again for us. We are simultaneously gutting our kitchen and redoing the dining room, which requires me to have taken every single thing out of both rooms..... nightmare. It has taken forever and the logistics are frightening. Anyway the end result should be great provided we manage to get the color right.... silly pressure that really doesn't matter when thrown up against the mess in DC. We are leaving on Friday to help Carey move into her new apartment, which will be fun. She doesn't know a soul in Chapel Hill so if anyone has friends there.... please let me know."

Happily, Janice Millner Levy, Wendy Coppedge Sanford, and Kathy Elssasser Worthington have all said they will do their best to attend some of the activities for our 50th.

It was good to hear from Charlotte Stetson and Mary Liz Keegin Colley after a rather lengthy silence.

Charlotte wrote: "Hi to all of my class at MFS.... I am enjoying reading all your emails, and hoping I might be able to come to the reunion this year. 50 is definitely a hard-to-believe benchmark!!! Just remembering....I met you all in 6th grade when my family moved to Princeton. I had gone to a school my mother started (which meant I was basically tutored and the only one in my class), so 19 kids in Mrs. Conroy's 6th grade totally intimidated me. I was tall and sat in the back with you, Tassie. The first day (I will never forget), Win, you showed me where to go for milk and cookies in the basement, and where the bathroom was. KEY information and I have always tried to remember to do the same for others! Anyway, after that I remember tons of laughter and fun and I feel very lucky looking back. SO.... hoping to see you. And thanking you, Max, and all of you, for your good efforts to gather us together."

Mary Liz Keegin Colley wrote: "David and I are still doing photography and writing. We are now under contract for a book on the Frederick Law Olmsted/Calvert Vaux designed Prospect Park in Brooklyn, NY. We have always worked together but it was more that he would carry my heavy equipment on some assignments and I would copy edit his books. But on this project we have worked together from the concept on. It has been a stimulating, fascinating experience."

Susan Mathews Heard sent the following news: "Here is an update on what life is like in my post-retirement chapter.

"I loved working, but a 44-year career was enough! Bruce and I have stepped up our travels, and enjoyed a 34-day cruise in March as part of my one-year retirement celebration. We sailed from Ft. Lauderdale to Venice via the west coast of Africa, the Cape Verde Islands, the Gambia, Senegal, the Canary Islands, Morocco, several ports in Italy, Sicily, Serbia and Montenegro. It was fabulous! We also just returned from 10 days at the Salzburg Festival with colleagues on the Opera League of Los Angeles Board, arranged by a colleague from Salzburg. In addition to attending two operas, a wonderful concert, a Mozart matinee and an operetta, we were introduced to people and places most tourists never see. It was fantastic! I love serving on the Opera League Board, where my responsibility is to manage the cast dinners our volunteers prepare for the principals and chorus of each opera who can't go out for dinner in makeup and costumes. The LA Opera management, staff and orchestra members also attend these "family-style" dinners, which are special favorites of our director, Plácido Domingo. I also just completed "The Well-Plated Aria," a cookbook the League will sell to raise funds for LA Opera.

"In between trips, I also enjoy volunteering for several other music-related organizations, including the Board of Metropolitan Associates, a nonprofit that gives grants to Pasadena-area organizations that provide music education for children. I chair Pasadena Friends of Colburn, a new organization that raises friends and funds for The Colburn, a music school in Los Angeles that's quickly gaining international recognition for the excellence of its faculty and the achievements of its students. I also serve on The Colburn Development Committee. And I am managing our fall church benefit, which will have a strong opera influence!

"So you can tell that music is a major focus of my life. Some from Miss Fine's may recall that our Glee Club director asked me not to sing, but just to make the motions, in 7th grade. And I never kept up with my piano lessons. So in my retirement years I am finally feeding a long-hidden passion!"

"I look forward to seeing you in Princeton for our 50th!"

Cindy Brown wrote: "Our news is pretty ordinary, I'm afraid. We took a week-long trip to Yellowstone in the early spring to see the baby bison, elk, etc. I was shocked to find I was walking around in the caldera of a live volcano--why didn't I know that? We bought a couple of Kevlar canoes that one paddles like a kayak and are starting to explore some Adirondack rivers and lakes. We built Bruce a little studio next to our camp, so now he has to get to work on his printmaking. One granddaughter has joined the Army and is now in South Carolina in boot camp in temps over 100. I could never, never have done that."

I (Gail Cotton) just had a lovely 16-day visit with my Australian daughter-in-law and her two girls. We did a week at the YMCA Day Camp in Estes Park along with another two of my grandchildren.

The 14- year-olds got to go rafting and zip lining for the first time this year, which they enthusiastically embraced. On August 30 I had a total hip replacement and I am really looking forward to regaining my mobility. I have not enjoyed being slowed down!

terrific picture of 3 generations of MFS/PDSers. She looks wonderful as does her daughter, Meghan Hall Donaldson '89, and her granddaughter, Price Elizabeth Donaldson '24.

Kathy Sittig Dunlop has a full life in Orchid, Florida. Her husband Richard is the mayor. Kathy said, "I marvel that anyone wants to be in politics when there are so many unreasonable people out there. Too few people are actually willing to discuss issues and try to work together to seek reasonable solutions." Kathy is busy doing work as her sister's legal guardian, playing golf, and traveling. Most recently she was in San Francisco visiting friends and relatives. She is off to do a Mosel and Rhine trip in October. Both of their kids are living in Florida. Kathy asked if anyone was planning anything for our 50th reunion in 2013. Even though it's a year and a half away, we should all try to make the date. It would be wonderful to actually see each other after all this time.

That's what Laurie Rogers,

Pam Sidford Schaeffer, and I try to do once a year. This spring, we went to LA where Pam and Leonard hosted us at their home. Then we three took a road trip (I called it Thelma, Louise, and Alice) up to the Hearst Castle where Pam arranged for us to have a private tour. The docent was very impressed that we three had studied history with Sara Boutelle, the author of the major work on the Castle's architect, Julia Morgan. It was a great few days.

Pam and Laurie look younger every year! Of course, this trip was right before my cataract surgery (the best part of growing older is having cataracts removed); check back next year on how they really look. Pam and Leonard were in London in August. They celebrated their 43rd wedding anniversary there. They saw a production of War Horse, and Pam said it was fabulous. Much of the rest of the summer was given over to their grandchildren who visited them on Cape Cod. Daughter Jacqueline is working on a writing project for Disney. Son David is busy with his House of Air, a trampoline park in the Presidio in San Francisco.

Laurie also took to Santa Fe at the end of August. She also has been doing Zumba classes, and she finds it a great way to work out. She saw Anything Goes on Broadway and went to a ballet at Lincoln Center. Laurie also took as much advantage of the beach as she could this summer.

I also had a great summer. We had our annual week at the Oregon coast and also visited friends in San Francisco. We are off in late September to the Piedmont area of Italy and to the Italian Riviera.

I hope that all of our classmates are doing well, and I would appreciate hearing from everyone.

So here is the news: You can go to YouTube and plug in Sally Gilbert (known to us as Sally Stewart Gilbert) and hear her sing "You Go to my Head." Quite the delight.

Also on YouTube is Lauren Fortmiller speaking on Proposition 8 in Colorado. Lauren and her partner Pam Thiele have been very active in this work, and we are so grateful that they share their accomplishments with us.

You can find Ophelia Benson's eponymous blog, and you can find her book(s) on Amazon. Titles like Does God Hate Women? and Why Truth Matters? Peggy Woodbridge Dennis lunched with Marita Raubitschek Hopmann; a follow-up email elicited a fully fleshed out bio, which I will try to synopsise: after Marita left us she went to Palo Alto High, where she threw herself into pot making, and I love to think of her persuading her elders to take her to local shopping centers so that she could make pots for an audience! She graduated from Cal in 1968 and married Terry, whom she met in Princeton doing the Brothers Karamazov (for those of you keeping score, this was directed by my total high school crush George Blanchard, and I, Karen Fraser, was to be in it but got a poor grade in something-Latin, perhaps--what poetic justice, dear Marita--and so was forbidden to participate). Marita and Terry moved to Minnesota where she went to grad school in Linguistics and had two babies and taught in the Psych Department at Macalester (where our class friend Meg Harbison went) and then returned eastward, to Rhode Island and finally DC, where she has a wonderful job at the National Institute of Child Health and Development, which seems to synthesize all her experience and interests.

Next time perhaps a submission of poetry from Phoebe Russell Macadams Ozuna? Or photos? Dear friends, please do get in touch with me and let me know what's going on with you. Peggy, I'm sure, will have more acting news; and we would always welcome book recommendations for us all to read, and anything else you care to share. Much love for the fall.

Jimmy Kerney brought us up-to-date after noticing in the last issue of the Journal we could not reach him. He and his wife, Emmy, had lived for over 20 years in Tuxedo Park, New York, where Jimmy worked for, and retired from, Gannett Westchester Newspapers. They moved to Pittsford, Vermont, in 1986 to a house which Jimmy completely rebuilt and then nearly doubled in size.

Remodeling is more than enough for most of us, but Jimmy was also a part-time ski instructor at Killington and Pico (until his doctor suggested he give up skiing because of his knees), part-time gardener, and part-time sailor and worker on his sailboat. They moved to South Freeport, Maine in 2008 to be nearer their sailboat.

Also, Jimmy and Emmy enjoy frequent visits with their three married children and six grandchildren. Their older son, John, is headmaster of the Winchester School, a boarding school in Massachusetts. Their younger son, Jim, is an IBM sales executive. Their daughter, Elizabeth, is the assistant to the upper school head at Charlotte Latin School in North Carolina.

Jimmy also sent us a copy of a letter describing his and Emmy's remarkable visit with Bill Dorman (now deceased) and family:

"In September 2009, I received a phone call from Bill Dorman's daughter, Kim Schroeder (who lives in Princeton), informing me that her father had leukemia and had been given only two weeks to live. One of his requests was that Emmy and I visit him. We made quick arrangements to go to Ireland.

"When we arrived at Dublin, we were met by a contingent of his family and taken directly to the hospital to visit Bill. He raised his arm slightly in a greeting to us. He was anything but the robust William that we had known, and it was very disheartening to see him, for the first time in many years, in such a deteriorated condition.

"We spent several days visiting him in the hospital. He was gradually building a little strength, and his doctors and family made the decision to start intensive chemo treatments. During the time he was starting chemo, we traveled around Ireland for a week. His condition had improved slightly upon our return.

"Bill convinced his doctors that he needed to entertain us in his own home before we left to go home, and he was sprung from the hospital for a few hours for Sunday dinner. The visit and glass of wine did his spirits wonders, although he tired very quickly and asked to be taken back to the hospital before his allotted time was up. Subsequently he was allowed home for longer visits and then was discharged from the hospital.

"He did very well for several months; his strength improved and he was able to go about his business on his own. The doctors tried to treat him, but with no success. At his request he was taken home where he died with most of his family present."

Jimmy asks any classmates traveling in Maine to stop and visit at their home, 25 Spar Cove Road, South Freeport, ME, three miles off I-295 at Exit 17 (near LL Bean?). With advance notice, 207-865-1381, they might be able to offer their guest room and an outing on their boat (now a motor boat). Their mailing address is PO Box 306 and zip is 04078.

55th Reunion

Hello to everyone as we wend our way toward the 55th reunion. I got a note from Bob Smyth in which he reported that Staff Keegin had indicated that he will be there, was the first to write back after the "call to arms" note for our 55th. I will say again that the 50th far surpassed my expectations (and I believe those of others who attended) and I hope that before too much time runs out, many of the member of the class of 1957 will make a concerted effort to get back for that occasion. I will keep on dunning you!

From Bob Smyth: "In the last 6 months, I have celebrated my summer community's centennial, Princeton High School's class of 1960's 50th reunion (Gildar, Thompson, and Robson also in that class), and my athletic club's (Harrison Athletic Club) 50th reunion. The last celebration was the most recent (October) and notable in that of the 20+ guys who showed up, some came from Florida, Massachusetts, Maryland, Virginia, and upstate New York. The guy from Florida, in explaining why he came so far, told me that he didn't want to be morbid, but that playing sports for the club back in the '60's was part of his growing up in Princeton, and the friendships he developed then are still strong today, and he didn't want to pass up an opportunity to see the guys, because, quite frankly, you don't know if you'll see them again. A lot of the guys felt the same, and we agreed not to put 20 years between reunions (we had one in 1990). Anyway, our PCD '57 50th also was special, and we shouldn't wait too long before having another. May 2012 will be our 55th, and we should make an effort to get there. It will be sometime in the middle of May, and I will coordinate the arrangements. Those of you who attended the 50th in 2007 will recall how amazing it was to catch up with each other, after all those years. Those of you who couldn't get there will have another chance.

"My son, Rob, finished his junior year at Curry, making the Dean's List twice and being inducted into the Communications National Honor Society (his father's not too proud, right?).

From Rob Kuser: "Mary Kay and I visited Andy Harris in Portland, OR last weekend. We had a fabulous visit! Andy divorced recently so he is now living in Portland where he is a member of the faculty at the Oregon Health & Science University. He is educating doctors for work in underdeveloped countries."

I am sad to report the passing of Jerry Gildar's wife Chuckie on July 19. She and Jerry were married one week shy of 31 years. The full obituary is in the Town Topics (www.towntopics.com). Jerry's e-mail address is jgildar@aol.com.

Last night I was reading the Boston Globe Sunday Ideas section and ran across a brief interview with Paul Farmer, the noted physician who founded Partners in Health, an organization focused on "changing health care for poor people globally." The gist of the interview was on books he reads. Of course, the first one he mentioned was Adam Hochschild's new work, To End All Wars. He went on to mention a few others but said that Adam's book was his favorite: "I liked To End All Wars, the best in terms of learning things I did not know. I have read all of Hochschild's books. I love the way he writes."

I continue to teach as I enter my 37th year at Noble and Greenough. I still find the work stimulating. It provides me with so many different opportunities each year. Last spring I took, with a couple of colleagues, a group of 16 kids to Vietnam and Cambodia for over two weeks. This year, I am assisting the Varsity Girls soccer coach, something I have not done in over ten years. So I feel pretty fortunate to have a job that I still love. My youngest kid is on the college hunt.

No other news from graduates. I am hoping against hope that I will get more news for the next edition. You can call me, 781-326-8966 or send a note via email: tim_carey@nobles.edu. Best to all of you for a glorious fall!

"Anyway, Libby and I had lunch with Rob Carrick up in Ouray, CO. He is doing fine and planning a two-week trip to Paris after Labor Day. Evidently, his old email account was hacked so he changed it to robcarrick1@gmail.com.

The Alumni Office is saddened to report the sudden death of 2011 Athletic Hall of Fame Inductee Peter Morse on September 19 in Lagos, Nigeria. He collapsed on the squash court during his regular Friday night game. As his brother Bill '57 remarked at his memorial, "He stepped into Heaven playing one of the many sports he loved." A geophysicist by vocation, Peter was also a gifted teacher and coach who shared his athletic talent with players around the world. He was a gentleman with a sense of humor, a scholar, an adventurer, a lifelong athlete and, above all, a family man. The school joins his classmates in sending its deepest sympathy to his family: his wife, Melissa, and children, Meroe, Perrin and David.

Mark your calendars for May 17 and 18, 2012 as the great class of 1962 celebrates its 50th reunion. Not only is Lee Maxwell coming from Australia for the gala event, but he is also serving as a co-chair of the reunion along with Jock Baker and me. Rick Delano, Rick Eckels, John Gaston and Rod Myers are already planning to attend. We hope to invite members of the PCD classes one year ahead and one year behind (1961 and 1963), as well as, the Miss Fine's School classes of 1965 and 1966 to join us one night. Bud Tibbals and Wes McCaughan expect to attend. Hope to see you in Princeton in May. Let one of us know if you can make it. From Debbie:

Our 45th PDS reunion was terrific: present were the remarkable and beautiful Patty M, Mary B, Andrea H, Margery C, Sally B, Sally G, Sally L, Mettie W, Tera B, Susie B and moi. Two sister groupies from the class of 1968 also joined us, Lynn Behr Sanford and Mary the Bee Hyson. For those of you who could not attend, you can be assured that we missed you, and damn straight, we talked about you, too. Madame Cuyler's Barracks turned out to be THE perfect place for our gathering. Margery outdid herself for our Saturday dinner, providing warmth (a blazing fire going in the fireplace), cocktails and wines (we drank it all), delicious homemade dinner entrees and devastating desserts (we inhaled everything), and a final tour of her historic home, as she and John are selling it. It was our last chance to say goodbye to the historic house ghost, who used to appear when we had sleepovers at Margery's.

Margery, despite her newly found international fame as a judge on Celebrity Apprentice on the March 17 episode, deigned to give us all an up close and personal account of her experiences on the show with "the Donald." The teams' assignment was to write and perform a children's book. Margery, master children's story teller and author, acted as a team consultant, and then a judge for the final performances. Her highly entertaining description of the show's wardrobe and make-up staff preparing Margery for the show cannot be repeated here, but following her "make-over," she was literally pushed through a door (with no instructions whatsoever as to what to do or say) to face the likes of Meat Loaf, Star Jones, Dionne Warwick, John Rich, LaToya Jackson, Jose Canseco, Marlee Matlin, Lisa Rinna, Gary Busey, et al. She loved every moment, and all of us who watched her did too. We are all very proud of Margery!

Tera Belli Miles (who left us after 8th grade) and Mettie Whipple, neither of whom had been back to Miss Fine's or PDS since they left our class, were both welcome additions to our group. Tera, who had been living in Massachusetts with her husband and kids for many years, drove in from Lawrenceville, where she and her family are now living with her Dad, who needs extra care. Mettie, who had been attending a conference in the area, came down from Maine.

As for me, I was delighted to be at the PDS Reunion weekend, not only for my 45th, but to be with my brother, Randy Hobler '61 who was celebrating his 50th PCD reunion, with many of his classmates, who honored Bud Tibbals and Wed McCaughan by making them official members of the PCD class of '61. In addition, we all caught up with other reunion attendees, many of whom share a long family history of attending PCD, MFS and PDS; for example Hobler-Raymond-Smoyer (see picture) who account for a total of 12 brothers and sisters!

During the reunion weekend, Andrea, Sally Harries Gaudie and I signed up for a PDS tour to see how things have changed since 1966. The face of PDS, like our own 45 years later, has changed. The school has expanded tremendously, and were it not for our handsome junior class tour guide we would have been hopelessly lost. We felt as if we were on a college campus; PDS offers an impressive advanced academic curriculum, an incredible library, and a state-of-the-art visual and design arts programs, with a newly completed art wing that includes dedicated studios for ceramics and sculpture, painting, photography, woodworking, and architecture. I must sound like a shameless PR person, but we were truly excited by the experiences the school now offers. I am ready to go back for Round Two of PDS.

Dale Marzoni Kellogg and her skating coach.

Speaking of going to school, Dale Marzoni Kellogg's grandson Sebastian started Montessori School in Santa Fe in June, as Dale continues to stay in shape with her competitive ice dancing, and also acting as a judge at competitions. Since her retirement, she's accumulating a long list of new identities; ice dancer, grandmother, fabulous knitter, and also my personal favorite, "Chicken Lady at the Urban Farm."

Susan Bonthron's younger daughter, Anna, is in a post bac-pre-med program at Georgetown, hoping to attend medical school in the next year or two, while her older daughter, Caitlin, is living in San Fran and is an editor at Wired Magazine. Otter Pond Bindery is still Susan's book arts studio where she teaches, in addition to going to schools, libraries and other venues in New England. She and Gilbert, an antiques collector and restorer, also run a little self-housekeeping B&B in Guilford, VT, a restored 18th century schoolhouse. Read more about this at www.otter-pondbindery.com. You are all welcome to visit!

Hannah Blakeman '66 with granddaughter Jessie.

Hannah Blakeman's daughter, Virginia, is pursuing her master's in psychology, and son, John, has started up a shop of his own fixing cars and trucks. Her granddaughter, Jessie, described by Hannah as "one happy baby," continues to provide many hours of joy to the family. Hannah continues with her artwork.

Mettie Whipple's son, Arthur, is now in graduate school of engineering at UBC in Vancouver, while her daughter, Stephanie, teaches middle school in Toronto. Mettie and Nipper spent the summer gardening and sailing on their small English yawl with red sails, better known as a Dracombe Lugger. I am not making that up, although to me this title sounds more like a drink than a yawl.

'66 classmates, Mary Bilderback and Patty Morgan-Irigoyen.

Mary Bilderback continues to "teach full time, molecular and cellular biology, and genetics to bio majors, rather non-traditionally. I have the students do a lot of creative work, making bacterial, plant and animal cells out of colored foam sheets, beads and pipe cleaners and lots of glitter and whatever else we can scavenge. I have them draw the stages of mitosis and meiosis with shaving cream on the black lab benches. For weeks the lab smells like a barber shop." Mary has also been writing a lot about climate change, and human trafficking. She's attended a number of meetings at the UN where the Sisters of Mercy have NGO status, and are dealing with these issues. In her spare time, she gardens at the campus arboretum, and has taken up painting on silk, "the colors of the dyes are so intense and I am transported to a whole other plane."

Patty Morgan-Irigoyen reported that son, Morgan, is doing a dual BA/BFA program at the new School for Jazz and Contemporary Music in the village, and her husband, Mario, opened up his own psychotherapy practice with an office in Englewood, NJ.

Carol Bonner Clark wrote that she hosted two big family events this year: Ray's 60th birthday and her granddaughter, Carly's, 13th birthday. Ray's party theme was "Love to Ride" with everyone running around in flame bandanas with tattoos on their arms and wearing spiked leather jewelry. (Hey, just like my house!) Decorations included Harley balloons and cardboard stand-ups of well-known riders. Carly's a big fan of the "Twilight" movies, (her favorite character is Jasper), so for Carly's party, Carol filled her home with roses, twinkie lights, flickering candles, wolf prints, castle backdrops, capes and had Team Jasper t-shirts made for all the party guests. Perhaps we should put Carol in charge of our 50th reunion?

Sally Lane is just back from an exciting summer European tour with her family and her Mom, the original Sally Lane. I followed Sal's trip on Facebook as she left fabulous pictures of her travels, from Budapest to Athens.

Sally Kuser Lane '42, Sam Graff, Sally Lane '66, and granddaughter Nicole.

Sally Harries Gaudie '66 with her fourth grandchild, Clara Gaudie.

After Sally Harries Gaudie left our reunion, she readied herself for being a proud grandmother for the fourth time, and like clockwork, Clara Gaudie arrived in June, born to Sal's son, Dave, and his wife, Sam, in Scotland. Jack and Sally made the trip to be with the newborn and her family.

Following our reunion, I made a trip to NYC to visit a newly discovered relative of the Gilded Age artist, F.S. Church, about whom I am writing a book. When I arrived, my host, Tim Smith, whose grandmother's mother was Church's aunt (have you got that?), kindly showed me his collection of Church's illustrated letters and a number of paintings as we talked about art in general. At one point Tim asked me where I was born in California, and I responded, "No, I was born in Princeton." Then he said, "Oh, I grew up in Princeton too. I went to this little school, Miss Fine's School, and then PDS until the 8th grade." Talk about a small world. Needless to say, suddenly there was a whole lot more to talk about besides Mr. Church! Tim was an 8th grader (PDS '70) when I was a senior at PDS, had attended the class of '66's graduation, and literally lived a half mile down the street from me. Now, there is a great short story for my book.

Please enjoy your fall and winter, and keep in touch.

Julia Lockwood wrote: "My mother, Virginia Lockwood, died this past March at the age of 100! Some of those reading this column may have had her as their third grade teacher at Miss Fine's and later at PDS. She had a wonderful life and to the end was always cheerful and interested in everything around her. I've made several trips to Princeton since, to clean out the house. One of my trips coincided with the PDS reunion, and I went to the memorial service for those connected to the school who had passed away during this past year. It was a lovely service in the small courtyard in the center of the school.

Chris Otis was also honored in that service. I had a chance to take a quick tour of the school — what an incredible facility it has become! It reminded me of how lucky we all were to have the chance to go there.

"My life here in Maine continues along the same lines. Right now we're awaiting what Hurricane Irene will bring. My oldest daughter, Rachel, will finish a master's degree in American studies this fall and is deciding about the next step — job or more school. Shradha is returning with happy anticipation to St. Joseph's for her second year of college majoring in environmental studies, and Priyanka is off to seventh grade. When I read of other classmates with grandchildren, I wonder — what took me so long???? I had the pleasure of visiting with Jennie Bergerhoff and her daughter, Corie, this summer as they came up to Maine again for a week. Corie and Priyanka had a great time together. They're almost like cousins. We had a great time visiting Jennie's sister, Beth Bergerhoff '69, and her husband, Ricky, who live up near Augusta. Jennie's son, Arthur, is off to college in Florida this fall. I look forward to reading about what everyone else is up to these days. Our 50th reunion will be in 2017. Wow, hard to believe!"

Weezie Huntington wrote: "My husband and I took off on June 29 for a cross-country adventure in our 30' motor home. We needed to reach Yosemite National Park by August 10 as my husband was starting his volunteer job on the 11th. He's a 'roving' interpretive ranger. My volunteer job as campground host started August 24. This is something we had talked about doing for years before retirement.

"Our trip took us through some amazing places, and allowed us to catch up with a lot of college friends along the way. We turned a 3,000-mile trip into a 4,500-mile trip. Great fun!

"In the middle of all this, I flew home to Hopewell, NJ to buy a car for my youngest son, who was at the time living in Los Angeles. I drove the car across the country for him (am I nuts???), met up with him in Denver, and got him established at the University of Northern Colorado, where he seems very happy.

"We expect to be back in NJ in October, but will leave again in January to visit all the places that are too hot in the summer, like Death Valley, Joshua Tree National Park, etc.

"While we're on the road, my older son, his wife, two kids and two dogs, have moved into our place; it is free rent for them and an occupied house for us. He's a diesel mechanic at a truck stop in Bordentown. The best part of the whole deal is that when we're home, we get to live with our granddaughters, with whom we are in love.

"This past spring I did a lot of walking with Woody. I missed that as soon as she went up to Maine."

Marta Nussbaum Steele wrote: "My daughter, Liza, published a paper that received an annual award from the American Sociology Association in the category of children-related subjects. I continue to write, as time permits, and have a book half-done; I'm trying to get back to work on it. I'm a full-time freelancer for Oxford, so spare time is at a premium, and I can't mainline coffee the way I used to — the winged chariot is relentless. I'm applying to publishers anyway.

"I continue to enjoy my adorable grandnephew. He's as smart as he's athletic and there's no rest for the weary."

Phoebe Knapp Warren wrote: "I just installed a sculpture for the new Bozeman Sculpture Park, which opened August 27 behind the public library in Bozeman, the first sculpture park in Montana. The kids and Paul are fine. Andrew has his master's degree in architecture and is working in Massachusetts, and Nathalie is getting her master's in social work at the University of Texas at Austin."

Susan Fritsch Hunter wrote: "We've had an eventful summer here in Connecticut, ending with an earthquake and Hurricane Irene! Thankfully, the hurricane brought no loss of life in my town or in the towns I cover for the newspaper. But four days without electricity is something I hope I won't experience soon again!

"My husband, Bill, is heading back to his teaching year, and Becky is a high school senior and is planning several college trips this fall. Joycie graduated from Colorado College in May and has headed out to San Francisco to start a job search. Lauren is working toward her master's degree as a nurse practitioner in psychiatric nursing and is working at Massachusetts General Hospital. She is engaged to Ryan Collier; they plan to marry in May.

"I know our class joins me in sending condolences to Julia Lockwood and her brothers, Steven and Bill, on the death of their mother, Virginia Lockwood. I know I share memories of her with others — teaching in her classroom at Miss Fine's and hosting us through the years at her Jefferson Road home. We miss her, but we celebrate her 100 wonderful years of life."

From Mary:

Rick Ross reported that he and his wife, Judy, were in Ireland this past June for two weeks. He wrote: "great weather, golf, country and sea. Mighty fine whiskey as well, if truth be told, with appreciation for Redbreast, Blackbush, Tullamore Dew and Midleton's older than all of us! We visited with George Packard and wife. with the ferry running out of Baltimore. They are not far from Fastnet Light and Mizen Head — the last sights emigres saw on their way to Boston and New York. Packard had a stroke about a year ago but is doing quite well, all things considered. Mind is sharp and he just finished a new book, "Modernity" that he published with Gail Smith Cleare (G+G Publishing). It was preceded by "Rescue" — it's autobiographical about his time in the Coast Guard. He asked to be remembered to the class and to those in '69 who he coached on the girls basketball team with Peter Sears. Packs had planned to move to Lanzarote where he intended to while away the hours at a seafront café (more than 30 years on an island in the ocean seemed to have mellowed his need to be apart. That and the fact that he was 79 and knew it.) (editor's note: this was written before learning that George Packard passed away in September 2011.)

Leigh Keyser Phillips sent me greetings from snowy Vermont in January. She noted: "Peter and I are starting to get tired of the Vermont winters (especially this year!) and so have started spending more time in our Lake Wales, Florida home. This year we finally joined a club, and Peter is spending most of the winter down south, since he can work from anywhere. I am commuting back and forth from Vermont and telecommuting for my legal practice when in Florida. We both are continuing to work on our golf game (Peter progressing faster than I am). I am still on the board of the Flynn Center for the Performing Arts in Burlington, but have finished my term on the YWCA of VT board. However I have taken on the task of co-chairing the committee rewriting the VT non-profit corporation statute, just to be sure that I don't have too much free time on my hands.

"Since the marriage of our daughter, Hally, in 2007, she and Jon have become parents to Clara Elizabeth, born June 29, 2010. Our first grandchild! We were very lucky to be able to get to Atlanta within 24 hours of her birth. Clara is, of course, adorable! Their family has moved to Boston. We are very happy that they are closer to us, so that we can see Clara grow.

"We welcome anyone who is passing through Vermont or Lake Wales, FL or Marion, MA to stop by and visit. Just give us some notice, as we may be off traveling to see the kids!"

I got a note from Beth Schlossberg in March: "I just returned from a two-week trip in Thailand to celebrate my 60th (I don't know how it happened, but it did.) I continue to work full time at the clinic while building my counseling practice. Slow, but I push onward. Otherwise, all is well. Recovering from a fractured shoulder, planning some summer getaways and keeping an open heart." No more broken bones, please!

What a lovely surprise to hear from Ingrid Selberg in May. She's certainly a proud Mama. She went to California to witness her daughter, Maya, graduate from Berkeley.

"Maya has an internship set up for this summer at the Museum of Fine Arts in Houston. My son has a new job in TV and just bought an apartment not far from us, so we see him often. I will try to make the next BIG reunion." (That's only 2 years from now!)

OKAY. I think it's time to do a little promotional plug here for Lisa Lawrence. She recently created a lovely brochure, highlighting her work in painting, sculpture, drawings, murals and dream painted furniture. You can access her work by going to "7thheavenstudiogallery.biz" — including posters and note cards.

Just before the deadline for me to get the class notes sent off to PDS, I got a delightful email from Michael Linda Hart. What good timing! She writes from Petaluma, California: "I look a good deal older now, but essentially the same. I have some challenging back complaints, so there is no more social dancing. But I still take a couple of ballet classes, do yoga, and walk/hike 2-3 times a week."

"Both of my sons are out of the house, being in their twenties now, but I walk most Fridays with one and the other comes for a night every other week, usually; so I feel cared for and beloved. I still travel - a month in the London flat every even year and a new country every odd year (it was Cuba, with my older son last March - amazing). I still teach and learn wonderfully as I do so. I'm on my third novel (but haven't attempted to publish any - you gotta save something for your seventies, no?) LOVED turning 60. I can finally just be old without contradiction. And I get in cheap at the movies, our first senior discount. Looking forward to getting some of my hard-earned money back from SS starting next year..."

"I so enjoyed our 40th reunion yearbook, and visiting with Pam Aall McPherson and Ann McClellan and all in DC a couple of years ago. I really think MFS/PDS was as much family as my own family in some ways. I was there so long!"

Your scribe would like to share the news of the arrival on May 20, 2011 of Elliot, our second grandson and brother to 3½-year-old Nate. The newest member of the Hyson family visited his great grandparents, Herb and Randy Hobler. (see photo) What fun!

Thank goodness for Allison Gilbert Kozicharow; otherwise we wouldn't have any news... She wrote: "My daughter Maggie married David Spak in July--on a record-setting day of 103 degree heat. The wedding was small, but we did have in attendance Hilary Martin, husband, Kevin, and children, Amanda and Trevor, along with Debbie Lawrence and husband, Peter Clinton. Luckily, the service and wedding were inside. We had such a joyous time and danced the night away. Maggie and David bought a house just 15 minutes away, which is great. I am now dreaming of becoming a grandmother sometime in the not too distant future. My daughter Nicky is working on her PhD in Russian art history at Cambridge

Dear Class of '78 and other readers who are interested in hearing about middle-aged pursuits: thanks to the miracle of technology and "the Facebook" as my mother calls it, I have hounded, pestered, and otherwise harassed many of you for news. Luckily, some of you took pity on me and below are your very gracious replies. It is nice to know that at the half-century mark, some of us still don't seem to be acting our age though somehow we seem very grown up.

Lydia Thompson Fox wrote of weather challenges in her particular corner of California: While the rest of the country dealt with extreme weather conditions this year, epic rains, snowstorms, tornadoes and of course a massive hurricane, here in La Jolla we had.....EXTREME cloudiness. Our beach days have been SEVERELY impacted...people have had to take refuge in tanning booths and heated pools due to unseasonably cool conditions of 68-72 degrees. Tourists have been forced to flee as far as five miles inland to find more sunny conditions. But despite these adverse conditions surfers and bikini-clad babes bravely plunged into the surf - willing to suffer the goose

Ellen Sussman '72

PRINCETON DAY SCHOOL WAS DELIGHTED to host a reading with Ellen Sussman to celebrate the publication of her new novel, French Lessons. The reading took place on Monday, July 25, in the Matthews Art Wing Courtyard, with a great turnout from the community. French Lessons explores how a single day in Paris changes the lives of three Americans as they each set off to explore the city with a French tutor, learning about language, love and loss, and won rave reviews from People Magazine and Entertainment Weekly. Ellen's first novel, On a Night Like This, was a San Francisco Chronicle bestseller, and has been translated into six languages. She teaches through Stanford Continuing Studies and in private classes out of her home, and lives with her family in the San Francisco Bay Area. www.ellensussman.com bumps to maintain the SoCal lifestyle! Who says San Diegans don't have grit! (Note: I saw Lydia last Thanksgiving at the Nassau Inn and she could give any bikini-clad babe a run for her money...)

It is always great to hear from Sheila Mehta who lives in Norman, Alabama.

"I am bowing gracefully to pressure and will try to give you some news. Both of my children attend the city public schools and my 11th grader is in the IB (international baccalaureate) program and loving it - theatre and creative writing are her passions. My seventh grader enjoys soccer and has just started playing my 36-year-old trumpet that I played in the PDS orchestra. He is the only one in his school band who has a heavy, ancient leather case for his instrument, a fact that does NOT make him happy! I agreed to be the director of clinical training for our psychology graduate students, for which I get no compensation or teaching reduction, but, hey, I have a job and love it, so I am very lucky."

Another Californian Jeffrey Swisher wrote: "Actually have been pretty busy. Henry is off to college at St. Andrews. Far away. I am flying over with him and then taking a road trip with my Mom around northern England. Should be exciting. Peter and Kate are well and back to school. Dana is still teaching 1st grade and I am working to pay for it all."

He also seems to be seeing things on the television - namely Jay Itzkowitz. He said: "I think I saw Jay on the telly with one of those Molotov cocktails in hand running down the street in Tottenham. Or was that a Gibson in a bar in Chelsea?"

Jay doesn't seem to quite fit that profile. This is his dispatch from London: "Hi to all - we are happy in Notting Hill - London continues to be exciting, fun place to live despite riots, banking crisis, etc. Older daughter entering junior year at Harvard, younger one is entering last year at St Paul's Girls School - she is ranked number one UK women's sabre fencer, recently won British Youth Championships, captain of UK under 20s at the world championships in Jordan this summer - very cool girl! I continue at Cantor Fitzgerald, where we have completely rebuilt the firm 10 years on from 9/11, but still honor our missing colleagues."

Siri Huntoon sent along this great update: "Hugo (my eldest) just started high school, and is very into his violin, learning German, and he actually likes math. My younger boy, Owen, is in 5th grade and totally into arty things - making Lego movies, customizing Legos, drawing manga, and loathes piano practice. As for me, I will let my Harry Potter t-shirt speak for me 'I solemnly swear I am up to no good'; no, seriously, as usual doing graphic design very part time, various other projects, attempting to start exercising a bit! I'm so terrible about talking about work but really am proud of one thing - just finished a pamphlet series design and logo for The Literary Lab at Stanford, for Professors Franco Moretti and Matthew Jockers - innovative new project that studies literature quantitatively."

Sabrina Barton had a great summer. She wrote: "My family spent the summer in Oxford, England, where my husband Phil was teaching. Plays, punting, plenty of pints, and a reprieve from triple-digit Texas heat (and from Rick Perry). Lucky me."

Wells Coalfleet said he found this news note when someone pushed it under his door. What could he do but pass it along?

An unreliable source indicates that an impromptu reunion of sorts occurred last summer deep in the Adirondacks. Participants are reported as John Rodgers, Wells Coalfleet, Lucky Pyne, Peter Morgan, Will Stackpole, Alec Beaver, Dave Buhler (Moose), Chris Winham, Peter Mitnacht, Rob Proctor, Chris Russo '77, Bill McKelvy and Randy Symington '77. It is widely opined that considerable debauchery ensued despite the advanced age of the participants.

Alice Lee Groton has turned into our class jock. Makes me feel like I am standing still. Okay... this just in... "I won the women's tennis singles championship at our little club in Stonington yesterday and John and I won the mixed doubles today!! Brought home a lot of hardware!!! And you've probably already heard about John and me going to Nationals in Tucson with our 8.0 USTA team in November. I've been basically playing a lot of tennis. Heading to Princeton in October for Dad's 95th birthday." (Note #2: Saw Alice last spring and she is exactly the same lovely, funny person we all remember...)

Greg Morea sent us this update (nice to hear from him though my remark about us all hitting 50 seemed to have struck a nerve): "On the subject of feeling old (50+), our son, Joseph, is now out of RPI with a degree in computer science. He is working full time as an engineer at Electric Boat; the same place I've been at for the past 28 years (again, feeling old). Our daughter, Rebecca, is now in her third year at RPI, and she has spent the past two summers working, where else, but at Electric Boat. My wife, Barbara and I celebrated our combined half-century birthdays (more old) in Hawaii last December. We're also finding that empty nest (last time, OLD) agrees very well with us.

On a sadder note, my mother, MaryAnn Connell, passed away in May after a six-month battle with cancer. We're spending a bunch of time in New Jersey these days trying to settle her estate so I am revisiting much of my childhood."

We send our condolences to Greg and to his family.

Tom Gates reported: "Son Ren graduated from St. Lawrence this Spring, Sheridan is a sophomore at Bucknell, and I am really enjoying my new company, Mortgage Master, where a partner and I opened a branch in Princeton in May of 2010. For you out of towners, please stop in to say hi at 215 Nassau Street. My wife, Tracey, is somehow involved at PDS, you may have heard from her. :) We are so blessed to be looking forward to our 25th anniversary next August."

This nice update came in from Lucy Englander Brinster: Here is my news: John and I are working as hard as ever at a job that we love at Cruise Holidays of Flemington, and we encourage everyone to contact us on Facebook for their future travel plans...cruise, land and custom vacations! At home, our oldest son, Kyle, graduated from Lehigh this May, and is actively seeking employment, while his younger brother, Jeremy, is starting his junior year at UPenn. He just returned from a summer studying Arabic in Morocco, spent a week and a half at home and then headed back to school. It is interesting having "adult" children. I continue to play tennis, work, travel, and my newest venture will be joining the PDS Alumni Board this year, so watch out, you may be hearing from me! All my family are PDS alums! John '75, Kyle '07 and Jeremy '09.

When I saw the lovely Alice Groton last fall, it was at a dinner with Jennifer Johnson Eddy. We had a blast catching up. She wrote me this update: "We did move to a farm in Ipswich, MA that we have been building for about 2 years. We built the barn and chicken coop (Jen the hen!) first and the animals have been there for a year. I have a 16 year old son at Proctor. His name is Gibbs and was a CIT at Chewonki this summer. I have a 15 year old daughter named Dale (after my mom who died of cancer one month before Gibbs was born. She is 15 and attends Pingree. My youngest is Eliza who is 13 and is an 8th grader at Brookwood. The girls are into horses like their Mom and we spend our time eventing in the summer. We have a house in Woodstock, Vt. And spend a lot of time up there riding and skiing. Tom is a venture capital guy and works out of the house. I spend my time driving kids everywhere and volunteering for Journal is published. Or at the very least I will have time to make something up. Thanks again to everyone who wrote to me. It is a real pleasure to hear from so many classmates. If anyone wants to send along any news, my email is: allisoni@comcast.net.

Greetings, fellow '79ers. Cathy White Mertz and I (Martha Hicks Leta) have heard from a few of you this time around and by all accounts it would appear our classmates continue to take on new and exciting challenges, proving activist Betty Friedan's assertion that, "Aging is not lost youth, but a new stage of opportunity and strength."

Former class secretary Nick Donath wrote: "I just finished year one at William S. Boyd School of Law in Vegas. It's been great, but definitely requires some energy. Also still working in the real estate biz, but the plan is to start career #3 sometime in 2013! I saw Gordon Rubinfeld and his family last month and it was just like yesterday. Ruben's mom remembered me dancing with her at Evan's wedding. Sorry, Evan, but I barely even remember your wedding. I hope you do....(or maybe not?) But I think it was inaccurate—I danced with Gordon's mom at GORDON's wedding, not Evan's...but I still really don't remember either event too well. Gordon is still married to Sarena Seifer and they live in Toronto."

Ben Dubrovsky wrote: "Life in Lincoln, MA is pretty stable. Alice and I and our kids (Sarah, 11, Becky 9 1/2) spent a great deal of our summer at Valley Pond, the local swimming hole. The kids are dutifully getting in practice to be teenagers -- studying up on the finer points of surly facial expressions and other forms of non-violent resistance, while still craving the comfort of a parental hug when they need reassurance. I choose to see this as smart kids practicing their experimental psychology on us. I hope they don't find a publisher.

"On the professional front, I still enjoy being a Strategic User Experience designer, but am considering becoming an independent consultant. Alice still works at MIT doing communications." [We have no idea what a "User Experience Designer" is, but it sounds like something out of Aldous Huxley and definitely more like Dr. Joe Lapsley's field of expertise before he got all respectable and took up history.]

On a more somber note Ben adds, "My mom has been up in the Boston area at a residential facility for Alzheimer's disease since early in 2007. She is physically fit and doing as well as can be expected. At her facility, she developed a special friendship with a man named Bill Guthrie who, ironically, was born in Princeton and graduated from Princeton Country Day in approximately 1943. Bill passed away in June. If such a thing as personal angels really exist, Bill was mine. He helped my mother ease into her surroundings with statements like this: 'Once you read Chekhov, you never recover.' The best gift my mom still gives is humor. She told my brother that I stop in to see her whenever I go visit that 'other woman' I'm seeing in Boston."

Jane Henderson Kenyon has added the title of "Insanely Busy Shop Owner" to her previous title of "Massively Busy Real Estate Broker, Mom and Wife." She sends her best to all and wrote: "My husband, Kevin, and I have three children (Isabelle '87, Taylor '89, and Jack '94) who all went to PDS at some point." (Note: the years given for Jane's kids are their birth years, not their graduation years. Yeah, that would have been a neat trick, right?)

Speaking from a parent's perspective, Jane says of PDS, "It's a wonderful place and so fun to have had more than one of [our kids] have Ms. Grigger for I.P.S. (not what they call it anymore) and Mr. Walker for math or Mrs. Michaels for English.

"We live in Hopewell (a mile from where I grew up) and I am very active in my family's real estate business. So if you want to move back to Princeton (or you or your family are still here and just want to move), call me. I'd love to help!

"My daughter and I opened a store a year and a half ago and the month after we opened she moved to Hong Kong, having gotten a job with Barclays. We miss Isabelle, but it is a fun, high-end consignment shop, with lots of local artists represented and a great vintage Princeton area as well. Check us out when you are in town. We hope to have an e-store by early 2012. Seriously, I'd love to see/hear from any of you anytime!"

Be sure to check out Jane's gorgeous store or web site. More information at www.janeconsignment.com

Former class co-secretary and all around mensch, Evan Press, privileged us with a report, though it's abundantly clear he's still in the throes of the sizable Zeus Complex he picked up during the fifth grade play. (He implied he'd rain down bolts of lightning and a pox upon my people if I didn't comply with his list of demands: "I want it verbatim, Hicks...or there will be Hell to pay!") So here it is as commanded—random capital letters, superfluous ellipses and all:

"Whilst I have found myself forced out of office, [as class secretary] it definitely leaves me with more time to devote to playing baseball, coaching hoops and Baseball, umpiring HS Baseball, and working on my Cirque Du Soleil audition routines...If Joe Lapsley and Neighborhood Texture Jam ever play again in Memphis (they will), I expect several PDSers to join me there. They are fantastic and an ineluctable experience. (Google NTJ and ineluctable...)

"Daughter Hartley is now 12 and still dancing away. (Ballet and Jazz.) Of a possible 60 'grades' thru 6th grade, she has 58 As and 2 Bs...very proud. Son Nevin is now 9 and makes every all-star team in Baseball and also plays on a 'competitive' team in Basketball. But he has yet to watch any sports on TV or live. Laura, it's killin' me. He has made Honor Roll every time available to him as well. I love them all my heart. Now, bug off."

[Bowling and scraping like Dobby the House Elf as I back away...Oh, and he made me call him a 'mensch' before: "No...u gotta frickin' say it..."]

I realized that in the last report I forgot to include my own news.

'78 classmates Jennifer Johnson Eddy, Allison Ijams Sargent and Alice Lee Groton at dinner in Boston.

a therapeutic riding stable, and the three schools my kids attend. On board of an equestrian non-profit in VT too. I am happiest hanging with my family, riding, eating, walking puggle Beeper and planning next adventure!"

As for me, I am more than fine. But beginning to be a bit of a bystander on the parent front. Don't those kids know they need me? Hmm, not so much. I guess it's time for Chapter Two...or is it Three? With luck, I'll know what that is by the time the next

The not-so-new is that I continue to live in southeastern Massachusetts with my husband of twenty years and our two daughters (ages 16 and 12) and our very eccentric wheaten terrier. I've recently begun working for a small marketing firm as liaison between a group of Fitness Together personal training studios and the American Diabetes Association. The job combines writing and research with fitness, and part of my pay consists of two hours of mercilessly grueling, one-on-one training per week. I can attest with absolute certainty that at this age there is decidedly more pain than gain.

And finally, we have some very sad news from Director of Alumni Relations, Tracey Gates, who wrote to report the passing of our classmate David Mantell. David passed away from colon cancer. He was living in Chicago with his wife and daughter. If you would like to send a note to David's wife, Sonia, and daughter, Gabriela, their address is:

Sonia and Gabriela Mantell
2633 N. Francisco Ave
Chicago, IL 60647

And after this news came out, Laura Farina shared some memories. "Greetings to all classmates. I'm writing this from a Starbucks in DC on a surprisingly nice and seasonal day, (80s, not 100!) Just drinking my favorite americano w/soy and listening to Bruce on the ipod. Brings back memories of high school and college. How I miss The Big Man Clemons and sad to learn the news of our classmate David Mantell. He was always so kind to me---that's what I remember. Possessed a formality that few of us had at 17. I just want to give you all a shout out and hope you are enjoying your day. The years pass but we don't forget. xo Laura"

Carrie Stewardson Thorne will had a great time this past summer with lots of family visiting. "Swimming, sailing, surfing are the three S's of life on the 'rock.' Now it's time for the three R's as Wes is going into first grade at the Nantucket New School. So exciting! Hope everyone had a good summer and if anyone ever gets out here, give us a call. October 1st is the start of the scalloping season and is a beautiful time to visit.

Phil Berger: "My wife and I spent a week in Barcelona this summer. Very cool city. I was able to do laps everyday in the Olympic pool and really enjoyed that activity. Also, raced my Flying Scot (19-foot center board sailboat) in the Avalon regatta in the ocean, and plan to race the Greater NY District Championship in Stone Harbor in October. Other than that fun, I am spending a lot of time in courts in Pennsylvania and New Jersey litigating cases for clients... lots of litigation and

Suzanne Utaski Gibbs: "In June of this year we moved away from beautiful Napa, CA after 11 years! I now live in Tustin in Orange County, CA with my husband of 19 years. My children, ages 14 and 12, are off at boarding school; Colby chose Stevenson School in Pebble Beach and Jeffrey chose Hawaii Preparatory Academy. This fall I returned to school at Claremont Graduate University to work on my MFA. I also opened a shop in downtown Old Town Tustin called Orange Oak Studio - a place for Fine Art, Fun Art and Art Workshops."

From September 2010 (better late than never):

Ebe Metcalf: "Big news here is that I am moving the family to Madrid for a couple of years. I want to make sure Josephine (9) and Win (6) realize the whole world is not Northern California. Business continues as usual, Erik Ott and I working on wireless technology deals."

Sylvia Wills Millar wrote that her second book, The Authentic Woman's Guide to Courtship and Marriage, was published last summer. She is working on her doctorate in Divinity in 2011. Life is good. Her daughter, Lauren, is 10 going on 15 and her daughter, Annabelle is 9, and into soccer big-time. She hopes to see everyone at the next reunion!

Class of 1983 classmates Stephen Schluter and Ebe Metcalf with their families on vacation in Ireland.

Keri Sheehan Putnam: "I'm still living in Los Angeles with my husband and two kids, who are both in high school now. In 2010, I started a new job as Executive Director of the Sundance Institute. I'd love to see some indie movie fans from PDS at our film festival this year."

Frits Besselaar: "We are fortunate to be able to be in Bermuda each year in August and have formed many long-lasting memories here."

From Arianna:

Christine Grounds sums up what this year meant for many of us: "It's the year of 40." Christine being Christine, she celebrated the milestone in great style at a party in New York at the Standard Hotel along the Highline. "I said goodbye to my 30s with a big ass party of 100 or so of my nearest and dearest, including Arianna, Liz Hare, and Jeremy Rothfleisch. Mr. Bing was also in attendance, and he is doing just great. He looks the same, though he might say he has a little more grey hair." (Then again, don't we all.)

While we're talking about amazing teachers, Courtney Shannon continues to ensure the youth of today will have a better tomorrow. When she wrote she was "starting two new jobs this week. I am teaching the junior kindergarten class at Princeton Junior School in the mornings and working as a site coordinator for Princeton Young Achievers in the afternoons. Should be a busy but exciting year!"

Liz Hare, with whom I keep in regular touch, sent this: "Early last spring, I was sitting in Eataly in New York with Arianna and my sister when Julia Herr walked right by our table with a colleague. Julia looked extremely professional in a business suit. (I think I was wearing sneakers.) A fun chance encounter! In July we did our annual road trip down to SC for a July 4th for a reunion with many of my husband's college friends and families. No alums, but I wrote about our retreat for Arianna's travel website, Fathom. I also received a baby announcement from Laura Heins and her husband, Jay; they had twin boys in January. In August I returned home for a week and did some great catching up with Landis Greathouse, Jenny Hawkes '86 and Courtney over separate coffees, dog walks, lunches, and dinners. Jenny mentioned that Tim Hawkes '89 was heading home for Lambros Xethalis's wedding, coinciding with the start of hurricane Irene."

Julia did look totally lawyer chic. As for life beyond the blazer, she says: "I am enjoying life in NYC and being general counsel at an investment management firm. Ryman (6) and Sawyer (3) are more and more fun everyday. Scott continues to build Biscuits & Bath, his business focusing on fun and happiness for dogs. They are opening more NYC locations and looking to franchise nationally, so if there are any PDS entrepreneurs who love dogs, check out www.biscuitsandbath.com. Other PDS news? I recently saw Deirdre Griesinger '89 and her new husband, who have settled in Milwaukee. Landis Greathouse has also resurfaced in Princeton."

That made for two sightings of the notoriously elusive Landis in the Garden State, so I emailed to see if she was truly back from the wilds of Aspen. She wouldn't confirm whether she had changed her email address from "lsgaspen" to "lsgjersey," but she did say this: "Tis true. Despite hurricanes and whatnot, I made it back home and am finally settling in my new abode. Still unpacking but can't wait to get into the city soon to see you! I'm living in apartment in Lawrenceville. The job is next on the list. No idea what my next career move will be, which is fun but scary. Just needed a change from what I was doing in Colorado." Landis, it's great to have you back.

From Collins Roth: "I had the pleasure of catching up with our venerable class correspondent over dinner and a drink at a couple of trendy spots in London earlier this summer, and had dinner two nights in a row with the elusive Indian Jeans himself (Brit Eaton) in less trendy Washington, D.C., soon thereafter. Both proved remarkably good dinner companions who have come a long way (thankfully the right way) since the good ol' days on The Great Road. Life is otherwise fairly dull." He's right; we had a great time at dinner in the other Soho, and Brit also reported that he had a great time in DC. But Collins is lying about the dull bit: He was in London on a cross-global pitstop for his fund, which does interesting (and dare I say, important) developmental work in really emerging markets throughout Africa and Asia. If I had a few million spare bucks to invest...

Brit Eaton can always be relied upon to check in from some remote corner of the world, and he didn't fail: "Greetings from Peru! Cusco is one of the coolest cities on the planet. Highly recommend everyone visit en route to Machu Pichu. Been here a week, got another week, then off to Chile and Easter Island. Ancient Worlds 3D airs on Discovery in October. Check it out; it's gonna kick ass." That's the TV show he's been working on around the world. Discovery, while we're making the world as small as possible, is where Kit Greenberg Herrera is working. Let's pause and wind our brains back to Ancient History in Colross with dear old Mr. McCaughan. Would he ever have predicted this for Brit?

No, but the theater department might have imagined this for Jeremy Rabb: "I'm playing a cross-dressing priest on an episode of Weeds that airs September 26th, and a normal-dressing Sir Andrew Aguecheek in Twelfth Night on stage at A Noise Within throughout the fall, which is having its inaugural season in Pasadena. You can check out more at <http://anoisewithin.org>."

From Dawn Fukuda: "In August we enjoyed a week on the New Jersey shore with my family-

-memories include both the earthquake and hurricane as vacation highlights, topped off with an evacuation of LBI. Before we were exiled from the island by force due to the impending floods, we had a great beach day with Abby Zimskind and her adorable kids. Abby and I also had dinner recently with Kate Baicker '89, who also lives up here in the Boston area. I recently returned from a trip to Geneva where I spent a week at UNAIDS participating in a consultation on HIV transmission and criminalization policies. Right now I am busy supporting an extraordinary Massachusetts candidate for federal Senate, Bob Massie, and I was thrilled when I met his wife Anne Tate at a recent function and learned she is also a PDS alum from the class of 1975."

Back to globetrotting with our man in South America, diplomat Marc Collins: "The only truly new news with us is that I'm dusting off my tennis game, finding it is not as easy as it used to be, and get a lot of mileage on the courts out of telling the tale of how I played in high school with the infamous Menezes brothers. I am admittedly unsure the Journal will welcome this last bit." When I asked if he was still living in DC, he said, "Yes, when I'm not in Colombia, Brazil, or Chile. I joke that I've stopped telling people that I 'live' in DC but rather that my family and office are in DC, because I 'live' on board the direct Avianca flight between Dulles and Bogota."

As for me, life is pretty much revolving around my new business, the travel website FATHOM (<http://www.fathomaway.com>). And no, I am not traveling much, except to London with my English husband and to Trenton for dinner with my dad at Chick and Nello's. The sad truth about starting a travel website is that you need to spend a lot of time at your desk. I look forward to the gallivanting glamorous part of this business. In the meantime, I'll be seeing Kit next week at my best friend's birthday party, and I hope Jessie Robertson Wilt as soon as we can coordinate a dinner. Thanks to everyone who wrote in, check in with us on Facebook, and have a great winter.

The class of '91 celebrated our 20th reunion this year, capped by a party thrown by Aly Cohen at her lovely home in Cranbury.

Fanya Stansbury threw a rooftop barbecue at her Chelsea apartment in August. Aly commandeered the grill while Fanya and her husband, Michael Gallo, led the guests on a tour of the fantastically reclaimed High Line Park. Fanya and her husband divide their time between Manhattan and North Brunswick, since Michael teaches at Rutgers. Fanya works for Management Interventions, Inc., an urban issues consulting group and a Stansbury family enterprise based in Princeton. Her mother sustained injuries in a car accident a few years ago and I understand that Mrs. Stansbury's hero was Judd Henderson '92, who witnessed the accident and called emergency

ALUMNI HIGHLIGHT

Aly Cohen '91

Congratulations to Aly Cohen, M.D., who made the local news when she opened a new rheumatology practice in Monroe after practicing rheumatology in Freehold for about eight years. A fellow in the American College of Rheumatology, Aly opened the new practice, Integrative Rheumatology Associates, with the guiding principal of addressing the patient's total well-being and employing a personal approach. The integrative approach to joint healing utilizes some Eastern elements, including herbs and acupuncture. In a feature that appeared in the Cranbury Press, Aly remarked that this integrated approach "is becoming more popular because people are getting sick from pills and surgeries that aren't always appropriate." Aly lives in Cranbury in a renovated barn with her husband and two children.

Aly Cohen,

services to the scene. Thanks, Judd!

Finally, I was in Paris recently and who did I meet? J. Christian Guerrero '89 and Graham Richmond in le Marais. Christian, none the worse for wear with partner, Alexa, and newborn daughter, Avital, but I missed meeting Graham's 2-year-old son, Dune. Christian is the editor-in-chief of Editions d'Exigence and Graham the owner and co-founder of Clear Admit, LLC (<http://www.clearadmit.com>), an educational and consulting group for full-time employed business school applicants. He and his wife, Anaïs, just returned from a relaxing family vacation in Puglia, Italy. Over moules frites, Pernod and mineral water, we debated Joy Division, the Princeton Record Exchange, Dominique Strauss-Kahn, why babies sleep with their eyes open, and whatever happened to Julian Longhouse? A little Princeton in Paris and we managed one snap on the rue Saint Antoine before bedtime.

My husband and I flew back to the U.S. on Monday to find that my hurricane namesake had done little other than ruin a sofa we were going to throw out anyway. We were lucky, but many others were not so fortunate. On Tuesday I returned to my job as sole practitioner of the Law Offices of Irene Kim Asbury and municipal prosecutor for the town of West New York, one of the few Asian American women in the state to have such a position. Prior to this I was appointed by Governor Christie as the Republican Vice Chair of the State Redistricting Commission and the youngest commissioner out of the ten appointments. I've recently moved my general practice from my home to new digs at 1919 Kennedy Blvd., North Bergen, New Jersey, handling everything from estate planning, traffic tickets, commercial litigation, criminal defense, DWIs, bankruptcy, you name it. Soup to nuts. In October I take up the reins of a second term on the Hudson Vicinage Minority Concerns Committee, the Hudson Vicinage Law Day Committee, and this year I'm setting aside time to work with Rising Tide Capital, a New Jersey non-profit dedicated to providing business management training to under-resourced urban entrepreneurs.

From Justin:

In honor of Gerry Seid, I write that Maggie Seidel was recently married to Ryan Waterhouse in New York City. There were plenty of PDS alumni in attendance including: Kyra Skvir Frankel, Anupa Shah Wijaya, Ian Wijaya '95, Jessica Seid Dickler, TJ Thornton and myself. Maggie has wasted no time, and now looks after her two boys, Stewie and George (her two dogs). Kyra recently had her second child, Wylie, joining big sister, Sadie, and Jess recently had a second child, Beckett, joining big sister, Phoebe. Anupa recently had her second child, Lena, joining big brother, Evan. TJ is engaged and marrying Amanda Shintay this fall. Molly Dwyer moved to London last fall and has been traveling around Europe and

The two live down the road from me in Greenwich, CT and are awaiting the birth of their first child, a girl. As for me, I am living in Greenwich, CT and still working in New York City. My wife, Merrilou, and I have two daughters, Ellie and Lily, and the four of us have been having fun traveling all over the world.

From Mandy:

It's hard to believe yet another summer has flown by! Between the earthquake and Hurricane Irene on the East Coast, it has been eventful to say the least. I hope everyone's homes and families made it through the storm all right, and everyone is well on their way with any necessary repairs.

Up in Connecticut Janie Egan Bertelson and her husband, Eric, welcomed another son this summer; Gus joined big brother Mac who is eagerly awaiting the day when he can teach his little brother how to swing the golf club. I say Spring at the latest!

Mike Zarzecki writes that his sister Kari Zarzecki '98 got married this summer to Greg Habay in St. Martin – congrats Kari!

I ran in to Tom Anderman in Montauk over the summer. Tom looked great as always and it was fun to catch up in between his trips to Turkey, Oslo, Kansas City.

Another NY resident Louise Sturges had some great news to share with all of us. Louise wrote:

"I'll be celebrating my 10-year anniversary of leaving Santa Fe for New York City on September 1. I'd have to say, from this thankful perspective that things have happily progressed since then. Chanel-like camera straps. I'll be showing a series of paintings and a large selection of an in-progress project of large color photographs called, 'the distance of dreamers'. And I honestly couldn't be more delighted to announce: I'm getting married up in Maine next August to my fiancé Tyler Hammond Brodie! Otherwise I've been in and out of the city: foto-ing, painting and traveling up a storm – I organized a big shooting trip to Morocco in May, which was beyond memorable. Just got back from a wee vacation in Ravello, Italy, followed by the Locarno Film Festival in Switzerland where three movies I'd produced were playing. All and all it feels like I've been here there and all over and am happy and terribly grateful to be here." Congratulations Louise!!

This summer has been quite an eventful one for me. Over Memorial Day weekend family and friends joined us in Sea Island, GA to celebrate my sister Mia Rabinowitz Cote's '01 wedding to Matt Cote, and what a celebration it was! A few weeks later I began a new position at Hugo Boss, which is not only great, but keeping me busy and sending me to Germany and Switzerland on a more and more regular basis.

Until next time I hope everyone is doing great – 15 year reunion is right around the corner.

The buzz amongst our class already has begun and since this is likely the last Journal before we see each other in May, we have lots of news to report! I'm going into my fourth year of living and working in New York and continue to love it and have been impressed with how many PDS alums I have run into on the street including Laura Davidoff '00, Hillary Widlitz '05, and Nate Smith! I remain in close touch with Julie Wilson, who I saw at the end of August during her visit to the East Coast, and am looking forward to attending, with Grant Schmucker, the wedding of Nick Sardar '01 and Kristen France '01 in October."

There's actually a metal plate bolted across the flu, so when I tried to light my first, highly anticipated fire the whole penthouse filled up with toxic smoke. Fortunately, I had some sliding glass floor-to-ceiling windows nearby that I just slid open to let all the smoke out, but what a mess! It was all the more embarrassing as I had guests in my New York City duplex penthouse apartment on the 5th floor, who were looking forward to sharing a few glasses of red over some good laughs and a blazing hearth. Boy, what a bust. I am going to medical school in the Fall."

Alexandra Warren shared: "This past year I completed my degree in Autism Studies while working at a Lab School in Philadelphia. Grant Schmucker shared: "My most relevant news is all the fun I've had with fellow PDSers over the last few months. It started with a pig roast hosted by Brett Haroldson and Brian Haroldson '00, where I saw plenty of former schoolmates including Nate Smith, John Kunz '00, Adam Vigiano '00, Emily Butler '01, and Rob Jellinek '03 to name a few. I caught up with Alex Sussman at Ilana Goldfarb's birthday party, got together with Kabeer Malholtra, Johanna Dickson, Alice Chow, and Brett Haroldson in July, and in early August spent a great weekend in Block Island with Nick Sardar '01, Ashton Todd '01, Charlie Denby '00, Mike Sieglén, Wilson Weed '01, and some mutual friends from Kenyon College. I was lucky enough to spend some time traveling this summer, including a trip with Eli Oakes, Alyssa Briody and Emily Hamlin to Cape Cod and New Hampshire. It was great to catch up with old friends and I look forward to doing more of that in New York this fall. I hope everyone else is well!"

James Ramos and his wife, Tina, recently celebrated their one-year wedding anniversary in Punta Cana, Dominican Republic. James lives in New Jersey and works for Footlocker in New York City. He and his wife are planning a trip to Ireland next September where Notre Dame, their alma

Ben Johnson wrote: "Hey all, as I haven't seen some of you in a few years, here is a quick update on recent adventures. Since unwittingly leaving the beautiful mountains of Colorado after college I've been working and living in Manhattan. I've spent most of my time at a PR firm called Edelman (with a few other PDS alumni) working primarily in the energy industry. Although I'm enjoying work, the time spent at a desk should be considered a footnote, so here are the highlights: I was the best man at James Ramos wedding (yes, that Ramos), ran with the bulls in Pamplona (stupid), survived a perforated appendix, traveled a bunch, ran a half marathon, joined an old man hockey league, read some books and drank one or two beers. My folks moved to Colorado but I'm still back in Princeton often (keeping Hoagie Haven in business) and can be reached easily on the world wide web. Hope everyone is wonderful."

Matthew Hendrickson wrote, "Since finishing up law school at the University of Pennsylvania about a year ago I've spent most of the past year traveling throughout Europe and Asia. Sadly the fun has come to an end and this month (September) I'm moving to New York where I'll be working as an associate at Cravath, Swaine & Moore LLP."

The PDS members attending the wedding of Leslie Shapiro Davenport '06:

Hello again, class of 2006. I'm glad I was able to see and catch up with so many of you at the 5th reunion in May. Thanks to the reunion committee for doing such a good job organizing that.

I took mental notes during the reunion, so I'll try to transform those into some real notes. Dan Rathausser is working for Expedia.com in Dallas. Charlie Hamlin is also living in Texas, but I forgot what he is doing. Greg Rosen is working for CitizenNet, a start-up in Los Angeles that develops software for managing Facebook ad campaigns. Fred Mitnacht is trading commodities for MAREX Financial in New York. Cait McPhaden is working as a marine biologist in the Gulf of Mexico and Laurie Cartwright is starting her second year at Brooklyn Law School. Charlie Turndorf is in Princeton, fixing software for DataColor, a company that builds machines to identify colors. Adam Savitzky was in San Francisco during the reunion, but sources tell me he is working at a start-up named Forio Online Simulations. I spoke with more of you at the reunion, but I can't reliably remember what you told me so I won't risk misreporting it.

Moving on to information that class members actually sent me, Leslie Shapiro (now Leslie Davenport) married Travis Davenport on August 5 in Bensalem, PA. Davenport writes that many members of the PDS community were in attendance, "from past and present employees, to graduates, to current students." In May, Davenport graduated from Trinity University's Master of Arts in Teaching program with a master's in elementary education. She wrote:

"The past few months have been very busy and exciting for me... We traveled back to New Jersey for the wedding, and had an absolutely perfect night. It was great to celebrate with our friends and family. We are now back in San Antonio and enjoying married life!"

Jeff Richmond-Moll is also enjoying married life and graduate degrees. He wrote:

"This spring, Tae and I celebrated our two-year wedding anniversary, and I graduated from Westminster Theological Seminary (Glenside, PA) with a Graduate Certificate in Christian Studies; in other news, our dog Bo will be turning four this October."

Meanwhile, Alex Kowalski has been channeling his distaste for eggplant into an iPhone game called "Aww, Eggplant?!" According to Kowalski and the game's other creators, "eggplants would ruin any perfectly good shish kebab." Players are required to create a shish kebab from flying ingredients without skewering any eggplant.

Kowalski wrote that the application is "a fun, fast-paced physics shish kababing game with silly screaming vegetables. There are both paid and free versions available in the App Store. IGN gave it a 7.5, so that was pretty good." Game trailers are available at awweggplant.com.

When not avoiding eggplants, Kowalski is finishing a master's in Entertainment Technology, living in Redwood City, California, and working on a game for Electronic Arts.

Another class member with a food-related update is Neil Sharma, who wrote: "My life consists of interning in the city, eating, catching up on the latest Bollywood movies, and trying to lose 10 lbs before the next five-year reunion!! Hah."

Sarah Mischner is also living in New York, but pursuing a slightly different lifestyle. While Sharma sings along to Bollywood songs, Mischner sings with the Americana/folk band Thee Shambles and works in the Brooklyn Academy of Music. Mischner wrote this update in the third person:

"She loves living a block away from Anuva, and a short bike ride away from Aniella Perold '07 and Laurie/Shira. Her immediate plans include improving at the mandolin and convincing Beth to ditch med school and move to BK."

Finally, David Blitzer is an eighth grade English teacher at the Boston Preparatory Charter Public School, which, as the name suggests, is a charter school in Boston. Blitzer wrote: "I recently hung out with Charlie [Hamlin] and Becky [Gallagher], and we had a great time walking around the city and drinking coffee in Cambridge."

I just moved into an apartment on 110th Street in New York, and started classes at Columbia Law School about three weeks ago. So far I reviewed some material from Mr. Sanderson's AP Gov class and felt like I was in a law school movie on multiple occasions. Come visit me if you are in the area!

This fall he is looking forward to the start of Georgetown basketball season as the team's biggest superfan.

Eliza Curtis continues to draw on her passion for volunteering. While studying abroad in Oxaca, Mexico, she taught English in a Zapotec village. This summer she interned at Mount Sinai Medical Center in NYC with a social worker in the Pediatric Endocrinology and Diabetes department, and attended a leadership conference for Best Buddies International in Indiana to prepare for her position as Connecticut College Buddy Director this coming year. She is working toward an elementary school teaching certificate, and will be interning at a group home for adolescent girls in Mystic. After graduation she plans to travel back to Mexico, teach, and attend graduate school for a master's in social work.

Jeff Young had an extremely busy summer, having taken the GRE, MCAT, and DAT all at once. This fall, Jeff will be preparing to apply to a combination of graduate schools, medical schools, and dental schools. This summer he also has been working at the UPenn School of Dental Medicine in the biochemistry department, conducting research on different factors that contribute to bone mineralization. He also just renewed his EMT and CPR instructor license, and he hopes to continue to serve the community at home and around NYU through EMT volunteering, as well as instructing CPR classes for laypersons and health care providers.

Tessica Glancey interned in the Subrogation department of Cozen O'Connor law office's world headquarters in Philadelphia this past summer. As a senior at Bates, she is involved with the Bates student newspaper, sits on the Trustees Advisory Committee, and is the co-founder and president of the Bates College Figure Skating Club, while also teaching figure skating to students.

Hannah Epstein learned the ins and outs of television production at MTV Studios this past summer. She will be working on various film projects at Middlebury this coming year, and hopes to work in the film industry after graduation.

Senior Awards

Presented June 2011

Alumni Service Award

Allie DeCandia and Daphnée Warren

Each year on Alumni weekend, the Alumni Association gives an award to a senior who exemplifies the spirit and values of Princeton Day School through service to others. This year the Alumni Service Award was shared by two very deserving seniors.

Daphnée has proven herself to be a true service leader, accumulating more than 322 hours over her high school career, and participating in a multitude of activities both within the PDS community and outside, traveling as far as a West Indies village. Allie was instrumental in organizing a multitude of events here at PDS – from one of the most successful Thanksgiving Baskets Drives, to Toys for Tots, to our annual Blood Drive, and finally to the Help for Japan wristbands sale.

John Douglas Sacks-Wilner Award

Daphnée Warren and Jamier Gee

John Sacks-Wilner '80 was a young man of great strength and character who explored the intellectual world with enthusiasm and welcomed the challenge of demanding courses. He was admitted to Princeton University, but tragically passed away a month before college started. John's mother commemorates John's special kind of determination and dedication through this annual award, which goes to members of the graduating class who have shown resolution, courage and self-possession. Jamier and Daphnée are two students whose involvement with learning and commitment to excellence has been a notable aspect during their years in the Upper School.

Fred Woodbridge Memorial Award

Dan Kossow, Maxime Hoppenot and Karthik Nagalingam

Fred Woodbridge '78 showed strong qualities of leadership as senior class president and impressive qualities of fine citizenship all his years at PDS. His concern for the good of the community was always sincere and steadfast, and in his memory, his parents have established a memorial award to be presented each year to graduating seniors who have exhibited outstanding leadership qualities in developing class unity and spirit. Three students this year embodied this sense of class spirit and unity: Karthik Nagalingam, Maxime Hoppenot and Dan Kossow.

The English Award

Adam Fisch

Adam began his Senior Credo with the personal mantra, "live like a clock." This phrase also serves as a good measure of his work in English, for reading with insight requires the discipline of time and tenacity, the perception of cycles and chronologies, the measuring of a pulse of meaning beneath the words. And good writing, whether spinning tales or closing arguments, requires rhythm, precision, and the accretion of moments to build toward wholeness and eloquence.

The Writing Award

Jonathan Walker and Rebecca Wong

Jonathan breathes in the world around him and then breathes out words. As Lucille Clifton writes, words "poem" up in him, and it is always exciting when he walks into class asking, "Can I share this new piece with you?" Rebecca is a consummate editor of her own work, as well as an astute and supportive peer editor. In polished, elegant and complex writing, she invites her readers to pick plums at dawn or amble in the afternoon down a woodland path, always considering universal truths along the way.

History Award

Eric Falcon and Jacob Kaufman

Eric and Jacob have each single-mindedly and with unparalleled commitment embraced the study of history and religion during their time in the Upper School. Both excelled in every course they took not only by approaching historical matters as the interpretation of complex events and relationships, but also by cultivating a passion for understanding the motivations and aspirations that influenced history-making decisions. An invaluable contributor to public affairs discussions through his insightful articles in The Spokesman, Eric devoted his Senior Project to exploring the teaching of history at PDS. Through his intellectual commitment, Jacob elevated our community's awareness of public affairs issues by his unmatched dedication to Junior State of America, and demonstrated an exceptional ability to analyze and articulate the strengths and weaknesses of alternative religious and philosophical perspectives.

Math Award

Adam Fisch

With his almost madcap sense of fun, Adam can lead a math class to a greater mastery of any topic. His quick mind allows him to master sophisticated concepts, his curiosity and drive keeps him pushing at the densest of problems, and his ease of working with his peers helps him pull a class along with him. But what really sets Adam apart is his playfulness. He just enjoys tossing an idea around and seeing where it lands.

Computer AwardBen Burwell

Ben has been extremely influential in the technical life of PDS. Perhaps his most impressive accomplishment has been the creation of the "article management interface" for The Spokesman. Instead of emailing various versions of each article back and forth to each other, the staff can now log in to a web site and upload their articles where they can be viewed and modified by the editors. To create this, Ben learned a whole new programming language and spent many hours perfecting the site, which has revolutionized the way the newspaper is created each month.

• SCIENCE AWARDS

Hubert N. Alyea AwardJacob Kaufman

Each year the Princeton Section of the American Chemical Society honors high school seniors who have demonstrated a joyful sense of wonder, a love of Chemistry, and a strong commitment to the learning of new ideas, with the Hubert N. Alyea Award named for the renowned Princeton Professor Emeritus of Chemistry. The aim of science is not to open the door to infinite wisdom, but to set a limit to infinite error. In the classroom, Jacob's keen mind, his never-ending curiosity, and his ability to probe the unknown for clues that help to unravel the mysterious have enabled him to join the ranks of noted chemistry scholars who have earned this same award.

Biology Award*Maya Anjur-Dietrich

Maya has shown great personal and intellectual growth during her tenure at PDS. She has been tenacious in her pursuit of learning and has repeatedly demonstrated a passion for, and a mastery of Biology. Maya's quest for knowledge, her deep-rooted understanding along with her intellectual strength have been a highlight in her performance.

Chemistry Award*Jane Coates

Throughout her four years in the upper school Jane has made her mark in many of our science classrooms—however, nowhere more than in our Chemistry rooms. She has a love for detail and a thoughtful, curious, and passionate way of interacting with the living world that surrounds her. Jane has proven herself to be a keen observer ready to dispel false assumptions by seeking a better understanding.

Physics Award*Adam Fisch

Inspired to learn, motivated to excel, yet wise enough to enjoy the whole learning experience, Adam has had an illustrious career during his tenure in the Upper School. He is a keen observer—able to manipulate data, and possessing the intellect to find the abstract hidden meanings in that data. True to himself, Adam pursues knowledge with a sense of humor and a humble passion.

• LANGUAGE AWARDS

The Elizabeth Fine Latin AwardJane Coates and Allie DeCandia

Allie and Jane shared the Latin and Greek classroom for six years at PDS, so it's fitting that they should share this award, too. Both students excelled in two Latin AP courses: Latin Literature and Virgil's Aeneid and demonstrated a love for good stories, creative interpretations of Latin poetry, and an extraordinary daily application to the tasks at hand.

French Award*Eric Falcon

The recipient of this year's French award has always had a passion for the French language and culture. Already a remarkable French student before he left to spend a year in France, Eric came back from Bretagne with a near-native fluency and an insider's understanding of everyday's life "the French way." Eric's knowledge and appreciation of French literature, French politics and French history is truly outstanding.

The Princeton University Institute for French Studies Award: Grand Prix d'Excellence

Lily Halpern and Dominique Jones

For the 12th year, the Center for French Studies at Princeton University, in cooperation with the Department of French and Italian, has announced the funding of a French Prize by the Government of France to reward the most outstanding student of French at the junior level, in several local high schools. This prize celebrates Lily and Dominique's commitment to and passion for the French language, literature and culture.

Chinese AwardAriel Multak and Kerry Dillon

Ariel and Kerry both clearly displayed their passion and an unmatched interest in learning the Chinese language and culture. To paraphrase a proverb by Confucius, "I hear and I forget. I see and I remember. I do and I understand." They have demonstrated their perseverance and willingness to face difficulties with a sporting spirit and gave 100% of themselves in every assignment.

Spanish Award*Sam Kelly

The Spanish Award recognizes a student who has been deeply immersed in the language and culture over these four years. A resident "expert" of current events across Latin America in his language classes, Sam continuously shared his knowledge and perspective. He learned to speak Spanish without apprehension and has become a dynamic and fluid communicator. Beyond the classroom, he served as co-head of the Pura Vida Spanish club, actively sharing his passion for culture with our school community.

Dual Language Award*Jacob Kaufman

Jacob approaches every endeavor with a thoughtful and purposeful approach. As a junior he debated the AP Spanish literature texts with depth of thought while also starting to learn French. He quite amazingly went from French 1 to French 4 Honors, in these 2 years and then proceeded to start learning Russian for his senior project.

• THE VISUAL ARTS AND DESIGN DEPARTMENT

Painting and Drawing

Cara Sunberg and Lilia Sanzalone.

In the early 20th C Pablo Picasso wrote, "Are we to paint what's on the face, what's inside the face, or what's behind it?" One hundred years later the ongoing challenge of the painter is to maintain a connection to human actions and experience. This year's painting and drawing award went to Cara and Lilia, two students who have made a commitment to honing their craft and searching for these meanings.

Architecture Award

Katie Gibson and Kaleigh McLaughlin

Katie and Kaleigh truly engaged with the spirit of the studio by thinking critically, working creatively, and continually developing a self-reliant design process. Both students worked above and beyond the expected and always demonstrated openness to new ideas and clear understanding of the assignments from the beginning without any compromises or excuses.

Media Award

Tiffany Patterson

Through film, television and the computer we are given access to a full range of human experience. It is all too easy to stand on the receiving side without taking notice of how these stories are told, but the study of film, video and media encourages a student to see through the devices and to the essential narrative core. Tiffany was able to learn how to effectively craft these observations into narratives and create powerful stories.

Photography Award

Caylin Brahaney and Rebecca Sokol

Rebecca developed a uniquely creative vision over the past four years, and created images that were invariably independent, highly experimental, original and outstanding. Caylin put a great deal of energy into four years of photography and into her senior project. She excels at both traditional black and white photography and digital imaging.

The Mark Winstanley Purchase Award Christopher Moyer

Chris has been such an exceptional photographer for four years that we have added one of his prints to the school's permanent collection. His talent, sensitivity to nature, humility and kindness are evident in both his images and in his relationships with all around him.

The Thomas C. Bencze Art Scholarship Award Svitlana Lymar

Svitlana's outstanding photographs have been selected for many juried exhibitions and earned her many awards and much recognition. Whether she is documenting her Ukrainian heritage, shooting a series on mothers and daughters, or experimenting with the medium format camera, her work is outstanding.

Ceramics Award Sydney Jenkins

Sydney possesses a dedicated work ethic matched by her passion for learning and her full engagement with the creative process. Her body of work over the last 4 years reflects a broad range of practices in the field as well as a keen sensibility for working in a series and thoroughly investigating specific directions. With a generous spirit, and an engagement in her own work as well as that of her peers, Sydney was an invaluable asset to the program.

Andy Franz Woodworking Award Jeff Berger and Adam Fisch

This Award is named in honor of former PDS teacher, Andy Franz. Both Jeff and Adam work at a level of sophistication beyond their years. They have been an inspiration to not only their fellow peers, but their teacher as well. While the aesthetics of their work differs greatly, they share in common an intense curiosity for the creative process.

Music Award

AJ Yost, Daphnée Warren, Alex Ioffreda and Kevin Chen

These awards are given to honor the hard work of Princeton Day school's most accomplished musicians. Kevin and Alex are two distinguished instrumentalists who have not only practiced tirelessly and reached an outstanding level of playing, but have also given generously to the PDS Orchestra over the past four years. Daphnée and AJ are remarkable singers who have provided exceptional leadership and set the highest standards for commitment, enthusiasm and dedication to the PDS Chorus and Madrigals.

Theater Program Award

Ben Burwell and Nick Muoio

Nick and Ben have emerged as embodying the spirit of the Upper School Theater Program at PDS.

Nick excelled on the stage, in a variety of styles and genres.

From Shakespeare to drama to comedy to musical theater, he displayed both tenacity and a wildly absurd sense of humor. Ben probably logged in more hours in the theater than any other student, creating a legacy that will not soon be matched. From his work as Prop Master on The Crucible, to Lighting Designer for this year's Performing Arts Festival, Ben has excelled at everything he has attempted.

Dance Award

Lexi Davis

This inaugural dance award was given to Lexi, an exceptional dancer and choreographer. Working in the dance studio both during her free periods and after school, Lexi was disciplined in improving her dance technique and determined to find dance opportunities both at PDS and outside of school. She also helped to organize PDS's first dance club.

The PDS Scholar-Athlete Award

Sydney Jenkins, Kevin Francfort, and Allie Reilly

The unique academic demands associated with Princeton Day School make our student-athletes quite special in their own right. Kevin, Sydney, and Allie have all balanced a rigorous class load and remained actively involved in all aspects of student life, while fully committing to their athletic endeavors. Kevin was a leader on our MCT and Prep Championship Boys Soccer team, a member of our varsity basketball and baseball teams and finished second in the NJISAA voting for the prestigious NJ Scholar-athlete award. Sydney was a 3-year varsity letterman in Girls Lacrosse and a standout 4-year member of our varsity Field Hockey team. Allie was a 2-year letterman in Girls Soccer and a 2-year member of our Cross-Country team.

The Cum Laude Society

Each year, the PDS Chapter of the Cum Laude Society inducts a number of students whose academic performance and citizenship fulfill this national honor society's guiding principles of excellence, justice, and honor. These are students who, each in his or her own way, enrich the life of the school with their creativity, boldness of thought, and generosity toward others, and exemplify good character, honor, and integrity, as well as academic achievement.

Carly O'Brien and Katie Gibson

Carly and Katie are both three-sport athletes who have displayed extraordinary athletic ability and tremendous leadership qualities over the course of their PDS careers. They played a significant role in leading their soccer teams to the 2008 and 2010 Prep Championship and their Lacrosse team to the 2010 MCT Championship. Both girls were 4-year lettermen in Soccer and Lacrosse. In the winter, Carly played on our varsity Ice Hockey team and Katie on our varsity Volleyball team.

Boys' Gold P Award

Skye and Peter are gifted athletes who have contributed significantly to the success of their programs. Both are 3-sport athletes who were instrumental in leading our boys' ice hockey team to the MCT and Prep Championships over the last two years, as well as being members of the 2010 MCT and Prep Championship soccer team. In addition, Skye is a 4-year letterman in baseball and Peter earned varsity letters in both Golf and Lacrosse.

Frankie K. Sportsmanship Award

Kevin Francfort, Jess Freider, Aaron Shavel, Jacqui Stevens and Chris Bonnaig

Frank Kontstantynowicz '76, was a revered student-athlete who attended Harvard where he was a member of the varsity basketball team. In addition to his natural athletic ability, he is remembered for his genuine friendliness, sense of fairness, and his natural and unassuming leadership. This year's senior class had five recipients who demonstrated all the admirable qualities embodied in this special award. Jacqui, Jess, Kevin, Chris, and Aaron were all multi-sport athletes who placed their team above their own individual goals; while providing positive leadership and practicing exemplary sportsmanship.
